RADIO GUIDE'S ANNUAL STAR OF STARS POLL

THIS WEEK—MOST POPULAR COMEDIAN OR COMEDY PROGRAM

TO MISS an opportunity to vote in Radio Guide's Annual Star of Stars Poll is to miss a chance to "talk back" to radio as an institution.

Always there is enormous speculation as to who is really "tops" in radio. Listeners argue about it. Big radio moguls tear their hair trying to decide who is worthiest of the choicest hours on the air. Sponsors spend thousands of dollars a year on stars who they hope will please Mr. and Mrs. John Q. More than this, the stars themselves like to feel the pulse of public opinion. They want to know whether or not their performances are clicking.

To all of these people, then, the Star of Stars Election offers a rare boon of certainty. Its votes tell all! When the shouting is over and the last ballot is in, listeners will be entertained by stars they have voted to top places, for sponsors will know what stars will most likely draw patronage to their products. Radio officials will rate performers according to their standing in the poll.

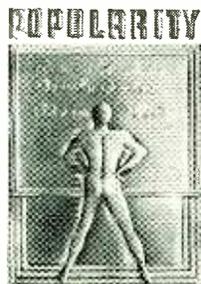

This year, unlike other years, fans may vote for one, and only one, classification each week. Each week Radio Guide will announce winners in the various polls. The fourth poll has named Don Ameche as the best actor and Jeanette MacDonald the best actress on the air. The complete results are announced on page 15.

Destined to be a fight to the finish, this week's poll will be for radio's most popular comedian or comedy program. Winners in the comedian or comedy-act classification last year were: First, Jack Benny; second, Eddie Cantor; third, Milton Berle; fourth, Lum and Abner; fifth, Fibber McGee and Molly; sixth, Bob Burns; seventh, Fred Allen; eighth, Burns and Allen; ninth, Pick and Pat; tenth, Amos 'n' Andy; eleventh, Charlie Butterworth; twelfth, Phil Baker.

From the days of Elizabeth, when court jesters weaved and taunted, comics have brought laughs to a tired world. Their beloved antics have acted as an antidote in times of world depression and stress. Undisputed king of clowns in radio for the past three years has been Jack Benny. Will he repeat his victory again this year? Or will his crown be taken by newcomer Charlie McCarthy?

It's up to you to tell sponsors your ideas by filling in the ballot above and mailing it before midnight, Saturday, April 30!

Postmaster General Farley will be heard Tues. at 11 p.m. EDT over NBC-Blue when he addresses Women's Democratic Conference in S. C.

Ruth Harkness, who captured two giant pandas in Tibet, will appear on "It Can Be Done" show at 10:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday on CBS

THIS WEEK

THIS WEEK'S PROGRAMS WILL FEATURE AN IMPOSING LIST OF NAMES, ODDITIES, MUSIC

SUNDAY, APRIL 24

Nat Pendleton . . . Feg's star

"Baker's Broadcast"—NBC-Blue, 7:30 p.m. EDT.

American-Indian movie star, Nat Pendleton, is famous for his comedy roles in many great films. As Feg Murray's guest on the "Seein' Stars" portion of the Baker's Broadcast Sunday, he will tell listeners the story of his life.

George Jean Nathan . . . cites best play

New York Drama Critics' Circle Award—NBC-Red, 10:30 p.m. EDT.

George Jean Nathan will present the Drama Circle's Award for the season's best play by an American author. Following a speech of acceptance by the author of the chosen play, scenes from the winning drama will be enacted by the original cast.

MONDAY, APRIL 25

Sidney H. Coleman . . . please be kind

"Be Kind to Animals Week"—MBS, 11:45 a.m. EDT.

Besides a talk by President Coleman of the American Humane Association, tuners-in will hear Dave Driscoll and Al Josephy tell about activities at the famous animal hospital, run by the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Harry Cooper, Bob Trout . . . counterfeit money

Bob Trout Interviews Secret Service Man Harry Cooper—CBS, 4:45 p.m. EDT.

In addition to Cooper's explanation of tricks of counterfeiters and how to detect them, several people whose jobs include the handling of money will appear on the program and see if they can tell counterfeit from bona fide bills.

New Serial . . . in debut

"Your Family and Mine"—NBC-Red, 5:30 p.m. EDT.

This serial, written by Lillian Lauferty, famous novelist, deals with the dramatic and emotional excitement that happens in the lives of a normal American family. Actors in the drama include Lucille Wall, Bill Adams, and youthful Joan Tompkins.

Commerce . . . between the Americas

"Brave New World"—CBS, 10:30 p.m. EDT.

Commerce between the Americas will be dramatized. Sketches will tell of bids by various modern nations for Latin-American trade and give the background and the significance of Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal trade treaties.

Notre Dame . . . radio reunion

Universal Notre Dame Night Program—NBC-Red, 11:15 p.m. EDT.

The program includes music by the student body, Notre Dame Band, and Glee Club. Father John F. O'Hara, president, will speak from Washington; John McCormack will be heard from Hollywood, and Elmer Layden will speak from Notre Dame.

TUESDAY, APRIL 26

Anthony Eden . . . from London

Talk by Eden—NBC-Blue and CBS, 3:35 p.m. EDT.

Mr. Eden, who resigned a few weeks ago from the cabinet of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, will be heard speaking at a banquet of the Society of St. George at Grosvenor House. His address will be brought to America by the RCA facilities.

Seven Dwarfs . . . visit Al

"Al Jolson Show"—CBS, 8:30 p.m. EDT.
(For the West, 7:30 p.m. PST.)

The seven actors who interpreted the parts of Dopey, Sneezy, Grumpy, Happy, Doc, Bashful, and Sleepy in the famous Walt Disney picture, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," will be on hand to talk about their screen careers with Al.

Mayor of Hell . . . Ripley's visitor

"Believe It or Not"—NBC-Red, 10 p.m. EDT.

Believe it or not, Robert Ripley will introduce the Mayor of Hell. The official is Lorentz Stenvig, mayor of the little town of Hell, Norway, only a few degrees south of the Arctic Circle. The mayor will return to Hell following his appearance.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27

Val Gielgud, Frank Black . . . present "Lepanto"

"NBC Symphony Orchestra"—NBC-Blue, 9 p.m. EDT.

Val Gielgud, distinguished chief of dramatic production for BBC, has been engaged by NBC to direct a special American performance of "Lepanto," one of his greatest English radio successes. The orchestra will be conducted by Frank Black.

For a story about this broadcast, see page 7.

Ruth Harkness . . . Guest's guest

"It Can Be Done"—CBS, 10:30 p.m. EDT.

Ruth Harkness, only person to bring pandas to America, will appear on Edgar Guest's show this Wednesday. Of the two giant pandas she has captured in Tibet, one has just died in a zoo. She will describe her capture of the rare animals.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy . . . trade talk

"78th Annual Dinner of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce in London"—NBC-Blue, 5 p.m. EDT.

Ambassador Kennedy will be heard responding to the toast, "Anglo-American Trade." The speech will be the second time the ambassador has addressed audiences both in Britain and at home on the improvement of trade as a bulwark against war.

