YOUR VOTES! COUNT!

DOES Hollywood dominate your radio dial? Will Movie-dom's "guest stars" some day present the only programs your radio will bring in? Are all the better radio artists deserting the air to play to the screen's more sensitive microphones—and bigger payrolls? These questions are debated everywhere by ardent air fans. Few regular radio listeners are without opinions on today's close relationship between the movies and radio.

A reflection of the interchange of stars between radio and the movies is shown in the fourth annual RADIO GUIDE Star of Stars Election now in progress. Of the ten leading contenders in the Star of Stars group, eight have appeared on the screen at one time or another. At least four may be considered regular stars of the movies as well as of radio. Only two of this group of the ten greatest radio stars have never faced Hollywood's cameras.

Jack Benny, Nelson Eddy, Frances Langford, Lanny Ross, Bing Crosby, Eddie Cantor, Fred Allen and Rudy Vallee have all had their names in lights over the box-offices of theaters throughout the country. Lulu Belle and Joan Blaine, in seventh and ninth places, respectively, are alone among the air's greatest stars in their all-time absence from the screen.

Considering the leaders in other groups, it is not until we get to the children's programs and the announcers' polls that we find leading stars who have never been on the screen. Most groups are led by the stars named above.

Perhaps you consider this an unfortunate trend. Perhaps you consider it a boon for radio. In either case, the best way to register your opinion is by voting in this Poll! (See Star of Stars standings on Page 17)

THINGS YOU NEVER KNEW TILL NOW ABOUT

Walter
Winchell

HIS WINCHELLINGO IS AMERICA'S
SLANGUAGE—HE'S PUBLIC PENEMY
NO. 1! MEET THE MAN BEHIND THE KEYHOLE—THE GOSSIPING GHOST!

IT TOOK ten years to get these personal paragraphs on Public Enemy No. 1. So fast is the pace he sets, it took a decade of close association to catch up with him on the following facts which I present here.

His real name is Winchell—only it used to be spelled with one "l," until it was accidentally set up with the second "l" on a theater marquee. (It looked good to him, so what the L?)

He can match his private life with any man's. Recently, when warned that a profiler would turn defiler, by making "startling" disclosures about him, Winchell decided to beat him to the punch and tell all. It developed that there was nothing in his life which could be interpreted as sensational, except his climb to success. The only tidbit which bore even a remote resemblance to scandal was that he had once been divorced. (Which doesn't exactly make him the only divorced man in the world—Just read his column, to verify that!)

At 35 he said he would retire when he reached 40. He was 40 years old on April 7, but he's still going strong—and ironically enough, the title of his first motion picture, made as he was nearing 40, is called—significantly or not—"Wake Up and Live."

It's smart to be thrifty, and Winchell's both. He coined the expression "Annuities Keep Headliners from Being Breadliners"—and practises what he preaches.

During the big war he served in the Navy. His job was, of all things, carrying confidential messages! (From gob to gab in one degeneration.)

Hurt pride was responsible for his starting the gossip column—the most sensational innovation in modern journalism. He gave the city editor of the Graphic a first-hand tip-off on the Frank Tinney-Imogene Wilson reconciliation. Lack of proof induced the editor to reject it. One week later the news made the front page—of another newspaper. This decided Winchell to capitalize on the gossip he heard around town, and thus he started his famous pillar of prattle.

This year 20th Century-Fox paid him $75,000 to bandy words with Bandmaster Ben Bernie in "Wake Up and Live"; the New York Daily Mirror and syndicated papers paid him over $1,500 weekly for column copy; and a radio sponsor paid $3,000 a week into his pockets for pouring from 170 to 190 words a minute for fifteen minutes into the mike on Sunday nights. Uncle Sam's tax assessment was $80,000. This includes the various New York state and California state taxes—there is an unemployment tax, an old-age pension tax, and the non-resident tax. From the $75,000, California took about $6,000.

Most of the time his shoes are so threadbare that his feet are in danger of bursting out of them. He prefers wearing old shoes because he finds them more comfortable. (That shoes how loyal he is to his old friends.)

His only dietary inhibitions are relishes and spicy foods, which his medic has strictly tabooed.

Since the time he was slugged on a dark street by a pair of Hauptmann's sympathizers, Winchell has carried a gun, and is constantly escorted by a six-footer who hits too hard. Winchell once called his pistol "the equalizer."

He says it brings a guy twice his height down to his size. Incidentally, Winchell has been struck twice—both times when he wasn't looking and from the back. Nobody has ever said to him, "Put up your hands—I want to fight with you!" And so we do not know how capable Walter is with his "dukes." In response to a query, Winchell once said that he has lost every fight that he has been in. "Bragging again, eh?"

Contrary to belief, he has few real enemies, and has never lost a friend whom he wanted to keep. Often he has made friends of enemies, but never enemies of friends.

He knew Hauptmann was going to

IRVING
HOFFMAN

THIS is the story of the most beautiful girl in the world and one who thought she was the homeliest. Martha Raye begged me not to tell it, for now that she has become the greatest young comedienne of the day in movies and radio, she thinks her one mission is to make people laugh; not to make them cry.

But, to understand just what success means to Martha Raye and the one thing that has inspired her more than anything else, this story must be told.

Martha Raye and Dorothy Dell were pals. They met on Broadway, the glittering street to which they had come from strangely different routes to gamble their hearts and hopes.

Martha was a youngster who had clawed a bare living from the footlights since the age of three. A girl who began life in a dressing-room backstage of a theater in Butte, Montana, where her mother happened to be playing a vaudeville engagement. Quite frankly, she was blessed with little or no charm, except a down-to-earth, heart-warming flare for slapstick comedy.

With Dorothy Dell the case was just the opposite. Born in the luxurious surroundings of a plantation near Hattiesburg, Mississippi, she knew only a life of comparative ease. At 13, her low, rich "blues" voice won her a radio contract, but it was her startling beauty that eventually brought fame. In 1930 at the exposition in Galveston, Texas, she was chosen "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," in competition with beauties from almost every country on the globe.

So they met—the homely girl and the devastating beauty—in the office of a music publisher. Instantly they became friends. Martha Raye saw in Dorothy all the outward loveliness she could never hope to possess. Dorothy warmed to the cheerful abandon of Martha's bubbling good humor.

Martha frequently dropped backstage to watch Dorothy rehearse in the new Ziegfeld show, and as often as she did, some pompous stage hand was certain to remind her that no one but the cast was admitted to rehearsals.

"DON'T care what the rules are," Dorothy finally exclaimed. "If Martha Raye can't come in here as often as she likes, I'll quit the show!"

That's the way things stood with these two. When the Follies concluded its run, Martha and Dorothy set out together to pick up night-club jobs.

"Sometimes we had a hard time putting up a front," Martha remembers, "so we shared each other's wardrobe. Dorothy would go out looking for a job, wearing my hat, her blouse, my skirt and the only really classy pair of shoes we owned between us. When she came back I'd slap on the outfit and take my turn around the agencies."

Eventually they landed a job singing and clowning at Ben Marden's Riviera, just across the Hudson River on the Jersey side. Night after night they packed the place.

After every closing show, Dorothy was besieged with party invitations, but she always insisted that Martha come along. Late one evening they were enjoying a late supper with a group of friends when a tipsy drunk at a near-by table began to throw uncomplimentary remarks in Martha's direction, among them—

The Tragedy that made MARTHA

Martha Raye — movie and radio comedy queen!

Dorothy Dell, International beauty and ill-fated star. An accident ended her career!

THEY WERE INSEPARABLE: A DEVASTATING BEAUTY AND A SLAPSTICK COMEDIENNE. TO ONE, HOLLYWOOD MEANT SUCCESS, TO THE OTHER—DEATH!

"Who's that funny looking dame?" Dorothy Dell's face turned crimson. Forgetting her instinctive cloak of propriety, she quietly excused herself, stormed over to the offender's table and delivered a slap that resounded all over the club.

"Just to teach you not to pass remarks about a friend of mine," she exclaimed, her face dark with rage. Meanwhile, highly embarrassed, Martha Raye sensed another attack.

A playboy at a near-by table stage-whispered, "That's a cheap night-club gal for you."

It was Martha's turn now. She pushed back her chair, located the source of the insult and knocked the fellow right off his chair.

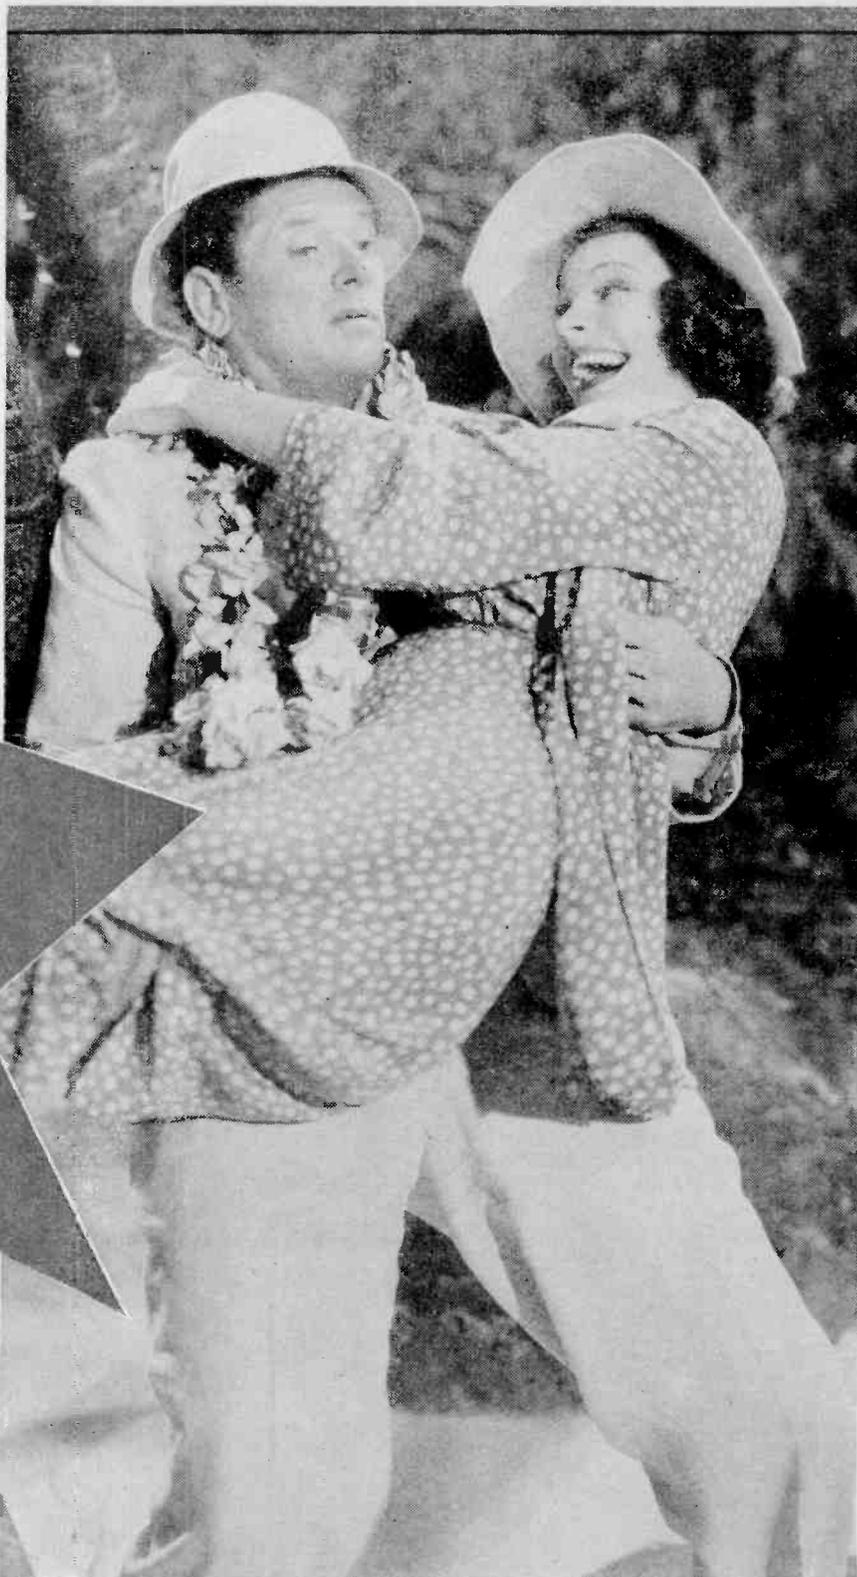

"That's the way it was always. Dorothy would do anything for me and I felt the same. That time we were both

Besides, she was now the family meal ticket. She couldn't imagine the movies having anything to do with her—and as for radio—well, how could she be funny if people couldn't see her?

Separated though they were, the friendship never lagged. Dorothy Dell soon rose to prominence. First in "Wharf Angel," with Victor McLaglan. Next in "Little Miss Marker," the same picture that brought stardom to Shirley Temple.

Perhaps you remember "Little Miss Marker." It was shown for the first time just two weeks before stark tragedy struck the lives of Dorothy Dell and Martha Raye.

It was one of those bleak, New York days when Martha Raye stepped out of a Broadway shop near Times Square into the street, babble heightened more than ever by a howling wind and fired because we insulted customers!"

Martha's eyes light up as she remembers the exciting times she and Dorothy had together.

"One evening I gave a birthday party for my mother backstage. Dorothy bought the coffee and I paid for the cake. We were all set for a grand time, but do you know what happened? A dancer in the chorus took sick and I offered to go on in her place. I didn't know much about her routine, so I just went out and clowned it.

FOR some reason, the audience loved it. When I finished they howled with applause, but I was so exhausted I rushed to the dressing-room and fainted dead away! Dorothy came rushing in to get me out front again—she didn't want me to miss the chance to be a big hit. And when the manager found us she was holding my head in her lap, weeping to beat the band and crying, "Wake up, wake up—they want you out there!"

She was always that way—Dorothy Dell. When fate at length separated the two, sending Martha on a vaudeville engagement to Detroit, Dorothy was summoned to Hollywood. At once she shot a wire to Martha: "Hurray toots stop on my way to Hollywood you're next will write."

And Dorothy did write. She pestered Martha to come out and have a fling at the screen. She offered to pay the train fare. But Martha was afraid Hollywood would have none of her.

dozens of newsboys shouting "Extra! Extra!" At first she didn't hear the familiar name that pierced through the garbled jargon of those newsies.

Then, the refrain became clear. "Dorothy Dell killed! Dorothy Dell killed!"

She grabbed a paper in hands that shook. Heavy black headlines stared out with an unbelievable message: "DOROTHY DELL DIES IN CRASH."

The press dispatch beneath told a terse, horrible story. At two a.m. on the morning of June 8, 1934, Dorothy Dell was returning with a friend, Dr. Carl Wagner, from a party near Hollywood. Coming through the hills, a slight haze had obscured the doctor's view of a curve. His machine leaped the curb, catapulted into a telephone pole and careened off, turning end over end and landing on its top, a heap of twisted steel. Dorothy, pinned beneath the wreckage, died instantly. The doctor never regained consciousness and passed on early next morning.

When she finished reading, Martha somehow found herself pushed into the nearest subway and on her way home.

It is simply impossible to describe what this tragedy meant to Martha Raye. How can words paint a picture of the empty agony in her heart when she received a letter from Dorothy two days afterward? It had been written and mailed only a few hours before the fatal accident and its contents again expressed Dorothy's firm belief in her friend's destiny. "You must come out," it said, "so that we can be together again."

