THE FASCINATING PICTURE-STORY OF BETTY WINKLER'S CHRISTMAS CARD

Medal of Merit

A Weekly Award for Excellence in Broadcasting

AWARDED TO PHIL SPITALNY AND THE "HOUR OF CHARM"

EARLY in the evening of the third day in 1935, a new sort of sensation swept this sensation-swept country. A man was cheered universally for his courage, foolhardy though that courage seemed. Thirty-two girls whose mothers' prayers followed them won an acclaim that practically nobody had predicted would be theirs.

Now, as 1938 looms, that man and that group of girls whose mothers' prayers have been answered are still a sensation!

The man was Phil Spitalny, the musical rebel. The girls were the "Hour of Charm" orchestra, radio's first all-girl orchestra.

Spitalny first upset the musical appletart when he introduced a girl singer with his dance orchestra in 1927. It was unheard-of.

As early as 1932 he began to investigate the possibilities of building a fine orchestra composed entirely of girls.

The difficulties were immediately apparent. Mothers would not allow their daughters to leave home for careers as traveling instrumentalists with a dance orchestra. There was no way to find the girls, anyway. Unlike men, the few expert, trained girl musicians in the country were not clustered in agents' offices and theaters and dance groups. They were at home, waiting for husbands. Finally, it was clear that the accumulated temperament of thirty or so girls would be just too much.

Confronted by this set of stoppers, the rebellious Spitalny moved in characteristic fashion. He diagnosed the problem for a year. He laid plans as sure-fire as Grant's before Richmond. Then he got down to work. He toured seventeen states, looking for girls whose musical talents included not only instrumental excellence but vocal ability as well. He held over a thousand auditions. Finally he found thirty-two girls who satisfied him, and he decided to give them an unprecedented chance at fame.

They got it shortly. He brought them to New York, and for months he trained them. Day and night they sat in a hotel room—and played and sang and played and sang. Nerves didn't jar; temperament didn't appear. Spitalny found that the girls worked harder than men would. Finally, when they were introduced at the Capital Theater, they won an ovation. After weeks at the Capitol, they toured the country—not only their own seventeen states but others as well. Everywhere reactions were favorable. Then they were ready for radio and the success they found on the third day of 1935.

Today, as three years ago, the restful, refined music of the "Hour of Charm" girls brings an exceedingly pleasant respite to critics in a million homes. Those ultimate judges of fine things have demanded that Radio Guide acknowledge their selection of General Electric's great program. That recognition is given whole-heartedly, in the presentation of Radio Guide's Medal of Merit.

HAPPY LISTENING

The Cheery Word

SOME years the Christmas spirit just leaves us cold. When we run into too many ladies, for instance, who can't forget that they buy 85 percent of the world's goods—and won't let us edge up to the counter to pick up a tie for our brother, whom we love dearly.

This year, though, it is different. There is a red-and-green haze about us, we glow, and smile, and have a cheery word for one and all. The reason: This Christmas Spirit Issue of Radio Guide.

Our Pal Scrooge

A LOT of loose talk has gotten around about this fellow Scrooge, who put Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" ahead of the works of Horatio Alger on most kids' reading lists. Gossip makes him out a mean sort. Frankly, for a long time we didn't know whether to believe it. When word came from CBS that Lionel Barrymore would do Scrooge again this year, we decided to investigate. There's a story on page 6 that shows Scrooge in his true light. He's not so bad, at that. It's this sort of thing that gives us our Christmas spirit!

Stille Nacht

IN Birmingham, Alabama, there isn't much snow around Christmas time, most years. When we were doing some growing-up there, it was an event when the town whitened up around the holidays. The kids would troop around the streets and up Red Mountain singing "Silent Night, Holy Night." Now it seems that the happiness those Birmingham kids had in "Silent Night" is shared all around the world. Our story on page 5 this week tells how that grand melody came to be written by a poor Austrian. You will get a lot deeper enjoyment out of "Stille Nacht" when you have read it.

Merry Christmas

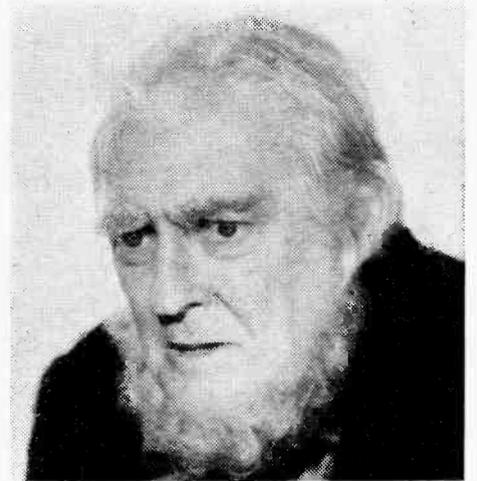

THERE'S a great deal of activity right now on the air. Radio has heartily acknowledged Christmas. NBC has expeditions at the North Pole and in British Guiana. They'll exchange greetings on Christmas Eve, according to "This Week," on the facing page. Page 4 is filled with pictures of stars getting ready for the holiday. No less than twenty-five special programs will present carols. And the purpose of it all is just what we've had in mind for this entire issue of Radio Guide. That is, to give you a very "Merry Christmas!"

PREVIEWS OF YULETIDE'S BETTER
REGULAR AND SPECIAL BROADCASTS

Saturday Lionel Barrymore will be heard as Dickens' immortal "Scrooge"

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 19

Jeanette MacDonald . . . carols

"Vick's Open House"—CBS, 7 p.m. EST.

Four nations contribute to the medley of carols Miss MacDonald and the St. Luke's Boy Choristers offer, including Bohemian, French, Dutch and Welsh airs. Miss MacDonald returns for this special broadcast after several weeks' absence.

Charlie McCarthy . . . new wonder

"Chase and Sanborn Hour"—NBC, 8 p.m. EST.

Sunday Charlie McCarthy brings fairyland to radio. He'll have as his special guests seven people who made voices in Walt Disney's new full-length sensation—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Hephzibah and Yehudi Menuhin . . . recital

"Ford Sunday Evening Hour"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.

Yehudi, world-famous violinist, proved the sensation of the music world a few years ago when he emerged as a child prodigy. Accompanied by his younger sister, Hephzibah, brilliant pianist, he'll amaze music-lovers as a consummate artist Sunday.

For a complete story about Hephzibah and Yehudi Menuhin and their appearance Sunday, please turn to page 7.

Norman Thomas . . . headlines

"Commentators' Forum"—MBS, 9:30 p.m. EST.

Former Socialist nominee for president, Norman Thomas will mount the rostrum as a guest speaker Sunday. He'll bring a thrilling account of political events and highlights of people in the news.

Do You Want to Act? . . . first aid

"Haven MacQuarrie Presents"—NBC, 10:30 p.m. EST.

Veteran of radio and vaudeville, MacQuarrie gives beginners the benefit of expert coaching before they take parts in the final performance of dramatic sketches. Packed with human interest, this show offers movie-struck youth a real chance in motion pictures.

For a complete story about Haven MacQuarrie and his show, see page 6.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 20

Gracie Fields, Paul Robeson . . . greetings

"Happy Christmas from London"—CBS, 3 p.m. EST.

A special variety show, headlined by Britain's leading music-hall artists, with Vic Oliver as emcee and starring either Gracie Fields or Paul Robeson, will be short-waved to America. Gracie, dancer-singer-actress, has been called the "female Charlie Chaplin." Robeson is remembered as the well-known American Negro baritone.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21

Patsy Kelly . . . hoydenish

"Jack Oakie's College"—CBS, 9:30 p.m. EST.

Patsy Kelly, daffy comedienne, will join in fun-making with "Prez. Oakie." A Brooklyn girl, Miss Kelly was drafted by Hollywood magnates after a long series of successes on the Broadway musical-comedy stage. Today she's one of the screen's foremost exponents of the raucous retort.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 22

Fred Allen, Jack Benny . . . squabble

"Town Hall Tonight"—NBC, 9 p.m. EST (9 p.m. PST).

On the surface, this meeting between the two cut-ups promises no cataclysmic disturbances. However, listeners are assured peace won't reign long with the jester from the wilds of Waukegan in the camp of the Yankee Wit. It's the week's laughfest. RADIO GUIDE's own "Singing Cameraman," Gene Lester, will also be present at this broadcast. He'll not only capture what he sees at the Allen-Benny "meet"—in pictures, but he'll tell listeners all about it, too. Then he'll sing, and what he sees while broadcasting will also be pictured. Gene was recently heard on the "Saturday Night Swing Club" and "Vox Pop" shows. The pictures he takes of "Town Hall Tonight" will be in RADIO GUIDE soon.

A complete preview of the meeting of Jack Benny and Fred Allen may be found on page 7.

Lily Pons . . . high C's

"Chesterfield Hour"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.

At the age of twenty-one, Lily Pons took her first singing lesson. Within five years she was world famous. A reigning star of radio, screen and opera, fans everywhere welcome the thrill of hearing her glorious voice and high trills Wednesday.

WIT DUEL OF THE CENTURY—BENNY (left) vs. ALLEN—WEDNESDAY

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23

Basil Rathbone . . . command appearance

"Kraft Music Hall"—NBC, 10 p.m. EST.

Rathbone usually plays villain roles in the movies, but he turned out to be such a pleasant, interesting fellow on the "Music Hall" some time ago that Bing Crosby has asked him to play a return engagement on this Thursday's "Music Hall."

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24

President Roosevelt . . . Merry Christmas

"President Roosevelt Lights the Nation's Christmas Tree"—NBC, CBS, MBS, 5 p.m. EST.

The Chief Executive's Yuletide greeting to the nation will be heard during ceremonies connected with the 15th annual lighting of the National Community Christmas Tree in Washington, D. C. The President will press a button during the broadcast to light the tree. Many communities throughout the country will begin their observance of the holiday season at the same moment.

Explorers . . . reunion

"Greetings from MacGregor and Holden Expeditions"—NBC, 10 p.m. EST.

Tuners-in will hear members of the MacGregor Expedition, in Greenland, the Holden Expedition, in British Guiana, and families and friends exchange greetings. They'll also hear the season's best in their native tongues by Greenland Eskimos and native Indians in the wilds of British Guiana.

For an explanation of this broadcast, please see page 10.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25

Dust bowl victims . . . celebrate

"Christmas in Migratory Camp"—NBC, 11:30 a.m. EST.

California is the only state which has camps definitely established to care for former prosperous farm families who are now moving from various areas, having lost their homes in "dust bowls." This program brings a glimpse of the Yuletide happiness brought to these people.

Season's best . . . from Rome

"Christmas Day Program from the Vatican"—NBC, 1 p.m. EST.

America will cheer this Yuletide broadcast, featuring Tenor Beniamino Gigli, the Sistine Chapel Choir and eminent Italian Conductor Don Lorenzo Perosi, who will conduct a new composition of his own, written expressly for this special broadcast.

Lionel Barrymore . . . "Scrooge"

"Hollywood Hotel"—CBS, 5 p.m. EST.

Each year Barrymore appears as the lonesome old man who tries to close his eyes and heart to the spirit of Christmas by being a skinflint, and for a time gets away with it. Each year new facets in the characterization are added. In his many years before footlights and cameras, the great actor has never created a portrayal so welcomed and beloved as that of "Scrooge."

For more information about Lionel Barrymore and his appearance as "Scrooge," please turn to page 6.

Biggies . . . this year in review

"Headlines of 1937"—NBC, 9 p.m. EST.

Tuners-in will hear a full-hour dramatization of the year's ten most important news stories enacted by a cast of NBC actors and actresses with musical background by an NBC orchestra. The stories were selected by Associated Press editors.

For an explanation of the significance of this broadcast, please see page 10.

HIS MUSICAL MAJESTY

Arturo Toscanini

BY LEONARD LIEBLING

CHRISTMAS NIGHT! 9:58 p.m. in New York! In the huge NBC studio fourteen hundred people are fidgeting on the edges of their chairs. All over the world countless millions are sitting by their radios, breathless, expectant, listening for the chime to strike the hour of ten.

No such significant two minutes of suspense have been known in radio since Edward of England waited to begin his memorable abdication speech last year. Again a monarch arouses this magic interest, but a monarch of a more spiritual kingdom, whose people are the music-lovers of the earth.

Arturo Toscanini, unchallenged king of the realm of music, has returned to his faithful subjects of America. To do him honor, an orchestra of the finest instrumentalists of this country has been assembled and trained by one of our own top-rank conductors. That dream of every performer, a world-wide audience, has come true for him.

THE chimes sound. It is ten o'clock.

The announcer's voice is heard—dies away. A door at the side of the stage opens, a slim, lithe figure walks briskly to the conductor's stand, mounts it, and taps the music rack (empty of any score) sharply with his baton. Ninety-two musicians are poised at attention, their instruments held ready, and a moment later the supreme musical experience of radio has begun.

No such future could have been imagined by a seasick young cellist on a leaky boat bound for Brazil in 1886. It was his first job, and he had his hands full practising the cello and running to the railing.

He had graduated only a short time before from the old Music Conservatory in Parma, Italy, with highest honors in cello and composition. The neighbors had been on hand to congratulate his parents, Claudio and Paula Toscanini, who thanked them for their kind wishes, and privately expressed the hope that the young Arturo would find a good job playing cello in some orchestra, after his nine years of training.

Parmesan families naturally raised at least one child to be a musician, following the traditions of their province, Emilia, one of the most musical regions of Italy. A little town near Parma, Busseto, had already given to the world one of its greatest composers, Giuseppe Verdi. Many a hopeful young instrumentalist and composer had made a shrine of Busseto, not the least of them the youthful Toscanini, who to this day retains the admiration and reverence for the immortal creator of operas which was inspired during his student years.

IN THOSE days (as in these) orchestra positions were hard to get, but with persistence he had finally managed to obtain the post of cellist with an opera company going to South America. The company was entirely Italian, except for Miguez, the conductor, a Brazilian whom tradition credits with knowing more about the famous nuts (vegetable) of his country than about leading an orchestra. On the journey, his Italian companions jibed and insulted him so unmercifully that when he reached Rio de Janeiro, his home town, he promptly resigned—a few hours before the first performance. The opera was to be "Aida." The house was sold out. No conductor, no show. Backstage, pandemonium reigned. The concert master, Superti, offered to replace Miguez. The audience arrived, settled themselves in their seats and awaited the overture. At the sight of the concert master conducting, howls of protest arose. Superti threw down his baton and fled into the wing. The cast, frantic, pushed out the chorus-master, Venturi. He took one faltering step toward the conductor's stand, and a hail of cat-calls and a few tired eggs landed on his head.

The orchestra, patient until that moment, decided to take things in their own hands. The players had come to appreciate the extraordinary talents of their nineteen-year-old cellist, and with common accord they lifted him bodily up and deposited him on the podium. Toscanini stood there, frightened, pathetically young, in a borrowed dress-suit. His sole experience as a conductor had been with the Conservatory orchestra, leading one of his own compositions.

The audience, amused by the novelty of his youth and the audacity of the orchestra, quieted down. Tremblingly he closed the score. The audience sat up. This was something new. Not conduct with a score? Unheard of! The overture started, and at the end of the first act a cheering, stamping mob was hailing a new hero.

ON HIS return to Italy, Toscanini found himself already famous and publicized as a sensation. He appeared with one leading Italian opera house after another. In 1898 he conducted forty-three symphony concerts at the General Exposition in Turin, which are still a legend in Italy. He was barely thirty. The culminating point of that period of his life came when he was made leader at La Scala, the Milan opera house, then the highest goal for every opera conductor in the world. The Scala was under the direction of Giulio Gatti-Casazza, later manager of the Metropolitan.

Toscanini's triumphal engagement at La Scala came to an abrupt conclusion one night. He had already expressed the revolutionary idea that he considered in bad taste all encores in opera and at symphony concerts. He had no sympathy for opera singers who held up the action by hanging onto their top notes come all eternity, or by repeating an aria for the benefit of their cheering admirers. At a performance of Verdi's "Masked Ball," the tenor, basking in the applause of the audience, opened his mouth to sing the aria all over again, when he noticed Toscanini standing with grim face and folded arms. The orchestra looked helplessly up at the tenor and shrugged eloquent shoulders. The audience, annoyed at the insult to their darling, continued to applaud. Toscanini turned, glared, threw down his baton, and stalked out of the theater. The next day he boarded a ship bound for Buenos Aires. (This baton-hurling is more or less of a habit with Toscanini, his most recent toss having taken place a few weeks ago at an orchestra rehearsal in London, after finding some slight fault on the part of his players.)

IN 1907, Toscanini first came to America to conduct at the Metropolitan under direction of Gatti-Casazza, who had refused to accept the Metropolitan post unless Toscanini was also engaged. Their friendship was famous, equaled only by the feud that sprang up between them years later. Both dictators by temperament, they clashed for personal reasons, and an estrangement resulted which was not bridged over until the night of the final performance at the Metropolitan under Gatti's management. Toscanini was present, and after the last act slipped into Gatti-Casazza's office, where, with a torrent of embraces and kisses, in true Italian style, the feud at last ended, much to everybody's relief.