FRIDAY, APRIL 29

Paul Whiteman . . . ball of tomorrow

New York World's Fair Ball—NBC-Blue, 10:30 p.m. EDT.

The ball of tomorrow at the gigantic ballroom on the grounds of the New York World's Fair of 1939, now rising on the meadows of Flushing, L. I., will be described. Music by Paul Whiteman and other orchestras will be furnished.

SATURDAY, APRIL 30

Benjamin Lee . . . presents "Soft Ticker"

Original Plays by Benjamin Lee—NBC-Blue, 8:30 p.m. EDT.

This is the story of a fight manager who takes on the promotion of the son of a great fighter. What happens when the manager finds his new acquisition does not possess the attributes that made his father famous makes a thrilling play.

BY JAMES STREET

THE bigwigs of the Pepsodent Company were grouped in coveys around the conference table and were almost hidden by the smoke-screen from their super-colossal Corona-Corona-Coronas. Big doings were afoot and big business was in a pow-wow, and the Pepsodent bosses had a big job of thinking to do.

The company was going on the air! They were going to ballyhoo their product with comedy. They had hired Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll and had sunk a wad of dough in the enterprise. It was revolutionary—plugging toothpaste with wise-cracks.

The bigwigs were not superstitious men, but they were cautious. They didn't go around picking up pins, but they were not the men to poke luck in the jaw and make faces at the fates.

So when a vice-president told them,

"Gentlemen, I've got a hunch," they primed their ears. A hunch is a mighty good thing to have, even in business.

"We've got to have a theme song for our program," the vice-president explained, "a song that the nation will sing, and every time it's sung the public will think of our products."

The bigwigs said "Yes."

Then the vice-president made a little confession: he was going to play a hunch. Years and years ago when he had seen "The Birth of a Nation," the grandpa of all the super-colossal movies, he had heard a song and it had stuck in his craw. Somehow, he had always associated that song with luck. It had brought luck to the show. He wanted that song to be the theme.

"What's the song?" asked a big-wig.

"The Perfect Song," said the v.-p.

"Never heard of it," said the big-wig.

"But soon we'll have 50,000,000 persons humming it."

That was 1929, the year Amos 'n' Andy (Mr. Gosden and Mr. Correll) began sending America to the dentist twice a year, and when "The Perfect Song" almost became the national anthem.

Joseph Carl Briel wrote the song as an orchestral prelude for "The Birth of a Nation." The public didn't run a fever over it, and for fifteen years it lay on a publisher's shelf, gathering dust. It might have still been there if the v.-p. of Pepsodent hadn't liked it and believed it a lucky melody.

Soon after Amos 'n' Andy went on the air and the theme song became established, thousands of letters poured in asking the name of the song. The publishers put it on the market and it's been selling ever since.

Radio programs are as finicky about their theme songs as a business is about its slogan. A theme song is the tag for a program, and although there's no record of a theme song's making a program, a poorly selected theme easily could hurt a show.

THE chief function of a theme, naturally, is to identify the broadcast, but it serves a purely technical purpose, too. Themes can be lengthened or shortened to make the program fit the time allotted on the air. Listeners know nothing of it, but often a card with the letter A, B, C or D is held up to the orchestra-leader, and when he sees the letter he knows to the split second how much time he has left and can cut or lengthen the theme to fit.

There are scores of theme songs, but the ideal ones are those whose titles either suggest the mood of the entertainment or carry the same name as that of the program.

For example, the serial "I Want a Divorce" found a natural theme in Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and "Hawthorn House" found a perfect theme in Cadman's "Melody in G Flat." "Good News" couldn't have been missed by "Good News of 1938."

Many of the most popular theme songs still are in manuscript form; that is, they haven't been published and can be played only by the owner. Thousands of radio fans seek copies of Paul Carson's "Bridge to Dreamland" theme, but the organist never has published it because he wants it associated only with his program. Paul Martin's "Jasmine" is still in manuscript.

The most famous themes are "The Perfect Song," Vallee's "My Time Is Your Time," Eddie Cantor's "We Want Cantor," Bing Crosby's "When the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day," Kate Smith's "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," and Whiteman's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Vallee selected his theme in 1929, and, contrary to popular opinion, he did not write the song. He was casting around for an air signature and selected "My Time" because he liked the implication regarding himself and his potential radio audience.

The song was written in 1924 by Leo Dance, an Englishman, and the words are by Eric Little, also an Englishman. It didn't amount to much until Vallee began using it. He made a record of it and its sheet music is still going big.

Wayne King wrote "The Waltz You Saved for Me" in 1930 after he was called the "Waltz King." That was three years after he began broadcasting. It's a sweet song and makes the girls flutter their eyes and sigh. I regret to report that Mr. King fashioned the beautiful thing after a piece called "The Truck Driver's Dream"—the pre-war song that was about as romantic as a flat tire.

Many of these songs, written originally to introduce radio programs, are now played by dance orchestras and sung all over the nation. Other selections, heard in forgotten days, have been revived to a popularity undreamed of when they were written.

THERE is no rhyme or reason for sponsors' selections of themes. Many of them go by hunches, others select a theme because the v.-p.'s grandmother happened to like a certain melody. The themes range from hymns to marches. The so-called rural programs cling to "The Old Gray Mare" and her kith. The themes are divided about fifty-fifty between original and published music.

It is preferable on radio broadcasts that the sponsors use original selections. This not only assures the program of a distinctive melody but prevents the melody from being used on any other radio broadcast

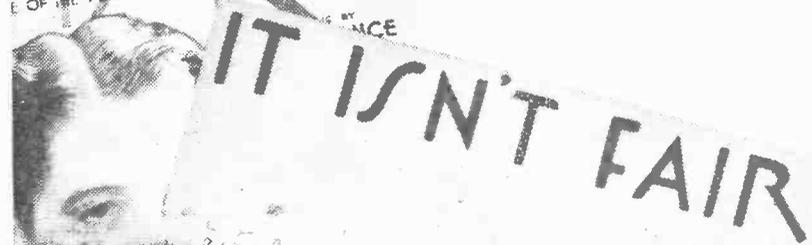

The "blue" in "When the Blue of the Night, etc." caused Crosby to select that song for his John Henry, and that made it famous. If the song had used any other word except "blue," it might have been just a flash in the pan. But back in his early crooning days, he was on a sustaining program, and they give him a chance to get stuck with a theme song. He couldn't give him a chance to get stuck with a theme song. He couldn't give him a chance to get stuck with a theme song. He couldn't give him a chance to get stuck with a theme song.

KATE wanted. "Moon and Mountain" is the composition he turned over to publishers. He wanted more "blue" business. He wanted more "blue" business. He wanted more "blue" business. He wanted more "blue" business.