MARTHA is in Hollywood now—a star at the same studio in which Dorothy began her short-lived career. And the story of what Dorothy Dell's faith meant to her one intimate pal tells itself when you know the first words Martha spoke as she was shown around the Paramount lot.

"Show me," she said, "where Dorothy Dell worked."

Time has erased some of the heartache of that experience for Martha, but not for the mother and sister of Dorothy Dell, who fled from Hollywood and have never returned. It was to the younger sister, Helen, who now lives in Florida, that the ill-fated star gave the best possible training as a singer and dancer, hoping that she, too, would win a place in the entertainment world. But in the meantime, Hollywood has seen other dramas. The name of Dell is almost forgotten save for those few whose memories live longer than today's headlines.

Perhaps some radio executive, reading this story, will seek out talented Helen Dell and give that name the chance to live that was lost on the tragic night three years ago.

Martha Raye would like it so.

Martha Raye may be heard Tuesday on Al Jolson's program over a CBS network at 8:30 p.m. EDT (7:30 EST; 7:30 CDT; 6:30 CST; 5:30 MST; 4:30 PST), and later for the West Coast at 7:30 p.m. PST (8:30 MST).

RECENTLY the prize-winning motion picture, "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town," was put on the air in an elaborate and expensive full-hour show. The lines were the same as spoken on the screen. Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur played their original roles. Yet "Mr. Deeds," like so many other radio adaptations from the stage and the screen, didn't seem to click.

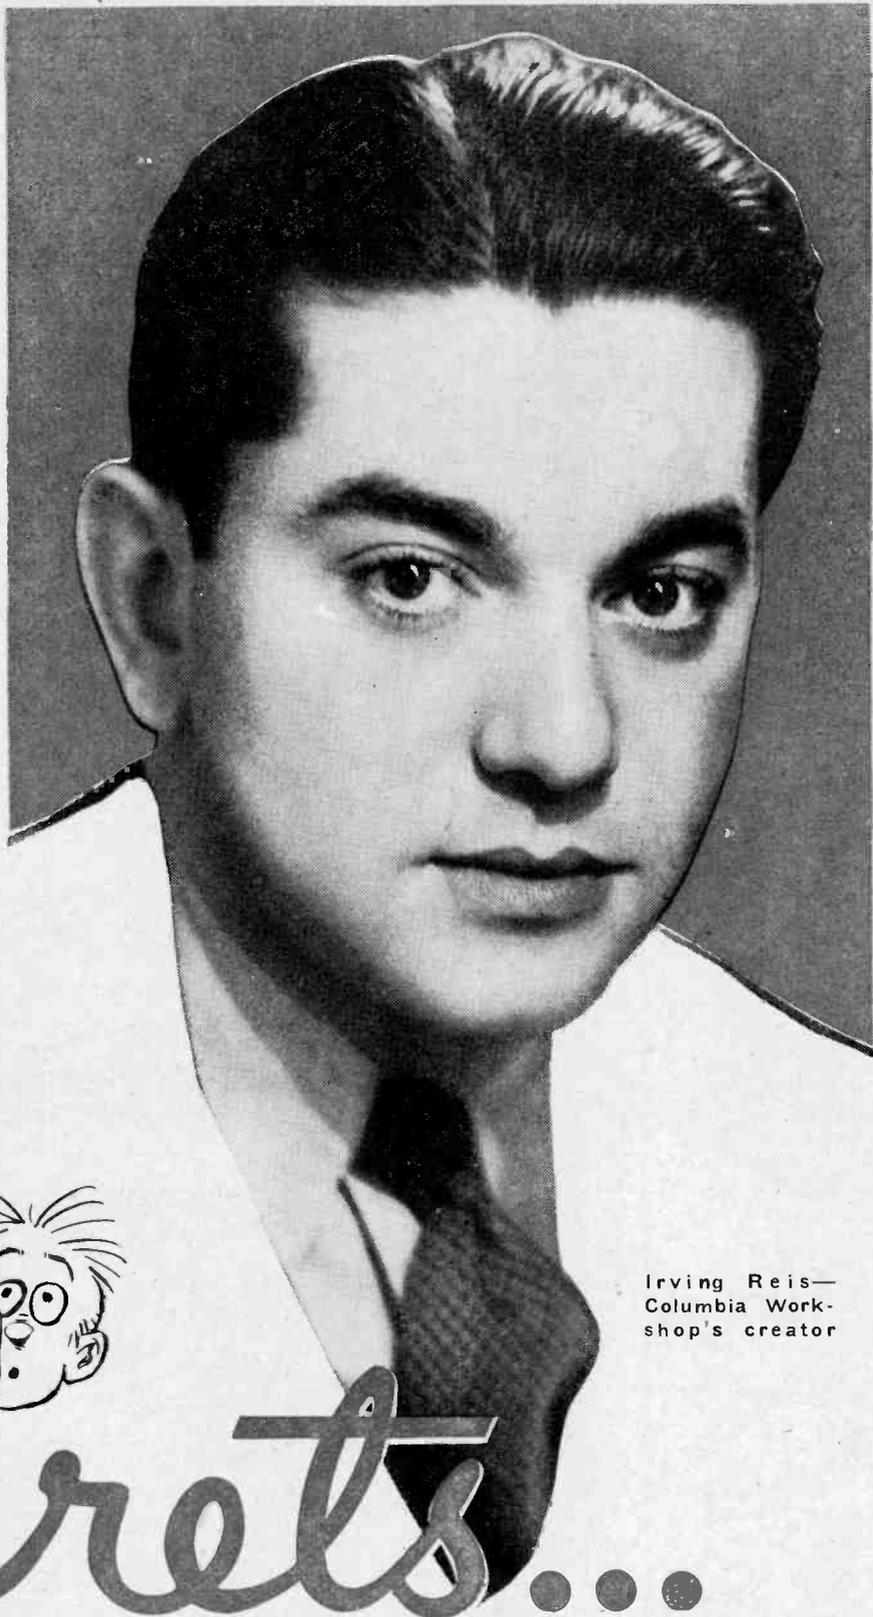

Why? You cannot begin to understand one of radio's most challenging problems—how to bring radio drama up to the excellence of other types of air shows—unless you become acquainted with the Columbia Workshop and with Irving Reis.

In 1932, Reis was an engineer on the CBS staff. But he was a different sort of engineer. He was interested not only in how his programs went over but what was in them, especially in the way of dramatizations.

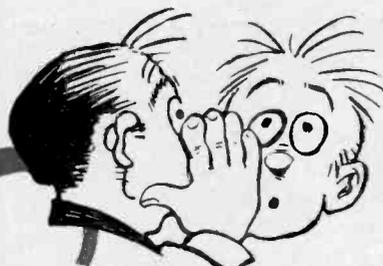

Reis tried to make some of the script-writers who were always hanging around the studios understand what he meant. He talked until he was blue in the face. In desperation he decided that he himself would write a "radio drama." He wasn't a writer, he knew that. But he also knew what kind of writing radio needed.

REIS worked on his "radio drama" in spare time. He was kidded unmercifully by the other engineers, who told him to stick to "playing the dials." But he stuck. The result was the famous "St. Louis Blues," vastly different from other shows.

This "radio drama" used sound-effects consciously, not haphazardly. It took advantage of radio's ability to "shift scenery" in the twinkling of an eye. It was "written for the ear" by a

Irving Reis—
Columbia Workshop's creator

Secrets...

A YOUNG MAN DREAMED DREAMS
—FASHIONED NEW BEAUTY, NEW

man who knew the mechanics of sound—and it was good!

"St. Louis Blues" was enthusiastically received by the press, the audience, by the people in radio. It was rebroadcast a number of times. It was presented in England by the British Broadcasting Company. It was reprinted in books on radio-writing.

But, Reis insisted, this was only the beginning. What was needed was an experimental workshop—a sustaining program on which actors, writers and technicians could produce scripts of a nature which commercial sponsors might be afraid to try.

While Reis was trying to interest radio executives in his idea, he himself continued to experiment with the new radio drama. In his "Meridian 7-1212," Reis wrote another drama which could be done nowhere as effectively as over a mike. In this play, an editor of a paper, desperate for a story, sends a reporter to see if there is any "human interest stuff" in the lives of the girls who give the exact time every few seconds in a monotonous, cold voice. The listener is shown, in a number of powerful flashbacks, how important the exact time may be in the lives of some people. One of the girls at the Meridian exchange has a brother in the Sing Sing death-house.

Midnight is the hour set for his execution. The girl continues to give the exact time as she watches the big clock. In her trained, efficient voice she says, "When you hear the signal, it will be exactly 12 o'clock." Then follows a dull thud. The girl had collapsed. As the play closes, we hear the reporter saying to the editor that there's no drama in Meridian 7-1212. The only people who call, he says, are ones whose watches have stopped or those who are too lazy to go into the next room to find out the time.

SO THE Columbia Broadcasting System announced that it would establish the Columbia Workshop under the direction of Irving Reis, and that its only aim and final achievement would be "the development of a drama technique which is best suited to radio."

Today the Columbia Workshop is an established success. Under Reis, it has produced a number of important radio dramas. In its short existence it has already perfected a number of important new sound-effects, conquered a number of technical difficulties, given a number of radio writers a chance to experiment with sound and music, and has had a definite influence on the quality of radio drama as a whole. Many other radio shows have profited from its wide experimentation.

A great deal of credit for the success of the Workshop must also go to the Columbia Broadcasting System. It gives the Workshop a half-hour on one of radio's choicest nights—Sunday. It refuses to allow the program to be commercially sponsored (although it had several offers) in order to insure for it freedom from interference. It gives the Workshop the pick of CBS actors and actresses, technical equipment, world-wide contacts.

REPRODUCING echoes over the air has now become routine, thanks to the Workshop and the inquisitive mind Reis sets to any technical problem.

Some time ago, he spent days in the control-room trying dozens of sound-effects, to provide a reverberating echo for a play he was producing. A few hours before the show was to go on the air, he stumbled on the solution. A mike was set up in a separate studio. Some feet away was placed a loudspeaker connected to the mike into which the actors spoke their lines. Both microphones were fed into the same mixing panel, but the time-lag which occurred while the voices traveled the space between the loudspeaker and the mike in the second studio was sufficient to produce the effect of a reverberation.

But the work of the Workshop is not all confined to the studio or to synthetic reproduction of sound. In experimenting with sound, Reis has not forgotten that, above all, a play must be entertaining. He also has not forgotten that man-made sound is at best an imitation of the real thing it is trying to copy. In "Broadway Evening," a Workshop show, Reis placed no less than ten mikes at various points between Forty-Second Street and Fiftieth Street. The clatter of dishes in a busy cafeteria, the roar of traffic, the shuffling and milling of thousands of sightseers and theater-goers, the hawking of pitchmen and newsboys—the hundreds of discordant noises of Broadway were picked up by the sensitive microphones while Reis, in the studio, blended them all in a highly dramatic symphony of sound. Fan mail received by the Workshop gave sure proof of the success of the experiment.

It is easy to get Reis to talk about radio drama. He is enthusiastic about its future—and impatient with its present.

"The next time you are in a theater," he tells you, "shut your eyes for a few minutes and see if you can follow the story effectively through dialog and sound alone. You will find that you can't. That's why most of the so-called radio 'adaptations' are flops and that's why we need a brand-new technique for radio drama."

What will the radio drama of the future be like? No one knows. Reis will not even venture an opinion, since, he says, his efforts with the Workshop are still in an experimental stage.

But Reis' own "St. Louis Blues" will probably give you a good idea of what the radio drama of the future may be like. For here is a play which is "custom-made" for radio. The action takes place in the five minutes that elapse between the start and the finish of a rendition of the St. Louis Blues. But, as the announcer says, listen:

The scene is a Harlem night club. A bored radio engineer is chatting with the announcer. Both are anxious to get home. There are only a few more minutes to go—another number from the colored orchestra and they can pack up for the night.

The announcer kids the engineer. He asks him whether he isn't thrilled with the power he has at the controls of a program which is going out into the vastness of the night and over the expanse of two continents.

The radio engineer isn't impressed. It sounds much more exciting than it really is, he says. Besides, who's listening at that hour, anyway? That's it, the announcer exclaims, who is listening? Wouldn't it be interesting to get a look at the places where they're hearing the St. Louis Blues?

And that's exactly what the audience sees—or rather hears.

A scene in the tropics. The tent of three white men who have come in search of rare animals for a zoo. One of the men is sick, seriously ill, at times delirious. The other two men are free from the fever that is racking their comrade's body but far from free of anguish and bad nerves.

AS THEY sit with their sick comrade, they hear the sound of native drums. When someone is dying in the jungle, one of them explains, and the natives believe that he is beyond hope, they beat the drums. The two naturalists are driven into a frenzy by the sound of the tom-toms. If their feverish comrade should awaken and hear these death-drums, all fight and hope would leave him. He must be prevented from hearing them. But how? Then an idea occurs to one of them. He turns on the portable radio. In a few seconds you hear the wail of the saxophone as that Harlem band swings into the opening strains of the St. Louis Blues.

Two policemen in a radio car are cruising their beat. "Whoever said radio cars are exciting assignments was talking through his hat!" says one him have some? No, they couldn't do that. But they'll be glad to watch his car while he goes for some. That's great, the driver tells them, going to look for a filling station.

While he's gone, the cops look over the powerful motor with unconcealed delight. Must be a big-shot, they decide. Look at the low license number on the plate, which bears the California state mark. They turn on the expensive radio set. What a set! Listen to the way the St. Louis Blues comes over—what a relief from that guy's voice on the police system!

WHILE they're listening to the St. Louis Blues, their short-wave set is barking at them—but they can't hear a word. The voice—the voice they hate—is telling them to be on the lookout for a high-powered car with a low-numbered California license plate. It is the car that was stolen from the Governor and the man driving it is a much-wanted gangster.

The gangster returns with the gas. The cops bid him an effusive farewell. When they come back to their own car, the voice tells them to go and try to release a kitten which was caught in a drainpipe. "Nothing ever happens!" they grumble as they drive disgustedly away.

In a tenement a sick child wails in discomfort. A frenzied young man is finding it difficult to sleep and seeks distraction from the child's crying. He turns on the radio. "You will now hear the St. Louis Blues," comes the announcer's voice.

On the high seas a boat is battered by a storm. We hear two radio operators reporting to the captain on their success in locating a ship which, however, is many miles away. Too many miles, probably, to reach them in time. One of the radio operators is a youngster—this is his first trip. The captain tells them how serious the situation is. He explains that the news of impending disaster must be kept from the passengers. He suggests that the radio be turned on—loud. The opening bars of the St. Louis Blues blare through the doomed ship.

WE ARE tuned in on a conversation between a mail pilot and an operator at the airport. It's a dark and foggy night. The mail pilot can't see where to land. The land operator turns on the radio so that the mail pilot can follow it in. The last thing the pilot hears as he crashes is the wail of the St. Louis Blues.

in the locale. A story that unfolds dramatically through the clever use of sound alone—that's the new radio technique—the technique of tomorrow!

But there's one thing that bothers Reis. Why is there only one Workshop—that at Columbia? There should be some time—no matter how small—and some money—no matter how little—devoted by the other networks and even local stations to experimental drama. Sure, he agrees, many of these experiments will be bad. Sure, many of them will be duplicating each other's work. But in Workshops lies the future of radio drama!

THE Voice of Experience has nothing on Eddie Cantor!

To his door-step the world beats a path that by now has become almost a paved highway. If he were to answer personally every letter he receives asking for advice, the pop-eyed little mayor of Texaco Town could ditch his Sunday night broadcasts, his movie work—everything—and spend every waking hour doing nothing but helping other people readjust their lives.

