Mail your ballot to the Star of Stars Election Tellers, Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Illinois. Paste it on a penny postcard, if you wish.

9 DAYS TO GO!

ONLY nine days are left in 1937—so far as the Star of Stars Election is concerned—only nine days in which to cast your ballot! That means that if you haven't already voted, you'll have to do it at once—or miss your chance completely this year. Midnight of May 31 is the absolute deadline—ballots postmarked later than that will not be counted!

Now—though little more than a week remains—you still have time to vote! Votes sent in right away will get in on time—but you must act immediately. There is no time to lose! Little things are bound to come up from time to time to make you put off doing the things you intended to do—and they'll cost you your vote this year if you don't figure on them. The only way to be sure of your vote is to get it in the mail at once! The time is limited—but you can still vote—and have your ballot count as much as any other.

As RADIO GUIDE goes to press this week, the stars hold their present positions in the ranking only by virtue of very small margins. Thousands of ballots are pouring in, the mail is growing heavier each day, and yet the voting is close. With each successive tabulation there is a good deal of fluctuation in the standings, and it is quite possible that the tide may turn sharply at any time, that stars of lesser ranking may rise above those who hold the lead today. That depends upon your votes! Your ballot—and the ballots of your friends—are the only things that can make this change possible. This is positively your last opportunity to give them your support. Vote now, while the balloting is still open! Make sure that your votes are in before the final deadline! Get your ballots in the mail—today! (See Star of Stars Standings on Page 19)

MEDAL OF MERIT

WHEN DEATH RODE DOWN THE AIRWAYS
TO STUN THE WORLD
INTO A HORRIFIED
SILENCE — RADIO'S HEROES CARRIED ON!

Engineer Charles Nehlsen, left, and Announcer Herbert Morrison: Fate called them to what they thought was a routine assignment—instead they found themselves broadcasting history in the making!

AVIATION'S greatest disaster of recent years has given radio its greatest heroes. They are Herbert Morrison, an announcer, and Charles Nehlsen, an engineer.

They had been sent by Station WLS from Chicago to Lakehurst, N. J., to make a recording for later broadcast of the arrival there of the giant dirigible Hindenburg, concluding its first flight of the new season. Morrison and Nehlsen little guessed that the greatest eye-witness reporting job in history was the assignment Fate would hand them. They expected to report routine news. Instead, they recorded history.

They waited twelve hours for their story to begin, for the sky monster was delayed by adverse weather and head winds. Then the dirigible circled Lakehurst, headed for the first of three times toward the mooring mast. And then Morrison began his greatest of all recordings; then Nehlsen faced his greatest test. Into the recording microphone, Morrison spoke of the crowd gathered to witness the safe landing; of the beauty of the skyship's sleek sides, of the wisdom of the officers, who protected the safety of the passengers by waiting for calm ground winds before trying to land.

Then into Morrison's microphone burst the horrified cry: "Fire! It's burning up!" For before his eyes was occurring the tragedy that shook the world of aviation! Through his hot lips he begged, "God save those poor people!" Then, crying with the utter horror of it, hysterical at the sights of suffering, he told in tears the most tragic tale ever to reach a microphone. For forty-five minutes, the recording apparatus turned at its task of preserving a record of the terrible scene—turned, because Engineer Nehlsen kept his wits, protected his apparatus, calmed the shaken announcer at his side. Onto the wax disc was graven aviation's unhappiest story.

FOR this most wonderful of all reporting jobs under the most terrific strain ever endured by a broadcaster, RADIO GUIDE stands with the rest of the world in admiration of Herbert Morrison and Charles Nehlsen. To them RADIO GUIDE is proud to present its Special Medal of Merit!

Crown Princess

GREED FOR LIFE, FOR FAME
RULES GRACE MOORE—YET
HERS IS THE HELPING HAND!

ANNE of Austria," I call her. Like that famous seventeenth century queen of France, Grace Moore is a creature of stormy and contradictory impulses. Few people understand her. Those who dislike her, dislike her intensely. Those who are her friends admire her greatly.

She is ambitious, yet pleasure-loving; greedy, yet amazingly generous; emotional, yet calculating; loyal, yet vindictive; headstrong, yet changeable. And she is imperious and very proud.

My nickname for her grew out of a jest. The story, I think, is worth telling.

She had come to Hollywood to co-star with Lawrence Tibbett in "The New Moon." That was seven years ago. And Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was anxious to publicize its new diva. One afternoon, two other writers and I were chatting with a member of the Metro publicity staff. She tried to persuade us to write stories about Grace Moore for our respective publications. "The woman is absolutely irresistible," we were assured.

Finally we agreed to write a single story in which each of us would present his individual impressions of this irresistible newcomer. "Three Men Look at Grace Moore"—that was to be our theme.

THE use of that word, "irresistible," had been unfortunate. It put us on the defensive; we went to her home firmly resolved to dislike her.

We sat down at the luncheon table at noon. It was seven o'clock that evening when we arose. We were completely captivated by the wit and charm of the woman.

Amused, she started calling us her "Three Musketeers." In retaliation, I dubbed her "Anne of Austria."

If I am inordinately proud of her friendship—and I hasten to admit that I am—it is because she is a great human being rather than because she is a great star. With her rare virtues, Grace Moore: Seven years ago she was brought to Hollywood, appeared in a film, "The New Moon," with Lawrence Tibbett. It was a failure. Four years later she returned, made "One Night of Love," "Love Me Forever," "The King Steps Out," and recently, "When You're in Love"—all of them hits!

however, she has undeniable faults.

She is a confirmed egoist. She—a composite of her desires, her ambitions, her likes and dislikes—is the hub about which her universe revolves. She sometimes imposes upon others, overrides their "feelings" and uses the power of her position to bend them to her will. The fault has earned her many enemies. Yet I don't believe that she has ever intentionally done any person an injustice or an injury.

No star has had a fiercer struggle for success. As a young, small-town girl in New York, singing for her supper in Bohemian cafes, fighting for a first "break" in musical comedy, she, of grim necessity, fought for survival. The battle for recognition in the theater is a "dog eat dog and devil take the hindermost" affair at best.

I THINK Grace Moore's egoism is the logical product of those pre-success days. But remember, if she gives no quarter, she asks none. Those who may have been hurt by her egoism have suffered because they lack the strength of character to play the game on her terms.

That "God bless you all," with which she concludes her radio programs, is spoken from the heart. Self-centered she may be in some things, yet she has a tremendous love for all humanity. Two girls are studying music today under the world's greatest teachers because Grace Moore liked their voices and undertook to forward their careers. She does not expect them to repay any money that she may spend in their behalf. But she does expect them to sing! In helping others, she always demands that they be willing to help themselves. She has a tremendous sympathy for effort—and a burning contempt for inertia.

In estimating her own worth, she has no false modesty. She considers herself one of the great artists of her day. In arranging a concert appearance, a radio broadcast or a picture contract, she demands a king's ransom for her work. She exacts from every activity the last penny of tribute that the traffic will bear.

I HAVE heard people call her grasping. But consider: she is one of the greatest artists of her day. Her pictures, her records, her concerts and her opera appearances have made fortunes for those who have purchased her voice.

Remember also: she has starved and sacrificed to win through to her present lofty position. Once she said to me:

"People seem to be amazed that I receive thousands of dollars for an hour's concert. They don't stop to think. It isn't that one hour that I'm being paid for—it is all the years of desperate work that made the hour possible!"

And again:

"My voice, in itself, provides no guarantee for my future. I must be wise now and save enough while I am on the crest of the wave to write my own guarantees."

Grasping? Let me tell you about the most courageous thing any star has ever done. In 1928, Grace Moore, then the highest-paid musical-comedy star in the world, was given her second audition by the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company. They told her to forget her operatic ambitions and be content with her musical-comedy success. "You will never be an opera star," they said. That same day, Grace Moore turned her back on a contract which paid her $2,500 a week, and sailed for Europe and a year of study. One year later, her hopes vindicated, she made her debut at the Metropolitan. She received fifty dollars a week—one-fiftieth of the amount that she had earned in musical comedy! I know of no star who has ever made a greater monetary sacrifice to an artistic ambition!

Her personal charm is amazing. To a great extent it is natural, yet she has, I think, deliberately cultivated certain and good wine. She has studied the art of living as thoroughly as ever a student priest coned his latany. She is a confirmed gourmet, and she is writing a book about European cafes and cuisine. She is also, by the way, a most excellent cook.

She has a pronounced flair for clothes and has several times been mentioned as one of the world's best-dressed women. Yet let me sketch her in an idle hour at her villa on the south coast of France—dressed in overalls, planting a garden of American vegetables and toiling with hammer and shovel to build a new hen-house for her prize Favorolles hens. So successful is she in the business of poultry-raising that the King of Denmark, himself a chicken-grower, summoned her to the royal box after she had appeared in Copenhagen in "La Boheme" and asked her for her methods of feeding.

She lists among her friends most of the world's great. And yet I don't think she gives a hoot for their lofty positions. She values each one because of his worth as a human being.

ONE of her greatest faults lies in her inordinate ambition. She tries to do too much. She drives herself and others beyond physical endurance. Eventually she collapses and is forced to spend several days in bed, resting.

She is unusually loyal and steadfast in her friendships; she is also unforgetting in her animosities.

Six years ago, she met and married Valentin Parera, Spanish actor. Her love for him has become the key-note of her life. I have never seen two people more obviously in love. Their romance had an amusing beginning. Valentin proposed to her on the Ile de France, en route to Europe, on the same day that they were introduced. She accepted. He remembered of a complication. He was already engaged to a girl in Spain. "I'll have to break that engagement before ours is announced," he explained. "Don't be concerned," said Grace. "I'm engaged to two men in New York."

If I have succeeded in giving you the picture of a stormy, tempestuous personality who has a great love for life, I have succeeded in my purpose.

I think my name for her—Anne of Austria—is well chosen.

Grace Moore may be heard Sunday on the Nash program over a CBS network at 9 p.m. EDT (8 EST; 8 CDT; 7 CST; 6 MST; 5 PST).

traits which are designed to please.

She has, naturally, a great eagerness for life. She lends every subject that she discusses and everything that she does an emotional quality. She invests the most prosaic things with drama and romance. Her voice is eager, her eyes are eager—she fairly tingles with the desire to live. To converse with her is to experience a strange stimulation. She is like an electric battery, forever giving off sparks.

Without having received a profound formal education—she ran away from school to go on the stage before she was twenty—she has made herself one of the best-informed women in the world. She is naturally curious; she loves to talk with witty, well-informed persons; she has an amazingly tenacious memory. When something worth knowing is said she always catches it, makes a mental note of it. She has learned that the best way to be a good conversationalist is to be a good listener when others speak—and she is an attentive listener. Consequently, her conversation sparkles.

I have never entered her home without finding a particular cheese-spread, of which I am fond, displayed on a coffee-table at my elbow. She remembers the drink which I prefer to all others, and I am no more than seated when a servant places a tall glass in my hand. She makes it a point to remember each guest's personal preferences and to serve them. Could any compliment be more subtle or more gratifying to a visitor than that?

BEING the most feminine of women and a daughter of the South, too, she takes a keen delight in her power over men. And men give her instant homage. Without being a great beauty, she gives the impression of being extraordinarily beautiful. Her eagerness, her wit, her emotional voice and her flair for romance stimulate every man's urge to escape the commonplace. She is exciting; fascinating.

She is a connoisseur of good food

Four

CAREER Woman—Home Partner—100 Per Cent Wife-and-Mother—The Woman Who Wants Everything: Which of these four kinds of women are you? Do you believe that the wife should make all of the compromises after marriage? Do you think that the woman today should make no compromises at all? Or do you believe that there is a happy mean—that marriage is a give-and-take proposition? That the wife should make some adjustments, while the husband makes others?

I asked four women these questions—four women who represent the types which I just mentioned. Two of them are radio stars; the other two, wives of radio stars. Each one of the four has made a success of marriage—but each in a different way from the others. One woman I feel justified in terming the perfect Career Woman. Another I call the ideal Home Partner. A third, I named the 100 Per Cent Wife-and-Mother. And the fourth, I describe as The Woman Who Wants Everything.

But who, you ask, are these women? What have they done? What careers have they followed—or what men have they married?

I shall tell you in a moment. But first I should like to make this point: Through their experiences, you and I—and women everywhere—can learn the secrets of successful marriage.

Ann Leaf, the famed woman organist, is my choice for the perfect Career Woman. At the age of twenty, she was already earning an excellent living playing the organ at a large Los Angeles motion picture theater. And Ann was a very lovely young woman, too. Just five feet all, she held her head proudly. Her raven-black hair and the sparkle in her eye were the envy of many another woman.

But Ann didn't want to get married. She loved her work. She fought love like a little tiger!

She thinks it was because she so long resisted the feminine impulses of her nature that she made her first big mistake after marriage. Eli Kleinert, a handsome fellow himself, had wooed her for two years before she married him. Then, in the first sweet days of her marriage with "Kliny," she decided to give up her career entirely.

"Women like me," she says, "have a double problem. We must satisfy two sides of ourselves."

A year later, the Kleinerts were living in a very new, very modern apartment in Greenwich Village. Kliny was well on his way up; he was assistant to Boris Morros, at that time musical director for a group of motion picture theaters.

"I told myself over and over," Ann adds, "that some women would have been so happy to be in my shoes!"

Somehow Ann couldn't be. The days seemed to follow each other monotonously.

She hated housework. Though she had plenty of money for a maid, she cleaned the apartment and cooked just to have something to do. Still, all that took only a couple of hours. She'd been working since she was a girl. Nothing she did gave her any sense of accomplishment. Her life seemed to her just waste.

Kliny was puzzled and a little miserable, too. He and Ann had started out so well. But now the fiery, vital little brunette he loved had almost disappeared. What was wrong?

"Of course I often thought of going back to work," Ann says, "but when you've been out for a while, it seems so hard to get started again."

Then Ann made another blunder. She decided to depend upon Kliny to pave the way to her future career.

"It would be so easy for you to ask Boris to give me an audition," she said one day.

"I'd rather not do that!" said Kliny. "You know what men look like who try to wangle jobs for their wives through pull!"

At last Kliny decided to do all he could to throw his wife and his boss together socially, so that it would be easier for her to ask for a hearing. As a result, he arranged to bring his boss home to dinner one night.

THE kitchenette was one of those built-in affairs, visible from the living-room. Ann was all aquiver with self-consciousness and excitement. She wanted so desperately to appear poised and charming. But everything went wrong. She'd phoned the grocery for strawberries. Watching the little biscuits for shortcake, she let the steak burn. The biscuits themselves were hard and flat as leather. The lettuce was full of sand.

"Never mind," said Kliny when she came out of the kitchenette, conscious that her hair was wild, her face a sort of battleship gray. "We'll just go down the street to a restaurant," he added. And they did.

Next morning one of those moods of clarity that sometimes follow an emotional upset came to her. She had a massage, bought a new red hat, and called up Boris Morros, her husband's boss. "I'm a washout as a housewife," she managed to say lightly, "but I'm a swell organist. That's what I ought to be doing, Boris. Give me an audition, will you?"

"Why sure!" answered the director. Ann had her audition, was sponsored over a national network in less than a month.

"Kliny and I have been happy ever since," she says. "A woman like me needs to accept love and marriage, but she needs also to go right on with her work after she takes off the orange blossoms. Yes, even if her husband opposes it! For it's the only way she can be contented and remain a good wife!"