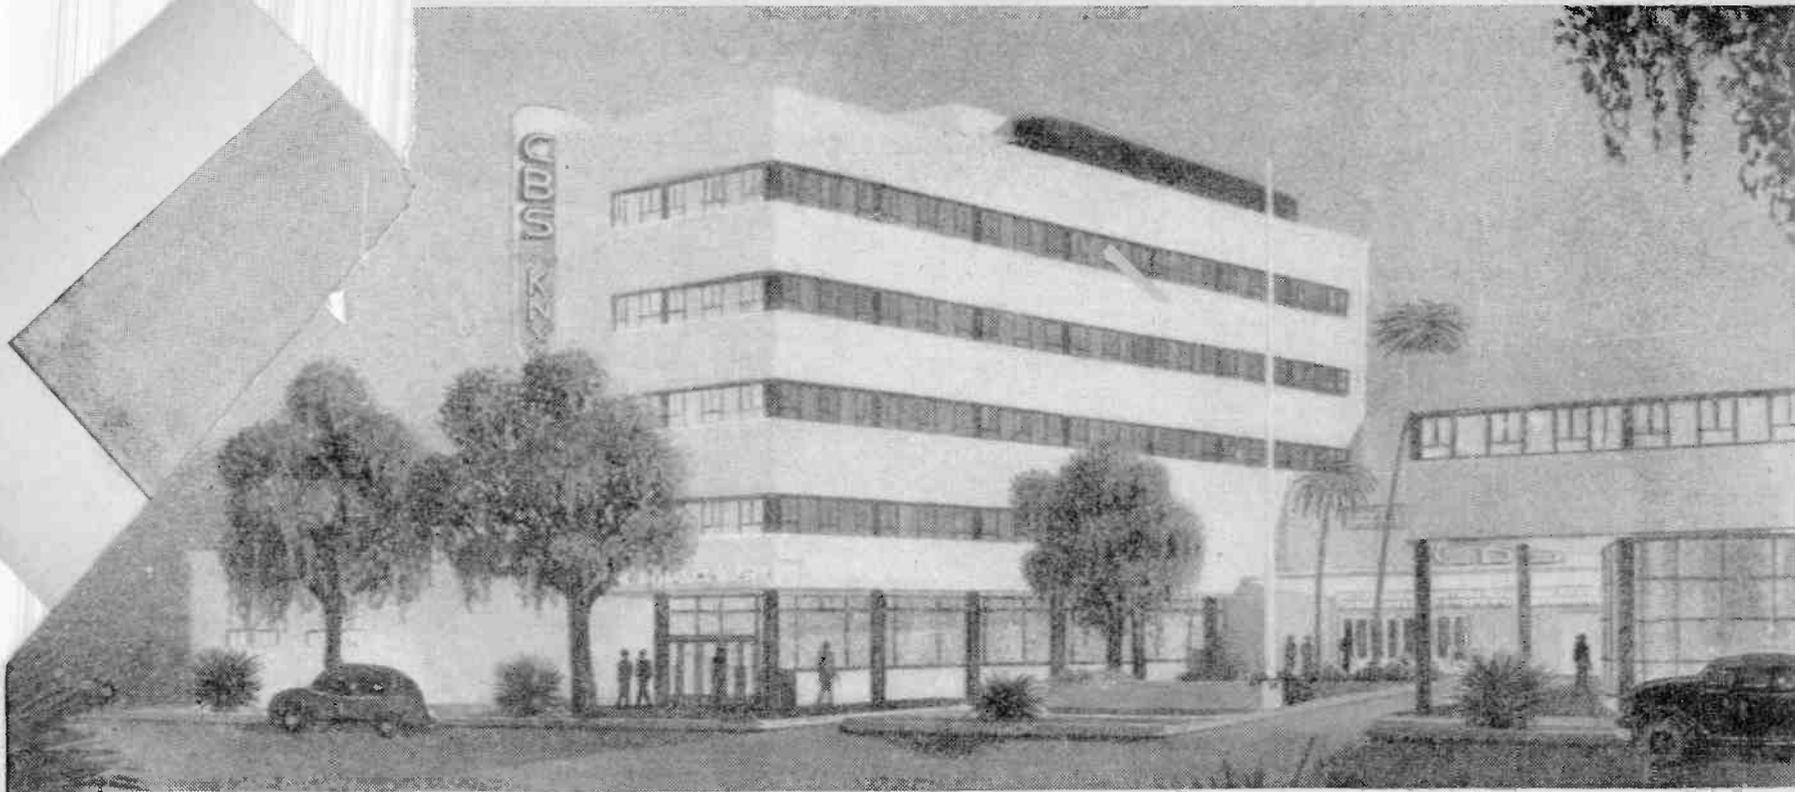

The song didn't she liked, but she wanted. She got together with the composers and told them she needed m's and n's in her theme song. "M?" asked the boys. "There's moon and man and mountain and mule and money and—"

"Whoa," said Kate. "Moon and mountain—that's it. There are two m's and four n's. Sounds swell." So the song was born. To many artists, the theme song is a deeply personal expression of themselves, and there's an honest sadness about the melody Richard Himer uses—"It Isn't Fair for You to Haunt Me."

The first building ever to be designed and built for radio alone will be open for business on Saturday of this week when CBS officially dedicates its new CBS-KNX Hollywood headquarters. Designed by William Lescaze, the project is of white concrete and constructed along a simple modern style

IF YOU like (a) celebrities and (b) gala performances you won't want to miss the dedication ceremonies for the Columbia Broadcasting System's new Pacific Coast studios on Saturday, April 30. There'll be more of both than you could find in a press-agent's reverie.

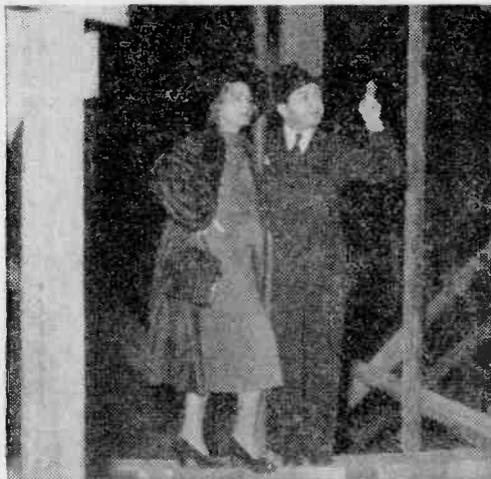

It looks as though everybody in Hollywood who doesn't have an impediment in his speech or a previous engagement will appear in front of a CBS microphone sometime between dawn and midnight on the day when the new building is officially opened for business and christened.

Dedicatory broadcasts are to occupy eighteen and three-quarters hours, and a good share of the day's festivities will be piped to a nation-wide network. Several features will be picked up by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, some will be short-waved to other continents.