"Eddie, what shall I do about little Tommy?" one letter reads. "He's running down to the corner pool-room every night." And another—"Mr. Cantor, I want to send my girl to finishing school. Can you recommend one?" Or, "I want a job in radio. How do I go about it?"

Somehow, all these people seem to think that Eddie Cantor is the one man who has found an air-tight formula for success and happiness. In a way, they are right.

I found that out when I listened while Eddie lectured a down-and-out young writer one day.

"My boy," he said, "the trouble with your life is that it's full of fly specks. Look here!" He grabbed a pencil and drew two circles on a sheet of paper. "I'll show you what I mean—"

"These two blank circles represent the sphere of your ambitions. We'll fix up the first one in just the way your life has been going. For instance, a while ago you decided to write for radio. So we put a dot in the circle. Then you figured you needed more experience, so you got a job on a newspaper. There's another dot. But you soon decided to quit that and work on an idea for a play. Another dot. That didn't turn out so well, so you took a job on a tramp steamer. You came back and took dancing-lessons, figuring you might become a good hooper. You quit that to go back to reporting. Now, see—the circle is full of dots, all in different places. Fly specks, I call them.

"But, take the other circle. Let's say you decide to be a newspaper man. So we put down a dot. But instead of continually looking for something else, you keep plugging away. If you are fired, you get another job on another newspaper. No matter how things go, you keep right on being a newspaper man, so we put more dots one on top of the other. Eventually, you have one big mark to your credit in the field of your ambitions—not a bunch of fly specks. You have learned to concentrate. You know your business inside out. Now you are ready for other opportunities. You are not a hunter who always shoots at a target with a shotgun just to make sure he'll hit something sometime. You are an expert marksman who has scored a bull's-eye!"

After the young man had gone, I questioned Eddie Cantor—Where did you discover this unique idea? How do you know it works?

Eddie's answers were terse and to the point. "I found the theory for myself a few years ago when doctors told me I couldn't last more than a year at the most unless I changed my way of living. I know the idea works because I have proved it to myself!"

Back in 1928 Eddie was going like a house afire. Writing his own gags. Working double shifts in vaudeville, starring in a revue. Without warning, he collapsed. Doctors sent him to the desert—told him he wasn't coming back.

BUT Eddie did come back. Down there he talked things over with his wife, Ida. While his health mended slowly, he took inventory of his life. Then, despite the warnings of his personal physician, he came back to Broadway several months before his year was up. He came back to face the greatest trials of his life—and win! In 1929 the crash wiped him out completely. He had $200,000 in debts. Comedians as famous as himself were down and out. The country wasn't in the mood for laughter. But Eddie stuck it out according to his new formula.

"True, I had so many debts I wondered how I would ever pay them off. But I had my jobs, even though I didn't know how long they would last.

"To begin with, I gave up trying to do a dozen things at once. I began to hire capable lieutenants. That sounds foolish, a man in debt hiring somebody to work for him. But I did, and most of them are with me yet. They helped me lick the depression. While everyone else was cutting down, they were making my work better—the trivialities that were weighing me down were swept aside. I could concentrate on more important things."

Now that's all very well for a man like Cantor, who can afford to hire people to help him, but what about the average person? How can this idea apply to you and me?

"It's simple enough," is Eddie's assurance. "Take a small business man, for example. He has dozens of telephone calls a day, people by the score who want to see him. He takes all the calls, interviews everyone. He doesn't want to let anything that might help his business escape, yet he wastes many hours a week on matters of no importance at all.

"It took a complete breakdown to teach me that no man should ever give a split second more time to any one matter than it warrants. Never give ten minutes of time to a man whose business is only worth three. And, on the other hand, never rush through in ten minutes a matter that should consume a half-hour.

"The same idea can apply to a housewife, a store clerk or a student.

Some wives run around like chickens with their heads cut off. They spend a half-hour puttering around a room that could be cleaned in five minutes. A clerk can work twenty minutes selling a pair of shoelaces while an important customer who wanted a pair of expensive shoes gets tired of waiting and walks out. A good many students fail in their real purpose because they bone for hours remembering the dates and facts about a war, and when they are through they can't remember what the war was about."

IN OTHER words, one of Eddie Cantor's secrets of living is to know exactly what to spend time on—what will produce a profit, whether you count it in money or happiness.

Eddie's own life proves this, even while he's asleep! For instance, it is Cantor's iron-bound rule to sleep exactly eight hours every night. He never varies this. In fact, he stays in bed ten hours just to make sure that he actually sleeps eight, because energy is one of his priceless assets.

He refuses to deviate in the slightest from his original plan—absolutely no drinking—it dulls the mind. No card playing—he figures that as a waste of mental energy. No horse racing—he insists that this is one of a dozen pastimes that steal valuable time. No night-clubbing—he appears in them now and then, but that is business. What, then, does he do for relaxation?

"The answer to that, although you may think it trite, is that my work is my amusement. A while ago I addressed four hundred Harvard students on the subject, 'Radio as a Business.' And when I was through they fired questions at me for forty minutes. You don't have to believe it, but that was fun. Then I have my Youth Movement, a drive to take 500 children out of Germany and establish them in a safe refuge in Palestine. Not long ago I talked at a luncheon attended by twenty business men in Chicago about this movement. You can believe it or not, but I walked out of there with checks amounting to $20,000. I don't call that work; I call it play!"

That's the only way Eddie Cantor relaxes. Every minute when he's not working, he's doing things that would be work to other people—but to Eddie, they're the joy of living.

"But Eddie, there's one thing you've forgotten," I protested. "When you started in your business, it was easier. There weren't as many actors as there are now. Today every field is overcrowded—too many stenographers and singers; too many doctors and nurses—"

"Ah, but you're wrong! You say there are too many doctors. Does that stop a young interne from going ahead? He knows that all he has to do is save a life. Let him save just one! Then the world can't do without him. Too many stenographers? There are dozens of business men who are crying for really good secretaries. Too many singers? If that were true, we wouldn't have Deanna Durbin or Bobbie Breen. They weren't just lucky. They learned to do their jobs better than anyone else, and look, when the chance came they became famous overnight!"

Now, who has the courage to try Eddie Cantor's formula? Remember—choose a goal and never change it! Conserve energy for important things! Don't waste time on false "amusement." And give other people a hand! That's the trio of secrets that has made Eddie a success. It may do as much for you!

Eddie Cantor may be heard Sundays over a CBS network at 8:30 p.m. EDT (7:30 EST; 7:30 CDT; 6:30 CST; 5:30 MST; 4:30 PST), and later for the West Coast at 7 p.m. PST (8 MST).

YOU!

There's room for new talent in every field, Eddie says. His proteges, Deanna Durbin and Bobby Breen, prove it!

GENE

IN PHILADELPHIA last season, dynamic, 36-year-old Eugene Ormandy, one of America's youngest musical directors, was elected to co-conduct one of the greatest symphony orchestras in the world.

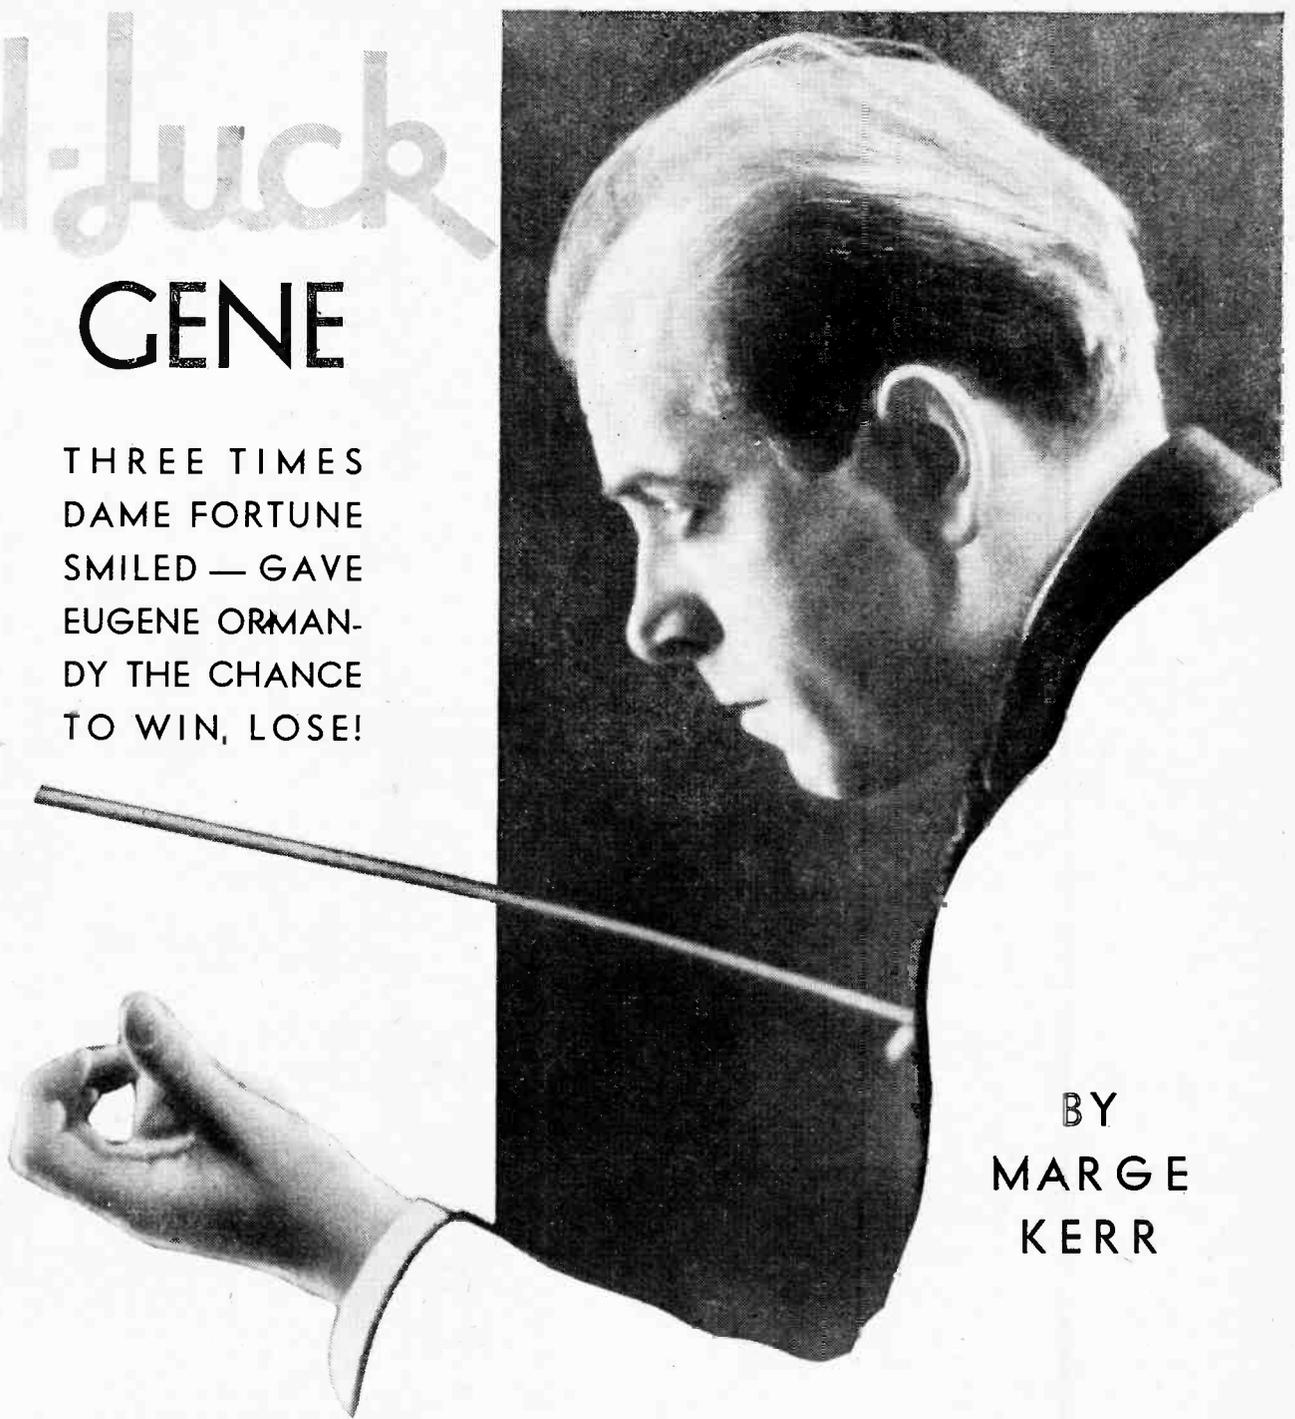

Behind Ormandy's elevation to this high musical post is the story of one of the most amazing careers the modern musical world knows. Ormandy is a genius without the traditional trappings of genius. He's an ultra-modern, a man who likes ping-pong and a high-powered car, yet a man whose wife used to be a lady of the sonnets—musical ones she made on the New York Philharmonic's golden harp.

And he's a musician who demonstrated his precocity back in Hungary more than three decades ago. Today, in Philadelphia, he's still demonstrating it. And when he halts rehearsals to cry out against a false note, the ghost of an earlier false note turns in its grave, remembering one night it walked in Budapest long ago.

And when Ormandy pilots the Philadelphia orchestra through Tchaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony," the ghost of an earlier performance stirs restlessly in the murky theater pit where a half-starved violinist laid it.

NOW, let's look into the background of the man himself and see what early evidence of greatness can be found. To begin with, his sense of perfect pitch, perhaps, is what makes him great. This remarkable sense revealed itself unexpectedly in a Budapest musical auditorium where one of the greatest violin virtuosos in the world was appearing in recital. "I was only four years old," Ormandy told me, "when my father, who'd been teaching me music with a phonograph, took me to the concert."

Eugene Ormandy: On the conductor's stand, he's fiery, dynamic, magnetic

IT WAS very still, there in the vast hall, so still that when a piping child voice shattered the dark magic, even the artist faltered in his playing . . . "Papa," a four-year-old voice shrilled excitedly, "did you hear him play the wrong note?"

That was a great musician's beginning. Some eighteen years later, Eugene Ormandy found himself in New York, occupying the last violin stand in Roxy's pit orchestra at Broadway's Capitol Theater. He had come to the promised land, lured by the belief that gold lay in American streets, and he had landed in the theater pit only after hunger had forced him to take the job.

Ormandy laughs about that job now—and sighs sadly at the same time, for it was the late S. L. ("Roxy") Rothafel who called in his secretary five days after the Hungarian started.

"Get me that young fellow who plays the violin—that new boy, Ormandy," Roxy had told her. "And get an interpreter, too. Ormandy doesn't speak English."

"I got there first," Ormandy told me, flicking cigarette ashes in three-quarter time. "I remember how extremely painful waiting was for us both. Roxy, impatient because of the time he was wasting; I because I was puzzled. I thought I'd be fired."

BUT instead of a discharge, Ormandy got his first great chance.

"Tell this man the conductor's ill," he barked. "He's to direct tonight."

And with no more preparation than that, the youthful violinist stepped to the director's stand, slammed shut the score, and conducted Tchaikowsky's difficult Fourth Symphony from memory! It was the first time he had ever conducted.

One small mistake—a flute note half a second ahead—one drum beat a split second behind, the clash of a cymbal too soon—and Ormandy's career would have ended in the pit instead of on the podium. But fear has no place in Ormandy's emotions.

Beginning with that first amazing triumph in the Capitol pit, he went up and up until he reached the airwaves on a radio program with the then comparatively unknown young baritone, Nelson Eddy.

