RADIO GUIDE'S ANNUAL STAR OF STARS POLL

THIS WEEK-MOST POPULAR ACTOR AND ACTRESS

"HE entertainment business, as has been bruited about for quite some several seasons, is not like other businesses. The people in it are not like those who peddle life insurance or build lawn mowers or are "in" real estate.

The difference is that in the entertainment business the customers run the showand that the people in the business love it. As everyone who has ever dealt with a shoe salesman knows, that is not true elsewhere.

Right now the broadcasters who are responsible for the radio programs we hear are awaiting orders from their customers—the listeners. Those orders may come in the form of votes; for instance, in the fifth annual Stars of Stars Poll, conducted by Radio Guide for the benefit of listeners and broadcasters alike.

In earlier polls, held during the past four years, listeners voted each week in every division of the poll. This year, however, each division has a separate election during one week, and that week only. The first, for instance, named the most popular musical programs—and the results of that poll are given this week on page 13. The second poll named the most popular dramatic program, and the third, the best children's program. Results of these polls will be announced each week.

This week's election will determine the most popular actor and the most popular actress on the air. The ballot above is good only in this election, and it is the only ballot that can be used. None of the earlier ballots can be used for this poll. This ballot cannot be used later in any other election. The ballot for the most popular actor and actress must be mailed before midnight on Saturday, April 9.

Last year listeners voted top honors to Don Ameche, Nelson Eddy, Lanny Ross, Jack Benny, Michael Raffetto, Robert Taylor, Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Clark Gable and Lester Tremayne, among the actors. Most popular actresses were Helen Hayes, Jeanette MacDonald, Joan Blaine, Rosaline Greene, Anne Seymour, Elsie Hitz, Barbara Luddy, Myrna Loy, Joan Crawford and Irene Rich.

Every listener owes it to himself and to those who give him his entertainment to register his selections in all the Star of Stars Polls. Fill in the ballot at the top of the page—now, while you're thinking about it. Paste the ballot on a postcard, if you like. And, don't forget-it must be mailed before midnight, Saturday, April 9!

THIS WEEK

PREVIEWS OF SOME OF THE BETTER REGULAR AND SPECIAL BROADCASTS

SUNDAY, APRIL 3

Lotte Lehmann . . . sopranc guest "Magic Key"—NBC-Blue, 2 p.m. EST.

Lotte Lehmann has achieved world-wide fame in recent years because of her superb vocal and dramatic interpretations of various Wagnerian roles. She hails from the small town of Perlenberg, Germany, has been a member of the "Met" since 1933.

George Jessel . . . celebrates

"Jell-O Show"—NBC-Red, 7 p.m. EST. (For the West, 8:30 p.m. PST.)

George Jessel has been in show business since he was nine years old, began by singing childish ballads at a theater where his widowed mother sold tickets. In celebration of his thirty-ninth birthday Sunday, he will be Jack Benny's guest.

Nelson Eddy, Jose Iturbi . . . for Ford "Sunday Evening Hour"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.

Fans everywhere will cheer the opportunity to hear the glorious voice of the truly great Eddy. As guest for Ford, he'll be heard singing under the direction of Jose Iturbi, who returns to conduct the orchestra for three weeks.

Irene Rich . . . in prize-fight drama

"Love With a Wallop"—NBC-Blue, 9:45 p.m. EST. (For the West, 8:15 p.m. PST.)

The prize-ring—and the hard-punching men who make its history—forms the background for Irene Rich's radio play. Her efforts in bringing "culture" to a fighter provide an amusing story. Don't miss this uproarious comedy.

MONDAY, APRIL 4

Barbara Stanwyck . . . "Dark Victory"
"Lux Radio Theater"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.

"Dark Victory" tells the story of a young surgeon who operates on a young girl with brain tumor. A tragic tale of romance and death, this play offers a fine starring role for the talents of the highly dramatic Miss Stanwyck.

Painters and sculptors . . . their story
"Brave New World"—CBS, 10:30 p.m. EST.

"Art Endures" will be the subject of "Brave New World's" dramatization. The story of typical Latin-American painters and sculptors, both ancient and modern, and the development of ecclesiastical art will be told on the program.

TUESDAY, APRIL 5

Charlie Ruggles . . . visits Al Jolson Show—CBS, 8:30 p.m. EST. (For the West, 8:30 p.m. PST.)

Charlie Ruggles, prominent comedian of the stage and screen, will join up with Al and his radio crew this Tuesday for a special guest appearance. Best beloved for this bashful type of humor, Charlie will be heard in an amusing skit.

Jane Froman . . . visits Al Pearce
"Watch the Fun Go By"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.
(For the West, 9 p.m. PST.)

Lovely Miss Froman will sing on the program originating in her home town—St. Louis—where the Pearce funsters are personal-appearing this week at the Fox Theater. On hand will be Arlene Harris, Tizzie Lish, Carl Hoff and his orchestra.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6

Merritt family . . . their story
"Cavalcade of America"—CBS, 8 p.m. EST.
(For the West, 9 p.m. PST.)

Hepzibeth Merritt and her seven sons founded an industrial empire in northwest Minnesota. Settling there in 1857, the Merritts were largely instrumental in opening up rich iron lands, became operators of the largest open-pit mine in the world.

Edgar A. Guest ... net switch "It Can Be Done"—CBS, 10:30 p.m. EST.

"It Can Be Done," the program in which Edgar A. Guest presents different dramatic sketches showing how individuals have struggled to success in spite of handicaps, switches from NBC to the CBS network this Wednesday. Guest will be M. M. Kinley, oil-well fire-fighter.

Boris Karloff . . . in thriller "Lights Out"—NBC-Red, 12:30 a.m. EST. (For the West, 10:30 p.m. PST.)

Karloff, famous for his "monster" roles in the movies, is appearing in a special series of broadcasts for radio's greatest horror show—"Lights Out." "Dance Macabre" by Arch Oboler will be the title of this week's midnight thriller.

THURSDAY, APRIL 7

Bunny Berigan . . . hot trumpeter "Steinie Bottle Boys Swing Club"— NBC-Blue, 7:45 p.m. EST.

Like Goodman, who specializes on the clarinet, Bunny plays almost every number and directs his band at the same time! He sets the pace for the band and they swing along right behind him. Fans can hear him with the Steinie Boys Thursday.

Rudolph Ganz... Bing's guest "Kraft Music Hall"—NBC-Red, 10 p.m. EST.

Ganz, eminent Swiss pianist-conductor-composer, becomes the victim of Bing Crosby in a "humanized" interview. Ganz was a conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra from 1921 to 1927, has since headed the Chicago Musical College.

SATURDAY, APRIL 9

Social Security ... in meet Eleventh Annual Conference—CBS, 2 p.m. EST.

CBS will broadcast two talks from the luncheon meeting at the Hotel Astor in New York. Speakers will be Senator Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa, and Marion B. Folsom, treasurer of the Eastman Kodak Company and member of the Federal Advisory Council on Social Security.

Bill Robson . . . presents "Broken Feather" "Columbia Workshop"—CBS, 8 p.m. EST.

Robson is a product of George Pierce Baker's "47 Workshop" in playwriting at Yale. Following four years at Paramount and Universal, he joined CBS on the Pacific Coast, became permanent director of the "Columbia Workshop" last year.

Lauritz Melchior ... pride of the "Met" "Your Hit Parade" — CBS, 10 p.m. EST.

Hailed as world's greatest Wagnerian tenor, Melchior is a Dane by birth. He made his "Met" debut the same day as did Marion Talley, is best beloved for his thrilling characterizations of the title roles in "Siegfried" and "Tannhauser."

A WOMAN OF COURAGE

BY JAMES STREFT

ITTLE Fannie Borach of Brooklyn stared down her long nose at the grimy twenty-five-cent piece she clutched in her sweaty hand, then glanced forlornly at the theater sign which announced an admission price of forty cents.

Tears flooded her eyes and she sniffled and rubbed her sleeve across her nose. Fannie Borach was only twelve, and it's easy to weep at twelve when a hope has been shattered. It was amateur night at Frank Keeney's theater on Fulton Street, hard by the oily, dirty East River. She had wanted to see that show, but Papa Borach couldn't spare the twenty-five cents, so little Fannie had worked all day helping a neighbor make a dress. She had been paid a quarter, and, grasping the coin in her hand, had raced to the theater.

She got there just as the matinee prices went off and evening prices

Went on and Fannia Powerh leaked went on, and Fannie Borach lacked fifteen cents of having enough to sit in the peanut gallery for amateur night.

If she had possessed that fifteen cents perhaps you would never have heard these famous words, sung in a deep, sad contralto:

"It's cost me a lot but there's one thing that I've got
"It's my man . . .
"Oh, my man I love him so,

"He'll never know.

"All my life is just despair, but I don't care."

If little Fannie Borach had possessed that fifteen cents perhaps you never would have heard of Fannie Brice, a woman of courage—born with two strikes on her but who has scored time and again by delivering sacrifice hits in the pinches.

Because she lacked the fifteen cents

she went to the stage door and walked into the theater with the amateurs. The manager spied her.

EY, kid," said he, "what do you do?"

"I sing," said little Fannie Borach
-Fannie Brice to you.
She planned to watch the show until her appearance was called, then she would skip. But before she could catch her breath the manager shoved her onto the stage and said:

"O.K., kid—sing!"

Fannie gulped, rubbed her sleeve across her nose again and believed Providence had turned His back on her. But out in the audience was a newsboy she knew.

"Hey, Fannie," shouted the youngster. "Sing 'When You Know You're Not Forgotten By the Girl You Can't Forget'."

She grinned at her friend.

The problem child of the nefworks is impish "Baby Snooks," brainchild of Fannie Brice. Below: Miss Brice as the famous baby

"That kid," said Fannie Brice years later, "had confidence in me. He was my pal. I couldn't throw him down. So I sang.

She won the prize of $5 and ran home to her mother. She was out of "Look, Mama!" she held up the $5.

"I won—"

"Wipe your nose," commanded Mama Borach.

"I'm going to be an actress," confessed Fannie after wiping her nose.

That was 33 years ago. The $5 meant a lot to the Borach family. Papa Borach was very poor. He was an Alsatian Jew and when he came to the New World he opened a saloon fast in New York's Ghetto, where Fannie was born in 1893. She used to steal beer from Papa Borach and give it to nursing mothers in the neighborhood. She began life by helping others and she never got out of the habit. She played in the gutter.

She played hopscotch with newsboys, and the streets taught her their lessons. Life flowed quickly in the ghetto, the sweating, steaming, smelly ghetto of New York. Only the courageous survived.