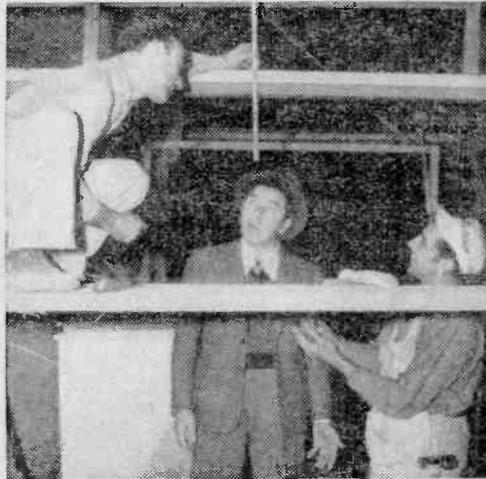

CLIMAX of the day's activities will be a star-spangled night-time show at 11:30 p.m. EDT, in which all available CBS performers in Hollywood will take part—among them, Al Jolson, Martha Raye, Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Cecil B. DeMille, Eddie Cantor, Joe Penner, Parkyakarkus, Jean Hersholt, Frances Langford, Frank Parker, Gene Austin, Lum and Abner, Anne Jamison, George McCall, Virginia Verrill, and Ruby Elzy.

The day's program, according to CBS officials, is designed to show every aspect of life in Hollywood, and to that end there will be, among other attractions, a radio tour of Los Angeles, with pick-ups from ten points in the city, at which announcers will be posted to describe goings-on in the metropolis of merriment.

The first broadcast scheduled for a nation-wide audience on Dedication Day is a fifteen-minute salute at 10 a.m. EDT, entitled "Good Morning to Hollywood," featuring the quartet and wood-wind group of Harry Simeone in a program of original music performed as a prolog to the day's official dedication ceremonies.

Edward G. Robinson and Claire Trevor will broadcast from the new studios. They took great interest in building's progress

While new CBS-KNX building was under construction, Comedian Joe Penner, who will be among those using it, looked on Someone was commissioned to write special music describing his impressions of dawn breaking over Hollywood, the awakening of the city, the thickening of the traffic on Sunset Boulevard, where the new CBS-KNX studios stand, and the start of the day's toil. Voices and instruments will be blended in the music.

Back on the full network at 2 p.m. EDT, the celebrants will take radio listeners on the above-mentioned tour of Los Angeles and environs, covering historic Olvera Street, residential Beverly Hills, the Union Air Terminal, the Southern Pacific Railroad Station, the harbor, Sunset Boulevard and an assortment of cafes.

It happens that the new CBS-KNX building stands on the spot where Hollywood's first film studio was built, back in 1911, and where during the following years such veterans of the silent screen as Dorothy Davenport, Harold Lockwood, Hoot Gibson, Jack Conway and Wallace Reid performed, in pantomime, before grinding cameras.

So later in the day the film industry salutes the newcomers with a special half-hour broadcast at 4:45 p.m. EDT, during which stars, producers and directors from several movie studios will step to the microphone. Representatives of M-G-M, Warner Brothers, Paramount, Universal, Twentieth Century-Fox, and RKO will speak.

Among the executives and screen players who will appear are Louis B. Mayer, Darryl Zanuck, Adolph Zukor, Jack Warner, Jesse Lasky, Herbert Marshall, Wesley Ruggles, Mark Hellinger, Pandro S. Berman, William Le Baron, Charles R. Rogers, and Charles Previn.

Seizing upon the flair for community enterprise that marks everything in California, from discussions of the weather to the Tournament of Roses, the program builders have enlisted the aid of 20,000 schoolchildren from Los Angeles city and county for a gigantic community sing.

The students, chosen from the honor rolls of their respective schools, will be heard at 6 p.m. EDT in a commemorative broadcast from the Hollywood Bowl, where they will appear in concert with the 108-piece Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, under the baton of Dr. Otto Klemperer.

THIS serious stuff is all very well, but it will probably be of even more interest to jitterbugs and ickies in various parts of the country to know there will be a special session of the Saturday Night Swing Club at 8 p.m. EDT, featuring Raymond Scott's quintet and Frank Tromber's orchestra.

In honor of the occasion Scott has composed a new song entitled "Slidin' Down a Kilocycle to Columbia Square"—Columbia Square being the official name of the site where the new studios stand. The Scott opus will likewise be given its premiere at this performance.

The $1,750,000 studios, designed by William Lescaze, were begun only a year ago, at which time ground-breaking ceremonies were broadcast. One of the features of the building is that the sound-effects and the control-rooms—the most mysterious part of radio so far

IF THIS list remains unchanged, both RADIO GUIDE readers and myself will be surprised, for the Music Hall series frequently departs from the programs announced in advance.

Assuming rashly that Beethoven's first symphony will not disappear before the scheduled date, I may say that it is a simple and gracious work (somewhat derived from Mozart), hardly prophetic of the titanic composer who was later to create the mighty "fifth" and "ninth."

Miss Philo gives further proof of her wide vocal resources and warm temperament in the intensely dramatic aria by Beethoven, provided that she is not switched to something else from "Tosca," "Aida," "Carmen," "Walkure," or what have you?

The March of Music

Edited by Leonard Lieblich

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air ..."—Wordsworth

CORRESPONDENCE received at this desk is a source of endless interest and instruction to its reader. In the letters are many arresting opinions, sometimes disagreeing with those published in this section of RADIO GUIDE.

In the latest communications there are several commending me for protesting against the many repetitions of certain symphonic compositions broadcast during the season. One asks why it would not be feasible for either the stations or the conductors to get together and lay out programs in advance which would avoid too many duplications. The idea deserves consideration.

In England and some other European countries the entire programs for the winter are published in the early autumn, and there is no good reason why the same system should not prevail here. As a matter of fact, several of our conductors (including Toscanini), as late as a fortnight before a radio performance, still hesitate about the numbers to be programmed. That is why this department often is unable to comment upon some important concerts of the air.

One of the correspondents says that especially certain overtures are repeated too often, and he asks for the performance of one called "Saul" by Bazzini, "available as an Edison diamond-disc record, No. 80518, and possessing an uncommonly fine cello solo." The writer adds that he knows nothing about Bazzini. His biography is in every dictionary of music and musicians.

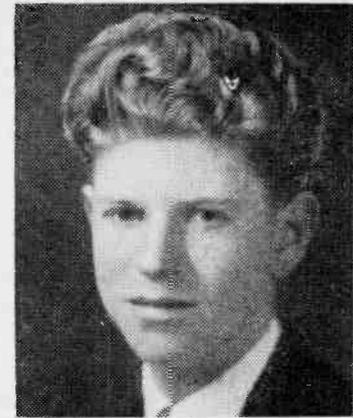

Eminently fitting is the recent presentation to Toscanini by the Associated Musicians of Greater New York (union local 802) of a gold card conferring honorary life membership on the distinguished conductor. His NBC players are, of course, unionized, and their admitted effectiveness offsets the criticism which Dr. Walter Damrosch not long ago rashly leveled at the New York association when he declared that its members are largely incompetent. Certainly one could not include under that head the players of the Philharmonic, of the Metropolitan Opera, and the smaller orchestral bodies that perform in New York radio stations.

The presentation to Toscanini includes also an illuminated parchment praising his inspirational conducting and his "outstanding distinction as a liberal thinker and defender of the liberties and rights of mankind."

Utterly amazing is this prophetic passage in Joseph Glanville's "The Vanity of Dogmatizing," published in 1661 in London, England: "The time will come, and that presently, when, by making use of the magnetic waves that permeate the ether which surrounds our world, we shall communicate with the Antipodes."

