Mail your ballot to the Star of Stars Election Tellers, Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Illinois. Paste it on a penny postcard, if you wish.

16 DAYS TO GO!

AS RADIO GUIDE'S fourth annual Star of Stars election draws near its exciting end, how do your favorites stand? Do you prefer Lum and Abner to Amos 'n' Andy? Your poll says you do. Would you rather hear the WLS Barn Dance than the Sunday Evening Hour? Apparently—for in this week's rating, the Barn Dance is seventh, while the symphony program trails in tenth position. What about this? Does it indicate your preference? If it does not, and you haven't voted as yet, by all means get your vote in now while there's still time. After all, this is your contest, you know, intended to determine which stars and which programs you like best. Every vote counts. And even though it's in the home stretch, this contest is still very much anybody's race. So far, the balloting has been so close that any slight concentration in the voting might turn the tide of the election completely.

Don Ameche: Since the 1937 Star of Stars Poll began he has rated as Number 1 actor!

Your votes, in fact, might very easily play an important part in determining the ultimate winners. Remember, too, that soon radio programs will be changing. Old contracts will expire—some to be renewed, others to be dropped. And since this is the most comprehensive poll of its kind, it's quite possible that the outcome will play no small part in determining who the stars for this coming season will be. Consequently, of course, you'll be able to pick the kind of programs you want by the way you vote. If your favorites are not receiving the support you think is due them, don't delay another minute in voting for them. Remember, the time is growing short. Only about two weeks remain in this contest. If you're going to help your favorite stars win—you'll have to vote now! There is still time to give them your support! Send in your ballot—today! (See Star of Stars Standings on Page 19)

BREATHLESS, A WAITING WORLD LISTENS AS THE GREAT CORONATION STORY IS TOLD—BY RADIO!

THE Coronation of King Albert Frederick Arthur George and Queen Elizabeth Angela Marguerite, which will be held in London on May 12, is going to be, without doubt, radio's biggest show—the "crowning event" in the twenty-odd years of radio broadcasting's existence.

There are two reasons why this should be so. First, the Coronation still remains the most impressive ceremony on earth. Second, radio, which usually has to cover its big events—from earthworm races to earthquakes—at a moment's notice, for once has had time, lots of time, to make plans, to set the stage, to show off.

Approximately 50,000 Americans are expected to go to London for the Coronation. They will—if they can afford it—pay from $150 to $300 for seats along the route of the procession. If they cannot, they will jostle some of the 2,000,000 Britishers who will come the night before and park—bleacher-fan fashion—on the curbstones of Victoria Embankment, North-cumberland, Cockspur or Pall Mall.

But seated or standing, these Innocents Abroad will learn less of the Coronation than any one of the 400,000,000 people who are expected to be on hand via the loudspeaker. The former will, of course, have the obvious advantage of being actually on the scene, which always makes a good cries of allegiance for a riot on the part of the conquered Saxons, moved them down in one of England's bloodiest massacres.

King John was so nervous at his Coronation that he dropped his spear and ran out of the Abbey, without the benefit of sacrament.

Edward V, at nine years of age, was all ready and rehearsed for the Coronation. But then his uncle had him killed and was himself crowned as Richard III.

King George III on his Coronation faced a strike by the workers who were putting up reviewing-stands and had to pay them higher wages before they would go ahead.

Luxury-loving George IV refused to be crowned until St. Edward's crown was entirely remade to his liking. The chancellor of the exchequer was unable or unwilling to raise the 70,000 pounds to pay for the repairs. The matter was compromised after much undignified bickering by "borrowing" the crown from the jewelers for one day at the neat rental price of 7,000 pounds!

During George V's Coronation, the boy Duke of Kent could not resist the temptation and, as the self-conscious Prince of Wales bent down to give his newly crowned father the oath of allegiance, kicked him in the shins!

story to tell one's grandchildren. They will, also, catch a glimpse of the storied jewels and gowns of the peers and nobles. But the radio audience will learn much more. They will follow the procession from fifty vantage points where microphones will be set up! And to top it all off, they will be right in the Coronation "theater" in Westminster Abbey when the Archbishop of Canterbury places the crown of pure gold upon the head of a tall, thin man in a red-velvet doublet, white-satin breeches and the blue sash of the Order of the Garter on his chest.

TRADITION is the essence of the Coronation and will be religiously followed. The same words that Edward the Confessor heard centuries ago will again ring out clear in Westminster Abbey. And though their offices no longer exist, the same Lords of the Realm—Lord Great Chamberlain of England, High Constables and Great Stewards of Scotland and Ireland, all immeasurably higher in rank than a mere Prime Minister—will precede the King in the procession. Costumes will follow carefully preserved specifications and duchesses will again parade in robes which have four rows of pure miniver on the mantle and a train two yards long on the ground, while baronesses will have to struggle along with two rows of fur and a one-yard trailer.

The actual crowning will again be performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury—a privilege of which the

THE broadcasting plans for the Coronation are as detailed and complete as ingenuity and total disregard of expenses can make them. They include pre-Coronation sermons from the leading pulpits in England. They provide for speeches on the various aspects of the Coronation by such prominent people as Commander Stephen King-Hall, eminent British writer and radio commentator, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, scholar and statesman noted for his world peace activities, Ellen C. Wilkinson, Labor member of Parliament, and Hector Bolitho, official biographer of King George for the Coronation program.

But the biggest and most colorful show of the Coronation broadcasts will, of course, be the six hours during the actual Coronation ceremony, which both NBC and CBS will bring to American listeners on Wednesday, May 12. The Coronation plans have been carefully rehearsed and, at every step, a battery of microphones will bring the scene to listeners all over the world.

The Coronation ceremony will begin at Buckingham Palace, where Their Majesties will start for the Abbey. The King and Queen will ride in the antique coach of George III, drawn by eight cream-colored horses in trappings of scarlet and gold. The coach of gold and glass weighs four tons and cost nearly 40,000 pounds; three little gilt boys posed solemnly on the gold top of the coach represent England, Scotland and Ireland.

THE progress of the procession will be described by commentators stationed at 35 pick-up points along the route. There will be large broadcasting booths at Buckingham Palace, the Cenotaph, Trafalgar Square, St. James Palace, Oxford Circus and inside and outside the Abbey. Mobile broadcasting units will help in giving word-pictures of the reactions of the crowd and the rich sideshows which are sure to develop in the largest gathering of people in any single city.

As the coach approaches the Abbey, grayed by centuries of British fog, students of the Westminster School in their white robes will wait to welcome the King with shouts of "God Save the King!" The crowd will take up the shout and the King will enter the Abbey through the west gate. In front of the altar, at the top of the steps leading to the "Coronation theater"—a raised platform, erected for the occasion—the King will find the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Primate of All England—the Right Honorable Cosmo Gordon Lang.

The Abbey will be deathly still, its 7,500 people, resplendent in ermine and velvet, standing at attention. The King, in the Crimson Robe of State, with its enormous ermine collar, and wearing the Cap of Maintenance, a scarlet headgear roughly the same size and shape as the crown, will mount the raised platform, or the "scaffold."

The Archbishop will then go with the Lord Chancellor, Lord Great Chamberlain, Lord High Constable and the Earl Marshall to the east, south, west and north corners of the theater, in that order. With King George standing by his chair, and turning each time in the same direction as the Archbishop, the following question will be asked in a loud voice from the four cardinal points: "Sirs! I here present unto you King George VI, the undoubted king of this realm; wherefore, all you who are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?"

There has been only one answer to that question: "God Save the King!"

After this ceremony (known as the Recognition), litany, communion, and the Coronation sermon will come in quick succession. Then, upon the invitation of the Archbishop, the King will go to the altar, take the oath, kiss the Bible and sign the oath, binding him to govern according to the laws and customs of the Parliament and to maintain the Church of England.

The sovereign will next be dexterously divested of his garments to an cloth of gold around their new King.

The consecrated oil, called "chrosm," or Holy Cream, will then be poured from the ampulla, or the Gold Eagle, into the spoon which has been lying on the altar. The "chrosm" is a mixture of balsam and olive oil, reverently consecrated by the Archbishop. The Archbishop will dip his finger in it and anoint the King as a cleric is anointed when he is elevated to the rank of Bishop. The King then will be crossed on the head, the breast, and the palm of each of his hands.

AFTER the anointing, a supertunica, or an over-dress of cloth of gold, will be placed upon the King and a girdle of the same material will be caught around him. The Lord Chamberlain will touch his heels with the spurs of gold of knighthood, to indicate that the King has become a person in whom the divine and the temporal have been mixed.

The great Sword of State will then be brought to the King. This sword was made at the cost of 6,000 pounds for George IV and in it is imbedded the 516-carat Star of Africa diamond valued at about $3,000,000. As the Archbishop gives the sword to the King, he will say the following: "With this sword of justice, stop the growth of iniquity, protect the Holy Church of God, help and defend widows and orphans, restore the things that are restored, punish and reform what is amiss, and confirm what is of good order; that doing these things you may be glorious in all virtue; and so faithfully serve our Lord Jesus Christ in this life, that you may reign forever with Him in the life which is to come."

The King will then receive the imperial mantle, the two scepters and the orb. And with the orb in one hand and original, that having been destroyed by Cromwell in 1649. The present crown was made by Sir Robert Viner, the royal goldsmith, in time for the crowning of Charles II after the Restoration. It is richly adorned with precious stones, including diamonds, sapphires, pearls and rubies. It has a mound of gold on top, surmounted by a gold cross containing three very fine oval pearls. The band of the crown is carved with fleur-de-lis, and supports a circle of gold, studded with precious stones. Above the circle rise the four gold crosses which support the four arches of the crown. The cap is adjusted to the King's head lest the crown slip off or even tilt at an unbecoming angle.

The Archbishop, standing over the kneeling king, will pronounce the solemn words of Coronation while absolute quiet pervades the Abbey: "O God, the Crown of the faithful, bless, we beseech Thee, and sanctify this Thy servant George our King: and as Thou dost this day set a crown of pure gold upon his head, so enrich his royal heart with Thine abundant grace, and crown him with all princely virtues."

Reverently will the Archbishop place the crown upon the King's head, and then all peers will place their coronets upon their own brows, while all lights are switched on in the Abbey, trumpets blare, cannons boom in Hyde Park, and from the millions outside the Abbey gates, as well as from the millions of people everywhere in the world where flies the Union Jack, the cries of "God Save the King" will rise time and again.

The Archbishop will then turn and bless the assembled people and their King. This will be his benediction to the King: "The Lord give you a fruitful country and healthful seasons, victorious fleets and armies and a quiet empire; a faithful senate, wise and upright counselors and magistrates, a loyal nobility, and a dutiful gentry; a pious and learned and useful clergy; and an honest, industrious and obedient commonalty. Amen!"

The Archbishop will then help the Lords of the Realm in placing King George upon the throne and with them will come before the King prepared to do the Act of Homage.

First, the Archbishop will kneel before the King; then the other bishops will follow his example. The Archbishop will say:

"I, Cosmo, Archbishop of Canterbury (he will pause at this point while each bishop says his name), will be faithful and true, and faith and truth will bear unto you, our Sovereign Lord, and your heirs, Kings of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Defenders of the Faith and Emperors of India. And I will do and truly acknowledge the service of the lands which I claim to hold of you, as in the right of the Church. So help me God!"

After the bishops rise, the first to approach the throne and offer homage to the newly crowned King is the next in line, the 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth, or as she is affectionately known throughout the Empire, Lilibet. Following her will be her little six-year-old sister, Margaret Rose; then the uncles and the cousins of the little girls, and after them, in order of their precedence, the nobles of the realm.

The throne on which the King sits while he receives the Homage is one of the Empire's most sacred possessions. For under its worn and battered oak seat is enclosed the famous Coronation Stone, or the Stone of Scone, on which all English sovereigns have been crowned.

This stone, brought by Edward I from Scotland (Scone was the capital of Scotland), is the center of perpetual wrangle between that country, which wants it back, and the city of London, which is just as determined to retain its possession. Meanwhile, the battered, shapeless mass, marred by a deep crack upon its surface, is guarded as carefully as if it were made of solid gold.

The throne itself is no longer gilded. On it appears a curious inscription and behind that inscription is a curious story. It seems that a Westminster schoolboy once wagered with a friend that he would stay all night alone in the Abbey. He did—and to prove it for all time that he had, he cut with a penknife in the solid oak of the throne: "P. Abbott slept in this chair, January 4, 1821." The inscription is still there.

When the Act of Homage is over, the drums will beat, the trumpets will sound and the whole congregation will repeat, concluding the ceremony: "God Save King George! Long Live King George! May the King Live Forever!"

THE Queen's crowning will be much briefer. It will be conducted by the Archbishop of York and she will have a special crown of her own. A new crown is designed for each queen but it is sure to contain the most famous, though not the largest, diamond in the world, the Kohinoor, weighing 106 carats. When this crown is placed on the Queen's head, all the peeresses and princesses will put on theirs.