Papa Borach sent Fannie to school, but she was not a good student and she played truant. In the mornings, she would slip into the neighborhood theaters when they were being cleaned and lie flat on her stomach until the shows began. She simply wouldn't study. Papa Borach scolded, and Mama Borach wrung her hands, but little Fannie Borach kept right on playing hookey from school

SHE got a job in a dressmaker's shop and worked while her family thought she was in school. A child of weird complexes, Fannie puzzled her employer and even the customers. Once she told a customer her family was starving and that her mother was dying. The customer wept and gave her old clothes and bread. The next day Fannie came to work in her Sunday best, which wasn't very good. But she wore two earrings in each ear mother's and her sister's. She acted even in childhood.

She spent on herself all the money she made because she didn't want her folks to know she was working! Her whole life has been a crazy-quilt-incredible! An Alger story? Why, if Alger had dared write her life he would have been ridiculed. The things that happened to Fannie Brice couldn't have happened even in an Alger story. Alger story.

After winning $5 for her first appearance, she became a "professional amateur." That was more than thirty years before the Major Bowes programs began.

"I played every theater in Brook-lyn, Manhattan and Newark," laughed Fannie, "and once I made $35 a week as an amateur. The customers would throw coins to us on the stage. The polite thing to do was to wait until after the act to pick up the money, but I picked up mine as I sang. I was afraid the money would get away."

She changed her name from Borach to Brice. She was irked because friends called her Fannie Bore-act. She just happened to pick Brice. There was no rhyme or reason for it, but, too, there's no rhyme or reason to her entire life.

She was a gawky girl when she got her first steady job at a Second Avenue theater, selling tickets, cleaning, watching the scenery and playing the piano between times.

"I played after a fashion," she admitted, "a terrible fashion."

Her job was to bang the piano while stereopticon slides were being shown on the screen. The house often sent her up to Tin Pan Alley to learn the

"I had a pal at one of the publishing houses," she said, proudly. "He had nice brown eyes. Every time I went to the house he would help me with the music. I'll never forget that Fannie did all right until she tried to dance. But she couldn't shift from left to right unless she waved her fingers—"sky writing" the craft calls And every time she tried to shift, she threw the chorus off balance and there was a tangle of pretty legs.

"Everybody was out of step but me," Fannie moaned.

George M. Cohan was not pleased, and neither was Mr. Harris. So one day Mr. Cohan pointed his finger at Fannie and roared:

"Back to the kitchen!"

THAT'S the show business' way of saving you are fired. But Fannie wouldn't go to the kitchen, but hooked on with a troupe in which she played the part of an alligator and ate up the leading man. But she wasn't a good alligator even with her nose. Mama Borach heard that little Fannie was playing the role of an alligator and took her home. Next she got a job with a burlesque troupe.

"They wouldn't let me dance," Fannie said. "They put me in a box, turned a spotlight on me and let me sing. But I wanted to dance. I gave a girl my underwear and shirtwaists to teach me the steps, and by the time I worked my way from the back row of the chorus to the front row I was almost naked."

She was fifteen then!

Her first love came to her early. Fannie never talks about him. He was a barber and his name was White. He used most of his profits to buy his own hair tonic.

"God, but he smelled good," said Fannie.

She never had much money and few are a there things in the turbulent childhood that cling to her mem-

"I told Max I had dozens of specialties," she said. "He told me to appear before the Friars that week. I nearly collapsed—I was just that scared. I hurried to Irving Berlin and told him my problem. It was Irving who wrote 'Sadie Salome' for me and told me to sing with a Yiddish dialect."

The rest is theater history. The venerable Friars rolled in the aisle and almost got tangled in their tails and stumbled over their top-hats when Fannie sang the immortal "Sadie Salome." Max Spiegel almost broke his wrist shoving a contract in front of her. It called for $85 a week. Fannie almost broke an arm signing it. She didn't know there was so much money in the world.

The contract was for seven years and she was to get a $10 raise each year. Seven years of Fannie Brice's time for about $40,000! Great Land o' Goshen! But somehow the fates always look after the courageous. The contract was no good, because Fannie was only seventeen and as a minor her signature wouldn't stand in court.

MAX SPIEGEL lost a gold mine, and Flo Ziegfeld found one, for in 1910 he sent for her.

"Want to go to work for me?" said the Great One.

"Yes," said another Great One.

"How much?" asked Ziegfeld.
"Forty a week," said Fannie.
"What!" Ziegfeld, accustomed to big money, almost fainted. "No! Make it $75 and I'll hire you."

When her contract was signed, Fannie showed it to so many persons around Times Square that she wore it out.

"I showed it to Berlin five timeshonestly," she said. "I sang 'Lovie Joy' for Ziggie first. I had a great accompanist. I'll never forget that guy."

Who could, Fannie? Who could ever

After her performance she went to a supper given by a New York play-

"It was the first party I ever attended where men wore evening clothes. There were two $100 bills under my plate that night. I'll never forget that guy."

Who could, Fannie? Who could ever forget Diamond Jim Brady?

AFTER her hit in her first show, Zig-gie gave her a contract for $100 a week and put her in the Follies. That's the last contract she ever had with the Great One, although at times she earned $3,000 a week from him. She worked for him sixteen years.

"I remember once," said Fannie, "when Ziggie took a $2,000,000 beating with a shrug of his shoulders. He told me he was broke again. But he came back. Ziggie always did come back. He had courage."

Ziegfeld said the same thing about you, Miss Brice.

She was a Follies star when John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, took to her apartment one evening a bashto her apartment one evening a basisful young man with a timid look.

"He looked like a scared little boy," said Fannie. "I'll never forget that guy."

Who could, Fannie? Who could ever forget the Prince of Wales?

The great passed before her eyes -Lillian Russell, Eddie Cantor, Ann Pennington. Name any star-Fannie was his friend.

Nicky Arnstein, the crook, entered her life while she was in the Follies. He was a handsome fellow, suave. She fell for him-hard. He went to England. She pawned her jewelry to follow him. It's the way with a woman in love. In 1918, she married him-little Fannie Borach of Brook-

M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris?

Harris hired her for $23 a week when she fibbed and told him she could dance. She sat by the piano for days waiting to be called for the chorus. Then one day Harris told her to sing with the chorus. Fannie was from the part of town where the boys liked their songs loud, so she gave it all she had and drowned out the chorus.

"No solos!" said Harris, and scowled at her.

A beautiful blonde was near her, and she looked disapprovingly at little Fannie Borach from Brooklyn.

"I'll never forget that girl," Fannie laughed. "She had lots of blond hair and looked like a valentine."

Abe Erlanger, backer of the show, didn't like the song that way, and she was pushed out of the show. Fate grinned at her again, however, and when the show opened in Atlantic City she had to be used for an emergency. Little Fannie was the hit of the show.

"He was just a vain, juvenile, masterless mind," she said, sadly. "He was a tool in the hands of others."

ENTHUSIASTS in the cause of American music will feel grateful to John Barbirolli for introducing them to a new symphony by one of our native composers—Quincy Porter.

The Porter symphony, his first work in that form, has three movements, the first and last rhythmically prominent, the second of lyric expression. The music tells no specific story, but suggests moods and feelings in consonance with spiritual America.

POPULARITY in double emphasis is represented by the joining of Eddy and Iturbi in this array of bright numbers juxtaposed with more serious matter.

Heinrich Marschner (1795-1861) is a composer who does not deserve the neglect he has been receiving. His operas (of which "Hans Heiling" is the best) once delighted all Germany.

The March of Music

Edited by Leonard Liebling

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air ..."—Wordsworth

FTER nearly a whole season of listening to music on the radio, one is astonished that certain symphonic works are repeated so often, while other worthy compositions hardly ever come to hearing. Is it because conductors choose selections most in vogue at the moment, or because, having acquired the standard repertoire, they lack the initiative or the time to learn less-hackneyed material? In either case, there is justification for the performers, but that does not lessen the discontent of those radio auditors anxious to have a wider survey of the world's best music.

The past months brought an astonishing number of repetitions of Weber's "Oberon" and Mozart's "Don Giovanni" overtures, Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony, the Rossini overtures, and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite" and Johann Strauss' "The Bat." Likewise we had abundant meetings with De Falla's "Fire Dance" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dances." All good music, of course, and it should be broadcast often, but not too many times during any one month.

Schubert wrote a monumental C Major Symphony, Tschaikowsky did several excellent suites; Beethoven composed outstanding overtures; Brahms' orchestral works include also several "Serenades," Franck created the lovely symphonic poems "Les Eolides" and "Le Chasseur Maudit"—and certainly if dance music is to enliven concert programs, American composers have furnished some examples rich in melody and of striking originality in rhythm.

We should hear more of Ernest Bloch, Liszt, Richard Strauss, Scriabin, Schumann, Saint-Saens, Respighi, Rachmaninoff, Mahler, Bruckner, d'Indy, American and English works, Honegger, Glazounow, Hindemith, Prokofieff and the latest Russian school.

Here is the story of a man—I can't resist telling it—whom I have seen repeatedly at the Wagner operas in the Metropolitan, at the Philharmonic and at the last Toscanini broadcast in Radio City. There, after the concert, I rode in the elevator with the versatile music-lover and his party. To one of the women he expressed his delight with the Maestro and explained why he is superior to Stokowski, Bodanzky, Reiner and others. "I didn't know you were so technically versed in music," said the woman. "I have made a thorough study of it ever since I became a devotee through listening on the radio," answered the man. It may surprise you that his name was Gene Tunney.

N "COUNTRY GARDENS," Percy Grainger further exhibits his love for orchestral employment of music in English folk-manner. He treats such examples with notable skill.

Miss Rowe will be called upon for vocal altitude and dexterity in her arias. Pamina is the heroine of Mozart's "Magic Flute" and a most lucky heroine, too, for unlike most of her soprano sisters in opera, she does not die in the last act but marries her sweetheart, a real prince.

"Caro Nome" (Dear Name) is Gilda's celebrated aria in the second act of "Rigoletto." Let us hope that Miss Rowe will go on to some of the fame achieved in the flute-companioned aria by Patti, Sembrich, Galli-Curci, Tetrazzini and Pons.

Concerto No. 4 (Beethoven) Josef Hofmann and the Orchestra

A group of solos played as encores by Josef Hofmann

THIS evening, radio extends to Josef Hofmann its tribute in honor of his golden jubilee year, by devoting an entire program to the celebrant.

For the number with orchestra, our pianist delivers Beethoven's imposing Fourth Concerto in G Major, in which may be traced his evolutionary striving (fully realized in the fifth, the "Emperor") to make the form not a solo display but a symphonic whole in partnership with the orchestra. However, Beethoven, himself a virtuoso, had not quite the heart to sink the individuality of the piano entirely.

For his group of solos, Hofmann will suit his preference of the moment.

"The Nocturne" Nocturne from "Belshazzar" (Sibelius) Nocturne Opus 15, No. 2 (Chopin)

"Fetes" (Debussy)

Nocturne from Second String Quartet (Borodin)

Special composition written for the program by Alex Sammler

VICTOR BAY continues his unconventional listings with this seance devoted entirely to the Nocturne as it appealed to various composers.