Margaret Speaks

FERDE GROFÉ'S "Grand Canyon Suite" has become a standard favorite in the list of typical American compositions, and especially the third movement, "On the Trail," is beloved by everyone, with its pit-a-pat of the little burros as they literally hit the highspots with their burden of care-free travelers. "Sunrise," "The Painted Desert," and "Cloudburst" (finale), tell their own characteristic tales.

Two Indian Sketches (Griffes)

Fourth String Quartet in E Minor
(Chadwick)

HUNGARIAN and American composers divide this pair of chamber-music programs.

Leo Weiner first became known in America as the orchestral transcriber of Bach's and other ancient classical music. His own works are a compromise between conservative and advanced styles, with a bow toward melody and another in the direction of radical harmonies.

In the American program, strangely enough, some of the music is of European character. Loeffler and Griffes studied in France and Chadwick in Germany. In consequence, the latter's music is based upon the sturdy Teutonic method, while Loeffler's reflects the febrile Gallic fancy. Griffes, however, in his "Indian Sketches" suggests something of the melodic and rhythmic influences of our own land.

THE unusual feature of this program is the assistance of the best of the two-piano pairs, Vera Brodsky and Harold Triggs, familiar to the radio public through their many brilliant performances on the air. They have made their own arrangement of Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz," which they combined from the orchestral and the piano-solo versions of the composer.

The story of the work is based on an episode from Lenau's "Faust." The Evil One and Faust appear at the wedding festival of a village couple: the former snatches a fiddle and plays such satanically enticing strains that Faust whirls into the woods with a rural beauty. . . . The music dies out and the nightingale warbles his love-laden song.

Brodsky and Triggs display their irresistible dash and virtuosity also in a glamorous "Carmen" transcription for two pianos (without orchestra) made for them by the American composer, Abram Chasins.

The editor of "The March of Music" will be heard as radio commentator on this program.

Chesterton's Poem, "Lepanto," Set to Music of Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony on NBC

The NBC Symphony Orchestra

Frank Black, conductor
Val Gielgud, dramatic director
Three Narrators

At 9 p.m. EDT on NBC-Blue, Wednesday, April 27

TWO features make the production of the dramatic poem "Lepanto" an outstanding event on radio. First, we have not had many air-readings of poems with incidental music; and secondly, this performance is one of the most pronounced successes that ever was microphoned in England. Over there, Val Gielgud (chief of dramatic production for the British Broadcasting Corporation) directed it artistically, and he fills the same office for the NBC representation of "Lepanto." Gielgud is a brother of the distinguished Shakespearean actor, John Gielgud, who starred on Broadway during the past several seasons. When NBC learned that the BBC director was to visit America, it was immediately arranged that he should do a guest-airing here of one of the productions which he made famous in his own land.

mediately arranged that he should do a guest-airing here of one of the productions which he made famous in his own land. Informed readers of RADIO GUIDE know that the poem "Lepanto" is from the pen of G. K. Chesterton, and deals with the celebrated naval battle of that name, fought October 7, 1571. Historians agree that the victory of the allied European fleets over the Turks on that occasion not only stopped the aggressions of the latter in the eastern Mediterranean but in a sense also helped to save Christianity on this last crusade.

From the battle of Lepanto emerged a hero, Don John of Austria, whom the world admires enduringly as one of the most brilliant commanders on sea and land. He died at the age of thirty-three, heartbroken over his political failures and the neglect of his brother, King of Spain.

Incidentally, Lepanto is entitled to further fame because the battle was the final one that ever took place on a grand scale between fleets of galleys; and because Cervantes, author of "Don Quixote," was present and had his left hand shattered by a Turkish bullet.

It is easy to understand why "Lepanto" appealed to Chesterton as a subject, because it embraces all the elements of drama—intrigue, conflict, heroism, romance, tragedy. To add even more emotional effect and heighten the poignancy of spoken words, Gielgud decided upon music as the artistic partner of Chesterton's lines. Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony in F Minor was the tonal medium finally selected.

Tschaikowsky's F Minor opus is one of the few symphonies thoroughly explained by the composer himself. He did so in a letter to his patroness, Mrs. von Meck, and the document is published in Modeste Tschaikowsky's life of his eminent brother.

We learn that the opening theme—the ominous phrase for horns and bassoons—represents Fate, the somber power which prevents the desire for happiness from reaching its goal. There is no other course but to submit and inwardly lament (dolorous music for violins and cellos). Would it not be better to turn away from reality and lull one's self in dreams? (theme for clarinets). The vision carries on (flutes and oboes). However, the call of Fate again sounds. Life is an everlasting alternation of somber reality and fugitive dreams.

In the second movement, more melancholy contemplation of the past. The third section is a phantasmagoria, capricious, intangible—exhilaration, revelry, military music in the distance—all is shifting, bizarre, fragmentary. The last movement starts with a final flaring-up of spirit and ambition. But again the summons of Fate sounds through the joy of the multitude. Sad and lonely, the onlooker realizes that there is peace only in the happiness of others.

Roughly, the foregoing is what transpires in the pages of Tschaikowsky, and Don John might rightfully be their subject. It is to be expected that Mr. Gielgud fitted the Chesterton text to appropriate parts of the descriptive, militant, moody and passionate music. It will be played by the full NBC Symphony Orchestra, and conducted by the erudite and propulsive Frank Black. The poem itself is to be delivered by three narrators.

Books

The Life of Richard Wagner. Volumes I and II, by Ernest Newman (Alfred Knopf, New York). The author, probably the best-known living English music critic, is writing an exhaustive biography, of which the second volume has lately been issued. It covers the years in the composer's life from 1848 to 1860. Modern research has enabled Newman to uncover much data not contained in the standard works on Wagner.

"Beloved Friend," by Katherine Drinker Bowen and Barbara von Meck (Random House, New York). A fascinating narration about Tschaikowsky and his platonic friend, Mme. von Meck, who supplied him with a generous pension for many years.

SIGHING lasses may have their Robert Taylors, the musical-minded may prefer Nelson Eddy, and drama-lovers may tune in "One Man's Family," but the tiny tots have their own ideas as to what radio entertainment should be like. They have a listening preference, too. It's Donald Duck and his "gadget band" heard on "The Mickey Mouse Theater of the Air" over NBC-Red every Sunday at 5:30 p.m. EDT. So popular is this "gadget band" with youthful listeners that thousands of letters have poured in to Felix Mills, the band's director, inquiring how the "gadget music" is made. To remove all doubts about instruments in this band being anything but gadgets, Radio Guide presents these scoop pictures of The Meglin School Kiddies of Hollywood, who have the distinction of being the only group of children who know how to "get music" out of the instruments used in this famous band.

Making music out of junk—that's the job of Mills and Reese, shown above with part of instruments used in band

Believe it or not, these tots are actually "playing" instruments used in the "gadget band" as Mills looks on. The first little miss strikes up a tune with a pair of baby-rattles, while other children are "playing" a meat-grinder, automobile horn and a bazooka. The chap in front is set to entice wild strains from a home-made violin

Anthony Eden is storm center of Britain's policy controversy. NBC-Blue & CBS Tues., 3:35 p.m. EDT

Anthony Eden Speaks from London

Tuesday, 3:35-4 p.m., NBC-Blue & CBS.