After the crowning of the Queen, the last part of the Coronation ceremony will begin. This is known as the Recess. While the choir of Westminster schoolboys sings Te Deum Laudamus, the King will proceed to the Chapel of St. Edward, where he will remove the Royal Robe of State and substitute for it a robe of purple velvet. He will also take off St. Edward's Crown and put on the Imperial State Crown.

Then, with the orb and the scepter in his hands and with the Queen beside him, he will leave the Abbey and in the coach of gold and glass return to the Palace. There among heralds in knee-breeches, pursuivants in tabards and short cloaks emblazoned with coats-of-arms, the Lord Mayor of London, His Majesty's Ministers and nobility, he will receive from the balcony the cheers of his subjects—and the ceremony of coronation will be over!

THE first time I met Richard Humber, he was dining in Lindy's, a sloe-eyed brunet seated opposite him.

The last time I saw Dick he was leaving the NBC studios with a limpid blonde draped on his arm.

Girl crazy?

No. The answer is girl trouble.

Last year, Dick went around with a beautiful young New York actress. The year before that, it was a sultry night-club singer and a languid photographers' model. The year before that, a society girl and a long-limbed showgirl tied his heart in a knot.

To each of these girls Dick could have offered money, excitement, security and marriage. All of these girls, at the beginning, considered him a good "catch."

Yet none of these girls would stick to him. A long procession of women has moved through his life like water down a river—then completely out.

So Dick Humber, one of the most eligible bachelors in radio, is doomed to be a bachelor all of his life. That is—unless he changes his ways.

IT ALL goes back to what is either the greatest fault or the greatest charm about Dick Humber. That is his social rebellion. Any girl who has been out with him only two times can see that Dick would not be an ordinary husband—that his erratic and unpredictable ways would knock the marriage machine out of gear immediately, and only a superhuman woman could be Mrs. R. H. for long.

The story of Dick's mad antics isn't exactly news. Last year, RADIO GUIDE told you how Dick ripped the coat off the back of a friend and tore it to shreds because he didn't like the color; how he had his secretary phone his friends and tell them that he had died; how he took a party of friends to Asbury Park and immediately upon arriving there packed them into their cars and back to New York again because he suddenly remembered that he wanted to see a certain picture at the Music Hall.

Now all of that may sound like fun. But it wouldn't be so to the woman who promises to "love, honor, and obey" him.

Naturally, a woman to make a success of marriage—even to the most typical and docile of men—must have more than a grain of tolerance and good humor in her make-up. But the woman who hopes to make a success of marriage to a prankster like Humber must have rare qualities not found in the average girl.

Last year, for instance, Dick thought he was in love with a young blond artists' model, Alma D. One evening he took her to dinner along with several of their friends. As they sat down in the restaurant, Dick accidentally poked the arm of a girl sitting at the next table, causing her to spill some soup in her lap. Another man would have apologized—might at the most have offered to foot the cleaning bill for the dress. But not Dick. He doesn't go about things the way ordinary mortals do. Instead, he took this girl by the hand and proceeded to walk out of the restaurant with her, without even bothering to explain to his friends what he had planned to do at the time.

Five. Ten. Fifteen minutes. A half-hour passed. There was an awkward silence at the table. Imagine how Alma felt. Imagine how you would feel if your boy friend suddenly walked off with a strange girl, leaving you alone to face the embarrassed glances of the others in your presence.

Finally Dick and this other girl returned. And when the others saw her they gasped in amazement. She was wearing a new hat, new gloves, new shoes and a new bag. Dick had bought them for her. It was an entirely innocent gesture. He wasn't interested in the girl; it was just his way of making amends.

That isn't at all unusual for Dick, and it's a practise he's bound to adhere to after marriage. But if you were married to a man who impulsively bought a strange girl about fifty dollars' worth of personal apparel, what would you think? Even if you had the most tolerant of natures, wouldn't you be tempted to nag and complain? Wouldn't you, even if you were the most broad-minded of women, harbor some tiny suspicion that your husband was perhaps a little interested in this girl?

ONE of the first rules observed by the wise bride is not to try to change the men they marry. But what woman wouldn't be tempted to change Dick into a sober and conventional person? And Dick, who is obedient only to his own caprices, not caring how many Emily Post rules he breaks, would deeply resent a woman trying to make him over. The result, you can bet, would be a household as harmonious as a Clyde Beatty menagerie.

There's no foretelling just what the irrepressible Humber will do next. Just try to put yourself in the place of a certain girl who accepted an invitation to have dinner with him.

Dick escorted her to a fine restaurant on Madison Avenue, and they started to order. They had just finished their oyster cocktails when Dick signaled for the waiter. "Check, please." The waiter was puzzled. This couple had just entered, and now the red-haired gentleman wanted to leave! The girl was equally dumbstruck, but she slipped into her coat and left with him.

Outside, Himber directed her to a little restaurant in Radio City. "We'll continue from here," he explained.

THE girl settled down in her chair again, perused the bill of fare and ordered the rest of her dinner. They had scarcely gone through their soup when the same thing happened. "Put on your coat," Dick told her. "I know the grandest place for steaks. We'll finish our meal there."

Grimly, the girl determined to see it through. She got into her coat again, left the restaurant and they walked another few blocks to the third place. By this time the girl was no longer hungry—but very furious. The dinner hour, as anyone can realize, is the one meal which is generally unhurried. It is the time to linger over your food, to indulge in light talk, to relax and orderly wife. Cigarette ashes, crumpled rugs, a hole burned in the best tablecloth, sticky glasses. This goes on night after night. And since so many of Dick's friends are privileged to walk into the apartment whenever they wish and with whomever they wish, the poor girl whom Dick marries would never be sure of a moment's peace or privacy. She might say, "Let's stay home tonight and spend a quiet evening at home, dear." Suddenly, the door might be flung open and a group of friends come tumbling in to stay all night. She'd probably run right back to Mother's after a week of that.

Once he brought home a little alligator. He deposited it in the bathtub, and even over the pleadings and threats of his houseboy and his guests, he would not remove the animal. For three months, "Ian" nonchalantly swam in his marble bathtub. One day he mysteriously disappeared. The culprit never confessed, although insiders claim that Dick's houseboy perpetuated the foul deed. Dick was heartbroken for a while, but he soon forgot his loss in the acquisition of a new interest. This was collecting old horseshoes.

Himber is as directionless as a bunch of firecrackers. Once, walking with a girl on their way to the theater, he happened to pass his tailor. He walked in, leaving the girl waiting outside, tried on several suits, bought one, then calmly rejoined his waiting girl friend. When he finishes a meal in a restaurant, he grabs his hat and coat and walks out without a word, leaving his companion or companions to finish alone. He walks around the block or stops off at a bowling alley, and then returns as innocently as though what he had done were the most conventional thing in the world.

HE HAS absolutely no sense of money values. His wife might find him very stingy, or extravagant. He once refused to buy a girl a package of cigarettes because he dislikes having his woman companions smoke, yet that same evening she saw him throw away $100 on a practical joke that lasted five minutes.

Once he found a girl who was his match. She came into his office wearing a felt hat. Himber didn't like it. Immediately he snatched it off her head, ripped the brim off and threw the rest of the hat in the wastebasket.

"Come on," he said. "I'll buy you a new one." The girl was searing with humiliation. But she said nothing.

They walked down the street, when suddenly she snatched off his hat, threw it on the pavement and pounded on it, her high, sharp heels puncturing holes in it. A few passers-by stopped to see what was going on. When she was through, she calmly picked it up and gave him the battered remains. "There," she said. "I don't like your hat either. And I'm not going to buy you another." Dick tossed the hat into the gutter, and disheveled but defiant the two walked down the street arm in arm, his short red hair, her long blond hair waving in the chill February wind.

I wish Dick had married that girl. But she wasn't his type. He likes 'em meek. Like Jean Parker, he says.

Richard Himber may be heard Mondays on Studebaker Champions over an NBC network at 10 p.m. EDT (9 EST; 9 CDT; 8 CST; 7 MST; 6 PST); also on the Coffee Club over MBS on Fridays at 8 and 10:30 p.m. EDT (7 and 9:30 EST; 7 and 9:30 CDT; 6 and 8:30 CST; 5 and 7:30 MST; 4 and 6:30 PST).

forget about the nervous goings-on of the day. No wonder this girl never wanted to see or hear from the "eligible" Dick from that day on!

To Himber, the fact that it took three hours and four restaurants to accomplish a dinner date was neither extraordinary nor amusing. It was normal. He believes that each restaurant specializes in one type of food. One may be excellent for entrees, another for desserts—and there's no reason why he shouldn't get the best. But how long would his wife stand for it?

When Dick was fourteen years old he left his New Jersey home to go on a vaudeville tour with Sophie Tucker. Since that time, sixteen years ago, he has maintained bachelor quarters. He is so accustomed to think only of his own comfort that he couldn't start to consider the comforts and feelings of others. He doesn't know what it means to "turn off the radio because Sister has a headache" or "come home early tonight because we're having an early dinner" or "tiptoe when baby's ill."

AS A consequence, he's not housebroken. He loves to have people around him all the time. Friends wander in and out of his apartment, even when he's not home, for he's given the key to his apartment to about a half-dozen of his friends and they're welcome to use the place whenever they wish. Sometimes Dick goes to bed and lets them have free rein of his apartment until five and six in the morning! One young man, brought by a friend, donned a pair of pajamas, slept on the billiard table and introduced himself to his unsuspecting host the next morning.

In the morning, there is that awful "morning-after" debacle which is guaranteed to sicken the heart of any

Last week Virginia Clark, star of radio's "Romance of Helen Trent," helped RADIO GUIDE in its efforts to make your vacation more pleasant. With clothes bought, passport obtained, and Paris behind her, Miss Clark this week describes more of her adventures and thrills on a European vacation. We hope her story tells you something about what to look for on your own trip.—THE EDITORS.

DID you come back from your vacation last year filled to the brim with brilliant and amusing conversation? Or did you shut up like a clam whenever someone asked you whether you had a good time? Beware of a vacation that gives you no "boost" when you think of it later!

Last year's vacation is water over the dam, but this year, with the pounding of adventure in your blood, you can go to all the cold places and hot places and rough places and grand places you want if you'll just pack up and take off for Europe as I did last Summer. To Europe—where every minute, whether you loll lazily in the wicker armchair of a Parisian sidewalk cafe, swim in the Riviera, stand before Rembrandt's painting of "The Night Watch" in Amsterdam, or ski down the slopes of Mount Rigi in Switzerland—where every minute can be crammed with excitement.

Paris, captivating city of romance and mystery, with its Eiffel Tower, magnificent gown shops, bon-vivants and boulevards, all lay behind me as I sat in a train speeding to the Riviera—the next stop on my itinerary.

An overnight journey takes you from Paris to Cannes. Cannes is the first of the famous Riviera towns on the way down from the French capital.

by Virginia Clark

Virginia Clark: She gives this tip to travelers: "Look for adventure along crooked little streets where no crowd comes!"

It is a charming city, with red-roofed villas and hotels on the waterfront, umbrella pines, vine-covered garden walls, fresh-cut flowers and heather—where your genuine brierwood pipes come from, incidentally, gentlemen—and mimosa, a gorgeous yellow flower that we do not have here.

The population of Cannes must be nine-tenths French and British nobility, for it seemed that everyone I met had a title of some sort.

After Cannes there was Monte Carlo,

a metropolis of the little country, the Republic of Monaco—a narrow little land with eight square miles in its boundaries, walled to the north by the Alps and to the south by a blue, sunlit sea. Its streets are filled with long, low Hispano-Suizas, for it is the playground of the rich, the capital of the Kingdom of Chance, where the roulette turns fast and croupiers in evening jackets scoop in the money.

But the gaming-houses do not make up all of Monte Carlo. There are its healthy realities of green gardens overlooking the sea, and harbors, where yachts alternate with fishing-boats, and provincial streets and quiet squares and avenues lined with pepper-plants and eucalyptus.

IN MILAN friends invited me to stop with them at the Villa Deste, where Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress, once made her home. In the same city I stood awe-struck before Da Vinci's painting of "The Last Supper," and in Venice, glorious city of the sea, I fed the pigeons in St. Mark's square (they are so tame they eat from your hands), went gondola riding as all tourists do, and had a wonderful delicacy they call "zabione," which tastes like wine-flavored foam.

At Lucerne in Switzerland I was to meet friends and motor to Interlocken. Motoring in Europe is vastly different from motoring in America. In the first place, gas is seventy-two cents a gallon, and, I am told, often made from—of all things—potatoes!

In Switzerland I had my first fling at mountain climbing. I donned snow-suit, mittens and heavy boots, and with a guide and five others set off for the top of Mount Rigi.

Then there was a big ski-hike. That was fun. We rode in sleighs for almost five hours, climbed and circled the mountain and the glittering sunny ridge, pushed off and sailed down on wings to the valley. That air! You never let down in the mountains.

Let me give you a tip about eating in Switzerland. Never, never under any circumstances eat a la carte unless you're prepared for a shock when the waiter presents the bill. I ate an egg omelet that cost me three dollars before I learned that little secret and I could have had a full-course dinner for half the price. In the main, it's bad policy to order a la carte anywhere in Europe, unless you know not only the language involved but the psychology of the people you're dealing with. You'll find table d'hote safer! From Switzerland I crossed into Germany; stayed at Salzburg for the music festival and decided to fly to Munich. I had taken my fold-away camera along just to take snapshots of the trip, so at Salzburg I took pictures of the planes at the airport.