During his eight years at the Metropolitan, Toscanini was famous not only as a magnificent interpreter of opera but also as the only man who could put prima donnas, male and female, in their place. At a rehearsal one day, one of the leading sopranos persisted in the same mistake over and over again. Toscanini made his usual sarcastic corrections. The singer drew herself up to her full height (and weight) and said proudly, "Please remember I am the star of this opera." Toscanini looked at her silently for some seconds, then bent down toward the stage, put his finger to his lips and whispered, "Madame, I will keep your secret." Straightening up, he snapped: "I thought that all the stars were in the heavens. I never heard of one on earth. We will now continue the rehearsal!" And continue it the lady did, meek as a lamb.

AMERICA AND THE WORLD BOW TO TOSCANINI AS HE LEADS THE GREAT
NBC SYMPHONY CHRISTMAS NIGHT

In 1915, Toscanini left the Metropolitan and returned to Italy, where he devoted himself to the Italian cause during the War. His devotion to his country is one of the mainsprings of his nature. At the capture of Monte Santo he was at the front, searching for his son, reported missing, and he led the soldiers in their hymns, and encouraged them under the enemy's fire.

After the War, Toscanini's fame increased, and he came into his own as the greatest symphonic conductor of his and perhaps of all time. During his leadership of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, from 1928 until his voluntary retirement in 1936, he made of that body an ideal symphonic instrument whose outstanding qualities were recognized not only in this country but also in all the capitals of Europe on the occasion of its triumphal tour in 1931.

IN LONDON, the late King George attended one of the concerts, and afterwards commanded Toscanini's presence in the royal box. Overheated and overexcited, still under the terrific strain of the performance, Toscanini sent back a characteristic reply. "It is the same distance from the royal box to this dressing-room as it is from this dressing-room to the royal box." The king came! . . .

This little man, who fears neither potentates nor dictators but only musical imperfection, has undoubtedly become the world's greatest living musician and probably the only one to be acclaimed such by the entire world, due primarily to the universality of radio. His popularity, quite unsought by him, has been equalled by only one other musical performer, Franz Liszt. Without the flashing good looks of Liszt, and none of his outward dash and daring, Toscanini is nevertheless just as beloved. His delicate face, with its high cheek-bones, piercing dark eyes under dark eyebrows, high forehead and white, wavy hair, is familiar to thousands. His hands are beautiful, with a fluid movement all their own when he conducts. He stands quietly on the rostrum, but the tap of his baton calling the orchestra to attention is like the crack of a whip. He conducts with few motions, and those invariably graceful. His left hand often rests lightly on his hip, a gesture widely imitated by some of his lesser rivals but which in no way has improved their conducting.

TOSCANINI has never directed from a score in his life; always from memory. Some say this is due to his extreme near-sightedness, and it is true that he has to read music holding it only a few inches from his eyes; but another reason is his phenomenal memory, which photographs every note in a composition and retains it forever. When asked about this once, Toscanini sat down and wrote out the entire overture to "Lohengrin" from memory. Every note was correct. He has not only memorized most of the symphonic repertoire but also can sing almost every word of every opera, and frequently does so at rehearsal. He is familiar with and can play almost every instrument in the orchestra. The personality of the man is over-powering, and he radiates it even with his slim, expressive back.

Toscanini's interpretations of the great masters are unquestionably the purest and noblest of all time. There has never been a completely satisfactory explanation of how he achieves his remarkable art. One theory is that aside from complete fidelity to the score, observing every indication, however slight, of the music, he also has the unique faculty of projecting himself completely into the conceptional feeling of the composer; in other words, of reliving the actual emotion which moved the composer when he set down his creation.

TOSCANINI effaces himself when he interprets the master works, and has only contempt for those who talk of "their" interpretation. This was proved one night at Carnegie Hall after a particularly thrilling performance of Debussy's "The Sea." Alfred Wallenstein, then first cellist with the Philharmonic, rushed to Toscanini's dressing-room and cried enthusiastically, "Maestro, your performance of the Debussy music was inspired." Toscanini answered quietly, "You mean that Debussy's music is inspired. I only interpret it."

His striving after perfection is legendary. He will tolerate nothing second-rate and has no patience with it. His rehearsals usually turn themselves into minor tempests, at which he displays every emotion known to mankind, in four different languages. A story circulating around New York recently was of two players engaged for the NBC Orchestra. One said to the other, "I'm glad I'm sitting further back than you."

"Why?" said the other. "Because if the Maestro throws his baton, it's more likely to hit you."

However, in spite of such happenings, every man of every orchestra with which Toscanini has been connected ends up by looking on him as little short of a god. Only during rehearsal does he make his men fear him. When he was with the Philharmonic, every year at the end of the season he gave a large party for the orchestra, to which no outsider was ever invited. At those affairs, his innate kindness and geniality came to the surface.

HE HAS been a good friend to many young artists, notably Vladimir Horowitz, the pianist, to whom his daughter is married, and the violinist, Yehudi Menuhin, with whom he made a memorable trans-Atlantic crossing some years ago. It is said that Toscanini had no great interest in the youthful Menuhin, considering him just another prodigy who would fade into oblivion as so many of them do. Menuhin begged to be allowed to play for him, and Toscanini reluctantly consented to hear him in one of the small salons of the boat. Toscanini immediately recognized the boy's genius and thereafter spent the entire trip with Menuhin, instructing him and giving valuable criticism. Subsequently the young violinist appeared with the Philharmonic under Toscanini's direction and gave a performance which has not yet faded from the memory of those privileged to hear it. The friendship has been an enduring one, and when Menuhin made his last public appearance with his sister Hephzibah before their long retirement in March, 1936, Toscanini sat in one stage box at Carnegie Hall and Jascha Heifetz sat in another.

TOSCANINI'S personal life is as private as he can make it. He likes to live in hotels and is always flitting from one to the other. He is extremely nervous and restless, and for years suffered from neuritis which attacked his conducting arm. He is most gentle—before and after rehearsal—and talks very little, scarcely ever in English, although he understands and speaks it quite well. He dresses immaculately, always in dark colors, and wears one style of hat, a crushed-in black felt, slightly too small for him, which has been the joy of caricaturists for years. He loves Italian food, but is crazy about American turkey—and is an ardent devotee of Mickey Mouse.

His favorite composers are Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Wagner. He has a patriotic preference for modern Italian composers—one of the rare instances when his catholicity of musical taste has been questioned. He is not overly enamored of American composers and his programs have shown very few examples of our music.

TOSCANINI prefers to live in Italy, but dislikes to have anything to do with politics unless they touch art. In the early days of Mussolini's regime, Toscanini refused to play the new patriotic hymn, "Giovanezza," on the grounds that it was bad music. He never changed his mind about it and has never played it.

For a number of years, he was the beloved idol of the great Wagnerian Festival held at Bayreuth, Germany. He is said to have conducted the finest performances ever heard there. After Hitler came to power, however, Toscanini objected so strenuously to the treatment certain musicians had received in the Fatherland that he never returned to Bayreuth. Emphasizing his point of view, he made the long journey to Palestine to conduct the opening concert of the new Palestinian Orchestra in Tel Aviv.

He now conducts every summer at the annual music festival in Salzburg, Austria, where he reigns as undisputed king. The event might properly be called the Toscanini Festival, as it has become a shrine for his worshippers, to which they flock with all the fervency of Moslems on their way to Mecca. A cult has sprung up around him, and people speak of him in hushed voices, but underneath all the weight of adulation, he has remained completely human and practical. He hates personal publicity, but is a good showman. He still gets stage fright, and very often refuses to conduct, a few minutes before the concert, on the grounds that he is "too old and nobody wants to hear him anyway." It takes considerable persuasion to get him out of that mood.

ALL over the world, Toscanini's appearances are among the few which sell out the house. Conscious of that, he drives a sharp bargain and insists on tremendous fees, which he has the sense to know he can get. His present fee for these ten NBC concerts is $50,000, an unprecedented sum for any conductor. However, the NBC feels he is worth it, and everyone who hears the broadcasts will assuredly agree with them.

For those who love and understand music, for those who don't understand it but "know what they like," for those who are wishful to learn something about it, and for anyone who merely desires one of the biggest thrills of a lifetime, the Toscanini concerts are a decided "must."

When Toscanini steps to the rostrum Christmas night and raises his baton, it will mark radio's artistic coming of age and America's supreme tribute to the master musician of our time.

Arturo Toscanini may be heard Saturday on NBC Symphony Orchestra over an NBC network at:
EST 10:00 p.m. — CST 9:00 p.m.
MST 8:00 p.m. — PST 7:00 p.m.

The greatest of all Christmas carols, "Silent Night," will be the featured selection in Marion Talley's own holiday program on Sunday of this week. Her song will be a tribute to the late Ernestine Schumann-Heink, who was best loved for her interpretation of this melody. Innumerable other times this grand song will be broadcast and caroled in the streets during this season. To increase the pleasure of those who hear and sing it, Radio Guide presents the story of the song.—Ed.

IF YOU are really lucky, you will hear it played on the bells of a carillon or a chimes—booming sonorously from some high tower across the bright snow at midnight of Christmas Eve; or in some far place, England perhaps, or Norway—for this is the world's song, and all the world sings it—when the carolers come down the street with their scrolls and their flickering lanterns, and perhaps a silver soprano voice will lift above the others to cry its longing sadness all alone; perhaps this year you will hear a great chorus swell out this song of all Christmas songs; and surely, you yourself will sing it, sometime during this new Christmas season.

The song, of course, is "Silent Night, Holy Night," best-loved of all Christmas carols, "Stille Nacht" to the Germans, to Mme. Schumann-Heink, who sang it so often and so beautifully that it became peculiarly her own, "Stille Nacht" to the poor Austrian organist who created it a hundred years ago and more.

FEW people among the millions who sing "Silent Night" every year at Christmas have ever heard of him, of poor Franz Xaver Gruber, who wrote the immortal melody that has taken "Silent Night, Holy Night" around the world, wrote it in half an hour to oblige a friend, poor Franz Xaver Gruber, who never knew how the world would love the beauty he had made, who died in misery and poverty in 1862, unrewarded and alone.

So widely is "Stille Nacht" known and sung that most of the world believes it to be a folk-song—a melody that sprang out of the very hearts of the people themselves. It seems incredible that one man's song should be so universally loved, so tightly bound up with one event. For wherever men gather this Christmas Eve to herald the coming of the Saviour, in the great cities of the world, New York, London, Paris, Berlin; in the remote fastnesses of Manchuria or in tiny Alpine hamlets, one song is certain to be sung. "Silent Night, Holy Night" will be sung, the melody the same though the words be in a dozen different tongues.

TWELVE years before he died, Franz Gruber did taste some measure of triumph. By 1850 ("Silent Night" was written in 1816) the world demanded to know its author, and in 1854 the little Austrian organist's claim was definitely proved. Acknowledgment of his genius, however, could not at that late date bring him happiness or peace. Thus does the world often treat those inspired artists who bring to it a glory and goodness experienced all too frequently in an earthly existence.

Gruber was the son of an impoverished linen-weaver, and he was born, in 1796, in a hunching, decrepit wooden house in Unterweizberg, a hamlet of thumb-nail size near the Hochberg of Upper Austria. Franz Gruber showed definite promise of musical talent early in childhood. He was extraordinarily responsive to beautiful sounds (he would sit alone on the church-steps, frozen in rapt attention, lost in the wonder of the bell music from the tower!) and his plastic mind could retain permanently any melody he heard. Obviously he was destined to be a musician—but Father Gruber was a linen-weaver, his father and his grandfather before him had been linen-weavers, and so, he said, his son must weave for his living.

Young Franz' boyhood, therefore, was spent at the weaving-stool. But the weavers did not work at night, and when the day's stint was finished, he would steal out of the house and visit the village schoolmaster, Andreas Peterlechner, who gave him secret instructions in reading and writing, and taught him the rudiments of the organ. At home, Franz made an organ of his own: he thrust little blocks of wood into cracks in the wall, and upon them, as keys, he practised when he could steal the time.

One day Peterlechner, the schoolmaster, became violently ill. Since he was also the village organist, his illness meant that there would be no organ service that day for high mass. It was little Franz Gruber's great chance, and he made the most of it. Unhesitatingly he jumped up on the organ bench and played the entire service—from memory! This feat so impressed the villagers that Franz found himself a hero.

It was admittedly impossible now, with praise being showered on his talented son from all sides, for Father Gruber to deny him a musical education. He bought an old piano, and arranged for the boy to take regular lessons. More than that, even, he permitted Franz to renounce linen-weaving as a profession, and to prepare himself to teach school.

DURING the next few years the boy studied music in the Burghausen parish, not far from his home. During the two years between 1805 and 1807, he was official organist of Unterweizberg, and in the meantime he was following his academic studies with the intention of becoming a schoolmaster. In due course he did receive his official teacher's certificate and was given a post in the village school of Arnsdorf, near the Bavarian border.

In 1816 Franz Xaver Gruber was appointed schoolmaster and organist at Oberndorf. There he became a close friend of a parish priest, one Josef Mohr, who dabbled in poetry. It was this acquaintanceship which was to blossom to produce "Stille Nacht."

The year was 1818, the date, December 24. Josef Mohr, Father Mohr, had composed a Christmas poem for the holiday, and he brought it to his friend with the request that he write a simple melody, something in the spirit of the day, something easily remembered, easily sung.

Gruber sat down and wrote the immortal melody of "Silent Night, Holy Night" in half an hour; wrote it all in one piece, at a sitting, and never touched a note of it in revision.

AND on Christmas Eve, 1818, in the little village church at Oberndorf, Franz Xaver Gruber and Father Josef Mohr introduced the song. It made a profound and lasting impression on the villagers. They recognized the wonder and the beauty of it, and that night, trudging home through the deep snow, more than one sturdy burgher found himself humming the entrancing melody of "Stille Nacht" into the bright cold air of early morning.

So lovely a song, of course, could not be kept in the confines of a single village, or a single country, for that matter. It was soon spread far and wide. First to play "Stille Nacht" outside of Oberndorf was an organ-builder who heard it in the Oberndorf church and was so struck by the beauty of the melody that he memorized it. He carried it away with him to neighboring Austrian towns, and in one of these the four Strasser sisters, renowned concert singers, heard it, were so moved by it that they included it in their repertoire.

And so "Silent Night, Holy Night" went with them into concert halls and theaters all over Austria and Germany. It was not long before it had spread throughout Europe, and by 1850 the entire Christian world celebrated the arrival of Christmas by singing "Silent Night, Holy Night."

But still no one knew who had composed it—no one, that is, outside

EMINENT ACTOR LIONEL BARRYMORE BECOMES DICKENS' IMMORTAL "SCROOGE" SATURDAY

THERE is a peculiar quality about the Christmas holidays that evokes nostalgia, wistful reminiscence, and a longing for familiar scenes and familiar faces. In such an atmosphere tradition is bred and fostered. Still in its youth but already well on its way toward a place in the sun of the holiday entertainment season is the tradition that Lionel Barrymore shall each year play the part of "Scrooge" in a dramatization of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

This year his portrayal, one of a series which began several years ago, will be added to the "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast, which has been shifted to Christmas Day, and the two shows combined to form an hour-and-three-quarter program for the CBS network.

Barrymore was first heard as Scrooge in 1934 in a half-hour dramatization of the Dickens' masterpiece. So great was the popular response to the broadcast that he was signed to a five-year contract for an annual performance of the role. Each year since, with the exception of the last, when his wife died, he has played the part at Christmas time. Last year his brother, John, substituted for him.

"Scrooge?" says Barrymore. "Scrooge is just an exaggeration of someone we've all met. A lonely, unhappy old man, trying to get some interest out of life by pretending to be a tough guy—and just for a little while getting away with it!

"But his toughness was only skin deep, really. That's proved by the ease with which the crust was broken when once the Christmas ghosts got to work on him: the Ghost of Christmas Past, which was his memory; the Ghost of Christmas Present, which was his intuition; the Ghost of Christmas Future, which was his imagination."

The popular conception of Scrooge is that he was an avaricious old skinflint, so hard-hearted as to be almost monstrous. Indications are, however, that even Dickens did not think of him in that way, and that he saw him as Barrymore sees him; that is, as an exaggerated version of all of us, even of himself.

The Scrooge whom the Ghost of Christmas Past took back through his boyhood saw scenes which bear a suspicious resemblance to the scenes of Dickens' own youth, and this Scrooge, like Dickens, had a sister, Fan, who, like Dickens' sister, Fanny, came to take him home from school when he was a child.