"Nelson and I sold cigars," Ormandy says with a chuckle.

Now let us look behind locked doors at a business conference called several years ago in Philadelphia. It is a meeting of the board of directors of a famous symphony. And it has to ponder a telegram crumpled in the outraged chairman's fist.

"Hand me that telephone," he snorts angrily. "Great man or no great man, he can't cancel a concert with the Philadelphia Symphony and not give a legitimate reason."

"Hello," he shouts into the mouthpiece. "Get me New York. And hurry. Hello, hello—that you, Art? What's all this about Toscanini not appearing? What's that? Neuralgia? But we've sold four thousand tickets! We've got to have someone . . . who's that? Ormandy? Never heard of him. Well . . . if you can't think of anybody else . . . but you know Philadelphia. He'll probably be hissed off the podium."

When news of Eugene Ormandy's forthcoming appearance broke, Philadelphia music-lovers shuddered and Philadelphia blue-bloods sniffed.

They'd paid to hear Toscanini, one of the world's greatest conductors, only to be cheated by this nobody whose lone claim to musical pretention was

INTRODUCING the original hard-luck gal of radio—Loretta Clemens! Here is the certified evidence:

Exhibit A: Because she was an undersized baby, the family doctor prescribed raw milk, warm from the cow. But she got weaker on the diet. City authorities analyzed the milk and found it teeming with tuberculosis germs.

It's the history of vivacious, hard-working Loretta Clemens, a triple-threat star—actress, singer and musician.

Her education at Hard-Knock University began back in Cleveland. Her father had the instincts of an artist—though he was a house-painter by trade. His hopes for genius in his de-

About that time radio came in, hinting of big money. Loretta and her gang played over WHK in Cleveland, where she sang for the first time. An announcer happened to overhear her humming during rehearsal. Intrigued, he insisted that she be given a spot in the next broadcast. "So I sang—in spite of the fact that I had a range of only four notes. I half-talked and half-sang. They billed me as a 'stylist'."

From Cleveland, they went to Buffalo. After three and a half years of pinching nickels, they took their courage and thirty-five dollars in both hands and set out for the Big Town.

New York didn't fall over itself to welcome them. Footsore and discouraged, Loretta and her brother tramped Manhattan streets for two months, ducking in and out of auditions, rebuffed at every booking agency.

One day they got a cakes-and-coffee engagement in Westchester, a New York suburb. Loretta, her brother at the piano, sang and chortled her way through her routine. They took four Exhibit B: On her way to recovery, she picked up some tiny blue tablets from a window sill. Dissolving the bichloride of mercury pellets in a glass of water, she dunked a piece of bread in the poisonous mixture and gobbled it. A stomach pump saved her life.

Exhibit C: An inherited yen to run away kept neighbors continually snatching her from under train wheels and the tires of automobiles.

Exhibit D: Growing up, fate kept heckling her. About to launch a pianist concert career, she contracted a nervous disease of the fingers.

Exhibit E: In rapid succession, she was involved in four automobile accidents, escaping death by a series of little miracles but suffering shock.

Exhibit F: After a myriad of disappointments, she finally arrived in radio. Sponsors stuck her in a star spot on the gala Philip Morris program. But her jinx tapped her again. No sooner had she won the favor of the air audiences than she was stricken with appendicitis. By the time she recovered, the job was gone.

THESE are highlights in a career that has taken more bumps than a Model T Ford on a Tennessee detour.

scendants were realized in his daughter. Barely tall enough to sight over the keyboard, the little girl began fingering out melodies of extraordinary quality on the parlor organ. At the age of seven she had two compositions to her credit, "Monastery Bells" and "The Graceful Gazelle." Amazed by her precocity, the neighbors gasped. "Sure, and she's so talented, she'll surely die young," was their superstitious foreboding!

CHARLES E. CLEMENS, music teacher at Western Reserve University, got wind of the "infant prodigy," and came to hear her play. She impressed him so much that he took her under his wing for twelve years, teaching her the finer elements of counterpoint and harmony.

When she was fourteen, her father died. She realized that the money for family expenses would have to come from her brother Jack—and herself. Her father had objected to her playing anything but classical music, but she secretly practised jazz on the neighbor's piano. With three friends, she and her brother organized a small band. By degrees the band worked its way into the local vaudeville swing.

bows. As they were going out, a majestically built lady stopped them. "You were wonderful!" she exclaimed. She was Madame Frances Alda, Metropolitan Opera prima donna.

With her backing, the closed doors opened with a "whoosh." They got a couple of parts as the wise-cracking couple with the "Gibson Family."

Only a few weeks ago, Loretta and her brother (they refuse contracts that star them separately) began a new serial—their first on the Columbia Broadcasting System. Billed as "Jack and Loretta, Songs and Patter," they are said to draw $200 apiece for their cheerful nonsense. If they click—as they always have done—they'll get $750 on a 52-week contract.

So Hard-Luck Loretta feels pretty good. She has nearly everything she wants. A husband: Frederick Tupper, violin virtuoso and composer, who never fights. A cat: "Lucky Tupper," of Persian ancestry, who fights like a fiend.

She doesn't think she'll have many more tough times. But even if radio doesn't pan out, it's all right. "We can settle down for good and all," she says. "I've always wanted that, and I can have kids. I want them most of all!"

WINCHELL, BERNIE 'HOTEL' STARS

Anniversary of Bard's Birth Is April 23

The 373rd anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare, greatest of the English-speaking dramatists, will be celebrated with three special broadcasts over National Broadcasting Company networks, two on Friday, April 23, and one on Monday, April 26.

From Stratford-on-Avon, the quiet little English town immortalized as the Bard's birthplace, microphones will pick up the annual Shakespeare birthday luncheon to be heard in America over the NBC-Blue network. Speakers will be the Rt. Hon. Lord Mayor of London, Alderman Sir George Thomas Broadbridge, proposing "The Immortal Memory"; Hugh Walpole, distinguished novelist, proposing "The Drama," and Sir Edward Seymour Hicks, noted producer and playwright, replying to the toasts.

On the same day, the NBC Radio Guild will present a specially edited production of "Shakespeareana," selections from some of the master's best-known plays, to be broadcast over the NBC-Blue network.

"Will of Stratford," an original radio dramatization by Bosley Crowther, New York newspaperman and playwright, will be presented for the first time on Monday, April 26, over the NBC-Blue network. The play, an impression of the man and his times, shows how Shakespeare drew inspiration for his writings from events of the robust Elizabethan era during which he lived.

'Love Songs' Program Gets New Schedule

The Sweetest Love Songs Ever Sung, with Frank Munn, Lois Bennett and Victor Arden's orchestra, will change the day and time of its NBC-Blue network weekly broadcasts beginning April 27.

Now heard on Mondays, the feature will be aired on Tuesdays henceforward.

Miss Bennett, before her radio career began on the NBC networks, had sung in concerts at Carnegie Hall and Town Hall in New York and in Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

Tuesday, April 27—NBC
9:30 p.m. EDT (8:30 EST; 7:30 CST)

Hildegard Goes 'Cycling'

Hildegard, NBC personality singer, will be guest artist on the Cycling the Kilocycles program on Thursday, April 22. Hildegard, who came out of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to win wild acclaim in European supper clubs, will have Ray Sinatra's orchestra behind her.

Thursday, April 22—NBC

'Wake Up And Live' To Be Offered

Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie will continue their long-standing "feud" on the air waves Friday, April 23, when, with Alice Faye and other members of the film cast, they will re-enact scenes from their new picture, "Wake Up and Live," during the "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast of that day.

Just completed by Twentieth Century-Fox, "Wake Up and Live" is being hailed by preview audiences as one of the top pictures of the year. Although the title of the production was taken from the best-selling inspirational book, Walter Winchell's first full-length feature film relies for its inspiration not on philosophical advice, but a bright story, bright music, and lovely dancing girls.

The columnist's amiable feud with Bandleader Bernie is used as the basis of the screen play, which has a radio background. Winchell and Bernie attempt to outdo each other in the discovery of the identity of a "mystery" voice which was heard over the air one evening.

They do not know that Eddie Kane, a talented young singer with radio ambitions, too bashful and "mike-scared" to try a comeback after an unsuccessful audition, stole up to an empty studio one evening to sing over what he thought was a dead microphone. It is Alice Huntley (Alice Faye), a radio songstress, who cures Eddie of his mike fright, and Winchell who beats Bernie to the "discovery."

Headlining the musical portion of the show as usual will be Fred MacMurray, Frances Langford, Anne Jamison, Igor Gorin, and Raymond Paige's orchestra.

Gracie Fields, English comedienne, is also scheduled for an appearance on the show.

Two Largest Track Meets To Be Aired

The two largest track and field carnivals held in America will be broadcast for sport fans Saturday, April 24, from Philadelphia and Des Moines, where the Penn and Drake Relay Carnivals will be run off.

Ted Husing, famous sports announcer, brings the first broadcast from Franklin Field in Philadelphia, going on the air for half an hour. The network then switches to the Drake Stadium, where Gene Shumate takes over with a running description of the races there.

With the network switching back to Philadelphia, Husing will summarize the Penn Relays. Immediately following, the summaries of the Drake games will be broadcast.

Damrosch Students Celebrate Ninth Anniversary

Students from New York City's High School of Music and Art, a specialized institution offering gifted boys and girls opportunity in the arts or music, will demonstrate their musical accomplishments during the NBC Music Appreciation Hour on Friday, April 23, over the combined networks of the National Broadcasting Company. The program will mark the completion of the ninth successive year of Music Appreciation Hours which Dr. Walter Damrosch has conducted over the NBC networks.

Only students possessing demonstrated ability in art or music are accepted by the faculty of the High School of Music and Art.

Dr. Damrosch, who was instrumental in founding the institution, one of the most forward steps in specialized education ever attempted, will serve as master of ceremonies, announcing, introducing and interpolating.

Alexander Richter, head of the music department of the school, will conduct the symphony orchestra of 100 pieces, which has a full complement of strings, woodwinds, brasses and percussion instruments.

A mixed chorus of 210 voices and a choral ensemble of 45 mixed voices, conducted by Helen Clarke Moore, head of the voice department, also will be heard during the full-hour broadcast. The average age of the children who will demonstrate their musical training is thirteen and one-half years.

Himber Plans Two Trans-Ocean Shows

As a gesture of international good will, Richard Himber and his orchestra will pay tribute to the Paris Exposition and to France on two programs, Monday, April 26, and Friday, April 30.

The programs will be short-waved to Great Britain and France, and negotiations are now under way for re-broadcast over "Poste Parisien," largest independent radio station in Paris. Kate Smith will be guest.

Purpose of the two broadcasts, as Himber explains, is to express the good will of radio toward France and to acknowledge the mutual musical relationship that exists.

Mighty Mice of Three Nations Gather To Decide World's Song Championship!

"... for the championship of the world!"

That will be the announcer's cry on Sunday, April 25, when four of the best singing mice in the world get together over the air in a mighty contest to decide which shall reign supreme over all the warbling rodents in captivity.

Mikey Brown, a bright silver-gray mouse of Bloomington, Illinois, winner of the National Broadcasting Company's U. S. contest, will join Minnie, soprano sensation of Woodstock, Ill., in representing this country against the champions of Canada and England.

Mikey and Minnie will compete against Mickey, English top-ranker, and a Canadian darkhorse at present under cover in Rodentia.

The event will be broadcast throughout the world by NBC, the British Broadcasting Corporation, and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

In winning the right to share honors with Minnie as U. S. champ, Mikey, owned by Gilbert C. Brown, Bloomington theatrical manager, warbled for a full hour. Mikey was selected by a distinguished group of judges headed by Walt Disney, creator of the screen's internationally known Mickey Mouse. However, in the international contest radio listeners throughout the world will cast ballots to decide the winner.

'Hour of Charm' Now On Night-Time Spot

Phil Spitalny and his All-Girl Orchestra change from their afternoon program time on Mondays to an evening broadcast spot beginning April 26.

Over two years ago, Spitalny's production idea for an all-girl radio show startled the wisecracks of the airlines.

In every sense an "all-girl" program, "Hour of Charm" features not only girl musicians but orchestrators and arrangers. The entire orchestra, which Spitalny has been consistently successful in welding into a harmonious group, hears and approves every selection before it goes on the air.

Ranging in age from 17 to 30, the "band girls," subscribe to a unique agreement forbidding any of them to marry while still with the orchestra. They were originally recruited by means of a nation-wide audition tour.

Robert Schmitz Has New CBS Program

Columbia's Concert Hall will present the noted French pianist, E. Robert Schmitz, in a series of ten weekly recitals featuring the music of Russian composers, modern and classical, starting Saturday, April 24.

Schmitz will act as his own commentator on the series, his third for the Columbia Concert Hall. Many of the contemporary composers to be represented on the series are acquaintances of Schmitz and from this intimate knowledge of them he will relate anecdotes and historical details new to music lovers.

'Singing Waiters' On Air

"The Singing Waiters" of the Paris Inn in Los Angeles will go on the air over the WABC-Columbia network Saturday, April 24, in what promises to be a highly unusual program. Waiters by profession, talented musicians by avocation, their work embraces a wide range of classical music.

Berle Show Shortens Time

The Gillette Original Community Sing, now a favorite among the Sunday night "things to do" in Hollywood, becomes a half-hour program beginning April 25, in order that the show may obtain an earlier time for eastern airing.

Featured still are Milton Berle, Jolly Gillette, Wendell Hall, Jones and Hare, and Andy Sannella.

New NBC Program To Be Broadcast From Planes

The premiere of a new weekly series, "A Trip to Our National Parks," on Sunday, April 25, will bring the number of weekly broadcasts presented by the National Broadcasting Company in co-operation with the United States Government to a total of nine. Picturing the rugged majesty and beauty of America's National Parks, the new programs will be heard each Sunday over the NBC-Red network.

The nine programs will occupy ten hours of broadcasting time each week on the NBC Coast-to-Coast network. Except for one program presented under the auspices of the Federal Housing Administration, the broadcasts are divided among governmental departments, including the Departments of Interior and Agriculture and the War and Navy Departments.

Among the joint NBC-Federal Government presentations is the ten-year-old National Farm and Home Hour, heard over NBC daily except Sunday, under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace is the guest speaker on the program each Tuesday.

Officials of the National Parks Service, Forest Rangers, airplane pilots and NBC commentators will serve as guides for the "trips" to the National Parks when the program is inaugurated.

All of the broadcasts will be made from a United Air Lines plane flying high over the peaks and canyons of the Rocky Mountain section of the United States.

Music...

of the MASTERS

Artist of the Week
KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD

KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD is without doubt the most phenomenal member of the Metropolitan Opera Association. As a singer, she is unsurpassed. As a box-office attraction, she is unequalled. The announcement that she will appear means a sold-out house. In the whole history of the opera house, her drawing-power has been exceeded only by that of Enrico Caruso.

Since her debut at the Metropolitan, Madame Flagstad has sung every important dramatic soprano role in the Wagnerian repertoire from Elsa to Kundry. She has made as many as six appearances in seven days, and during one week this season she sang three different roles in as many days. Moreover, her voice did not seem to be any the worse for the wear. Certainly, no other singer could attempt such a feat.

We are assured by certain older critics that if Madame Flagstad had come to us in the so-called "golden age of song," when the de Reszkes, Paul Plancon, Nordica, Emma Eames, Marcella Sembrich, and the others were in their prime, she would have been taken as a matter of routine and would not be the sensation she is at this time.

"Had we been able to take her singing in our stride, as the norm in these matters, we would have found her Isolde deficient in more than one way. As it was, we were so delighted to have the music sung for once that there was little room left in our minds for criticism of her on other points," wrote Ernest Newman.