Helen Jepson: "Wives fail because they lack balance," she says

If you searched the world over you couldn't find a woman more different from little Ann Leaf than Mildred Wallace Pine Crooks, Richard Crooks' wife. She is my ideal Home Partner. She is tall and poised, with the strength of character that belonged to our pioneer women. She is the very archetype of the Home Partner, and she says: "I musical comedy casting-office, and the weekly salary they mentioned made Crooks blink.

"What would you do," Mildred asked her husband, "if that salary wasn't such a temptation? Which do you really want to take?"

"Well, of course, I'd rather plan for opera than musical comedy," began

Dick, "but that money we'd lose would mean too much to you and Pat—"

"Patricia and I have a big stake in your life," said Mildred. "We're rooting for you to take the concert offer."

"And I think," she said to me, "that a really good wife takes the responsibilities of the home on her shoulders."

"And I believe a wife should stand alone sometimes, just as a man must. My little daughter contracted sleeping sickness and became dangerously ill when Dick was on his first big tour. Of course I wanted my husband with me, but it wouldn't have helped the child, and it would have hurt Dick's future."

It's easy to see that Mildred Pine Crooks wouldn't relish the same kind of life as Ann Leaf. And that Ann would be miserable with Mildred's marriage.

Peggy Cartwright, who deserted a brilliant musical-comedy career to marry Phil Baker, is yet another kind of woman with another kind of needs. She is my choice for the 100 Per Cent Wife-and-Mother type.

The Baker romance is famous. Phil happened to drop into a theater where "Americana" was playing, saw the blue-eyed, serene Peggy, fell in love with her in the grand romantic manner, got a job in the show, and in a few weeks had persuaded her that she should become his wife.

THE Bakers didn't want the ordinary whirlwind theatrical marriage. So, for the months while the show went on, they pretended to be just friends. When "Americana" closed, they bought a little secluded house near Palm Beach and had a honeymoon and a child.

"I didn't do anything so definite as to decide whether I was going back to the stage," Peggy confessed to me. "I guess I always just took it for granted I would . . . sometime. Meanwhile, the days were so pleasant, I kept putting off thinking about it."

When Peggy had been a child herself, she'd owned the best collection of dolls in the neighborhood. She sewed for them, dressed them, talked with them, invented problems for every one.

And as the months of the Baker marriage became years, young Mrs. Baker began to learn a good deal about the man, Phil. And even more about the woman, Peggy.

One day, when she was delayed while shopping and returned home

what they Wanted

have very little sympathy with a career woman if her husband doesn't want her to go on working. A woman who marries assumes a responsibility as definite as a worker owes an employer. It is her job to work with her husband, to create the sort of home that means the most to him, to rear his family and hers. I can't believe a woman is a good wife when she goes out into the business world because she's bored and wants excitement! I think she's not playing fair to her main job, which is that of being a wife."

Do you think she's right? There's no doubt that Richard Crooks adores her. He feels he might be a musical comedy star, which he'd hate, or even an office-worker, if Mildred had been other than she is. Let's see if it's her story which will tell you how to be the kind of wife you want to be . . .

DICK CROOKS and Mildred Pine were brought up on the same street in Trenton, New Jersey, but in different circumstances. All through childhood and adolescence the two were chums. Sometimes Mildred would see a certain look on Dick's face and realize that he was having a bad time. She'd give him her warmest smile, go out of her way to be nice to him. There were soft, whispered childish words of comfort.

At seventeen, Dick became an ice-man's helper. He wanted to earn money for music lessons. At the same time Mildred was beginning to have nice little parties for Trenton's youthful elite.

She was bright and pretty and talented. She might have spent her days dreaming of the triumphs of a famous woman musician. But already her type was defined. It was Dick's career she dreamed of. He'd come to the comfortable Pine home to see her.

When he was nineteen, Richard wanted to go to New York. In the metropolis, so near concerts and the Metropolitan Opera House, he felt he'd be able, somehow, to further his ambitions to become a great singer. But he hated to leave Mildred.

"You must go," she insisted when she learned how he felt. And he did.

TWO years later, in 1923, they were married. Dick earned $50 a week, singing in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York. But Mildred knew he didn't want to continue within the limited field of church singing. She'd search over music libraries to find compositions which would stimulate him. She kept up her own piano work so that she could be his accompanist. Though a baby was coming, she did her own housework and laundry so there'd be enough margin to buy Dick music lessons.

The crisis of Richard Crooks' career came when their daughter, Patricia, was a dainty little woman of three. Two offers came to him.

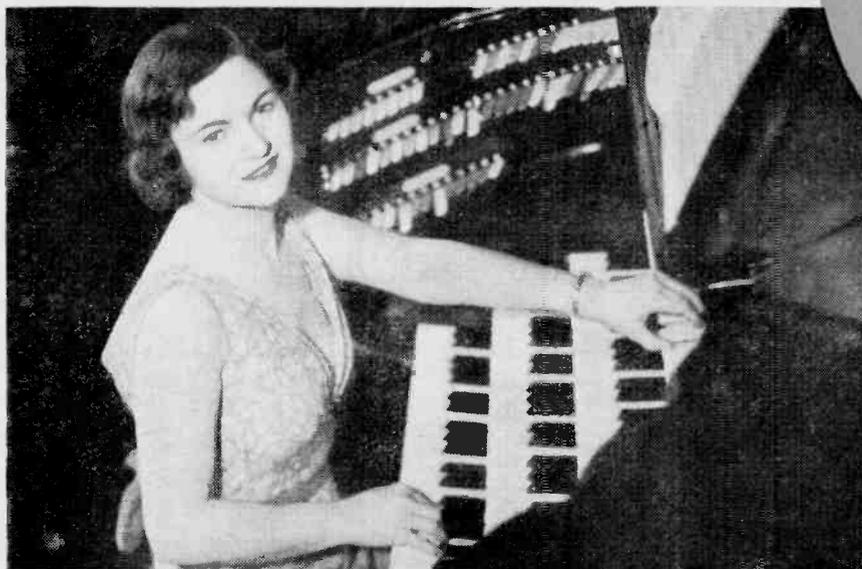

A concert manager wanted to put him on tour. But the salary was very small. The second offer was from a late, she found Phil pacing up and down their little drawing-room in a kind of terror. He needed to find her there when he came home.

So, little by little, Peggy learned how restless and skeptical of happiness Phil had been when he met her. He'd had all sorts of triumphs on the stage. But he'd been moody and unsatisfied.

She found that bringing peace and security to her husband gave her the deepest ecstasy she'd ever known. She thought less and less of the stage. In-

SAY something funny—make me laugh!"
Yeh, they'll say it to you, too, my friend, if you're a comedian. Your intimates will say it to you when you're off the air. And your listeners will do likewise—when you're on the air.

It's like being a lion-tamer and every time you meet someone, he says, "Go on, tame me a lion. Let's see you do it!"

You could respond, "I'm sorry, the lion is busy," but then you'd have all the earmarks of a comedian, and people would again beg, "Go on, say something funny; make me laugh."

So where are you?

So you're better off not being too much of a funny fellow. If people don't expect a hilarious witticism to drool from your lips every time you open your mouth—then when you do say something funny, unexpected like, you've got something there—besides your uppers!

At least, that's the way I've doped it out. And I'm just the dope that can do it.

There's only one Jack Benny, one Fred Allen, and from then on there're your Burnses, Bakers, Beetles, Bottles, Bernies, Budds and Stoopnagles, your Cantors, Penners, Wynns, and Muenchausens. So what?

So the first two named have gotten along on personality—especially Benny—and let the gags fall where they may . . . and some Sundays they may!

It's taken me ten long years on the wireless to find where I belong and I hope the answer isn't equidistant from two plow handles. I'm not exactly an announcer, not exactly a comedian—just a messer of ceremonies.

I know I can't sing. I have one of those toothpaste voices—you squeeze it and it comes out flat. I know I can't tell funny jokes all the time because I can't afford a staff of gag writers; and then too, I get tired of hearing the same jokes on other shows. But I do know that I can be myself on the air—if that means throwing in a pun on the least provocation.

IF THAT means mentioning my two kids and my wife (samee one allee time—never changee) whenever I happen to think of something that happened at home I want to mention—I'm sorry again.

After all, I'm married. I don't care who knows it. And I like to talk about it—but I would have stopped long ago if I didn't think listeners rather enjoyed hearing someone who wasn't ashamed of the fact that he's happily married—even though being happily married means one darned thing after the other. After all, a bachelor's life is one undarned thing after the other. You see—there I go again!

What I mean by personality versus puns is this:

If your personality is such that you can't help saying:

"Well, Spring is in the air. I just saw somebody steal my purse before I came in the building." "What's your seeing somebody swiping your money got to do with Spring?" says a near-by stooge, conveniently. "Well," you say, "as far as I know, it was the first robin of Spring."

I MEAN if you're that type of a guy who has a slight impediment in his speech—namely, gags—all well and good. And if you can get serious at the same time and speak about a little girl in Philadelphia who couldn't afford to buy her mother a birthday present and wondered if you'd play an orchestra number from her to her mother as a present, that's fine too. That's you speaking; that's your personality. Listeners can take it or dial it out. You're not depending on gags alone—you're being yourself.

But if your program consists of: COMEDIAN (ENTERS WITH A LOUD LAUGH): Heh-heh-heh-heh. Listen, Gus, my girl is calling me her pilgrim now. STOOGES (ALMOST AS CONVULSED AS HE WAS ON THE way of thinking, was the recent culmination of the Benny-Allen feud.

The feud was already well established in everyone's mind; then Benny built up Abe Lyman as a toughie of whom he was a little afraid.

Then came Fred Allen's remark: "Why, Benny, you're just a fugitive from a Ripley cartoon."

Mary, meanwhile, sided with Jack—unexpectedly.

Benny and Allen leave to go out in the hall and fight it out—return old buddies—Lyman chides Benny again—and then Jack Benny calls on his new buddy, Fred Allen, to protect him . . . Call it situation if you will—there's on the air. It'll either be that way in the script—which I write myself—or I'll be ad-libbing as I usually am—not too funny, not too serious, not too anything, I hope—especially not a word rhyming with frowsty.

I DON'T want to be another Jack Benny or another Fred Allen. Every so often, when the mood strikes me, I'll repeat my favorite story about the time my little son, Tommy, was learning to talk.

One day I said to Mrs. McNeill: "Why does he say 'Mamma' all the time? Why doesn't he ever say 'Daddy'?" After all, I'm around here, too."

Below: Don with his one-year-old son, Don, Jr. "The older they get, the less they laugh at my jokes," said Funnymen Don once, practising on his baby son, and hoping his stuff isn't "a word rhyming with frowsty"

Personality

(DRESS REHEARSAL): Why, tell me, So and So, why does your girl call you her pilgrim? COMEDIAN (WITH OR WITHOUT DIALECT): Because every time I call, I make a little progress. (STUDIO AUDIENCE GOES NUTS AS PAGE BOY HOLDS UP SIGN SAYING "LAUGHTER, PLEASE.")

If your program is a half-hour of that stuff, I classify you as "Gags"—and I'm all for a personality program. One of the best examples of a program chuck full of personality, to my a grand one there, of course—but I think it's all personality—a blending of personalities—that made it the grand show that it was.

MY POINT is proved more or less by the fact that comedians using gags alone are far behind Benny and Allen in popularity. The reason being that they are just automatons spouting Joe Millers, whereas the personality boys are real people to the listeners—and if they are good—real friends.

After drawing these conclusions for myself, I've decided just to be myself

"Yes, I know," she said, "I wasn't going to tell him who you were until he was a little stronger."

Dear reader, I can just hear you telling me, "Say something funny—make me laugh!"

Don McNeill may be heard Fridays on "Tea Time at Morrells" over an NBC network at 4 p.m. EDT (3 EST; 3 CDT; 2 CST; 1 MST; 12 noon PST); also on "Breakfast Club," Monday through Saturday over an NBC network at 9 a.m. EDT (8 EST; 8 CDT; 7 CST; 6 MST; 5 PST).

Robert Simmons and Patti Pickens. A press-agent rumored they were "that way"—before they'd met! The story brought them together—now they're wed!

SO THEY shot Max Baer and carted him off to the hospital.

They shot him deliberately and in cold blood, before dozens of horrified witnesses—and no one was even so much as arrested!

Newspapers blanketed America with banner-lines screaming the story of Baer's narrow escape from death. Indignation rose high—but Baer felt swell!

And no wonder! He'd just pulled the biggest publicity stunt of the year!

You remember the story. It was in the Spring of 1935. Baer was "training" for his fight with Jimmy Braddock. For relaxation—and a fat weekly check—he was doing a radio skit called "Lucky Smith." The show was fairly popular, but Baer wasn't pleased with his publicity. He told his press-agents to get him on page one—or else.

"O.K.," they told him. "We'll get you page one—if we have to shoot you to do it!"

And that's how Maxie Baer got his almost-mortal wound. A shooting was written into the "Lucky Smith" script. The gun was loaded with a blank, fired at close range; Baer collapsed in convincing agony—and that was that. The waiting ambulance men pounded into the broadcasting studios, loaded the moaning Max on a stretcher, and carted him away to the hospital. Maxie Baer, heavyweight champion of the world, was shot—and reporters fought for phone booths, wire-service tickers pounded out the news from Maine to California. Smart press-agentry had scored again!

IT HAPPENS every day. If you spent ten minutes with your paper today, you read half a dozen publicity stories, so cleverly disguised as news that they had slipped through the hands of men trained to spot publicity two city blocks away. Perhaps it was a story of a new and blistering Hollywood romance—perhaps it told the sad tale of how a lovely stage star had been robbed of $30,000 in gems—maybe it was about Radiostar Horace Heartbreak and his plan for saving the world from the menace of phony cowboy songs. Remember now?

Remember a show-girl named Anna Held? You probably do, and if you do, you're paying involuntary tribute to the press-agent who thought up the famous "milk bath" stunt—because it's been a long time since Anna Held's name was blazoned in the bright lights of Broadway. The dazzling Held beauty, this bright young man informed a gasping world, was due to daily milk baths. As a matter of fact, history records that Anna Held had very little, if any, use for milk in any shape, manner or form—but still she swore she bathed in a tubful of it daily—for her press-agent, for page one, and for posterity!

The same stunt was tried a few years later by Earl Carroll. At a backstage party, he had a "Vanities" show-girl bathe in a tubful of champagne. It hit page one—but it backfired, and for a while Earl Carroll was in an unpleasant spot. But that didn't disturb him. The publicity-seeker's credo is "Call me a bum, if you want, but spell my name right!"

Something new, something different. That's the press-agent's dream—and sometimes it's a nightmare!

One of the most talked-about songs of recent years was "Gloomy Sunday," a Hungarian importation and a nightmare in music if ever one was set down on paper. Yet it swept the country, and no popular song ever got more publicity. Why? Because a smart publicity man had an idea.

"Gloomy Sunday" was written by a Hungarian around the subject of suicide for love. It was a run-of-the-mill song, no better and no worse than scores of others published at the same time. But a press-agent had an inspiration. He remembered that the Hungarian suicide rate has always been terrifically high—almost as high as the Japanese. What could be simpler? Stories date-lined "Budapest" began to drift into the United States—stories of suicide—and always, it seemed, there was a note—"Gloomy Sunday"—that tells my story."