Further evidence of Dickens' whimsical identification of the miser with himself is found in a letter he wrote on September 16, 1855 (twelve years after "A Christmas Carol" was published), to W. H. Wills, his editorial assistant on the magazine, "Household Words."

"My dear Wills," Dickens wrote, "Scrooge is delighted to find that Bob Cratchit is enjoying his holiday in such a delightful situation; and he says (with that warmth of nature which has distinguished him since his conversion), 'Make the most of it, Bob; make the most of it.'"

Dickens put enthusiasm into the writing of the "Carol" and took vast pride in its success. Shortly after its publication he spoke of it in a letter to an American friend, Professor C. C. Felton. Referring to himself in the third person, he wrote: "Over which Christmas Carol Charles Dickens wept and laughed and wept again, and excited himself in a most extraordinary manner in the composition; and thinking whereof he walked about the black streets of London, fifteen and twenty miles many a night when all the sober folks had gone to bed. Its success is most prodigious, and by every post all manner of strangers write all manner of letters to him about their homes and hearths, and how the same Carol is read aloud there, and kept on a little shelf by itself. Indeed, it is the greatest success, as I am told, that this ruffian and rascal has ever achieved."

HAVEN MACQUARRIE OFFERS FILM CHANCE TO BEGINNERS WHO WANT TO ACT—SUNDAY

ONE of the cynical axioms of the theater is that everybody who ever appeared in even so much as a Sunday-school pageant wants to become an actor. There is no more truth in this than there is in the popular superstition that all newspapermen are trying in their spare time to write the great American novel. But there is a solid foundation of truth in the more moderate statement that there are thousands of people with a secret hankering to go on the stage or get into the movies. In Haven MacQuarrie they have a sympathetic friend.

MacQuarrie is a director for Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., under special commission to scout for talent. Last year, when the "Good Will Court" was taken off the air after it had stirred up a tempest of objections from barristers, MacQuarrie's show, "Do You Want to Be an Actor," was hastily substituted. This year, shortened from an hour to a half-hour, shifted from Hollywood to New York and re-named "Haven MacQuarrie Presents," it is back on the air.

It is a variation of the familiar amateur hour—with tangible rewards in the form of screen tests going to the winners. Applicants write to MacQuarrie for a chance to appear. When he has seen his list of prospects he invites twelve or fifteen to take part. A script is written, containing four or five original scenes. Applicants (the next group will broadcast over NBC Sunday) sit on the stage in a semi-circle. To avoid embarrassment for those who fail, they are designated by number instead of by name.

THERE are no rehearsals before the program. MacQuarrie doesn't see participants in the show until a short time before the broadcast. When he has them all before him, he reads the casting requirements and assigns the parts. Then he reads the scene, and the players repeat their lines after him. Finally the actors go through the scene without prompting. Applause from the audience indicates the winner—and only the winner gives his name and personal history. The next day he returns to hear a transcription of the act. A screen test follows, if all is well.

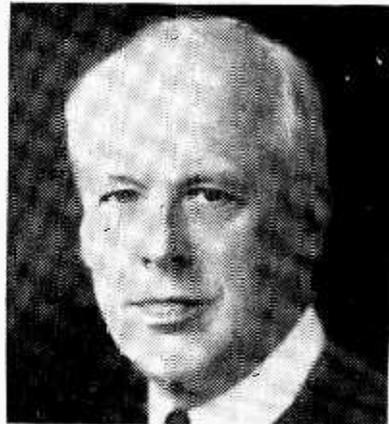

MacQuarrie has been on and about the stage since 1898. He was born April 10, 1894. He has played in vaudeville, stock, written vaudeville sketches, and even been a dramatic critic (for one year on the Oakland Enquirer). Later he organized his own stock company, fell in love with and married his leading lady. He has played the piano and cornet professionally, but likes his own talent with the harmonica best.

He got into radio as an actor's agent, trying to sell his clients. His first program, "Sky Dwellers," broadcast over KNX, in Los Angeles, was started with this in mind. Among those who appeared was Bob Burns—he of the bazooka and the Van Buren (Arkansas) anecdotes—long before the name of Burns was known on the radio and in motion pictures.

"FORD" PRESENTS THE MUSIC PRODIGIES, YE-
HUDI AND HEPHZIBAH
MENUHIN—ON SUNDAY

ON A certain evening in 1928, during the course of a birthday party being held in a New York home, the host beckoned his guest of honor, a small boy of twelve, and whispered something in his ear. The boy nodded, and guest and host slipped out of the room unnoticed. They entered a handsomely furnished library in which stood a table with three violins laid out upon it. The child approached the table and gazed in awe at the splendid instruments. His host said: "I can't make up my mind which of these to buy. I wish you would try them and give me your opinion." The boy played a few strains on each in turn, then took up the first one again. He said unhesitatingly: "This is the best. It's the one I would choose if I were buying one." The host smiled down at him and answered: "I'm glad to know your choice, Yehudi, because the violin is your birthday present."

The host was Henry Goldman, New York philanthropist and music-lover, who had recently acquired the instrument for the fabulous sum of $60,000. The guest was Yehudi Menuhin, one of the greatest infant violin prodigies of all time, who will be heard on the "Ford" hour Sunday in a joint recital with his sister, Hephzibah.

THE boy Yehudi is grown up. He has attained his majority this year, is now a tall, fair-haired, broad-shouldered young man of twenty-one. Born in New York, brought up in San Francisco, he made his debut with the San Francisco Orchestra at the incredible age of seven, creating a sensation.

Unlike so many child prodigies, Yehudi, was fortunate in having exceptionally intelligent parents, who never permitted him to be unduly exploited. Although not musicians themselves, and with no markedly musical ancestry, they yet showed great wisdom in the education of their three gifted children. The Menuhins saw to it that their genius son should never lack a normal childhood and family life in so far as it was possible.

Hephzibah and Yaltah developed outstanding pianistic talent, but their mother firmly vetoed a concert career for the girls. Only occasionally does Hephzibah appear with her brother in sonata recitals, displaying a virtuosity which is a wonder to all who hear it. Those who were present at the last New York concert before the two-year retirement remember the pretty blond child of fifteen, in her simple, long, white dress with its quaintly puffed sleeves, clinging so shyly to her brother's hand, whose playing was that of a seasoned performer.

Now Yehudi has emerged from his retirement, no longer an infant prodigy, and has started a tour which will take him around the world. His first broadcast of the season, on the "Ford" hour, Sunday, with his sister, Hephzibah, reveals a fully matured artist, worthy to take his place among the foremost living violinists.

FUN-FEST OF THE WEEK FEATURES
FRED ALLEN AND JACK BENNY IN WORD BATTLE WEDNESDAY

THE Allens have invited the Bennys over for another evening of fun and frolic, and judging from past performance the night ought to resound with the musket-fire rattle of wise-cracks. It hasn't as yet assumed quite the proportions of the World Series or the Army-Navy game, but the rivalry between Fred Allen and Jack Benny is firmly enough established to warrant fanfares of publicity and loud shouts of "Classic!"

The two comedians clashed on the airwaves last March, after several weeks of hilarious preliminary skirmishing, and now another battle is in the offing. Benny and Allen (with Mary Livingstone and Portland Hoffa, of course) will appear on Allen's "Town Hall Tonight" broadcast over NBC on Wednesday night. The build-up, almost as intensive as that which precedes a heavyweight-championship fight, is mounting toward a noisy climax.

Something about tossing two terriers or two roosters into a pit or two fighting men into a ring has an irresistible appeal for sportsmen, just as something about entertaining two argumentative guests with divergent views fascinates ingenious hostesses, and something about getting two rival comedians and their stooges on the same stage charms showmen.

In his youth Allen, who was trying to become a professional juggler, became such a familiar figure and appeared so persistently at amateur nights in Boston theaters that one manager proposed to make him the butt of a joke one evening: "Where did you learn to juggle, son?" he asked the boy, with one eye on the audience and an ear pricked expectantly for applause. "I took a correspondence course in baggage-smashing," Allen retorted. He, and not the manager, got the applause.

Allen kept on juggling, but gradually worked comedy into his act, and ultimately became a monologist. Years in vaudeville led him to Broadway. He made his debut in Arthur Hammerstein's "Polly." The show soon folded and he went back to vaudeville and gag-writing. He scored his first big-time triumph in the "Little Show," and in the following season set them rolling in the aisles with "Three's a Crowd." He's modest and unpretentious, a natural enemy of pomposity and bombast. A veteran of five years in radio, he takes his work seriously, but not himself.

Benny was a professional violinist. (It was Allen's wise-cracks about this that led up to their meeting last season.) During the World War he joined the navy. He was drafted for a violin recital at a benefit. When he got applause but no contributions he decided to talk. Then he got both laughs and contributions. So at his next show he played less and talked more, and when the War was over he decided to go back into vaudeville—as a monologist.

In the years that followed, he became a celebrated comedian. He was one of the earliest of the now numerous tribe of masters of ceremonies on Broadway. The end of a transcontinental vaudeville tour brought him to Los Angeles at the time when talking pictures and screen revues were in their infancy. He went into the talkies, made feature pictures and comedy shorts. Later, for two years, he was the leading comedian and master of ceremonies in Earl Carroll's "Vanities." He likes radio better than either the stage or the screen, and he'll be at his best when he clashes with Allen Wednesday.

Everyone wonders what takes place when a show is on the air, how the audience looks, what the stars actually see. Gene Lester, RADIO GUIDE's own "Singing Cameraman," will capture what he sees at this laughfest—in pictures. He'll sit among the audience, photograph the "feud" of the century, and then sing. He'll tell what he sees then, too. A veteran of the airwaves, Gene has also been heard on "Vox Pop" and "Saturday Night Swing Club."

THE incomparable Menuhins supply the luster for a program of conventional character, except perhaps for the short trumpet number by Purcell (1658-95). He was thought by some historians to be the composer of "God Save the King," although others claim it to be a Swiss national song dating from 1602.

Pretty Hephzibah Menuhin is the piano soloist in the ingratiating and fluently wrought music by Franck. It offers a simple central melody garlanded with flowing keyboard and orchestral passages.

Yehudi Menuhin's now matured art will register appealingly in the always-welcome Mendelssohn Concerto.

The March of Music

Edited by Leonard Liebling

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

JUSSI BJOERLING, the Swedish tenor who scored sensationally at his premiere with General Motors, gets another chance to display his prowess on Sunday evening. Only in Caruso's earlier seasons have we listened to high tones of such robustness and duration as those of Bjoerling.

However, the visitor, like other wise singers, knows that "one specialty doth not a tenor make." Therefore he treats us also to a proportionate measure of more refined vocalism.

The late caustic Hans von Buelow, noted conductor and pianist, once said that tenors are a disease. The reproach no longer applies, for mere shouters of top tones now are practically extinct. As readers of RADIO GUIDE may see on another page, Toscanini was the first conductor to make opera singers hold high notes only as long as the composer indicated.

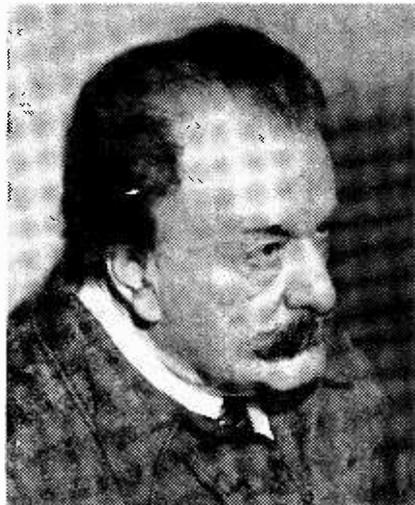

Francesco Tamagno (1851-1905) was the most determined offender in stunt yelling. A giant of a man with a huge chest, he had exhaustless breath, and those who heard him as Otello (in Verdi's opera) are not likely to forget his hurling himself about the Metropolitan stage and emitting terrific yells of "Sangue, Sangue" ("Blood, Blood").

Purely lyric tenors depend on tonal finesse rather than volume. I recall as the best of such artists tiny Alessandro Bonci, Edmond Clement and Tito Schipa, the last-named now in America for appearances in concert, opera and radio.

Bjoerling's hit would undoubtedly qualify him for the Metropolitan were that institution not already crowded with tenors—but none of them possessing such ringing tones as their Swedish colleague.

Moritz Rosenthal, piano soloist with the Magic Key on December 19, is a unique figure in the keyboard world. Seventy-five years old on that day, he retains amazing finger skill and musical enthusiasm. His style of playing is in the rare "grand manner" of other days—a combination of poetical fancy and dramatic flourish. The veteran artist, an astonishing mentality in every way, has memorized most of the poets in various languages, is a noted wit, and possesses degrees as a doctor of medicine and of philosophy. My favorite Rosenthal jest is his remark that "some complicated piano compositions sound as though their fingering had been written first and their music afterward."

Lily Pons, on Wednesday's Chesterfield offering, is a confirmed air-traveler, and has flown dozens of time from Coast to Coast. Her other passion, carefully concealed, is a love for jazz. Some years ago she sat at a table next to mine in a night club where a band was discoursing "hot" tunes. She leaned over and whispered to me, "If you won't say that you saw me here, I won't say that I saw you."

Beethoven's overture derives from Shakespeare's Roman hero, whose pride and sentiment are skillfully contrasted and combined in the composer's orchestral portrait.

The "Pastoral" Symphony exemplifies Beethoven's adoration of nature. He once wrote, "No one can love the country as I do . . . where every tree seems to speak to me saying 'Holy! Holy!'" The music has realistic imitations of the nightingale, cuckoo and quail as well as a rainstorm that is followed by sunshine.

LILY PONS' legion of admirers are privileged to hear her in two brilliantly florid performances, and some nostalgic folk-music from her native France, Wednesday evening.

"I Am Titania" (sung by the volatile Filina in the second act of "Mignon") is a polonaise abounding in high tones and dazzling adornments.

The "Bell Song" (second act of "Lakme") has the titular heroine disguised as a street-performer, intoning the glittering measures in a public square, and unwittingly attracting her lover, Gerald, who is stabbed by the vengeful Brahmin priest. The song derives its name from the accompanying orchestral chimes played on the xylophone. All the celebrated coloratura sopranos have specialized in the difficult excerpt, but none with more ease or dash than Miss Pons.

Kostelanetz' interpretation has rare opportunity in the ravishing tonal story which Ravel weaves about the ancient Greek legend of Daphnis and Chloe. The orchestration is unsurpassed in the delicate and shimmering beauty for which it is famous.

DON LORENZO PEROSI (born in 1872) is one of the few composers to come from the priesthood. At the age of twenty-five he started to write major oratorios in which he applied modern musical resources to antique principles of religious composition. His "Death of the Redeemer" created a sensation at the 1897 Italian Congress for Sacred Music, and established his worldwide fame. In 1898 Pope Leo XIII made Father Perosi honorary Maestro of the Papal Choir.

Coming from the Vatican, today's program has added Christmas significance, and doubtless the Pope himself will be listening while the priest-composer conducts his own music.

The solo voice of Beniamino Gigli stirs amiable memories for American radio hearers who remember his dulcet and polished singing when he was a tenor favorite at the Metropolitan Opera during the directorship of Giulio Gatti Casazza. It is good news to learn that Gigli contemplates an American concert tour later this season.

conductor

Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner)

Symphony in G Minor (Mozart)

Symphony No. 1 in C Minor (Brahms)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25, at 10 p.m. EST on NBC—(Red and Blue)

AGLORIOUS Christmas present for music-lovers, this program offered by the premier conductor, Arturo Toscanini! Festival opening with Wagner, triumphal conclusion with Brahms, their rich sonorities encircling the sensitive classicism of Mozart. Listeners will have an adventure to cherish with their valued musical memories.

Toscanini has always made fascinating matter of the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" (The Master Singers). The excerpt presents the broad theme of the Master Singers, the love communion of the romantic Eva and Walthar, and the latter's rhapsodical "Prize Song" that wins the hand of his adored. Full-throated pealings of the brass intermingle with the soaring moments for the strings and piquant episodes in the woodwinds. The end climaxes in uplifting celebration.

Characteristic of Mozart's inexhaustible fertility, his three greatest symphonies were written (1788) within the period of nine weeks—a feat unequaled by any other composer. The G minor is the second of the set. Even more remarkable, Mozart fashioned the trinity during his worst days of depression, himself ill, his six-month-old daughter dying in a household engulfed with debts.

Celestial inspiration and the fervor of creating raised Mozart above his earthly troubles. In his G minor symphony the "minor" is hardly noticed, for the music radiates mostly cheerfulness, and only the slow (second) movement sounds gentle sadness.

The entire work invites response from those to whom the term "symphony" means something heavy and complicated. Nothing is more clear and understandable in all orchestral music than this Mozart masterpiece, whose melody begins with the very opening for violins. A graceful minuet (third movement) and merrily bubbling finale complete an entrancing experience.

