'Why I Made a Million' —Ben Bernie

THERE were eleven little Ancels. There is only one Ben Bernie. You know him—the suave, sophisticated, wise crackin' Head Man. He is paid $9,000 a week. He's probably the biggest attraction (with his band) on the air today. He is famous wherever there is a radio set and wherever humans dance. In Kalamazoo and Kamchatka, in the Bronx and in Baluchistan, in Chicago's ultra-ultra cafes, and in Hawaii's hula-hula shacks, they dance to his syncopation, roar at his gags, and discuss his passion for horse races and long black cigars. Sure, you know him—the Old Maestro! You know Ben Bernie. Do you know Bernard Ancel?

They lived—this Ancel tribe—in Bayonne, New Jersey. Papa Ancel was a blacksmith. His father before him had been a blacksmith. Papa Ancel was pious, black-bearded, brawny. Mama Ancel was a raven-haired, dynamic woman. In her veins beat the wild melodies of the Hungarian rhapsodies.

There were eleven little Ancels, and the birth of each meant that Papa Ancel's sledge had to. (Continued on Page Five).

Meet the Old Maestro! And the hoss behind it all. Both his father and grandfather were blacksmiths, but Bernie doesn't shoe 'em, he plays 'em. You read, in this story about Bernie, of a Head Man whom people don't know about—a boy who lived in poverty as little Bernard Ancel, one of eleven children. You see Bernie here "posing as a genius"—or so he says.

Downey Returns to Air; What Price?

Morton Downey is back on the air!

The inference is that he has, at last, been offered a contract after his own heart. When Downey went off the air at the termination of his contract on the Camel Quarter Hour, he was immediately approached by several commercial interests. Downey refused the contracts they offered and went jauntily off to Europe.

On his return, according to report, he was approached several times again to go on the air for other companies. Again he refused.

At that time, observers stated that Downey was holding out for more money than he had yet been offered. While he waited for THE contract, he accepted a vaudeville engagement and made personal appearances all over the middle west, and the south.

In the meantime, listeners flooded Columbia offices with mail asking when the tenor could be heard again.

Morton is back—with a program dedicated "To The Ladies." His first broadcast went Columbia on Friday, October 7, at 8:30 p. m. With Leon Belasco playing a sympathetic background, the lyric tenor will be heard singing sentimental love ballads at the same time each Friday. "To The Ladies" is sponsored by Woodbury.

Whether Downey has achieved the price he has put on his talents, or whether he has compromised in order to satisfy the thousands of fans who have been clamoring for his return, is not known.

Local outlet WGN.

Fleischmann Hour Starts New Series

When the Fleischmann Hour went on the air Thursday, October 6, at 7 p. m. listeners heard an entirely new set of performers for the first time. The new series goes over NBC.

The initial program of the series featured Otis Skinner, veteran stage star; Greta Keller, popular Viennese songbird here in America to take part in the Fourth Little Show; Block and Sally, vaudeville comedy team; the Randall Sisters, southern harmony team and, of course, Rudy Vallee and his orchestra. Local outlet WMAQ.

Vaughn de Leath on 5 Day Schedule

Vaughn de Leath, America's "original radio girl," is billed on a five-day-a-week broadcast schedule over Columbia, including two special periods for juvenile listeners.

Her program for juveniles is heard Thursdays at 4:45 p. m.

N. Y. Philharmonic Starts Season Sunday

The New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra will be heard in forty-two concerts in its third consecutive season of broadcasts over seventy CBS stations, beginning Sunday, October 9, from 2 to 4 p. m. over WGN.

Conductors for this season will be Arturo Toscanini, Bruno Walter and Issay Dobrowen. Toscanini will launch the series and will continue in the role of conductor during the first eight weeks. On November 27, Dobrowen will assume leadership of the Philharmonic and will lead until December 25. Bruno Walter will conduct from December 26 to February 26, when Toscanini will again assume charge of the orchestra until the close of the 1932-33 season on April 23.

Unlike Toscanini and Walter, who are well known to radio audiences, Dobrowen makes his debut as a microphone conductor on this series. Born in Russia and graduated from the Moscow Conservatory of Music, Dobrowen has conducted for many years at the Moscow Opera and also Symphony Orchestras in Dresden, Berlin, Sofia and Oslo. He has also been guest conductor of the San Francisco Symphony.

Soloists during the series will include Egon Petri, distinguished Dutch pianist; Lotte Lehmann, dramatic soprano; and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Russian pianist, composer and conductor.

Programs will originate from Carnegie Hall, the Metropolitan Opera, and the Brooklyn Academy of Music, all in New York City. The detailed program schedule follows:

Sunday afternoons, 2 to 4 p. m. over Columbia. From Carnegie Hall: October 9 and 23; November 6 and 13; December 4, 11 and 25; January 5 and 12; March 5 and 26; April 2, 9, 16 and 23. From Metropolitan Opera House: October 30, November 27, December 18, January 8 and 22; February 25; March 12. From Brooklyn Academy of Music: October 16, November 20, January 1 and 29; February 19 and March 19.

Ed Wynn Heads New Radio Company

News last week was the formation of Amalgamated Broadcasting System, Inc., with Ed Wynn, famous funnyman, as President. Famed producer Arthur Hopkins is director of productions with Oto Gygi and T. W. Richardson as assistants. Talk floating around Tin Pan Alley is that Irving Berlin and Daniel Frohman will soon join the movement started to inject Broadway into radio production. The new company has already signed $1,000,000 in business from two advertising agencies for radio production over metropolitan stations. With Wynn admittedly one of the funniest comics in the business, friends find it hard to visualize him as an executive. The Funnyman says nothing, continues to lure fan mail by the ton into NBC studios. Wynn finds it hard to work without an audience, performs behind a six ton glass curtain which separates him from a generous audience which applauds his gags. His new job has Radio Row atwitter.

Guide-WLS Stars to Vary Broadcast

The Three Contraltos, heard each Thursday at 1:45 p. m. over WLS on a special program sponsored by RADIO GUIDE, are going to vary their broadcast this week to include a number of modern jazz numbers.

Usually the Contraltos feature old fashioned lyrics in harmony with an old fashioned Garden of Melody, but on Thursday, October 13, listeners will tune in on "Penthouse Serenade," "Hiding in the Shadows of the Moon," and "The Night Shall Be Filled With Music," as featured songs on this special broadcast of strictly modern design.

Boswell Leads 'IT' Girl Poll Dragonette 2nd, 'Marge' 3rd

CONNIE BOSWELL is leading the race for the title of Radio's "IT" Girl, on the basis of the votes cast during the first week of this poll now being conducted by RADIO GUIDE. The pride of the Boswell Sisters received 125 votes. They came from all sections of the country, indicating her widespread popularity. Jessica Dragonette, star soprano, was a close second with 121 votes while Marge, of "Myrt and Marge," whose real name is Donna Damerel, is in third place with 104 ballots. The lovely Marge led all the dramatic actresses and most of the vocalists in the first week of this nation-wide contest, which was rather surprising to observers closely watching the poll.

But possibly the biggest surprise of the first week came when Ruth Etting, the beautiful singer of the "Music That Satisfies" program, received but one vote. She is now far down the list, but remember that this is only the first week of this poll, and it is quite possible that enough votes will pour in during the second week to place Ruth near the top. Irene Taylor was in fourth place with 93 ballots. She led Kate Smith, who was fifth with 82.

The Countess Albani was next with 58, and 32 ballots were cast for Irma Glen, the organist. Nell Roy, heard over WOR, and Irene Wicker, Chicago actress, were the leaders of those usually heard on only one station. Other standings are seen on this page.

This is an election year, and it is rather fitting that America be allowed to select its queen of the air. Pulchritude doesn't count—nothing counts except the sheer personality—the "IT" that the radio artist is able to project into the atmosphere. Clip the ballot at the bottom of the page and vote for your favorite feminine star. It isn't necessary that she be heard over a network. If she is only on one station, and that a small one—yet if you like her—your vote won't be lost.

To the winner RADIO GUIDE will present a loving cup, emblematic of the title of queen of the air. RADIO GUIDE will make this an annual contest. This is the first radio popularity poll ever to cover the entire country. Already votes have been received from almost every state.

When you turn your dial—hunting the voice to whom you will give an "IT" girl vote, remember what one big radio executive said about "IT" on the air. "IT," he said, "is the ability of a radio artist, simply through her voice, to project every ounce of personality into the microphone. The vocalists who fail, even though they have fine voices, are those who lack a spark of microphone genius. They are unable to imagine that the tremendous radio audience is right in the studio with them. They just talk into the microphone—and forget the audience. The true radio artist never forgets her audience."

So there's the formula for Radio's "IT" Girl. Connie Boswell, who is leading in the first week's vote, certainly possesses the ability to project herself through the microphone and sing directly to her air audience. When Connie sings—you can almost see her.

Jessica Dragonette, who is such a close second this first week, is another who throws her whole soul into her broadcasting. She's always tense, keyed to a high pitch, when she steps before the mike. She's an actress!

Why should Ruth Etting receive but one vote out of the first five or six hundred? It's amazing. The only answer seems to be that Ruth's fans—and they are legion, according to her mail—just haven't mailed their ballots yet.

Kate Smith is another who didn't make the showing that was expected. Many thought she would run away with the race, because Kate seems to have everything—except a slim figure—that would make an "IT" girl of the air. And the number of fan letters she receives weekly runs into the thousands.

However, this is only the first week. Next week somebody at the bottom of the list now may reach the top. Who can tell? Only you, the public.