Captain Anthony Eden, storm-center of Britain's foreign-policy wrangle since his resignation from the post of British Foreign Secretary, will speak to America from a meeting of the Society of St. George at Grosvenor House, London, on Tuesday.

Anticipate no fireworks.

The handsome captain is too sound an Englishman to delight in his current role of political and patriotic martyr to the more vocal elements of the British populace. "Cricket" to the core, he cannot be expected to voice, even for American consumption, any specific comment on the results of his secession from traditional British foreign policy.

He will probably make, however, some pertinent and clarifying allusions to his stand in the cabinet controversy that deleted him and vindicated the present Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain.

Probably a pleasant and informative chat, neither unduly significant nor to be missed, is Tuesday's fare.

Critics Award Laurel to Season's Best Play

Sunday, 10:30-11 p.m., NBC-Red.

George Jean Nathan, president of New York's Drama Critics Circle, will award the critics' laurel to the best American-written play of the current season this Sunday evening. Ceremonies to be heard over the Red network of NBC include presentation of the honorary plaque, an acceptance interview with the successful playwright, and the enactment of key-scenes from the prize-winning production. Members of the original Broadway cast will be heard in their own roles.

This year's award is again calculated to add color to the waning dramatic season by loosing a brief tempest of controversy over the critics' selection.

Among the likeliest contenders which have already garnered vigorous preannouncement support are Thornton Wilder's "Our Town"; "Of Mice and Men," by John Steinbeck; Clifford Odet's "Golden Boy"; Rachel Crothers' "Susan and God"; Maxwell Anderson's "Star Wagon"; Paul Osborn's "On Borrowed Time," and the playful ribbing of the economic royalists entitled "The Cradle Will Rock," by Marc Blitzstein.

Listening to Learn

"And this cuff was but to knock at your ear, and beseech listening."—Shakespeare.

Try Swimming with Expectation

ACCORDING to his own delighted confession, Gilbert K. Chesterton, the famous English author, was an incurable romantic. And, as if to prove it, he always carried a sword cane—in his heart a modern Launcelot forever seeking some damsel in distress.

That sword was never unsheathed against a villain. But to Chesterton it was a constant, secret source of intense satisfaction. It pricked his imagination. It linked his spirit with Arthur, Siegfried, D'Artagnan and all the gallants of Graustark. It was his challenge to boredom. And when he swung out for a London stroll, every face he met, every corner he turned, was potential adventure. All because, with his hand on that hidden hilt, he swam with expectation.

What more exciting frame of mind can you bring to your listening than this? What more intriguing fancy could there be than to rename your radio dial "Excalibur" and with it storm the exciting realms of new knowledge that lie in wait around each quarter-turn—each quarter-hour?

There's buried brain-treasure in the columns on these pages, and some selective snooping will prove to you that radio has its swing sessions for the mind as well as for the brass and drums. You can unearth the treasures and join the progressive party with a quick peek at the programs and a flick of the wrist. And you'll discover that tempos in the head out-rhythm tempos for the feet and build a lasting basis for effective living—the real roots of personal happiness and success.

Forward focus of attention can be set in day-dreams or in tricks played on yourself, but curiosity about things as they are is the greatest basis for stimulation of ideas lurking in corners of the mind. Let the freshness of the warming season imbue your spirit with wonderment; feel the strength of ideas coursing through channels dredged of mental silt. There's joy finding your own fields for thought. Unsheath your curiosity and let listening to learn put new pep in the passing hours.

Psychologist Reports "Adventures in Science"

"Mental Elasticity May Extend Mental Longevity," says Prof. Miles Thursday, 4-4:15 p.m., CBS.

Prof. Walter R. Miles of the Yale University Institute of Human Relations turns the spotlight of science on the psychological roots of human behavior and ability when he faces the genial inquisition of Watson Davis on the CBS "Adventures in Science" program Thursday afternoon.

Following are some of the interesting questions which he may be expected to answer:

How seriously do declining years affect one's capacity to live effectively? How can we combat the slump in effectiveness caused by age? How can the apparent superiority of youth in certain fields of physical and mental endeavor be combatted by older persons? Was Longfellow right when he wrote—

*Whatever poet, orator, or sage
May say of it, old age is still old age.*

Prof. Miles gives a clew to his probable answers when he says: "Psychological age exacts its tax year by year as the individual grows older; but psychological age adds to the personal capital stock of experience and bonds of association as real assets to be drawn upon." And—"Through appropriate training and practise, continued mental elasticity and organized effective control, may extend mental longevity."

These "adventures" are keen stuff. Don't miss this midweek treat.

"World Is Yours" Tells Romance of Silver

Sunday, 4:30-5 p.m., NBC-Red.

Nature's bounties are the subject of the Smithsonian Institution's "World Is Yours" program Sunday.

"Silver Through the Centuries" will recount the sometimes glittering, sometimes tarnished story of man's mad search for the precious metal. You'll hear the enthralling history of its discovery in ancient times—its role as ransom for kings and raiment for queens—how it revolutionized the art of the ancients—how today it still molds the monetary policies and business hopes of many nations.

You'll enjoy this dramatic story of what silver has meant to man.

Two Speakers Defend Government Monopolies

Saturday, 2:30-3 p.m., NBC-Red.

Congressman Henry G. Teigan (Farm.-Lab., Minn.) and Economic Analyst Irving Brant will team up in support of government monopolies before the Peoples' Lobby, a Washington discussion group, this Saturday.

Airtheme for Rep. Teigan, a supporter of the recently defeated reorganization bill, is "Government Monopolies Are Essential."

Brant, author of "Storm Over the Constitution," "Dollars and Sense," and contributor to leading popular, professional and scientific publications, will contend that "Government Monopolies Are Constitutional."

It's a toss-up whether your thoughts on this vital, much-mooted subject will be clarified or more confused by the deliberations of these speakers. Impartial consideration of their viewpoints may be safely recommended.

Human Relations Forum Dissects "The Family"

Monday, 2:30-3 p.m., CBS.

Youth locks horns with the problems of effective living each Monday on Columbia's Human Relations Forum, speaks with an intellectual clarity and a temperate conviction that augurs well for radio's reversal of the old adage concerning the proper conduct of adolescents: "Boys and girls are heard but not seen."

The keen, thoughtful group of high-school students who forge this weekly challenge to mental complacency could give disrespectful odds to many an elder's discussion of contemporary-living problems.

Adults who can take a midday jolt will enjoy a dual satisfaction from listening to learn—the satisfaction of intellectual give-and-take with the forum group, and the satisfaction of ear-witnessing a frontal attack on social problems as such.

There is no prattle about panaceas—no easy evasion of issues or responsibilities. There is a forthright eagerness to recognize the many-sidedness of conflicts in society today—a dogged willingness to come to terms with facts.