PUTTING the camera back in the pocket of the big plaid coat I was wearing, I hopped into my plane and we were off. Somehow the camera fell to the floor, but I did not notice my loss until I got to the hotel in Munich; then I immediately called the airline officials and told them.

That evening, just as I was preparing to go out, two very official-looking gentlemen knocked on my door. "You are Virginia Clark?" one of them asked with a foreign twist to his English.

"Yes," I answered, not knowing what to think.

"You have lost a camera?" I nodded, thinking now it was someone from the airlines concern. Then he pulled my camera out of his coat. "Is that it?" he asked.

"Yes, that's my camera," I said. I held out my hand, but instead of giving me the camera, he put it back in his coat and said, "Miss Clark, we have developed the pictures in this camera and find they are of a highly questionable nature. We must arrest you."

"Arrest me?" I stammered. "Why—why, what have I done?"

He talked with an effort and his words were very slow and deliberate. "We arrest you as a pos-seeble spy," he answered. Immediately there flashed through my mind visions of hanging. There was one woman spy hung only recently—I remembered reading.

"But I didn't know!" I exclaimed, now thoroughly frightened. "They were just snapshots for my album at home. I have taken pictures all over, look—" and I showed them other pictures I had taken.

"You must come with us," he said, shaking his head at all this evidence. "But I am an American," I told him. "Let me call the American consul!" He still shook his head.

Hardly knowing what I was doing and certain I would be hung or shot, I was hustled into a waiting cab.

FORTUNATELY for me the inspector of police questioned me himself, but he insisted on my retelling the most irrelevant details again and again, I am sure because his English was poor! I never have spent such a wretched two hours!

Slowly I convinced them that I was not a dangerous spy, but just a little American girl vacationing in Europe.

With many and profuse apologies, they told me at long last I could go. They explained why they are so careful, hoping I would see their point of view. They were sorry—dreadfully sorry—Munich was mine if I cared to have it—they would issue a police pass—I could go anywhere. Did I wish an escort? If I had been put out any before, their earnest regrets and kindnesses afterwards made me almost glad the whole incident had happened.

The fault, after all, was really mine, for I should have had better judgment than to take pictures helter-skelter, or at least I should have found out what was contraband. So just because I got into difficulties with my camera, don't leave yours behind when you go. By all means take it with you, but use it with caution.

I left Munich by train for Heidelberg, inspiration for the romantic "Student Prince," and from Heidelberg I chartered a plane and flew over the Black Forest to Amsterdam, city of 346 bridges, parapets and dykes, windmills, wooden shoes and ultra-modern apartment houses.

Besides these Flemish landmarks, there are hitching-posts for boats, Rembrandt paintings, diamond-cutting factories and white pools of hyacinths, blood-red tulips, blue seas of iris and checker-boards of pink and yellow and purple flowers. Then there are beau brummells in velvet breeches, fishmongers' wives, men in frock coats and lovers holding hands—all riding on bicycles through a land maybe half as big as West Virginia.

Paris is eight hours from Amsterdam by steam tram. I wanted to return there so that I might take a plane and cross the channel to London.

THE first day in London, I took a sightseeing trip around the city. It made me wish I had studied my English history more carefully, and I'm determined to re-read all of Dickens. I visited the Tower of London and saw the Beefeaters with their magnificent costumes; I saw Westminster Abbey; passed the Houses of Parliament and heard Big Ben strike the hour; I saw St. Paul's Cathedral, the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace, and—oh yes—the Duke of Windsor, who was then King of England, and Mrs. Simpson!

I went to all the theaters and stood with the rest of the audience at the end of each performance and sang "God Save the King," as is the custom.

Everything really does stop for tea in London. One afternoon I was in a small shop, when the clock struck four. The woman immediately stopped her sales talk and offered me tea and English muffins. It was only after we had eaten, had our tea and chatted a bit about London generalities that we resumed our bargaining!

I visited Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's home town; saw sheep on the hillside at Kenilwor, lovely English countryside; walked in and out of Warwick Castle and the gardens and spent a week-end in Exeter. I shall never forget its green trees and flower beds.

My eight weeks in Europe was a vacation that didn't end with my first step up the gangplank of the boat coming home—the memories are as gloriously fresh today as they ever were.

Do you know what I'd like to be able to do in a few weeks or whenever it is that you have your vacation? I'd like to be seeing you off—standing on the wharf when one of the big ocean liners is leaving with all the banners streaming and the confetti flying and friends calling good-bys. I'd like to be able to yell up at you, as you lean over the ship's rail with the love of adventure fairly popping out of your eyes: "You must look for adventure along crooked little streets where no crowd comes!"

Virginia Clark may be heard Monday through Friday on "Romance of Helen Trent" over a CBS network at 12:30 p.m. EDT (11:30 a.m. EST; 11:30 CDT; 10:30 CST; 9:30 MST; 8:30 PST).

Forgotten

But, until the moment Ma Perkins said, "There must be many dear old ladies who would think a radio the wildest kind of luxury," I had not known where Listening Post No. 4 would be located. But I knew then!

I told Ma Perkins about my trip into the Kentucky hills, about the joy with which the mountaineers had welcomed the miracle of radio.

"We'll do the same thing all over again," I told her excitedly. "Right here in Chicago. Certainly in a city of this size there are many mothers who need the comfort of radio. We'll find them, and give them a radio!"

Ma Perkins was visibly excited.

"Oh, if we really could!" she said.

I ASSURED her that the matter was simplicity itself. The only difficulty lay in finding the group of mothers who would benefit most from the gift. Ma Perkins and I agreed to share the search for a suitable location and to begin immediately.

In the heart of suburban Norwood, in the northwestern part of Chicago, we finally found what we were seeking. There, in the Norwegian Old People's Home, 89 old ladies and gentlemen have found a quiet refuge from the rush and bustle of a world that has passed them by. Investigation revealed that the Norwegian Old People's Home did not have a radio for the communal use of all the residents. Ma Perkins and I decided, therefore, that our gift radio—RADIO GUIDE Listening Post No. 4—should go to these old people. And we convinced ourselves that there could not be, in the whole city of Chicago, a better place for it, or people who could better use it. Miles removed from the crash and bustle of Chicago's smoky streets, the Norwegian Old People's Home stands in a grassy plot of ground quite by itself. It is a big building, of age-mellowed brick, sedate, strong in its honest architecture and its air of quiet self-possession.

Founded in April, 1896, the Norwegian Old People's Home is supported by an independent society of Norwegians who have seen the necessity of providing for those of Norwegian birth or parentage a suitable refuge for their declining years. Self-supporting, it asks for no aid save from its own members.

Some of the old people have lived there, secure in lasting peace, for as long as twenty years. They have come there for a variety of reasons. Most of them have come from choice, of course, out of a wish to be with people of their own nationality and of their own age. Some of them, economically unfortunate, have found the Home a welcome refuge. Others have chosen to enter the institution because they felt that by so doing they would

THIS is a story for sons and daughters.

It is a story about mothers: about your mother and my mother and all the mothers of the world. It is a mixed-up kind of story, tangled and twisted as the emotions of motherhood itself. It is a story about Ma Perkins, whose real name is Virginia Payne, about a radio, and an Old People's Home, and it begins in the studios of the National Broadcasting Company in Chicago.

There, just the other day, I met Ma Perkins. We fell to talking about Mother's Day. She is vitally interested in Mother's Day. You who heard her program on Friday, May 7, know that she is; for on that day, "Ma Perkins" devoted part of her broadcast to a message for mothers everywhere, as she has always done.

Ma Perkins and I were talking about this special broadcast, which she was just then planning. And I asked her, "I wonder how many lonely mothers will hear you next Friday? I wonder what their feelings will be, when they realize they are talking, in a way, with 'America's Mother of the Air'?"

"I hope I can say something that will make them happy," Ma Perkins said. "As to how many will hear me, I haven't any idea, of course—except that it will not be enough. I suppose there must be many dear old ladies in America who would think a radio the wildest kind of luxury." She paused. "I have often thought of that, thought of what a shame it is. Surely, everyone in the United States should have a radio today."

Everyone should have a radio today. Of course! If we think of that at all, we are apt to say, "Well, hasn't everyone a radio?"

The answer is a bald no. Many of those who most desperately need the comfort and cheer and entertainment that only radio can provide—the old, and the sick, and the lonely—cannot afford even the cheapest kind of radio receiving sets.

I thought, standing there in the luxurious surroundings of a great broadcasting studio, of the innumerable mothers—if we could only find them!—for whom radio would be the finest possible kind of Mother's Day gift.

FOR I know how it is with those who do not have radios. Not long ago, I carried three radio sets into the hill country of Kentucky, gifts from RADIO GUIDE to people who had, for the most part, never seen a radio before! The great value of these "Radio Guide Listening Posts," No. 1 at Vest, Kentucky; No. 2 at Lotts Creek, and No. 3 at Hyden, had inspired us to continue the practise of supplying radios to people who would otherwise be without them.

FAR FROM THE BUSTLE OF A WORLD
 DREAM OF HAPPIER, BETTER TIMES

not be in danger of interfering with the home life of their children. Nearly all of them are mothers; nearly all of them have children who live in or near Chicago and who frequently visit them at the Home. Some of these "children"—they are all grown-ups, of course—make regular weekly or twice-weekly visits to their mothers, bringing them flowers, or fruits, some little present, or coming especially to perform some service. Nearly all were born in Norway, came to America as children or in early youth. Drammen, Dalsland, Trondheim, Vang Hedemarken, Bergen—those are the names that spell "home" to these old people, and of course no other place could ever do so well.

There was an old lady in the Home—she died not long ago—whose dearest wish had always been, as it so often is with the aged, that she might return to Norway before she died. Her home had been in Bergen, and all during her lifetime in America she had been confident she would return to Bergen to spend her last years. But the fates had otherwise decreed, and so she came one day to the wide, tree-lined streets of Norwood, and entered the Norwegian Old People's Home.

BUT she still dreamed of Bergen, and as the years wore on, her hopes, instead of falling away as it seemed they must, increased; her dreams were of the roaring sea, the rocks and hills and streams of Norway. It was hard for her to try to give up her dreams. And in the end she did not have to. For in a measure, they became realities to her. In the mornings, it seemed that she could hear the horses champing in the yard, hear the crunch of treaded snow and smell the bitter cold of Norway. Her children had long ago grown up, and they were far away, but still, in the bitter mornings of Winter, her thoughts were all of them. "I must send the children off to school," she would say, "or they will be late." But she is dead now—and she was mercifully sure, as she lay dying, that she could hear the farm-horses crunching through the snow, on a farm not far from Bergen.

Yet the Norwegians are a cheerful and a hardy people, and the thought of death holds no fear for them. Still remembered at the Home is an old lady who came finally to the end of a busy life only last Summer. She had been at the Home for years, and although she was by far the oldest of all the residents, she was probably the most active. She insisted on doing all of her own washing and ironing, for instance, despite the pleas of Miss Sophie Holm, the superintendent, that she allow it to be done for her in the regular way. She was also famous for having set to running again a clock that had been the despair of repairmen. Every day she read the Bible to the rest of the residents—and that without the use of glasses! And when one day a kindly physician told her that the end must inevitably come soon, she said, without fear, but with a brave regretfulness, that it seemed a shame death should come "so soon." She was exactly 94 years old.

A hush hung over the spotless long corridors of the building as we entered. It was just after the supper hour, and many of the residents had gone to their rooms. There was a white-haired old lady at the door, however, and in a moment she had summoned Miss Sophie Holm, the kindly superintendent of the Home. Into her office we carried the radio to unpack and assemble it. The question of the moment was: Where shall we put the radio? There is no main assembly hall or living-room in the Norwegian Old People's Home, and the only general gathering place indoors is the long, low-ceilinged dining-room on the ground floor. Here all the old people come together three times a day for their meals, and here frequent religious services are held. It was decided to place the radio set in the dining-room, where all the residents could derive the greatest possible benefit from it.

We all tramped into the dining-room: Virginia Payne, Miss Holm and one of her assistants, and myself. The room was a bustle of activity. The tables had been cleared of dishes, and in the kitchen near by the last of them was being dried. Two ladies were re-setting the long tables, placed in serried ranks the length of the room. At the far

Mrs. Matson exclaimed, "Why, I've heard you on the air so many times! Just to think of actually meeting you!"

"And having her bring a radio to us!" echoed Mrs. Eckstein.

It was Virginia Payne herself, "America's Mother of the Air," who was the center of interest, overshadowing even the new radio set. The gentle mothers were genuinely thrilled at the experience of meeting one of their favorite radio stars.

Strains of music from the new radio filled the halls as we filed out. Miss Holm came with us to the door, but Mrs. Matson, Mrs. Eckstein and the other residents remained in the dining-room, clustered about the new radio—their new radio!