The song was brought to America—and immediately three suicides were credited to it! It became a national issue. Women's clubs, legislators, orchestra leaders, newspaper editors and college professors battled over the issue, "Shall 'Gloomy Sunday' be banned?" NBC barred the song from its network. Representative Stefan of Nebraska got on the band-wagon with a threat to invoke the powers of Congress. Hal Kemp, who made the first recording, wrote anxious letters to radio editors asking whether or not he should use "Gloomy Sunday." Kemp had played the song 23 times before he got a satisfactory master recording, and he reported that he and his men had been seriously—nay, dangerously—affected. They had been highly upset!

"GET IT IN THE PAPERS! GET IT ON PAGE ONE! GET IT ON THE RADIO!" IT'S PUBLICITY. IT'S BIG BUSINESS. IT'S PART OF YOUR LIFE—BUT DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT!

BY KEN W. PURDY

"Gloomy Sunday" was just another song—until a clever press-agent took it over! Then it became a sensation. You heard it, talked about it!

All this could have but one result: the publishers pounded their presses to pieces trying to print copies enough to satisfy the demand! At any given hour of the day or night you could find "Gloomy Sunday" somewhere on your radio dial. It was a smash hit!

GRANDFATHER to the present-day high-pressure publicity technique was World War propaganda. Before the War to save the world for democracy—and the dictators—publicity was an art unborn. Now and then there had appeared a man, or a woman, who knew the value of publicity—P. T. Barnum is the first name that comes to mind—but for the most part the gentle pastime of getting the right name into the right paper at the right time, the trick of forcing the people to think in certain well-directed channels, was a mystery. With the World War, the necessity of forcing public opinion into chosen molds became apparent. Publicists learned just how gullible the public really is. They learned the value of repetition, the little tricks of news presentation. They found out what the people would stand for and what they wouldn't stand for. And so publicity was born!

It wasn't until radio began to dominate the American scene that the press-agent really came into his own. Now radio publicity—in itself a million-dollar industry—tops the field, and the biggest, most spectacular stunts are radio stunts. Because radio is a comparatively new industry, a lusty industry and a wealthy one, everything about it is big, high-powered, imperative.

Six months ago you watched a big radio stunt in the making—you probably took part in a nation-wide political argument started by a politician's press-agent—and you never dreamed the fight was fixed!

This stunt—one of the biggest in a campaign that was full of them—was Senator Vandenburg's famous debate with a phonograph recording of one of President Roosevelt's speeches. You remember that one!

A few minutes before Vandenburg was due to go on the air from Columbia's Chicago studios, someone saw a copy of the "debate." A near-riot followed. The "best minds" of CBS were panic-stricken. "He can't do it," they screamed. "The rule—what about the rule?"

"The rule" was just that—a ban on the use of recordings on national networks. Both NBC and CBS have such a ruling, and it's iron-clad. And, of course, in this instance, there was also the question of the propriety of using the President's voice when he could not actually reply. There were frantic long-distance calls, confusion, arguments. Finally, it was announced that the broadcast had been cancelled. Despite that, it went on the air from Chicago, only to be cut off in New York. A few stations carried it.

Next day the battle raged. The question of the hour was, "Should Vandenberg have been cut off the air?" Republican partisans said Vandenberg's speech had been "censored" and charged discrimination. Democrats upheld the letter of the broadcast law and charged the debate was unfair in the first place. Meanwhile, Vandenberg and the Republican party got a million dollars' worth of free publicity. And they had it coming!

TO MOST politicians radio publicity is of vital importance only during pre-election campaigns; but to radio stars, it's something more than that. They can't live without it, and they—and their agents—will go to any lengths to get it.

Standard, of course, is the "romance" stunt. You know it well. Hollywood first brought it to perfection, still uses it continuously. It's a simple procedure. Word is allowed to "leak" out—via leased wire—to the effect that Sanya Samovarovitch, the latest Continental importation, is in love with a famous male star. They're pictured holding hands, dancing, dining. Gossip columnists chronicle their devotion. Breathless fandom is told exactly how much Samovarovitch's lover spends on the daily order of 20 dozen orchids. But nobody's blood-pressure goes up—least of all that of the people involved. It's strictly the old build-up and it means merely that Samovarovitch is due to be featured with a new leading man.

It's hard to believe, but sometimes these routine build-ups produce real romance—in which case no one is course the gossip columnists didn't know that, and the item was picked up. And then one day, quite by accident, Patti and Bob met in an NBC studio.

"So you're the man I love!"

"So you're the girl . . ."

That was over a year ago. Now they mean it, and as Mr. and Mrs. Bob Simmons they're sworn to keep on meaning it until death doth them part!

As fantastic a stunt as ballooned on the front pages last Winter was built around the "love angle" by Tom Fizdale, Chicago publicity ace and the same man who jarred the nation with the Vandenberg-Roosevelt debate. This was the startling "chain and radiator" gag, and if you don't remember it, you weren't reading the newspapers during February in this year 1937. If you do remember it, you may recall that the stories about it that flooded the land were all date-lined "Excelsior Springs, Mo." Therein lies the tale.

Excelsior Springs has long been locally famous for its curative waters. That was just the trouble—it was only locally famous. That's why Fizdale was called in—to spread the name Excelsior Springs over the land. And that's just what he did!

IF ALL the world loves a lover, Fizdale reasoned, then the world must have twice as much love for a lover in trouble—a lover whose sweetheart's heart belongs to another! Fizdale decided his problem was to find a young man who, though jilted, refused to be daunted; a lover who persisted in loving, no matter what the odds. For such a touching little drama, there chains he said would bind him forever to the plumbing unless Miss Hurlbut relented, bade him be her very own. For a few days, until the public tired, it was great stuff, the name of Excelsior Springs went humming o'er the land—and Miss Hurlbut appeared on the air as guest star with Phil Baker.

WHEN press-agents get together and tall talk goes around the table, sooner or later the name of Harry Reichenbach comes up. Reichenbach, now dead, was the Old Master of the profession. He wouldn't work for less than a thousand dollars a week, and he made fortunes for his employers.

Millions of Americans who think Rembrandt is a town in Michigan can identify the painting "September Morn"—and Reichenbach is the reason. "September Morn," before Reichenbach went to work on it, was just another calendar throw-away. He made it so famous that seven million copies were sold at one dollar each!

His method was simplicity itself. Reichenbach knew that people want nothing so much as that which is forbidden them. He worked on this premise. First of all he had a large display of the painting placed in a prominent store-window. Next he hired a group of small boys to stand gaping in front of the display. Then he phoned Anthony Comstock, head of the Anti-Vice Society.

"There's an obscene picture in So-and-So's window," he screamed. "It's positively outrageous. It's undermining our youngsters and you should have it removed immediately! It's a disgrace to the City of New York!"

Comstock, ever eager to bay down the trail of obscenity and vice, was soon on the scene. Horrified, he saw the small boys clustered around the window, whispering and giggling. Storming into the shop, he ordered the proprietor to remove the picture, as Reichenbach had anticipated. The shop-keeper refused—as Reichenbach had ordered. The Anti-Vice Society took the case to court—and September Morn was famous!

Reichenbach did the same thing with Elinor Glyn's famous book, "Three Weeks." It was an ordinary love-story, but after Reichenbach arranged to have it barred from the U. S. mails, sales skyrocketed out of sight.

It was merely another example of the same technique that had boosted "September Morn" into the money.

"Tell 'em they can't have it—and then stand by for the mob scene" is a tried-and-true principle of the press-agent! "Press-agent," by the way, is a term that finds little favor in the profession. "Publicity man" or "publicity director" is a little better, with "public relations counsel" given top ranking. The late Ivy Lee, one of the all-time greats, is generally credited with being the first "public relations counsel." It was Lee who persuaded American industrialists that publicity and profits go hand in hand—and he proved it!

The press-agent and the newspaper city editor are popularly supposed to be forever at swords' points, but as a matter of fact, they are vitally important to each other. The press-agent gets valuable space from the newspapers, but he gives valuable service in return. No newspaper in the world could afford to maintain a staff of reporters large enough thoroughly to cover even the United States alone. The press-agent is an important source of news. But his news must be carefully chosen, and that's where the rub comes in.

Many and circuitous are the devices used by press-agents to sneak past the city editor. But some times it works the other way! One NBC announcer is still popular today only because his press-agent thinks fast.

THIS announcer was unjustly accused of an unpleasant offense, and threats of publicity were made. The announcer knew his reputation would be ruined if the papers touched the story.

"If it's the last thing you ever do," he told his agent, "keep that story out of the papers!"

But how? Denials would only make matters worse. The press-agent was still seeking a solution when a couple of reporters walked into his office.

"Well, what about it?" they asked. "What do you know about this little matter?"

The ghost of Harry Reichenbach must have been at the agent's elbow. It was sheer inspiration.

"I was just getting out a release on it," he told the reporters. "If you boys will give me a good break on the story, I'll let you in on something. Blank (the announcer) has a book coming out next week, and I want plenty of space for him."

The reporters looked at him in disgust and started for the door. Not a paper in town touched the story!

They had to shoot Max Baer to get him on page one—but Maxie didn't care! In fact, Maxie didn't even feel the "bullet" striking him!

more startled than the press-agent involved!

Dave Alber, a New York builder-upper who handles the Pickens Sisters, saw a radio romance turn out to be real recently, and now he's reported asking his friends: "What's this Dorothy Dix got that I haven't got more of?"

Alber sat at a stubborn typewriter one day with a headache and growing temper. He hadn't had an idea since nine o'clock that morning, when it had occurred to him that it was time to get up. Finally, in desperation, he wrote: "Patti Pickens and Bob Simmons have that love-light in their eyes." It was a good idea, except that Patti and Bob had never met. Of was no wealth of ready-made characters in Excelsior Springs, so Fizdale acted as his own casting-director.

He wanted a young man who would submit to being chained to a radiator in the home of his lady-love. He finally found the man—name, Harold Hulén. Next role to be filled was that of the unwilling sweetheart. That didn't take long, either. Name, Florence Hurlbut. The cast assembled, Fizdale had only to coach the actors in their lines, send them to their places, and ring up the curtain—by tipping the newspapers to "the first sit-down strike for love."

You know the rest. From Tuesday noon until Sunday, Hulén obligingly stuck by his radiator, posing in the Biggest "stunt" of the 1936 presidential campaign was Sen. Arthur Vandenberg's "debate with a record." You thought it real!

BETTE DAVIS ON RADIO THEATER

Danes To Celebrate King Christian's Anniversary

King Christian X will greet all his subjects and the descendants of Danes and Icelanders everywhere in one of the three programs commemorating the 25th anniversary of his succession, to be heard Saturday, May 15, over the NBC-Blue network.

The two programs from Copenhagen will reflect the festive gaiety of the celebrations in honor of "the greatest king of the smallest kingdom," the six-foot-six ruler of the two independent kingdoms of Denmark and Iceland, and the tiny, wind-swept Faroe Islands. Participating in them, besides the King, will be Premiers Th. A. M. Stauning and Hermann Jonasson and the students of the University of Copenhagen.

In the first program the two premiers will deliver the felicitations of their peoples to King Christian X, after which he will respond to the messages of fealty and wishes for a long reign. A five-minute resume of the speeches, in English, then will be given from Copenhagen.

This broadcast will be followed by one from the United States in which Otto Wadsted, Danish minister to the United States, will speak, and Lauritz Melchior, great Wagnerian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing. Representative Charles Bunderup of Nebraska and Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Arctic explorer and president of the Explorers Club, also will speak. This program will be relayed to Denmark by RCA Communications.

In the final program a brief address by the King will be heard and a word-picture of the university students in torchlight parade to the Royal Castle will be given by an NBC reporter.

Charles Winninger Signed for 'Hotel'

Charles Winninger, famed character actor, will make one of his rare Hollywood Hotel appearances on Friday, May 14, when he plays the principal role in preview scenes from the picture of J. P. McEvoy's play, "The Go-Getter," over the nation-wide WABC-Columbia network.

Anita Louise and George Brent will be in the brilliant supporting cast picked for the play, first produced at the Maxine Elliott Theater, New York, in 1926 with J. C. Nugent in the title role.

Musical portions of the program will feature the second appearance of the noted baritone singing star, Jerry Cooper, with Frances Langford, Anne Jamison, Igor Gorin and Raymond Paige and his music.

Star Will Play In 'Another Language'

Bette Davis, whose startling beauty and great dramatic talents have sent her soaring into the highest ranks of film and radio stars, will make another appearance on the Radio Theater Monday, May 17, this time in the leading role of the stage success, "Another Language."

Miss Davis' appearances on the air in the past—her last was the recent "Marked Woman"—have added tremendously to her already imposing stature as an actress. Her film success has been achieved in spite of her refusal to heed one of Hollywood's long-established maxims: Don't play unsympathetic roles. She first received outstanding plaudits for her part in "Of Human Bondage," an entirely unsympathetic role.

"Another Language," written by Rose Franken, depicts modern American family life. The Hallam family's trials and tribulations are revealed as the daughter-in-law makes an effort to escape the uniformity and boredom of the family life. In so doing she attempts to take her husband with her and meets with the objections of the entire family, headed by Mrs. Hallam.

Cecil B. DeMille will direct the program, of course, and guest stars, not yet signed at this writing, will appear. Monday, May 17—CBS
9 p.m. EDT (8 EST; 7 CST)

Urges Old Painters As Color Models

A boon to brides who can't decide how to decorate their new homes will be offered by Betty Moore, decoration authority, in her broadcast over the NBC-Red network Thursday, May 13.

Miss Moore has a unique plan: she proposes to shift the responsibility from the bride to one of the famed old masters—Rembrandt, Rubens, or Gainsborough, for instance.

"Select a famous painting," Miss Moore suggests. "Use it as a color chart for your living-room, bedroom, or dining-room. Match every color you use in the room, either for walls, woodwork or furnishings, to a color in the picture. It's a bride-proof plan."