How They Stand

The first returns of the "It" Girl poll were:

Connie Boswell .....	125
Jessica Dragonette .....	121
Marge (Donna Damerel) .....	104
Irene Taylor .....	93
Kate Smith .....	82
Countess Albani .....	58
Irma Glen .....	32
Jane Froman .....	21
Irene Beasley .....	11
Ethel Shutta .....	11
Andrea Marsh .....	6
Nell Roy (local N. Y.).....	4
Irene Wicker (local Chicago)..	3
Jane Ace .....	2
Ruth Etting .....	1
Doris Robbins .....	1

These three lovely young vocalists are expected to make quite a good showing in Radio Guide's "IT" girl contest. Andrea Marsh, in center, has already received several votes. You hear her over the Columbia network with Ted Weems and his orchestra. Peggy Healy, at bottom, is the newest of Paul Whiteman's vocalist finds. And, boy is she cute! And has she got "IT"! At top is Doris Robbins, who has been heard with Herbie Kay's orchestra. Peggy Healy hasn't received any votes yet—but she hasn't been heard on the air very often. Do they deserve your ballots?

WHO IS THE MYSTERY TENOR?
All America is wondering—guessing—charmed by his golden voice

Bernie Tells Life Story

"You know him—the suave, sophisticated, wise crackin' Head Man . . . He is famous wherever there is a radio set and wherever humans dance. Sure, you know him—the Old Maestro! You know Ben Bernie. Do you know Bernard Ance!?"

 swing more times each minute. There was little money for that great brood. There was stark poverty. And when, on May 31, 1897, there arrived upon the scene one Bernard Ance, a squalling mite, why Papa Ance's bellows roared, and his forge glowed white. Another mouth to feed . . . another pair of shoes . . . doctor's bills. It was tough for Papa Ance—plenty tough.

"Listen," said Ben Bernie, gulping his third chocolate soda, "don't look at me so funny. If I lose my waist line now it's because I can remember the days when I couldn't afford a waistline."

The older Ance boys helped Papa around the shop. Benny wasn't so big, and he wasn't so strong. But he loved the horses. And dogs. He was crazy about dogs. He'd share his meager meals with any little hungry dog who prowled around his father's anvil.

Fruitless Bernie

"When I was a kid riding the newly shod horses back to the farmers who owned them," said Ben Bernie, "sometimes I'd go into their houses. And I'd stand wide-eyed at the sight of the fresh fruit on their dining room table. My brothers and I knew fruit only as a birthday rarity. Gee, we used to call those farmers 'rich bugs'. Believe it or not, it took me years to get over my awe of an orange."

"I never asked the farmers for one of those oranges. But I wanted 'em. I wanted 'em bad. I told myself that some day I'd make a million dollars and buy all the fruit my mother, and my sisters and brothers, could eat."

Well, he's done it. And I think that Bernie's one great happiness is being able to care for his mother as he had dreamed he would when he was a hungry kid who could never eat fast enough to catch up to a second helping. And that's no hokey.

Benny Ance was a frail child, too frail to follow the trade of smithy. 'As long as I couldn't join the anvil chorus," said Bernie "my dad decided that I would be an engineer. I guess he thought it was a high class branch of black-smithing. Mother had Gypsy blood in her veins. She gazed fondly at my huge mop of hair and decided I'd be a violinist—a maestro. So a violinist I became."

The Ances moved to New York. Papa Ance opened a blacksmith shop under the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge, a few blocks from where the New York Evening Journal building now stands. You can still see it there, with its faded sign on a dirty red brick wall. In the first years of the Twentieth Century that part of Manhattan—the Cherry Hill section—was as hard as Hell's Kitchen. And the boy from quiet little Bayonne had to stand the jibes of Cherry Hill's young hoodlums as he walked, precious violin under arm, to the home of his instructor. He took it. He still can take it. He wanted to be famous. He wanted to be a millionaire.

At fourteen the prodigy gave a concert in Carnegie Hall. True enough, the hall was paid for by relatives who might have been a bit prejudiced, but everyone agreed that the young artist showed promise. No one ever suspected that he would desert Bach for Berlin, or that he would pay off the family mortgage with "Whose Your Little Whozzis."

Why Not an Engineer?

But Bernie's father couldn't understand why Benny would rather be a musician than an engineer. So at sixteen Ben, much against his will, entered New York University, where they make engineers, among other things. They didn't make one out of Benny. He spent most of his time directing and writing campus theatricals. Young Ance persuaded them to abandon the Shakespearian drama in favor of a Minstrel show. And Benny was de Head Man. That's where he picked up his now famous "Yowsah," with a slight East side accent.

One Christmas vacation Benny got a job selling $5.98 violins at a bargain counter in a department store. But he wasn't content with just selling them. He put on a sales talk, for the benefit of crowds of customers, that sounded like a Will Rogers monologue. Some of the customers even went so far as to buy violins.

A Break from Schenck

One day his audience included Joseph Schenck, who was then in charge of bookings for Loew's circuit. Schenck offered Benny a job at $35 a week for twenty weeks. "I hesitated three seconds—just long enough to impress Schenck—and then I accepted," says Bernie. At this time Bernard Ance became Bernard Berni, "The Boy Wonder." Berni became Bernie when some press agent with a flair for e's kept tacking one on the end of his name. It wasn't Ben's fault.

The Boy Wonder toured the provinces in a full dress suit playing concertos a la Heifitz. He was an artist! He didn't cut his hair and he cultivated a look of genius.

He was a mild success. Then one bright day in the Virginia Hills a two-fisted and well-filled mountaineer, irked by a Beethoven sonata, leaned over the balcony and let loose with a quid of tobacco. His aim was unerring. Until that moment The Boy Wonder—the genius—had never spoken on the stage. But he spoke then—and how he spoke! He ad-libbed a flock of choice Cherry Hill words that had those mountaineers gasping. Funny thing was, the manager liked it. After that The Boy Wonder talked more and played less. They raised his salary.

Ben bought a bowler hat, a pair of peg-top pants, and a flock of five cent cigars. He teamed with an accordion player, and the act became Bernie (the extra e had been added) and Klass. Their overnight jumps from town to town were made without benefit of Pullman. Ben and Klass rode the rods.

"About that time I heard of sleeping berths on trains," said Ben, tilting his cigar, "but I never believed the story."

And Bernie smiles. "See this," he says, and touches the greying hairs around the temples, "well, I didn't get these talking into a mike. Sometimes we didn't even have train fare. Once we were going to Des Moines and we didn't have a ticket. The conductor was making the rounds. I knew he'd throw us off—maybe in the middle of some darn desert. So I fiddled my way from car to car, passing the hat. One old gentleman endured two of my solos. Then he offered to pay the fare for both of us if I'd stop playing."

Bookings became scarcer. Finally Ben had to take a job in the Haymarket Cafe, one of the toughest dives in the old Bowery. He played for "throw money" and meals. His mother didn't know. She thought he was playing in a swanky salon. He sent her money out of his tiny earnings every week. Imagine him, then—a slender, pale boy, poorly dressed, frail, playing out his heart for the scum of the four corners of the earth. Gritting his teeth, and playing, and hoping. His songs were punctuated by drunken roars, and riotous laughter, and brawls. All he had was ambition and courage.

Ben at Reisenweber's

He got a break. He became the first master of ceremonies for Reisenweber's, no longer in existence, but once the rendezvous for New York's famous. Many great stars of today—Al Jolson, Sophie Tucker, Eddie Cantor, and Harry Richman—began their careers at this cabaret. Incidentally—and this is news—I hear that Bernie and Jolson are going to team up for a series of broadcasts, which will probably make the greatest radio pair in history.

After Reisenweber's the team of Bernie and

Plums and Prunes

By Evans E. Plummer

MESSRS. Hoover and Roosevelt, if you will pardon my interruption in the midst of your broadcasts, would you mind telling me whether times are going to get harder or softer when one of you gets in? The reason I'm asking is that too many name bands are trimming in size to ten pieces or thereabout because they think times AREN'T going to get better fast next spring and summer.

Early this year Paul Whiteman began pruning, and he has pared several times since. I understand also that all George Olsen has left is his wife and a baton. Last week saw the considerable diminution of Gus Arnheim's band, and Wayne (Waltz) King, my birdie peeps, is betwixt MCA and the NBC over which two or three of his musicians are to get the blue ticket.

Bernie, Weems, Lopez, Vallee, Trumbauer, Agnew, McCoy and Lombardo haven't chopped yet, but you can never tell when the axe will fall. Anyhow, the last named band can't very well reef its sails without putting one of the Lombardo brothers out of work. Yes sir, President Hoover-Roosevelt, something's got to be done about this band situation, so how about sending the Marines?

Tish Kluck, our one reliable applause mail sender, reports that she's found a way out of the depression. She's making a fortune by selling Chinese gongs to radio stations for their prolific mystery thrillers.

SHAME ON N. Y. TIMES!

The ever-honest (?) New York Times promoted radio in grand style Sunday, September 25, when Orrin Dunlap, Jr., the air scribe, festooned his page with an eight-column line: "Politics Discards Radio Arm Chair Campaign; Stay-at-Home Idea Vanishes; Politicians Realize Radio Lacks Advantages of Personal Contact."

It couldn't have been, Orrin, could it, that the "front office" of the Times suggested those headlines as an assist in selling political advertisements in your paper? Of course it couldn't, but I notice the air is still full of campaign gab.

Enough of politics and other depressing things. To change the subject, Ted Weems relays this one from Chicago's Uptown theater. When he and his brother, Art, were young, Ted says they crashed theater doors as "members of the profession." In a two-show town, one day, Art asked the other show's doorman if he "recognized members of the profession," and was snappily told, "I'll say I do—a mile away!"

OLD SONGS OR NEW?