Miss Holm's gratitude for the radio set, which she said filled a long-felt end, a platform, with a pulpit, a massive Bible, and a small organ, dominated the scene. Here, every morning, holy service is conducted in the Norwegian language by Miss Holm or by one of the residents.

THE little old ladies crowded around us in wonderment.

"What is it?" they asked. "Whose radio is that?"

"Why, it's your radio," Virginia Payne said to them. "You see, we're giving it to you—to the Home."

The old ladies were all interest as the shiny new set was connected and a program dialed in. Two of them, Mrs. Annie Matson and Mrs. Lizzie Eckstein, were particularly interested. And when it was explained to them that Virginia Payne was in reality "Ma Perkins," their wonder and wholehearted appreciation knew no bounds.

need, was obvious. She looked down the dim distance of the years—saw through what heart-rending experiences many of these mothers had gone: their broken hopes, their cherished dreams—she saw them all in her mind's eye, as she looked at these mothers now.

"We're remodeling two of the bigger rooms downstairs now," Miss Holm told us, "to use them as living-rooms. After they're fixed, we may move the set into one of them. Or, we may leave it in the dining-room. But wherever it is, it will certainly give us a great deal of pleasure."

And so, in the gathering dusk of a May day, we left these mothers in the Norwegian Old People's Home, the last home any of them will ever know, a home that we all hoped, as we walked away, had been made a bit the brighter for our having brought radio to it.

AMECHE BEGINS NEW PROGRAM

Jerry Cooper Bows In New 'Hotel' Lead Role

Jerry Cooper, successor to Fred MacMurray as master of ceremonies on Hollywood Hotel, will make his first appearance on the Coast show Friday, May 7.

Cooper brings an all-star cast of guest artists with him for his initial program. Errol Flynn, handsome Irish actor who gave studio executives near nervous breakdowns by sailing suddenly for the Spanish war-front on a vacation, is slated to appear. It will be Flynn's first microphone performance since his recent return from Spain.

The Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, newly discovered juvenile stars, will come to Hollywood Hotel as Cooper's guests on Friday to make their first radio appearance on a network program.

Cooper has maintained a consistent top rating in radio since he went on the air in 1934. He began his singing career as a New Orleans entertainer, later sang with Roger Wolfe Kahn's orchestra.

Frances Langford, who has recovered from her recent illness, will return to the program, and Anne Jamison, Igor Gorin and Raymond Paige and his orchestra will be on hand as usual.

Friday, May 7—CBS
9 p.m. EDT (8 EST; 7 CST)

NBC Spelling Bee Goes to New Spot

A new series of night-time broadcasts for the NBC Spelling Bee, one of the season's most phenomenal radio successes, will be inaugurated over the NBC-Blue network on Thursday, May 6. The series supplants America's Town Meeting of the Air, which leaves the air for the Summer. The initial night-time program will feature a match between girls from Wellesley College and a boys' team from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Spelling Bee series began several months ago, with Paul Wing as Spelling Master. The programs at first were heard only in the cities where the rival teams were located. Public interest rose to such a pitch, however, that it was decided to place the series on a Coast-to-Coast network.

Thursday, May 6—NBC

Stars on New Hollywood Airing

In the new show for the coffee sponsor who has brought listeners "Do You Want to Be an Actor?"—Don Ameche, recent star of radio's "First Nighter," debuts as master of ceremonies, Sunday, May 9. Starred with Ameche on the new program is Edgar Bergen, far-famed ventriloquist from the Rudy Vallee hour.

Werner Janssen, celebrated American-born symphonic conductor, and Edgar Bergen, radio's only ventriloquist, are scheduled for starring spots on the new show, and Nelson Eddy, great radio baritone, will join the cast on August 8.

Ameche is a veteran radio actor. His success was almost instantaneous after an NBC audition in Chicago that led him to leading roles in First Nighter, presenting plays from the mythical "Little Theater Off Times Square." He was called to Hollywood a year ago and has been featured in motion pictures ever since.

Janssen was the first native New Yorker ever to conduct the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, although he had been guest conductor at concerts of leading European symphony groups. He also has conducted the symphony orchestras of Cleveland and Rochester.

Edgar Bergen has been widely described as the outstanding sensation of the current radio season. He was an unknown in radio until Rudy Vallee presented him on December 17 last. Bergen and his high-hat dummy, "Charlie McCarthy," have been headlines in the Vallee show ever since.

Guest stars will appear on the program each week. Ann Harding of screen fame, recently married to Janssen, will appear on the premiere.

'Workshop' Presents New Drama Sunday

"Supply and Demand," a new drama written specifically for radio presentation by Irwin Shaw, widely known young playwright, author of the recent stage success, "Bury the Dead," will be enacted as a presentation of the Columbia Workshop over the WABC-Columbia network on Sunday, May 9.

The presentation will follow closely in the wake of the radio performance of the widely discussed "Fall of the City" by the eminent contemporary poet, Archibald MacLeish. "Supply and Demand" will mark another pioneering attempt by Columbia Workshop to employ to greatest advantage the latest techniques in radio writing and sound-effects.

CORONATION GOES ON THE AIR

Step By Step, Age-Old Ritual Will Be Aired

When, on Wednesday, May 12, scores of the most expert radio reporters in the world present an oral picture of one of the most significant events of the century, the Coronation of King George VI, this is what they will see and describe in complete detail:

In the morning, the King and Queen will drive from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey. There, on a raised square platform, is placed the Coronation Chair. Amidst singing by the choir, the King walks up the nave to the "Chair of Repose," which is placed near the Coronation Chair, and is presented to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Ceremonies progress in the Abbey till the supreme moment is reached, when the Dean of Westminster brings from the altar the Crown of St. Edward, which the Archbishop "reverently putteth upon the King's head." "At the sign whereof," according to the old legend, "the people with loud shouts cry 'God Save the King!'"

Trumpets sound, guns fire in Hyde Park and at the Tower of London, and the peers in the Abbey put on their coronets and caps.

While the peers are putting on their coronets, the Queen arises from her chair for her anointing and crowning by the Archbishop of York, the Archbishop of Canterbury having crowned the King.

Kneeling before the altar under a rich pall of cloth-of-gold, she is anointed on the head. Then the ring is put on her finger and the Archbishop takes her crown from the altar and places it on her head.

At the same moment all through the Abbey there is a rustle of sleeves as the peeresses put on their coronets. The archbishop places the scepter and the ivory rod with the dove in the Queen's hand, and as she leaves the altar she bows reverently to the King and is conducted to her throne.

After further ceremony, the King and Queen walk to the chapel of St. Edward the Confessor, where the King assumes a robe of purple velvet. Then the King and the Queen drive back in state to Buckingham Palace.

Finest English Music Of All Time Will Be Broadcast As New King Takes Crown

The stately music attending the Coronation of King George VI which will pour forth from Westminster Abbey's new pipe-organ, to be heard by radio listeners throughout the United States on Wednesday, represents a splendid cross-section of the finest English church music from Tudor times to the present day. The impressive selections will be heard throughout the morning.

The actual order of the ceremonies themselves, as set forth in ancient rubric writings, demands impressive musical interpolations, as the ceremony is essentially a religious one.

The first strains of music American listeners will hear from the Abbey itself will be Hubert Parry's anthem, "I Was Glad," which will be sung as the King and Queen enter the west door of the Abbey and proceed up the aisle of the nave following the ecclesiastical dignitaries.

When His Majesty receives Communion there will be played an introit by Edward C. Bairstow, a contemporary English composer; a credo by William Byrd, the famous sixteenth century court composer; an offertorium, "O Harken Thou," by William H. Harris, another contemporary; "Sanctus," by the same William Byrd; a Paternoster by John Merbecke; "Gloria in Excelsis," by Charles V. Stanford; and a "Threefold Amen," by Orlando Gibbons.

The lengthy and complicated ritual moves on as several other anthems are heard. These will include "O Come Ye Servants of the Lord" by Christopher Tye, "Hear My Prayer, O Lord" by Henry Purcell, "O Clap Your Hands Together" by Orlando Gibbons, "All the Ends of the World" by William Boyce, "O Praise God in His Holiness" by George Dyson, and "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace" by S. S. Wesley.

As the ceremonies near their close and the King and Queen are anointed with the holy oil by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, an ancient plainsong melody of uncertain origin entitled "Veni Creator Spiritus" is sung. The ancient hymn is followed by the lovely anthem of Handel, "Zadok, the Priest."

As the religious part of the Coronation ends the organ plays Vaughan Williams' "Te Deum," following which the 7,000 spectators acclaim the King!

George VI First To Get Radio Homage

For the first time in the history of the British Empire the British King will receive audible homage from his subjects in all parts of the world immediately after he is crowned when George VI hears promises of fealty from all parts of the Empire in a special broadcast after his Coronation.

The broadcast, called "The Empire's Homage," will present the voices of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, from London; the Viceroy of India, speaking from India; and high officials of nearly all the units of the Empire.

Himber Has Novel Guest-Star Program

A new twist for the familiar guest star program will be put on the air May 10 when Richard Himber presents Singer James Melton to his air audience.

Instead of merely writing in a spot for the guest artist, Himber, now producer and director of his Coast-to-Coast program, plans to form each show with the guest in mind, so that the finished product will be, to a considerable extent, the guest star's own program.

Another Himber innovation will be a regular preview of the following week's show with guest stars

Audience Will Be Radio's Biggest

The largest international audience in the history of radio broadcasting will hear the ceremonies of the Coronation of King George VI which will be brought to American listeners by all four of the major networks on Wednesday, May 12.

Planned months ago in minutest detail, the scores of broadcasts to be aired by NBC, CBS, CBC and MBS will bring to listeners in North America an impression of the age-old ceremonies that will probably be much more complete than that enjoyed by most of those actually on the scene.

In addition to the United States, twelve countries have made arrangements for special broadcasting facilities—Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Norway, Sweden and Yugoslavia. Through the facilities of the British Broadcasting Corporation, the ceremonies will be heard in Great Britain and Ireland and all the British Dominions, Crown Colonies and dependencies.

The greatest concentration of ace announcers in the history of radio will be on hand to describe every step of the historic ceremonies.

The actual Coronation service will be broadcast in full except for certain parts which are unsuitable. An explanation of the ceremonies will be given in advance, along with a complete description of the Abbey.

A prodigious amount of equipment has been shipped to London for use in putting the Coronation on the air. The Columbia Broadcasting System will have 32 microphones in Westminster Abbey alone. Sixty engineers will have charge of 12 tons of apparatus, including seven tons of batteries and 452 miles of wire.

Seven commentators of the British Broadcasting Corporation, whose professional backgrounds range from naval officer to barrister, will, in addition to announcers from American networks, engage in bringing listeners every phase of the Coronation, from the departure of Their Majesties from Buckingham Palace to the first address of King George VI.

A Synopsis of The Metropolitan Opera

THE BARTERED BRIDE By Friedrich Smetana

Micha	John Gurney
Agnes	Anna Kaskas
Wenzel	George Rasely
Hans	Mario Chamlee
Kezal	Louis D'Angelo

Conductor	Wilfred Pelletier

The Metropolitan's Saturday matinee broadcast series for the Spring season opens this year with Friedrich Smetana's vivacious "Bartered Bride," first heard in America at the Metropolitan on February 19, 1909.

The cast for the broadcast performance will be composed largely of young American singers making their bids for leading parts in performances of the regular Metropolitan season. Hilda Burke, George Rasely and Mario Chamlee will sing the lead roles. Natalie Bodanya, Norman Cordon and Anna Kaskas, all of whom made their Metropolitan debuts last season, will carry important roles. Wilfred Pelletier, well known to radio listeners, who has coached such currently prominent artists as Tibbett, Martinelli, Talley, Pons and Melchior, will conduct.

Source of popular contention now, as for years in the past, is opera in English. American opera boosters will have their day on this occasion, for the work will be sung entirely in our native tongue. Most experts agree that scores suffer in translation into English, a different language for singers, but admit that the "Bartered Bride" is well adapted. Pelletier is well known for his broadcast presentations of opera in English.

"The Bartered Bride" is one of the most sprightly of comic operas, full of the infectious folk melody of Bohemia. In all his works, Smetana strove to do for his native Bohemia what Liszt had done to nationalize the music of Hungary. He wrote eight operas and a set of symphonic poems, all in a national style. In late life, he became deaf, as did Beethoven, yet it was during this time that he produced some of his finest work.

This opera is handled in a light vein. Its libretto is by Sabina. The first performance was at Prague, on May 30, 1866, where the success of the work led to the writer's appointment as director of the Prague opera.

The light-hearted plot concerns a strange marriage bargain. Hans, a servant in the household of Kruschina, wins the love of that rich peasant's daughter, Marie. Her parents want her to marry Wenzel, rich but half-witted, the son of another rich peasant, Micha. This arrangement has been made by Kezal, a marriage broker. Hans' love is returned by Marie—the pair are typical emotional lovers of fiery dispositions, bent on uniting at whatever cost. For each other, they proclaim their love in song. But in the matter of marriage, Marie of course has a small voice. She is completely in her parents' domain, her love the subject of their decision, her husband of their choice. But she is not without fire to proclaim her real affection.