A few years ago, in Vienna's music museum, I was permitted to take the original Mozart manuscript from its glass case and hold it in my hands for a few minutes. As I turned those treasured pages of sheer beauty, tears filled my eyes. Since then I have never been able to hear the G minor symphony without a wave of the tenderest emotion.

Brahms was his own severest critic, and did not release his first Symphony for public performance (1876) until he had worked at the score for ten years. Perfection was the result, and the work has become an abiding favorite in the orchestral repertoire. Toscanini gives an irresistible interpretation of the music—its gigantic opening movement, with initial somberappings on the kettle-drum, ensuing rugged rhythms and two short stretches of songful contrast; the heavenly meditation of the second movement, intertwining strings and woodwinds in poetical eloquence; the lazily ambling allegretto (third movement) terminating whimsically; the graphic finale, which to me has always seemed to tell a story especially appropriate this evening—the Three Wise Men following the mysterious Star of Bethlehem (silver flute strains), the Revelation, and the population joining in an ecstatic pean of triumphant joy.

The Metropolitan Opera Company

Presents

"HAENSEL AND GRETEL"

by Engelbert Humperdinck

The Cast:

Haensel	Irene Jessner
Gretel	Queena Mario
Witch	Dorothee Manski
Gertrude	Doris Doe
Sandman	Lucille Browning
Dewman	Charlotte Symons
Peter	Arnold Gabor

Conductor, Karl Riedel

CHILDREN have their annual Christmas treat with this pretty fairy-work at the Metropolitan. The house is filled with palpitating youngsters; but the truth is that their accompanying elders are by no means immune to the whimsical story and enticing tunes.

ACT I.

Haensel and Gretel and their peasant parents (Papa is a broom-maker and given to drink), live penuriously, and the tots are chided by the mother for wasting their leisure time. She sends them out to pick strawberries for supper. They wander into the forest, and when they do not return, the frantic parents set out in search of them.

Scene II.

The frightened children are lost in the woods. The Sandman sprinkles sand in their eyes, they say their prayers and angels come to protect them.

ACT II.

The Dawn Fairy awakens the sleepers. They see the gingerbread house of the Witch, and as they start to eat its decorations, she captures them, and, imprisoning Haensel, starts to fatten him up for her own meal. Intending to cook him in her oven, the Witch, overconfident, is herself pushed into the fiery opening by the alert Gretel, who releases a group of children the evil old woman had turned into cake. All of them, with Haensel, Gretel, and their happy parents, join in an hilarious dance of celebration.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25
at 2:00 p.m. EST on NBC

The Metropolitan Opera Company

Presents

"ROMEO AND JULIET"

by Charles Gounod

The Cast:

Juliet	Bidu Sayao
Romeo	Richard Crooks
Stefano	Lucille Browning
Gertrude	Doris Doe
Tybalt	Angelo Bada
Mercutio	John Brownlee
Capulet	Norman Cordon
Friar Laurent	Ezio Pinza
Duke of Verona	Louis d'Angelo

Conductor, Maurice de Abravanel

GOUNOD'S "Romeo and Juliet" comes back to the Metropolitan after an absence of several years, owing chiefly to the resignation of Lucrezia Bori, who was one of the most winning romantic heroines, vocally and as an actress, ever to tread the boards of the opera house.

ACT I.

At a glamorous ball in Verona, at the palace of the Capulets, Romeo, disguised to hide his identity as a Montague, mingles with the guests and falls in love with Juliet, despite the long-standing feud between their families.

ACT II.

The great balcony scene makes up the material of this part of the opera, and the couple sing pledges of undying love.

ACT III.

We learn of the secret marriage of Romeo and Juliet in Friar Laurent's (Lawrence's) cell, and then occurs the street quarrel between the warring houses, in which Mercutio is killed by Juliet's cousin, Tybalt. Romeo slays Tybalt, and is banished from Verona.

ACT IV.

Romeo takes agonized farewell of Juliet. She drinks the sleeping potion designed to make her simulate death so that she need not marry the man selected by her family.

Scene II.

Romeo arrives at Juliet's "tomb" to find her apparently lifeless. He takes poison and dies. His bride awakes only to find him breathing his last, whereupon she stabs herself.

INTERESTING NEIGHBORS

Sundays, NBC-Red, 7:45-8 p.m.
For the West, 11-11:15 p.m. EST.

Six feet of red-headed and exuberant friendliness—that's Jerry Belcher, the lad who came out of the West to prove again that there's drama, humor, pathos and wisdom in the lives of the humblest citizens and behind the every-day event.

It's Jerry's mellow "good evening" that takes you each Sunday night into the home of another "interesting neighbor"—his cheerful introduction that makes you feel immediately at home with another dad and mother, with the cousins and the kids.

Real folks, these neighbors—and the nation throngs with Jerry to their firesides because in one way or another they are marked for recognition—they're interesting. One week it's a detective and his family in Rochester, next week a steelworker's home near Pittsburgh. And his surprise visit of the following Sunday may be to the Chinatown residence of the American editor of a great Oriental newspaper.

Jerry's own story sparkles with an every-day drama equal to those he discusses at the neighborhood hearthstone.

He claims Austin, Texas, as his birthplace and the University of Texas as his alma mater. The War squeezed him out of his senior year in college and substituted a siege of service with the 12th Squadron of the First Army Corps overseas. Newspaper and advertising work strengthened his understanding of people, and Houston's first radio station, which he served as manager, offered him new opportunity for exercising his interest in people.

The networks needed his talents, and he and Parks Johnson (now on "Vox Pop") inaugurated the first ad-lib, or unrehearsed network programs.

When Jerry conceived the "Our Neighbors" program and put it on the air in the fall of 1936 he started what he believes can be a real influence for international good-will—a program which is designed to show the essential unity, the underlying neighborliness of all races and nations.

Just folks—and Jerry Belcher, the genial fireside friend of millions, seeker of "Interesting Neighbors"

Associated Press Airs 'Big Ten' News Events

The whole world pauses on Christmas—pauses to reflect, to contemplate, to ponder the wonders of the year that has passed. It's particularly significant, therefore, that on this Christmas you'll hear the Board of Associated Press Editors name the ten biggest news stories of 1937.

What ten stories will be chosen? A restless, thumping year, 1937, jammed with events of the utmost importance to America and to the whole world. There was the crash of the Hindenburg, a "must" on anyone's list of the big ten. The Mississippi flood will certainly be named. No editor is likely to overlook the intense human drama in the astonishing story of Hugo

Black's appointment to the U. S. Supreme Court. Abroad, there is the rich drama of the coronation of King George VI, the Windsor-Bedaux story, the Sino-Japanese war, and perhaps the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis and the Soviet Army purges. Back in the United States, the great steel strike, the CIO, and the Memorial Day massacre in Chicago. There is the Supreme Court fight, the death of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the overthrow of Tammany Hall by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, the demise of the Al Brady gang, last of the bumper crop of modern "Wild West" outlaws.

NBC-Red network stations will bring the "big ten" at 9:00-10:00 p.m. EST.

Ideas Come Fresh From The Program That Informs

FACTS change. Ideas bred of yesterday's facts may well be false today. This is the challenge of a changing world.

Remember the Dinosaur?

He was dethroned as king of the world by that very challenge. He fossilized long before he became extinct—not so much because he had a little brain but because he didn't use the brain he had. His thick skin couldn't compensate for his thick skull . . . and the living, breathing dullard of today is "extinct as the dodo" because he lives within a self-satisfied shell of yesterday's ideas.

What has this to do with you and me? Only this—an open, elastic mind is a bargain price to pay for the privilege of membership in the human race. An open mind is a heap more enjoyable than a closed one—and a thousand times more thrilling. An open mind has fun with facts and molds them to new patterns of personal success—while the mind that's satisfied vainly repairs its mental roof while the flood of fresh ideas washes away the foundations.

Radio Stimulants for an Open Mind . . . Yours?

Keeping up is no longer a problem. Radio presents critical capsules of fresh information, ideas and new angles that can keep us ahead of the swift cavalcade of change—on our mental toes.

Try additional doses of Boake Carter and his colleagues—especially those whose views may not gear too nicely with your own pet opinions. Try a weekly prescription of the mental adrenalin that is the Chicago Round Table. This is the way to that fighting trim that can meet propaganda and palaver with critical judgment.

Let the minds, both big and little, that radio brings to your leisure moments contribute to your mental grasp and outlook. What you think is dross may well be sound. What you're sure is good may just possibly be wrong. Diversified opinions sharpen your attitudes—clarify your own assurances.

Listening with a purpose provides extra arms for the battle of thinking straight in a world gone crazy with contradictions. Purposeful listening? . . . even that is a new idea. A fair test of the guide across the page will prove, we think, its merit!

Exploration . . .

POLAR-EQUATORIAL EXPEDITIONS

Friday, NBC-Blue, 10-10:30 p.m.

Science shakes hands with sentiment across a quarter of the world's circumference this Christmas Eve as the MacGregor Expedition to the polar regions bids "Merry Christmas" to Dr. William H. Holden and his companions deep in the jungle country of British Guiana. Members of both exploration parties will extend holiday greetings directly to friends and relatives assembled in New York's Radio City, and listeners will ponder again the titanic wonders of radio as they trim the Christmas tree.

From an educational standpoint this unique broadcast will provide both a mike-side seat at another astounding scientific accomplishment and personalized sidelights on the objectives of these two important efforts to wrest new secrets from nature in the far corners of the globe.

Kris Kringle . . .

NUREMBERG TOYS

Sunday, CBS, 1:30-1:45 p.m.

Last-minute news from old Nuremberg—Santa's most famous workshop. Columbia brings an international short-wave pre-Christmas report from Germany's famous toy-manufacturing center which is full of the glamor and all the feverish activity of the original "toyland."

Long famous for the quality of its toys and fancy articles of metal, carved wood and ivory, old Nuremberg keeps its eye cocked year around toward the Christmas season. Children and oldsters alike will enjoy a peep into one of Kris Kringle's biggest bags.

And a little child . . .

INTERNATIONAL CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS PARTY

Wednesday, NBC-Blue, 4-4:30 p.m.

While their daddies play their pompous roles in the great international pastime of hide-and-seek—or diplomacy, the country will play host to a happy throng of childhood friends as youngsters of every race and creed assemble for a Christmas Party in NBC's Washington studios.

To some of them the Christmas story will be a legend of a strange messiah. To others Santa Claus will be an unfamiliar name for the patron saint of the Yuletide. But to each and every one the idea of Christmas—a time for rejoicing and unaffected comradeship—will be as real as a stick of candy or the bleat of a new talking doll.

There'll be a babble of tongues as they sing the carols of their native homelands, but that babble will bring the same glad feeling to the heart of each little black, white, yellow, red, or brown child alike.

Some of us will join that happy festival at our loudspeakers and ponder perhaps the forgotten line . . . "and a little child shall lead them." Just more kids, you say? Yes, and speaking the very spirit of Christmas!

Thematic Listening

A Practical Plan . . .

Success is surest along a route of planned action. Plot your plan, then work the plot—it's the sure-fire formula for getting ahead faster, surer.

So RADIO GUIDE suggests a practical method for getting the greatest benefit from these programs. We call it "Thematic Listening." No stodgy "course," but a simple procedure, founded on sound educational practise that will help you to enjoy your listening more and bring you to the end of each week with the satisfaction of having finished an interesting tour of important ideas and information and chalked up a real personal achievement.

This Week: Outstanding Personalities

Chart your listening in a notebook. Jot down the names of the speakers you have heard—the principal points brought out in the discussion or dramatization—and then add your own thoughts or reactions.

At the end of the week you'll have an accumulation of information that will surprise you with its variety and interest. A quick review will sharpen your appetite for more new ideas, new thoughts, and clinch the facts that you have learned. This is an old classroom method, to be sure, but when you're on your own in this game of "Listen and Learn" it's really a lot of fun.

Sunday. The networks parade a galaxy of personalities, both contemporary and historical. For a timely thumbnail sketch of the man whom Christ called a "fox" and who in turn pronounced the crucifixion sentence, hear the Rev. Father Gillis speak on Herod and John the Baptist.

Monday. Lovers of historical dramatizations will find "Brave New World" quite to their liking as well as a highly informative medium concerning our South American neighbors.

Tuesday. Hear outstanding personalities speak out for business and for Britain. R. J. Hamilton on the Story of American Industry program. H. G. Wells seeing "it" from London.

Wednesday. Hear about some of your Dietary Fads—what they mean to the texture of your complexion, to your liver, and their effect on the most important single contribution to a happy outlook on life—Your Health.

Thursday. Who's Who on the national scene? Two great programs bring a last-minute answer as three thought-leaders tilt with the question at America's Town Meeting, and the March of Time staff doubles for persons whose thoughts or actions have crashed the world's headlines.

Friday. Don't miss Dorothy Thompson and her "People in the News." Here's another speaker who looms large in the picture of today, and she selects for discussion—too late for us to announce in these pages—an individual whose personal fire, figure, face or frenzy is electrifying the news of the world.

Saturday. Vacation today. And a good chance to digest the whirl of impressions that you've absorbed since Sunday. Life rolls by displaying a million moods. Ideas flash like the slivers of color from a spinning diamond.

Conclusions . . .

AS I SEE IT . . . comment

Tuesday, NBC-Blue, 4:20-4:35 p.m.

Ten years ago H. G. Wells predicted a puny future for radio—declared, believe it or not, "the whole broadcasting industry will dry up." Tuesday afternoon he may qualify that hasty forecast as he concludes the current series of international programs, "As I See It." Brief though it be, his message may be expected to sparkle with the wit and wisdom which have made him famous as novelist and lecturer throughout the world.

The speakers in this series have come to the microphone unburdened by any broadcasting dictum. They have selected to "see" a subject of their own choice, and a tribute is due the program builders for their wise and attractive selection of speakers. Herbert George Wells is a well-chosen liqueur for the delightful menu of the "As I See It" series.

Wells, 77 years old this year, is still one of the most prolific writers of our time. Best known for his scientific romances and sociological novels, he ranks as one of the most widely read authors and thoroughly revered thinkers that England has produced.

Whatever he "sees," we can count on a pungent, timely and significant word-portrait, pungent with British humor. Timely: for few men possess his grasp of the world scene. Significant: for conclusions are his specialty.

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

JUST to set the record straight: The radio commentator who hinted that Dorothy Lamour would be expecting the stork next spring is slightly CONFUSED. Quoting Dorothy, "It isn't I but my movie stand-in, and I was trying to keep it secret as long as possible because she needs the work and money." But Dorothy would like a baby; has announced that she'll quit pictures and the radio a year from now to settle down with husband Herbie Kay, and right after talking to your reporter, went hunting for a homesite in Hollywood . . . Lloyd Pantages, of "Covers Hollywood" fame, was NOT thrown off the air. He quit, and the reason was that he had a contractual disagreement with his sponsor . . . Jimmie Fidler's two programs have NOT suffered by the trade and chain newspaper campaign against him and other frank film reviewers. Instead, his audience, since the fight, has shown a twenty-five percent increase! Incidentally, he will begin acting for his first Warner Brothers picture in January . . . Hollywood Hotel's Anne Jamison was NOT threatened with an acute ailment nor the need of an immediate operation; she has never felt peppier nor better . . . California's Folsom prison for two-time losers will NOT permit its convict talent to be aired by a sponsor; the recent publicity stories to that effect are simply herrings dragged across the trail of a political and rather unpopular appointment.

Speaking of Lamour, during her Chase and Sanborn broadcast of December 5, she really held a lion cub (with the aid of Don Ameche and Edgar Bergen). Its paws were enclosed in leather booties to keep it from clawing her, but despite its youth, the cub was a tough hombre . . . And its studio manners were in poor taste, too. NBC has since barred animal acts from its studios.

Most realistic was the Lux Theater (December 6) performance of Marcia Mae Jones, the 12-year-old child actress who played the part of "Rosalie" in "These Three," both in the film and on the air. When, in the play, Marcia was accused by "brat" Mary Tilford (played by 14-year-old Helen Parrish for Lux and Bonita Granville on the screen) of stealing a watch, Marcia looked into the wings and saw her mother crying, so she wept too. With that, her mother cried mere intensely, and Marcia responded with even more intense tears and hysteria. The youngster was really living the part so much that when she had finished her lines she retired, sobbing, to a seat next to Barbara Stanwyck, buried her head in Barbara's arms and was patted, soothed and calmed! . . . Then the Lux audience cried!