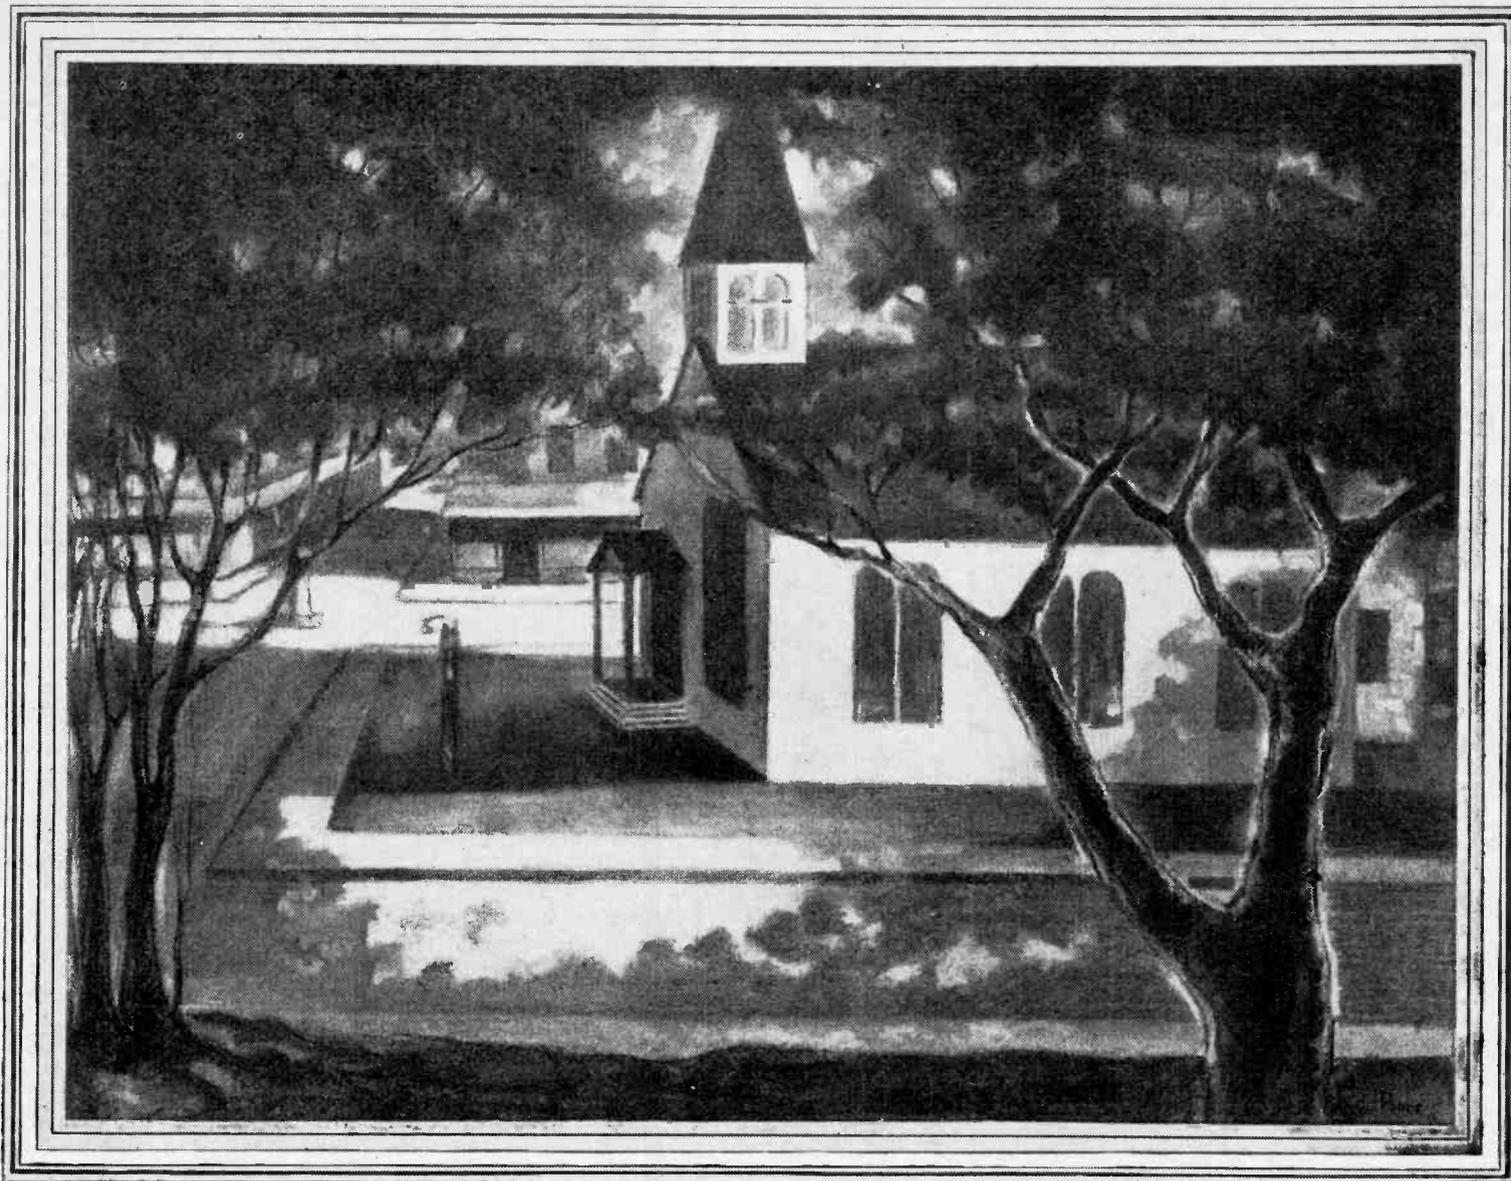

Miss Moore will give a list of paintings suitable for this use, and translate them into modern color schemes.

SMALL-TOWNERS IN BIG TOWNS

IF "HOME" TO YOU IS MERELY A WIDE
SPOT IN THE ROAD—DON'T BE ASHAMED, FOR YOU'RE IN THE BEST OF COMPANY!

BY KATHERINE ALBERT

IF YOU come from a little town, don't ever, ever again be ashamed of that fact. Don't, for instance, tell people you were born "near Chicago." No, sir, step right up and name the town and be proud of it.

For it takes the small-town boys and girls to show the city folk the meaning of success. If you hail from a "wide place in the road," throw out your chest, pat yourself on the back. You're in good company.

Small-town born myself, I'm thrilled to walk, geographically at least, with the great. With very few exceptions, heroes and geniuses grew to be big frogs in mighty little puddles. Now where, for instance, do you think Thomas A. Edison was born? In a little place called Milan, Ohio, listed today with a population of 678. Incidentally, Edison had but three months' schooling. Well, he did all right for himself.

And perhaps you're foggy enough on your history to suppose that Napoleon boasted Paris or Marseilles as his birthplace. Not much! Mr. Bonaparte first saw the light of day in the little village of Ajaccio in Corsica.

And what about Shakespeare? From the great city of London? No, ma'am. Why, you would never have heard of the tiny village, Stratford-on-Avon, had the genius not been born there.

Oh, we can throw out our chests, we small-towners. Burst a couple of buttons off our vests, too.

Now think of radio for a minute. Why, eighty percent of the radio-famous are small-towners. You've read their stories, you know where they come from and where they are going. With few exceptions they're from the sticks.

And this capture of the city by villagers is still going on. The newcomers, graduates of the year 1936, continue to prove that there is something in little towns that gives the lads who originate there something extra special in the way of backbone, nerve, resourcefulness or cleverness.

Now, I've been trying to analyze what it is that little towns have which makes success happen. Oh, you small-towners may complain. You may say, "every-one here is so narrow. Nobody understands what I'm trying to do." You may yearn for the "advantages of the city." All right, but that little place is going to give you the—well, there's no other word for it—the guts to fight, the stamina to see your career through. Somehow, I think, the bravery of the small town sort of gets in your bones. Those little places set out on the arid dust fields of Kansas, in the low swamps of Mississippi, on the great plains of Montana—the towns themselves are fighting valiantly for survival against the power and wealth and industrialism of the great cities. Like a sound-vibration on your radio, I think the village citizens pick up this courage, realize that they must fight, too, that both town and themselves may survive.

EVERY little town has its lessons to teach. Listen to some of the lessons learned by the new crop of successful radio entertainers.

The first who comes to mind is Willie Morris, who was born in the doggondest-sounding place on the map. It's called Mexico, Missouri, if you can think of anything more incongruous. It was, Willie explains with pride, "on the route to Mexico," which is how it got its name. How Missouri happened to be a port-of-call for Mexico, I was too weak to ask. Besides, Willie was telling me—with even more pride in her voice—that John B. Morris who founded the city was her great-grandfather.

Willie was determined to be a famous concert pianist. At Hardin College she studied with Professor Guerne, a charming little piano teacher who believed in her ability and taught her, besides five-finger exercises, how to appreciate good music.

Fritz Reiner—He'll direct "Richard the First" in New York

"The superhuman grandeur and beauty of Wagner's scores," as Mr. Gilman points out, "are dependent for complete realization on performances by an orchestra of capital quality; and this, as regards such portions of the scores as lie outside the usual repertoire of concert numbers, seldom comes to pass."

Fortunately, this occasion is an exception.

Not only is the Hollywood Bowl planning to include Wagner excerpts in its Summer concerts, but the wires from the film center carry the news that Kirsten Flagstad has agreed to appear in "The Big Broadcast of 1938." You will see her as Bruennhilde and hear her give the cry of the Walkyries, "Ho-Yo-To-Ho." Later, she will appear as Elisabeth in "Tannhaeuser," singing the air, "Dich, teure Halle."

Two other productions on the Stadium agenda that will bring many music-lovers to their microphones are Strauss' "Salome" and the controversial "Lady Macbeth of Mtzensk" by Dmitri Shostakovich. Both will be directed by Alexander Smallens. The title role of the Strauss music-drama will be sung by Erica Darbo, the Scandinavian dramatic soprano. These two performances are scheduled for July 1 and August 5.

It was good to hear Lawrence Tibbett sing the other evening and assert once again his supremacy among the baritones of our day. He may force his top tones and commit other exaggerations, but there is a sincerity, a compelling magnetism that rings true in his voice. I'd like to have heard a whole evening of his singing... and many more substantial thoughts than those contained in the story of what happens along "De Glory Road."

Some sponsor would do himself proud to bring Mr. Tibbett to us weekly... and, also, to keep before a microphone that long-lost fisherman-baritone, John Charles Thomas, who remains the finest vocalist among living singers.

Vivian Della Chiesa, a talented and rarely gifted young Italian artist, already well known to veteran listeners, makes her debut on the Magic Key hour this Sunday when it originates in Chicago. Miss Della Chiesa has a clear and beautiful soprano voice, perfectly produced. Her artistry reveals conscientious effort, a natural understanding of the music she sings, and an instinctive flair for doing the right thing at the right moment. She knows already the meaning of phrasing, of style... and she has something to say, though she does not always say it. With maturity, the proper atmosphere, and coaching under a great maestro, Miss Della Chiesa will surely become one of the great singers of our day.

SMITH

Those of you who missed Grete Stueckgold on Bing Crosby's program the other week will be sorry to know that she did not sing because her husband, Gustav Schuetzendorf, had died in Berlin a few hours before. Madame Stueckgold will broadcast, however, at a later date, and she may even remain on the West Coast this Summer in order to take part in a motion picture.

A Synopsis of The Metropolitan Opera

MIGNON

By Ambroise Thomas

May 15, 2 p.m. EDT (1 EST; 1 CDT; 12 noon CST; 11 a.m. MST; 10 PST)

NBC-Red Network

The Cast:

Mignon	- - -	Jennie Tourel
Philine	- - -	Josephine Antoine
Friederich	- - -	Maria Matyas
Wilhelm	- - -	Armand Tokyatan
Laertes	- - -	Desire Defrere
Lothario	- - -	Leon Rothier
Giarno	- - -	Norman Gordon

Conductor: Wilfred Pelletier

Mignon is considered by many connoisseurs to be the master-work of its composer, Charles Louis Ambroise Thomas. The son of a musician, Thomas demonstrated his genius early in life. In addition to the possession of formidable talents as a composer, Thomas was an artist, poet and writer in general. His work is distinguished by an arresting versatility, extreme fluency and great brilliance. Sometimes called a masterpiece within a masterpiece is the overture to Mignon.

The opera opens in the courtyard of a German inn. Wandering about singing to the merry drinkers is an old man, singing strange songs and playing upon a harp. It is Lothario, an Italian nobleman who has lost his memory.

He has forgotten her, but Lothario is the father of Mignon, stolen from her home in childhood and now forced by the Gypsy Giarno to dance in the streets for a living.

The Gypsy band appears, and Mignon rebels when she is ordered to dance for a troupe of actors. Giarno threatens to beat her. Lothario intervenes, but is unable to help the girl. Suddenly, however, Wilhelm enters and forces the Gypsy, at pistol point, to release Mignon. For this gallantry, he is applauded by the actors, and one of them is sent by Filina with a request that he visit them. Filina, of a designing nature, manages to attract Wilhelm, much to the annoyance of the young nobleman, Friederich.

The student, however, is at the moment more interested in the young Gypsy girl and questions her. She can tell him nothing except that she was kidnapped by the Gypsies in a far-away land. Deeply moved, Wilhelm "buys" the girl from her master. Filina is invited to go to the castle of Prince Tiefenbach. She invites Wilhelm to accompany her, and he in turn brings Mignon. Act II opens in Filina's boudoir in the Tiefenbach Castle to find Filina sitting before her mirror, lost in pleasant meditation of her charms and their newest conquest—Wilhelm. Wilhelm and Mignon enter, and the girl, appearing to go to sleep, sees her benefactor paying court to Filina, to whom he passes on a bouquet of flowers presented to him by Mignon herself. Filina and Wilhelm leave, and Mignon, thinking to equal the actress' charm, dons one of her gowns. Wilhelm reappears, this time with Friederich, and Mignon is forced to hide. The two men quarrel over Filina, and would have fought but for Mignon's interference. At this critical juncture, Filina enters, upbraids Mignon for presuming to wear her dress. The girl flees in tears.

In despair, believing her love for Wilhelm is hopeless, Mignon attempts to drown herself. She is prevented by Lothario, who listens sympathetically to her hysterical wish that she might descend from heaven and destroy the castle. The half-crazed man goes off muttering under his breath.

Meanwhile, the actors' performance having ended, they appear in the garden. Filina sings here the brilliant "Polonaise," an unusually difficult and showy coloratura air. When Mignon comes on the scene, Filina, in a rage, orders her into the castle to find the bouquet Wilhelm gave to her. She has barely entered the castle when fire breaks out—Lothario has set the castle ablaze. Wilhelm dashes into the flames to rescue the girl, brings her out unconscious.

In Act III, we find that Lothario, as if by instinct, has brought Mignon to Italy, and Wilhelm, now realizing his love for the girl, has followed them. Mignon is recovering from a serious illness, and early in this act Lothario sings to her the beautiful and unusual lullaby, "Ninna nanna." Wilhelm tells Mignon of his love in the beautiful "Elle ne croyait pas" ("Pure as a Flower").

Mignon cannot believe in this love, fearing Filina, and insisting that only Lothario loves her. At this point, Lothario's memory is miraculously restored. He mentions his lost daughter by name and Mignon recognizes the name as her own. Shortly afterward, she accepts Wilhelm's love, and the opera ends on this happy note.

Lawrence Tibbett—Some sponsor would do well to put him on the air

THE great wave of Wagnerian sound that engulfed the Metropolitan Opera House last Winter has now inundated the Lewisohn Stadium and swept over the horizon until it reached Hollywood. From both ends of the continent we are to hear Wagnerian Festivals this Summer.

For the first time in its twenty years' history, the Stadium concerts in New York will present the masterly dramas in sound of Richard the First. And they will be broadcast. That distinguished Wagnerian authority, Fritz Reiner (whom the Metropolitan would do well to gather into its fold), will direct. And we may expect to hear Mme. Florence Easton as Bruennhilde and Isolde; Goeta Ljungberg as Fricka; Paul Althouse as Loge, Siegmund, Siegfried, and Tristan; Dudley Marwick as Wotan in "Das Rheingold" and the Wanderer; Julius Heuhn as Wotan in "Die Walkuere," Gunther and Kurvenal; Edwina Eustis as Erda, and Kathryn Meisle as Brangaene.

The dates, in case you care to check them off, are:

Monday, July 12, "Das Rheingold."

Wednesday, July 14, "Die Walkuere."

Tuesday, July 20, "Siegfried."

Thursday, July 22, "Die Gotterdammerung."

Tuesday, July 27, "Tristan."

Mr. Reiner plans to play more of these scores than is usually heard on the concert platform. Since the transcendent glories of many of these pages are seldom disclosed, this may indeed be a rewarding experience for many a music-lover. The strings and wood and brass choirs of the Philharmonic - Symphony Orchestra are far superior to those of the Metropolitan Opera House ensemble. Like Mr. Lawrence Gilman, I too would "travel many miles just to hear the great orchestra reveal the heroic immensity of the music that prefaces Tristan's entrance into Isolde's tent—an orchestral invocation beside which... any singing actor might justifiably hesitate to set his own inevitably dwarfed and nugatory image."