The bargain is made between Hans and Kezal, the broker. Hans agrees to renounce the love of Marie in return for a payment of 300 florins to him by Kezal—providing the contract contains the words "Marie shall be married only to a son of Micha." Kezal, happy to win any agreement with the young man, naturally assumes that this properly defines Wenzel, the foggy-brained youth in whose behalf the transaction is exacted.

Marie refuses to believe her sweetheart has sold her and her love when she is told of the contract, but when she meets Hans, he seems joyous over the state of affairs. Marie, in despair, agrees to marry the man of her parents' choice. Wenzel, unappreciative of the efforts being made for him, meanwhile falls in love with the Spanish dancer of a traveling troupe. Then the cause for Hans' elation is revealed: Micha and his wife arrive—and Micha recognizes Hans as his long-lost eldest son by a former marriage. The contract remains valid; the lovers are happily united, and Kezal, for his efforts, is out his 300 florins.

The opera is lively, brilliant, and written in a finished style. Its best-known individual number is its overture, inspired by Bohemian airs and treated with superior musicianship. Its Dance of the Comedians and Wenzel's stuttering songs are favorites whenever the opera is performed.

IT IS more than probable that you will be able to have a ringside seat at the great European festivals this Summer and hear entire performances Saturday afternoons exactly as you hear operas from the Metropolitan. If present plans materialize, the National Broadcasting Company will present not only short excerpts from the Bayreuth and Salzburg Festivals, but will give a complete operatic series. The operas to be heard would be Fidelio on July 24th, Orpheus on July 31st, The Magic Flute on August 7th, Die Walkuere on August 14th, Lohengrin on August 21st, and Don Giovanni on August 28th. They are to be conducted by what most authorities agree are three of the greatest living conductors, Arturo Toscanini, Wilhelm Furtwaengler, and Bruno Walter. Mr. Toscanini directs Fidelio and The Magic Flute; Mr. Furtwaengler, Die Walkuere and Lohengrin; and Mr. Walter, Orpheus and Don Giovanni.

Most opera lovers have never heard Mr. Toscanini direct on entire opera. He has not done so in America since 1916. If reception conditions are good . . . and there seem to be very definite methods of predicting . . . no greater treat could be offered us.

COLUMBIA is again presenting Everybody's Music on Sunday afternoons. The commentary of Henry M. Neely is excellent, and the appendage of literal descriptions to the various themes is most helpful to listeners unfamiliar with the scores. It may be a bit boring if you know the music, but in that case every type of talking is. I only wish that this program were two hours instead of one.

Taking a leaf out of Columbia's book, NBC has commissioned a young American composer to compose an original opera for radio. The work, to be written by Gian-Carlo Menotti, formerly a student of the Curtis Institute of Music, will be limited to an hour in length and is to be performed at the end of this year. The network retains all radio rights for three years, as well as an option on three more operas which Menotti will write later.

"The National Broadcasting Company, as the medium through which grand opera reaches the entire Western world, has long been interested in producing an operatic work written especially for radio," Lenox R. Lohr, NBC's president, explains. "In the gay and swiftly moving style of Menotti we believe we have found an operatic approach particularly well suited to our needs. In commissioning him to write an opera for us, we have given him a free hand as far as style and content are concerned. We only ask that he be guided by his knowledge of the advantages and limitations of the art of broadcasting."

BELIEVING that the defect in modern opera lies in the composers' failure to make opera "good theater," Menotti promised his forthcoming work would be "good radio." It may require the use of a narrator to bridge gaps indicated in the theater by the lowering of a curtain; but the rest will be left to the suggestion of music and dialogue.

Like Wagner, Mr. Menotti will write both words and music for his opus. Otherwise his work might lack unity.

No greater stimulus could be given the cause of American music than to have talented young composers subsidized by our radio networks. Not only is the writer assured of an income, but also of audience. It remains now for the composers to "come through" with some good music. And the responsibility on Mr. Menotti's shoulders is particularly heavy, since he is the representative of all.

"His score was like a tube of quicksilver," wrote Mr. Chotzinoff in the New York Post, "as it raced up and down, illuminating every word, every thought. . . . The young man evidently has theater in his blood. He has the natural instinct of the opera composer. His music never lagged for a moment. It bubbled and sparkled its way through to the end and its spirit was constantly infectious."

WERNER Janssen, the most talented American conductor I have ever heard, who was over-publicized and did not have a fair chance when he stepped on the Philharmonic-Symphony podium, conducts a new Sunday evening program from the coast, which features radio's greatest find, Edgar Bergen, ventriloquist. Mr. Janssen has hunted up the "Coffee" Cantata of Bach's, I understand, and will shortly perform it to advertise his sponsor's wares.

Word reaches me from Finland that Jan Sibelius was quite as much taken by the young conductor's handsome wife, Ann Harding, as he has always been with the budding talents of Mr. Janssen. Mr. Sibelius said to me last winter: "Janssen is full of talent. He is modest and may not beat an orchestra as other conductors, but he knows his music and he is sincere."

Sunday before last Kirsten Flagstad sounded strangely alone and strangely unconvincing in what should have been the tour de force of her evening, the Liebested from Tristan. It sounded like a cold, not particularly expressive solo voice with remote and incidental orchestral accompaniment. How much of this was due to Eugene Ormandy's conducting and how much to the control room, it is not possible to know without being present in the hall. Undoubtedly, the engineers in charge did not understand Madame Flagstad's particular appeal.

She is not like the usual solo soprano, who needs to be spotted. She is at her best when surrounded by a rich orchestral background. Then her voice takes on the color of the instruments and seems to warm up to the text at hand. When you hear her clear soprano voice soaring high above the mass of Wagner's sonorous orchestral song, the effect is unforgettable. With a piano, she is lost. And on this Sunday Evening Hour, she might as well have had a piano. The effect of the orchestral tones was negligible.

Her intention was there, if you could read it in. But to one listener, at least, it failed to transmit itself through the music. The de-vitalized accompaniment accentuated rather than covered up the coldness of her singing.

Carleton Smith may be heard Fridays on Chicago Symphonic Hour over an NBC network at 11 p.m. EDT (10 EST; 10 CDT; 9 CST; 8 MST; 7 PST).

CHICAGO.—No sir, your reporter refuses to apologize for saying Ben Bernie's band was disbanded. Here's what really happened: About a month ago, when Ben was on the Coast and making ready to leave for Florida, he was given notice by some of the members of his band. Others were discharged. Result—with the exception of five of the original band which he retained, Ben did disband. Now gone east and staging his shows from Radio City, he has reorganized his band around the five men whom he retained.

Well, Grace Moore last week passed through our fair city and was accompanied by her accompanist, Isaac Van Grove. Queried about the Oklahoma City Concert impresario who allegedly is suing her managers for $50,000 because Miss Moore was unable to keep a concert date in that city, the diva answered that she is angry herself. So saying, she decided then and there that she would sue a recording company for $50,000 because it is said to be selling her records in the Five-and-Tens, a method of merchandising which, it is said, was barred in her contract with that firm.

Here's a funny one: Several weeks ago, when Anne Seymour drove from New York to Chicago, she hid out on her public by registering at a small-town hotel as "Dorothy Grubb." But in the morning when she started to pay her bill, she found herself short of cash and attempted to cash a check signed with her right name. For a moment the manager thought she was an imposter!

Romance Corner: John Walsh, "Modern Cinderella" actor, and Roma Ricci, a school-teacher, will be married at St. Charles Church in Chicago on June 12.

Hollywood Flicks: Keep your ears peeled for Leslie Howard as "Monsieur Beaucaire" in a radio version of the play by that title. Howard has been contracted for the Monday night Radio Theater but the date is not yet definite. The Penner cast is movie-making. Joy Hodges is being tested by Paramount. Gene Austin has just completed an RKO short, and Joe Penner soon will start "Three on a Latchkey" for RKO as soon as he finishes "New Faces." Harriet Hilliard, also in the latter picture, will join Joe and Gene Raymond in "Three on a Latchkey." Marion Talley has gone in for candid camera-ing. She sends her pictures of Hollywood celebrities to her much-interested mother in Kansas City. Funniest five minutes ever witnessed in Los Angeles was at a recent benefit when Jack Benny and Eddie Cantor impersonated Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald respectively, singing "Easter Parade." Eddie wore a crinoline and a blond wig while Jack wore knee breeches and a high hat. "Paramount on Parade," that Sunday morning visit to the Paramount movie lot, has been discontinued until a later date because daylight time made the screen stars get up too early after Saturday night play.

Men's style notes: Alexander Woollcott, on a recent trip into Chicago, arrived jauntily swinging a cane and wearing a blue shirt, a white bow tie and a light-gray suit. Jack Fulton, your "Poetic Melodies" tenor, welcomed Summer by appearing at the studios last week in white shoes.

Dramatically speaking: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huston visited Chicago last week to see their son, John, open in a WPA play. As mate to Barbara Luddy in the "First Nighter" when that opus returns to Chicago, the sponsor has signed Lester Tremayne to a long-term contract. With the cast ready to celebrate the show's fifth radio birthday, "Today's Children," authored by Irna Phillips, has been renewed for another year. Joan Blaine is busy conferring with agency and radio officials regarding her new Coast-to-Coast show. New Casting: Don Gallagher, distinguished Shakespearean actor, enters the "Modern Cinderella" cast as Sullivan, an Irish lawyer.

Watch out, Don McNeill! A postcard from New Market, Ont., reports that "Quite a gang of us here want Bob Brown on the Breakfast Club program—at least a few times a week!"

Podium Pothooks: Buddy Rogers (Mary Pickford's fiance) is all thrilled by his spirited new polo pony "Champagne." Phil Harris, now playing at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles, and his family are ready to move into their new home in Encino. You will be hearing Guy Lombardo over MBS again starting June 24.

WALTER O'KEEFE, the Broadway Hillbilly, has been called upon to succeed Fred Allen on the Town Hall Tonight airings when Fred leaves the air in June for what is supposedly his Summer vacation from this show. But, as I said before, there is a possibility that Mr. Allen will not return to the air in the Fall for this sponsor, which means that it is quite possible Mr. O'Keefe will remain in this very enviable spot permanently.

Roosevelt broadcasts from Washington, making it necessary for her to go to the nation's capital each Wednesday. Rosaline returns in time to be mistress of ceremonies for the Hour of Charm, which features Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra.

Jack Benny is thinking about winding up his season's work by doing his last broadcast from New York. Then, with Mary and his script-writers, he will hop a boat for a trip to Europe for his Summer vacation. Jack may stop off in Chicago to do a broadcast from the Windy City on June 20.

It looks as if Bing Crosby will also take a vacation from the airlines this Summer. Bing has his heart set on taking a trip to the Northwest. He's already making plans and, unless unforeseen things happen, Bing will be in the great open spaces and listen to the sigh of the wind before it gets too warm.

Fred Astaire is another of the big radio performers to take a Summer lay-off, but there is some doubt around the West Coast aircastles as to Astaire's returning to the show in the Fall. The sponsor wants him but Fred may decide not to come back.

The other Wednesday, Charles Kullman, the Metropolitan tenor who is on the Jessica Dragonette hour, cracked several times during his singing—as the result of a bad cold. Last week he remained off entirely, Thomas Thomas being the substitute. Now rumors have arisen that Thomas (we call him by his first name to be familiar) has replaced him. That, an authoritative source says, is not true. Thomas (this time we call him by his last name to be more formal) does stand a chance to be on the new "Show Boat" line-up when that show moves to Hollywood, which will give Thomas Thomas a chance to be near Simone Simon.

Death, caused by a heart attack, struck suddenly to break up one of radio's most-loved comedy teams—Honeyboy and Sassafras, who have been on the air since 1929, three years of that time on NBC. George Fields, the 43-year-old man who played Honeyboy, dropped dead in New York's Pennsylvania station as he was on his way to see his physician on April 25. Fields and his wife lived in Bayside, Long Island. They had no children. The part of Sassafras in the sketches was played by Johnny Welch.

Erno Rapee's recent absence from radio was caused by food-poisoning which laid him up for two weeks.

REAL cops laugh at the detective of fiction—the lad who, from a dab of cigarette ash, deduces that the murderer was five-foot-nine, with buck teeth and a Harvard accent. Not like that, they point out, is genuine detective work—but much stranger and more exciting. And to prove it, New York police offer the true Case of the Rehearsed Fur Robbery.

It all started with a mysterious tip that "Bo" Epstein was up to something. Now this Bo Epstein was a tough and clever thief—so clever that although arrested four times since 1918 on grand larceny charges, he had beaten the rap every time. And consequently, when the mysterious tip came in, four good men were put on Epstein's trail at once. They were Detectives Ray Maguire, Joe Reynolds, Walter Casey and Francis Cassidy, all of the Safe and Loft Squad.

For two weeks they trailed Bo Epstein. They followed him to a Brooklyn flat, and they watched the flat, night and day. To it, there came five other men—and four of them had criminal records. By twos and threes the six of them, Epstein included, made several little visits to the fur district on the West Side. And always they were followed to the large building at 231 West 29th Street—a building which housed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of furs.