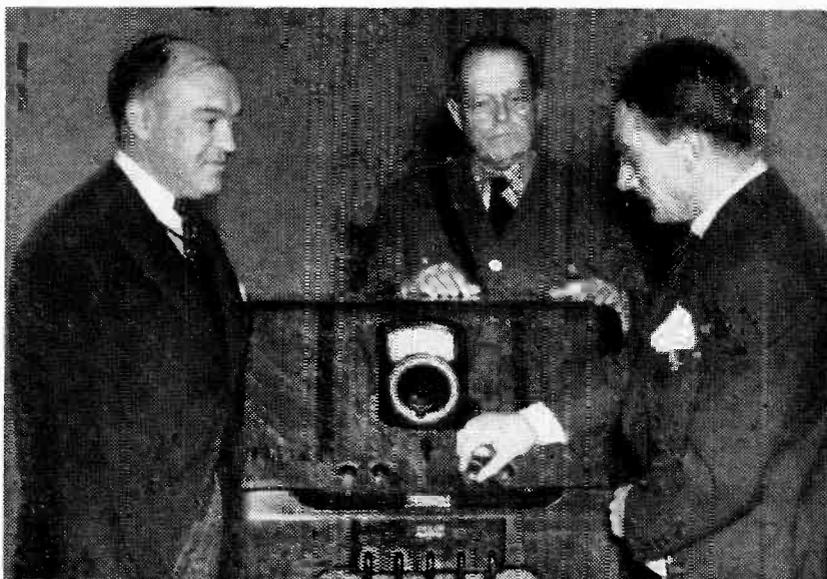

When the Jack Bennys move into their new Georgian home in Beverly Hills, May 1, it will be furnished with a complete Georgian silver service given this Christmas to Mary by Jack. And when their daughter Joan awakens Christmas morning, Santa Claus may have left that lucky youngster a miniature trailer—with all conveniences, even running water!

It's a Date: Still with Carole Lombard and Clark Gable, who even come to one another's radio rehearsals . . . And that Janet Gaynor crush on Tyrone Power is still serious—at the moment . . . For Ripley's attention, be it recorded that the Stroud Twins are making headway with the beautiful Brewster Twins; even dragged them to the veddy social Delibes Ball, December 10, at the Trocadero, and, a few days before, the Brewsters watched their first broadcast—the Strouds in action—and were "very thrilled about the whole thing!" . . .

Radactress Paula Winslow, elevated to autograph seekers' attention by supporting Mr. Gable in his recent Silver Theater appearance, most frequently eats chop suey with Mikeman Carlton KaDell . . . Log Cabin Jamboree Executive Sanford Cummings is very regular about his attentions to Marcella Knapp, the MGM caster . . . But who is Ken Murray's gal? Last heard of the winner was Florence Heller; but how about Andrea Leeds, who drew orchids, Patricia Wilder, and the admiring glances of Glenda Farrell?

James, his daughter Barbara Jane will be given the high Episcopalian christening service at the Wee Kirk of the Heather in Los Angeles. What's more, Barbara Jane will wear the same robes that Jimmy wore thirty years ago—and Barbara's godparents will include no less than Eddie Cantor (quite experienced as a daddy), Glenda Farrell, and possibly Deanna Durbin.

Plums are hereby awarded to Carroll Carroll, the gifted writer who is responsible for the glib patter you

Commentator Boake Carter (right) recently presented the ten millionth Philco to patients in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C. It was accepted by Secretary of War Woodring (left). There are 25 million radios in the U. S. Approximately 9 million were sold last year

Veteran radio personality Phillips H. Lord (left), creator of "We, the People" and host of its last season's broadcasts, returned to the Thursday night program as a guest recently. He was welcomed by Gabriel Heatter, the show's master of ceremonies at the present time

I particularly like that little story about Character Actress Bodil Rosing, who doesn't swap small talk with the rest of the "Big Town" supporting cast but just sits and crochets away at that Christmas gift necktie, a colorful thing of red and green, for her son-in-law. Who is he? Why, he's the star of the show, Edward G. Robinson . . . Incidentally, son-in-law Ed rode his first horse at a dude ranch week before last; celebrated his 44th birthday December 12.

December 26 will be a big day for the announcing James Wallington family, for on that day, thirty years to the dot since the christening of Father hear when you tune to Bing Crosby's Music Hall. He modestly explains that Bing does much to add words and feeling to the script—but then Bing is deserving of plums too, even if his thinning hair does cause Mr. Crosby to shy away from photographers when no toupe or hat crowns his glory.

And, although its premiere will have been old news by the time you read this, plums for Master of Ceremonies Dick Powell are in order in return for a deed he did at rehearsals for the first "Your Hollywood Parade." A small-part actress was unable to attend the first reading of the script and a director suggested calling another girl.

"Don't do that," urged Dick. "Let anyone read her part. She'll be here for the next two rehearsals—and I happen to know she needs this job." . . . The new program, "Your Hollywood Parade," incidentally, is broadcast right from the Warner Brothers lot in Burbank. To make a 500-seat studio for the show, Warner sound stage number nine was hurriedly transformed at a cost of $10,000.

Two years ago a ventriloquist named Edgar Bergen worked for a whole week at the Los Angeles Orpheum Theater for $275. He carried a dummy named Charlie McCarthy. More recently Mr. McCarthy concluded a record-setting week at the Los Angeles Paramount Theater. The receipts were in the neighborhood of $35,000, or about a thousand dollars more than the previous Cantor-Durbin appearance record. Mr. McCarthy was paid fifty percent of the gate, minus salaries paid to the remainder of the show's cast—which included a ventriloquist fellow with the name of Bergen.

Another plumful fellow (could Christmas be making Plummer more charitable?) is Cinema Actor Neil Hamilton, whom you heard recently in a Hollywood Hotel preview sketch. Hamilton, without ballyhoo, has been giving his Tuesday and Friday nights over to the most humane task of reading best-selling novels to the blind veterans at the National Soldiers Home at Sawtelle, Calif. But on December 15, he gave them a special Yuletide treat. He provided auto transportation for all vets desiring to see, or hear in person, Eddie Cantor's program; Cantor, himself no mean philanthropist, gladly supplied the tickets.

Don Wilson, the big red-letter man, will revert to football play-calling along with Ken Carpenter when NBC airs the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day. Incidentally, you'll be hearing the Alabama team on "Hollywood in Person" some morning of the holiday week. And while we're footballing, maybe you'd like to know that the gridiron voice of the western tilts heard on Fox Movietone News is that of Joe Micchiche.

Fads aren't too hard to start. It goes this way: While on a recent visit to San Francisco, where so many of the homes sit on hillsides or terraces, George McCall, the Old Gold movie newscaster, noted that many of the dwellings were duplicated in miniature in the form of mailboxes mounted close to the street for the postman's convenience. Returning to Hollywood, McCall, who is a home-workshop hobbyist, proceeded to make a miniature of his own home and put it into use as a mailbox. Neighbor Bing Crosby, across the road, saw, liked it and asked the movie-airer to make up a miniature mailbox after the plans of the Crosby manse. Now McCall has orders for scads of miniature home mailboxes—and the fad is spreading . . . So if you wonder at many of the McCall scoops—well, maybe he's reading the stars' mail!

Oakie College fate still hangs in balance, depending on its possible increase in listener-interest since guest stars were added. However, if Oakie is declared out, he still will have his chicken farm in San Fernando Valley to keep him in eggs.

Are movie stars worth their weight in gold on the air? Do they live up to their tremendous build-up when they face the microphone? Or do they hurt more programs than they help? Watch this column next issue for a frank discussion of this important subject by Mr. Plummer.

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

READERS have written to this department time and again wondering why it is next to impossible to obtain tickets to a popular radio broadcast. Last week I questioned several individuals who are familiar with the situation. They asked not to be quoted, and my promise, of course, will be kept. However, here's the reason: Distribution of tickets is in the hands of the sponsor and the advertising agency in charge of the program. They are used to gain good-will for the sponsor's product. For example, a food or drug company will give tickets to grocers and druggists in order to get good window and counter displays. I'm told a gasoline company will give tickets not only to service-station owners but to auto dealers who can boost their brand to buyers of new cars. One person told me that he had written for tickets and didn't get a reply, but later met a man who was in the wholesale-grocery business. When the subject of broadcast tickets was brought up the w.g. pulled a flock of tickets out of his pocket and handed him two for a very popular airshow. NBC has a system of their own in handling requests for tickets. I've been invited over to inspect their Guest Relations Division and to see how requests are handled. So next week I hope to report my findings, which may make it easier for you to obtain tickets. Meantime, maybe it would be wiser if you opened a grocery or drug store and promised the wholesale distributor good displays if he gets you some broadcast tickets.

The sponsor who is interested in Ben Bernie to head a new airshow has reserved time on ninety-four stations of the CBS network starting Wednesday, January 12. Radio listeners will have added cause for grief because the program will be in competition with the Fred Allen program.

Comics Shaw and Lee, who were heard last season on the Jack Oakie show doing the double-talk, will be headliners of a new Sunday series starting December 26. The cast includes Jack Brooks, Paul Small, Betty and Jean as vocalists; Sutton and Bliss, a piano duo; and the Carl Hohengarten orchestra, who supply the music for the same sponsor on the "Poetic Melodies" show, starring Jack Fulton.

A. L. Alexander, who made quite a name for himself last season as the conductor of "The Good Will Court," is back on the NBC airplanes. Now he is conducting the Friday night "Court of Human Relations."

Arthur Godfrey, who, until several months ago, lent his pleasing voice to the Professor Quiz program, is now heard every Friday night over the Coast-to-Coast Mutual network. Godfrey is permitted to do his program without the aid of a script, which is very unusual in radio. He is a past master at ad-libbing, and has built up an enviable reputation for this sort of work on an early-morning program which he has been conducting for several years over a radio station in Washington, D. C.

Gabriel Heatter, who never seems to be able to get enough work, has signed for a series of five-minute transcriptions of inspirational talks, which will be heard over quite a number of stations throughout the country. Heatter, as you know, conducts the "We, the People" program besides doing his regular daily newscasting.

Apparently Comic Milton Berle is being missed by a great many radio listeners. I have had innumerable inquiries as to whether or not he is coming back to the air. I just learned that upon completion of the flicker "Radio City Revels" which Berle is now making for RKO, he will return to New York and head a new radio show bearing the same title as the movie.

Les Tremayne, star of the "First Nighter," had his share of trouble recently. The actor was accidentally shot on Sunday, November 28, and was sent to the Passavant Hospital in Chicago. However, "the show must go on," and despite doctor's orders, he couldn't be kept there very long. Much to the surprise of everyone, he appeared at the method has proved to be of great help. Boake Carter is another person who broadcasts with a stop-watch. From his years of experience he times his speed in speech perfectly, and very rarely fails to finish "on the nose," as they say in broadcasting studios.

Several columns ago, I described the goings-on in the studio when Tizzie Lish makes "her" appearance on the Al Pearce program. Tizzie, of course, is really Bill Comstock, and just to see him in feminine garb is a big laugh in Looking up, he noticed an Oriental gentleman sitting at the next table. Lewis went over and politely asked him if he would help him with the pronunciation of these words in the script. Whereupon the Oriental jumped up and shouted, "Sir, I am NOT a Japanese. I am a Chinese," and angrily walked away. I have trouble telling them apart, too, Forrest.

It's been a long time since I mentioned Rudy Vallee in this department. The other night I visited him in his dressing-room at the Paradise Restaurant, where he is entertaining the diners during his stay in New York. If anyone doubts that Rudy is still as popular as ever, let him visit this night spot and see the throngs that are packing the place to see and hear him do his stuff. One must admire the fellow for retaining his popularity all these years when so many of the old-timers of the airlines have vanished from the broadcasting scene. Despite the fact that he is working so hard, Rudy looks in the pink of condition. He told me he plays tennis almost every day, which probably accounts for it. As most of you know, Rudy's greatest hobby is taking pictures. He showed me a collection of color photographs that he took of the rooms in his lodge up in Maine; and, believe you me, it is quite a place. I wish you could see the huge living-room, the pink-and-blue bathrooms, and his bedroom, which is the last word in modern design. Vallee leaves for the Coast after his broadcast of January 6, and has a date on the Warner Brothers lot the 12th of the month to start making his new movie.

December 5, Harry Conn made his appearance for the second edition of his "Earaches of 1938," which is heard over the CBS network. If you listened in, you were aware that Conn was suffering from a bad case of laryngitis. For an hour before the broadcast he sucked lemons in an effort to clear his throat. But that wasn't all Conn had to worry about. His wife was at home, seriously ill with pneumonia. Yet he had to be funny on the program—and he did a good job of it.

Walter O'Keefe is due back in the good old U.S.A. Thursday. This gives him just about ten days in which to pack his belongings and move his family to California, where he joins the "Hollywood Mardi Gras" show Jan. 4.

Thank you! Thank you! Thank you! for the grand response to this column's program popularity poll. Cards and letters have been pouring in from north, south, east and west. The more the merrier, so if you haven't sent me your selection of what you consider the twelve most popular programs on the air today in the order of popularity, will you please do so today—but not later than tomorrow. Last call—the results will be published in a few weeks. The address is 551 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Kate Smith has decided to make a Victor recording of her famous theme song, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain." On the other side of the platter the "Songbird of the South" will sing one of the newest hit tunes, "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky," which was written by Nick Kenny, famous radio editor of the New York daily Mirror.

Popular recordings of the week include Benny Goodman's version of "Can't Teach My Old Heart New Tricks"; George Hall's orchestra playing the timely tune, "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," and Glen Gray's offering of "I Remember" and "I've Got My Heart Set on You."

O. B. Hanson (left), chief engineer of NBC, recently presented the world's smallest station to Jules Charneau, owner of a museum of nearly 26,000 miniature objects. The transmitter, developed by NBC engineers, has a four-mile radius and transmits over short wave

Governor-Elect James H. Price of Virginia was an honored guest backstage at a recent Tuesday night Al Jolson show. He exchanged greetings with Parkyakarkus, Martha Faye, Al Jolson and the whole cast during rehearsals, later posed for photographers with Comic Martha studio for rehearsal on Friday, December 3, and went on the show that night.

The greatest problem that confronts news commentators is timing of the program. Sometimes they may talk a bit faster and sometimes a bit slower, which causes the program to either run over or finish ahead of time. Emily Post always holds a stop-watch in her left hand while broadcasting. Before going on the air, she puts a red mark on the script to warn her when she has one minute more reading time; a blue mark to denote a half-minute; and a purple mark to remind her that only twenty seconds remain before she comes to the end of the script. This method has proved to be of great help. His attire includes high-laced shoes, such as those worn by women in the gay nineties. They are really women's shoes, especially constructed for him by a San Francisco shoe manufacturer. Tizzie wears out about two pairs of shoes a year.

Talk about embarrassing moments! Radio Actor Forrest Lewis had one a short while ago. Forrest was assigned the role of Hideyo Noguchi, the Japanese scientist, for the "Science in the News" program. He was looking over the script while lunching in the drug store in the NBC Building and came across some Japanese words, the pronunciation of which had him puzzled.

So You Like Contests?

JUST about the most depressing letter yet addressed to this department has just come in. This is the substance of it:

"I not only lack courage to enter contests but do not seem to be able to express myself."

Our answers to this letter are just about what yours must be. The first is: "Courage? For what? What can anyone possibly lose in contests?" The second, in reply to the statement that this writer cannot express herself, is obvious. The only way to overcome that deficiency is to practise, to work, to tackle the shortcoming and win over it. What better way is there to practise expression than in contests?

In short, this letter brings us back to reaffirming the thought with which this department was introduced. Here it is: "Why contest fans? Why ten million people who this year will pore over dictionaries and box-tops and paste-pots and typewriters? The first incentive, of course, is the possibility of 'making a killing.' But there are more: Contestants study in varied fields to find the facts that win; they have the absorbing satisfaction of any hobbyist; they feel the thrill of achievement, the pride of distinction . . ."

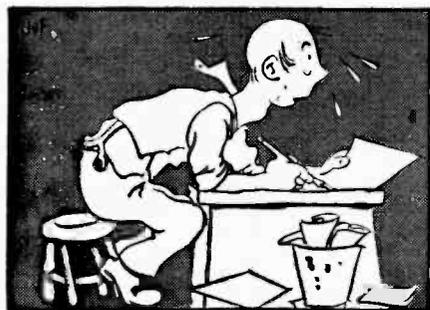

Our advice to this letter-writer is simply this: "You wrote us a nice letter. If we were judging it in a contest, it would have merited serious consideration, for it was simple and sincere. Devote that talent of yours to contesting, and forget your fear. If you lose, you have lost very little, indeed. If you win, your fear will be forever banished. Enter the next contest you see announced—and put your whole heart in your entry." That is not advice solely for the lady who wrote to us. It's intended for thousands of others, too—others who didn't even have the courage to admit fear!

How to Win

The Housewife's Advantage

One of the most successful contestants in America today is Mrs. Annette Victorin, of Cicero, Illinois. Since 1930 she has won 582 prizes valued at $4,800; during 1936 she won 82 prizes, worth $1,100. She was an all-American contestar in 1936 and again this year. Here's what she thinks about those who say they can't win: "In my entries I always use the personal touch. So many non-winners try to sound like advertising writers. The homey, sincere, unbewhiskered angle is what sponsors want about their products . . . they get lots of professional jargon from their own advertising men. That's why the housewife has it all over the professor (if she but knew it!) . . ."