The title, an adaptable one, suggests the somber colorings, the restfulness, the mystery, the romance, and even the drama, of darksome night. Chopin's nocturnes, voicing all those phases, are the best known of their kind, although he was not the inventor of the form. John Field (1782-1837), Irish pianist, who spent many years in Russia, originated the piano nocturne, and all other composers who wrote "night-pieces" owe much to Field's fragrant and fanciful models. His nocturnes were the first piano compositions to depart from the classical formulas based on sonata or rondo construction.

To gain an idea of the flexibility of the nocturne, one has only to contrast the comparatively simple one of Chopin with the actional and evocative tale told in Debussy's "Fetes."

Old Dances and Airs for the Lute (Respighi)

Symphony No. 5 (first time in America) (Shostakovich)

Suite No. 3 in G Major (Tschaikowsky) Russian Easter Overture (Rimsky-Korsakoff)

A NCIENT music with its simple tunes and sparse accompaniments always has tempted later composers to modernize such works by supplying them with fuller resonance and a richer basis of harmony. The success of these retouchings is gauged by the degree of reverence which they display in preserving the authentic melodies and stylistic atmosphere of the originals.

Ottorino Respighi's arrangements show real taste and piety in the pages programmed today. The four old examples, by 16th and 17th century masters, served as solos for the lute. The second of the pieces, "Gagliarda" (a lively movement), is by Vincenzo Galilei, father of Galileo, the famed astronomer, who first asserted that the earth rotated-and was jailed for it.

The Shostakovich symphony being an American premiere, and the score not yet having fallen into my hands, I cannot report on its nature. The thirty-year-old Soviet composer is best known to concert listeners through his vivid and compelling first symphony, written when he was twenty.

In Rimsky - Korsakoff's overture, In Rimsky-Korsakoff's overture, based on themes from the Russian church service (Sixty-seventh Psalm and Resurrection scene in St. Mark's Gospel), one notes the chorus of angels, the fluttering seraphim, archangel's trumpets, priests singing the "Resurrexit," and the chimes of triumphant bells.

Josef Hofmann Demonstrates "Superb Key- Also Recommended board Art" with Philadelphia Orchestra Mon.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, 9 p.m. EST, NBC-Blue

OSEF HOFMANN, a-touring this season, has aroused added interest everywhere because the year 1938 marks the fiftieth anniversary of his first appearance in America. Recently I was in Miami, Fla., where they expected the pianist shortly in Beethoven's G Major Concerto with orchestra, and I had to answer many questions about the remarkable celebration held in his honor a few months ago at the Metropolitan Opera House. I felt happy too, to tell about Hofmann's superb keyboard art on that occasion, and also how he even capped it later, at two Philharmonic concerts, with sensational and unsurpassable performances.

Music-critics are frequently asked to rate the leading pianists (as tennis his next recital. "Good gracious," said Hofmann, "I'm glad you reminded me. I play day after tomorrow in Washington and, as usual, I haven't practised for the concert. But the worst of it is that I put Chopin's E Major Scherzo on the program, and I haven't played it in nearly ten years." Then the pianist lapsed into a long silence, which was finally broken by Steinway, who remarked, "Next station is ours, Josef." "Sh-h-h, don't disturb me," came from Hofmann, "I'm practising the Scherzo."

I once asked his young son Anton what he would like to be when he grows up. "Anything but a concert pianist, like father." "Don't you like music?" I inquired. "Oh yes," replied the child, "I do, and that is why, when order of importance, and naturally such invitations are almost always refused, usually with explanations that "comparisons in art are odious," "every great player excels in some particular specialty," etc. Nevertheless, it is my belief that if all the critics were to take a poll in their own ranks relative to that question of pianistic superiority, the choice would fall (and probably unanimously) upon Josef Hofmann.

One feels that whatever Hofmann performs, he masters absolutely in musical understanding and style, and, of course, in execution. He has a technique that seems to grow rather than lessen through the years, and his facility of fingers and wrists, brilliancy and endurance, are not outmatched by the most masterful technicians among his younger colleagues. As for Hofmann's tone, its sound is noble, whether he thunders or whispers on the piano. Sometimes he creates qualities of tone entirely unique, as in his crisp scales, effects with the pedal, and clangorous resonance of chords.

The supreme wonder about Hofmann is how he retains his technique, for his practise is negligible, consisting only of a few hours of exercises before each concert. His memory is as phenomenal as his execution. An amusing anecdote illustrates both functions. He was riding in the New York subway with Theodore Steinway, the piano manufacturer, when the latter asked him where to send an instrument for cracks or football heroes are rated) in I get to be a man, I would wish to play sometimes at home. Father never

The lad is named after Hofmann's teacher, the mighty Anton Rubinstein, with whom Josef studied in Dresden from his fifteenth to his seventeenth year. It is a period which he remembers with reverence and almost awe, for the master was the pianistic lion of his day and his appearance was no less leonine than his playing. A massive head, burning eyes, rugged features and a great shock of hair were not indicative of Rubinstein's character, however, for he was kindness itself and he guided young Hofmann's studies with the most tender care and love. Hofmann told me that when he learned of Rubinstein's sudden death in 1894, he had intermittent attacks of heart-broken sobbing for weeks after-

Doubtless some of Hofmann's heroic manner of performance was inspired by Rubinstein, whose style had an epical grandeur that made him the leading pianist of the world after the of his mighty contemporary, Liszt—for whom he had profound admiration. In Leipzig the two men met at a dinner given for Rubinstein. The toastmaster referred to the latter as "the king of pianists," but instantly the compliment was refuted when its recipient jumped to his feet and protested with, "What is a king when the emperor is present? Let us drink to Franz Liszt."

Books

Franz Liszt, by James Huneker (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York). A vivid and picturesque life of Liszt, with a splendid analysis of his works.

Franz Liszt, by Guy de Pourtales (Henry Holt and Co., New York). More romantically written than the Huneker book, it is nevertheless equally authoritative.

Orpheus in Paris: Offenbach and the Paris of his Time, by S. Kracauer (Alfred Knopf, New York). The biography of the composer of "The Tales of Hoffmann," with a background of the social, political and artistic life of the Second Empire. Darling of the court of Napoleon II, Offenbach was a noted dandy, wit, poet and composer.

Minute Sketches of Great Composers, by Eva v. B. Hansl and Helen L. Kaufmann (Grosset and Dunlap, New York). Brief, entertaining and anecdotal lives of the best-known composers, with 74 full page portraits by Samuel Nisenson.

BIGGEST news of the Hollywood week starting March 20 was Don Ameche's absence, because of an infected jaw and sinus, from the Chase & Sanborn Hour. For several days previous to the airing, Don had to be excused from work on the 20th Century-Fox lot, where he is making "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Then, suddenly, his doctors ordered an emergency hospital extraction of the abscessed tooth that had been causing the trouble. Don rallied and his fever of 105 degrees dropped to a safe level—but not in time for him to take his usual place in the Bergen-McCarthy-Lamour line-up. Instead, as you know, Fred MacMurray substituted, and did right well—as also did Donald Dickson, who was a pinch-hitter for John Carter. Glamorous, blond Carole Lombard. who had such an attack of the giggles during her first rehearsals with Charlie McCarthy that she feared she'd never be able to do the broadcast, fooled everyone with a marvelous performance—but what you don't know, because she didn't want any publicity, is that Carole turned over the $5,000 fee she earned for the radio appearance to the Los Angeles Flood Relief Fund, along with the ten percent commission her agent should have been paid, but also donated—for which plums to both.

Charlie McCarthy has moved onto the Universal lot and is letting Edgar.

Charlie McCarthy has moved onto the Universal lot, and is letting Edgar Bergen share his dressing-room. They are starting production on "My Letter of Introduction." And did you know that Charlie's make-up is paint mixed with powdered pumice? The latter, after long experimentation, was the method hit upon to avoid highlights on the dummy's beardless cheeks and chin.

Charlie, Bergen and Dorothy Lamour were floor-show stars assisting Dorothy's husband, Bandleader Herbie Kay, when he opened on Tuesday night, March 21, at the Cocoanut Grove of the Ambassador Hotel. What's more, they'll continue to appear Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Grove during Kay's stay, although a clause in Dorothy's Paramount picture contract prohibits the hotel from advertising her name! Miss Lamour—or shall I say Mrs. Kay—was indeed a happy person when Herbie hit town. A measure of their joy at reunion overflowed in the form of a gala cocktail party for friends preceding the Grove opening . Incidentally, you'll like Dorothy's latest Paramount picture, "Her Jungle Love." It's in Technicolor, the scenery, of which Miss Lamour is no mean part, is beautiful, and it's exotic.

Robert Taylor, your "Good News" m.c., who was absent March 24 from the air because of heavy picture work, has been having trouble again escaping from the El Capitan Theater studio following his airings. Back doors were tried with partial success. But last week Bob fooled his feminine ravers. He exited—of all things—by the front door!

Interesting it was to meet Edward Startz, "Happy Hour" announcer of Short-Wave Station PHI, Hilversum, Holland, after the Burns and Allen airing of March 21. Startz had just American-Airlined in from the East and wanted to meet George and Gracie, whom he tuned in regularly Tuesdays at 2 a.m., Holland time. "I enjoy their informality," he told me. "They don't sound so stilted, so mechanical, so precise as many of your American programs". . Speaking of B. & A., that afternoon they were having pictures made with Jan Garber. Gracie wasn't satisfied with one pose. "Don't take it that way," she warned the photographer, "because I think it'll make me look silly!"

The Stroud Twins aren't that any longer, because on March 21 Claude had his tonsils clipped—and Clarence still has his. But if Clarence had his removed it would not be a tonsilbobbing; it'd be a tonsillectomy. On

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

Here's a worm's-eye view of fat and jolly Jack Smart, veteran comic character actor, heard for a long time on Fred Allen's "Town Hall Tonight," but more recently on various dramatic episodes coming from Hollywood

March 22 Claude could not be reached. Gloria Brewster was nursing him.

Live Mikings: The lackadaisical Bing Crosby will absent himself from Kraft Music Hall come August and the reopening of Bing's Del Mar race-track season. Robin Burns will carry on . . . Mrs. Andy Devine, in the hospital (March 22) for observation, which all hope will not dissuade the poised Dr. Stork . . Pinky Tomlin gave up his bachelor papers Tuesday, March 22, when he made Joanne Alcorn his better half at a Santa Barbara ceremony. Their honeymoon tour will take them through the Midwest and on to New York . . Other recent wedders were Patricia (Duchin warbler) Norman and Jack Meakin, NBC's San Francisco musical director, who did it at Yuma, Ariz. . . Martha Raye thinks enough of Cedars of Lebanon Surgeon Dr. Howell Wiggins that she dashed off March 20 with him from an exciting late dancing party when he was called to perform an emergency appendectomy ... Alyce King, the ex-Heidt songstress, well after a nose operation, is making tests at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot ... Lanny Ross, at the moment making concert appearances along the West Coast, will fly to New York for a guest date on Your Hit Parade April 16.