SO FAR it was just a routine detective case, starting from a straight tip. And it remained that way until a few minutes before five o'clock, on the afternoon of March 1, 1937.

A truck drove up and backed to the loading platform at the building's freight entrance. Out of it climbed Bo Epstein, Julius Richman—five-times-convicted Sing Sing graduate—and a young fellow named Jim Thompson. They went into the building, and close at their heels were two others of the gang. The sixth man stood beside the truck.

Immediately, Detective Cassidy slipped quietly into the building behind the five men. Another detective hurried to a telephone and gave the pre-arranged signal which was relayed by radio to half a dozen waiting patrol cars.

"They're bottled up," said Detective Casey. "In a few minutes we'll catch 'em red-handed." But he was wrong.

For the fur thieves came out of the building quietly—and empty-handed. They got into the truck and drove away, leaving the officers staring at each other.

"Did they lose their nerve?" one of the detectives demanded.

"No," said Detective Cassidy, who had followed the five men into the building. "They went in to Bleiweis' fur establishment but they never even tried the door, just walked up and down the hall. Two of 'em walked to the freight elevator and came out. The other three, Bo and Richman and Thompson, followed soon after. They were cool as ice. Seemed to be playing some kind of game. Sort of a stage—"

"Rehearsal!" one of the detectives finished for him.

"Sure it was a rehearsal!" agreed Captain Richard A. Fennelly, head of the Safe and Loft Squad, when his four detectives reported.

"And a mighty smart piece of work, too! Suppose you boys had let your

Robber's Rehearsal

They left the same thug beside the truck as lookout feet slip, and picked those fellows up. You'd have found 'em unarmed and innocent as babes. We couldn't have held 'em for a thing—but they'd have known we were laying for 'em. No wonder Bo Epstein is so hard to catch!"

But Captain Fennelly smiled—like a cat full of canary.

"Nice of 'em to put on that little show for us," he said softly. "They've shown us just how they're going to operate. And now, I think we'll do a little rehearsing on our own hook!"

And they did. For an hour or so, a section of the New York police department acted like a football team that had learned the secret signals of their opponents, just before a big game. Having enjoyed the unique advantage of seeing a band of crooks rehearse a future crime, the police rehearsed their counter-attack.

At a given signal eight extra detectives were driven to the 29th Street address as if to assist the four already on the case. A radio signal dispatched patrol cars to block off the entire area. At the same time, police reserves, mounted policemen and a police emergency truck—a rolling arsenal equipped with everything from gas bombs to machine guns—were rushed to the district.

"Remember," Captain Fennelly cautioned when all this grim pantomime of cops and robbers had been acted out in slick detail, "next time that truck rolls, it'll be for keep."

And late next afternoon, the truck rolled. The police watchers in Brooklyn reported its departure by telephone, and by the time it backed to the loading-platform of the 29th Street building the police trap was set and ready. During the next few minutes, things happened with bewildering and almost lightning-like speed.

HEADED by Bo Epstein, and leaving the same thug standing beside the truck as lookout, five of the fur raiders went into the building and entered the establishment of Harry Bleiweis and Son.

"This is a stick-up!" shouted Julius Richman, flashing a gun. "Take it easy!" Bo Epstein and young Thompson, guns in hand, helped Richman herd the proprietor, his son and several employes into the vault. Then, quickly, with expert skill, they sorted out $30,000 worth of expensive pelts. And while the three armed men stayed behind, two others of the mob stuffed these furs into sacks and escaped down the freight elevator and into the truck, which immediately began to back out into the street.

Downstairs, detectives permitted the truck to pull away from the freight entrance. They knew it would be stopped around the corner.

The three of them came out of the building; Epstein, Richman and Thompson.

Immediately, Detectives Maguire and Reynolds grabbed Bo Epstein, while Casey and Cassidy seized Richman and Thompson—and then Death, the only actor who had not rehearsed his part in this drama, struck fast and effectively.

Epstein squirmed. A .45 automatic flipped into his hand. As he ducked, his finger tightened—and the gun was pointing at Detective Maguire's stomach. But Maguire's own pistol was flashing out and up. It spoke—Epstein dropped dead with a bullet in his brain.

WOMEN were screaming now, and Julius Richman was wrestling with Detective Casey. The detective slipped and Richman broke away.

Detective Casey aimed his gun quickly. He squeezed the trigger, and Richman fell with a bullet through his heart.

But Cassidy was still firing, for young Thompson was on his feet, running like a rabbit. And then he too tossed up his arms and collapsed—stunned by a bullet that just creased his scalp. Another had nicked his neck. And that was that.

"We like rehearsals," said Captain Fennelly grimly. "We're always glad to help fur thieves with dramatic aspirations get on the radio," he added, "our own little radio—police radio!"

HE WON'T LAUGH AT HUNCHES

BY GEORGE STONE

HUNCHES—we've all had them, but we haven't all turned all them to our advantage as has Eddie Dean of "Modern Cinderella."

For instance, he wouldn't be in radio at all if he hadn't acted on a hunch back in 1927 and left a perfectly good job in vaudeville for an industry that was still in swaddling-clothes.

"Everybody thought I was crazy at the time," confesses the high and handsome WBBM-CBS actor in low modulated tones with just a trace of the Old South in his voice, "but something told me then that vaudeville was going, that I ought to pack up while I was on top and get into radio and ride up with it."

Eddie Dean obeyed that impulse. He wrote a letter to his brother Jimmy, who was still down in their home town of Sulphur Springs, Texas—Jimmy, who could sing harmony with the best of them. "Leave whatever you're doing," he wrote him, "and come up to Chicago at once. We're entering radio."

Jimmy couldn't very well refuse, because Eddie had sent train fare along, but the moment he arrived in the Windy City and met Eddie at the station his first words were: "What's the idea of giving up vaudeville? It's suicide."

"Maybe it is," answered Eddie, "but I have a hunch—"

AND thereupon, Eddie and Jimmy Dean followed the line of attack he had planned for them. They went to a Chicago radio station, auditioned, and were given a chance on the air.

Eddie had a grand chance to refute his hunches after that first broadcast, for they were bodily and unreservedly fired! Why? Because there was such a heavy telephone response to the program the manager of the station thought Eddie had framed it.

Being fired because too many listeners liked them and took the trouble to call in to say so was a new experience for Eddie. Fortunately he took defeat with all the good graces such a blessing in disguise really deserved. Instead of quitting radio right then and there, he threw his hat up in the air and yelled! "Jimmy," he told his brother, "if Chicago likes us that well, so will other places."

Other places meant a half-dozen or more stations in the Middle West. From Chicago the duo went to St. Louis, and to KMBC, Columbia station in Kansas City, then to Omaha, Yankton, South Dakota, and finally, Minneapolis, where they were nothing short of a sensation.

EVENTUALLY the Chicago station that had given them the boot, hearing of the Deans' success and having had time to think matters over a bit, wired Eddie and Jimmy.

The executives of the station wanted Eddie and his brother to sign a long-term contract. To these two singers, accustomed to precarious jumps about the country on none-too-fat salary checks, the contract looked like a bonanza of fiction. It certainly appeared as if they had everything to gain and nothing to lose, yet Eddie hesitated in signing that contract.

"Good heavens!" said the exasperated station manager, "I can't see why you hesitate to sign this contract. It's all on your side. What's your reasons?"

Eddie Dean shuffled his feet uncomfortably. "I haven't any," he admitted. "What! You mean you're letting this opportunity of a lifetime slip by without any reason?"

"Well, not exactly," drawled Eddie, "I have a reason, but you probably won't think it's a very good one—it's a hunch."

But despite all the ridicule of the station manager and the pleadings of his brother, Eddie remained adamant.

"I may be a fool," he told them, "but a hunch is a hunch—and I always follow my hunches—even this time."

It was June of last year. There was a rumor along Chicago's radio row that a new show was going on the air from the Columbia headquarters. There would be auditions . . .

Eddie Dean heard that rumor. That night he talked to his brother in their hotel room. He told him what he had heard. "Well," answered Jimmy, very mystified, "what has all this to do with you?"

"Nothing, except a hunch—"
Just about that time Jimmy threw up his hands. "There you go with your hunches—you're always having hunches—just because you don't have a hunch you won't sign a perfectly swell contract, and now because you do have a hunch you're going to try to be an actor when you've never had an acting-lesson in your life!"

Eddie Dean believes in hunches—and he makes them come out right!

"Well, there's no harm in trying," countered Eddie, "and I mean to try."

Forthright Eddie Dean, inexperienced in the ways of acting, walked into the studios where the auditions were going forward for the lead part of "Modern Cinderella," vied with a carload of competent actors and came away with the part.

There have been other hunches in Eddie Dean's lifetime.

Two years ago, for some undefinable reason, he had an urge, a hunch, or whatever you want to call it, that he should go home to Texas. There was really little cause on the surface for this feeling, for he had had a letter from his father only a few days before. Nothing apparently was amiss at home, but still Eddie's fears persisted. Finally the urge grew so strong that he begged off from his busy broadcasting schedule and chartered a plane.

WHEN his father met him at the airport, there were tears in his eyes. "My dear boy," he said, "how did you know you were wanted? I'm so glad you came. I should have wired . . . it's your mother . . . she was taken ill suddenly."

What a blessing that Eddie Dean followed his hunch and took the plane down to Texas! His mother never recovered from that illness. She died only a few hours after he arrived, but he arrived in time—thanks to an illogical belief he was needed. And that is the reason why Eddie Dean, for all his otherwise studied level-headedness, won't laugh at hunches.

THE COVER PORTRAIT

FRANK PACELLI, NBC boy-actor whose portrait appears on the cover this week, had his first audition in November, 1934—and one week later appeared on "Grand Hotel!" That wasn't the beginning of his dramatic career, however, for before entering radio he had successfully played a starring role in "Water Babies" with the Jack and Jill players. Even at the age of three he indicated that he had promise of becoming a star by quoting Shakespearean speeches he had heard his sister recite.

It was this older sister, Carlotta, who first recognized his talent and encouraged his going on the air. Even today she attends all Frank's broadcasts—at his request. In addition to Carlotta, there is Gerald, a brother, who is also in dramatics.

Frank doesn't attend public school; he has a tutor—and like most boys hates arithmetic and enjoys geography. He banks almost every penny he makes, and spends his spare time making model airplanes and reading. Frank doesn't like to have people make a fuss over him and he heartily dislikes show-offs—which may account for his reluctance to discuss radio work. Fastidious, he insists on perfect color harmonies in his clothes. Once he even refused to leave the house when his Sox and his handkerchief didn't match. He's fond of movies, wants to be a screen actor some day.

Despite his youth, Frank has had a lot of radio experience. He has appeared with Mme. Schumann-Heink, on the "Nickelodeon" and many other NBC shows. At present he's playing the role of Timothy, the little blind boy in "The Story of Mary Marlin," aired over the NBC-Blue network, Monday through Friday. Over the NBC-Red network he plays Jack Marsh in "Today's Children," Monday through Friday, and Billy Houston in "A Tale of Today" on Sunday.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letter-forum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Radio Guide will pay $10 for the best letter published each week and $5 for the next best. Other letters deserving our readers' attention also will be published.

DEATH ENDS ALL

($10 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: I note with mild perturbation . . . a flag-waving appeal for you to fight to have opera put on the air in English. Does that mean you are girding your loins? The writer of the appeal presumably realizes none of the horrors of such a step, but you, competent journalists, must be wearily aware of the sad limitations of homespun librettists. And of the immortal originators, for that matter.

Do not, I beg of you, destroy the last of our illusions. A golden-voiced artist warbling an aria in a strange tongue can bestow the happy impression of a glorious hero declaring the utterances of a nobly beautiful soul, instead of merely parroting the generally dull, not to say silly, lines fed to capable performers by the composers, who, as poets, were generally great musicians. In translation, the shocking truth is revealed. Should our friend lack access to a volume of the Book of the Opera, which will tell him more than is worth knowing, I suggest that he will find the greatest charm in the exercise of his own imagination, which can hardly be less fruitful than the creative fount of Continental lyric writers. As a helpful hint, here is the basic plot: Boy Meets Girl, Boy Loses Girl, Death Ends All. For in grand opera, only Death can conquer. That, I gather, is what makes it grand.—O. E. Stark, Pierce City, Mo.

MATTHEW 5:22

($5 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: At the risk of appearing narrow-minded, old-fashioned and prudish, I wish to protest the promiscuous and continued use of the word "fool" on some of our most popular programs.

In my not-too-distant youth, I was taught that the application of the word "fool" to another person was a sin of no mean proportions. The Good Book warns us (Matthew 5:22) that "whoever shall say Thou fool, shall be in danger of Hell fire." This warning has been disregarded for so many years, I doubt if people give much thought to it any more . . . —Mrs. Clair L. Pettit, Roseburg, Oregon.

FRENCH INSULT

Voice of the Listener: I get so disgusted with some of the advertising on the radio—especially so much talk about French women and their make-up, and French women's allure, etc. It is a great insult to the United States and to all loyal American women . . . —Name Withheld, Pomona, Calif.