CHICAGO.—Radio refuses to be monotonous. Several incidents and broadcasts during the past week have only gone to prove this contention. For example, two of those pruneful, boresome time-killers who regularly break in between programs to tell you what time it is, thereby causing you to glance at your watch to see how much it has gained or lost, brightened two recent nights at my radio dial. One of them announced the time just three hours less than it was; the other, beginning to spell the trade-name, managed to misspell the word—and after all these years! . . . And then, of course, Mikey Mouse of Bloomington, Illinois, brought home the cheese to the Midwest by winning the international singing-rodent competition. That's something . . . Even the studio audience seems to have caught the spirit. To wit, the announcer at a Nickelodeon program, introducing the various players, presented William Waterman and the actor received a nice round of applause. Then the clothes, and, in order that he might properly "go Hollywood," a blue beret, polo coat, and monogrammed white ascot.

Millions of you undoubtedly heard the confusion on the Jack Benny program several Sundays ago when improper switching at the network wire centers caused Helen Traubel to be sent to the stations ordinarily taking

NOT much in the way of hot news this week so I'll just give you an assortment of scrambled notes gathered from both coasts. The Sunday Evening Hour exits from the airplanes after the broadcast of June 13, with a scheduled return for the Fall . . . Sonja Henie, the girl who floats on ice skates with the greatest of ease, will guestar on the new Don Ameche show Sunday night, May 23 . . . Lesairing heard over the Mutual net . . . Last week I told you Fred Astaire may not return to the auto show in the Fall. Now they tell me Astaire isn't very much interested in radio at all and will not sign again for any show. When the Astaire show vacates the airplanes, Francia White plans a trip to Europe for a concert tour. Incidentally, the Joe Cook Chateau program, now heard on Saturday nights, moves into the Tuesday night spot left vacant by Astaire and his cronies . . . There aren't many air shows originating in Hollywood that broadcast without a studio audience, but Grace Moore is one star who wants to be alone. Thus, at her own request, it is said, the "no admittance" sign was put on her studio door . . . Grete Stueckgold was scheduled for an appearance on the Crosby show of April 29, but just before leaving for the studio, she received word that her husband had died in Berlin. She will appear on this show at a later date. Connie Boswell substituted on the show.

mikeman concluded by saying, "Mr. Waterman also is the voice of the Scorpion on the 'Don Winslow of the Navy' serial," whereupon the audience suddenly went hysterical with hisses and boos . . . Well, about the only suggestion I have to offer to make the ether waves nuttier is that it might be a good idea if Thomas Thomas, latest singing discovery of the airwaves, would have a romance with Simone Simon.

It happened when she leased a new apartment on Chi's near North Side Florence George, NBC's pretty new songstress, is not married. That's her mother's engagement and wedding rings she wears.

Arthur Godfrey, of the Prof. Quiz show, suggests that the audience organize a guild to defend its rights. The only trouble with the Professor's suggestion is that RADIO GUILD already has its own listeners' guild. Mr. Godfrey suggests a program for his guild which will be seconded by many. Among its objects are: (1) Log-rolling comedians will be forced actually to listen to one another's programs. (2) Radio sets will be equipped with studio audience eliminators. (3) Those maestros who insist upon cluttering up the late hours with blatant "swing" music will be required to swing for the rest of their lives—at the end of a rope. (4) The correct age of each gag must be announced before it is told on the air—because it is always proper to be kind to your elders.

Ventriloquist Edgar Bergen's Charlie McCarthy said that he was "simply exhausted" when he stopped in Chicago last week on his way to Hollywood. He was all prepared for the movie colony, too. He had fitted himself with an opera hat and full dress

You might be interested to know that at these main switchboards, of which there are several located across the continent, the two NBC networks are called red and blue (as you might have guessed), the CBS is called the gold network, and MBS is the purple network. To keep the maze of wires in these switchboards connected properly, colored threads are woven into the insulation about them.

She has bought herself a small car to dash in and out of the city for her broadcasts . . . This week finds Little Jackie Heller working from the NBC Chicago studios for the first time since his return from London. He is finishing a week's appearance at the Oriental Theater.

lie Howard, Ann Sothern, Leo Carrillo and Gene Raymond will appear on the Hit Parade programs in the order named, starting with the broadcast of May 22 and continuing through June 12 . . . There is a possibility that Jane Froman and Don Ross (Mr. and Mrs. in private life) may take over the Jack Benny program for the Summer.

"Show Boat" will set sail for its new home port in Hollywood and is scheduled to dock on or about July 1 . . . Carmela Ponselle leaves the "Broadway Varieties" July 2 and will head immediately for the same town . . . The Hollywood parade of the stars continues with Bert Lahr preparing to go westward. He'll still be heard on the Manhattan Merry-Go-Round from the Coast. This will be the first time this program switches to another studio to pick up part of the program.

My Hollywood snooper tells me that Bing Crosby's new contract will run well into 1940, with 36 weekly broadcasts a year at the tidy sum of $4,000 per airing with a graduated salary increase to $7,500 . . . They tell me Norman Brokenshire, the man who came back, will be the head man of a new show to replace the current Ray Knight-Arnold Johnson Sunday p.m.

INSIDE STUFF

Bob Burns will be vacation-bound very soon, but the bazooka-tooter will not tell anyone where he's going. He wants to be alone, which undoubtedly accounts for his instructions to the phone company to change his number and not to list it . . . Barbara Luddy of the "First Nighter" is also taking a trip but it isn't a vacation. The show leaves California after the broadcast of the 28th and moves east. Barbara is busy these days making the rounds of the Hollywood style shoppes, buying a complete new wardrobe.

Frances Langford, who is doing quite well minus her appendix, is expected back on the airplanes any week . . . Songstress Benay Venuta spent a lot of time in rehearsal for the show, "Orchids Preferred," only to have it closed by the censors. This happened outside of New York and it may open later in the Big City.

The absence of Father Barbour in "One Man's Family" is due to the sudden illness of J. Anthony Smythe, who plays the role. Mr. Smythe is expected to be confined in a hospital for several weeks but his condition is said not to be serious. The illness caused Carlton E. Morse, author, to work night and day to rewrite the programs before he departed on the China Clipper for the Orient. Morse had to rewrite several of the scripts.

Just before one of the Jack Benny shows in Hollywood recently, Jack was clowning in front of the audience. He spotted little Walda Winchell in the audience and cracked "hmm, so Walter's little girl, Walda, is here, gathering news for her famous father, no doubt." Little Walda was a bit startled, but Jack was more so when through the "mike" in the control room Walter Winchell's voice could be heard to ring out "No, she doesn't need to, Jack; I'm here myself!"

stead, she helped plan a new home, thought what Phil would like best for dinner. Once she had loved the excitement of the theater, the thought of a little star over her dressing-room door. As her girl grew to the toddling age and a baby boy came, these old ambitions seemed strange to her—and a bit unreal.

But once in a while, she still sang and danced for friends or at parties. She seemed to Phil so gifted, so exquisite that he was fearful. Some day she was bound to go back to the stage, he thought.

"Come on the air in my act," he began to urge her. "After all, you're a modern woman and the kids are well taken care of!" And that's how it happened you heard Peggy on Phil's broadcast last year.

"Still, it's lucky I did it," she admits, "because now both Phil and I are convinced how little such things mean to me."

Peggy's children are not only precious to her but "such fun." What song-and-dance routine could compare with helping them grow up to become well-rounded, happy people?

"I think the most frequent mistake of my kind of woman," ended Peggy, "is to become too absorbed in her children. Phil and I go off on little trips without the babies sometimes. Parents need vacations from their children, now and then, to remain true lovers."

Tall, golden-haired Helen Jepson, who is at once so poised and so primitive, is one of the few celebrated women who has a child and an adoring husband, and who has never been divorced.

"The first rule," she says, "is to pick out a he-man for a husband. And one who will use his strength to fight for you, not against you. If you're to be serene enough for really happy motherhood, eager enough for really romantic wifehood, vital enough for really distinguished work, there's simply not enough left over for good fights with your husband!"

Helen married George Possell when she was still studying at Curtis Institute. Before she met her husband, she wasn't sure she was going to amount to a lot as a singer. She only knew she must give her utmost to the attempt. Even before they married, George Possell built up her self-confidence.

They both feel that the hours he spent coaching her during the first days of their marriage are some of the happiest they ever have experienced.

When Helen was graduated from Curtis, an impresario, whose name spells glamor and power to ambitious young singers the world over, asked Helen to let him hear her sing.

"It's a great opportunity, Helen!" George said.

Helen threw back her golden locks with a little gesture of abandon. "If I go to see him and he likes my voice, it means giving myself up to working and studying from now on," she said. "It means letting others care for my baby. Let's put off my career for this one glorious year, and drink our life together to the full!"

This little episode gives you the keynote to Helen Jepson's attitude toward her marriage. She did—she almost always does—what her husband would dream of seeing her do, but wouldn't demand of her.

"I don't like to set up as a sage," laughs Helen, "but since you ask me, I think many talented women often fail as wives because they lack balance. You must never frustrate the woman for the worker. And you mustn't frustrate your husband either. If he's a real man he wants to protect you, sometimes even boss you. It's fun to let him! A famous woman, most of all, must give her husband's masculine ego its due!"

UNDER-WATER BROADCAST

BY JERRY MALCOLM

FIFTY-EIGHT feet below the surface of Lake Michigan, two Milwaukee deep-sea divers conversed with each other and their surface-boat crew one recent Saturday afternoon, while engineers of WTMJ, the Milwaukee Journal station, broadcast their movements and conversations over the Coast-to-Coast NBC-Blue network. It was the "American Dress Rehearsal" of the Lusitania Salvage Expedition, and the first submarine broadcast of this type in radio history.

The broadcast was originally conceived as a special-event show for WTMJ listeners. So great was its interest, however, that the network wanted it for the nation's listeners and newsreel companies fought for the privilege of recording the action. From the deck of the Coast Guard Cutter Antietam, a portable short-wave transmitter relayed the signal to WTMJ's hunting activities a definite possibility.

The problem of the recovery of the vast treasure that went to the bottom when the great super-liner was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland on May 7, 1915, has baffled and intrigued divers ever since that time. The great depth of the location was only one problem: first, the Lusitania had to be found! That discovery did not come until very recently, with the perfection of a new type of sounding instrument. Irish seamen who had watched the vessel sink, were also called into service.

THE equipment used was a medium, low-frequency, broadcast relay transmitter, WJER, with an output of seven and one-half watts. The talk-back circuit was a seven and one-half watt ultra-high frequency broadcast relay transmitter, W9XAZ, while the short-wave station several miles away in Milwaukee, and thence to the WTMJ transmitter. After half an hour of successful operation, the program was switched to the WTMJ main control-board, where it was put into the NBC-wire to Chicago and then broadcast on the national hook-up.

RUSS WINNIE, WTMJ announcer, stationed on the Antietam, and the two divers, their suits equipped by WTMJ engineers with built-in headsets and microphones to replace speech equipment formerly used by Admiral Byrd, carried on a three-way conversation for listeners' entertainment. The success of the entire broadcast depended on the continuous operation of a small one-cylinder gasoline engine which WTMJ engineers set up on the Antietam's deck to supply power for the transmitter on the boat. Without any loss in quality of reception, the broadcast was transmitted through six different relays until finally heard by listeners throughout the country. With the exception of a momentary break, when rolling of the boat interrupted the gasoline supply for the generator motor, the broadcast was flawless.

The divers were Max Nohl and Captain John Craig, who tested their newly invented diving suit with which they expect to reach the wreck of the Lusitania next month to recover its $20,000,000 in sunken treasure. The broadcast test proved their invention to be a decided success and the experience of WTMJ engineers made broadcasts of the coming Lusitania treasure-speech circuits consisted of a Western Electric 22A amplifier and three Western Electric 633A microphones. A rather peculiar line-up of speech equipment was used because each of the two diving-helmets was equipped with both headphones and microphones, all working off a common amplifier. Since the nature of the diving test prohibited the use of a number of cables for communication, a four-wire shielded cable was used with each diving-dress. The program line which fed the headphone circuits was also used to feed the newsreel sound equipment.

The microphones were built as an integral part of the breathing tubes in the divers' helmets. The headphones were fitted into skull caps worn as part of the diving-suit. During the entire broadcast, all microphones were open so that the two divers under water and the announcer on deck could converse with each other.

Pardon Us, Please!

SMALL-TOWNERS IN A BIG TOWN

Everyone in the town believed in Willie, but—with the exception of her father and mother—the one who inspired her most was Fred Pilcher, her father's best friend, who owned the jewelry and phonograph store.

At Christmas time she helped Fred out, but mostly what she did was to play all those old disc records on the Edison. And between sales of stick-pins and signet rings Fred would come running back to her and say, "Listen to that voice, Willie—that's Anna Case. Isn't she great?" And when a piano piece would come on he would turn to her with, "Some day, Willie, some day I'll be hearing you on those records."

"It was that wonderful faith and assurance," Willie said just the other day, "that actually made it possible for me to do what little I've done. Why, everybody in Mexico was so sure that I was going to be a success that I—well, I just couldn't let them down."

"I knew everybody in town and everybody was expecting me to go out in the world and amount to something. And because they believed in me I believed in myself. When I did get out in the world I had an assurance that appalls me now but which helped me tremendously. It never occurred to me that I could fail—with Fred Pilcher and all of Mexico behind me. I didn't stop to think how prejudiced they were in my favor. No, sir. They thought I was good so I had to be good. That's what a small town does for you. It gives you confidence like nothing else in the world."

But Willie Morris was born on the right side of the tracks. Her father was president of the First National Bank and everybody loved Willie.

As a direct antithesis of her story, take that of Stuart Churchill, the charming tenor. He's grateful to a little town, too, but for a very different reason. It was through bitterness and despair that he has succeeded.

Stuart comes from Long Island, Kansas—a village of two hundred souls—set right down in the wheat-fields. Naming the town for an island was a sorry joke, what with the water supply running low every year.

STUART'S folks were pitifully poor, but as a kid he didn't bother about it. He knew, of course, that the people in the other part of town had bigger houses, and that they ate fried chicken every Sunday. But that was the way the things were and he accepted it. He did not taste bitterness until one day when a pal snubbed him because he lived west of the water-tank.

Stuart braved out his hurt before the other boys, but that night he walked alone and turned his eyes to the stars. Digging his toe into the dust he muttered: "Doggone him. Doggone him. I'll show him. I'll show 'em all. I'm as good as any of them."

He might have stayed in that town for the rest of his life and fought dust storms if it hadn't been for that. Out of his bitterness and hurt his ambition was born.

Last year he went back to the old home town as a distinguished radio star, was honor-guest at a large reception.

From the little town of Lakeland, Florida, Frances Langford learned a great lesson. Fired on her memory is this thought: People accept you for what you are, not for past glories.

Frances was the most popular girl in her class when she was in high school. Tiny, friendly, generous, she was asked everywhere and made every local occasion a success. Although she was too vitally interested in her musical career to have hundreds of dates, she still never lacked for an escort. And everybody thought she was swell.

"Who'll do the solo this Sunday?" the minister would ask.

"Why, Frances, of course."

"Who'll we have for entertainment at the senior tea?" the chairman of the social committee would say.

"Well, no one is better than Frances Langford," the principal would answer.

Then came the learning of her lesson. She had promised to sing the church solo. Although she was still weak from a tonsilectomy, she insisted upon keeping her promise and—fully confident—she rose for the morning anthem.