Most surprised person in the world March 21 was Eddie Anderson, the colored actor who plays "Rochester" for Jack Benny. At 9:30 in the morning Jack phoned him, told him to hop on the Santa Fe Chief leaving at 11:30 a.m. It seems that Jack had a dream on the eve of his departure for the New York broadcast of March 27, and that dream provided Benny with an idea in which to use Rochester. Yes, Eddie caught the train.

Ken Murray, who, by the way, has just received a nice renewal of contract which will keep him on Hollywood

Hotel through July 29, deserves plums for his humanity in writing a check for $250 to provide Jack Rose, poor blind man, with a new Seeing-Eye dog to replace the one who had guided him for years but had been condemned to death after catching rabies. Ken, reading newspaper stories about the blind man's misfortune, tried to make his donation anonymously—but the story of his generosity leaked out.

Incidentally, Virginia Verrill nar-rowly escaped from rabies infection week before last when her eight-months-old pet Chow, "Woo-Woo" by name, suddenly went mad and leaped at Virginia's throat. Police had to be called to kill the puppy . . . and break Ginny's heart.

Called to kill the puppy ... and break Ginny's heart.

Back Stage Stuff: At "Good News," March 17: Polly Moran teaching Fannie Brice the proper cockney that Fannie must use in her to-be-aired role of an English charwoman ... And Conductor Meredith Willson presenting a dozen BLUE golf balls to producer Louis K. Sidney after the latter had been correct, the former incorrect, in an argument over the composers of "Blue Moon" ... At Hollywood Hotel, March 18: Louella Parsons, posing with Amos 'n' Andy on their tenth anniversary, having her picture made for the first time with an NBC mike present ... and later during the broadcast, becoming so fussed that she blew up on her lines ... John McCormack. the Irish tenor, at Vallee Hour, March 17: After his airing, in which he promised to run for the Irish Free State's presidency, if the people of Ireland wanted him, McCormack invited Vallee to play at his Inaugural Ball, if and when ... which Rudy accepted ... At the Jolson Show, March 15: Edna May Oliver and Martha Raye holding gift boxes behind one another's backs—and when they exchanged them, finding Martha had bought lilies of the valley for Edna and the latter had purchased orchids for Miss Raye ... At the Feg Murray-Ozzie Nelson "Baker's Broadcast," March 20: Ex-light-heavyweight champion Maxie "Slapsy" Rosenbloom arriving for rehearsals glorified with manicured fingernails, flowing scarf for a tie and a rather noisy sport suit. Then, seeing the conservative attire of likewise ex-athletes Murray and Nelson, he hurried home and changed befor the airing to a business suit.

Jack Haley Junior, whose pa winds up aircracking April 2 for Log Cabin

Jack Haley Junior, whose pa winds up aircracking April 2 for Log Cabin syrup, on March 18 was host to a sixth-birthday party given for George Hull, one of Warren's trio of kids, and among the celebrity youngsters present were Ronnie and Sandra Burns, who probably will carry on for George and Gracie in 1955. A mother present, commenting on the fact that George Hull had missed being a St. Patrick's Day baby by only one day, said "Too bad he was late." So George, curious, asked, "Mother, why was I late?"

George (Old Gold Screenscooper)
McCall is taking a two-week appearance tour with the Al G. Barnes-Sells-Floto circus during its Coast showings, returning Tuesdays and Thursdays to Hollywood for his gossip airings. McCall, associated with the circus for several years, was tickled to be invited to take a few bows. Which reminds me that George has been championing the comeback of William S. Hart to the screen and has had a tremendous mail on the subject. So on March 22, when Hart appeared on McCall's broadcast, CBS page-boys and other employes crowded around and made much more of a stir than if the Screenscoops' guest had been a gorgeous glam-girl. What is it these cowboys have that I don't have?

Why does Robert Taylor continue to go with Barbara Stanwyck without a hint of matrimony? Does he love her? Does she love him? Why doesn't she marry him? Mr. Plummer's logical explanation will appear in next week's "Hollywood Showdown."

THREE weeks ago I started to name a few of the programs that will fade from the airlanes. Here are a few more to add to that list: Heinz' "Magazine of the Air," featuring Mark Warnow's orchestra and Channing Pollock, departs after the broadcast of Sunday, April 10 . . . "Rising Musical Star" leaves within the next two weeks . . Jack Armstrong, one of the favorite shows of the youngsters, goes off April 25 . . Tyrone Power says "au revoir" on May 1, but returns in the fall . . . As does Fred Allen, who bows out June 29 . . . The Hammerstein Music Hall, Edwin C. Hill and Tony Wonshave already left, and "Melody Puzzles" winds up after Monday night's broadcast . . Phil Baker's show folds on June 26, and an informant tells me his sponsor is looking for a new show for the fall.

Make a record of some of the shows that have changed their schedule or will do so in the near future. The serial "Those We Love" becomes a Monday night feature starting this week. It will be heard on the NBC-Blue net at 8:30 p.m. . . . The Mutual network announces the shifting of Morton Gould from Monday to Tuesday night at 8 p.m. . . Vic Erwin and Benay Venuta are now heard the same evening at 9:30 p.m. . . "Witch's Tale" is heard at 10:30 p.m. . . . Bob Ripley's program leaves its Saturday night spot and moves to Tuesday night at 10 p.m. beginning April 26. The last Saturday night broadcast will be April 23 . . . All times given herein are EST.

Spring is here, so Easter can't be far behind. If you want to know more about the latest fashions that are being worn around the country on Easter Sunday, tune in on the NBC-Red network on April 17 and listen to the broadcast of the Easter parade along New York's Fifth Avenue, Washington's fashionable Connecticut Avenue, and Main Street in a small Illinois town. George Hicks, in his top-hat and frock coat, will ride along Fifth Avenue and describe the fashion pageant. I hope it doesn't rain! (Lewis, the pessimist.)

Grace Moore is going to make some singer happy. She has started a search for a group of singing stars to appear with her on her new Wednesday night series with Andre Kostelanetz. Each week she will present a different singer, and at the conclusion of the series Miss Moore will select one of them for a regular berth on the program. The winner also has a chance to appear with the songstress in a new picture scheduled to go into production next summer

Chalk up a victory for our side! As Edgar Guest would say, "It can be done." Two weeks ago I told you about the overwhelming number of letters I had received from listeners who were anxious to hear Richard Maxwell on the air again. Well, my friends, those letters got results. In case you are not already aware of it, Richard Maxwell started a new series of his programs of songs and philosophies on Monday, March 28. You will be able to hear him Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. EST, and Saturdays at 9:15 a.m. EST. This is Mr. Maxwell's tenth year on the air and he should be mighty proud of his loyal fans. I have never met him, and I have never heard his programs, but if any advertiser would like to be convinced of this man's huge following, a pile of letters from all parts of the country attesting to this fact can be inspected upon request.

Franklyn MacCormack is another man who has a large, loyal following. Three weeks ago I mentioned Mr. MacCormack was given his walking-papers by his sponsor. I understand that the chewing-gum magnate's office was flooded with protests after the item appeared. My informant also advises that Franklyn broke down and sobbed while reading a farewell poem during the extra show put on for the studio audience which immediately follows the regular broadcast. When queried about it, he explained that it was not the idea of the show leaving the air that affected him so, but it was the termination of so many wonderful associations. The entire gang that worked with Mr. MacCormack on the show, including the cast, orchestra and production men, presented him with a solid-gold cigarette case as a parting gift. At present writing "Mac" is vacationing in Hollywood, where he will stay for six weeks.

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

The only radio novelty since the ether birth of Charlie McCarthy is the tobacco auctioneer who is heard on "Your Hit Parade" and "Kollege of Musical Knowledge." He's F. E. Boone, shown here doing his machine-gun chant

Conspicuous by its absence for the past couple of weeks is the voice of Phil Stewart announcing the Wayne King program. Naturally, I was curious to find out the reason for it, and am passing on the story to you as it was given to me. During the rehearsal of the program on Monday night, March 14, Stewart was informed that the sponsor wanted him to discontinue mentioning his name on the program.

This came after six and one-half years of identifying himself on the show. Though the man who pays the bills has the say, Phil felt it unwarranted and unjust, so he signed off the show as always, "Phil Stewart announcing..." The following night, when he arrived at the studio for the NBC program, he was informed that he was off the program and Announcer Lynn Brandt was assigned to do the job anonymously. So, I repeat, after six and one-half years he was out of a job without notice or salary equivalent. I anticipate plenty of squawks from the listeners.

Naturally, anything requested by the man who pays the bills is law. Unless, of course, he can be persuaded to change his mind. That is what Kay Kyser succeeded in doing with his ciggie boss, Mr. George Washington Hill, who also pays the bills for the "Hit Parade" program. Mr. Hill likes mammoth orchestras, and when he brought Kay Kyser's program to New York he wanted Kay to increase the size of his band to fifty pieces. The ork pilot didn't like the idea, claiming (and I'm inclined to agree with him) that it would ruin the style he had made famous. It required a lot of selling, but Kay won out.

Incidentally, after Kyser's first program on the air for this sponsor, I mentioned in this department that his boss was going to bring the show to New York. After the item appeared, Kyser wrote to your correspondent, and I am quoting a paragraph from his letter: "Everybody seems to know more than I about where the show is going, and when. However, that remains to be seen." Professor Kyser is now broadcasting from New York.

If you are curious to know the reason for the outburst of laughter from the studio audience when the Mad Russian makes his entrance on Eddie Cantor's program, read on, my children, and you will learn. Believe it or not, it's his ears! He folds them together in some way before he comes on the stage, and when he gives his "How DO ya DO!" greeting, his ears spring out again and it's really a funny sight to behold.

It's also funny to watch a Horace Heidt broadcast. All the members of the program really have a swell time before, during, and after the program. Heidt must have rushed out of his apartment in a hurry a few broadcasts ago, because that night he wore midnight-blue tails with black trousers—or maybe it's a new style. Every time Heidt stumbles over a word in the script while he's on the air the boys give him a loud Bronx cheer, and it's very funny to watch them razz their boss.

It was funny and amazing to watch Heidt perform for the studio audience by juggling three balls and, later, three Indian clubs; and believe you me, he is plenty good. After the program goes off the air, Horace's first words are, "You're the best audience we ever had," and you can bet he tells that to all the audiences. Before the program he asks the onlookers not to boo, hiss or whistle, but when he twists the tails of his coat, that is the cue to appliand.