CRITIQUE FOR CRITICS

Voice of the Listener: For centuries the critic has magnified the errors of the performer, and I think it time someone turned the tables on the critic.

The chronic critic believes his comments indicate intelligence; as a matter of fact, they but display a petty mind. He is circumscribed by the atom, when his thoughts should embrace the universe . . . I am no Pollyanna. I have my own pet aversions: suggestive remarks, cheap jazz and barn-dance music. But, realizing that the radio appeals to individuals in every stratum of society, I simply turn off the programs I do not care for, and there is no law prohibiting others from doing the same thing that I do.

I admit that Marion Talley's singing lacks warmth, but she has perfection of pitch and her technique is something to wonder at; I grant that Nelson Eddy is "wooden" upon occasion, but he has a gorgeous voice and breadth of scope; I realize that some of Gladys Swarthout's low notes go "hay-wire," but where can one find a more gracious lady?; I am aware that Grace Moore's notes are sometimes uncertain as to pitch, but she sings with her whole soul. So let's quit focusing the magnifying glass upon the gnats and acknowledge a few camels for a change!—Myrtle Gage, Champaign, Ill.

"AMERICAN HOURS"

Voice of the Listener: I think that the program from Italy commemorating the late great Italian composer, Ottorino Respighi, was very poor. The fact that it included a recording of one of his finest compositions made it very cheap . . . The program itself was draggy and poorly arranged. We may not be as deeply artistic as the Italians are, but after listening off and on for over a year, I am sure that the "canned" broadcasts of most of our 100-watt "jerkwater" stations are in better taste than their "American Hours" and today's Respighi program . . .

It is quite evident that even as far as radio is concerned, the American way is far superior to that of the dictator-controlled airwaves of Europe. And here is hoping that the numerous South American stations will take a tip from their good neighbor and friend, Uncle Sam . . . —Leopold N. Sperling, Cincinnati, Ohio.

LAUGH CLACK

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: . . . While listening to a certain radio program, I noticed the same voices always started the laughing. This amused me that particular evening, but when I got the same idea about succeeding programs, I became suspicious.

Somebody might be able to tell me why this same laughter apparently came from the same source so regularly.—R. H. Zimmerman, Mount Carmel, Penn.

VOL: Have you heard about my Aunt Cilly? She always screamed with laughter at the weariest joke—and a radio scout heard of her and gave her an audition. Now she's in the front row of the studio audience for all the comedy shows . . . —Rebecca Helman, Mount Joy, Penn.

CLARION CALL

Voice of the Listener: It was the end of a black day in March, 1933. Since early morning I had listened to the stories of desperate people. Their drawn faces lingered in my memory. Everything seemed hopeless . . . Sick with foreboding, I twirled my radio dial. Suddenly I was snapped to attention by hearing a calm voice from the darkness say, "Our government is the best in the world. Let's stick to it." That voice, which so clearly pointed the way for all of us, came from a news commentator.

During the time since, that sentiment has been repeated again and again, and that voice, like a clarion call, has been echoed and re-echoed in the minds and ears of the American people . . . Through bitter political campaigns, through poverty-stricken days, through floods, air disasters and fires, these men have gone tirelessly on and on, unbiased as humanly possible, telling the truth as they see it to the people who need to hear it.

Many times in these lean years I have been forced to economize, even on necessities, but never once have I been tempted to cut myself off from America's newest patriot—the non-partisan radio news commentator!—Ann Peterson, Stambaugh, Mich.

Time given is CST; for CDT add one hour. Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 29. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

BY CHAS. A. MORRISON, president, INTERNATIONAL DX-ER'S ALLIANCE

(Figures in Parentheses Are Megacycles)

ON MAY 12, at 5 a.m. EDT (4 a.m. EST), the curtain will ring up on the greatest radio show ever staged, the English Coronation. The BBC stations, all American networks, and the facilities of Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Norway, Sweden and Yugoslavia will be utilized to present the mighty spectacle. The three new 50,000-watt short-wave transmitters at Daventry are to be completed in time for the event. The two existing 10,000-watt transmitters are being retained and the old 5,000-watt outfit will be reconstructed to give an additional station of 25,000-watts. In all there will be six Daventry transmitters available in the future. To serve these there will be more than twenty-three separate aerials, constructed in such a way as to permit transmission in twelve different directions and on fifteen different wave-lengths. Frequencies listed in connection with the various Daventry transmissions of the Coronation are tentative, as last-minute radio announcements will state exactly the five or more transmitters to be used.

Radio Universal of Ica, Peru, heard nightly on 11.8 megs, is now using the call OAX5A in connection with its short-wave transmitter.

According to a radio announcement, the call of EAQ-2 (9.488), Madrid, will be changed to EAR, but all reports should still be addressed to EAQ-2, P. O. Box 951, Madrid, Spain. This station, one of the loudest on the air, provides talks on the Loyalist side of the Spanish war by Canadian and American correspondents on Mondays near 8 p.m. EST (7 p.m. CST) and on Tuesdays and Fridays at 9 p.m. EST (8 p.m. CST). The slogan is "Union today, freedom tomorrow."

The Soviet station on approximately 12.092 megs that has been mystifying several of our readers is none other than our old friend, RNE, which still announces its frequency as 12 megs!

HRN (5.875), Tegucigalpa, Honduras, has been black-listed by several radio organizations for its failure to send verifications or even to reply to letters enclosing international reply coupons. An explanatory statement finally has been received by Guy R. Bigbee, Fort Benning, Ga., from Paul Jones of HRN. It seems that at first officials of this station sent verifications to all listeners reporting the station. Later reports reached such voluminous proportions that the Post Office refused to honor international reply coupons. The station, unable to cope with the huge expense and extra amount of work entailed, dropped the verification idea in favor of a weekly broadcast for English listeners entitled "Music Appreciation Hour," which consisted of request selections inter-persed with the reading of all letters from its listeners. Countless letters of protest at the station's non-verifying policy convinced the station officials that listeners did not appreciate their efforts to put on a high-class musicale for them and finally the program was discontinued, as were all English announcements or requests for reports. But inasmuch as some verifications recently have been issued from HRN, I would suggest anyone wishing a reply enclose an American dime in place of an international reply coupon.

An airmail letter from Godfrey Wignall, Perth, West Australia, announces that on March 22, VK6ME (9.59) went on its present schedule, weekdays 6 to 8 a.m. EST (5 to 7 a.m. CST).

COMMERCIAL stations KEG (5.11), KEQ (11.95) and KEW (7.715), of Bolinas, Calif., have been licensed to communicate with KHAZT, aboard the United Air Lines plane which is being used as a point of origination for the new show entitled "A Trip to Our National Parks," aired Sundays over NBC-Red network stations at 2 p.m. EST (1 p.m. CST).

CSW, Lisbon, Portugal, is now operating on the following amended schedule: On 11.04 megs, from 12 noon to 7 p.m. EST (11 a.m. to 6 p.m. CST) and on 9.94 megs, with an antenna directive on North America, from 7 to 8 p.m. EST (6 to 7 p.m. CST) daily.

Ben S. McGlashan, owner of Los Angeles stations KGFF and W6XKG, has received a license for a new station, W6XRE, with 500 watts. The incredibly high frequencies of 120, 240 and 500 megs will be utilized for experimental broadcasts.

The Zenith Radio Corporation, of Chicago, has applied for a Federal permit to build a 1,000-watt television and broadcast station which would operate on 42 to 56 and 60 to 86 megs respectively.

R. B. OXRIEDER, State College, Pa., has learned from a hitherto reliable source that letters addressed to Stato Operai, 25 Liberte, Paris, France, will reach the mysterious unlicensed broadcaster "Radio Liberte," which may be heard on either 9.52 or 7.38 megs, from 7 to 8 p.m. EST (6 to 7 p.m. CST). . . . The National Radio Club reports that the German broadcast from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Wednesdays at 4:25 p.m. EST (3:25 p.m. CST) is now being radiated by PSE on 14.935 megs. . . . Either a harmonic of HIN (6.243), Trujillo City, D. R., or an additional frequency of the station is being heard nightly with very loud signals on approximately 12.5 megs. . . . "Who is the French station on 9.04 megs that broadcasts a program to North Africa at 2:30 a.m. EST (1:30 a.m. CST)?" asks G. C. Gallagher, San Francisco. It is not TYA2.

THE COLUMBIA NETWORK COVERS THE Coronation

The Palace Guard (below) changes, and Columbia's advance guard in London is halted momentarily in its work. Part of this work has been to time the passage of a radio car from point to point along the route through which the State Coach will pass on its triumphal way between Buckingham Palace and Westminster Abbey.

Through this west door of Westminster Abbey, the King and Queen will pass. Columbia will attend their arrival and departure. Columbia will also be in the Abbey annex to describe the brilliant assemblage of bishops, knights, ambassadors, and other dignitaries of church and state. In past coronations—and England has been crowning monarchs for over 1000 years—less than 8000 people have been able to crowd into Westminster as witnesses. On May 12th of this year, Columbia will increase that audience by millions.

Fifty microphones, in 30 choice locations, placed through the cooperation of the British Broadcasting Corporation, will bring the coronation ceremonies instantaneously to America. You are welcome to any, or all of these seats.

Bands will play, bells will ring, cannons will boom, choirs will sing, crowds will cheer on Coronation Day in London. Yet no one spectator in London is going to be able to hear as much of the celebration as you will if you tune your radio to a CBS station on May 12th.

THE COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM

Radio Guide Visits PARKYAKARKUS

THE NEWEST OF RADIO'S NEWLY-WEDS—
HAPPY IN THE HOUSE OF THEIR DREAMS —SAY TO YOU: "WON'T YOU COME IN?"

Photos by EMMETT SCHOENBAUM

It's time for tea and tea for two at the modest, 9-room, simply furnished home of these newly-marrieds. The lot is 50'x120' and trees dot the nicely landscaped property

Parkyakarkus' brunet bride, Thelma Leeds, waves a friendly greeting as she stands arm-in-arm with her famous husband in front of their Beverly Hills home. Off the screen and air they are known to friends as Mr. and Mrs. Harry Einstein!

"Mrs. Parky's" hobby is music and "Mr. Parky's" hobby is badminton. She's been playing the piano for ten years and he's been playing badminton for two years. Claims he can stand up against any expert of the game

The comedian helps Mrs. Parkyakarkus with the dishes. When Parky rehearses his Athenian antics for the Jolson show he recites his lines in a polished Bostonian accent. The dialect is merely a dial act added when he goes on for a broadcast!

The radio and screen comedian uses the typewriter for his programs, and does the greater part of his own writing. He learned to type when he was a newspaper man and is an ardent hunt-and-peck system enthusiast Parkyakarkus may be heard Tuesdays on Al Jolson's show over a CBS network at 8:30 p.m. EDT (7:30 EST; 7:30 CDT; 6:30 CST); and again later for the West Coast at 7:30 p.m. PST (8:30 MST).

John Bull Sends Us A CLOWN

STAR OF BRITISH STAGE AND AIR BE-COMES COMEDY FAVORITE—IN AMERICA!

"I'm an NBC baby now!" That's what Doris Hare, versatile comedienne from London gleefully says, now that her clever talent is a regular NBC attraction. She's blue-eyed, blonde, and 26

Doris' special brand of tomfoolery moves back and forth between cockney and Mayfair, with a smattering of Broadway. She's heard in songs and sketches—writes many of the latter

Critics hail Doris as "the cleverest comedienne to come from England since Beatrice Lillie arrived." But Doris doesn't beat around the bush. She'll tell you immediately she's Doris Hare—not Beatrice Lillie or Ruth Draper

Noel Coward gave Doris her first big part in a London production, placed her in a featured role. She's an ardent Coward admirer to this day, thinks he's the only genius in the theater

Besides acting the part of a cockney clown to portray the silly doings of people about her, Doris sings English songs that amuse, sometimes bite. They're reflections of life and people

The British star's most beloved possession is a cottage in Sussex, England, named after Playwright Noel Coward. She calls it "Noel Cottage." spends her vacations there, romps about in shorts, frolics with her pet dogs

Miss Hare first broadcast in London in 1927, later in South Africa while touring with a show cast. Shortly after her American debut, she guested for Rudy Vallee—her only American radio appearance previous to her NBC shows

Here's the comedienne as "Mrs. Smythe"—a newly rich, middle-aged cockney woman who puts on airs, covers up her desire for titles. "Mrs. Smythe" is one of Doris' own creations

Doris Hare may occasionally make fun of the things she loves best, but she can also be serious and loyal to them. Says she likes America—admits she's homesick for England

Unmasking Radio's Black Chamber

Photos by BILL HAUSSLER and BERT LAWSON

WHAT'S THAT NOISE? IT'S NOT A NOISE—IT'S A SOUND-EFFECT!
AND HERE'S HOW IT WAS MADE!

PART I

Any sound you ever heard in a kitchen, from the plop of an egg in a bowl to the whirring of a meat-grinder, can be duplicated by the radio sound-effects man with one or more of this array of home utensils. Notice the sink, the wrench, the mop and pail—there's even a can of flyspray here!