Be that as it may, we are not in those halcyon days, nor do we have any way of recalling the illustrious dead. Kirsten Flagstad, it is true, sometimes appears cold after the manner of her race. At other times, she seems not to have fully matured in her conception of the role she is singing. But, to those for whom the joy of beautiful singing is enough, for whom the thrill of a matchless voice soaring high and clear above an orchestra is never to be forgotten, Madame Flagstad is incomparable. Whatever her shortcomings, they are not on the vocal side.

For those who think that an artist's character is as important as his talent, Kirsten Flagstad is an unalloyed treat. Unassuming, modest, content to remain in the background of every gathering, she never seems aware that she is center of all eyes. During most of her life she sang the small Wagnerian parts in her native country. In Bayreuth she has filled secondary roles within the past five years. Her success in America came quickly and unexpectedly. Her family at home could scarcely believe it. So, during her second Winter here, she brought her daughter over to see how she was received.

"You see," Madame Flagstad told her after a performance of Tristan, "it is really true. They do shout."

In her dressing-room as in hotels around the country, she rests herself with solitude. She knits, sews, does all the other housewifely things that as the partner of Norway's wealthy lumber king, Henry Johannson, she never would have to do.

Fame has not changed Kirsten Flagstad. She is anything but the opera house prima donna. She is only a plain, likeable woman, whom the world chooses to call "The greatest singer of the day."

May and Music Week are upon us with Mother's Day and the Coronation around the corner. The usual flood of letters announcing Summer programs swells the mail:

The Metropolitan Opera Association again presents a supplementary Spring season of popular-priced productions. Lee Pattison, the pianist, is in charge and has announced a revival in English of Henri Rabaud's comic opera, Marouf, and the world premiere of Walter Damrosch's opera, "The Man Without a Country." Miss Helen Traubel has been chosen for the role of Mary Rutledge by Mr. Damrosch, who first heard her in St. Louis three years ago. It was for her voice that the part was written. Miss Traubel has sung occasionally on a New York station.

The opening broadcast of the Spring season, May 8, will be Smetana's tuneful The Bartered Bride—the hit of last year's supplementary season.

The Stadium Concerts with an orchestra composed of members from the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society are to be heard again over the Mutual network beginning June 23.

The Summer season of eight weeks will be shared by Fritz Reiner, Alexander Smallens, Vladimir Golschmann, George King Raudenbush, and Willem van Hoogstraten.

Mr. Golschmann of the St. Louis Symphony will conduct the first fortnight and be succeeded by Mr. Reiner, who will return from Coronation performances in London for the three weeks ending June 27. Mr. Raudenbush, conductor of the Harrisburg Symphony Orchestra, will make his first appearance in New York at the Stadium, directing one week. The final two weeks will be in the hands of Mr. Hoogstraten, while Mr. Smallens will conduct three operas and ballets.

Summer concerts dot the country from Boston to Hollywood with principal activity in such centers as Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis. The networks are planning to air many odd pick-ups here and there. In addition, Columbia is planning Sunday afternoon symphony concerts. Frank Black's String Symphony and the Chicago Symphonic Hour are scheduled ahead into the Summer. Likewise, the motor hours, the Magic Key, and Soloists Grace Moore, Richard Bonelli, and Lily Pons will continue to entertain us.

NBC is combing the country for men to fill Mr. Toscanini's orchestra. The first viola player from the Cleveland Symphony, the first bassoonist from Cincinnati, the harpist, Edward Vito, from Chicago, who has created a recent musical sensation, and a score of other top-notch men, including a half-dozen former concert-meisters of various symphonies, have been signed for fifty-two weeks. Artur Rodzinski will conduct the eighty men for ten weeks of concerts preceding and following those directed by Mr. Toscanini. The broadcasts will be ninety minutes in length. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings are being considered for their suitability. Or would you rather have them on Sunday? Let NBC know.

Deems Taylor, the Philharmonic-Symphony's commentator this Winter, has made many friends for good music. His well-thought-out remarks have been alive, penetrating and provocative of interest. He has concerned himself especially with the plight of the American composer, a plight he is doubly well qualified to discuss.

Certain it is that no one is more neglected than the contemporary composer. Whether American or foreign, not more than two or three of them are able to make a living writing music. Their works are usually given to orchestras for performance gratis. They are glad to have their works heard and expect no royalty, because they are competing with old, established veterans. It costs a symphony management not a cent in royalties to perform works by Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms, Wagner, et al. Obviously, it is not possible for composers whose works are relatively unknown and unpopular to command high fees against such cut-throat competition.

Mr. Taylor did not go so far as to ask that our composers be paid. He merely asked that we hear them not once, but often, until we had grown familiar with their music and knew whether we wanted to hear more of it. He contended quite truthfully that today there is no incentive for any composer to write serious music. In our time, he gets neither fame, nor money, nor can he consider himself a very useful member of society. His works, even if they are good, are almost immediately relegated to the shelf. One or two years is all they stay in any orchestra's repertoire. The fact is, as Mr. Taylor said, that "though we form committees, give lunches, and make much fuss about American music, we really don't honestly give a tinker's dam about it."

Mr. Taylor is right and he is also realist enough to know that it is going to take years of propaganda before we do care very much. In music as elsewhere, we like our old friends and we are not very charitable to newcomers. But we are not very different in that from listeners in any century.

After his death, Bach's works were not played until one hundred years later, when Mendelssohn resurrected them. It is only in the last ten years that the music-dramas of Richard Wagner have come into general acceptance either in opera houses or the concert halls, though Wagner was the most talked-of composer of his time and more has been written about him in the last sixty years than has ever been written about any musician who ever lived. Musicians and singers never fully appreciated him.

Instances could be multiplied endlessly. Many composers never heard their greatest works performed. There is little reason to expect improvement now.

Mr. Taylor did, however, draw one important distinction between contemporary American and contemporary European composers (and, for that matter, all European composers). In Europe it has never been considered a disgrace for a composer or an artist of any kind to be poor. The ruling princes, and latterly, the state, provided for him. His position in the community was a special one.

In our country, without a doubt, it is a disgrace to be poor. It's a sign of incompetence, as Mr. Taylor pointed out. Therefore, we should make some provision for our creative artists. That they cannot support themselves and turn out their best work is obvious.

Not all of them are as versatile as Mr. Taylor. They cannot earn their living on the side, lecturing and writing and advising commercial enterprises. And even if they could, would not their time be much more profitably spent in composing? That is assuming, of course, that what they compose has some permanent value. But who can be certain of that?

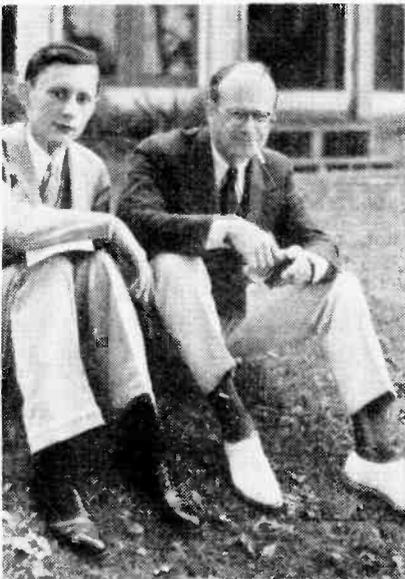

Mr. Taylor has presented the case for his colleagues convincingly. And it is good news to know that his intermission talks are being collected in book form and will shortly be published. Also, Mr. Taylor himself comes to us every Friday night as master of ceremonies on one of the most scintillating musical shows yet devised for radio presentation.

He spares no effort in his presentations, attempts interpretations anyone else would dub impossible. He is absolute dictator of his program, and balks at nothing. He has musically interpreted photographs of goldfish, of four bananas dancing on a piece of wallboard! Each program includes a musical novelty. In one program he demonstrated that all four movements of Grieg's "Peer Gynt" suite can be played at the same time and still make pleasing harmony, and in another he synchronized "Swanee River," "Humoresque," Ravel's "Bolero" and "Yes, We Have No Bananas"! Your commentator will share a topical discussion with Mr. Taylor on his program for April 23.

Carleton Smith may be heard Fridays on Chicago Symphonic Hour over an NBC network at 11 p.m. EDT (10 EST; 10 CDT; 9 CST; 8 MST; 7 PST).

CHICAGO.—More than seventy ballcasters, who by now are saying their play-by-plays, gathered in this city last week for a three-day confab with their three joint sponsors and received advice—not only on the selling of breakfast food, gasoline and tires while Casey is at the bat—but also on how to treat umpires like human beings. The latter was the crux of the remarks by William Hartridge, American League president. Last year, it is said, one of the reporters flipped out a crack about a certain umpire's decision and a day or so later a bleacherite landed a pop-bottle on the same umpire's cranium. Thus radio took the rap . . . Well, anyway, the ball officials have forgiven radio . . . providing the caustic comment is directed at someone else than the men in the blue-serge suits!

Aside from that, you might be interested in knowing that the sponsorship of the ball games for the season over the 70 stations will cost three sponsors something like $1,500,000.

Peculiar are the complications in which the "Story of Mary Marlin" finds itself involved. As you know, the Well attended by professional musicians as well as the more rhythmic of the Windy City's dialsters, the audience included the entire band rosters of Paul Whiteman, Red Nichols, Henry Busse, the King's Jesters, Jimmy Joy, Phil Levant, Maurie Sherman, Lou Breese and Maurie Stein.

Candid Cams: Observed at the circus,

IN THIS department last week you read some news about the Show Boat program. This week we have some startling information about another popular air show, the Bandwagon, which has as its star, Kate Smith. The Bandwagon folks will go into retirement in June when Kate leaves the show. She will take a vacation for a few weeks and will then return to the air for the firm that now puts on "We, the People." Her job will be mistress of ceremonies on their new weekly full-hour variety program which will be heard Coast to Coast.

The exact day and time for the broadcasts will be announced soon.

Your correspondent takes pride in the fact that he was the first radio scribe to report the return of Charles Winninger to the newly reorganized "Show Boat" when it makes its debut in July. The title "Show Boat" will hear that he has put his signature on the line. Seems the only hitch at present is the lack of a writer who can procure suitable material and ideas. Does any reader know if Shakespeare had any relatives? There may be one hiding out incognito, who might fill the bill!

Don Dickson, of the Saturday Night Party broadcasts, has been signed by the Metropolitan Opera for its Spring series . . . Walter Cassell, the baritone who left radio for a part in the movie version of the "Desert Song," returns to the air to do four guest appearances on the Rubinoff program . . . George Fischer will hit the airwaves with his Hollywood whispers on May 1. His program was originally scheduled to reach both coasts on April 17.

The popular Kitty Carlisle is slated to appear on the General Motors concert on Sunday, May 9 . . . Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur signed on the dotted line to do a radio version of their four-star picture, "The Plainsman," on the Monday night Radio Theater show, sometime in June . . . Clem McCarthy will describe the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, May 8.

serial changed angels at the end of March. At the same time, Joan Blaine resigned the title role and Anne Seymour was named substitute. All very well, but it seems that about a year ago in the dramatic series, Miss Seymour took the vixen-vampire role of Sally Gibbons, and Sally, you see, practically wrecked the happy home of Joe Marlin. But now—the fans have discovered—that nasty old Sally Gibbons is now living with Joe as his wife, and that will never, never do!

By the way, thank you all for your splendid letters advising me what to tell the writer of that other serial about the triangle situation and how to handle it. Your comments will be very helpful in plotting the future. Yes, most of you guessed the sketch!

Don't believe it if anyone tells you that the filming of "One Man's Family" is off. Negotiations are on again. Only the story has to be ironed out . . .

Ransom Sherman's return to the NBC afternoon air as variety show m.c. brings to mind the two other ex-members of "The Three Doctors." Joe Rudolph is directing the destinies of WCBF, Chicago; Russell Pratt is at work on KDKA, Pittsburgh.

More dilly-dallying goes on with the Hollywood Hotel cast. Some weeks ago, rumors started to circulate to the effect that Tony Martin would replace Fred MacMurray. This rumor was followed by another stating that MacMurray wasn't even considering leaving; that the sponsor was very much satisfied and wants to keep him. Now we hear another name, that I won't even mention, suggested for the job. In any event, Tony is not likely to get the job. Another change in the show can be expected, because—if the rumor is right—Frances Langford will leave the show.

It is rumored in Hollywood that Warner Brothers studios are all set to offer a million-dollar radio program to any sponsor who is willing to pay for it. The show, if and when it goes on the air, will use Dick Powell as the head man, will be patterned after Hollywood Hotel, and will be assured of an array of Warner film names and Warner picture scripts for each broadcast. The show, it is said, is offered for a year's contract at $20,000 per program.

National Music Week will be observed May 2 to May 8 with President Roosevelt as chairman. Plenty of special programs will be broadcast . . . It seems the warm weather season will give two popular announcers a chance to strut their stuff. Jimmy Wallington with guest stars each week will carry on while Eddie Cantor takes his Summer vacation, and Don Wilson will take care of the flavored-dessert show while Jack Benny takes his rest from the microphone. Don will present unknown professionals on the show.

Band Notes: Andre Kostelanetz will move his Wednesday night program to California in June, where he goes to do some work in pictures . . . Al Goodman replaces Mark Warnow on the CBS Hit Parade May 8, but the sponsors like Warnow's music so much that they have signed him for their NBC program to start immediately after . . . Hal Kemp will be back at the Hotel Astor roof in June and will broadcast his music over the Mutual net . . . Early the same month and over the same net will come the music of Horace Heidt, who goes back to the New York Biltmore Hotel . . . Eddy Duchin stops off in Chicago in May for an engagement at the Palmer House and his music will also be carried over MBS . . . Guy Lombardo goes back to the Waldorf-Astoria roof in June and his music will be poured into a CBS mike.

When Carlton E. Morse, author of "One Man's Family," steps aboard the China Clipper on April 28, he will be the first person in history to make a round-trip on a commercial trans-Pacific flight. He has written his scripts in advance in order to take this trip.

EVERYBODY knows it's against the law to hold up a grocery store, but to hijack a grocery like the Schwartz' is extraordinarily wicked. For the Schwartzes are such nice people. There's Papa Schwartz and Mama and young Andy. These three do most of the serving in their family grocery and they know everybody near their Washington, D. C., home.

One evening young Andy was sitting behind the counter. Two customers were in the shop, a man and a woman. And suddenly, in walked Crime.

Now don't picture a couple of tough guys with a machine-gun. Crime in this case was five feet of brunet, curveful cuteness, surmounted by a perky little hat. It was a gal with eyes of heaven and the face of an angel.

But she carried a large and apparently heavy hand-bag.

"I want a bottle of liquor, puh-lease," trilled this diminutive divinity.

"Oh, Ma!" Andy yelled. For Papa of bills, that day's entire revenue.

"This all you got?" The girl was cool as ice. Waving the gun nonchalantly under the noses of the two scared customers, she went behind the counter, pushed her way past Mrs. Schwartz' matronly form, and peered into the cash register. The till was empty.

"Okay," said the thug-ette, picking her dainty way out from behind the counter and starting towards the door. "Just don't anybody try to follow me!"

She turned towards the door—and something happened which is probably unique in the annals of banditry.

"God bless you!" cried Mrs. Schwartz. "You didn't shoot us!"

NOW it must have been the voice that did it. The voice of a woman—a mother—who has just been relieved of a threat of death. Death to herself and her child. It must have been the thrill of relief and thankfulness which reached out through Mama Schwartz'

"Calling Car 4 . . . Car 23 . . . Car 17 . . . A hold-up reported in progress in grocery at 1921 Eighteenth Street N. W. . . . A girl with a gun . . ."