Here's a cute story: Vox Popa Wally Butterworth included in the Christmas gifts to Wally, Jr., a pair of boxing-gloves. When Sr. came home the other night and noticed the gloves tied to the knobs on the door of their radio, he called his son into the room and asked for an explanation. Junior replied, "If Jimmy Braddock can hang up his gloves, so can I."

Personal nomination for the silliest commercial plug: "Blah-blah's drink is made for today's thirst taste." What will they say next? ... Found: The person who doesn't enjoy Charlie McCarthy—a reader from Miami, Fla. Her letter states, "I suppose I'll have my head examined for this some day ..." ... Talk about loyal fans, I received a wire of 105 words from a reader who agreed with this department's recent paragraph regarding Franklyn MacCormack being dropped from the "Poetic Melodies" broadcast.

KILOCYCLE CHATTER: CBS Announcer Charles Stark has a swell idea for a new audience-participation program and I understand an auto sponsor is very much interested in it... Frank Parker may go to the West Coast to replace Jerry Cooper on the "Hollywood Hotel" show... The Merry Macs are no longer billed as guest artists on the Fred Allen show. They clicked with listeners and will be on regularly.

Incidentally, many readers are addressing their letters to me at our Chicago office, 731 Plymouth Court. My headquarters are at 551 Fifth Avenue, in New York City, and mail should be sent to me at this address.

National Leaders Featured on NBC Forum

Mondays, 10:30-11 p.m., NBC-Blue

"Evolved as a sincere effort to acquaint the American people with the problems confronting the government and the means suggested or being used to solve them," the National Radio Forum, NBC Monday-night round-up of names and brains in the potpourri of public affairs, is the oldest network program devoted to the uncensored consideration of questions in the national and international scene.

The variety of the questions treated and the authority of the speakers heard keeps this one of the most lively, provocative of air-forum sessions. Questions discussed are as diverse as the endless scope of political, social and economic problems. Current emphasis, perforce, is on foreign policy and national defense, with the bugbear of unemployment and government-business relations running behind.

Diplomats and Children Salute Pan-American Day

Major Networks Feature International Programs, April 7-8

The United States salutes the American nations from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn in their annual celebration of Pan-American Day, April 7, with two international good-will programs.

Thursday, 10:30-11 p.m., NBC-Blue

Thursday evening Secretary of State Cordell Hull will address an international audience over the NBC-Blue network and three NBC short-wave transmitters (W3XAL, W2XAF, W8XK). His talk will be heard as part of a special concert dedicated to the cultural links that blend the democratic traditions of the North and South American nations.

The Secretary's intensive efforts to expand and unite the commercial and social interests of the two Americas have created tangible proof of the practical value of international good sense.

Disorder in the Court

ISTENER—you can prove the wise men fools. Hark to this.

A famous scientist stepped to the "Adventures in Science" microphone recently and told an amazing story of research with plants that may some day bear intimately on your own health and happiness.

He spoke simply of findings that have upset long-held theories. He suggested possible implications of his discoveries for the improvement of man's welfare—through better understanding of nature's ways. He made a few small facets of fundamental, scientific knowledge, live for a moment . . . outside of texts and test-tubes and the laboratory. And without once pandering to "popular" appeal—he put on a good show.

For many listeners his broadcast was a superior listening experience. But for him it was a double ordeal.

An ordeal, first, of unaccustomed air-appearance—mike-fright and a real sacrifice of time away from his work. But more important, an ordeal of struggle with his colleagues for their approval of his broadcast. These wise men feared you—the listener . . . feared your misinterpretations of his story, your probable failure to understand the significance of his findings. They feared your misinterpretation of the scientist's effort to find facts for the sake of expanded knowledge only—and without the restricting reference of discovered fact to the immediate business of living. They feared the highly publicized "eighth-grade mentality" of the radio listening audience.

These things the wise men feared—how wisely only you can say.

The "Importants" of Radio

These same fears beset every man and woman who sweats to better radio.

Thus the disorder in radio's court. But you are judge and jury—the case for better radio is strictly in your hands—and your decision can prove the wise men fools.

How? Let the "importants" of radio determine your dial selections. Listen for enjoyment plus enlightenment, and the sensitive voice of radio will soon reflect your true discernment. Just as product purchases commend commercial programs to sponsors' attention, so interest in educational broadcast projects enhances the listeners' stature in the minds of the wise men.

The recommendations opposite are markers for this week's explorations in superior listening enjoyment.

"Dear Teacher" is a program for fun as well as learning. Listen to it as the youthful participants take interesting question-hurdles to new knowledge each Monday and Wednesday at 5 p.m. EST over CBS

Rep. Wright Patman (Dem. Tex.) decries "Absentee Ownership of Business," Mon. 7:45 p.m. NBC-R

Thomas Jefferson is Radio "Portrait" Subject

Saturday, 9:30-10 p.m., NBC-Red

Thomas Jefferson, apostle of intellectual and political democracy, lives again as the NBC biographical series, "American Portraits," revives the brilliant story of the man who wrote the Constitution, Saturday night at 9:30 p.m. EST.

Many men have laid flagrant claims to Jefferson's political mantle—few have worn it with distinction. Listeners will learn why when they review the life of the great Virginian in radio's revealing mirror. They will discover little-known backgrounds that colored the whole fabric of his thrilling contribution to colonial and early United States history. They will discover surprisingly that Jefferson advocated the emancipation of the slaves nearly a hundred years before Lincoln's proclamation.

"American Portraits" is recommended antidote for the hasty substitutes for political thinking—the headlines.

Learning is Fun With "Dear Teacher"

Mon. & Wed., 5-5:15 p.m. CBS

Exponent of the fun process in child teaching, "Dear Teacher" welcomes an increasing host of self-enrolled students to Columbia's classroom of the air each Monday and Wednesday afternoon at 5 p.m.

The only classroom rule is "enjoy yourself." The curriculum consists of children's most vital learning interests, selected by child listeners. The "Dear Teacher" appeal is simple: learning is a game—enjoy the game and learn.

As the program takes the air, four grade-school pupils step to the figurative starting-line before the CBS microphones, primed for a mental race over question-hurdles sent in by child members of the listening classroom. A twin goal is their objective: more knowledge about some intriguing subject and a gold, silver or bronze award for their mental skill.

"Dear Teacher" turns the question

"Dear Teacher" turns the question track this week to Switzerland, land of cheeses, skiis and enduring peace. Have a glance at the encyclopedia first—then join the inquisitive pack at the starting-line, Monday or Wednesday at 5 p.m. See what you know about Switzerland.

Astronomical Program Tells Story of Moon

Wednesdays, 5:15-5:30 p.m. CBS

Scientists of the heavens are about to cross their light-year bridges before they come to them, and you may join the Hayden Planetarium party on its explorations in space each Wednesday afternoon. The Columbia Broadcasting System provides the space-ship. The weekly take-off is scheduled for 5:15 p.m. First stop: the moon. Your expedition leaders are Hans Christian Adamson of the American Museum of Natural History and William H. Barton, Jr., executive curator of New York's famous Hayden Planetarium*.

Listeners will find the program pattern interesting. Hollywood, in the person of an ambitious motion-picture producer, comes to the astronomers for advice on how to prepare and equip for movie-making on location at the moon, on Saturn, Venus, Polaris, around the belt of Orion and along the handle of the Great Dipper. "Exploring Space" will plan the producer's kit, and in the planning bring to listeners a sharp picture of conditions and life—if any—on the bodies that stud the heavens. Come this week to the moon-enjoy a scientific jaunt under cloudless lunar skies.

*(Planetarium: an apparatus consisting of mounted globes to show the movements of the planets around the sun, and their relative distances and magnitudes. New York's Hayden Planetarium is a half-globe—seats seven hundred and thirty-three persons. For fun and science astronomers roll back time and the movements of the stars-reproduce the first Christmas Eve, make long-lost comets rerun their courses-speed up the universe to show the heavens a thousand years

Conference Speakers Discuss Social Security

Saturday, 2-2:30 p.m., CBS

Senator Guy M. Gillette (Dem., Iowa) and Marion B. Folsom, finance executive of the Eastman Kodak Company, will cut the haze of controversy and throw new light on the objectives and operation of the Social Security Act when they keynote the proceedings of the eleventh annual conference of the Federal Advisory Council on Social Security, Saturday at 2 p.m. They will be heard nationally over the CBS network.

Design for Listening

Theme of the Week: Getting Along with People

Ask your boss-

Ask your best friend-

Ask yourself-

The most troublesome stumblingblock on the highroad to personal happiness and financial success for most persons is an inability to get along with other people.

The difficulty arises because self-appraisal is the most difficult of the mental arts-because it's so easy to find the other fellow at fault whenever personal frictions thwart our plans. We wonder at the smallness of asylum populations when psychologists show us to what lengths we go to defend and justify our peculiar little egos—yet seldom have we the courage to seek and recognize our own "queer" traits, the peculiarities that we nourish unchallenged in our make-up, and that act like sand in the machinery of our relations with other people.

How can we scale the stumbling-block? How can we make the personality adjustments that will clear our paths to a larger share of social and financial success and clinch our intended rewards of personal charm and happiness?

A re-evaluation of your own per-sonality and a re-examination of your own ideas and inhibitions and rationalizations is the most personal of all our problems.

Reliable authorities have pounded a helpful prescription. Here

"Is the Public a Moron?"— Psychologist's Theme

Monday, 7:15-7:30 p.m., NBC-Blue

Do you enjoy a mental challenge? Then hear Dr. Joseph Jastrow and come up with some bright new braintools for getting along with people. You'll have to listen like a hawk to follow him, but there's a gem in every phrase.

If you are a radio-hearer you will rail at this recommendation listener, you'll join a select legion of men and women who are enjoying a smart mental rap each Monday night as Dr. Jastrow tells why "The Devil Takes the Hindmost." His topic this week: "Is the Public a Moron?" You can count on sprightly clews to happier living in this discussion.

Madeline Gray, "Dear Teacher," is a disciple of fun-in-learning Mon. & Wed. 5-5:15 p.m. CBS

The "unwanted" love interest in the script prior to Mary Sothern's marriage, Billie McDaniels (Jeanne Colbert) caused many despairing moments, as did Joe Julian, member of a holding corporation

A YOUNG WOMAN'S DILEMMA

NTIL television becomes a practicality, periodicals must serve as the host for radio casts and radio listeners. Perhaps some of the illusions that have been created by followers of "The Life of Mary Sothern" will be shattered by these pictures. If so, they should be, for everyone in the cast of this Monday through Friday WLW and WMCA serial, which is aired at 4:15 p.m., EST, looks like the person he portrays. A fast-paced story of a young mother who finds it difficult to keep her well-meaning husband's "two feet on the ground," the program, sponsored by Hinds Honey and Almond Cream, has been on the air four years.