This thought is repeated over and over again in the tips winning contestants give beginners. Practically all of them urge entrants to forget literary style, to concentrate on putting their own personalities on paper. Housewives are buyers; they are the ones manufacturers are interested in:

" . . . The letter should be highly personal . . . Capitalize on your business, your social class or whatever

Let this be consolation to those who have hesitated to put their sincerest thoughts in their contest entries!

Contest Fundamentals

Check Yourself!

Even for old contestants, experienced and successful, it is a good idea they have trouble with it—take care!

Do you have a definite system for having your entries criticised? (For example, a qualified friend who understands contests, or a "contest pal" such as this department offered to find for you three weeks ago.) Before you send in an entry, do you check each point in the rules, including sentences such as "entries will be judged on the basis of originality, neatness and sincerity," to be sure you observed them all? Do you use some reputable guide to closing dates so you can be sure no entries are sent in too late? Do you keep a notebook to jot down ideas before you lose them?

This is a questionnaire in which only a grade of 100 passes. If you're missing on any of these points—get to work!

Keep It Honest!

Post Office Laws

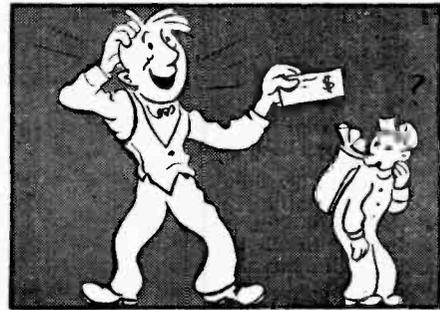

Contesting is freely blessed with cranks. The fact that there is so much "easy" money in the hobby seems to attract them—and when they don't get part of it, they endanger the sport of all the fans by harassing sponsors. At the same time, there is a fringe of dishonest sponsors on the other edge of contesting. They must be prosecuted vigorously, for they destroy confidence in honest contests.

Many complaints addressed to us are doubtless from cranks. On the other hand, some may help rid contesting of crooked sponsors. Here is the procedure to follow if you feel that you have been swindled by a dishonest sponsor.

The proper governmental department for prosecuting fraudulent contests is the Post Office, for nearly all contests use the mails in some way. Address your complaint to the Chief Inspector, Post Office Department, Washington, D. C. You should prepare a detailed statement of the facts, and attach all correspondence, advertising literature and other communications you have received through the mails. Be sure to attach envelopes through which correspondence and advertising were transmitted through the mails, marked with your initials. You can have this evidence forwarded to the Chief Inspector by your local postmaster, if you like.

Postmasters will not communicate with those against whom you are complaining. The purpose of this evidence is to determine whether prosecutions should be instituted. Do not expect the Post Office to act as an intermediary in the collection of damages.

Straightforward complaints to the Post Office will go a long way to clean up contesting. But don't enter petty squabbles which will annoy sponsors needlessly. Remember, no sponsors—no prizes! Don't you be a crank!

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE SPECIALS

These are this week's best contest bets! This is the last week you can enter! RADIO GUIDE has singled out these contests for special attention to increase your chance to win. Read the exclusive winning tips below!

$2,500.00 in Cash

PRIZES: (Weekly) $2,500 in cash. First prize, $500; 2nd, $250; 3rd, $125; 4th, $75; 122 prizes of $25 and $10. Also $10,000 in grand prizes.

TO ENTER: Get the "Phyl Coe" Mystery Tabloid, with rules and entry blanks, from Philco radio or tube dealer. Then solve the mysteries broadcast independently over 243 stations. Send solution to Philco Contest Division, P. O. Box No. 416, Grand Central Annex, New York City.

For more facts, listen to "Phyl Coe" Mysteries broadcast on transcriptions at different times by 243 stations. See program pages for day, station and time.

TO WIN: Be sure to read the Philco Mystery Book, available at Philco stores. Neatness appears to influence the judges. Use Official Entry Blank. This contest is being judged by the Reuben H. Donnelley Corp. of New York, which National Contest Headquarters calls contesting's most popular judging company. Figures on the first five weeks indicate that slightly more women than men solve the mysteries correctly. Also, the majority of the winners are from smaller communities rather than from cities. Here is the best way to be sure your clues are correct: This program is broadcast by transcriptions on 243 different stations at different times. In many communities the stations' reception regions overlap, so that the program may be heard more than once by the same person. Consult the program pages of this issue—pages 27

The first issue of each month carries Radio Guide's complete list of current contests—"Your Opportunity Guide." Next week's issue, dated week ending January 1, 1937, will describe all the new contests announced since "Your Opportunity Guide" appeared last. Then—each week—look for "This Week's Prize Specials"—telling you how to win each contest!

personal items of interest there are about you or your personal experiences. What is wanted are personal letters, not academic essays." Kenneth Close writes that in his Complete Contest Manual.

" . . . If you are one of the average to whom the subject of language and grammar remains a dull, chronic ache, take heart in the assumption that the judges who will read your letter in all probability belong to that average, too . . . Don't aim at illiteracy, but do be yourself . . . The vital issue is to get your idea across in your way, and if you can do it more forcefully by inserting a terse colloquialism, go ahead!" So write Mary Burgert and Grace Tousley, all-American contestars, in Contest Gold.

to 43—and see whether you can hear the program twice, thus making sure that the clues you have heard the first time are really correct. Note: It is now necessary to submit only two clues in each entry, instead of three, as at first. This makes it easier to stay within the 50-word limit.

Five $100.00 Watches Daily

PRIZES: (Daily) Five $100 Longines watches daily except Saturdays and Sundays.

TO ENTER: Complete the sentence "I like and use Pebeco because—" in 25 words or less. Enclose two 10c cartons or one 25c or 50c carton with your entry, and mail to Pebeco Contest, c/o Columbia Broadcasting System, New York. Contest closes Dec. 24.

For more facts, listen to "Follow the Moon," CBS, Monday through Friday, 5 p.m. EST.

TO WIN: Pebeco stresses three points: (1) cleansing; (2) germicidal action; (3) removal of food particles. Note that entrants are allowed 25 words in addition to the opening six, so that the statement may total 31. Here is a sample winning entry: "I like and use Pebeco because . . . although it's said 'toothpastes are toothpastes,' I find Pebeco different. Gives me cleaner, whiter teeth—and a dental glow I've gotten only with Pebeco!" Be sure to include name and address of your dealer. Entries are judged on the basis of originality, expression and sincerity.

to return from time to time to the fundamentals, to review what has been learned, and check up on habits formulated by practise. Check yourself on these points: Do you have a fool-proof system for checking the amount of postage on your entries? In undecorated entries, do you use a standard-size sheet of white paper, such as 8½ by 11, of good quality? If you type, are you sure that your typewriter keys are clean, to make a clear impression? Is your typewriter ribbon in good condition? If you write, do you use ink? Also, are you sure that your handwriting is legible? (For this, ask the next ten people who come to the door to sell something whether they are willing to do you a favor. Have them read a page of your handwriting. If

IOWA'S MUSICAL LEADER

BY DAVID NOWINSON

IT IS only fair to disillusion you right at the start by mentioning that Orville Foster is not the kind of musician who would ever starve in a garret or any other place. He has a strange, new-fangled notion that an artist has a job like anybody else and that it's up to him to earn a living at it and that you don't have to sacrifice artistic integrity or self-respect to make a go of both music and living.

As titles go, Orville is musical director for Iowa Network Stations KSO and KRNT. But the title is almost a misnomer because it doesn't begin to embrace all of his activities: choral director, leader of symphonic orchestras and swing bands, outstanding pianist and organist, producer of lavish visual broadcasts, arranger of unique musical combinations and producer-artist of Iowa's best loved program, known to all as "The Day Dreamer."

moments he was busy with choral conducting and the post of concert organist for Father Finn's Paulist Choir.

He entered radio at WOC in Davenport, first as staff pianist, then as musical director for four years. The capital city of Iowa beckoned. He joined the staff of WHO in Des Moines, then turned to the Iowa Broadcasting System for the post of staff pianist. Easily discerning his outstanding ability, IBS authorities made him musical director within three months, a post he has made distinguished in the past six years.

He has many firsts to his credit. He originated one of the first Slumber Hour shows in the Midwest. He was conductor of the symphony orchestra on one of the oldest programs on the air, the Crescent Hour, appearing as Little Tom Thumb with the Crescent Symphony in that era when sponsors Orville Foster: He's not the kind of a musician who would ever be found starving in a garret. He started his career when he was three!

A list of Orville's accomplishments would make him sound like an old man. In point of years, he's only 29. Ten of these years have been devoted to radio. Virtually all of these years have been spent in musical study and performance. He's a perpetual student, not a notable thing in itself, but rather remarkable considering the fact that he was head of a college musical department at 20. But he's never been a sidelines instructor. He's always been a practitioner, a living refutation of that bright generality, "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach." He does both, and extraordinarily well, too.

BORN in Muscatine, Iowa, on March 8, 1908, he started his musical career at 3 and never interrupted it. He attended St. Ambrose College in Davenport, taught music in the high school and college and was soon head of the college musical department, retaining the post for three years. While at St. Ambrose, he organized the college Little Symphony and the a capella choir, both definite strides forward in Midwest music.

When he was only 21, Orville Foster entered a nation-wide open competition for organists. A total of 25 crack men performed, including several eastern network organists. Orville won that contest, sponsored by the Chicago Musical College, hands down. His reward was a year's study with the famous organist and instructor, Charles Demorest.

That same summer, Orville studied piano ensemble with Percy Grainger, noted Australian pianist. In his spare submerged individual names in favor of their own. He wrote a musical column for the Lee Syndicate group of newspapers.

HE'S a good business man. Yet he thinks nothing of spending several hundred dollars out of his own pocket on a single show. A year ago Easter Sunday, he produced a special Easter show, featuring poetry and a large string ensemble. Rather than use the conventional transcribed fanfare to open the show, he hired six brass men to play a 20-second fanfare. It was all they had to do on the show. Yet he went to that expense to produce a pure live-talent show.

He's been heard from time to time on various nation-wide networks. On Christmas morning he will present an unusual musical mass from the fashionable St. Augustin's Church in West End Des Moines. The broadcast for the Coast-to-Coast Mutual network will feature a 12-piece string symphony, an 18-voice professional choir and a 15-voice boys' choir in nearly all of the old traditional Christmas carols in new settings. He will use special arrangements and unusual combinations, you can be sure. The hour broadcast begins at 10:45 a.m. (EST).

Handsome, quick-witted and droll, Orville spends his spare time with amateur movies in color film, with his chow dog, Chink, and with brisk tennis. He's still unmarried and highly eligible. His big study now is television, at which he's more expert than many so-called experts. You see, he's a perpetual student.

THE STORY OF "SILENT NIGHT"

the immediate environs of Oberndorf, where Franz Xaver Gruber still lived and worked. Many authorities maintained that it was a folk-song that had been discovered in the mountains of Upper Austria. Others said it had come from the pen of a famous Salzburg composer, Michael Haydn, brother of the immortal Josef Haydn.

Finally, in the year 1854 a group of curious musicians attached to the Royal Court of Germany wrote to the St. Peter Monastery in Salzburg. Were there any documents pointing to the authorship of this lovely hymn? The monks were about to reply that they had none, when, by sheerest accident, the inquiry came to the attention of a choir-boy. He was the youngest son of Franz Xaver Gruber! He exclaimed that his father had written the song, yes, yes, but of course. Moreover, his father was alive and could prove that he had written it, beyond the shadow of a doubt.

AND so Franz Xaver Gruber could, and so he did. It had never seemed such a wonder to him. A lovely melody, yes, so, but a small thing, written quickly for a friend. The whole world sang it now, yes, that was pleasant to think about, a great honor, surely. But the song had brought him nothing. Not that he had demanded anything, he had not done that, he would not now, even if he could. It was enough, maybe, that the whole world sang "Stille Nacht," and loved it.

A hundred legends sprang up overnight when it was known positively that an obscure, impoverished schoolmaster had written the greatest Christmas song of all time. It was said that Gruber had written the hymn at the bier of his young wife, his orphaned children at his side. You might hear that Gruber had written "Silent Night, Holy Night" after the death, on the day before Christmas, of his only son, written it to reiterate his faith in God. Or then again the accepted story might be that God in his wisdom had come to Gruber in a dream and selected him, because of his piety and goodness, as the instrument with which to bring an immortal Christmas melody of divine origin to the hearts of faithful Christians throughout the world.

THERE were many such stories, of course, all of them wildly romantic, none of them remotely approaching the truth. The legends, like the great melody itself, brought Franz Xaver Gruber nothing, and as he was discovered in 1854, so was he forgotten.

Franz Xaver Gruber died in appalling poverty and total obscurity in 1862. We don't know, but it may be that in spite of his poverty, in spite of the bitterness of his loneliness, he died a happy man. Surely he should have, surely it is right and proper to hope that the voices of the millions who had chanted his hymn came to him in those last minutes, that he heard them, as he closed his tired, sorrowful eyes at last, heard them all together, the silver-high sopranos over all, beginning, "Silent Night, Holy Night, All Is Quiet, All Is Bright . . ."

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letterforum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Each week Radio Guide will publish letters deserving our readers' attention.

Editor's Note: Scores of expressions were received after the letter of Mrs. Betty Meehan of Indianapolis, Ind., appeared in our November 20 issue. Her declaration that Nelson Eddy "has a monopoly on the mike," and "is smothering" the Chase and Sanborn program "to a near end," aroused both a storm of protest and agreement among our readers. Unfortunately, there isn't room here for printing all the letters received. However, here are a few of them. Shall we drop the whole matter with the thought of "each one to his own tastes"?

THESE AGREE

Voice of the Listener: I certainly agree with Mrs. Meehan. Why not give us more of Bergen and McCarthy? Eddy is just another singer—nothing out of the ordinary. After the Hour starts on Sunday night, I turn off my radio until Eddy gets through singing. A little of his singing goes a long way. McCarthy and Bergen have something new and funny. Dorothy Lamour and Don Ameche are great and don't "hog" it like Eddy. About time the program cut out some of Eddy. He "ain't such a much."—Mrs. E. Grindley, Belleville, N. J.

VOL: I'm heartily in favor of Mrs. Meehan's criticism. Don Ameche is splendid, and his laughter so true. Let's have more of him. Why, oh why, is it necessary to have so much extra?—It only makes the program topheavy.—B. Amiksdal, Turlock, Cal.

Dear VOL: I wish you would do something about the Chase and Sanborn program. It is far the very best program on the air, but there is too much Nelson Eddy. He has a splendid voice, but certainly one, possibly two songs from him are enough.—Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Omaha, Neb.

Voice of the Listener: Three rousing cheers for Mrs. Betty Meehan! I agree, and in fact my husband, my family—we all agree. Mr. Eddy is smothering the Chase & Sanborn program to a decided end. Nelson Eddy may have a beautiful voice to some, but I say, give him a kick for me and knock some expression into that simpering baritone. All I can think of when he sings is that he is all puffed up with an egotistical pride. Please puncture that pride and give us the wings in the expressive spirit in which they are meant, not as a scale or toneless obligato.—Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Goldsmith, Elmont, N. Y.

VOL: I have just finished reading the letter by Mrs. Meehan. She expressed views I have had for some time. I have ceased to listen to my favorite singer because I got an overdose of his singing. A variety program like we used to have with something different about every three minutes is my idea of a perfect program. I think that is one reason for the success of amateur programs.—J. E. Williams, Tacoma, Wash.

VOL: It seems to me that Nelson Eddy is taking too much time from the program with his songs. I will agree that he is a good singer, but after all, as the singing goes, there is a time and place for everything.

Our family has a unique way of listening to the Chase and Sanborn Hour. After the announcement and Eddy starts to sing, we switch over to WGN and listen to Benny Davis' Stardust Revue for ten or twelve minutes. By that time Eddy is finished singing.

Then again, at the end of the program, we turn to Wayne King until Eddy is finished.

Yours for less Eddy and more Ameche.—Elaine Weisheit, Peru, Ill.

THESE DISAGREE

Voice of the Listener: Freedom of speech is sometimes a bad thing. Americans feel it is their social duty to always be telling someone else what they think. After all, I'm sure Mr. Eddy doesn't choose the time allotted him on the program, and I think that the staff of Chase and Sanborn ought to be the judge of what to do on their own program—at least give them credit for thinking they know. Chase and Sanborn should feel pretty swell, and I guess they do, but I think Nelson Eddy has a grand voice. As for my neighbors, I suddenly hear the dials go up instead of lower—just a different environment, I suppose, but I prefer to live in mine. Your for less criticism.—C. Maddux, Greenville, S. C.

VOL: May I ask Mrs. Meehan if it is necessary to know just who is the star of the Chase and Sanborn Hour? Or, for that matter, of any program? An hour so entertaining and different should be taken as a whole and enjoyed to the full.