YES, honest," sniffed the girl, "you sounded like my own mother, so I couldn't have the heart to shoot you." "Thanks," she said as Andy handed her a glass.

With the gun in her right hand, the black bag tucked beneath her arm, and the glass in her left hand, the gun-girl sniffed tears and gulped.

"Just like my own moth—" she started to say, but the door flew open and a great blue wave of policemen roared in, headed by Detectives R. J. Talbot and John Meshkoff.

"Lay offa me, you big bums!" said angel-face, as the detectives snatched away her gun.

Later, at headquarters she gave her name as Anna Shalks.

"I shouldn't have stayed for that drink!" she said sadly.

"Make a break and I'll drill you," she snarled

Girl Bandit

Schwartz was away at a convention of independent grocers, and Andy had been forbidden to sell liquor.

"What kind of liquor do you want, Miss?" Mama Schwartz faced her demure customer with a smile. It didn't seem right, such an innocent-looking kid buying liquor. But you never knew about girls these days, Mrs. Schwartz reflected. And in this case she was dead right.

"Oh, almost any kind," fluted the perky little gal. So Mrs. Schwartz turned to her liquor shelf, while the girl casually opened that large, black and seemingly heavy hand-bag.

"Put up your hands!" The girlish voice was no longer a tinkle of golden chimes; it now jangled brassily.

Mama Schwartz swung around. Andy Schwartz' mouth popped open. The two customers backed away in fright.

For the girl's tiny right hand was clutching a big, ugly revolver. She waved it around.

"Make a break and I'll drill you!" snarled this nice girl.

Nobody made a break. Angel-face gestured airily with the pistol.

"Get me the money," she said to Mama Schwartz. And Mrs. Schwartz wisely said nothing. Moistening her lips with her tongue, keeping her face always turned towards the menace of the gun and the woman, she made her way to the cash register and pressed the "No Sale" key.

"Here—here!" Mrs. Schwartz whispered. And she thrust out a handful words and got to the brassy heart of the tough gun-moll.

For that tiny face, all peaches-and-cream, went white.

"You—you sounded like my mother then," the girl said. The gun wavered in her hand—but she still held it up. Tears welled over in those flawless blue eyes.

"G-give me a glass of water!" Mama Schwartz stared.

"Go—Andy, get her a glass of water," she murmured. But her worried eyes said more plainly than words: "Is the girl crazy?"

Now while all this was going on, night was blackening the street outside the homey Schwartz grocery store. Night, which made the brightly lit interior of the store stand out like a little stage, a stage set for melodrama.

And so it is not at all remarkable that a passer-by looked—and gasped at the true-life melodrama he saw being enacted there. He saw a number of persons standing in strained postures, some with hands in the air, some with hands down. And he saw a beautiful little girl, wiping her eyes with one hand and waving a gun with the other. It was decidedly not an ordinary scene. Using elementary but sound good sense, the astounded passer-by decided to share his astonishment with the Washington police.

seven years with a New York theater and two years with an opera company!

But when Ormandy appeared in Toscanini's stead, he duplicated his Capitol Theater triumph. And when he piloted the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra through Sibelius' "Finlandia," the first crash of the mighty music shook Philadelphia out of its snobbery. Those who came to hiss remained to applaud.

Impressed with the tremendous ovation Philadelphia gave him, other symphonic groups began to clamor for Ormandy's services. But his sprigs of bay-leaf and his wreaths of laurel were not accidental. Like Louis Pasteur, Ormandy believes that chance comes only to the mind that is prepared to receive it. And Ormandy was prepared. He had begun studying violin at a year and a half. At three, he was working at his music several hours daily. At five, he began studying harmony and counterpoint. At eight, he wrote his first five-voice fugue. At eighteen, he was a concert violinist, and at twenty-one he had made the first pinch-hit appearance which took him out of the Capitol pit onto the Capitol podium. A few years later he had dared to substitute for Toscanini at the Philadelphia Symphony.

FROM then on, it was up the staircase for Ormandy—two steps at a time. They wanted him in San Francisco. In Portland. In Chicago. But it was to Minneapolis that he finally went—as guest-conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony.

There again, another man's misfortune was destined to be Ormandy's good luck. Henri Verbruggen, welcoming the Hungarian to his stand, fell ill with a paralytic stroke, and when he failed to improve, Minneapolis offered its guest-conductor a four-year contract.

Thus, for a third time, Ormandy snatched up the baton from a fallen leader's hand and worked a miracle.

They'll never forget him in the Middle West—and well they might! When he took over the Minneapolis aggregation it was no more than a kitchen-corner Cinderella, compared to its more sophisticated stepsisters of the East. Yet today, it rates with the best of all symphony orchestras.

While Ormandy was working to build up the Minneapolis organization, trouble was brewing in Philadelphia. Some say fiery Leopold Stokowski resented alleged interference of the Philadelphia Symphony's board of directors. Others say he wanted more freedom for other ventures. Whatever the cause, he left—temporarily.

"What'll we do now," the Philadelphia chairman asked his symphony board. "Whom shall we get? Who can substitute for Stokowski?"

One timid member scratched his head. "Well," he hesitated, "a couple of years ago we found a conductor good enough to replace Toscanini..."

"Of course," the others chorused, "that fellow Ormandy. What's he doing now?"

"Here," the timid member told them, "I was just reading about him..."

THE chairman snatched the magazine quickly. "The feeling and interpretation behind the performances of the Minneapolis Symphony with Ormandy conducting," he read aloud, "have placed this orchestra in gold-headed pins on the map of the musical world and have placed Ormandy among America's foremost conductors."

"In that case, we want him," they concluded decisively.

And there, in one sentence, you have the story of Eugene Ormandy, the Hungarian genius who pinch-hit his way from pit to pinnacle and from pinnacle to stratosphere, where his symphonic music bounces against the stars before your loudspeaker picks it up and delivers it to you!

THE MELODY KINGS

BY CARL TAYLOR

WHAT happens when a Waukesha (Wis.) hillbilly... a Bridgeport (Neb.) hotel worker... a Chicago violin teacher... and a Mobile (Ala.) used-car salesman get together in a North Side beer tavern for a little fun?

The answer is, "The Melody Kings"; at least, that's what the answer was in this case, when a talented quartet of boys got together one night for a little "jam session." They had so much fun out of it that they decided to do it whenever possible... and that meant almost every night. Finally one of them got the idea that they might "commercialize" on their fun and build a radio act—which they did.

Their first audition was all that was necessary—and while the musical department of WJJD was not in the market for additional musicians, the boys provided such an unusual variety of

of their first broadcast. That used to be the time the boys usually got to bed after finishing their work at a night club about town.

Two of the boys, Harry and Bud, are married, both to accomplished pianists, and Les seems to be well on his way to make the fatal step, although he invariably insists that his new Packard car is his only love and extravagance. (Off the record—Bud Glen feels, too, that automobiles are greater extravagances than wives.)

Quiet, unassuming, the boys move about the studios with "nary a sound." Their hair colorings is something for a psychologist to worry about, for Les is a redhead. Bud a blond, and Gene and Harry, dark. That ought to mean something to somebody somewhere!

At any rate the boys all feel well repaid for their interest and love for music which extended beyond "regu-entertainment that a place was found for them immediately. The violin-playing of Harry Sims was sensational, Gene Walsh's crooning unique, Bud Hoerig's bass-strumming excellent, and all this, combined with the ultra-modern arrangements of Les Paul and his scintillating guitar, made the act much too good to pass up. So the boys were given a job.

But to go back a step or two and tell something of the Melody Kings personnel... there is Eugene Joseph Walsh, vocalist and guitarist, who started in radio at KGNE, Nebraska, after leaving his job at a hotel (he felt there might be a dollar or so increase in pay); Harry Sims, the Chicago violin instructor who eloped to Cincinnati to get married to his charming wife; Arthur Glen Hoerig, the Mobile (Alabama) bass player whose claim to fame is his southern hospitality and the fact that he sold used cars to unsuspecting southerners; and, of course, Les Paul, more commonly known as Rhubarb Red, the Waukesha hillbilly who started learning to play the guitar on a mail order instrument costing the terrific sum of $4.99. Today his instruments range from $400 to $600 each and he has several.

Variety is the keynote of the act. The boys play anything from "Pennies From Heaven" to "99 Years Is A Mighty Long Time," not to mention a few choruses of "Liebestraum," and they do them all with a finesse that is delighting every one of their listeners... in spite of the fact that they have to be up every morning at 4:30 a.m. to get down to the studios by 6, the time

"jamming" far into the night... it meant a swell new radio contract, new life, and a new career!

Jam Session of the Year!

Sunday, April 18, will go down in Chicago swing music history as a red letter day. For that was the day of the big Joe Sullivan benefit at the famed Congress Casino, with 700 earnest "hot" devotees gathered together to hear a jam session to end all jam sessions!

For three hours some of the best musicians playing today took turns showing the audience and each other just how high swing music can be swung.

Benefits are rarities in Chicago, but this one was special! It was a benefit for Joe Sullivan, Chicago boy now ill in a California sanitarium who's known as the outstanding white "swing" pianist.

Headed by Bob Crosby's band—Joe Sullivan used to be Crosby's No. 1 pianist—the hottest white and Negro musicians in Chicago put on a program that left the audience in a state of near-hysteria. Roy Eldridge of the Three Deuces Club, one of the hottest trumpeters in Chicago, stopped the show all by himself. Johnny and Baby Dodds of New Orleans, Natty Dominick and Leo Montgomery, veteran Negro swingsters of the old South, were on hand.

Sponsored by "Down Beat," musical publication, the benefit was entirely sold out a week in advance. This swing concert was broadcast over the NBC-Red network, coast to coast.

THINGS YOU NEVER KNEW TILL NOW ABOUT WALTER WINCHELL

RADIO GUIDE'S X-WORD PUZZLE

be arrested, but withheld the information for 24 hours to give the G-men a chance to close in on him. John Edgar Hoover will corroborate this.

* * *

Shortly after Lindbergh returned to this country from his sensational trans-Atlantic flight, Sidney Skolsky, who was then press-agent for Earl Carroll's "Vanities," tipped off Winchell that the aviator was going around with one of the Vaniteasers. Winchell and Skolsky hopped into a cab and rode down to 12th Street, where the girl lived. Skolsky remained in the cab while Winchell went up to get the story. When they were driving uptown again, Winchell confided to Skolsky that he had a "tremendous story." Skolsky wanted to know what it was. Winchell was reluctant. Skolsky wheedled. Winchell hesitated, but finally broke down and confided that Lindbergh was going around with a girl from the Vanities. He had completely forgotten that Skolsky was the source of his information!

* * *

Rather than going to night clubs, he prefers riding about town in his car, equipped with police radio and siren. One night he excitedly pursued two police cars going at breakneck speed, believing that he had missed a call. When the cars stopped suddenly, he was chagrined to learn that the cops were only comparing the speed of their autos by racing one another.

* * *

He pays no one for information, and employs no one outside of his secretary, Rose Bigman, to work for him. This fact is amazing when you consider that Jimmy Fidler, the Hollywood commentator, is reported to employ sixteen people to aid him.

* * *

One method he employs for attracting contributions from favorite sources of globe gossip is to send wires promising the latest smokehouse quip upon receipt of a useable item.

* * *

He considers the phrase "Keyhole Peeper" as dated, old-fashioned, stale and behind the times. He points out that modern locks have no keyholes to peek through.

* * *

* * *

He generally awakens at 5 p.m., and a little later has "breakfast" while Mrs. Winchell and their two children, Walda and Walter, Jr., have dinner.

* * *

On his desk he uses a pair of baby-shoes as paper-weights. They are the first shoes ever worn by his unmarried son, aged two.

* * *

He predicted the underworld killing of Gangster Coll, and was called into court to reveal his source—which of course he refused to do. (What's source for a columnist—is nobody else's business.)

* * *

He has coined such words and phrases as "Making Whoopee," "Is My Face Red," "Sexcellent," "Infanticipating," "Applaudience Appeal," "Rendezwoo," "Cinemadorable," "Blessed He-vent," ad infinitum . . . George Jean Nathan has observed that " . . . he is a superb reporter who is enriching our language," and this has been proved by words of his creation occupying space in Funk & Wagnall's Standard Dictionary and H. L. Mencken's "Dictionary of American Slang." . . . One reason for the Winchelling is because the coined words help avoid lawsuits. For instance, in court it would be difficult to prove that "renovate" means divorce, yet all his readers suspect that that is exactly what it does mean.

* * *

He has been sued only three times—he lost one and won two of the cases. His newspaper and radio contracts hold him blameless for libel or slander. He once told an interviewer that he made money when he was sued. He explained that when he went to court to testify, the cab fare was $4.00 for the round trips. He turned in an expense account, however, for $5.00, thus making $1.00 on each deal.

* * *

Henry Pringle, in American Mercury, recently reported that he is responsible for 200,000 of the Mirror's daily 600,000 circulation. On Sunday the Mirror's circulation is 1,600,000.

* * *

Gifts are showered upon him by fans and sycophants. They are always politely refused.

* * *

Some day he'll write a book. He signed a contract for one with Simon & Schuster over five years ago, and for which George Jean Nathan suggested the title, "The Private Papers of Walter Winchell." (How about "Mr. Peeps' Diary" or "Mr. Peeps Goes to Town.")

* * *

He has more imitators in his field than Zasu Pitts and Garbo have in theirs. He refers to the carbon copies as "PIRATS." Dozens of picture, song, play and book titles have been taken from expressions of his origination, and his library at home contains hundreds of books mentioning him. He has read very few of them.

* * *

His forelocks have been thinning out lately. In signing to make the picture, he stipulated that nothing was to be done to make him look more beautiful, and his hair wasn't to be touched. When he saw himself in the first "rushes," though, he waived his rights and permitted the studio to beautify him . . . In the picture he doesn't wear the customary toupee. The missing hairs were penciled in. And instead of make-up, it was found that a sun-ray treatment before the day's work began gave him just the right complexion.

* * *

Ned Sparks was so annoyed once at something Winchell had printed about him that he took a page ad of protest in a motion picture trade paper. Working together in the Fox flicker, they've now become fast friends. Not once during the making of the film was the touchy subject recalled.

* * *

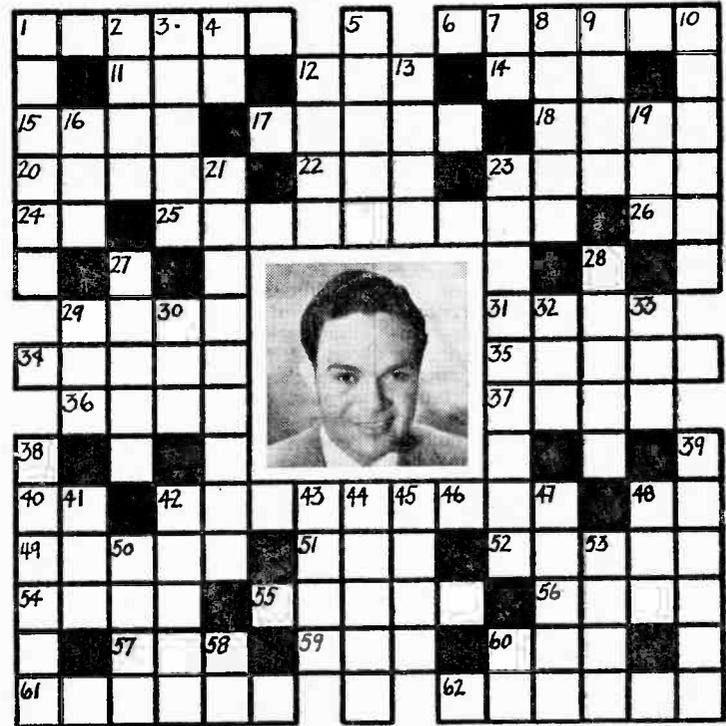

He writes the "Your Girl Friday" column which many believe is written by his secretary. She contributes a small part of it, such as "So-and-so called and left this; don't forget your date with the dentist at six o'clock, etc. etc." The "Girl Friday" column was the result of being stuck one day, when Winchell didn't know what to do. Ruth Cambridge, who Girl Friday'd for him up to a year ago, is now Girl Every-Day-In-The-Week to Buddy Ebsen. (They merged after meeting in Winchell's office.)