Cast in the title role, Minabelle Abbott is more often called Mary Sothern. It's easier to remember

To hold their parts, actors must not vary their style. The entire cast of "The Life of Mary Sothern," playing their roles so often, is now a stable, realistic unit

Impulsive Max Tilley (Jay Jostyn) is in constant need of Mary, his practical, loving young wife

A nation's dears, as well as the cast's, twins Jimmy and Susan Phyllis are adroitly used in the serial. If it be heart-throbs or happiness needed, they fit in very well

Most popular musical program in Star of Stars Poll is the Chase & Sanborn Hour. To Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen go much credit for winning

CHASE & SANBORN IS MOST POPULAR MUSICAL IN STAR OF STARS POLL

DID you vote for your favorite in the first division of the Star of Stars Poll—the election held to determine the most popular musical programs on the air? Whether or not your vote was cast, thousands of loyal listeners registered their preferences—and this week the results are available.

The tabulations in Ra-DIO GUIDE'S Star of Stars Poll represent the most authentic rating of stars in radio. The returns below show how listeners themselves rate the stars; they tell how these stars will be evaluated during

In this musical division poll, which closed at midnight, Saturday, March 19, the Chase and Sanborn Hour scored a spirited victory, with over 13 porn hour scored a spirited victory, with over 13 percent of all the votes cast. Edgar Bergen and his Charlie McCarthy have engaged the enthusiasm of the entire nation asm of the entire nation, and their several musical colleagues, including Nelson Eddy, Don Ameche, Dorothy Lamour, Robert Armbruster, John Carter and Donald Dickson have amply earned this recognition.

Second place in the musical division went to Bing Crosby's Kraft Music Hall. Bing's program drew almost 12 percent of the votes! Behind these two leaders came the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, with 6 percent, and Jeanette MacDonald's Vick's Open House, with well over 5 percent. Other programs finished in the order shown in the table below. Behind these thirty leaders were scores of other programs whose votes were widely scattered.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

PRO AND CON

VOL: Why don't you publish more pictures and articles on the radio serials? I used to buy Radio Guide every week but I've quit.—Mrs. E. M. Menkhaus, Carlyle, Ill.

VOL: There are no programs left during the day worth listening to. Everything is serials and more serials and each more inane than the other.—
Mrs. John Karrow, Winona, Minn.

NOW IN MOURNING

VOL: I have held in long enough; I must speak or explode. Last year almost all serials had babies by the carload. Now they are killing off our favorite actors right and left. It gets funny when all programs copy each other and we say "another redskin bit the dust." My radio is draped in black with while I do my work radio makes the dust." My radio is draped in black silk. While I do my work radio makes it hard to bake a cake without adding a tear or two when it calls for a cup of milk.—Mrs. Mabel Farrington, Ludington, Mich.

SEEKS MEDAL

VOL: Please award us some kind of VOL: Please award us some kind of medal. Instead of joining the millions (?) who seem to have listened intently to the Mae West broadcast and then yelled about it later, we decided we did not care for the "one-and-only line of patter" and did not turn on the radio.

—Mrs. B. S. Clayton, Belle Glade, Fla.

CRITICIZES CRITICS

VOL: Kindly tell me who writes the letters for the burnt-up unpaid critics and fault-finders of radio programs which spoil their free radio entertainment and send their blood pressure up so high?—F. Shaw, Holmes, N. Y.

HE German short-wave station started its activity for the Reich of Adolf Hitler, on April 1, 1933, with the inauguration of directional broadcasts for North America. The power of the transmitter at that time was only 4,000 watts. During the Olympic games in Berlin, in August, 1936, this power was boosted to 40,000 watts. Daily programs are now radiated on directional was boosted to 40,000 watts. Daily programs are now radiated on directional antennas to Africa, East and South Asia, and South and Central America, as well as North America. Testifying to the popularity of the Zeesen broadcasts, in the first year the authorities received 3,000 letters from listeners abroad, while last year more than 50,000 letters poured in from all corners of the earth. ners of the earth.

One of the new Essarts, France, short-wave transmitters is broadcasting on 11.885 megs, almost every evening in parallel with TPA4 (11.713). The new "Radio Coloniale" station is much louder than the old one . . . Summer time went into effect in France, on March 26, so all schedules from this country will be heard one hour earlier than heretofore.

A new fortnightly feature entitled, "Empire Gazette," reflecting contemporary happenings in various parts of the Empire, will be introduced to Daventry listeners on Tuesday, April 5, at 7:15 a.m. EST, and repeated on Wednesday, April 6, at 10:50 p.m. EST. This new program will be sort of a British "March of Time," with dramatic reconstructions, and people "in the news" as frequent contributors.

Experimental Zeesen, Germany, Transmitter DJO (11.795), is now on the air daily from 7:50 to 10:45 p.m. EST, with an antenna beamed on South America.

On alternate Friday nights, the next being this week, at 11 p.m. EST, the General Electric Company, broadcasts messages from home to the Waldeck Expedition in interior British Guiana, in search of the poor shorts. in search of the now almost mythical Paul Redfern. Death and sickness has reduced this expedition to only two people, Theodore Waldeck, and his wife, who despite almost unbelievable hardships are carrying on alone. When last heard from, the Waldecks were in contact with a tribe of native Indians who claim they can direct them to Paul Redfern's plane and to the lost man himself

According to an announcement from that station, the call of the Pitcairn Island broadcaster on 14.346 megs, has been changed to VR6AY. Up to the time of going to press, however, no programs have been heard from the island, the one scheduled for March 15, apparently having been cancelled due to some technicality which has not yet been ironed out. which has not yet been ironed out.

Listeners to the Daventry stations recently heard Nicholas Medvedeff's Balalaika Orchestra in a program from Broadcasting House, London

A WOMAN OF COURAGE

(Continued from Page 3) in the strange life of an incredible woman, and nothing would be served here by rehashing the story. It took a courageous woman to take it as she did. She was pointed out—the wife of Nicky Arnstein, the crook.

Nick came out of prison in 1925, after serving five years. Fannie wanted to wipe the slate clean and begin all over. She had been giving him much of her money, and didn't seem to mind. But the publicity Nicky got as a "master mind" of racketeers seems to have gone to his head and he got uppity.

WHAT strange things men do! A man trying to high-hat little Fannie Borach of Brooklyn.

Fannie divorced Nick in 1927.

By that time she had immortalized the song that the public always associates with the tragedies of her life. It was Ziegfeld who went to her one day and handed her a manuscript.

"Think you can make 'em cry with this?" he asked.

She doubted it, but Ziegfeld had a hunch. Fannie had been a comic a long time. She provoked laughter wherever she went. Ziegfeld knew, however, that in her heart was a deep yearning. No actress is as appealing as a comic who suddenly does a tragic role. The song he gave her was from a French song, Mon Homme—My Man.

That night Fannie first sang: "It's cost me a lot but there's one thing that I've got

"It's my man . . ."
She kept right on singing it while Nick was being tried, while he was doing time.

"For no matter what he is, I am his -forever more."

Hollywood soon claimed her and she moved there, where she still lives. And, of course, she moved on to radio, where she stars each Thursday night as "Baby Snooks" in the Good News of 1938, an NBC-Red program. She has been playing "Baby Snooks" for many years. It all began while she was appearing in "Sweet and Low," a Broadway musical. She took the character with her to raido.

SHE believes the radio audience likes to mingle tears with laughter. "People like to feel sorry for them-elves," she said. "When I sing 'My selves," she said. "When I sing 'My Man' the audience is not thinking about my man at all, but about some lover who broke their heart."

Two years after she divorced Nick Arnstein, Fannie married Billy Rose, the showman. Everybody hoped Fannie would be happy again, and "My Man" took on a different meaning, but the words were the same.

Mister Rose, the showman, has announced now that he and Fannie Borach of Brooklyn will be divorced. The announcement took the breath away from Broadway. It will all be over soon—in Reno. Mister Rose will marry, so he says, Miss Eleanor Holm. She, Eleanor Holm, is the swimmer who likes champagne. Mister Rose likes publicity. I like Fannie Borach of Brooklyn.

Fannie Brice may be heard Thursdays on "Good News of 1938" over an NBC-Red network

THE CHRISTIAN MEN BUILDERS ANSWERED AN UNVOICED NEED

BY WALLACE SIMS

MEN BUILDERS, HRISTIAN INC., is a Bible class that is different. It has a leader who is different. Originating through the facilities of WFBM in Indianapolis, it has behind it a record for continuous broadcasting which few programs—commercial or sustaining, local or network compensations. work—can equal. For twelve years its popularity has steadily increased with the listeners.

the listeners.

The C. M. B. hour is aired by WFBM every Sunday morning at 9:30 CST and comes from the auditorium of the Christian Men Builders, Inc., Bible class of the Third Christian Church in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis.

Indianapolis.

Twenty-five years ago five young men of this church met to form a Bible class for themselves and their associates. A few months later they persuaded Merle Sidener, an Indianapolis businessman to accept its persuaded Merie Sidener, an Indianapolis businessman, to accept its leadership; and much of the credit for the size and stability of the present organization belongs to him. In 1915 the class was incorporated under the state laws of Indiana.

In 1926 the officers of the class decided that the Sunday morning sescinded the sunday morning sesc

In 1926 the officers of the class decided that the Sunday morning sessions should be broadcast in order to reach the young men of the city and interest them in attending. It was then intended solely as an advertising medium, but before it had been on the air very long hundreds of letters were received from shut-ins, elderly people, and those living in remote localities.

Most of them hailed the broadcast as one of the best religious programs as one of the best religious programs on the dial. In those days radio was young, and along religious lines there was little variety offered to those unable to attend their own churches and Bible classes. When members of the group discovered that their broadcasts were enriching the lives of hundreds of unfortunates, they began to dreds of unfortunates, they began to look upon their meetings in a new way—in the light of the services they could perform to the radio listeners. In the early days of radio WFBM was a good-will station, broadcasting with a power of 500 watts. When its temporary contract with the station expired, C. M. B. renewed it on a permanent basis, and has since broadcast its Sunday morning programs without its Sunday morning programs without a break. WFBM, which soon became a commercial station, now airs its programs with a daytime power of 5,000 watts.

For several years little attention was given to improving the aerial phase of the class, the program being presented primarily for the five hundred men who attended meetings.

C. M. B. came on the air and signed off in an informal manner. Often the speaker would run past his time and the program would have to be signed off by the studio. Long pauses and dead spots were not infrequent.

off by the studio. Long pauses and dead spots were not infrequent.

However, as the response from listeners grew, the class became more radio-minded. In January, 1934, the officers did something about it. They appointed a radio director and announcer. They selected a theme song, adopted a uniform closing, covered up dead exots. A far more professional dead spots. A far more professional type of program was the result.

And now, on Sunday, May 15,
C. M. B. will celebrate its 600th consecutive broadcast.