It seems she is not a fan of Nelson Eddy. There is a dial on every radio for the mere purpose of tuning in stations featuring programs to one's liking.—Margaret Woelfe, Pekin, Ill.

Dear VOL: If Mrs. Betty Meehan of Indianapolis would like to hear my opinion of the Chase and Sanborn Hour, I shall be only too glad to give it. Nelson Eddy sings only four songs on the whole program, two in the beginning of the hour, and two at the end, and they take only a very few minutes of actual time. When he takes a part in the sketch given, he usually sings only three songs. His banter with Charlie McCarthy is only a line or two. I do not see how this can be called dominating the program.—Mrs. Smith, Reading, Pa.

VOL: Of course the Chase and Sanborn Hour has a star. That star, naturally, is Nelson Eddy. At least my friends, relatives, neighbors, and I think so. He most certainly does not have a monopoly on the mike. In fact he does not occupy the time a great artist of his type should. My advice to Mrs. Meehan is to listen to the program instead of listening to whether or not her neighbors have their radios tuned loud or soft. By doing that she will most certainly notice that Nelson Eddy does not have a monopoly on the program, which, of course, most people regret.—Margaret Ellison, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear VOL: Honestly, don't you believe Mrs. Meehan's reference to Nelson Eddy as a "monopoly" of the Chase and Sanborn program is a gross exaggeration? She says he is smothering the program and feeding his admirers an overdose. Pooh! Mr. Eddy sings four songs each week on a program which is on the air for an hour. Surely no one could think that he is taking more than his share of the program.—Ellen Soutle, Kansas City, Mo.

Voice of the Listener: It makes me seethe to read such letters as the one sent in by a fan from Indianapolis, Ind. The idea that Nelson Eddy is smothering the Chase and Sanborn program to a near end is unthinkable. Please do not misunderstand me. I enjoy listening to such artists as Don Ameche, Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, and Dorothy Lamour, but I think that the contrast or variety offered by Mr. Eddy is the thing that makes the program enjoyable. And isn't variety the spice of life?—Miss E. Whitmarsh, Binghamton, N. Y.

"GIRL ALONE" AT CHRISTMAS

BETTY WINKLER VISITS A GREETING-CARD FACTORY
TO LEARN THE REAL STORY OF A CHRISTMAS CARD

CONTINUED FROM
PRECEDING PAGE

1 After making arrangements (left), Betty Winkler calls on Mr. Reinschreiber (above) of Gartner & Bender Greeting Card Co. to discuss designs

2 When Betty has decided on a particular type of Christmas card, a rough sketch of the idea is drawn for her by Artist Mrs. Lee Sturdy (above)

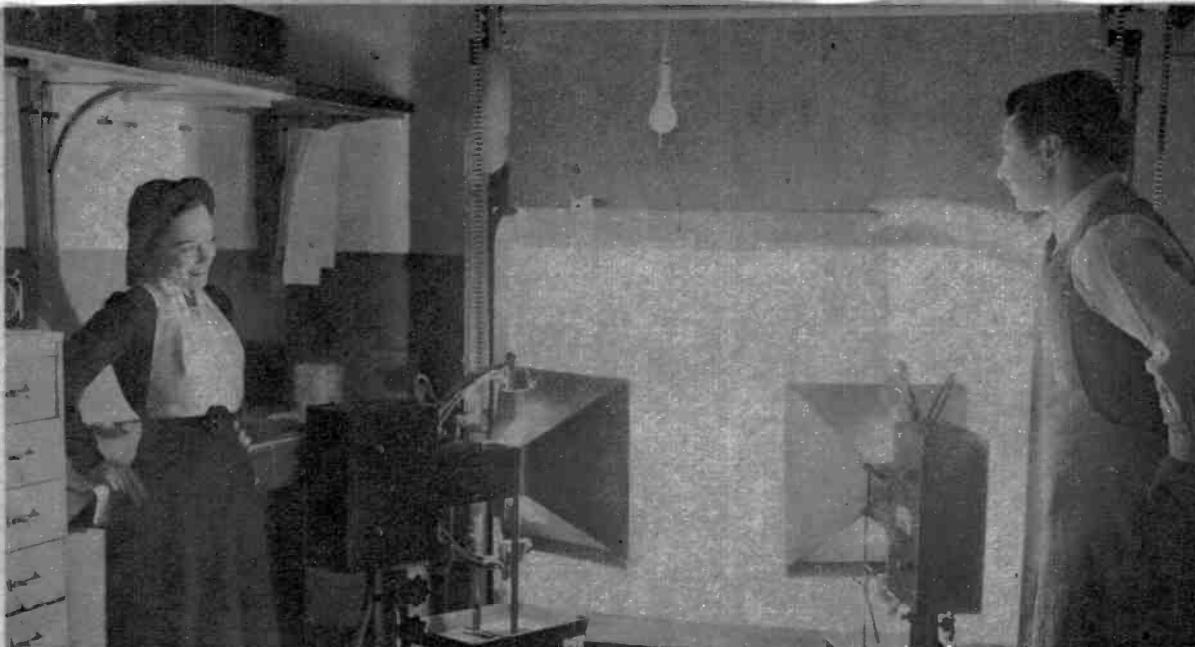

3 From the approved sketch, a finished drawing is made. Then the final copy, 1½ times actual size, is drawn by Artist Eleanor MacKinley (above)

4 Meanwhile, Artist Margaret Cleveland (above) letters the sentiment and the name for the inside of the card. Like the picture, it's 1½ times actual size

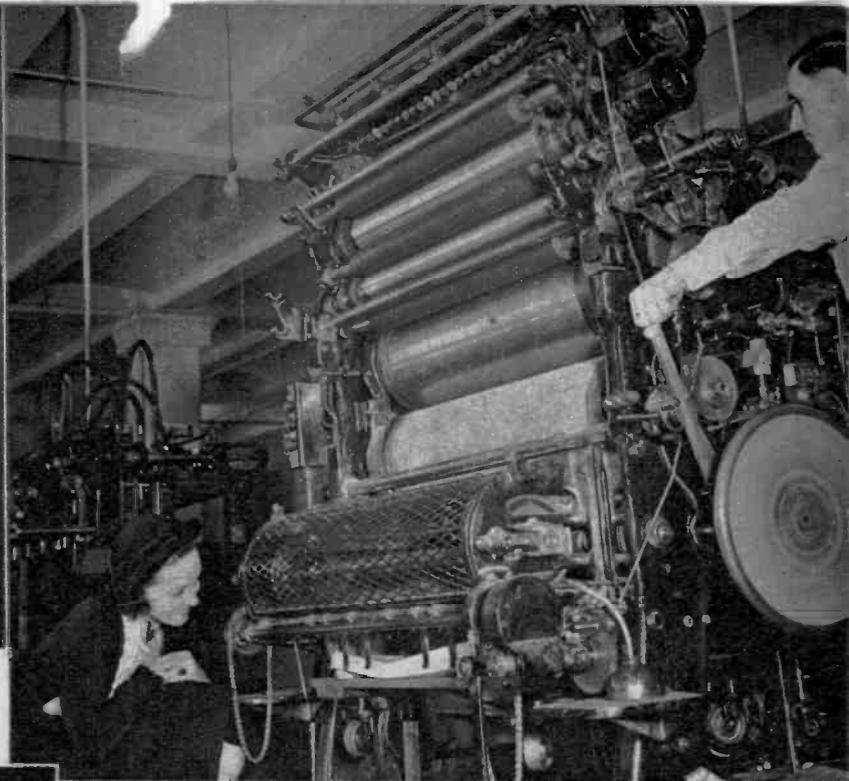

5 These working drawings are placed before a large camera, photographed by Frank Gera (left). He makes a plate for each of the four basic colors in the drawing, develops them himself (above)

6 The photographs have been made on plates of chemically treated glass, and these are given to another artist (above: August Elm). He retouches them to establish color value

7 The finished glass plates are then put in a rack, placed on a sheet of chemically treated zinc. Strong arc lights (operated by Hal Aaron, above) burn the image deep into the zinc plate

8 The zinc plate, after chemical treatment, is the finished printing-plate, and is put on the printing press (operated, right, by Robert Schweizer). Card production then commences

9 Card designs are printed on sheets measuring 3x4 feet, then cut smaller by Walter L. Dickinson (above)

10 A die-cutting machine, operated by Frank Hart (above), cuts out designs to the size they'll be on cards

WHEN Betty Winkler learned that the manufacture of greeting-cards is a 100-million-dollar industry, that many intricate and fascinating processes are involved in it, she decided to visit one of the plants to see for herself. Betty lives in Chicago, so she went to Gartner & Bender, the fourth largest company of its kind in the country. There she found 426 people employed in the plant fifty-five studio workers on the payroll—and daily some 300 verse-writers sending in contributions. The result of their combined efforts is a monthly output of approximately eight million cards! To grasp the complete story of card-making, she followed her own card through all the processes—and here is what she saw.

11 The message for the inside of the card is engraved on a brass block, which is used in the engraving machine operated by George Young, Jr. (above). This machine exerts from 4 to 5 tons pressure on the paper!

13 At her apartment in Chicago's Ambassador East, the star of "Girl Alone," heard daily at 1 p.m. EST, addresses the cards

14 Right: Accompanied by her cocker spaniel, Penny, Betty goes to a near-by mail box, sends her season's greetings to friends

What would a program be without an announcer? Here's Carlton Kaddell, with "Music from Hollywood"

Maxine Gray, hailing from the South, joined the Hal Kemp organization four years ago as the featured girl vocalist

STARS AND SATELLITES

TWELVE years ago a University of North Carolina student gathered together a group of musicians, none of whom could read a note! But Hal Kemp, their leader, could—in fact, he could play all the instruments in a band. So he ran over each of the musicians' parts until the men had memorized them. It's been a long way since Fred Waring first heard Kemp and his student musicians and persuaded them that they had something. But hard work produced results, and now Hal Kemp's unusual style of arrangements, coupled with his characteristic combination of reeds, features the Chesterfield "Music From Hollywood" program over CBS Friday evenings. However, Hal is a modest fellow, one who realizes that he alone isn't responsible for the success he enjoys. He insists that credit be given where it is due. So we go behind the scenes to present those who make possible the popularity of "Music From Hollywood."

Upper left: Kemp studies an arrangement with CBS Producer Phil Cohan (left) and Harold Mooney (right). Hal and three arrangers spend 100 hours a week on six new arrangements

The program is over and pay-day has arrived. Now it's Partner-Manager Alex Holden's turn to go to work. Here he's paying off John "Pete" Peterson, the "Instrument Jockey." The entire pay-roll runs from $3,000 to $4,500 every week

Bob Allen, above, is the romantic singer with the band. He joined the outfit three and a half years ago; is a "straight" singer

Eight thousand dollars worth of instruments are put away by Instrument Jockey Peterson

Above: Hal's favorite instrument is the saxophone. He specializes in reeds, but sometimes likes to double in brass for the fun of it Right: Hal greets his musicians, already present on the stage, while Doorman Tony Benno tells him, "You're late, today, Mr. Kemp"

Boy meets girl—and looking into each other's eyes, they see messages that no one else can see. Eagerly the girl responds as the boy takes her in his arms, whispers gentle words of sublime, everlasting love in her ear, caresses her gently, and kisses her

STUDIO LOVE—AS YOU IMAGINE IT

Their eyes are closed as their lips meet—and now nothing else seems to matter. All gives way to overpowering emotions of love

As the boy holds her gently in his arms, a sense of security possesses the girl. He holds her firmly, yet most gently, tenderly

When love is in power, time has no meaning whatever. These are the impressions listeners get when they hear a love scene on the air

Yet, on the radio, love is necessarily a cold, calculated thing. It's governed by the stop-watch, by the edicts of technicians, and it's purely impersonal. Here, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Zerbe, their eyes fixed on the scripts, endeavor to relax as they go through a love scene

AS IT REALLY IS

ALTHOUGH love scenes on the air differ widely from those in private life, the two do have something in common. In the case of the Lawson-Zerbes, for example, one led to the other. The couple had their first meeting when they played opposite one another on a radio program—and their marriage two months ago was the result.

Before meeting Lawson, Rita Mae had come to New York, hoping to find work on the stage or in radio, had made a number of recordings for RCA and World Broadcasting System, and played on the Ave Maria hour and the True Story program. Born in Chicago, April 16, 1917, she had attended St. Patrick's Academy in Sinsinawa, Wisconsin, and St. Marys of Notre Dame.

Lawson was born in Portland, Oregon, spent his youth in Dayton, Ohio.

There he attended Fairview High School and the Dayton Art Institute. He first entered radio as a writer and actor for a Dayton station, then went to New York as an actor. He is heard on "Road of Life," "Gun Smoke Law," and "The Life of Mary Sothern" program.

Depending entirely on voice and sound-effects, radio love scenes receive peculiar treatment—and here the couple shows how it's done.

Photos by Gene Lester

To take her eyes off the script might mean that the girl would lose her place. So she kisses her hand instead—but never the boy!

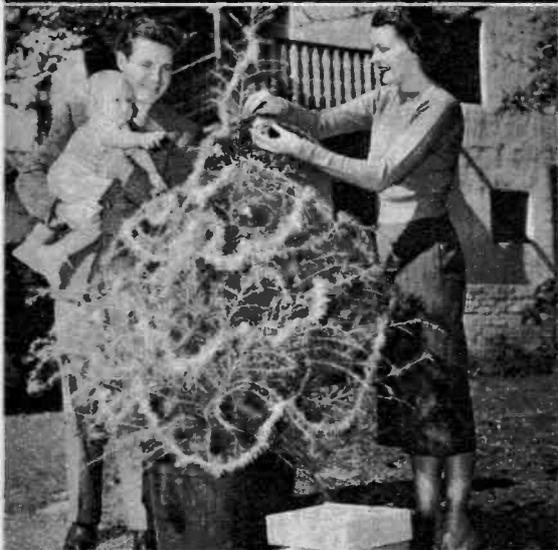

Because they depend on voice and sound-effects to create love scenes, actors must speak clearly, with emphasis, keeping at a proper mike-distance

Actors always speak to mikes, not to one another. When using separate mikes, they take cues from the director. Occasionally one carries on alone!

CALIFORNIA CHRISTMAS

WITH OZZIE NELSON,
HARRIET HILLIARD &
THEIR YOUNG DAVID

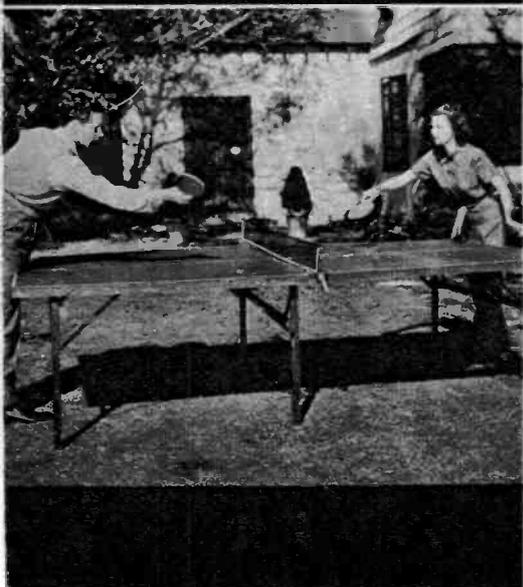

This year the Ozzie Nelsons live in Hollywood—and their Christmas tree stands in a wash-tub in their sunny yard. Son David directs the decorating

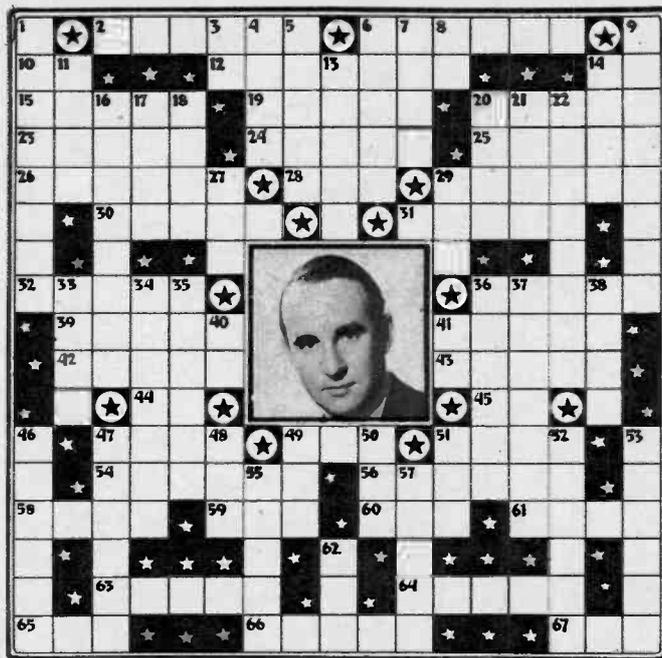

When it comes to Christmas music, Ozzie Nelson writes his own distinctive arrangements. The photo on the piano is of Ginger Rogers

After a big Christmas dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson (below) play a game of ping-pong. David (right) takes a California sleigh ride!