What songs do you prefer to have your radio women sing? Maybe we're wrong, but we've an idea the sentimental ones with a few years' tarnish are sure bait to capture the most of you. To prove or disprove our theory, however, we are offering to send you an autographed photo of your favorite network artist in exchange for a list of the five songs you like best, accompanied with your (honest) age. Do it now. The address is 423 Plymouth Court, Chicago.

OFF A LIVE MIKE—

Mrs. Bontsema won't go the route. Instead she's gone to N'Yawk to patch it up with Pete, Al's air partner . . . Will Al Jolson join Ben Bernie on the malt show? . . . Olsen and Johnson are coupling up with Vincent Lopez in auditions . . . Clean cut Phil Andrews has gone into the photograph business in Chicago with the Weems boys . . . Cosmetic client is warming up to Patricia Ann Manner's music-comedy show . . . Dorothy and Wayne King still quite nertz about one another and building a new suburban home on their Wisconsin estate . . . Nick and Sue Carol's "Nick and Sue in Hollywood" script, delayed by the arrival of Carol Lee Stuart eleven weeks ago, is active again . . . Harriet Cruise, the new CBS songbird who's wowing them, has a cigaret commercial in the offing . . . Secret marriage of Linda Parker, the WLS mountain songstress, last June in Valparaiso, Ind., to Art Janes of the Maple City Four, finally coming to light . . . H. Leopold Spitalny, the Shaeffer maestro, moved into new private studios in the Wurlitzer building, Chicago . . . What ace pair of NBC stars acted like hams by snubbing a rival radactress of the opposition chain on the occasion of a recent cafe opening, and why? . . . With Jean Paul King writing his frau in N'Yawk that all is well, it looks as if all is well once more . . . KYW suffering from another big personnel cut . . . CBS powers-that-be quite troubled over Myrt and Marge having a character (Duke Sandfield) go blind, but hundreds of blind folk loved the questioned episode for its sympathy . . .

PLUMS AND PRUNES—

World's Series Announcing: Prune for McNamee for being jerky and permitting lulls in his shaky-voiced descriptions. Plum for Husing's invariably better settings. Play-by-play mikeman ratings are two plums each for Totten and Elson, and one plum for Manning because he wasn't as well informed. Flanagan gets two plums. Might have earned three, but his too obvious letdown when the Cubs slipped cancels a better standing.

Lady Esther Serenade, Oct. 2, (2 p. m. on NBC) wins basket of plums for cutting its hitherto nauseating commercial credit to nothing. Reason being that no Serenade was broadcast on account of World Series.

Monarch Mystery Tenor (Sunday, October 2, 1 p. m. on NBC) bowed with an act that has been missing for some time from the chain channels, that of good old Irish ballads by an unnamed tenor of Erin. What time was given to radio gossip Charles J. Gilcrest was well used. Show well worth several plums and twice the time.

Pat Barnes' "Jintown Sketches" (Mon. to Wed., 7:45 p. m. on NBC) offer more good voice changes than Amos 'n' Andy, and the plum-winning virtue of showing the sparkle of new situations that has not of late been possessed by A. & A.

A goodly portion of plums go to Fu Manchu (Mon., Oct. 3, 7:45 p. m. on CBS), a newcomer with many sound effects and shrieks coupled with very splendid casting. Colliers, a year ago, had a better Dr. Fu Manchu, but Charles Warburton excels as Nailand Smith, Bob White stars as Dr. Petrie (and almost Dr. Watson), and Sunda Love charms as Karemeneh. Rohmer plots, however, are thinner and more melodramatic than those of Conan Doyle. The air will soon have a mystery thriller or two for every night in the week.

Chase & Sanborn hour (Sunday, 7 p. m. on NBC) always worth a plum or two for Rubinoff's violin solos and orchestra, even if Georgie Price isn't funny, and he isn't always. This program has a way of splashing money around to headliners who don't click, but Georgie has done as well as or better than those previously in his spot.

Lucky Strike hour (Tuesday, 9 p. m. on NBC) begins to tire with the same routine of squad car siren, short wave loud speaker and the ever successful Barry Rudd, but the audience generally takes it several months longer than this scribe. Prune-winning monotony of Curtin plots probably due to the similarity of gangster methods. Either gangsters are terrible copycats or banks and jewelry stores are their only aim in life. Announcer Claney, if he is as fatigued reading as we are listening to the identical commercial hoey sandwiched in this show, is just about ready for the psychopathic ward. Suggestions: Dig up more varied crimes and change their presentation a bit. Send out scouts for diversity in music makers such as cowboy syncopators, barn dance jig timers, all-guitar, fiddle, saxophone or marimba bands, and please—please shake up the words in that sales patter.

Carleton Smith Back in U.S.

Guide Music Critic to Hear Toscanini

Carleton Smith is back from Europe—and in the weeks to come Radio Guide's music critic will review what's good—and bad, on the air. You see him here as he stopped in Salzburg, Central Europe, chatting to Mme. Sigrid Onegin, the great singer of "Orpheus."

HERE I am back in New York, with noise, dirt and more excitement than all of Europe! Shortly after sunrise this morning, I saw Manhattan's giant fairyland of buildings that no foreigner will ever believe exists until he sees it. After passing our Customs—the most troublesome known to civilization, with the possible exception of Soviet Russia—I found myself officially and technically at home, with my purchases, my memories and a healthy tan.

The passage was just the kind I like. Enough sea to make it interesting, and plenty of sunny days. From the moment Africa fell into the ocean and Spain receded into the horizon, I was free. No telephone calls, no radio talks, no lectures to be given, not even a column to write. Only the bluest blue waves of the Atlantic to greet me.

My relapse into lackadaisical indolence almost lost me a big toe, when I failed to realize that this was New York and not the boat. A taxi came too close to me while I was watching a group of tourists leaving Penn station. Tourists in New York? I had never noticed them before. Always thought Europe had all the tourists.

Unpacking is interesting. I had forgotten many of the things that I had stored away. Seeing them again reminds me about places and events I haven't told you. There are shoes from Oberammergau; the derbuka of Algiers; the Venetian glass that was blown for me while I watched; the scores of "Orpheus" and "Oberon" with Bruno Walter's markings; the wooden man in forty-six pieces who, when fitted together, holds a bottle in his hand and stands on a keg—this, from Budapest.

The former capitals of Austria-Hungary are in a pitiable state. Vienna, because of her former gaiety is by contrast more deplorable than Budapest. Vienna wears the weeds of widowhood, and when you stand among the Hapsburg tombs in the Capuchin church, you feel that all her glory lies buried there. The Viennese are still Viennese, however, if you meet them in their homes. They do not go to the cafes now. They are poor. But they manage to preserve their gemutlich reputation. They are as good-natured, philosophical and agreeable a people as you can find anywhere.

Most of the artists and professional Viennese were in Salzburg during festival-time. You could meet almost any important person of the music-world there. They follow Bruno Walter wherever he goes. So Mme. Sigrid Onegin told me while we walked in the woods near her summer home across the border of Bavaria. She is a great artist, and I hope that America will not be long in hearing her portrayal of Orpheus. Unfortunately, Onegin has not yet broadcast in America. Radio suffers as a consequence. One hearing is sufficient.

I only wish that each of you could live for a time with the peoples of Europe. They have less in material comforts, but greater happiness than we, I believe. There is time for them to put thought into their work, and the machine has not crowded out the incentive. You may admire their desire to inject an individuality into their houses and their surroundings. You may cherish the fact that somewhere man still keeps the product of his hands as a secret heirloom—that he will not be satisfied to have aluminum pot and a hole in the wall, already made and furnished for him, and identical with those used by thousands of his fellows. But you know this is not for you. In our lives there is no room for things we do not use. The tempo is too rapid to allow the individual variations in taste.

But home is home. Even though one would, he cannot adopt another culture and make it his own quickly. He knows that what we lose in one way, we gain in another.

Now I am ready for a heavy diet of good radio programs. This Sunday we will all have our ears together when Toscanini starts the first of the sixteen Philharmonic broadcasts he is to conduct during the season. Bruno Walter is to have nine, and Issay Dobrowen, who makes his microphone debut the first Sunday of December, four. When the mail is all cleared away, I shall let you know what else is promised for us this winter.

Winning Mikritics for This Week

RADIO GUIDE will pay one dollar for any Mikritic accepted and printed in this column. Mikritics are remarks of any kind made on the air which will interest other people. They may be amusing, inspiring, funny, pathetic, or queer.

Here are the rules: The quotation should not exceed fifty words. It must be accompanied by the name of the person who made it, the exact time it was heard, and the station from which it was heard. The name and address of the sender must be attached. Any number of Mikritics may be sent by one person. Address your letters to Mikritic, care of RADIO GUIDE.

This week's winners:

Mac and Bill—September 23—8:08 p. m.—WSB:

Mac: "What is the difference between city and country chickens?"

Bill: "There is no difference. They all get tough if you let them run around."

Monroe McGill

German Band—September 24—5:15 p. m.—WLS:

Hiney: "He says his wife drives nails like lightning. You know, lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

Mabel I. Ray

Sinclair Minstrels—September 26—8:18 p. m.—WLS:

Gene: "What do you call your new dog, Mac?"

Mac: "I call him Hardware, Gene."

Gene: "Why do you call him that?"

Mac: "Because every time I call him he makes a bolt for the door."

Sue Banks

Texaco Fire Chief—September 27—8:58 p. m.—WMAQ:

Ed Wynn: "A patriotic business man is one whose books are in the red, whose hair is white and who feels blue."

Marion Brewer

Chase and Sanborn—September 18—8:05 p. m.—WBEN:

George Price: "Boys, do you like moving pictures?"

Boys: "Sure, we do."

George: "Then come and move mine from the garage to the house."

Valentine Sadowski

Sinclair Minstrels—September 26—8:13 p. m.—WLS:

Gene: "I bet you enjoyed your radio while you were sick, Bill."