* * *

Walter insisted that because of the presence of the "Ol' Maestroach," the picture should be titled "Wake Up and LEAVE." When he arrived in Hollywood, the gag that he had printed about Bernie was being printed about himself.

* * *

His oldest, and perhaps closest, friend is Mark Hellinger. When they

He favors blue or gray suits, and always of the same conservative cut. Mrs. Winchell selects all his other apparel. Once, when she was out of town, he purchased a pair of gloves, only to discover when anking out in the sunlight that they were as bright as a pair of motorman's mitts. Since then he leaves everything to his wife's selection.

After the first week before the cameras, Director Sidney Lanfield observed, "He takes to pictures like a chorus girl takes to orchids." And Darryl Zanuck commented, "He's the Sonja Henie of the typewriter." Zanuck, incidentally, paid Winchell $25,000 a few years ago for his original story of "Broadway Through a Keyhole." (He didn't learn a lesson, eh?)

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letter-forum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Radio Guide will pay $10 for the best letter published each week and $5 for the next best. Other letters deserving our readers' attention also will be published.

AIR ECONOMICS ($10 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: . . . My years of observation and personal experience have convinced me that most of our hard times and consequent suffering are caused by narrow-mindedness and short-sightedness on the part of those few eminent bankers, high financiers and masters of industry who insist on having "whole hog or none."

They build such huge reserves and take such great profits that the worker and consumer have no show. They forget that the worker is the greatest consumer. A proper reserve is necessary, and the investor should have a reasonable return, but beyond that there is robbery. Money was not invented to rob the worker, but as a convenient means of exchange—and to take so much of it out of circulation is just as wise as would be the farmer who stored all his grain instead of feeding his stock properly, and then wondered why his farm didn't pay. The slogan of the common-sense farmer is "Feed the land, and the land will feed you"—and he seldom goes hungry. As against the land, place the common people, the people who are the real producers, and it will work out.

A carefully arranged radio program, permanent and frequent, depicting the suffering, deaths, broken homes and lives, with the underlying cause thereof, would in time build public sentiment to force a change, slow but sure! . . . —N. A. Beatty, Walden, N. Y.

ON "FANTASTIC LOVES" ($5 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: Jack Jamison's "Fantastic Loves" in RADIO GUIDE was a dandy! I applaud the tone of his article. Other authors who have written on the subject of passionate fan-letters have always used a soothing tone—tolerating the women who sit down and pen such trash. His article was just sarcastic enough (I hope) to bring some of these women to their senses . . .

Anyone likes honest applause and admiration, but I am sure that letters such as revealed in Jamison's article must sicken and disgust any performer who receives them. There is no excuse for such bunk. Loneliness, heart-ache, disillusion—nothing can excuse such behavior . . .

It is too bad that our stars have to think of their fellows as people who must not be disgruntled.

It's too bad such a thing isn't possible. If it were, I'd create a business for myself—I'd call myself the "Nasty Letter Writer," and make a fortune taking over the stars' correspondence and writing mean letters to all of the women who gush disgustingly over men they have never known.

I hope Mr. Jamison's article pounded some sense into some of our "love-nutty" radio and screen fans!—Rosanne Knight, Boundbrook, N. J.

SHORT-SHORT AIR STORIES

Voice of the Listener: When Nelson Eddy pronounced the daytime radio serials "terrible stuff," I was more certain than ever that he is my soul brother.

Surely we women of America are not all morons. Doubtless many of us listen to this "terrible stuff," meanwhile wishing that it were other than it is . . .

Why not replace this drivel by good dramatization of the best short-short stories, which are constantly published in a number of our most popular magazines? These are clever—and necessarily make a definite point—usually a surprise ending. Credit given over the air to the magazine in which the story originally appeared should amply compensate the publisher for its use . . . —Bessie Margaret Kemple, Colorado Springs, Colo.

"SNEAKED" PLUGS

Voice of the Listener: I'd like to compliment Jack Benny's unique way of introducing his product all through his program. I am a devout radio fan, but in all my listening, I've never heard such an "unboring" way of saying a word or two about a given product. If only radio people would realize how tired their audiences get of hearing commercial announcements introduced in the same old way! . . . —Reba Booker, Naruna, Virginia.

Voice of the Listener: My one objection to programs, of late, is the way the commercial announcements are "sneaked in," or mixed up with the script. This practise probably would not seem so bad if the regular before-and-after commercials were eliminated . . . But I'm for more unadulterated entertainment, and more "out and out" commercial announcements. —Bob Keeley, Yuba City, Calif.

THE CONTEST WORLD

VOL: With one sponsor alone offering $200,000 in prizes, and with many other worth-while contests going on all the while, I think some sponsor would do himself, and the contesters as well, a great favor if he would put on a Coast-to-Coast hook-up of contest talk.

More and more people are entering contests, even in those in which they must buy the product to enter. They are asking their friends to save wrappers for them . . . Having been interested in contests for twenty-five years, and during that time having seen contests gain prestige and popularity, I believe I know whereof I speak.—Pearl McPherson, Chevy Chase, Md.

Voice of the Listener: Contests, contests—all is contests!

Would you like to win a new Plymouth, Lincoln Zephyr, or better yet, a house on wheels? It's so easy, all you have to do is just finish this sentence—or write twenty-five words telling why you think so-and-so is the best such-and-such you ever used.

As soon as I win $5,000 on a silver platter or get a cool half-million because I have switched my brand of cigarettes, I am going to buy a new radio whereby I can get only foreign stations and enjoy the lilting strains of "Venetian Serenade" . . . Yes, they may announce contests between songs, but my knowledge of foreign languages is limited . . . and therefore I would be completely unaware of any contest announcement! . . . —Mrs. John A. Fox, Zanesville, Ohio.

"UNDERPRIVILEGED UNIVERSITY"

Voice of the Listener: Radio has been called the "University of the Underprivileged," but it is more than that to me. It is my education, recreation and inspiration—my magic wand, so to speak, for it transports me from within four walls to far-away, enchanted, magic places! I am a shut-in, but radio has kept me in contact with the outside world so that I do not feel I am prisoned within a room. Radio has many other values, both physical and spiritual, for it gives me courage when days are dark, and comfort and cheer over pain's devastating power. Realizing all these blessings, I can have only words of praise for this wonderful blessing. Radio may have faults, but like a love-blinded mother, I can forget they are there.

RADIO GUIDE, too, is splendid, and I enjoy it from cover to cover and over and over again. Thank you!—Cora May Preble, Compton, Calif.

Time given is CST; for CDT add one hour. Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 29. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

(Figures in Parentheses Are Megacycles)

SHORT-WAVE reception has shown a considerable improvement over last week's report. European stations are putting consistently strong signals into North America in the evenings. Of the morning broadcasters, GSG (17.79), Daventry, has been by far the best of late. On Wednesday evening, April 7, GSG was heard testing around 8 p.m. EST (7 p.m. CST), probably in anticipation of using this frequency regularly on transmission five.

On Sunday evening, April 11, Latin stations on the 31-meter band were coming in with mid-winter strength. Especially noteworthy were HJ4ABH (9.52), Armenia, Colombia, and OAX4J (9.33), Lima, Peru. HJ4ABH comes on the air in the morning at 8 a.m. EST (7 a.m. CST) with a blare of trumpets, a march recording and announcements in Spanish and English.

EAQ-2 (9.488), Madrid, Spain, continues to hold the spotlight of public attention and dozens of reports from all over North America testify to its tremendous signal strength and interesting English programs.

VK6ME (9.59), recently inaugurated in Perth, West Australia, and now operating with increased power daily except Sunday from 6 to 8 a.m. EST (5 to 7 a.m. CST), is as good as, if not better than, the other Australian short-wavers. The station signs off with the familiar "God Save the King."

According to August Balbi, Los Angeles, Calif., KKP (16.03), Kahuku, Hawaii, is feeding the MBS network with programs originating in Honolulu on Saturdays at 9:30 p.m. EST (8:30 p.m. CST).

L. E. CAVILEER, Haddon Heights, N. J., reports that EAJ43 (10.37), Tenerife, Canary Islands, broadcasts an English news period beamed on the United States nightly at 7:25 to 7:40 p.m. EST (6:25 to 6:40 p.m. MST). The newscast is introduced by the recording "Lady of Spain" . . . ZBW, Hong Kong, has been conducting tests on its former frequency of 15.19 mcs . . . YDC (15.15), PMN (10.26) and PLP (11), all of Java, can be heard broadcasting American recordings on Wednesdays and Fridays from 6 to 7:30 p.m. EST (5 to 6:30 p.m. CST).

H13X (15.27), of Trujillo City, D. R., is transmitting on Sundays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. EST (6:30 to 8:30 p.m. CST), and H12X (11.97) is operating on Tuesdays and Fridays from 8 to 10 p.m. EST (7 to 9 p.m. CST).

During the 12-year period, from 1924 through 1936, the NBC network carried a total of 2,140 international broadcasts. From 1924 through 1929, there were only seventeen short-wave pick-ups, while in 1936 alone there were 678. More than 31 countries have exchanged programs with NBC . . . Field tests of RCA experimental television with the new 441-line definition were resumed on April 6 on the largest scale ever undertaken in this country.

Mrs. R. S. Roche, Aliwal North, South Africa, writes that on March 1, a powerful new short-wave station, announcing merely as "Radio Pretoria," began operating on a frequency of 5 megs. Tests were being conducted daily from 8 to 9 a.m. and from 12:15 to 2:15 p.m. EST (7 to 8 a.m. and from 11:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. CST), time of going to press.

In answer to several requests, the present schedule of Pontoise, France, adopted on March 4, is: Daily over TPA3 3 to 4 a.m. and 10:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. EST (2 to 3 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. to 4 p.m. CST); over TPA2 (15.243) from 5 to 10:05 a.m. EST (4 to 9:05 a.m. CST), and over TPA4 (11.714) from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. and from 9 to 12 mid. EST (5:15 to 6:15 p.m. and from 8 to 11 p.m. CST).

Clyde Criswell, Mission Ranch, Ariz., reports that PRF5 (9.5), Rio de Janeiro, has been relaying evening concerts from the Municipal Theater in that city and requesting reports.

R. B. Ozrieder, State College, Penn., notes that the new broadcaster Radio CUROM, of Curacao, Dutch West Indies, is now heard on 5.947 megs.

SWISS Station HB9BG (7.3) is broadcasting on Fridays from 4 to 5 p.m. EST (3 to 4 p.m. CST). Programs consist of recorded music and announcements in English, German, French and Italian . . . The Dutch aerodrome at Schiphol, Holland, has installed short-wave equipment with which two-way communication may be maintained with planes as far away as Cairo, Egypt . . . According to a letter from a listener in Singapore, short-wave station ZHI there definitely closed down on December 31 and since that date has been superseded by ZHL, a broadcast-band station on 1330 kilocycles. Assuming this information is correct, I am now more mystified than ever as to what station announcing as Singapore several of our readers have been reporting on about 6.018 megs.

The Broadcasting Corporation of Japan is now issuing detailed report forms to certain reliable short-wave listeners for the purpose of observing reception of the Japanese broadcasts.

The traveling representative of the International Dx'ers Alliance, Prof. Willis K. Jones, of Oxford University, writing from Cochabamba, Bolivia, states that Compania Vitalicio, an insurance company in Santiago, Chile, in July will inaugurate a powerful short-wave station . . . A new station CP12 (6.16), "Radio Tunari de Cochabamba, Bolivia," operates daily from 12:30 to 1 p.m. and from 9 to 11 p.m. EST (11:30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 8 to 10 p.m. CST). By the end of April, this station will have installed a new 1,500-watt transmitter .

Talks by American journalists over EAQ-2 (9.488), Madrid, Spain, may be heard on Mondays around 7 p.m. EST (6 p.m. CST) and on Tuesdays and Fridays close to 8 p.m. EST (7 p.m. CST).

We Applaud

IN THEIR JOURNEYS TO RADIO FAME THEY HAVE BEEN LOYAL TO THEIR TALENTS, TO THEIR AUDIENCES, TO THEMSELVES!

... "Smilin' Ed" McConnell, radio's biggest baritone, with Irma Glen, organist on his program. For his cheery broadcast, "Smilin' Ed" plays the piano a little, jokes a little — and sings old familiar songs!

... John McCormack, one of the greatest tenors of all times. For many years he has been among radio's best beloved luminaries. His Irish ballads have gladdened the hearts of many a son of Erin

... Gina Cigna, left, for her sensational American debut in "Aida," aired over NBC. Wildly cheered by the critical New York audience, she sang her way into the hearts of her great radio audience as well