Here is the open mind personified. Here is democracy at work.

This week's discussion revolves about the family—a fundamental institution somehow crumbling before its apparent failure to provide the individual with the satisfactions and the opportunities for self-expression and development demanded by the faster, freer, richer life of today.

For an enlightening tour behind youth's thin mask of rhythm and recklessness, join these youngsters this Monday. They are thinking enthusiasts—the "living edge" of their generation.

Must the institution that has forged civilization face some remodeling to fit the moderns' demands? Will some generation soon find that the ties of marriage and the discipline of the family bind too closely the spirits demanding expression? Will one of the radical experiments of past and present be our way out? The sharp youngsters of the Forum may be expected to speak clearly about the family.

Design for Listening

Theme of the Week:

Some Keys to More Effective Living

Life refuses to run in little black lines on neat pages. It bends and twists and gets into ugly snarls—and the effective individual bends and twists with it. All the pat phrases of saint, philosopher or sage cannot reverse this order of things—so the best keys to effective living are fashioned of rubber, mental rubber.

The effective person recognizes life for what it is, a changing thing, a never-ending experiment in adjustment. He looks facts in the face—throws away the rose-colored glasses of prejudice. He enjoys his dreams, but knows they are pleasant furniture for the imagination only—decoration, not foundations for effective living. He finds humor in the harshest reverse and in the greatest success alike. He is mentally elastic. He enjoys the struggle to understand.

For him, and for all who can thrill to the task of being effective—happy—some interesting locksmiths display their wares this week. You'll find them listed after the asterisks (*) in the Recommended Programs.

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

—Gene Lester

Caught in a moment of gaiety as she dashes for a tennis game, Claire Trevor of Tuesday night's "Big Town" is one of radio's most popular stars, was fourteenth in Radio Guide's Poll for the air's best actress

EITHER romancings: Tyrone Power, who signs off Woodbury after June 26 until October, has learned that his Janet Gaynor situation is much improved by dancing frequently with her to Harry Owen's smooth Hawaiian rhythm—and who wouldn't? . . . And Martha Raye, who may make a picture opposite Joe E. Brown in "The Gladiator," still finds her Dr. Howell Wiggins love in bloom . . . to say nothing of Horace MacMahon, "Charley" in the original New York production of "Three Men on a Horse," who more recently has been a tough guy in radio's "Big Town" dramas, who this past week has announced his betrothal to Louise Campbell, motion-picture actress.

At the dinner on April 10, at which Bob Hope was dubiously honored as one of America's ten leading crooners (because gals bought copies of "Thanks for the Memory" after he sang it with Shirley Ross in "The Big Broadcast"), other news developed, to wit: Edgar Bergen had the lovely Rita Johnson on his arm, and George Sidney, who used to squire Rita, was elsewhere engaged with Mitzi Green. Also, Ken Murray, a partner in skulduggery with Bergen, amazed all by appearing with one beautiful brunet, Mary Brian, now returned from the East, and whom all the smart boys had chalked off as a washed-up affair as far as Murray rated.

The Bennys and the Ameches, two of the sweller radio families, are palsy-walsies these days. Last week they vacationed together at Palm Springs. Which reminds me: Andy Devine, carrying a shotgun loaded with powder-puffs, is looking for Ranchman Robert Taylor. It seems that when Taylor guested on the Benny show, Devine's act was cut out for want of time. So, on Sunday, April 10, when Jack became "Robert Benny," portraying "A Yank at Oxford," the dramatic sketch was rather long, so Andy's act was cut out of the show again. Andy no longer has any use for Metro's ace heart-palpitation . . . Aside from that, the Benny program news of the week brings to light a letter from J. B. of Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, who thinks that it was I who complained at Don Wilson's phony laugh. No, sir, J. B., I never kicked. It may be phony, but I like it.

Frank Parker, if it breaks him, is going to keep thin. Upon arriving at Hollywood, Frank first set out to organize a radio soft-ball team. Then his efficient secretary, in the East, shipped him his badminton net and rackets and his bicycle—air express—for which Frank had to fork over a matter of $78 charges.

Gracie Allen and George Burns have just signed a new contract with Chesterfield starting October 7 with a neat increase in salary. And the pair, about to start on a new Paramount film, "The Gracie Allen Murder Mystery," are about to dig up that long-dormant Gracie Allen's brother gag. Gracie's real brother in San Francisco is a respectable, solid citizen, a book-keeper. He hates actors and the stage. But in the next B&A picture HE is to be a character—not in person, understand, but nevertheless in the story. So what? So Paramount had to write a perfectly legal letter to him asking him for permission to REFER to him in the picture.

The bazooka is a tramp! Bob Burns last week received a letter from Jeff Davis inviting him to the thirtieth annual hoboes' convention in Altoona, Pennsylvania. Now Bob doesn't know whether to accept the invitation as a compliment or a slam.

"Oh Yeah" Oswald (Tony Labriola) now is the proprietor of a beauty parlor in Hollywood. He opened it on Monday, April 18, with considerable flair and the helpful presence of Starlets Nan Grey and Jean Rogers of radio's "Those We Love," and Dixie Dunbar, Margaret Lindsay, Mary Brodel, Beverly Roberts and Diana Gibson. Before opening the shoppe, Tony was observed practising haircuts at home on the craniums of his immediate friends.

"One Man's Family" is going to be a very healthy one. Barton (Clifford) Yarborough has organized an athletic association among fellow members of the cast. Every day they spend an hour at the gymnasium . . . So far, only Mike (Paul) Raffetto has dropped out of the health-seekers society.

Elephants DO FORGET. Claude Stroud is the proof. About thirteen years ago, in Texas, Claude served as "water-boy" to Ruth, an elephant with the Robinson circus. But by "accident" he served Ruth one day with a pail of gasoline. Ruth didn't like it . . . Last week Claude was called upon to pose publicity pictures with an elephant of the Barnes-Sells-Floto Circus. Noting the animal, he turned pale. It was Ruth. But she didn't crush him to death. She had forgotten . . . or else she mistook him for his twin, Clarence . . . And speaking of Clarence, that gentleman finally has become single again. Just a matter of $10,000 settlement and $60 a week for his two children.

Sad as I am to relate the fact, "Do You Want to Be An Actor?" has become a game on the market as well as a radio program. Now no one will be safe. Every time you enter a parlor, you're apt to be drafted into a dramatic role of some kind . . . but all the world's a stage.

Imagine Warner Brothers' surprise when they told John Payne, who is to take the star role in "Valley of the Moon," the story of a bandleader at Hollywood's Coconut Grove, to bring his wardrobe to the lot. He asked, "All eighty-five suits?" They almost fainted. It seems that Payne's wardrobe outnumbers not only that of Dick Powell, who was considered for the part, but also that of Rudy Vallee, who is reported to have desired the role very much—but didn't get it.

Your Screenscooper, George McCall, has been renewed for another thirteen weeks, despite the story prematurely released by the Daily Variety that McCall's option had been dropped. The story, those in the know decree, is alleged to have been generated in Hollywood by a former superior of McCall's and his right-hand man's who "couldn't take" the success that McCall has attained.