Bill: "I sure did. It's a wonderful set."

Gene: "How many controls has it?"

Bill: "Three—wife, daughter and mother-in-law."

Dorothy Le Page

Whispering Pianist—September 19—8:28 a. m.—WBBM:

Art: "What's the difference between a church bell and a politician?"

Friend: "One peals from the steeple and the other steals from the people."

Ella Hefferman

Fire Chief Program—September 27—8:57 p. m.—WMAQ:

Graham: "Here's a letter for you to answer, Chief. Somebody wants to know what to do for a baby that can't sleep at night."

Chief: "Tell them to put the baby on the edge of the bed and I'm sure he'll drop off."

C. Doane

Sinclair Minstrels—September 26—8:20 p. m.—WLS:

Gene: "Do you know how old Mac is?"

Ray: "Well, I don't know exactly, but at his last birthday party the cake was so loaded with candles that a few people were overcome with the heat."

Mildred Zastro

Meet the Tarzan of the Apes of the air. He is James Pierce, and in his arms is Joan Burroughs, who plays the role of Jane Porter in the skit. This sponsored program is heard daily over WBBM, Chicago, CKOK, Detroit, six coast stations, and later the transcriptions will probably go over thirty-eight other stations.

REVIEWING RADIO

By Mike Porter

"I SHOULD have read the papers," complained Mr. P. Herkimer Twack, of the Greenpoint Twacks, "but I was sure there was goin' to be a raddio show this year. Now here I am all the way from Greenpernt, and disappointed."

Mr. Twack seated himself wearily.

"Why don't you take in the studios if you're a radio fan?" I suggested.

"That," replied Mr. Twack, "is why I am here. I've been to all the raddio jernts. I've sat around until my cuffs were serled. But I've seen most everybody, and maybe I could give you an interview."

"Fine!" I exclaimed. "I'd like a fresh point of view."

"I'm not fresh," insisted the visitor. "And maybe I ain't got any pernt of view. But maybe I've got some news. I was in the reception room of WABC the other night and I hear 'em talking about Washington troubles, so I jerned 'em. Seems as if the raddio fellows is afraid of a tax."

"So?"

"Yep! The people were sayin' as if it was making the raddio head men's blood berl. Some Congressmen, they was saying, are plannin' to shove in a bill to help the budget this winter."

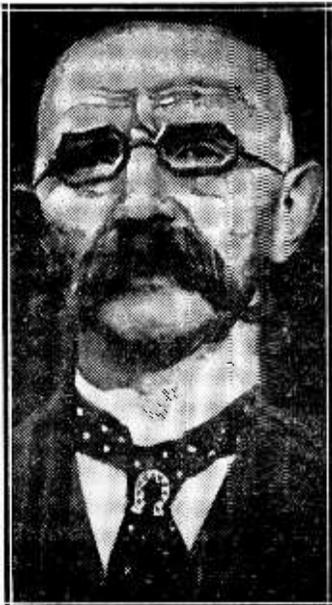

"They are plannin' to put the bee on all transmittin' stations—each to be taxed accordin' to its power."

Mr. Twack smacked his lips as I nodded my appreciation of his news gathering.

"Funny," he went on, "in another raddio jernt, I met a few raddio stars. And there was one of them raddio writers there askin' pernted questions. So I wrote down what they was sayin', thinkin' maybe you didn't want to be scooped."

"Great," I complimented. "I'm glad you dropped in."

Mr. Twack smiled. (Continued on Page Fifteen).

Editor's Mail Box Over the Air

RADIO GUIDE readers are invited to ask questions concerning their radio favorites and broadcasts. If the information is interesting, we will print it in this column. No personal replies will be made.

LOUISE HACKLER—Snooky, Grampy, Helen, John, Mathilda and Granny on the "Riverdale" sketch over WOR, New York, are portrayed by Estelle Levy, Norman Pierce, Frances Reade, John Quinlan and Lela Ward Gaston respectively. Lela Gaston takes both Mathilda and Granny in the skits. Quinlan and Frances Reade are not married to each other. We know of no "Man About Town."

Beth Tremmer—Gail Bandell sang all summer over KYW, Chicago. Later she was officially connected with Arts Production, and now she is off the air . . . temporarily, we hope.

Genevieve Rajiuon—The Goldberg skit originates in the NBC New York studios. "Amos 'n' Andy" come to you from Chicago.

Mary—Hans Muenzer, until this summer, first violinist in the Chicago Theater Symphony Orchestra, left the air in June for a vacation in Germany. He will be back in Chicago and at his old place as first violinist in the Chicago Theater sometime in October.

"Nep Fan"—Anthony G. Nep is now a resident of Cincinnati and appears occasionally as guest artist on featured WLW broadcasts. Nep is the composer of the brilliant "Manhattan Moods," and a noted concert pianist as well. He is twenty-two-years-old, and a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

M. S.—No Walter Fitzgerald on the Eno Crime Club of August 30. Could you be thinking of Emma Fitzgerald portrayed by Jane Houston? Sir Wilfred Denny was played by Junius Mathews on this same program. On September 6, Eno Crime Club presented John McGovern as Dr. Jack Graham, and Clifford Walker as Sir Julian.

Vincent Ferranova—Georgie Price does most of the announcing on the Chase and Sanborn Hour. Al Shayne has left WOR, New York, and is not, at present, broadcasting as far as we can find out.

F. E. K.—Hugh Aspinall has severed WBBM, Chicago, connections in favor of a position with the staff of WISN, Milwaukee.

G. Hanson—Junius Mathews is thirty-five-years-old and not married. He is not the same person as Allan Devitt of WJZ, New York, although he and Mr. Devitt have appeared on the same programs together.

Lorin Chapman—True Story is off the air, with no definite arrangements for its return.

TWO WJJD PRIZE FEATURES

Adventure Stories De Luxe

ADVENTURING WITH LOWELL THOMAS (WJJD—Monday's 7:45 P. M.)

Stories of Adventure! Thrills from all over the world! AND written by the man who is considered one of the greatest adventurers of modern times—Lowell Thomas.

Every Monday at 7:45 P.M., WJJD presents a complete episode in the series—“ADVENTURING WITH LOWELL THOMAS,” and next Monday night (October 10th), WJJD listeners will hear “The Escape.”

Mr. Thomas has written this story about Major A. J. Evans, a crack pilot of the Royal Air Forces at the outbreak of the world war. The title that should have been bestowed upon Major Evans is “The Escape Artist,” for seventeen times the enemy—Turks and Germans—captured and recaptured this resourceful young man who didn't know when to quit trying to escape.

This, most likely, would have gone on indefinitely, but the fun had to stop for the Major because peace was declared after his seventeenth venture.

Flo Gardner Mystery Drama

Flo Gardner receives a cablegram from India, telling of the death for her father, Dr. Gardner. But as the cablegram tells nothing besides this, she senses that there is some mystery surrounding his death. So off to India she goes.

After she arrives, she has not long to wait, before she finds that her fears were well founded and that her father was murdered. With the help of a young man who was her father's assistant, she sets out to find the murderer.

On Wednesday nights at 7:45 p.m. WJJD takes you to India the land of mystery, and to Flo Gardner who, we hope, will succeed in her very dangerous mission.

FLO GARDNER
(WJJD—Wednesday 7:45 P. M.)

Meet the Artist

Tito Guizar

By Lee Ronell

"I LOFF, you know, to sit and strum my guitar and sing the romantic loff songs. I am so happee in my work. The beautiful loff song . . . 'hm tadee dee da'." Whereupon Tito bent his left arm into an imaginary guitar and started strumming and humming "the romantic loff song."

Tito is the strangest Mexican I have ever met. Not that I have ever actually met another Mexican, but then I've seen pictures and movies and Lupe Velez and all, but the latter have shown Mexican guitar players to be about forty-five years of age, extremely paunchy of stomach and greasy of visage, glorying in huge curling black mustaches on the order of ye old time melerdmer villain.

So I must admit that Tito gave me quite a shock. Tall, lean, lithe, with very white skin, pallor accentuated by straight black hair and greyish brown eyes, Tito appears to be just exactly what the young Princetonian is looking like this season. His eyes hold no dark, sinister light. Rather do they reveal a boyish expression of naivete and slight bewilderment at the big sophisticated town of Gotham and its big sophisticated broadcasting companies.

Tito is just twenty-five. He was born and raised in Guadalajara City. Anyone living most of his life in Guadalajara City would be bewildered, and I can understand why. He doesn't speak English without accenting and mixing up phrases and clauses and genders in a really delightful manner, and this mixing up, combined with his deep, melodic and mellow voice, is an essential part of his charm. But due to the mixing up, Tito won't stir a step without his Missus . . . "who really spik verra nice." Whenever a broadcast is on, Tito hops a cab so there'll be no chance of going astray. "Th' cops, you cannot make them understand you . . . don' go left or maybe it ees right . . . I don't know. Carmen drive better. We have . . . what ees his name . . . the Frenchman, movie star . . . oh yes, Maurees Chevaleer . . . we have hees car." (No doubt Maurice's car is all Chevrolets in general).

Here I interposed with "I understand you have a charming little wife, Tito, is it so?"

"Oh yes, verra, verra nice. You mus' meet her. She ees . . . how can I say? . . . dancer too much, not singer too much . . . everything together in little bits. She ees one fine wife and I think . . . stay married now for the rest of my life." Here his face became serious . . . "I don't think I change. You can't tell of course what can be . . . but I think we stay married long time."

Tito met his wife while he was singing in a night club last year. "I look at her. The first time I meet with her, I like her verra, verra much." Here his voice took on an additional deepness of tone. Confidingly he said, "Yes, verra, verra much I like her. She like me too (his eyes light up and new shades of emotion come into his already expressive voice) . . . and then, six months after I marry with her. Fourteen months . . . it ees fourteen months already. It seem I jus' meet with her."