She opened her mouth to sing. And, to her utter horror, only a horrible squawk came out of her throat. Shaking, she tried again. Nothing happened. She had lost her voice completely. It was all she could do to reach home, where she threw herself on her bed and sobbed for hours. She knew, at that moment, that her singing career was over.

"People told me how sorry they were," she said, recounting the story, "but after a while I noticed that I was becoming a back number. They liked having me around well enough but they had forgotten that I ever had talent. I was tops when I was Frances Langford, the singer. Now I was just Frances Langford, and although I still held a place in the social sun it was getting dimmer by the minute."

THAT was when she realized that past glories don't count. It was then she determined to work harder than ever before to win back her lost laurels, to be tops and stay there. She did work, like the trouper she is. She is still working. Even though her place seems assured she still studies. She knows she can't sit back and rest on what she has done before. Today she realizes there is a lot more for her to learn and her small town taught her that. She might not have known it had she been city-born (since the smallness of the town concentrated the attitude) until it was too late.

I'm sure you can just hear Bob Burns draw out his lesson. "Jes' be yoreself." That's what a small town taught him. In fact, it changed the tide of his career and pointed the way to his success.

When he left Van Buren, Arkansas—population 5,000—he got a job in vaudeville, and with very lean success toured tank-towns as a blackface comedian.

During his slim years he happened to go back to Van Buren. His friends back home were—unlike himself—happy and successful. There was Slim Dobbs, who ran the store. Well sir, he'd chime in on all the local gossip with the lads gathered in that impenetrable semi-circle around the stove. There was Miss Sophie Meadows, the town's dressmaker, who had been making the same dress patterns for years without a single nod toward Paris or New York or Hollywood. Everybody was just being himself without any pretense.

Bob Burns sat down on a split-bottom chair and thought this over. "Why, it's plain as the nose on your face," he said to himself. "Jes' be natural."

He dropped the blackface act—he had been imitating every blackface comedian he had ever seen—and emerged as plain Bob Burns of Van Buren, Arkansas, and—well, you know the success story from there on.

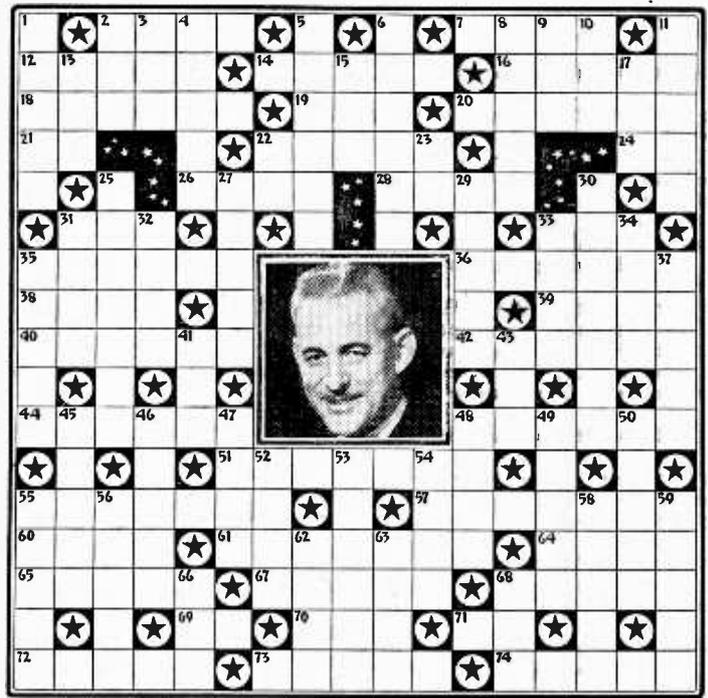

Speaking of general stores reminds me of Budd Hulick of Stoopnagle and Budd. He learned the lesson of perseverance from a little town.

Budd comes from Asbury Park in New Jersey, a typical small town in Winter, a resort in Summer. There he knew a man who had a little store that was always on the verge of bankruptcy. The man's name was James or Jones—Budd can't remember—but it isn't important.

Another guy would have given up, but this little fellow kept open by working after store hours and taking a job during the Winter. He would skimp and save, and for four years he would get enough money in the Winter to open the store in the Summer and lose it all.

One Winter he worked extra hard

Solution to puzzle given last week and hired two soda-jerkers who were past masters at their art. Why, they could toss ice cream as if they were jugglers and pour malted milks from a height of six feet without spilling a drop. Since they demanded higher wages, the store owner had to work after hours to meet their salary checks. But the two boys attracted a lot of attention and presently it became the fad among the "Summer people" to go to this store for sodas.

WHEN the man sold out to move to another town and open a bigger, better place, Budd was on hand to say good-by. Jones, or James—whatever his name—all smiling and happy—put his hand on Budd's head and said: "Don't let anybody tell you it's just luck that gets you to the top."

I could go on and on, for the small-towners in radio are legion. Glen Gray boasts of Metamora, Illinois—707 by actual count. Then there's Bob Trout of Wakefield, North Carolina, the county seat of Wake County with 152 inhabitants. Dick Powell comes from Mt. View, Arkansas, with a population of 458, and the Lane Sisters are from Indianola, Iowa—oh, a big place of 3,488. They sang at Christian Endeavor when they lived there.

And all of them agree that small towns have taught them lessons they'll never forget, have given them backgrounds that no money could buy.

But Red Nichols, the orchestra leader from Ogden, Utah, sort of summed it up when he said, "Small towns teach the lesson of 'give and take.'"

"Everybody is neighborly in a little town. If your neighbor runs out of sugar, he doesn't hesitate to come around and ask you for some. You do the same thing. If someone is ill, the whole town rallies 'round to help."

"I followed that same idea, even after I got out into the world in show business, and I've found it works. You get what you give in this life. If you are friendly and reasonable—willing to meet the other fellow halfway—he'll treat you the same way."

And today on hundreds of Main Streets there are hundreds of boys and girls who will be the celebrities of the future, who will go out into the world and make great names for themselves—"bring honor to the town," as the local newspapers will put it.

Bring honor to the town? Say, thank your lucky stars you have a small-town background. And right now, before you've gone out into the world, take everything that town has to offer. Know its people. Learn its lessons. You'll never regret it.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letter-forum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Radio Guide will pay $10 for the best letter published each week and $5 for the next best. Other letters deserving our readers' attention also will be published.

RADIO CIVICS ($10 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: A very small percentage of the American public really understands the delicate, intricate operations of our governmental machinery. What is needed is a varied radio program, explaining the civic affairs of our America, a short sketch, for instance, showing how a proposal becomes a law. The long, hard procedure that is necessary to pass a bill through the House of Representatives, and then the Senate. Air a series of programs giving the operations of Congress in full detail. In other words, inform the American public as to what is happening "behind the scenes" in our Capital. Give them a civic education, so that the voters may discuss the affairs of our government intelligently, thereby creating better citizens, and decreasing the ever-increasing danger of Communism in America.—Kenneth Tottenhoff, Marshalltown, Iowa.

TO ENTERTAIN CHILDREN ($5 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: A few weeks ago, becoming annoyed with my twelve-year-old son for missing the first part of his evening meal to listen to a favorite program, I requested him to turn the radio loud enough to be heard in the dining-room and come to the table. As a result of this action I found out some things about children's programs that I had not before known.

A boy and girl, in terrible danger, were creeping up a stairs, hushing each other with very loud whispers. Suddenly some creature discovered them, and the screams and shouted warnings began, to end abruptly in a horrible silence. When this had lasted until one's nerves had nearly reached the breaking-point (it was wonderful timing), there were more screams and shrieks. At last there was a bone-crushing thud, a groan, and the program, mercifully, was over for that day. During all this, my son, who knows all about microphones, scripts, sound-effects and radio stages one can learn from pictures and reading in RADIO GUIDE, sat, tense and actually pale, staring straight ahead and seemingly seeing the whole thing. The young son of a friend became very ill upon listening to one of these programs immediately after eating his supper, and he too understands something of broadcasting. A child's imagination is so very vivid that this knowledge plays little part in his acceptance of a program during the program. There are many skillful men and women writing for the radio. I would like to see some of them turn their attention to the writing of more acceptable children's programs; such programs would probably be more difficult to write, but I think they would be worth the effort.—Mrs. R. H. Gleason, Topeka, Kansas.

REVERSE ENGLISH

Voice of the Listener: Not long ago, I sent a card to a radio sponsor asking for a certain song. The reply came, signed by the singer himself. The letter began: "Dear —" (using my first name) "Was so glad to receive your letter asking for a song. Anytime you want to hear a song I will be only too glad to sing it for you. I am so glad you like my program—" it went on, with more of the same thing. At the end, "Do let me hear from you again. This is only the beginning and I will be thinking of you when I sing." The letter made me pretty angry,

I admit, and perhaps the radio performers feel the same way when they get silly letters from strangers. But after all, their bread and butter depends somewhat on our reaction to their charms so they should deal gently with us and not expose our weaknesses to the public gaze.—Mrs. E. L. Grover, Middletown, N. Y.

PRO . . .

Voice of the Listener: Most of the good continued dramatizations such as Betty and Bob, Bachelor's Children, Pretty Kitty Kelly, Today's Children, Just Plain Bill and David Harum are on in the morning when we are busiest with our work. Usually we are in the part of the house farthest from the radio.

It would be a fine thing to have some of these programs on in the afternoon when we have time to sit down, relax and really enjoy them.—Miss Helen Cooper, Waterman, Illinois.

. . . AND CON

Voice of the Listener: I'll wager a goodly sum that if Mr. Marconi had known about some of the programs that would be presented over his radio, he would have thought twice before inventing it.

During the hours between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. the majority of programs are fit for the ears of morons only. The main theme in these programs is either "the little girl in the big city," "the infernal triangle" or "misunderstood love." Why don't the writers of these sketches realize that the radio listeners have enough troubles of their own and want real entertainment from their radios. It appears to me many fine programs could be formed along the lines of "Vic and Sade" and "Lum and Abner." These two programs are among my favorites. I feel very sorry for the radio operators who have to listen to such trash as "Betty and Bob" and "Backstage Wife."—Floyd Mott, Beloit, Wisconsin.

CONTESTITIS

Editor—VOL: I'm sure many folks will agree with me when I suggest that a certain time over the air the subject of contesting be discussed. I do believe it is a subject that would be of interest from Coast to Coast. Contesting is almost becoming a real profession. Certainly we'd like to hear more about it.

RADIO GUIDE has been publishing some interesting articles about contests in the past, and I, for one, would like more of them. We have almost everything else discussed over the radio, and I'm sure a talk every now and then on "Contestitis" would be met with cheers.—Mrs. W. E. Baldwin, West Liberty, Iowa.

AMERICAN APPRECIATION

VOL: A badly spoiled and pampered people we are—we Americans. How quickly we take for granted the luxuries of life. Less than fifteen years ago we got a big kick sitting hunched over a small radio set with a pair of ear-phones giving us a headache . . . now and then catching the strains of a usually rather bad jazz orchestra through the rumble and roar of much static.

Today—reclining deep in an easy chair we reach idly over and turn ever so gently a little button—almost instantly the program of the moment comes to us—clearly and distinctly. And—what of the program? Well, regardless of the type . . . whether it be musical, dramatic or a comedy . . . singer or commentator . . . you can almost always be sure it will be tops; the best talent available at the present time. Programs prepared painstakingly and carefully in every detail with only one idea in mind—to please a listening public. WHAT an order!

Now—aren't we as a people unappreciative? We criticize so unfairly—petty, personal things. True, there are probably programs, a part of which may be objectionable in some way, but the same goes for all our other great sources of entertainment and instruction. For instance, reading material available in public libraries or on sale, newspapers, movies, etc. So why pick on radio? Discriminate if you like—listen to only those programs which appeal to you but be more tolerant in your criticism of the other . . . Remember somebody likes them or they wouldn't be on the air.

Considering the newness of radio, the strides it has made is more than remarkable. So—let's pass the orchids to the great minds behind the broadcasting companies, to the talent who give us program after program, the very best that they have—and to the sponsors who make the programs possible.—E. Mann, Greensboro, N. C.

DUMPLINGS

RADIO GUIDE, Editors: . . . I have been married 16 years and never did make dumplings until Saturday—and could you guess? "Your Magic Chef" persuaded me to make them with my spare ribs and his directions . . . —Mrs. C. F. Crabtree, Fort Worth, Tex.

That south sea island smile

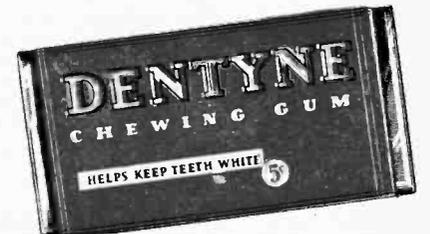

Island belle with the famed beauty of the South Seas—how much of her charm lies in the gleaming perfection of her smile! Her teeth are kept beautifully sound and white by healthful exercise on rough, primitive fare. The foods of civilization are softer, more refined—they furnish teeth and gums with too little exercise.

WE CIVILIZED FOLK NEED DENTYNE!

It works in Nature's own way to help keep teeth sound and white. Dentyne's specially firm consistency invites vigorous, healthful chewing-exercise. It stimulates circulation in gums and mouth-tissues — polishes — cleanses. Helps keep your mouth healthy — teeth white.

ITS FLAVOR'S A TREAT! Spicy yet smooth — taste it and you'll know at once why it's so popular! Notice the fashionably flat shape of the package (exclusive Dentyne feature)—just right to carry in pocket or handbag.

BY CHAS. A. MORRISON, president, INTERNATIONAL DX-ER'S ALLIANCE

(Figures in Parentheses Are Megacycles)

STARTING on about April 20, a blanket of silence began to slowly enshroud the short waves. By April 24, all stations in Europe and the powerful United States broadcasters were either totally inaudible or at the best very weak. Even the 20-meter amateur band, often good when all other bands are poor, was dead. South American stations alone continued to break through the magnetic curtain and even these were much below normal strength. This wipe-out of short-wave signals continued unabated until April 29, when the more powerful transmitters again began to filter through. Conditions are slowly returning to normal and on Tuesday, May 3, Asiatic and Australian stations again were evident. This strange phenomenon is blamed on unusual activity of the Northern Lights by some. Others claim a peculiar magnetic disturbance in the upper stratas was responsible, but at least we do know this was no local condition, for Eugene Darlington, director of short-wave broadcasting for General Electric Company, reports that on April 30, during the course of a two-way contact with VK2ME in Sydney, Australia, officials of that station noted similar conditions.

The secretary of the Hong Kong Broadcasting Committee, who is an official of ZBW in Hong Kong, writes that experimental transmissions have been completed and no longer will verifications be given.

With the introduction of the new Daventry transmitters, more frequencies have been made available. The following new schedule of transmissions is now in effect: 5:45 to 8:55 a.m. EST (4:45 to 7:55 a.m. CST) over GSJ, GSH, GSG and GSO; 9:15 a.m. to 12 noon EST (8:15 to 11 a.m. CST) over GSJ, GSH, GSG and GSF; 12:20 to 4 p.m. EST (11:20 a.m. to 3 p.m. CST) over GSG, GSI, GSD and GSB; 4 to 6 p.m. EST (3 to 5 p.m. CST) over GSG, GSO, GSF and GSB; 6:20 to 8:30 p.m. EST (5:20 to 7:30 p.m. CST) over GSP, GSO, GSD and GSB; 9 to 11 p.m. EST (8 to 10 p.m. CST) over GSI, GSD, GSC and GSB, and 12 mid. to 2:15 a.m. EST (11 p.m. to 1:15 a.m. CST) over GSG, GSO, GSD and GSB (see the Short Wave Log for frequencies).