MR. SIDENER, its leader, is prominent in the field of advertising. A native of Crawfordsville, Indiana, he moved to Indianapolis in his early teens. There he became a cub reporter on the Indianapolis Journal and worked his way up to the city editorship. Determined to become a success in his own business, the business in which he was most interested, he organized the firm of Sidener and VanRiper, national advertising com-

VanRiper, national advertising company.

Mr. Sidener teaches a different religion, one that can be practically applied to every-day life. He advocates the theory, "Live right today, and the after-life will take care of itself." On that basis he advises the young men who attend the class to abide by the ten commandments, live cleanly and according to the Golden Rule. His weekly discourses are often referred to as "Success Talks," because hundreds of men have made good while putting as "Success Talks," because hundreds of men have made good while putting to practise his teachings.

 Incidentally, the C. M. B. motto is "We Help Young Men Make Good."
His work does not cease with the class session on Sunday morning.

Merle Sidener businessman leader the Christian Men Builders

Throughout the week he confers with young fellows who are troubled.

ALTHOUGH he is one of the busiest men in Indianapolis, he does not confine his C. M. B. activities to the class alone, but makes personal con-tacts with many members of his radio audience. His interests extend into the homes and sickrooms of the shut-ins, where he learns to know those who listen to his voice on Sunday mornings.

Although incorporated as a non-profit organization, the class is well founded on a business basis. Governed by a cabinet of nine men selected each year by the members, it is divided into numerous departments and inner organizations. Aside from such sections as the public speech instruction class, it has a number of service groups. Among them are the employment department, a welfare department, the Century Club, which has provided eyeglasses for nearly one thousand needy schoolchildren, and a blood transfusion club.

Another outstanding organization in the class is the glee club, composed of thirty men. It appears on programs throughout the state of Indiana—in churches, schools and clubs. At regular intervals it presents special programs over WFBM and other stations.

This week Barbara Stanwyck presents "Dark Victory" on the Lux Theater; Jan Garber takes Ray Noble's place on Burns and Allen's show; Jack Haley's "Log Cabin Revue," Dr. Dafoe, "Grand Hotel," the Zenith Foundation and many another program is replaced; Eddie Guest's "It Can Be Done" changes networks. These are just a few of the changes in your listening habits—this week!

Is this a topsy-turvy week? No-no more than any other!

Next week Edna Mae Oliver will appear for the first time on Feg Murray's portion of the Bakers Broadcast; "Melody Puzzles," Kathryn Cravens, the Sunbrite Junior Nurse Corps and other programs will be replaced; Jose Iturbi will bring his fiery genius again to the Sunday Evening Hour, and Francesca Gaal her sweetness to Al Jolson's show; Georgie Jessel will present a special broadcast from Detroit.

Each week and every week radio assumes a new pattern on a broad scale. To keep it in focus, you need RADIO GUIDE every week. Buy your copy regularly to give yourself increased enjoyment of the world's most elaborate entertainment.

Besides his philosophizing, Tony Wons is expert at violin-making, presented each winner with a violin he had fashioned himself

PROMISING VIOLIN VIRTUOSOS

OUR youthful child violinists, two boys and two girls, tugged at the skirts of fame and possible fortune recently when the national judges of the Federation of Music Clubs audition series picked them as the outstanding musicians among forty-four city-audition winners. Each of the four children received a beautiful violin from Tony Wons, radio philosopher; a $250-cash scholarship award by the Vick Chemical Company, Wons' sponsor, and a trip to New York to broadcast over the CBS network.

Twelve-year-old Dolores Miller hails from St. Richmond, Calif., is in the 7th grade. She'd never seen snow until her trip east

Stuart Canin, eleven, was winner in the New York City area audition. He's studied violin for 6 years

Gloria Perkins, fifteen, is pride of Winston-Salem, N. C. She's played with symphonic prchestras

Purpose of the contest was not only to find the most talented violinists of sixteen or under, but those with talent who were most deserving of assistance. Above: Harry Cykman, fifteen, winner in local Philadelphia audition

MONKEY BUSINESS

THRC GH the years comics of all nations have won the hearts of pe by aptly mixing words and pronunciations. Just such humor is the style of Lew Lehr. Featured in newsreels and always sure of greatest laughs when photographed with animals, Lehr currently appears on the Ben Bernie CBS half-hour which is heard Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m. EST and 8:30 p.m. PST. Listeners have come to know that whenever. "Monkeys are the cwaziest people!" is heard, the man behind the mike is none other than the famed newsreel comic. So, for the radio audience, Radio Guide presents a man, monkeys, and some colossal photos!

WOOL FOR SALE: From Irene Rich's Angora Rabbit Hutches

Irene Rich, heard Sunday nights on NBC, obtains pedigreed Angora rabbits from Harrods, Ltd., London. They are bred for the length and quality of the silk-like wool they yield

Prices range from $5 to $25, depending upon pedigree. Rabbits can be fed for $1.50 each per year. They multiply rapidly, one pair being able to produce over 40 "children," hundreds of "grandchildren" and hundreds of "great-grandchilden" in a year

Miss Rich keeps her brood at the Manchester Boddy's Rancho Del Descanso, near Hollywood. Hutches, above, cost $30 aplece, house four rabbits. They are elevated to avoid dampness, allow better air circulation and more sunlight. Floors are of open net

THE raising of Angora rabbits for profit is an old industry, yet only two entertainers—Irene Rich and Helen Jepson—are engaged in the business. On these pages Miss Rich shows how she conducts the business—from importation of pedigreed rabbits to spinning of yarn and knitting of sweaters. Wool can be marketed through the Angora Wool Growers Assn., whose 60 members sell over 3,000 pounds at an average of $4 per pound each year. This does not supply the demand, and 900,000 pounds of the wool are imported annually from France and England. The industry in America is still in its infancy. Few realize warmth, lightness and wearing strength of Angora garments, because price of such garments has been too high for the average buyer.

Exclusive Radio Guide Photos by Gene Lester

These 5-day-olds will be taken from the mother rabbit when six and a half weeks old, will be trimmed for wool when eight weeks old, clipped every twelve weeks thereafter

This is Mr. Bing-of-the-Muffs, an imported buck with a three-month growth of wool, almost 3 inches long

Miss Rich finds prepared rabbit food best, but also uses cabbage and any greens. Carrots are laxative, máy give diarrhea

Clipping of the wool is done by an electric clipper while the rabbit is strapped onto a table. This process requires a great deal of skill so the wool won't be ruined

There are four grades of wool. Grade 1 comes from the back, is long and silky, is worth $5 to $6 a pound; grade 2, the shorter fur from the sides, is valued at $4 a pound; grade 3, short leg and under fur, worth $3 per pound; grade 4, short wads, sells at $1.50 a pound

Grade 4 is good only for felt-making. The other grades can be spun into yarn as Miss Rich does above, and can be used for any purpose that any ordinary wool would be used. One rabbit produces four ounces of wool, enough to make a sleeveless sweater for an adult

The yarn spun, it is now wound into balls. It may be dyed before knitting if a colored garment is desired. This yarn is one-third as heavy and 5 times as warm as sheep wool

The yarn can be knitted or crocheted, both of which are favorite pastimes with Miss Rich. In New York, George Possell, husband of Helen Jepson, wears nothing but Angora wool socks knitted by his operatic wife

This charming short-sleeved salmon-colored evening sweater was made entirely by Miss Rich and her rabbits, and set a new style for Hollywood. Now many stars of Cinemaland, including Joan Crawford, are knitting

FUN AFTER DARK: It's a Surprise Party for Edgar Bergen

To add Hollywood glamour to the party, Ken Murray hired kleig lights to brighten up the neighborhood. Another gag was to picket the house with the sign: "After much delay, Bergen finally came through with a party"

While Comedian W. C. Fields and Singer Dorothy Lamour relieved the picket line, Mrs. Nellie Bergen rushes to kiss her son as he is surprised in his own home. The clock wasn't running. It was actually 8 o'clock

Shirley Ross, one of the airwaves' rhythm singers, is first to present the ventriloquist with a gift. The Ross-Murray twosome is one of Hollywood's latest romances

While guests made merry, Charlie McCarthy was tucked away in his suitcase—forgotten

Mother Bergen made the birthday cake, iced on it the message, "Good luck, success, happiness now and always." Murray provided forty-odd kinds of foods

Many gifts were addressed to Charlie, so he was released from his suitcase, became the center of attraction. Gag gifts included book on ventriloquism, toupee

Photographed by Gene Lester

Dorothy Lamour brought a wooden birthday cake. Bergen, used to such gags, had a saw handy. Another gift was a box of rubber cigars addressed to Charlie

Left to right, around the table, are: Frances Langford, Hollywood Hotel singer; Jon Hall, star of the movie "Hurricane"; Dorothy Lamour, singer on Bergen's show; and Cal Kuhl, radio program producer

Mrs. Phil Harris (Marcia Ralston of Warner films); Mrs. Ed Sullivan, wife of the Broadway columnist; and Mr. and Mrs. Don Ameche have a table together. Many uninvited persons, who heard about the party, came anyway

Diana Bourbon, Hollywood Hotel's associate producer, and Louella Parsons, of the same show, look on as Shirley Ross and W. C. Fields wish Bergen long life. Fields formerly worked in radio with Bergen

Claire Dodd, of the movies, and Claude Stroud, one of the twins on Bergen's Sunday night program, were teamed for the party. The appearance of Frances Langford and Jon Hall (right) together gave weight to rumors of their romance

HIS HONOR, MAYOR JOLSON: ENCINO, CALIF.,

His honor, Al Jolson, mayor of Encino, Calif., has his shoulders heaped with civic duties, but must permit interruptions to rehearse with Ted Shapiro for his salaried job—his CBS show on Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. EST and 8:30 p.m. PST

BOUT 85 years ago the first stage stop northwest of Los Angeles was a tiny roadhouse set among rows of giant oaks. In 1917 an enterprising Californian bought the grounds, divided it into estates, named the place "Encino," Spanish for "live oak." With the coming of good roads, Encino was within 30 minutes of Hollywood and artists went there to live. Al Jolson was one of the first. Interested in the new community, Al soon found himself a civic leader, was elected the village's first mayor. On January 13 last this radio-movie star was re-elected for a third term, and citizens say he'll be their mayor for life if he continues to live there.

By Gene Lester, Radio Guide Staff Photographer

Al's village has 2,000 residents. Taxes are $5.27 per $100, or one cent less than Los Angeles proper

Land is $2,000 to $5,000 per acre. Fire insurance is 80c per $100. There is one grade school

The city hall, above, was built 5 years ago at a cost of $12,000. It is used by Encino women's clubs and the Chamber of Commerce. Only permanent offices it houses are those of the 5-acre-park attendant and the building janitor

The above scene is Encino's business section during a "rush" hour. Only businesses are small one-clerk mercantile stores, gasoline stations, restaurants. Biggest business is done by real-estate operators

Many famed artists live in Encino. Don Ameche rents the 12-room house above, will soon build a new home on a recently purchased 14-acre tract

Edward Everett Horton has lived in Encino since 1928, has the $300,000 home shown above furnished with rare furniture secured in Europe

Horton is president of the Board of Control and a Chamber of Commerce director, uses his barn as the town's Community Center

RE-ELECTS RADIO STAR FOR THIRD TERM . . .