"She ees fine, Carmen. She push me right along and tell me where to go and how to do. I feel now I have big opportunity. If I don' make most of it now, it will nevirre come again. So I work hard. When I sing the English words, I study same song seex weeks. Terrible it ees for me to lorn thees English. I study at night, Carmen, she help me, I work verra hard, but thees beautiful English, she . . . prelude me. (N. B. prelude equals elude). Italian I lorn right off . . . but Engleesh ees different."

If all you people could only see Tito and hear him "spik"! You'd be won over to him immediately. You'd be delighted with this handsome kid that looks as though he'd just stepped out of a college fraternity. And then hearing this jumble of English from his deep voice with its shadings and tones . . . it ees beautiful. I would not have Tito Guizar speak English correctly for all the world. If he ever does, I'll not "spik" with him again.

Tito, you know, originally sang in grand opera. He studied at St. Mark's Academy in Milan and toured all over South America learning each province's songs and characteristic melodies and rhythms.

Tito is very sentimental and entirely romantic. He has all the fervent enthusiasm for "living" that Latins inherently embody. He like verra much the letters he gets from women fans . . . he laughs because "although she not show it, Carmen I think she a little jealous, sometimes. I like that . . . it ees good for womans to be a leetle jealous sometimes. But she not show it."

TITO GUIZAR

Evolution of Jazz

By Clyde McCoy

(Heard on the NBC Network with His Orchestra)

JUST as America has been called the "Melting Pot of the World," because of the different people and races that have settled there, it may also be called the "Musical Melting Pot of the World." The influence of all the different races and nations has been felt in American music even though many people think that the music of the Negro has been the sole influence, along with the music of the American Indian. I do not think this is true. I do believe that the Negro and Indian music has been the latest factor in influencing American music, but not the sole influence.

If you care to turn back the pages of time, you will find that for the first hundred years, American music was almost solely under the influence of the Puritans. Their hymn books and songs greatly influenced American music. The most famous musical collection of the Puritan era was the "Bay Psalm Book."

This book was published in 1640 and was an arrangement of the Psalms which were to be sung to the old tunes that were found in the Ainsworth group. The Ainsworth collection was brought from Holland—the better known of these are "Dundee" and "Old Hundred."

Then the settlers of Virginia and the Carolinas brought the music of England to America, and even today the most perfect forms of the early English folk songs can be found in the Appalachian Mountain section. Then in rapid order, the folk songs of Ireland, Scotland, Wales, England, Spain, France and Holland became influential in the different settlements of America, but the infancy and newness of the country kept music from developing rapidly. The influence of the settler can be seen in the music of the American Indian. For example, among the Huron tribe of Canada, can be found many songs which show the distinct influence of the French, and among the Penobscots and Delaware, who were the two tribes in closest contact with the Puritans and Quakers, the use of hymn-like chants is very noticeable; and the music of the Southern Indians, Pueblo and Navajo, shows the influence of the Spanish missionaries.

Then, with the coming of the Negro, another influence, and probably the greatest influence, was felt in American music. The music of the Negro became divided into three different parts; the "Work Songs," the "Spirituals," and the "Negro-Creole Songs." The Negro of the "upper South" expressed themselves in "Spirituals," but not as religiously nor with as deep a fervor as the Negro of the "Lower South," who were in constant dread of being sold in slavery. Among the Negro "Spirituals" are the familiar melodies: "Deep River," "I Want to Be Ready," "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" and "Good News."

In the Negro-Creole music is found the influence of Spain and France. This is only natural in that the country was directly under the influence of the French and Spanish for many years. The best example of the first dance songs of American music are found in the music of the Negro-Creole tunes of the Cubans. The two white men who composed songs derived from Negro sources, that have been the most successful, are Stephen Foster and Dan Emmett. Their work was so successful that today it ranks among the best composed folk song of any nation of the world.

There are different types of Negro music, the lively, the somber and the plaintive. The "somber" may be a heritage from the African negro. However, we find that the "lively" music of the Negro is the one that has had the greatest effect. The "Rag-Time," that came into being at the close of the nineteenth century, is supposed to be an imitation of the plantation tunes. This is true to a certain extent. There have been many explanations as to the origin of the word "Rag-Time." American "Rag-Time" has been defined as syncopated music, or "Ragged Time"; but while that idea is, no doubt, descriptive, the term probably came from the old Negro festivals known as "Rent Rags," which were given to raise money for the landlords.

The first playing of "Alexander's Rag-Time Band" created a sensation. It was the first rag-time tune to be composed for dance music by the white man. It was the first step toward our present day "Jazz."

It started a definite turning point in American music. It became very popular. Soon all dance bands were playing rag-time.

What will the future hold in store for American music? I do not believe that any one person can answer this question. I do believe, however, that we will see many new types of melodies.

WE NOMINATE FOR AIR'S BEAUTY HALL OF FAME

If the networks ever held a beauty contest, these three artists would be right at the top. At the top of the three is Bess Johnson, dramatic actress heard on the Lady Esther Serenade on NBC at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays. Center is the slim Peg La Centra, featured singer heard irregularly on Columbia networks. And our biggest beauty prize we give to the girl at the bottom. She's Sarah Ann McCabe. You hear her on the Singing Strings program every Monday at 10:30 a. m. and Wednesdays at 10 a. m. over NBC.

Orchestral Doings

Deane Janis, striking young Hollywood vocalist who made her radio debut with Harry Sosnik's orchestra from Chicago during the summer months over the CBS network, has been engaged as featured vocalist with Hal Kemp's orchestra at the Blackhawk Cafe in Chicago and is now heard over WGN.

Ted Weems and his orchestra, who have scored a hit through their personal appearances in the Balaban and Katz theaters in Chicago during the past few weeks, open at the Club Forest in New Orleans on October 16. The Weems orchestra follows Jan Garber into the Club Forest with Garber moving to the Hotel Walton in Philadelphia on October 20.

Gus Arnheim and his "Ace Band of Movieland" are now heard over WDAF, Kansas City, while playing an engagement at the Muehlebach Hotel.

Jack Denny and his orchestra have landed another radio commercial through MCA. Beginning October 26 they will go on the air for Whitman's Chocolates over both the NBC and CBS networks. They will broadcast over NBC every Wednesday from 7:45 to 8 p. m. and every Thursday on the CBS network at the same hour.

Lloyd Huntley and his "Isle O' Blues" orchestra are now heard over KDKA from the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh. Huntley succeeded Jack Pettis, who goes to the Silver Slipper in Washington starting October 26.

Jean Burke is the vocalist heard with "Husk" O'Hare's orchestra during their broadcasts nightly over the CBS network from the Hotel LaSalle in Chicago. Miss Burke comes from a sister trio who have been heard over several Chicago radio stations during the past year.

William Stoess and his Flying Dutchmen broadcast over NBC networks from WLW, Cincinnati, each Sunday at 11 p. m. for a half hour program of popular dance tunes.

Lloyd Shaffer's Band broadcasts as The Frigidairians Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at 4 p. m. WLW is the NBC outlet originating the program.

Reviewing Radio—By Mike Porter

"This fellow was askin' 'em this: 'What kind of a broadcast would you make, if it was your last?'"

"And what did they say?" I demanded.

Mr. Twack consulted his cuffs. There was Ben Alley," he said. "He's one of them sentimental boids. He said: 'If it was my last broadcast, I would send a message of faith and hope to the invalids and old people, all the shut-ins and all those who write in and say how much happiness raddio has brought!'"

"That was nice," I put in.

"Sure," agreed Mr. Twack. "The next fellow was Morton Downey. He said one time he heard a man from Greenpernt talking from a soap box. So Mr. Downey went back several nights to listen, and the speaker was so sincere and sure he had a message for the world, that Mr. Downey figured he would turn over his last broadcast to that man and give him a break. I followed that writer around and he went in to see Donald Novis. Now there's a fellow whose voice is like erl on the waters. This writer fellow took me along and Novis said if it was his last chance on the air he would sing 'The End of a Perfect Day,' 'You Try Somebody Else' and 'Everything Must Have an Ending.' But I liked Leo Reisman's answer best. He said if it was his final program he would play all the music that his little boy begged him for. Some are nursery rhymes which Reisman set to music."

"In your travels," I asked Mr. Twack, "you've probably heard some news."

Mr. Twack's Adam's apple bobbed, which, I learned later was a symptom of pleasure. "While I was lookin' for a raddio show, I met all kinds of raddio people," he explained. "I just made it a pernt to hang around with 'em, and of course I heard a few things. I heard a story that would maybe give you a laugh. It was about Borah Minnevitich, the man what has that harmonica band. Well, he went to Europe, and while he was there he raised a beard."

"Sure," I put in. "We all have heard of that."

Mr. Twack raised a protesting hand. "But that ain't exactly the pernt," he said. "This beard grew out in every direction, and when Minnevitich came home, he went around to see his friends and nobody recognized him. That gave him an idea and he went to call on his old pal, M. H. Aylesworth, headman of the NBC. You know all Mr. A.'s friends call him 'Deac'. Well, as I was sayin', Minnevitich rushes into Mr. A.'s office, lookin' like a Russian moujik — that's one of them peasants. Mr. A. don't know Borah from Adam, so Borah begins to paw him and kick his shins, demandin' to go on the air.

"I'm de ex-chef of de Roosian czar," says Borah. "I want I should go on de raddio to tell people how dey must eat. I do it cheap."