TOO late for inclusion in last week's column, comes news by airmail that Gremio dos Radiofilos, at Laurence Marques, Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, will broadcast a special program for members of the International DX-ers Alliance and other short-wave listeners in North America on Friday, May 14, at 8 p.m. EST (7 p.m. CST) over its twin transmitters CR7AA (6.137) and CR7BH (11.718). This is the first DX broadcast ever transmitted from South Africa especially for North American listeners. Reports, which will be eagerly welcomed, should be sent to P. O. Box 594, Gremio dos Radio Filos, Laurence Marques, Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa.

L. Cavileer, Haddon Heights, N. J., writes that RAU (7.525), Tashkent, U.S.S.R., may be heard at present calling RNE (12), Moscow, at 3 a.m. EST (2 a.m. CST). The station then plays phonograph recordings until 3:45 a.m. EST (2:45 a.m. CST), at which time a contact is made with RV15 (4.273), Khabarovsk, U.S.S.R.

R. B. Oxrieder, State College, Penn., reports the following notes: HJ1ABB, Baranquilla, Colombia, is now operating on 4.779 megs and HJ2ABC, Cucuta, Colombia, on 4.787 megs; YV5RI, relaying YV5RJ, "La Voz de L'Esfera," Caracas, is now on 6.255 megs; Radio Guardia Civil of Tetuan, Morocco, on 6.508 megs, is being heard from 7 to 8 p.m. EST (6 to 7 p.m. CST).

CBS will also cover the spectacular total eclipse of the sun on June 8. From a base camp high in the Peruvian Andes, a commentary will be short-waved to the world.

Clyde Criswell, Mission Ranch, Phoenix, Ariz., again breaks into the news—this time with a verified reception of W10XV, mobile broadcasting unit of NBC, which at the time was cruising around the Newark airport. The power was only 25 watts and the aerial consisted only of an eight-foot aluminum rod projecting vertically above the roof of the car. The supposed transmission range of this transmitter is 25 to 30 miles. . . . The new Chicago NBC mobile unit, spick and span in its blue and silver paint, will short-wave its first scoop on Derby Day. The sedan can cruise at 60 miles an hour and is so designed that a man can drive and announce at the same time. The transmitters installed in the car consist of a 50-watt intermediate frequency rig for stationary broadcasts and a 40-watt ultra-high frequency outfit for mobile work.

Russell Leader, of San Francisco, states that Federal station XEXS (6.2), Mexico D.F., broadcasts an all-Spanish program daily from 10 p.m. to 12 mid. EST (9 to 11 p.m. CST). International reply coupon is not needed for verification.

ALL reports on Soviet transmissions addressed to the English Section of Radio Center, Moscow, U.S.S.R., will be verified. It is not necessary to enclose international reply coupon. Mr. Petrov, editor, states that the long delay in answering letters of recent months was due to the avalanche of reports received. . . . RAN (9.6), Moscow, is soon to have new directional aeriels, which, the officials hope, will strengthen its broadcasts.

Deems Taylor (above), eminent music commentator, for his Philharmonic-Symphony Intermission discussions—and now again for thrilling musical experiments he presents on his own show!

Benny Goodman and his hottest of all swing bands. With the world dancing at his feet while he plays his torrid clarinet, Benny remains modest almost to the point of timidity. He first won radio fame on the old "Dance Parade" series, now goes collegiate weekly for his "Jack Oakie's College" music!

We Applaud

THEIR AIR ENTERTAINMENT HAS WON CHEERS FROM YOU — RADIO'S SUPREME CRITICS!

Charlie Butterworth, his wife and their two pet pups. Charlie regularly steals the show in his appearances on Fred Astaire's hour—but nicely! His impersonation of age is strictly an act—and his muddling simplicity covers a mind trained for the bar!

Let's Go Partying with MARK WARNOW

RADIO GUIDE TAKES YOU ON AN EXCLUSIVE PHOTOGRAPHIC TOUR OF MAESTRO WARNOW'S "YOUR HIT PARADE" PARTY!

1 Don't be alarmed—that's only ginger ale in front of lovely Jane Froman and maestro Al Goodman. Jane's husband—baritone Don Ross—attended the party, too!

4 Bob Haring, bandsman and one of the alternating Hit Parade maestros, is talking it over with a friend in a quiet corner. Haring's not a newcomer to the airwaves, having directed orchestras on fourteen commercial programs in ten years

3 Mark Warnow staged a supper dance immediately following his premiere as maestro of the Hit Parade and here's the host in white tie and tails taking time out from his guests to put an arm around Mrs. Warnow. This is the first time she has ever been photographed with her famed hubby!

5 Announcer Andre Baruch of Your Hit Parade program smiles as he glides over the floor with Cora Shepard, CBS hostess, to Warnow's music. Was born in France, speaks seven languages, is one of Columbia's youngest regular announcers

6 Billie Bailey, pretty CBS singer, is the smiling and popular young lady dancing with Irving Reis, director of the CBS Workshop dramas. Tut, tut, Mr. Reis, didn't you want your picture taken?

When JACK BENNY Came Home to Waukegan

A CITY CHEERED, FETED, WHEN THE HOME TOWN BOY WHO MADE GOOD CAME HOME

2 "Good old Waukegan," says Comedian Jack as he looks the signpost over. He's just a home-town boy who made good in the great world returned to the scene of his boyhood!

Amidst the blare of trumpets, the tooting of horns and the tramp of marching feet, Waukegan staged a welcome home celebration for its beloved son—Jack "The Bee" Benny!

3 At the City Hall Jack was greeted by former school chum Mayor Mancel Talcott. The Mayor occupied a desk adjoining that of the future comedian in primary school and at Waukegan High — was one of Benny's staunchest backers during his feud with Fred Allen!

4 The Benny troupe en route to Waukegan, Illinois, where Jack was feted by home town citizens in a day-long celebration. Left to right: Timid Tenor Kenny Baker, Jovial Announcer Don Wilson, suave Jester Jack, Poetress Mary Livingstone and Script-Writer William Morrow

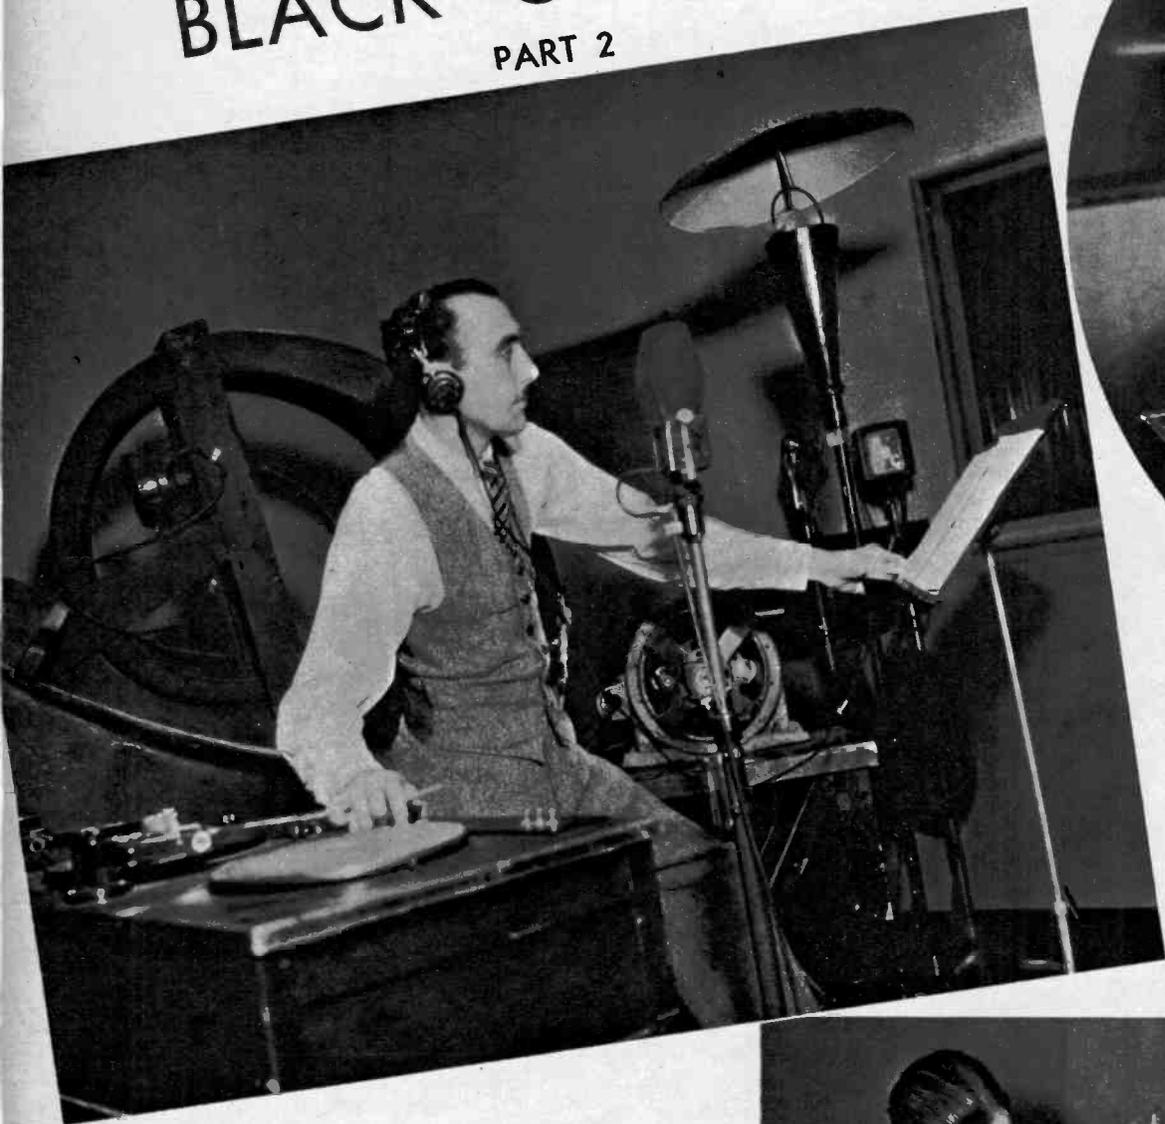

5 Throngs, anxious to see their honor guest, milled around Jack when he came home. But he found time during the day to visit many of his soldier friends and get a shave from his favorite barber in the Waukegan Barber Shop

6 "Buck Benny" handled the spade when an elm tree was planted in his honor in front of the City Hall. Jack was guest at a luncheon, a mass meeting, a dinner dance—was back-slapped by his old buddies!

UNMASKING RADIO'S BLACK CHAMBER

PART 2

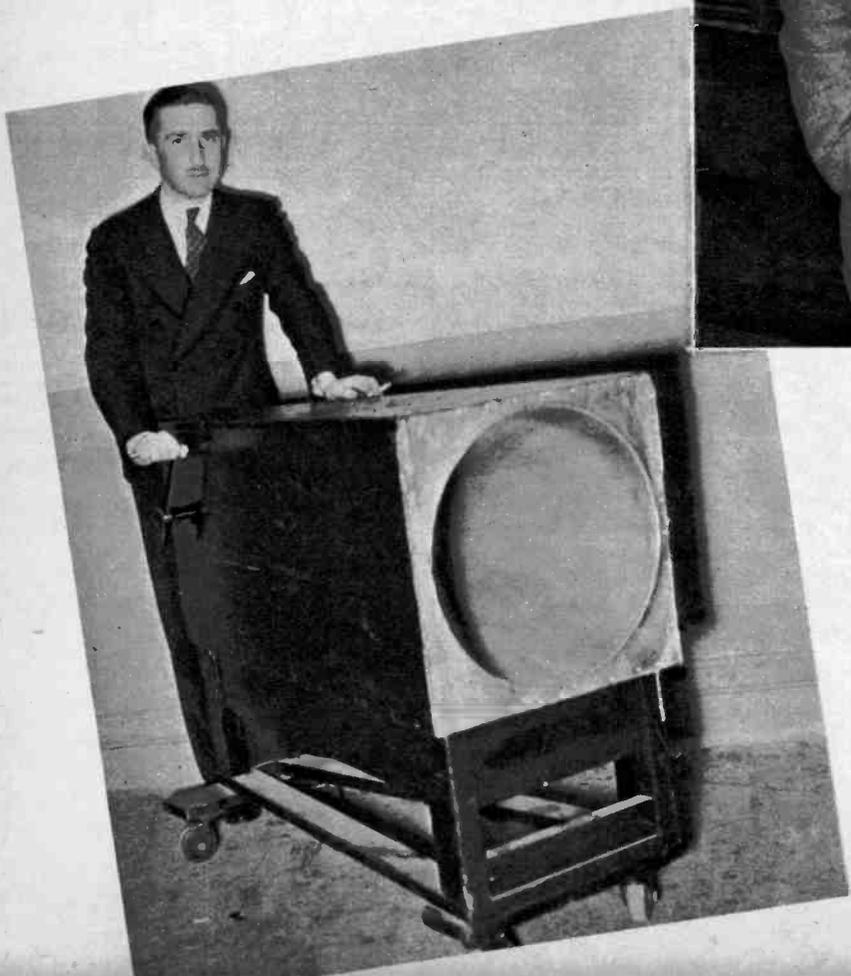

Here's Eric Don Pam of NBC actually at work on a show. Carefully marked, the script on the stand before him indicates every sound he must make and when it must be made. Around him, at arm's length, is the equipment necessary for this show. The turntable at his right produces crowd noises and trains, best made by recordings

Above: Here Engineer Al Van Brakle of Columbia's sound-effects department produces the sound of a railroad car, vintage 1880. He's using a heavy iron disk on wheels, rotating it rapidly to make the clickety-clack, clickety-clack of an old-time railroad car bumping over a rough track

Above: Robert Stone of NBC demonstrates some of the uses of broom-corn. Uncut broom-corn can be used to simulate the sound of a person walking through underbrush, the sound of a comfortable, crackling little camp-fire, or a roaring forest fire. Dexterity in the manipulation of the corn is essential, of course, and many rehearsals are necessary to perfect the sound

Here's one type of wind machine. Ray Kelly, NBC sound ace, is the demonstrator. Constructed in the fashion of the familiar wind tunnel used in testing airplane models, this machine produces the sound of any kind of wind, from the eerie whisper of a night breeze to the howl of a full gale. Mounted on wheels, it can be easily moved from studio to studio

Ray Kelly again, this time atop an 18-foot ladder. He's about to drop a heavy iron disk to produce the most grisly sounds known to man—the sound of a man falling from a great height. In his hands, he is poised to hurl it to the floor near the microphone

AGAIN RADIO GUIDE TAKES YOU
BEHIND CLOSED DOORS TO REVEAL
HIDDEN SECRETS OF THE MYSTERY
MEN OF RADIO—THE SOUND-CREWS!

Above: Mrs. Ora Nichols, of the Columbia sound-effects staff, works a telegraphic "bug" key. One of the few women in the sound game, Mrs. Nichols is one of the best. Notice the compressed-air tanks in the background. They're used for a number of sounds. Left: Peach baskets, for a wood-splintering sound, and broom-corn Foot ladder, ready to produce one of the effects of a human body smashing to earth. In the foreground is a small ripe pumpkin. Kelly is using a microphone. Rehearsal here is very messy!