Mayor Al and Wife Ruby Keeler live in the 15-room, $150,000 house shown above. It sets on a 12-acre landscaped tract, is planted with lemon and orange trees

The Joisons built their home in 1935, included the traditional Hollywood swimming-pool equipped with radio dials around the edge with loudspeakers overhead

Planting trees is an official duty of every mayor, so Al digs in. The job pays nothing, costs AI $500 per year

Al is a working mayor, attends all meetings and presides. There is no city council, as the Chamber of Commerce handles most of the city's problems

The Jolson home has no particular architectural style, was built for comfort. Part is of one story, part two, and knotty pine is used generously inside

Frank Buck came to Encino in 1928, has the 8-room house above, keeps none of his famed animals there, but does have many rare birds

Actor Spencer Tracy has lived in Encino since 1936, breeds race and polo ponies on his 8-acre tract. His Mexican-type home has 10 rooms

Other famed Encino residents include Warren William, Norris (Abner) Goff, Darryl Zanuck, Paul Muni, Leslle Fenton and Wallace Beery. When Jolson first became mayor there were no paved streets or lighting. Town now has the best. Al, above, speaks to a gathering

Between Edward Everett Horton, left, and Al Jolson, right, is Mayor Frank Shaw of Los Angeles. Comedian residents of Encino, California, say Horton and Jolson will be annexing Los Angeles next if Shaw doesn't keep a watchful eye on the politically minded two

Chamber of Commerce meetings are held alternate Thursdays in Horton's barn. Citizens agree that Jolson's broadcast plugging is the town's best advertising

Fred Allen's favorite line, "It's Town Hall Tonight," would fit here. Encino citizens turn out in Horton's barn to discuss civic matters, boost their town and to play host to visiting Mayor Shaw of Los Angeles

Encino's fire department consists of a 1923 Model T truck driven less than 5,000 miles and housed in a $300 shed. Fire Chief Forrer doubles as school janitor. His helpers are volunteer citizens summoned by a siren

OLD BOOKS WANTED

We pay big cash prices for thousands of different titles. We bought over 7,500 books in past twenty-one months, paying as high as $500 for a single book. For example, we will pay you cash for the following books as described in our price list:

Fanshawe
Adventures of Tom Sawyer
Old Swimmin' Hole
Black Beauty
Treasure Island
Scarlet Letter Scarlet Letter
Leaves of Grass
Science and Health
Snow-Bound
Uncle Tom's Cabin

Snow-Bound 45.60
Uncle Tom's Cabin 100.60
Ben Hur 50.00
Last of the Mohicans 50.00
Moby Dick 100.00
Little Women 25.00
Evangeline 35.00
These are but a few of the many thousands of books we want. DON'T SEND BOOKS until you have checked our latest list giving full information. Don't delay—a single old school book, story book, Bible, poetry, history, travel, almanac, newspaper, letter, autograph, may bring you $25, $50, $100, $500 or even $5,000 cash for certain books. Better investigate NOW. Send 10c to the American Book Mart, 140 S. Dearborn St., Dept, $501, Chicago, and we will send you latest list of old books we want to buy and cash prices we will pay.

So you Like Contests?

AST week this department was able to publish an expert's criticism of a winning contest entry an analysis that emphasized the entry's strong features and showed the difference between it and the thousands of others that didn't win. This week, as another part of a long-range program of entry criticism, this de-partment again publishes a series of non-winning entries for your criticisms. Twice before such non-winners have been presented, and each time enthusiastic critics have said they profited more from working on the other fellow's entries than they did from slaving with their own.

Here, then, are some typical nonwinning contest entries. Why don't you select one, analyze it, compare it with the winning entries also on this page, and send in your criticism? The best evaluations of each entry will be published, and the person who writes the best letter will be paid $5. Here are the entries:

"I like Ivory Soap because I trust its purity, gentleness and softness to share my responsibility in guarding and taking care of my baby's health and beauty."—L. E. T.

"I like Ivory Soap because I adore digging in my garden but soil chaps my hands and I need a mild yet cleansing soap like Ivory to check irritation."—T. W. S.

"I consider Oxydol the perfect laundry soap because for an 'enviable white' wash Oxydol is complete in itself without the use of any other 'whitening aids'."—C. M.

"I like Ivory Soap because when hard times come and costly skin aids must go, it provides a simple, safe, thrifty way to retain complexion loveliness."—D. C.

"I consider Oxydol the perfect laundry soap because it enables me at the age of 77 to put out every Monday a wash so white it is the envy of my neighbors."—A. J. K.

Select any one of these entries which you believe you could improve. Remember, the best letter wins $5 for its writer! Send the criticisms to "So You Like Contests?" Dept. EC3, RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Illinois.

This Contest World Its Latest Whirligigs

Even the churches are turning to contests! Helen King, the contest judge, sends the following clipping: "... Your viewpoint about religion in the church may win one of twelve cash awards. March 20 is still time to enter the church essay contest!"... Purchase-proof exchanges are prospering. They offer to buy or sell boxtops, labels, wrappers or anything else a sponsor might want contestants to send with their entries. Some of the exchanges are even conducting contests in which box-tops, etc., must be submitted—and the prizes are larger collections of box-tops and labels!

In the March 15 issue of Contest News, Mrs. E. E. Hanna has an interesting little yarn on "How Pen Pals Help Each Other." And they do, too! . . . In the same publication, Gilson

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE SPECIALS

$15,000.00 Cash

PRIZES: (Grand) 1st, $10,000; 2nd, $2.500; 3rd, $1,000; 4th, $500; 5th, $100; 6th, $50; four prizes, each $25; fifty prizes, each $10; fifty prizes, each $5.

TO ENTER: Write a letter of not more than 250 words on the subject, "What the word 'Home' means to me, and the three things I learned from 'The Home Idea Book' that appealed to me most for my home." Each letter should have two parts. In the first, simply tell what "home" means to you, in not more than 100 words. In the remaining 150 words, discuss the three things learned from the "Home Idea Book" that appealed to you most. In other words, each of the latter will be discussed in about 50 words each, although there is no word-limit for the subdivisions of the second part of the letter. The book may be obtained from the Johns-Manville Corp., Dept. AH-4, 22 East 40th St., New York, or from Johns-Manville dealers, for ten cents. Mail your entry to Johns-Manville Contest, 22 East 40th Street, New York City.

TO WIN: Smart contestants will locate Johns-Manville dealers who are sponsoring local contests in connection with this national competition. A copy of the letter entered in the local contest can be used in the national one. Judges of the contest include an editor, an architect, a women's club president. "Slant" entries for them, rather than for professional contest judges. The first part of the letter should be used for originality and attentionarousing expression. In the second part, "merchandise" your ideas that is, write to please the sponsor.

40,183 Prizes!

PRIZES: (Qualifying) Five thousand prizes, each six cans of tuna fish each month for eight months. (Grand prizes) $10,000 in 183 cash prizes ($5,000 first).

TO ENTER: Simply fill in three words to complete the following sentence: "I like this quality tuna because it is ——, —— and ——." Use three words most descriptive of Chicken of the Sea Tuna or White Star Tuna. Attach two labels from either brand and send to Contest Dept., Van Camp Sea Food Co., Terminal Island, Calif. The qualifying prizes will be paid for the 5,000 best entries each month (March through October). Winners in these contests will be eligible to enter the $10,000 cash contest, based on a statement titled "It's the natural thing to say."

TO WIN: Remember that this is the very simplest form of legitimate contest imaginable and it will have a tremendously wide appeal—so that almost all the adjectives in the language will be repeated many times. Look long and hard for appropriate, descriptive words which others may ignore. Because the prizes are small and widely distributed, "good-will" will doubtless increase as the contest progresses—which will make competition more intense each month. Enter as soon as possible.

Willets agrees with this department's statement of March 12, 1938, chastising the outfit that sells complete contest entries. He says, "We do NOT approve of this sort of thing, but so far as can be ascertained, there is no possible way to stop it." We think there is. If contestants will be a little more intelligent, realizing that if the entries were good enough to win they would not be sold "over the counter" as they are, the practise can be "starved out" . . . Willets also points out that the real winners in the second Old Gold contest won't be known for six months or so; that those in the first one are just now being recognized. That's something many don't realize—that contesting has become so complex that a list of winners really means very little until some agency such as National Contest Headquarters has determined the people behind the names.

Willets, who appears to be close to sponsors of the Golden Gate International Exposition contest, reports that 454,447 entries were received before the closing date (thousands more came in too late!). The winner should be announced in about two weeks . . . Dr. Robert C. Westenberg, pastor of the Congregational Church of Uxbridge, Mass., is writing letters to announced contest winners to add to his collection of "undeliverable" letters. When he has a large enough collection, he will try to instigate a Federal Communications Commission investigation of radio contests. His efforts are interesting, but certainly not authoritative, since many winners refuse to accept mail immediately after winning, unless it is from someone they know-to avoid getting all the crank letters. And as for the investigation, certainly every legitimate sponsor and every earnest contestant would welcome an investigation from this or any other responsible agency!

Speaking of cranks, a new name was added to our personal list of contest "nuts" when a gentleman suggested we send this telegram to the big winners in a recent contest, signing the sponsor's name: "G-Men have all facts. Europe for us. Suit yourself."

Some Winning Entries Ideas That Clicked

This week we are publishing some non-winning entries for your criticisms. They were submitted in the Ivory Soap and Oxydol contests. For comparison, read these winning entries in the same contests:

Wilmer Shepherd reports this $100 winner:

"I consider Oxydol the perfect laundry soap because my husband, a fireman, wears heavy wool clothing, and Oxydol lifts out the soaked-in soot and dirt, even in the lukewarm water wool requires."

In the Ivory Soap contest, one of Shepherd's students won $5 with this entry:

"I like Ivory Soap because the uniform of a waitress must look fresh and clean—Ivory Soap helps me keep mine spic and span, clear-colored with sunny yellow glow."

The Townsend-Friend Analytical Contest Bulletin unearthed this $100 winner in the Oxydol contest:

"I consider Oxydol the perfect laundry soap because my washing is too varied to use separate soaps for silks, corduroys, white and colored clothes; Oxydol cleans everything quickly, safely, effectively, economically."

Can you spot the points of difference that made these entries winners where the others failed? If you can, this comparative listing of entries will have served its purpose, and your next Procter and Gamble effort will doubtless reflect your own observational prowess!