"Mr. A. tries to quiet this fellow, and he wonders how he got in. But the visitor gets more offensive each minute. Finally, Aylesworth pushes him to the door. 'Beat it,' he says. But Borah goes back and says, 'I go out if you giff me t'ree dollars—I got to eat!' So Mr. A. hands him a finif, and Borah, stoopin' at the door, says, 'Thanks, Deac!'"

"Mr. A. then tumbles it is Minnevitich, so he sends him around to all his friends in the jernt. So Borah collects $50 before he leaves the place."

"I don't like to discourage you, Mr. Twack," I said kindly. "But I've heard that story."

Mr. Twack looked hurt. "Then why didn't you print it?" he challenged.

"Let it pass," I said. "What else have you heard?"

Mr. Twack fumbled in his pockets. "I know how you fellows are," he said. "Always askin' queries and when I came in here I didn't want to disappernt you. So I made some notes. This fellow Roger Wolfe Kahn is in the Pennsylvania hotel. This Kate Smith's so sick, she'll go back to Lake Placid. I heard 'em saying on Broadway as how this talk of a third chain is the bunk."

Mr. Twack rose to go. I got up, too. "Can't I take you to lunch?"

My visitor smiled boyishly. "Well, to tell you the truth, I'd like an erster stew," he admitted.

"You seem," I said, as we were leaving, "to be quite familiar with the radio."

"I thought you knew who I was," he pouted.

"I'm sorry . . ."

"Well," he said, "I ain't. It's a nice job I got o'er there on the Greenpernt Gazette. I'm the raddio editor."

HELLO FELLOWS!

This Is—HOWARD PLUMMER of Decatur, Ill., Broadcasting

I am eleven-years-old and my brother, Wayne, is nine. We both sell Radio Guides and have been selling them ever since last winter. We are selling more than thirty-five copies a week now and are adding more each week. We expect to go higher than seventy. In fact we are sure we will go higher than seventy and I hope that we will sell more than a hundred.

I am in the sixth grade in school and my brother, Wayne, is in the fifth grade. We are putting our money in savings at the bank to help us go through high school after we finish grammar school because there isn't so much money now.

My favorite radio star is Gene Antry and Wayne's is The Arkansas Wood Chopper. Our favorite sport is football.

What I like about selling Radio Guide is that I get more and more new customers. And once I sell them a Guide, then they always want another, and they become regular weekly customers.

Wayne and myself both like to sell Radio Guide and we find it very easy now that people are coming back from their vacations. This is Howard Plummer broadcasting through station G-U-I-D-E and we'll sign off now.

You'll hear another Radio Guide star salesman next week. S'long.

HOWARD AND WAYNE PLUMMER
(Radio Guide's Star Salesman for This Week)

You too—any boy in America—can earn GOOD spending money by becoming a Radio Guide salesman. When you become a Star Salesman we will publish your picture in Radio Guide. In addition, we will give you free 200 letterheads carrying your picture, name and identification as a representative of Radio Guide. We will also send you a fine copper engraving of your photograph which you can use to print pictures of yourself.

The Story of Maude Adams

—By Ida Bailey Allen—

One of a series of articles on "Today's Pioneer Women" by Ida Bailey Allen, whose interesting talks on this subject are heard each Tuesday at 10:15 a. m. over the CBS network, sponsored by the makers of Pebecco Toothpaste.

A LITTLE BOY stood at the stage door waiting for Peter Pan to come out—Peter, with his winsome smile, Peter, who, with Tinker Bell, had transplanted the little boy to the Never-Never-Land a few minutes before. The door swung open and a young woman with the elfish face of Peter Pan emerged.

The little boy's heart broke! Peter wasn't Peter, but just a girl in dresses. Then and there, Maude Adams vowed never again to leave the theater as long as one child remained in sight. She couldn't bear to destroy the wistful illusion she had created for thousands upon thousands of children, to whom Peter Pan and Tinker Bell were as real as their own fingers and toes.

Strangely enough—or perhaps not strangely at all—Maude Adams had grown up with a passionate desire to be a great tragedian. In her childhood, tragedy had been the really "respectable" career; an actress tolerated comedy only as a make-shift until she should blossom as a great tragic heroine.

Maude Adams' stage career had begun early—so early that she probably does not remember her first appearance herself.

In those little-girl days, Maude Adams not only learned her own parts, but also those of the other actors. When a grown-up colleague insisted on prompting the six-year old child, Maude whispered with frank displeasure, "I know my part and yours too. Mind your own lines."

The child actress was undeniably a success. Billed as "Little Maudie Adams," she toured California and the coast cities in the old-fashioned melodramas and farces then popular.

Finally the awkward period arrived; she was neither child nor woman. Two years "out" for school seemed to her so much wasted time, although a friendly teacher guaranteed to convert her into an instructor in elocution earning two thousand dollars a year!

But Maude Adams and her mother had different plans. The father had died, and together they decided to brave New York.

At last she secured an ingenue assignment in a play called "The Paymaster." Her chief feat was to plunge into a tank of cold water and to be rescued by the hero. Because of her daily immersion, she contracted a severe cold. "No more cold water," was the stern order of her mother, who thereafter doubled for her daughter in this scene—until detected by the keen eye of David Belasco.

After playing various small parts, none of which brought her much notice, Maude Adams considered the offer of a five-year contract to play juvenile comedy. At the same instant, Charles Froham offered her a minor part in a play by David Belasco and H. C. De Mille. The first promised security—money. The second was a gambling chance—she took the chance!

It proved to be a "lucky break"; for only a little later on John Drew joined the Froham forces. Maude Adams, out in San Francisco, was sitting for the photographer who had taken her pictures since she was a baby star. "Who is the lady John Drew will make love to?" he asked with fatherly interest. "Why, I am," chirped Maude Adams, scarcely appreciating her own good fortune. As a sign of his good-natured unbelief, the artist walked over and playfully pinched her ears. It's a matter of record that she did become Drew's leading lady, and made a hit almost overnight.

One evening as she played in "Rosemary,"

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

J. M. Barrie, author of "The Little Minister," noted with joy her winning smile, her fragile delicacy, and her fairy grace. "There," said he, "is the woman to play my Lady Babbie." And Maude Adams was not quite twenty-five when she made her debut in the old Empire Theater as Lady Babbie, in "The Little Minister." The play ran three years. Other successes followed—"As You Like It" and "Romeo and Juliet." Then she played in "L'Aiglon" a part created by Sarah Bernhardt. Then her manager, having tracked down no modern play suited to her, planned another Shakespeare series. Just as he was leaving her after an interview, he thrust a manuscript into her hands, with this remark, "Here's a new play of Barrie's. I don't think I'll produce it, but you may be interested in reading it."

The play was "Peter Pan"; and, before Maude Adams had finished the first act, she knew she had met the character she'd always dreamed about. And why not? Didn't Barrie frankly admit that Maude Adams had been his inspiration for the gay, wistful little boy who didn't want to grow up? She interpreted Peter Pan to thousands of enthusiastic people and, although other triumphs followed, it was always Peter Pan that drew the greatest applause.

In 1918, at the height of her career, Maude Adams retired. Then the theatrical world realized that, even in her years of greatest activity, she had never really been a part of it. She had remained demure and aloof.

Yet the theater itself, if not the people in it, still possessed the soul of Maude Adams. The actress devoted herself to research in stage-lighting. She used a mysterious laboratory provided by a great electrical company, and for fourteen years she experimented. Imagine the frail little lady among those awe-inspiring machines, seeking the effects of light!

Last year, when nearing fifty-nine, Maude Adams emerged from her seclusion and mounted a production of "The Merchant of Venice," with Otis Skinner as Shylock and herself as Portia. The real star was her lights, however, they proved a bit strong, but they produced a wonderful impression of sunlight.

At the premiere in Cleveland, Ohio, Miss Adams bowed before a tremendous ovation. Her admirers, the boys and girls of two decades before, may have hoped to recapture their youth—to behold Peter Pan again. Some of them showed disappointment because Peter Pan had grown up. Maybe they regretted most that the world and they, too, had grown up since 1918. But Maude Adams should have been a living witness to them that in gaining years we lose nothing. She stayed mentally alert. She was busy. When she came back home to the theater as Portia, she was supremely the woman, not the child, because she hadn't let life conquer her.

Hunting—for What?

It took some persuasive arguing by Ralph Colucchio, guitarist for Singin' Sam, to persuade the dicks at a police station that he was a country gentleman and not really operating an arsenal. He was arrested when a motor-cop saw a half-dozen large boxes of cartridges in the back of Ralph's car. He was taking them to his farm for hunting purposes but the cop was from Missouri.

The Old Maestro and His Million

Phil Baker, the accordion player, was formed. Phil used to carry Bernie's violin to the theater and hang around his dressing room in stage-struck awe. He thought Ben was a combination Barrymore and Kreisler. Ben thought Phil had the right idea and gave him a job.

Pay checks grew bigger. At first Phil never spoke in the act. He played his accordion and acted as a foil for Bernie's gags.

"I'll never forget the day," Ben chuckled, "when Phil had his first lines to speak. It was in Frisco . . . packed house out front. We had rehearsed a gag for two weeks and it looked sure fire. Right in the midst of it Phil doubled up with laughter and ran into the wings, carrying the gag with him and leaving me with an audience.

"Those were great days. We used to live in boarding houses and we washed our own socks. We stole each other's ties and borrowed each other's girls."

The boarding houses gave way to hotels. Then they got rooms with baths. They rose rapidly to headline billing on the Keith circuit. They played the coveted Palace in New York—many times.

At the outbreak of the War, the team split into single acts. A back injury prevented Bernie's enlisting. "I got a job in the Secret Service of the Orpheum circuit watching the German acrobats," he says.