You can take seventeen guesses on this one—and they'll all be wrong! It isn't a man imitating a kitchen maid peeling a potato—it's Ray Kelly of NBC producing the horrid scound of a man being stabbed!

Above: This little revolver is one of the five special types used for varying gun-shot effects. It is loaded with special shells

Paul Monroe tells Sound-Effects Man James Rogan how he wants a certain gun-fight episode to be put into the microphone during a "Gang-Busters" broadcast. Rogan wears gloves to protect his hands from the rocks used to simulate scuffling feet

This is a peach basket, made of thin wood veneer. It is used to simulate a variety of sounds—anything, as a matter of fact, from the destruction of a straw hat to the crushing of a house during a Florida hurricane!

Illustrated here is the method of simulating the sound of a troop of horses crossing a rocky river. The men at the left, using coconut shells, can sound like twenty horses! Note the specially constructed tank at the right, used for splashing water sounds

Here's a scene from an actual "March of Time" broadcast. Howard Barlow can be seen directing the orchestra in the rear. The actors are crowded close around the microphones. The sound-effects man is at the left. Note the cocoanut shells ready for the sound of horses, the box of "g-ravel road."

Robert Stone milks a cow for the benefit of the NBC audience. Using a tin bucket and two rubber syringes, filled with plain water, he can produce sounds that would fool the most experienced dairymen! Note his knee-grip on the pail. From time immemorial, milkers have held the pail in just that way!

Here's a wind-machine—the latest, most up-to-date model. The drawers on the floor are all interchangeable with the one in the machine, and the pipes, reeds and whistles in them can produce any kind of wind, from a zephyr to a hurricane!

Another view of the NBC wind producer. Ray Kelly, head of NBC sound men, is examining the whistle-drawer. A column of air will be forced through the drawer to simulate the sound of wind whipping around a house—a deserted, ghostly, house!

The Photo-Story of MILTON BERLE'S LIFE

LIFE LED A SERIOUS-MINDED COMEDIAN THROUGH BY-PATHS AND DETOURS—FINALLY, TO SUCCESS!

1 Five years old—and a master of "The Bee"—no doubt! Milton's first stage appearance was in a theater contest soon after this picture was snapped!

2 Two years later—and a changed little boy! Mrs. Berlinger recognized Milton's talent early, began to train him for the stage when he was five!

3 Ten-year-old Milton Berlinger is second from the right in this picture of the "Floradora Sextette" of 1919. He was well known, well liked in the vaudeville circuit he played at the time

4 Whoops! Milton is too, too divine—but a year touring in vaudeville made him appreciate stagey poses!

9 From left: Mrs. Berlinger, a friend, Milton (at fourteen) and Elizabeth Kennedy, with whom he played on the stage in 1923 in the play "Lightning"

10 And here's a scene from the play! Elizabeth Kennedy is the little girl. It's no wonder Berle later did a "Good Will Court" burlesque!

11 The two young stars go for a walk with Berle's brother (left) and a friend. Notice the styles—and this was 1923—not very long ago!

5 On May 10, 1919, "the proteges of Mrs. E. Rock" gave an "entertainment and dance"—and among the proteges was Milton Berlinger!

MILTON BERLE was introduced by Mrs. Sarah Berlinger on July 2, 1908, to a life that has brought both scorn and success. His first theatrical venture was at five, when he won a White Plains, N. Y., theater contest (and $2.75) for imitating Charlie Chaplin. By his eighth year, his interest in acting was intense, his talent evident. His mother gave him every encouragement, devoting her life to his career. Under her tutelage, he won a part in "Melody of Youth" at nine—played in it for three years. Vaudeville troupers liked the boy, called him "The Kid." By 1920 he was in the "flickers," acting for Biograph studios. Then came the legitimate theater. More vaudeville tours were frequent. He was in Earl Carroll's "Vanities of 1932." Milton grew up fast, worked steadily except when his voice changed, leaving him too old for "kid parts," too young for mature roles. The Broadway wiseacres watched his rise to prominence, called the young comedian "Mama's Boy" and "Gag Thief." Mrs. Berlinger "trouped" with her son; he's never denied her contribution to his success. But he angrily denies plagiarizing, says he started "the original" publicity feud with the late Richey Craig, Jr., when they publicly accused each other of stealing jokes. When Craig died, the publicity turned on Berle, spreading the story that he stole his material. "I don't lift gags," he says, "and if I do, what of it? They're better after I've doctored 'em!" No doubt exists that he "sells" himself to his audiences. Today, at twenty-eight, he is a veteran entertainer—claims he could make his living at card tricks, if he wanted to. His "Community Sing" has demonstrated his radio ability!

6 Flora Finch was the star of this old Biograph movie—Milton, the kid who's getting such a laugh!

7 Right: Booking was "solid" in 1920. Here's proof of the interest in this juvenile family act!

8 The "Vaudeville News" gave him a boost in the July 15, 1921, issue. Next to his picture was Walter Winchell's stage-gossip column!

13 Berle was billed as a "One Man Show" in "Cohen's Opera House," Newburgh, N. Y., in 1924!

14 Right: Milton was quite a grown man when he had this picture taken—at just fifteen!

15 "Mom" traveled wherever acting took Milton. Here they're at Loew's State Theater, New Orleans

12 Children who act must go to school, too—here's Milton's grammar-school diploma, from the "Professional Children's School!"

16 He looks younger than he did in the picture when he was fifteen—but he's twenty-four—and proud of it!

17 Milton was nominated for membership in the National Association of Friars by Joey Ray and Eddie Eekins

18 Here's Milton today—singing during the radio show you hear him on every Sunday. He parries deft comedy on the "Community Sing"!

19 Not subtle—but effective! Broadway calls him a gag thief—but Milton claims it is his individual style of delivery that makes the jokes his own!

20 Now Milton is back in Hollywood to make a picture for RKO, now titled "New Faces." One good argument against the criticisms of Berle is this crowd, assembled to see him off. Milton is next to his mother, and Bandleader Abe Lyman is standing at her left 21 He clowns now from habit—a red-cap found that out when he left for Hollywood! Friends of Milton's call this typical of his nature, say he's a "regular guy"!

22 Here he is—a portrait of the star whose life has led him through devious trails—to success!

Milton Berle may be heard Sundays on "Community Sing" over a CBS network at 10 p.m. EDT (9 EST; 9 CDT; 8 CST; 7 MST and 6 PST).

A new variety show takes the place of "Do You Want to Be an Actor?" The new Chase and Sanborn program features Edgar Bergen, radio's only ventriloquist, and his dummy Charlie McCarthy; an orchestra directed by Werner Janssen, the American-born symphonic conductor; and Don Ameche, the NBC and cinema actor, who will be master of ceremonies of the show. On the premiere performance will appear Ann Harding, wife of Mr. Janssen and cinema actress, who will participate in a dramatic sketch. There have been rumors that Nelson Eddy will be starred on this program. This is true, but Mr. Eddy will not join the show until August 8. The dramatic sketch to be offered by Miss Harding will be "The Guardsman," Mr. Ameche will support her.

 John Nesbitt will tell why John Price suddenly committed suicide when he apparently had discovered the formula for making gold. It was just 155 years ago this week that Price, a well-known chemist of his day, gave a demonstration of how to make gold. He took his life before his audience at a second demonstration.

The subject of tonight's drama will be "Dynamite." It was,
as many of you will recall,
Dr. Nobel who discovered dynamite. The invention brought him immense wealth, but a perturbed conscience
when he realized the wartime uses to which it would be put. As a result, he founded the Nobel Prizes for the greatest annual achievements toward peace, the arts and science.

NEW! SCIENTIFIC AERIAL
Use the
With the Dual Connection
The DUAL CONNECTION, a new feature exclusively our own, gives better distance and positive performance on all electric radios (pat. pend.).
This aerial can be installed without tools by anyone in a minute's time.
Goes right inside the radio completely out of view and it does not use any electric current. No climbing on roofs. For short or long waves.
NO OSCILLATING OR WHISTLING
This DUAL type aerial uses a new scientific principle which completely eliminates this annoyance as commonly experienced on inside aerials. It also eliminates lightning hazards, unsightly poles, guy wires, etc. Enables the radio to be readily moved when desired. A complete aerial in itself—nothing extra to buy. Permanently installed and requires no adjustment. Ends aerial troubles forever. Send order today.
Try One 5 Days at Our Risk—More Distance and Volume
National Laboratories
Dept. D., Fargo, No. Dak.
Not an experiment, but fully tested. Many users report over 3,000 miles reception. Gives trips the volume over regular inside aerials on many sets.
Guaranteed for 5 years. Distributors and dealers write for sales proposition. Agents wanted.

MR. FAIRFAX KNOWS ALL

HELEN MENKEN recently replaced ETHEL BARRYMORE'S weekly dramatic show with the new "Her Second Husband" series. No, Helen Menken and Helen Hayes are two entirely different people, both stars in their own right.—O. O., Madison, Wis.

The dramatic series, OUR GAL, SUNDAY succeeded that titled RICH MAN'S DARLING. It is aired week-day mornings over the Columbia Broadcasting System.—N. M., Petoskey, Mich.

The terms RED NETWORK and BLUE NETWORK, when used by this publication or the National Broadcasting Company, refer to one or the other of National's two major networks.

As an idolizer of SEYMOUR SIMONS and his orchestra, you will be unhappy to hear that SEYMOUR has retired completely from the radio and musicians' world. He is now devoting all his time to his motherless youngsters.—F. W. B., Memphis, Tenn.

"SMILING" ED MCCONNELL does not appear in any network series besides his own Sunday afternoon commercial. What you may have in mind are the many electrical transcriptions of McConnell that are used extensively on the smaller stations. HAPPY JACK TURNER is heard frequently over NBC stations.—Mrs. B. H. B., Pownal, Me.

The HOUR OF CHARM, with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, has just recently moved to a new air spot. This popular musicale may be heard Monday evenings at 9:30 p.m. EDT (8:30 EST or CDT; 7:30 CST; 6:30 MST; 5:30 PST) over the Red network of the National Broadcasting Company.

To CONTACT ARTISTS who appear irregularly on the air, write to them in care of the station or network over which you have last heard them. Practically all musical radio folk are required for their own convenience to maintain music libraries of their own.—A. A. B., Brooklyn, N. Y.

NBC, you see, has two networks, whereas the Columbia Broadcasting and the Mutual Broadcasting systems have but one each. The color designation means nothing. Red and Blue were picked simply as names. BASIC, when used to modify the word "network," is an expression indicating the backbone group of stations which are really the foundation of the network. Basic stations generally carry all of the major commercial programs and most of the sustaining or non-commercial programs. SUPPLEMENTARY NBC-Red, NBC-Blue, CBS or MBS stations are added onto the basic networks whenever a sponsor desires to have his program heard in a territory served by such supplementary stations, or in the case of a sustaining program, whenever the supplementary station desires to subscribe to the non-commercial broadcast.—J. D. C., New York City, and many other listeners.

TED MALONE is not conducting his "Between the Bookends" series over the CBS network. He is, however, planning to start a new series soon.—M. E. Z., York, Pa.

JAN GARBER does not have a spot on the ether waves at present but is booked to supply musical entertainment at Catalina Island during the coming Summer season and doubtless will have a wire then. I believe CBS will do the network airings.—B. W., Wilmington, N. C.

When an announcer says, "This is an ELECTRIC TRANSCRIPTION," he means that the program is a recorded broadcast especially manufactured for use on the radio exclusively. These transcriptions are made in much the same fashion as a phonograph recording except that higher quality materials and more care go into their manufacture. Of course, the artists are not present in person at the studio when an electrical transcription is being played.—H. B., Little Rock, Ark.

The radio salaries of JACK BENNY and ED-DIE CANTOR average about $400,000 yearly, out of which they must pay their supporting cast and orchestral accompaniment.—M. M., New York City.

H. when you refer to the Program Section, you fail to find the program listed, this indicates that it is heard only in a limited area over a small branch network with no audible stations in your vicinity. Late dance orchestra broadcasts and certain minor non-commercial programs have been omitted from this index because of the instability of their time reservations. ABBREVIATIONS: The "NBC-R" at the end of locator listings indicates National Broadcasting Company Blue network carries that program; "NBC" means National Broadcasting Company Red network; "CBS" stands for Columbia Broadcasting System, and "MBS" indicates Mutual Broadcasting System programs.

Leslie Howard says Luckies are "tops" with his throat

"Years ago, as an ambitious young actor, I was impressed how well my throat liked Luckies and how well they suited my idea of a perfect cigarette. That impression still stands. In my recent tour of 'Hamlet', with its many performances each week and the attendant tax on my throat, I have been convinced anew that this light smoke is both delightful to my taste and the 'top' cigarette for an actor's throat."

Leslie Howard

Notice how many professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, statesmen, etc., smoke Luckies. See how many leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, prefer them. Naturally the voices of these artists are all-important to them. That's why they want a light smoke. You can have this throat protection, too. The protection of a light smoke free of certain harsh irritants expelled by the exclusive "Toasting" process.