WALTER and BERT LAWSON

Ray Kelly takes a look into his rain machine. Above the box is a hopper filled with bird-seed. The seed drops down onto the disk, which can be seen on a level with Kelly's head. A wind-shield wiper brushes it off to fall on a triangular shaped board which scatters it. The seed then falls onto several surfaces of different height, rattles on the ping-pong ball!

Right: SOS! The S.S. "Dixie" is aground on a reef off the French coast. In this scene—from a recent "March of Time" broadcast—you see production of wind and wireless. Jimmy Rinaldi, holding a drumhead filled with sand, is making the swishing crash of surf against the doomed ship and the beach. In the rear, Ora Nichols taps out an SOS on her wireless

LIFE

A STAR IS BORN—AND
WE PRESENT HER LIFE
STORY—IN PICTURES!

MURIEL WILSON, lyric coloratura, was born in New York City and has spent most of her life in the shadows of Manhattan's skyscrapers. Her mother came to America from England when but thirteen years old and her father is a native New Yorker. Muriel has two brothers—Donald and Gordon. Childhood school days for Muriel were spent at Public School No. 17 on West 47th Street near her home. She was graduated from Wadleigh High School and from the American Institute of Applied Arts; stood out as a singer even when she was in high school, where she sang second alto because nobody else could follow the part. Her fondest memory was when she played a fairy queen, wore huge silken wings, and sang to a large audience of enthusiastic schoolmates. She later studied with William Reiger, who sang with Nordica, Schumann-Heink, others. Once Muriel had launched her career as a singer, making her debut in a church choir at the age of 18, she went on concert tours throughout New England, followed by a vaudeville trip, making her radio debut shortly after. Fell in love, was engaged to be married three years ago, but the engagement was broken. As Mary Lou in "Show Boat" she captured the true, soft charm of a southern gentlewoman. She is known and loved by a vast army of radio listeners, loves singing, enjoys her fan mail, her associates at NBC!

1 Muriel Wilson's mother was born in the house shown in the extreme lower right, under the shadow of Nottingham Castle, England—came to America when she was 13 years old. Her father was of Scotch-Irish parentage—but a native New Yorker!

2 So striking is the resemblance that at first glance it looks like Muriel, but no, it is her mother—Mrs. William H. Wilson. In a gown beribboned and lace-accented, Mrs. Wilson posed for this picture at the age of twenty—just after her marriage!

3 Muriel arrived and joy was complete in the Wilson household. Here's her first baby bonnet—made of China silk—daintily tucked—net ruching trimmed—a pretty frame for her face!

7 Public School No. 17, located on West 47th Street, where Muriel attended school throughout the grades. It's the tall building in the center. The other day Muriel went back to Public School No. 17, recalled those happy school days when she sat again at her old desk!

10 Muriel began her concert work in 1926—used this picture as the front cover of a four-page leaflet to promote the tour. She stood out as a singer even when she was in high school, later studied with William Reiger, who sang with Schumann-Heink

8 Years fly and here you see Muriel at the age of 13, Donald at the age of 9 and Gordon at the age of 15. Muriel is growing up and she's wearing the latest hair-do of the day—curls, a pompadour and satin ribbon

COMMENTS FROM THE PRESS ON A RECENT TOUR OF MAINE

Her voice and manner remind one of Alma Gluck when she first came to Maine, sweet and appealing, especially in the mezzo-voice effects. The great aria which she sang so well and the tragical dramatic touch in her "Rachel" showed the capacity of a real artist, and the lovely ballads, her versatility.
Oxford County Citizen

Miss Wilson is a soprano with a direct appeal. She is a musician of rare ability with a lyric voice under absolute control. . . . The long runs and trills and other bits of coloratura embroidery were perfect, and the shading exquisite.
Bangor Daily News

Miss Wilson proved to be charming both in appearance and manner. . . . Miss Wilson showed herself an actress of no mean ability, investing many of her songs with new life by vivid touches of pantomime.
Rockland Courier-Gazette

Miss Wilson possesses an amazing voice, very powerful without very sweet. Her diction is very good and she is in 11 Much favorable comment, generous praise was received as a result of Muriel's first tour in 1926. She has since filled numerous successful engagements

4 A little lady at the age of two pinching one finger — before she ever thought of singing—before radio was even heard of. We saw her doing this very same thing the other day on an NBC program —pinching the very same finger!

5 Five-year-old Muriel with her two brothers, Gordon (rear), age 7, and one-year-old Donald. Today, Donald is a salesman, married, once sold opera tickets. Gordon is married, has two children —Audrey, 3, and Muriel Helen, 5—works in the Fifth Avenue Bank of New York

6 A family portrait and here's Mr. and Mrs. Wilson; Muriel, age 11; Donald, age 7; Gordon, age 13. When a child, Donald had a slight deviation of vision, but has completely overcome it. Mrs. Wilson was just becoming interested in politics—she still is!

9 Muriel's mother is keenly interested in politics—a power in the Republican party in the East. Here's a picture of members of the New York State Electoral College of 1925 when Coolidge was re-elected President. Mrs. Wilson is the third woman from the left in the front row. To the right is Florence Knapp, former Secretary of State of New York. Then comes Elihu Root, statesman 13 Three years ago Muriel and Fred Hufsmith, NBC tenor, were teamed on a commercial show. Friendship blossomed into love, they announced their engagement, broke it—no one knows why!

12 Muriel grew up and radio was born. She got her first job on an NBC program and here's the shy little lady standing directly behind the first violinist. Jessica Dragonette, at mike, was the show's star

14 Miss Wilson's fans are many, loyal—and she's constantly showered with gifts, highly treasures them. Our photographer took this exclusive photo to show you a few of the presents she's received. It took one fan in New Jersey one year, three weeks to make the tablecloth at right!

15 Lanny Ross and Muriel Wilson of "Show Boat" fame. Five years ago Muriel joined the cast, has since left. They called her Mary Lou and the script said she was in love with Handsome Lanny. The make-believe love grew stronger, the songs sweeter—the show a success!

16 Muriel Wilson as she is today. Although born and reared in the shadows of skyscrapers, she loves the country, has an intense love for sports and outdoor games and recreations. A homey little cottage far off the beaten track is her greatest joy!

17 Here is Muriel in the courtyard of Public School No. 17—just back for a visit. When Muriel was a child, dirty hands were forbidden in the Wilson household. Muriel never forgets, and on her visit to the school she couldn't help but inspect the kids' hands!

18 Again looking backward Muriel shows us the dress in which her mother was christened, the dress in which she too was christened. It is hand-made, wide enough to go around Muriel today—and it is only two inches shorter than the dress she has on 19 It was in this house at 330 West 47th Street that Muriel and her brother Donald were born. The family continued to live there until last January, when Muriel took an apartment to herself. The old house was too large when all the children left

SHORT WAVES
 Symbol after a program, like (sw-9.53), means that program is broadcast on short waves on 9.53 megacycles.

NOTICE: The programs as presented here were as correct and as accurate as the broadcasting companies and RADIO GUIDE could make them at the time of going to press. However, emergencies that arise at the studios sometimes necessitate eleventh hour changes in program listings, time, etc.
 Bell △ indicates religious services and programs. Star ★ indicates high spot selections.
 If your favorite station is not listed at quarter or half hour periods, consult the time listings immediately above. The chances are that a network program of 30 or 60 minutes duration is on the air at a quarter-hour when you do not find your station listed.

 Returning by popular request to the Radio Theater, Bette Davis will do the air version of "Another Language." The play, written by Rose Frank-on, depicts modern American family life. The Hillman family's trials and tribulations are revealed as the daughter-in-law makes an effort to escape the uniformity and boredom of family life.
 Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother, will be heard in an interview

AMAZING SHAMPOO DISCOVERY

That's Sweeping the Country

● Drene, Procter & Gamble's amazing shampoo discovery, gives thrilling new beauty and brilliance to hair. Here's why. Drene is NOT soap, yet it makes oceans of active lather that rids the hair of dirt and dandruff flakes—with a single lathering. Drene is NOT oil, yet it leaves hair glistening as never before—without after-rinses. Get Drene from drug, department or 10c stores. Or send name, address to Drene, Dept. RG-1, Box 828, Cincinnati, for free bottle. (Enough for two shampoos.)

The entire program of Farm and Home Hour will be broadcast from the campus of Iowa State College at Ames, Iowa. The broadest will feature an address by Pres. Charles E. Friley; a group of five brief educational dramatic sketches portraying achievements of the college since its founding 75 years ago, and music
by the Iowa State Concert Band, the Iowa State Symphony Orchestra, and the Men's and Girls' Glee Clubs.
Dr. Friley will discuss
"What Iowa State College Is Doing to Help the State and Nation in Meeting Changing Conditions."

★ NBC-Tenth Anniversary of Charles A. Lindbergh's New York to Paris Flight: WCFM (sw-15.33)
The Lotus Club luncheon of honor commemorating Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic flight ten years ago will be brought to listeners by NBC. The MBS (Mutual) network is airing this same affair one-half hour earlier. Expected to be heard on the NBC version are Major William B. Robertson, director of the airline for which Lindbergh flew mail from Chicago to St. Louis, and one of the backers of the Paris flight; Edward P. Mulrooney, then Police Commissioner of New York City; former Mayor James J. Walker; Charles L. Lawrence, inventor of Lindbergh's engine; Dr. James H. Kimball of the U. S. Weather Bureau, who made up Lindbergh's weather chart; Detective Sergeants James Finn, Frank Raehl and Charles McGowan, who were assigned to guard Lindbergh; and Richard B. Blythe and Harry A. Bruno, personal advisors of the aviator.

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL
It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections
NO MORE BUZZES, CLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F. & H. Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Equals an aerial 75 ft. long, strung 50 ft. high, yet occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind your radio—guaranteed to give you nationwide reception or your money back.
BETTER TONE AND DISTANCE GUARANTEED
Sensitivity, selectivity, tone and volume improved. No lightning danger or unsightly lead-in and aerial wires. Makes your set complete in itself. Forget aerial wires and troubles—make your set anywhere.
NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED
On the market five years—100,000 satisfied customers in U. S. and foreign countries. In use from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa. Chosen by Government for use on Naval Hospital bedside radios. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Can not harm set—Easily connected to any radio, including radios having no ground or radios for doublet aerial band.
5 DAYS TRIAL
Mail coupon at once. Pay postman $1.00 plus a few pennies postage on delivery. If not entirely satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question.
—JUST MAIL THIS COUPON—
F. & H. Radio Laboratories, Dept. 98, Fargo, N. Dak.
Send F. & H. Capacity Aerial. Will pay postman $1 plus few cents postage. If not pleased will return within 5 days for $1 refund. Check here [] if sending $1 with order—thus saving postage cost—same refund guarantee. Check here [] if interested in dealer's proposition.

Housewives

One of the most amazing woman's careers in America is that of Dorothy Thompson, known to thousands as one of the world's leading correspondents, known to millions as the wife of Sinclair Lewis, known to untold millions of radio's listeners as a frequent guest commentator on the air! This great career-woman has found the life of a housewife can bring far greater happiness than any material success, than any fame and renown which the world can bring!

$20 REWARD TO A COM-PLIANT PLANEER PLAYER.
So read the scrawled notice stuck in the music rack of Pioche's one and only piano.
Tom Goskin, proprietor of the camp's leading dance hall-saloon, had imported the instrument at considerable effort and expense, and the whole town had turned out to help assemble it, only to discover that there was nobody in all Pioche who could play a note. Tom, however, had faith, a little too much faith, you will say after you have heard the whole yarn. The Old Ranger will tell this story.

BUDDY CLARK "Your Hit Parade" Vocalist Sat. 8 p.m. CST (9 CDT)

NEXT WEEK:

Tragedy

Into every woman's life comes at least one cataclysmic tragedy, bringing grief, bitter tears! Into Lucy Monroe's life came the ill-fated event which deprived her of the woman who had cared for her from the day of her birth, through the trying years of her childhood, had conscientiously guided her steps along life's rough pathway to fame!

End of Saturday Programs

MR. FAIRFAX KNOWS ALL THE ANSWERS

JULIA SANDERSON and FRANK CRUMIT are on a theater tour. They just completed a run at the Michigan Theater in Detroit.—Mrs. R. S. Clifton, N. J.

The "torchiest of torch singers," LORETTA LEE, hasn't done any air work since her MBS commercial. She now is working the vaudeville route.—F. P., Jr., Plainfield, N. J.

IREENE and WALTER WICKER reside in New York City. They have two youngsters, Nancy and Charlie. IRNA PHILLIPS, to my knowledge, has never been married.—Mrs. A. A. P., De Pere, Wis.

As JOAN BLAINE resigned from her post in the title role of the popular daytime sketch, "STORY OF MARY MARLIN," the sponsor naturally had to substitute someone. Thus ANNE SEYMOUR, with her splendid dramatic ability, was given the role.—W. H., Iion, N. Y., and R. L., Wellington, Ont., Can.

MILTON HERTH, stylist of the organ, left WIND about two weeks ago to appear as guest on one of Al Pearce's broadcasts. Having met with good success, he is now dickering with a prospective sponsor for a thirteen-week network commercial.—H. L., Gary, Ind.

A. L. ALEXANDER, formerly associated with the "GOOD WILL COURT," is no longer on the air with this feature.—L. D., Ridgewood, N. Y.

TED WEEMS has three outstanding male soloists. They are: Red Engles, Perry Como and Elmo Tanner, known also for his whistling.—Miss L. G., Jewett City, Conn.

FRANKLYN MacCORMACK, narrator on the CBS "POETIC MELODIES" show, was born March 8, 1906, in Waterloo, Iowa. He attended the University of Iowa and spent six years as leading man on the legitimate stage. Made his radio announcing debut at Chicago's former WIBO and afterward worked at WMT, WIBW and KMOX. Is married. Collects pistols and, of course, volumes of poetry.—Mr. F. L., Murray, Utah.

GENE AND GLENN, old-time song and comedy team of the air, are now doing a daily series over WHO (1,000 kilocycles), Des Moines, Iowa. They are aired at 9:45 a.m. EDT (8:45 EST); 8:45 CDT; 7:45 CST; 6:45 MST; 5:45 PST). SHANDOR, the violinist, is not on the airwaves at present and as far as I know is not contemplating a return.—Mrs. G. E. B., Guilford, Conn.

THIS FEATURE BY FEATURE REVIEW tells the story of
RCA VICTOR'S extra values

1  You snap on the switch. Tuning is guided by the green glow of the Magic Eye.	2  On Magic Voice instruments only band tuned appears on the Selector Dial.
3  On short wave you'll find stations conveniently separated by the Band Spreader.	4  Fuzzy reception is eliminated, twice the output obtained by the Beam Power Tube.
5  More stations, easier tuning, better tone... perception rivaling the human mind... the Magic Brain.	6  Proved better in hundreds of thousands of radio sets... RCA Metal Tubes.
7  MUSIC ↑ SPEECH Speech and music each tuned for best reception with Music-Speech Control.	8  Balance between bass and treble adjusted to taste by High Frequency Tone Control.
9  Circuits kept in permanent alignment by Magnetite Core I-F Transformers.	10  Stations kept at same strength, fading and blaring reduced, by Automatic Volume Control.
11  Clear reproduction, even at low volume with RCA Automatic Tone Compensation.	12  Warm tone-fulness through the Magic Voice. No "boom," no false notes... true RCA All The Way quality.