Hop to 1920—the beginning of the jazz age. Bernie sensed that the new type of music would soon be sweeping the country. So whenever he was in New York he'd drop in nightly to listen to Paul Whiteman, the first great modern batoneer. He listened to Whiteman and learned the secret of jazz. Later he was to add much, in his own right, to the development of syncopation.

And the Prince Danced

Ben started a stage band, featured in a vaudeville house. When the Roosevelt Hotel was built in New York, Bernie and his band were billed into the beautiful Roosevelt Grill for a six months' engagement. He stayed five years. In those five years Bernie made the Roosevelt the rendezvous of Gotham's smartest set. London heard about him and Bernie and the boys spent several months in the famous Kit Kat Club. The Prince of Wales danced to his music, liked it, and came back for more.

Back to the Roosevelt for six months and then to the New College Inn of the Hotel Sherman in Chicago. That's where his broadcasts, heard by tens of millions, originate now.

"Listen, Ben, how do you do it? How do you think of your ad lib chatter in front of the mike?"

"Aw, I don't know, I try to feel that the people I'm talking to on the air are right on the dance hall in front of me. And I talk to them like that. I mean I try to take them into my confidence—make them feel right at home—in front of my band. Just like we were all together."

Well, in the last ten years Ben Bernie has made his million. He's sitting on top of the world, and his isn't the kind of fame that dies or even diminishes. He's added a new note of happiness and good will to American entertainment. There's banter in his tone and laughter in his voice.

You see, he's taken a flock of hard knocks on the chin. And he stood it. Now everything is rosy. And he's standing that, too.

He has a thirteen-year-old son in military school. What's his son want to be? A maestro! Sometimes they play together, the two Bernie's, at benefits and orphanages.

Bernie can't pass a stray dog without patting its head. He has five dogs, three German shepherds and two great Danes.

And hosses. Bernie loves them. You can't keep him away from the race track. Used to be, he'd risk thousands on a race. Not any more. Now his bets are small. He doesn't believe in throwing away money when some people haven't got any money. They say (and this is only rumor) that he dropped fifty thousand one year playing the races. "If I had only two dollars," he says, "and one of my pet hosses was running, I guess I'd bet that two dollars on his nose and miss lunch."

A youthful Westerner, Bobby Benson, and his bosom pal, "Silver Spot," look pretty for you here. Isn't "Silver Spot" a beauty? Bobby, in real life, is Richard Wanamaker, youngest hero of the H-Bar-O Rangers, new Columbia skit heard each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 4 p. m.

He got his greatest race track thrill when he put up $1,800 to win $10,000 on the two great favorites Boojum and Wichone. When they galloped down the home stretch in front Bernie started running too. He beat them to the wire by a nose.

"The Cutest Little Filly"

His favorite hoss is Top Flight. "She's the cutest little filly that ever stepped into the paddock," he says. Last year at Saratoga Bernie went to the Whitney stables and had breakfast with Top Flight. And he claims he talked to her. "You see," he says, "I come from a very hossy family."

Bernie is a golf fiend (he shoots 80), a bridge fiend (pretty good game), a hamburger fiend (eats every one you show him), and a cigar fiend (smokes twenty a day). He calls his cigars "heaters." He carries a little surgical scissors around to clip his "heaters." He has four radios in his apartment in the Hotel Sherman. "Suppose three of them went on the blink."

Bernie, you know, has been on the air with his band for ten years. He gets fan letters by the tens of thousands of letters and employs five secretaries to handle the mail. Bernie reads all the letters he can. His pockets are stuffed with mail and everywhere he goes he leaves a trail of empty envelopes behind him. It's the only way I can listen in on myself." All letters are answered—except the mash notes. Mash notes are embarrassing, he says.

Well, there you have him—up there on the dais, a big grin on his face, nodding to friends, and nonchalantly drawing words into the mike. Then you look closer and you notice a certain tenseness of expression; tiny, strained lines in his face. His hands are taut. Nerves? No. Bernie is giving you everything he's got. Any night and every night Bernie does his best . . . for his friends, the audience.

"We hope you like him."

—Pat Frank

Gossip in the Air

By Jerry Wald

YOU can't possibly imagine the thrill we're getting now. I mean, sitting down to a typewriter again and pounding letters into words which will later linotype their way into a column . . . a column which will be read by thousands, who are thinking just what you're thinking now . . . "has Wald lost that nose for news that featured his early efforts"? . . . "is he a little touchy about handling 'hot' scoopies now that he's back at the portable"? . . . "can he still print the low-down on the high-ups?" Well, the answer is . . .

UNTANGLING THAT WEBB-VALLEE MARRIAGE MYSTERY

During the past several weeks, Radio Row, Microphone Mart, Broadcasting Boulevard, Static Street and then the Main streets of thousands of cities have been abuzz with comments concerning the recent near bust-up of Fay and Rudy Vallee. "It must be a publicity stunt" . . . "can't the Vagabond Lover hold even one woman?" . . . "what's behind the whole business?"

In January of this year, when the curly-locked crooner's missus first decided that she just wouldn't be all alone by the telephone, while Rudy was kept busy and away from home in quest for the shining shekles, that was the birth of the blues for the Vallee romance. She could keep tabs on him, of course, and hear his whispered love notes by a twist of her wrist on a dial, but there is no question that at some time the man's place is in the home and Fay wanted him there in person to sing those soulful sonnets to her alone. Affairs reached their climax at that time when the "most envied girl in the world" packed her bags, picked her train and hummed "California Here I Come" en route to the station.

Eddie Schueing, best man at the wedding, and at that time best manager of Vallee's personal affairs, alibied Fay's departure by telling the slouch hatted and turned-up collared boys of the dailies that it was strictly a health hike . . . and a health hike Rudy, himself believed. It seems that Fay had informed Rudy that her doctor had prescribed an extended rest cure out there where the West ends.

For no good reason at all, the Fleischman paid a personal visit to the pill purveyor. Doc didn't remember having suggested any California climate as a cure-all to the missus, and when instead of landing at Palm Springs, the west-coast health resort, Fay tripped to the family hut at Santa Monica, it dawned on the ace of the air-ravers that this might be just a detour to Reno.

Rudy Vallee was madly in love with his wife. He burned the wires between New York and the Coast. He pleaded over the long distance phone for her to return. He sobbed his heart out in long letters. It was all to no avail; Fay refused to come back. Growing panicky at the thought of losing her, Vallee as a last resort summoned Schueing and his attorney Hyman Bushel and commissioned them to fly to the coast and do a John Alden for him. "Bring her back to me at any cost" . . . that was Rudy's parting shot in the ears of his emissaries as they entered their plane. The urgency of the mission was the only kind of a factor, incidentally, that could ever get the former jurist, Bushel, into an airplane.

On arriving in Santa Monica, the two boys went into their act. They told Fay that Rudy was heartbroken. They put on a tear jerking performance that would have done justice to a Clarence Darrow. According to their insistence, Rudy would put a homing pigeon to shame. He would devote all his efforts to her entertainment. The vagabond lover would vagabond no more, they declared.

Fay returned and for a while all was peaceful in the seven-room and kitchenette hang-out in Central Park West. But Rudy kept delving for those darting dollars, and Fay was a gorgeous gal. Every night the Vallee routine included crooning across the footlights, and after-theater appearances at a night-spot where he chanted things into a microphone and caressed the reed on his saxophone instead of the lips of his missus until the curfew hour. When he got home, his "help yourself to happiness" mood was gone. His daylight hours were taken up with executive conferences and rehearsals.

The happenings of last month which started so many tongues and tonsils awagging, were nothing more or less than carbon copies of the events of eight months before. This time, there was more show to it. Under the master of ceremonyship of Hyman Bushel, who announced that Fay and Rudy had come to the parting of the ways, the grand walk-out occurs. Accompanied by a fanfare of valises (and press notices) Fay takes a fade-out for Reno, fed-up for fair with Rudy's absence from home. Then, just like the second act of a musical comedy, Fay pulls a classic "curtainline" and broadcasts dramatically that she "can't go through with it." All it needed was a theme song.

The third act of the Vallee marital farce has the two principals back together again. Needless to say, the question arises, "How long will it last?" We sincerely believe that Rudy knows he has been wrong in his treatment of Fay, and that the paths of this spotlighted couple will be more even from now on.

THE WALD'S HAVE EARS, AND JERRY IS THEIR MOUTHPIECE!

NBC is making private overtures to both the Guy Lombardo band of horn tooters and the Stoopnagle and Budd team, two of the Madison Avenue Air Castle's ace air attractions to go under their banner, with plenty of bucks being used as bait! . . . Johnny Young, the NBC wondeliver, gifted Bernice (Mourning Becomes Electra Show) Elliott with a sixteen cylinder Caddy on her return from California, and as soon as her present matrimonial bonds are clipped from hubby number one, they'll form a new life-time hook-up . . . Les Reis, of that Reis and Dunn harmony duo, this week moves into a swanky suite in the seventies which features a thirty-five thousand dollar pipe organ, but he's trying to get back the sparkler which Ray Gleekel is flashing . . . It's about time that someone informed the N. Y. Biltmore Hotel management that Mildred Bailey is no longer connected with the Whiteman aggregation, for her photos are still adorning their lobby display . . . An impending lawsuit influenced the changing of the title on those Ted Husing shorts from "Sportslants" to "Sporthrills" . . . Mort Downey, whose wife, the former Barbara Bennett, will shortly sponsor a new twenty-four hour feature (baby, to you!) has purchased a home-movie outfit and stocked up on films featuring Constance and Joan Bennett . . . Discount all that wedding rumor concerning Art Tracy and Marta Marston, for they're only sweetheating, as yet! . . . When Russ Columbo found out that Fox Films were putting the taboo on his singing in his first feature flicker, he cancelled arrangements for the screen test they had planned . . . Bob Riordan, the banking boy, and Peggy Healy, a new Whiteman singing find, are paying off in love songs, and ditto for Frank Parker and Jessica Dragonette!