PRELUDE TO SWING

HOW MAESTRO TED FIO-RITO LIMBERS UP HIS PIANO FINGERS

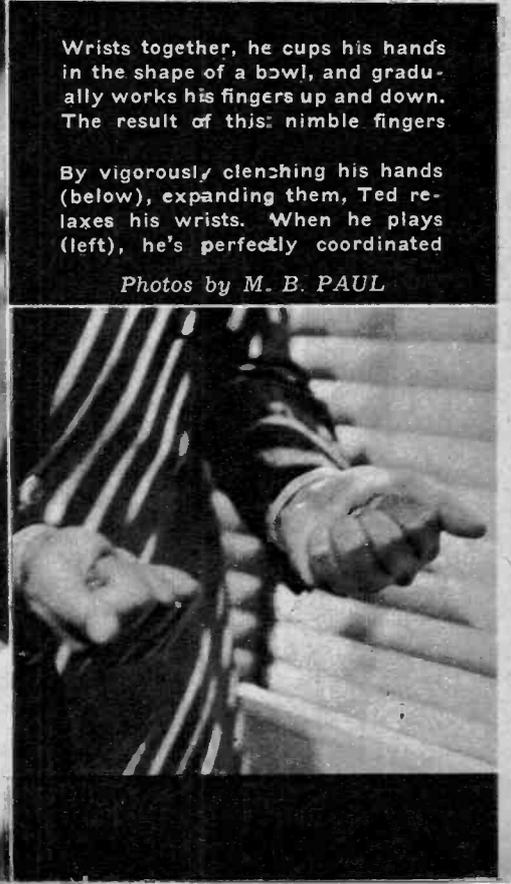

Before Ted Fio-Rito gives his boys the down beat for the Saturday "Log Cabin" show, he goes through a series of finger exercises, loosens his muscles

Wrists together, he cups his hands in the shape of a bowl, and gradually works his fingers up and down. The result of this: nimble fingers

By vigorously clenching his hands (below), expanding them, Ted relaxes his wrists. When he plays (left), he's perfectly coordinated

SHORT WAVES
Symbol after a program, like (sw-9.53), means that program is broadcast on short waves on 9.53 megacycles.

NOTICE: The programs as presented here were as correct and as accurate as the broadcasting companies and RADIO GUIDE could make them at the time of going to press. However, emergencies that arise at the studios sometimes necessitate eleventh hour changes in program listings, time, etc.

Bell Δ indicates religious services and programs.

If your favorite station is not listed at quarter or half hour periods, consult the time listings immediately above. The chances are that a network program of 30 or 60 minutes duration is on the air at a quarter-hour when you do not find your station listed.

BROADCASTING

from Station E-Z-R-A

EVERY MON.-WED.-FRI.
NBC — Coast-to-Coast

You'll enjoy the philosophy and quaint humor of this old man with young ideas. One of the best loved characters in radio, in a program that's DIFFERENT. Never a dull minute. The Hoosier Hot Shots supply the music. 'Nuff said.

Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 27. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

SHORT WAVES

BY CHAS. A. MORRISON, president, INTERNATIONAL DX-ER'S ALLIANCE

THIS Christmas promises to bring more Yuletide programs than ever before. As more and more people are getting all-wave receivers, they will be able to get the Christmas "Spirit," in the line of programs, not only from our own country but from many different foreign countries as well. This year there will be broadcasts from the Arctic to the dark, unexplored Amazon jungles, Italy, England and Germany, to mention a few. In the following paragraphs the time, stations and programs will be listed in detail.

H. G. Wells, one of the most famous and most widely read of contemporary writers, will be heard talking on a subject of his own choosing in a program from Daventry, on Tuesday, December 21, at 4:20 p.m. EST, and on Friday, December 24, at 7:20 p.m. EST. . . . Towards Christmas every year Phil Tanner, a seventy-five-year-old folksong singer from Llangennith, in the Gower Peninsula, South Wales, gathers his friends around him in one of the little Gower Inns and challenges them to a singing contest in which quantity is more important than quality. This unusual program, entitled "Gower Reel," will be heard on Tuesday, December 21, at 6:20 p.m. EST.

In the broadcast "Welcome Yule," listeners will be able to join the cheery and traditional ceremonies enacted at Highwood Hall on Christmas Eve in 1837. After a dinner that includes a baron of beef, a haunch of venison, and a suckling pig, Squire Allworthy and his guests will return to the great hall, where everything is in readiness for the occasion. There will follow songs, dances and carols of the period; there will be ringing of handbells; the villagers will bring in a Yule log; the waits will be invited in to sing an old-fashioned Wassailing song, and one of the party will tell a ghost story. Listen in on Wednesday, December 22, at 10:15 a.m. EST, or on Christmas Day at 7 p.m. EST.

Jack Payne will throw a party on Thursday, December 23, at 3 p.m. and at 6:40 p.m. EST, which will enable Daventry listeners to join in the fun. Artists of international repute, representative of almost every form of entertainment, will be among the guests. . . . One of the most beautiful services broadcast by the BBC in the course of the year is the traditional Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols, held in King's College Chapel, Cambridge, on Christmas Eve. The Carols, sung by the celebrated King's College Choir, will be heard on December 24, at 10:25 a.m. or at 8 p.m. EST. . . . That grand old fairy story of the Arabian Nights, "The Magic Lamp of Aladdin," will be the featured Christmas pantomime to be portrayed on the Daventry program Christmas Day at 11 a.m. EST.

Daventry's annual Christmas Party, the most informal and spontaneous of the year's variety broadcasts, will be heard on Christmas Day at 2 p.m. EST. Billy Bennett, the Two Leslies, Tommy Handley, Bertha Willmott, Stainless Stephen, Al and Bob Harvey, and Elsie and Doris Waters are among those who are expected to "drop in."

On Friday, December 24, at 9:30 p.m. EST, listeners will be privileged to hear the famous "Christmas Oratorio" of Johann Sebastian Bach, which will be broadcast from the Kaiser Wilhelm Church in Berlin. . . . Engelbert Humperdinck's fairy opera, "Hansel and Gretel," a Christmastide opera for young and old, will be broadcast on Christmas Day at 9:15 p.m. EST.

Franz Lehar's new opera, "Tatiana," will be broadcast for the first time, from the RAVAG studios in Vienna, Austria, on Sunday, December 19, from 1:40 to 4 p.m. EST, over OER2 (11.778).

2RO3 (9.635) at Rome, Italy, promises an interesting broadcast entitled "Christmas 1937," on Saturday, December 25, at 7:45 p.m. EST.

Christmas Day will bring an exclusive NBC broadcast from Vatican City, featuring the Sistine Chapel Choir, the symphony orchestra with Don Lorenzo Perosi conducting, and Beniamino Gigli, tenor, as soloist. Tune in direct to HVJ (15.12), at 1 p.m. EST.

A special Christmas program consisting of greetings and carols sung by students of the Bunka Gakuin especially for North American listeners, will be transmitted over JZJ (11.8), of Tokyo, Japan, early Christmas morning at 12:45 a.m. EST.

Separated by more than 5,000 miles, the Holden Expedition, digging deeper and deeper into the unexplored Amazonian jungles, and the MacGregor Arctic Expedition, wintering just 600 miles from the North Pole, at Etah, Greenland, will exchange greetings on Christmas Eve at 10 p.m. EST over the NBC-Blue network. Tune in direct by dialing W10XAB (12.862), and VP3THE (13.74).

For the second year, the highlight of the Christmas Eve programs of Station W1XAL (6.04), Boston, Mass., will be the broadcast of the traditional carol singing on Boston's Beacon Hill to listeners all over the world. A description of the color and excitement of Christmas Eve on the Hill and the joyous Christmas music of the roving groups of singers and bell-ringers, picked up by microphones as they stand outside candle-lit doorways of charming old houses, will be a feature of the festive program.

A broadcast of the twilight Vespers Service at the Grenfell Mission, with Eskimos and fur-trappers as the chief participants, will feature the International Dx'ers Alliance's transmission from Northwest River, Labrador, over VO6D (14.28), on Sunday, December 19, at 7:30 p.m. EST.

Television marches on! The first television motion-picture house in the world is now under construction in Leicester Square, London. When the new building is opened, towards the end of the year, spectators will see on the screen all the principal events which take place in the world at large and which will be transmitted by television.

First test transmissions are now being conducted over the new French short-wave transmitter, located at Saint Remy l'Honore—les Essarts le Roi, near Paris. According to the Consulate General for France in Montreal. This station, when completed, will be able to operate on 16 different frequencies between 21.48 and 6.04 megs inclusive. The calls will be TPB1 to TPB16 respectively. A telegram from J. E. Peters of the International General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., announces that "Essarts" broadcast test transmissions on 9.55 megs Wednesday, December 1, at 6:30 p.m.; on 6.04 megs Friday, December 3, at 6:15 p.m., and on 11.845 megs at 7:30 p.m. EST. The transmission on a frequency of 6.04 megs was picked up at the RADIO GUIDE Listening Post, with rather weak signals.

In connection with the construction of the giant new short-wave transmitting center at Prato Smeraldo, near Rome, Italy, tests are now being conducted over a 2,000-watt experimental station, on 15.17 and 15.3 megs, using calls 2RO5 and 2RO6, respectively.

YOUR RADIO DICTIONARY

Terminology and jargon of broadcasting, listed and defined

A CLAMBAKE if there ever was one! Loaded with everything from a Lady Macbeth and a couple of canaries to a cawk and a big-name woodchopper who had been giving lessons to a Rover Boy, even the slumber bums said it laid an egg. One of the canaries, with her eye on the fairy godfather in the fish-bowl, backed into an eighty-eight; the putty-blower, riding it, drove his slide into the sound-table; while the spieler ad-libbed a blue gag into the commercial! The scoutmaster burned!"

Makes no sense? That's because you're not up on your radio vocabulary. Broadcasting has a lingo all its own, some of it borrowed from the stage, some of it invented through necessity and some of it devised to save time. Study up on the radio dictionary that follows and—presto!—you'll know what the foregoing word-scramble really says.

A Across the board—A radio program booked daily at the same time.
 Ad lib—To speak lines not written in script, or in music, to play unwritten parts.
 Adenoid—A tenor with a "tight" voice.
 Arsenic—A boresome program.

B Beards—Noticeable errors made during the course of a program. Same as "Fluffs."
 Belcher—A performer with a "frog" in his throat.
 Blue gag—A comedy line improper for radio.
 Burps—Noises frequently heard on long-distance transmission lines.
 Button-puncher—An announcer responsible for switching a studio to the proper circuit.

C Canaries—Vocalists, chiefly coloratura sopranos.
 Clambake—A pretentious program that falls apart due to errors, lack of rehearsals, or a generally bad performance.
 Clear a number—To obtain official permission to make use of a certain musical selection.
 Clientitis—Sponsor trouble.
 Cliff-hanger—An adventure serial script.
 Corny—Obvious and unsophisticated musical or dialog treatment.
 Corn-on-the-cob—A harmonica.
 Cawk—An animal imitator.
 Creeper—An artist who insists on working up toward the microphone during a broadcast.

D Dawn Patrol—Those concerned in early morning broadcasts.
 Dog—A mediocre musical number of a popular nature.
 Down in the mud—A very low production volume.
 Drooling—Adding unimportant talk to a program in order to occupy more time.

E Echo chamber—A small room with resounding walls, used to give a hollow effect to certain dramatic scenes.
 Eighty-eight—A piano.

F Fairy godfather—Easy-going sponsor.
 Fairy godmother—Unimaginative musical director.
 Fish-bowl—The clients' observation booth in a studio.
 Flesh peddler—A talent agent.
 Fluff—Missing a cue, or stumbling over a gag.

G Gelatine—A tenor with a voice that is thin and quavery.
 Godbox—An organ.
 Grasshopper—Young supernumerary of an advertising agency.
 Groan box—An accordion.

H Hambone—Unconvincing blackface dialectician.
 Heartbreaker—Audition for a commercial program on speculation.

I In the beam—Within range of microphone or loudspeaker.
 In the mud—Too little tonal volume or lack of definition.

J Jam session—Spirited ad-lib renditions of standard popular tunes.

K Key station—The radio station where the network program originates.
 Kiss it—To hit a note accented for solo entrants.

 Lay an egg—To render a program or part of a program resulting in a complete flop.
 Lick—A liberty taken with a song as written.

M Madame Cadenza—A flighty soprano.
 Mike Hog—One of a group of artists using a microphone who "blows the others away. Analogous to an upstage player in the theater.
 Mike-mugger—An artist who works too close to the microphone.

N Nemo—Any program originating outside of the broadcasting studios.
 Noodling—The tuning up of musical instruments with practise runs, trills, scales, etc.

O On the cuff—A term describing a program for which artists receive no compensation.
 One and one—Instructions given to an orchestra to denote the playing of one verse and one chorus of a song.
 One in two—A term used in instructing the orchestra or soloists to play or sing one verse and two choruses of a number.

P Pancake turner—The sound technician controlling the playing of double-faced records.
 Pick it up—A term used in instructing the performer to speed up his delivery.
 Putty-blower—A trombone.

Q Q.S.T.—An obsolete wireless term still used by broadcasters and radio amateurs. A general call to all stations.

R Ride it—Swing instrumental ad-lib.
 Rover Boy—An advertising agency junior executive.

S Schmalz—Supersentimental rendering of a musical number.
 Scoutmaster—An advertising agency executive.
 Segue—The transition from one musical number to another without break or announcements.
 Short voice—A voice with a limited range.
 Slumber bums—Porters in broadcasting studios assigned to all-night duty.
 Sneak in—To bring music in softly and bring it up full behind dialog.

Song-plugger—A music-publishing firm's representative who promotes the songs of his publishing company.
Sound-table—Movable table for small sound-effect properties.
Sour—A voice or instrument off pitch.
Spiel—The advertising copy.
Spreader—A performer who will take up a longer period of time on the airshow than has been allowed in dress rehearsals.
Squeak-stick—A clarinet.
Stretch—Slowing up the concluding musical numbers so that the show will finish on the nose.
Studio mothers—Mothers of performers, usually juveniles. Like stage mothers, only worse.

T Talking in his beard—When the speaker has a muffled voice.
 Thick—When the individual instruments in a group selection are not distinguishable.
 Town crier—A vocalist who sings too loud.
 Turkey—Big floppola-bustero or gigantic clambake.

U Under—A program that's too short for its allotted time.

V Visual show—A radio program which is also being presented before a visual audience.

W West of Denver—An expression used when engineering difficulties are unexplainable.
 White meat—An actress.
 Whodunit—A term denoting a mystery script.
 Woodpile—A xylophone.
 Woodchopper—A xylophonist.

Bronchial Cough Sufferers ACCEPT $1.90 Gift Offer

Wain's Compound has brought blessed relief to thousands of men, women and children suffering from torturing attacks of Bronchial Asthma and Bronchial Coughs, and enabled them to breathe more freely, easily and to sleep more soundly. Contains no habit forming drugs or heart depressants. The active ingredient in Wain's Compound works with amazing speed. In a few minutes it is taken into the blood stream and starts its work. Each dose taken helps loosen the congestion which obstructs the air passages in the bronchial tubes. It changes the nature of the thick mucus to a freer flowing state so it can be eliminated by expectoration, perspiration, kidneys or bowels. The effectiveness of Wain's Compound lies in the fact that it has a tendency to lessen the severity of, and to prolong the intervals between attacks of Bronchial Asthma. No matter how long you have suffered or how many remedies you have tried without results, we want you to prove the value of this famous remedy to yourself today. Fill in and mail coupon to Wain's Laboratory, Hollywood, Calif., at once. By return mail you will receive a full size regular $2.25 bottle of Wain's Compound (our standard price at drug stores) for only 35¢—stamps or coins—to cover actual cost of postage and handling. (Saves you $1.90—our gift offer to you.) This introductory offer good only to sufferers who have never before used Wain's Compound and is limited to one bottle per person. Your 35¢ back, if not satisfied. Also FREE 16 page Book.

JOAN CRAWFORD takes time out from her part in M-G-M's "Mannequin" to play the part of Mrs. Santa Claus. Joan Crawford has smoked Luckies for eight years, has been kind enough to tell us: "They always stay on good terms with my throat."

Tobaccoland's Finest Gift

When you offer friends the ever-welcome gift of cigarettes, remember two facts . . .
 First, among independent tobacco men, Lucky Strike has twice as many exclusive smokers as all other brands combined.
 Second, Lucky Strike not only offers the finest tobacco but also the throat protection of the exclusive process "It's Toasted".

With men who know tobacco best . . .