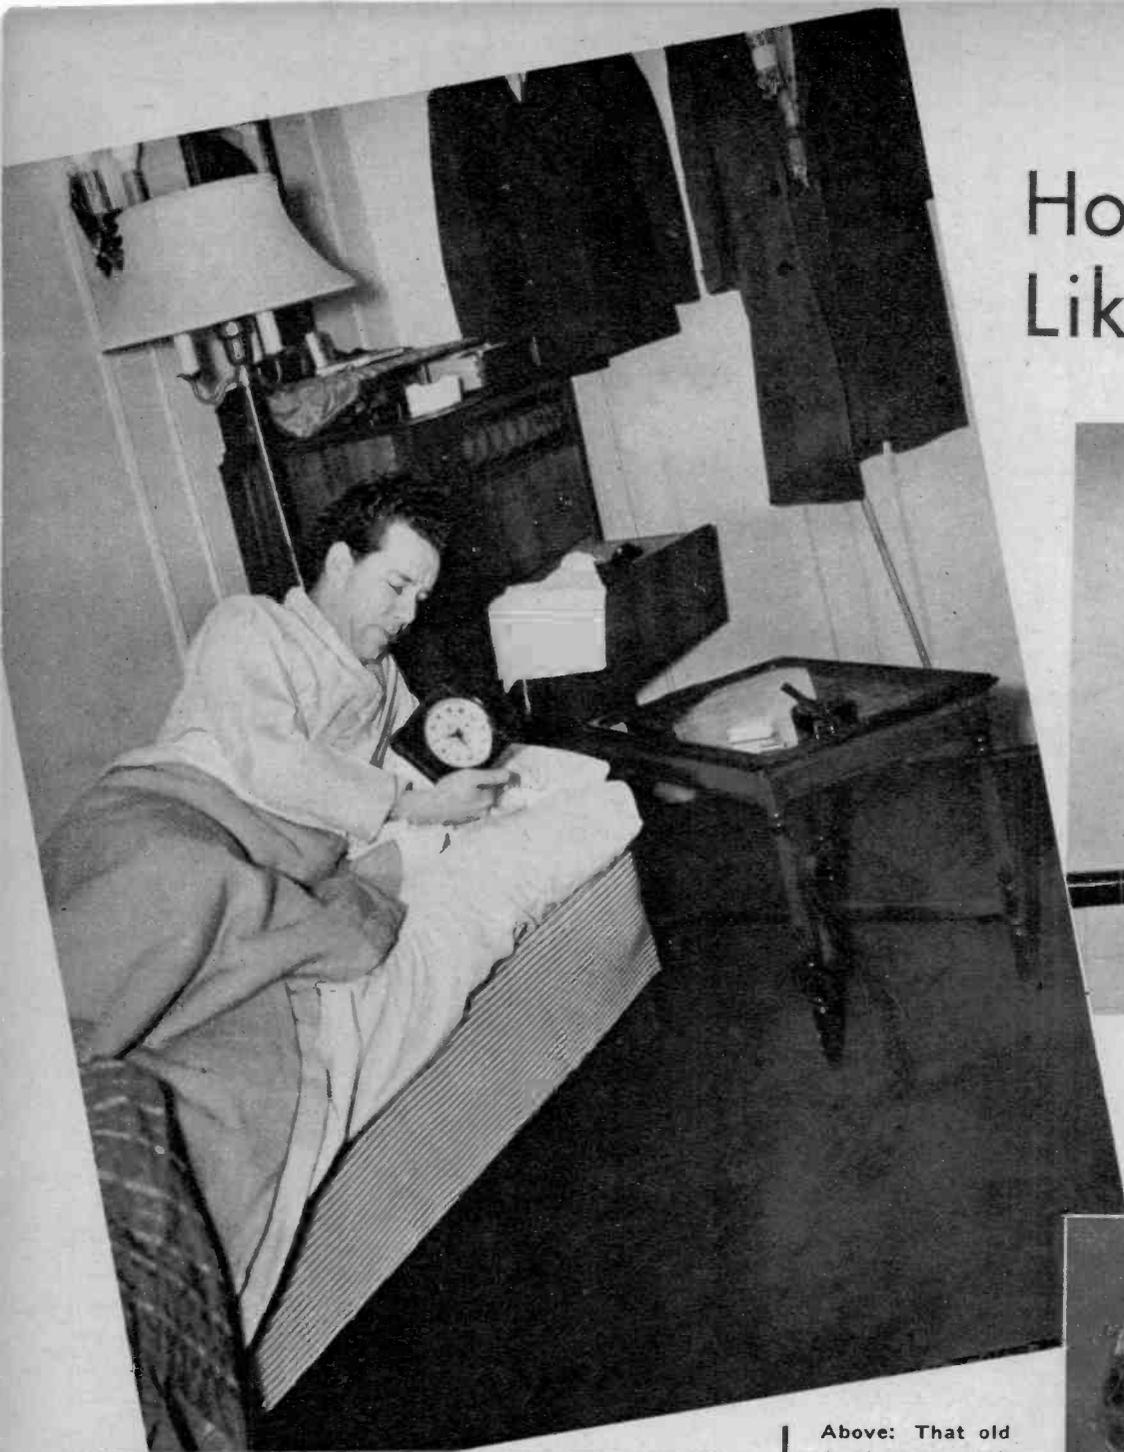

... Grace Moore, whose glorious voice has brought her opera, screen and radio fame. Star of a new Saturday night program, she sings operatic airs and popular ballads in her own scintillating style

... Phillips Lord for his top-ranking program ideas, and Gabriel Heatter for expert piloting of "We, the People" while Lord vacationed. Now Phil is back and Gabriel is an air-reporter again!

How to Start the Day Like A RADIO STAR

2 Above: A rare picture indeed: Portrait of an artist gargling! Jerry takes this precaution to guard his voice. That golden throat of his has brought him far: He was a baseball player, fight manager and orchestra leader before he came to New York in 1934 with only $20 in his pocket, sang in night clubs—and won a place in radio!

1 Above: That old devil alarm clock starts the day for Jerry Cooper at 7:18 a.m. Little things tell his story best: Jerry is a New Orleans boy, still impressed by "the big city"—and those clothes hanging on the wall suggest that last night Jerry was seeing New York's famed bright lights!

3 When you become a radio star, you don't complain, "Really I haven't a thing to wear"—you ask, "What shall I wear today?" Here are eleven pairs of $15 shoes—ten in rows, one pair on Jerry's feet. And he has others!

4 You'll hang 66 ties on a rack inside your closet door when your dreams of fame come true—if you follow Jerry's example. His one-room apartment on West 55th Street in New York has a bath, kitchenette, two closets—costs $125 per month. When he first came to New York, Jerry lived in a $3-a-week room on Ninth Avenue!

5 Right: A young man destined to become a success in radio learns to press his clothes with a towel over them when he has to live on hope—and if he's unaffected by fame, he continues to press his own clothes when he becomes a star. Jerry Cooper does all his own pressing—and that includes fourteen suits to keep him busy during the morning!

WHEN ALL YOUR OWN DREAMS COME TRUE!

Photos by SIDNEY DESFOR

6 Above: A fellow may do his own pressing, but laundry is too much! Jerry inspects his day's laundry bill—remembering a time when that much money was more than all he had!

7 Above: The morning is yet young when Jerry gets around to making his bed. It is a studio couch during the day. When visitors come, the coffee table is pulled up and the couch seats them. At night, the floor lamp at its head makes the bed an excellent place for reading!

8 Above: When you become a star, you'll find that a fan letter is only a couple of pages to the one who writes it—but a big job to the star who answers them! Jerry dictates his replies to Wilbur Tatum, his secretary. And notice that roll of stamps!

9 Right: The real business of the day is arranging music. Jerry formerly made transcriptions under the name "Jack Randolph," adding to his labors, but dropped the pseudonym after it topped his own name in Radio Guide's Star of Stars poll!

11 The day is started—like a radio star. Afternoon comes, and Jerry meets lovely Joan Mitchell for a moment away from work. Romance rumors concerning them cover New York—but they both say they're not married—yet

10 Jerry leans back and lets himself go—on his trombone! He's never played it professionally, but likes to "fool with it." A radio star must be careful there are no "jokers" in his lease! Jerry lives close to both CBS and NBC, has many radio neighbors, including Jean Ellington, Ruby Mercer, Carol Wyman and Diana Ward, singers, and Vincent Travers, orchestra leader. They won't complain!

Everybody swing it! Today's tempo is torrid—and new moods in music—or are they new? Perhaps "Swing" was a new style for fellows in New Orleans. Original Dixieland Jazz Band had never heard of it. Musicians now are playing in the style in 1927, he introduced it to the general public on radio. Many of its growth, Duke Ellington, Henderson and his band were current sensations. Glen Gray and his band were in the day, nearly all of them—audience

2 "The Original Dixieland Jazz Band" played jazz in 1908 that fathered today's swing! They're J. Russell Robinson, piano; Larry Shields, clarinet; Nick LaRocca, trumpet; Eddie Edwards, trombone, and Tony Spargano, drums. They disbanded in 1926, but in 1935 Ken Murray remembered their jazz, reorganized them as a vaudeville act. Then the comedian dropped out, and the band is now a fourteen-piece vaudeville "turn"

3 Ben Pollock—drumming with the "New Orleans Rhythm Kings" in 1921, he was a "swing missionary." He soon formed his own swing band. Benny Goodman and Gene Austin were in it

6 And here's how swing is swung! Radio Guide takes you to Columbia's "Saturday Night Swing Club," where the hottest swing artists play for the love of it! Duke Ellington was guest swing star on the night these pictures were made. Duke gets $1500 and up for an appearance—but he played here for $18—the Musicians' Union minimum! He doesn't need money—but he likes to swing—so why not? And all the boys in his orchestra played for the $6 rehearsal fee and $12 for the broadcast. That's what swing does to those who make it!

7 Let's hear it for Duke Ellington and his band. They are up there so you can hear them. Duke Ellington and his band are up there so you can hear them. Duke Ellington and his band are up there so you can hear them.

4 As Pollock led white swingmen, Fletcher Henderson became the Negro swing leader. As his star rose, Pollock's faded—and in turn he was surpassed when Glen Gray started swing rolling

5 When Gray's Casa Lomas started the ball rolling, it rolled right in Benny Goodman's lap! He innovated the "swing concert"—gave the public rhythm it could appreciate. Most people still think he started swing—pay $2.50 per person to dance to his clarinet!

8 Left: While Duke is resting, Leith Stevens' band takes over. The clarinet player has stepped up to the mike to emphasize his instrument—and bald-headed CBS Photographer Bert Lawson has stepped up to make one of the other pictures on these pages!

9 Network officials were skeptical when Phil Cohan, CBS producer, collared Leith Stevens (above), started the Swing Club in June, 1936. Now they love it! Leith sheds his coat, loosens his suspenders—and works!

10 Above: Here's the supreme council of the Swing Club (left to right): Paul Douglas, announcer; Ed Cashman, director; Irving Mills, Ellington's manager; Duke himself; Leith Stevens, and Phil Cohan, who produced the show. Mills is happy over the show—not over the commission he won't get! Cohan also works on Hal Kemp's show

12 Above: Her name is Ivie Anderson, her job to sing—hot and heavy! Her boss, Duke Ellington. Her songs—they've all got rhythm!

11 Above: "Cootie" Williams uses no ordinary mute on his trumpet—it's a bathroom plunger! When he's not tooting for Duke, Williams spends his time composing—also for Duke!

14 Above: These hands, wrapped around the keys in such fantastic shapes, are Duke Ellington's—in a very minor chord—and a hot one!

15 Casper Reardon once plucked this harp for America's biggest symphony orchestras—but then he got rhythm! Now he guests for Paul Whiteman, Ferde Grofe, Richard Himber, others

16 Right: A porter gently carries away the hottest instruments in the world. He should be gentle—many are gold! They're swing factories—with heavy production schedules!

17 Here's an important-looking gadget you've seen in the backgrounds of several other pictures—and it is important! It tells when the show is on, whether it is running fast or slow—if swing can run slow!

COURTIN' OL' SOL

AFTER STRENUOUS HOURS AT THE STUDIOS THESE LOVELY LADIES LOOK FOR RELAXATION EVERYWHERE—UNDER THE SUN!

Betty Lou Gerson, pretty young radio actress heard in "A Tale of Today," has no fear of the sun's hot rays in her new hooded beach coat. Hers is a delicate skin—needs protection!

Elinor Harriot, who takes the part of Ruby in the "Amos 'n' Andy" cast, finds relaxation in this backless floral print. It's just the thing for a tennis game!

Vera Marsh plays under the California sun while on a holiday at a Palm Springs pool. You hear this lovely lady's voice as she plays the role of Joe Penner's girl friend on his Sunday night broadcasts. On the air, she's Penner's "Sugar Plum"

At left: Grace Albert, of the "Honeymooners" series, kneels to Ol' Sol in a striking beach ensemble—with white cap and clogs to match. Grace is an ardent outdoor enthusiast and, believe it or not, she's one radio star who really likes to swim!

1 The 46th Street Theater on 46th Street, West of Broadway, where "Howdy Stranger," a 3-act comedy with Frank Parker as its star, opened last January 14. The cast includes twenty-seven people—many of them of radio fame—and tickets range from 55 cents to $2.75

We See A Play— and Frank Parker

2 The radio tenor smiles as he enters the stage door for a matinee performance. Left to right: Frank Parker; Miss Bunny Waters, an entertainer from the Hollywood Restaurant—a friend of Frank's; and Hans Robert, who plays the role of Frank's father in the play

3 So men use cosmetics? Frank Parker does—in this Broadway play. Our cameraman went backstage to snap this informal shot of Frank's dressing-table, and here you see cold-cream, eye-brow pencil, grease-paint, rouge, lipstick, powder, lotion, eye shadow—it's all there!

4 Making-up! Frank goes through the first step by rubbing cold-cream into his face. That forms a base for the other cosmetics. The popular singer was looking in a big mirror directly in front of him while our lensman framed his reflection in the little mirror on his table

5 A close-up pose of Frank adding heavy black lines to his eyes with the aid of a pencil. And then comes the eye shadow—which must be meticulously applied—or the result will be gargoylish. Upon these minor technical angles depends much of the success of a show

6 While Frank continues his make-up, Louis Sorin drops in to engage him in conversation. You'll remember Louis as McGillicuddy in Walter O'Keefe's old Caravan series. See the telegrams on the wall? They're messages of good wishes from Frank's many friends

7 Just a few minutes before the curtain rises on the first act of the first scene in "Howdy Stranger" and Frank is very busy in his dressing-room putting on those last finishing touches. While the actor-tenor adjusts his tie, William—his valet and "dresser"—brushes his shoes

8 William helps him on with the suspenders and Frank is now solely concerned with his performance. In the play he fakes a Western accent, dresses in a cowboy outfit, keeps his real identity as a Brooklyn boy a secret, and under the spell of hypnosis rides to glory in a rodeo!

11 Frank Parker, left, has a word with Louis Sorin, his producer. Billed as a real singing cowboy, Frank's adventures in Manhattan, in addition to his fear of animals, create the comedy in the show. This is a shot of an actual scene from the play—which closed recently

YOUR INDULGENCE, PLEASE

Owing to the shift this week of many cities of North America to Daylight Saving Time, an unusual number of errors in listings may be found. This is an unavoidable circumstance which is caused by the failure of some stations to advise RADIO GUIDE of their change from Standard to Daylight Saving Time. By next issue these errors will be rectified and our Program Section will regain its normal high standard of excellence. The Editors of your favorite radio weekly wish to apologize, however, and beg your indulgence.

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL
It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections
NO MORE BUZZES, CLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F. & H. Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Equals an aerial 75 ft.
long, string 50 ft. high, yet occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind your radio—guaranteed to give you nationwide reception or your money back.
BETTER TONE AND DISTANCE GUARANTEED
Sensitivity, selectivity, tone and volume improved. No lightning danger or unsightly lead-in and aerial wires. Makes your set complete in itself. Forget aerial wires and troubles—move your set anywhere.
NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED
On the market five years. 100,000 satisfied customers in U. S. and foreign countries. Inuse from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa.
Chosen by Government for use on Naval Hospital bedside radios. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Can not harm set—Easily connected to any radio, including radios having no ground or radios for doublet aerial.
5 DAYS TRIAL Mail coupon at once. Pay postman $1.00 plus a satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question.
—JUST MAIL THIS COUPON—
F. & H. Radio Laboratories, Dept. 96, Fargo, N. Dak.
Send F. & H. Capacity Aerial. Will pay postman $1 plus few cents postage. If not pleased will return within 5 days for $1 refund. Check here if sending $1 with order—thus saving postage cost—same refund guarantee.
Check here if interested in dealer's proposition.

NEXT WEEK— IN RADIO GUIDE

The Strange Spell That Ruled Helen Marshall—Read this amazing story of a star's career—the strange story of the girls who had risen to fame because they had appeared in the "Beggar's Opera." Helen Marshall was one of these "Beggar's Opera" heroines—and like others, she won wide fame!

Men, Microbes—and Me—Few people would believe it—but Bob Burns studies bugs and stars! He's a real bacteriologist—and a real astronomer! Read the bazooka-blower's own story of humanity as he sees it through a microscope and a telescope!

When a Woman Travels Alone—Virginia Clark, famous dramatic star of the airwaves, made a recent trip to Europe, travelling alone! Read her fascinating story of her journey to distant places—read how you, too, can make the same kind of journey to the distant places of the world!

The Photo-Story of Marion Talley's Life—This star of the concert stage, the Metropolitan Opera, the movies, and radio has had a sensational career—she has lived the lives of a dozen ordinary women—and she is still young, famous, a great star in many fields! Never before has there been presented, in any publication, the complete life story in pictures of the amazing Marion Talley! Here, for the first time, you will see photos of Miss Talley—from the cradle days onward to fame!