We close our column, but our ears open until next week!

GUIDE GUEST STAR

Here you see Cecil Lean, co-star in the musical comedy "Of Thee I Sing," now running at the Grand Opera House. Mr. Lean, the surprise guest on Radio Guide's own program on station WJJD, 6:45 p. m. Friday night, October 7. Old timers all remember Cecil from the La Salle Theater days when he starred for six years in such favorite successes as "The Time, The Place and The Girl," "The Umpire" and "The Girl Question."

Voice of the Listener

What to Do, What to Do?

West McHenry, Illinois

Dear Editor:

What are we going to do? The sponsors of our old friend, Pat Barnes, have changed his program to the evening, three times a week, and on Monday at the same time that Fu Manchu is on the other chain.

Now, that is not the end of my little tale of woe! Our good old friend and music maker, Wendell Hall, and the dear Country Doctor are on the air every night except Monday (when Wendell is not on at all) at the same time.

Again I ask, what are we going to do? Two very, very good programs on at the same time.

Of course, I read all the letters in "Voice of the Listener." I agree with "E. C." that the Lucky Strike hour is much better since Walter Winchell has been removed.

Margie Trent

Winchell Cause Divorces? Tsk, Tsk!

Baltimore, Maryland

Dear Sir:

I've just read "E. C.'s" letter and I'm burning up. What's the big idea of the knock about Walter Winchell? Probably the only ones who call him a scandal-mongering snoop are pious, narrow-minded snoopers themselves.

About his causing divorces. I think that's a lot of hokey. How about the many would-be divorces he has patched up by giving them a little taste of the notoriety they would get.

Remember the time he printed a story about a "ham" who caused the suicide of a little chorine? Did he ever tell his name, in spite of the pleadings of his readers? Why not? Because he knew that the show would be boycotted and he didn't want to throw people out of work. If Winchell has an atom of malice in him, wouldn't he have published the "ham's" name?

Mrs. Jack Fruman

Winchell—the Blessed Event!

Cape Vincent, New York

Voice of the Listener:

If "E. C." was trying to start an argument when he wrote, "It wasn't Winchell and his disgusting scandal-mongering that made the program famous" (meaning Lucky Strike, of course) he has met with success. I say it was Winchell, the very name "Walter Winchell" that made the program what it was. We all know that we could hear the same dance tunes played by the same orchestras all over the dial any night in the week.

She Likes Four

Carteret, N. J.

Dear Mr. Contest Editor:

My choice for radio's "IT" girl is a tie between four great stars—Irene Taylor, Connie Boswell, Ethel Shutta and Ruth Etting.

Sidney Rockman

And What Have We?

Hello Everyone:

The girls have their Russ Columbo, the boys their Sid Gays and I have my own also—Julian Woodworth. True, I doubt if he is very well known, but he leads a real American orchestra.

I'm starting a Julian Woodworth Fan Club and will be pleased to receive letters.

William L. Millstein
276 Leigh Ave.
Newark, N. J.

And Their Friends' Friends?

Kenosha, Wisconsin

Dear Sirs:

A few weeks ago I entered a Mikritic for your column and you printed it awarding me one dollar. I want to say since showing my friends and neighbors the printed Mikritic with my name, they were so surprised and enthused about it that they also are buying RADIO GUIDE each week and are listening for Mikritics to send in to you. The boy who delivers the GUIDE here has to bring along extra ones now.

Mrs. Frank Fenuta

Kate Was Courageous

Dear Sir:

Read the letter sent in by the R. K. C. Club which said that Kate Smith's voice hasn't the pep of a few weeks ago. Don't they know that Kate is far from well? If they had been following the latest radio news by Mike Porter they would have known how dangerously near pneumonia she was, and with it all she had more pep and feeling in her songs than the rest who are well.

If there are any Kate Smith fans in the above club I would enjoy hearing from them.

Katherine Caruthers
8502 Eighty-ninth Ave.
Woodhaven, L. I.

Rudy, Forever and Ever

Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

Gentlemen:

I like others on the air, of course, but Rudy is first, last and always with me. I consider him the greatest artist on the air. He has the sweetest voice I ever heard and the best orchestra on the air. I am a member of several of his clubs, buy all of his recordings, determined to hear all of his programs and have a number of pictures of Rudy. Oh yes, I am a Vallee fan.

Rosaline Toteen

A Pain in Several Necks

Hammond Indiana

Dear Sirs:

People who are always complaining about the radio stars give me a pain in the neck. If they were acquainted with them they would know how hard they work, constantly rehearsing, trying to be as perfect as possible in order to please their audience. They are sensitive and easily hurt by people's criticism.

Did you ever notice that these same persons that howl so loudly about these radio stars will go to a punk show and never say a word in criticism of it's talent? Why? Because they paid for their entertainment there, and the radio is free. No one appreciates something he gets for nothing.

RADIO GUIDE Fan

She's for Dragonette

Dear Editor:

I feel that Miss Dragonette has the most exquisite and beautiful voice. Hers is the most natural and sweet and sincere woman's voice. Though she may not, although she deserves, win this contest, in my opinion she will always be "The Queen of the Air."

J. M. Zdanowski

Jack Miles—Smooth

Dear Editor:

I would like to start a Jack Miles Club

TOP OF THE MORNING

It's Gene Carroll at the table and Glenn Rowell, his teammate, wearing the Turkish towel. "Lena," impersonated by Gene, has hired a Hindu mystic to give lectures on love to her tating club. Here's Gene plus gold fish bowl revealing all. You hear the two on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays over an NBC-WLS network.

What is the matter with his "Band of Bands"? I think he is about the smoothest of any.

William Ludwig
134 W. North St.
Ilion, N. Y.

Do You Read Carleton Smith?

Dear RADIO GUIDE:

Why not give some attention in your RADIO GUIDE to those of us who are not at all interested in mystery drama (in which the plain country girl speaks in the accents taught in the "academies of the drama") or who could live quite happily if the crooner and the saxophonist were suddenly to disappear from the face of our globe.

But what space do you give to good music? Beyond a few gingerly notices of the Erno Rapee orchestra when it first began playing, you have not deigned to give it any attention. It is not even identified in the program; it is just another symphony orchestra. The RADIO GUIDE is cultivating a taste that discourages the Chicago stations from giving anything worth while.

Music-Lover

New Tunes—We Need 'Em

Gentlemen:

Beautiful music, wonderful words and feeling and somebody gets a bright idea and fixes it up for dance music. Let some of the composers get busy and write some new tunes for orchestras and leave the classics and near-classics for us who like them as the composer intended them to be.

Josephine Strassburger

Did You Vote for Her?

Warren Ohio

Dear Editor:

To Dorothy Lee Glass and Elmer W. Peacock: Let me say their favorite soprano is mine also. Miss Dragonette's voice is spring itself, lovely, colorful, sweet. She is the Queen of the Radio!

But the King's crown, Dorothy, would fit splendidly on Frank Parker's head. So there, you see, we differ in opinion. I have yet to hear another tenor who can sing a light popular song as charmingly as a classical one with such ease as Mr. Parker, and I have heard plenty of them in my years.

Marie Grinta

Quick, Oswald, Pie Plant Pete

Norwich, New York

Dear Editor:

Why can't we have a picture in RADIO GUIDE of Pie Plant Pete, and also one of the artists who take part in the Southland Sketches every Sunday morning?

Audrey Smith

All Is Lost Without Walter

Dear Editor:

Walter Winchell was the best on the air and now that he is off, the radio is no use to me. The stuff on the Lucky Strike now is rotten. I have listened to Lucky Strike a long time and liked it until Winchell went off the air. Jack Pearl isn't funny, but he's silly.

V. G. T.

No Foolin', We Could Fill TEN Guides with the Letters We Get

Brooklyn, New York

Dear Editor:

Several weeks ago I submitted an article in reference to Russ Columbo. As yet same has not been published. I fully realize the many letters you receive but I assure you if you print mine my many friends shall believe that if you send a letter you publish them in due time which means so many of my own friends shall subscribe to your RADIO GUIDE.

SUPREMACY

IN the entire field of Radio publications has been arduously earned by and universally awarded to

RADIO GUIDE

"The National Weekly of Programs and Personalities"

BECAUSE

With fourteen editions, covering the 28 radio centers from the Atlantic to the Rockies, and from Canada to the Gulf, Radio Guide alone can give the exact time of a given program on any station according to your clock, without your having to make mathematical computations.

And it is these fourteen editions that gives Radio Guide such a tremendous and rapidly increasing circulation—a circulation that will not be approached by any other publication in America.

BECAUSE

No other publication so completely and satisfactorily answers every demand of the vast throng of radio-minded home folks. Not only by furnishing an accurate listing of each and every program on their favorite station from early morning till midnight, but also because Radio Guide publishes in each edition feature articles, personal interest stories and illustrations as well as the latest news of radio artists, stations and programs.

BECAUSE

Radio Guide offers but little for those merely interested in radio mechanics or technique, but gives the utmost in program information and timely editorial content to those who enjoy "listening in" to the hundreds of worthwhile daily programs. Radio Guide is the time-table of the air as well as a weekly review of all that's going on in radio-land.

BECAUSE

Radio Guide is a weekly and prints radio news while it still is news. Being a weekly, press time is merely a matter of two or three days before you get your copy, so any necessary program changes or last minute additions are instantly made.

These are the physical features that have brought supremacy to Radio Guide.

The fact that the publication from cover to cover has met and supplied the demand of thousands upon thousands of lovers of the best on the air plus the advantages of the vast scope of Radio Guide ditribution insures the permanency of its supremacy.