What did Al Jolson, as mayor of Encino, Calif., do to bring down the wrath of certain races on his head—and what is the lowdown on the charges hurled? See "Hollywood Showdown" next week for the answer.

Although Parkyakarkus seems to be taking this low one sitting down, tennis nevertheless is his favorite game. Heard on the Al Jolson Show over CBS every Tuesday night, Parky in real life is Harry Einstein

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

ARE announcers an important part of a radio program? That is the question on hand.

Several weeks ago you read a paragraph in this department concerning Announcer Phil Stewart's dismissal from the Wayne King program. As expected, since that item appeared, letters of protest have literally poured in, and now, more than ever, I am convinced that announcers are definitely an important part of a radio show. Here are a couple of examples which prove this point:

"I have—years ago—promised myself I would buy no article advertised unless the announcer mentioned his name clearly. I have been very loyal to my favorites, and always buy their products. Among them are Mr. Howard Clancy, Mr. Phil Stewart, Mr. Ford Bond, Mr. Charles Lyon. I had missed Mr. Stewart on his programs, and was ready to write inquiring about him, when my RADIO GUIDE came in and I read your article concerning his trouble. I regret it so much. Since his dishonorable dismissal I will buy no more 'Lady Esther' toilet preparations, and I hope many other listeners will feel as I do. Hope all will be loyal to Mr. Phil Stewart . . . he has my very best wishes."

"Will you please count two of us (Mother and me) as loyal criers for Phil Stewart's return. Some sponsors haven't yet learned that the announcer can make or break a program. There's many a series of programs we've listened to just because we liked the announcer, and again we've skipped a series because we didn't like him. The announcer deserves full credit for all he does and his name is just as important as those of the stars."

George Jessel will no doubt be interested to learn for the first time that his sponsors are planning to move their Sunday program from the Mutual network to CBS on or about July 10. You're welcome, George.

The Mutual network seems to be the proving-ground for radio programs. After Kay Kyser clicked big with the listeners he was graduated to NBC. Kay's tobacco sponsor is now testing a new show over the Mutual net, featuring Buddy Clark and Frank Novak's orchestra. If this show is a hit it undoubtedly will also go over to either NBC or CBS.

"Fibber McGee and Company" will fold their tent some time in June and take a summer vacation. Their sponsor is looking around for a new show to pinch-hit for them in the interim. According to present plans, after a thirteen-week rest, the program will be resumed from Hollywood, and it is hoped that Mollie will be well enough to rejoin the cast at that time.

When Charles Ruggles, the movie comic, appeared on the Al Jolson program several Tuesday nights ago, you may recall he made a remark about Charlie McCarthy. That, my friends, was the last time Charlie's name was mentioned over CBS, and you're not likely to hear it again over that network. CBS will not permit any further reference to Mr. Bergen's bread and butter, and, strange as it may seem, the ruling was put through at the request of the advertising agency that handles the coffee program.

Kate Smith will have cause for celebration on May 1. That day will mark Kate's eighth anniversary in radio and it is also the day that her announcer, Andre Baruch, takes a walk down the aisle with Beatrice Wain to say "I do." The couple met while Bea was a member of the chorus that appeared on Kate's program.

Andre's running off to get married has already started a flow of applicants who want to take over his part of the apartment which he shared with his brother announcers. Ralph

Toast of all jitterbugs is blond Martha Tilton. Martha's the vivacious young miss who does all the swing singing with Bennie Goodman's band heard over CBS every Tuesday night at 9:30 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time

Edwards and Mel Adams. Other announcers would like to move in with the boys, but Edwards and Adams have decided to keep their apartment to themselves so that they can invite their respective mothers to pay them a visit. Edwards' mother lives in Oakland, California, and has never been to New York, which makes him quite certain the trip would give her a big thrill.

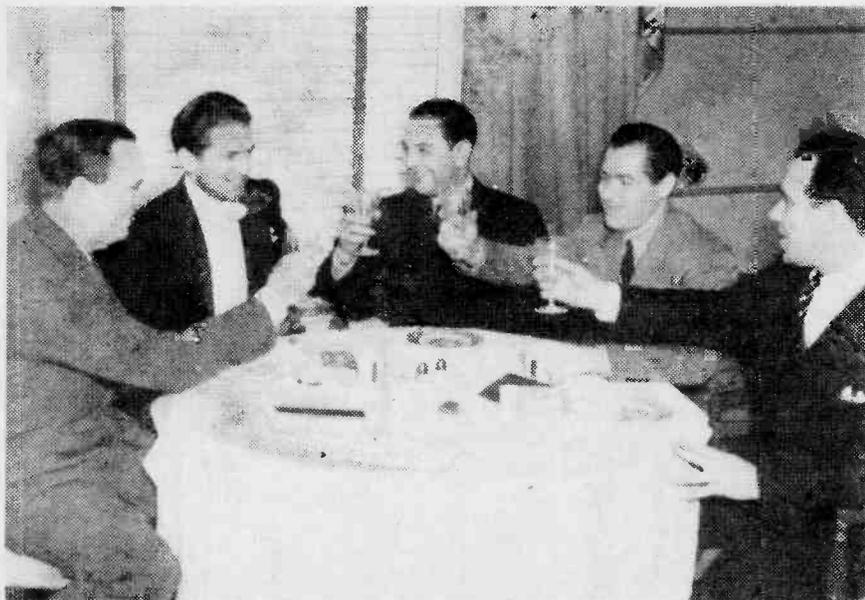

Getting back to our friend, Kate Smith, you may recall that a few columns ago I mentioned the boys on her program were kicking themselves for not having bet on the horse named "Kate Smith" the last time it ran, because it won and paid nice odds. Well, this same animal ran again, and won again, on Wednesday, April 6, paying $8.30 for $2. When I sat in at the rehearsal the next day I couldn't understand why everyone felt so very happy until I was informed that they had all bet on the horse and cleaned up.

Before going over to Kate's rehearsal, I stopped off at the main CBS studios and sat in during the weekly Thursday p.m. session of Ray Bloch's Varieties program. In my opinion, the only thing that prevents this show from being more popular is the fact that it isn't heard in the evening. It's light, breezy and amusing. The emcee of the program is a new personality by the name of Red Evans, who has an ingratiating Southern drawl. He writes the material for the show and he's clever. Lend thine ears to this show Thursday . . . you'll enjoy it.

When Phil Baker broadcast his first program from New York upon his return from the Hollywoods, your reporter was among those present in the studio. You'd imagine that a veteran of the theater and a broadcaster for years would be at ease in front of a mike, but it apparently gets the best of Phil. When talking to the studio audience before the program, he paced up and down on the stage until Harry von Zell was forced to cry out, "For heaven's sake, stand still." Phil tried to get even with Harry later by making faces at him while he was reading the sponsor's plug. It's still a mystery to me how Von Zell kept from breaking up. Incidentally, Harry is proving to be quite a comedian himself. His role with Baker and also the many parts he takes on the Fred Allen show convinced me that this announcer could turn comic overnight and be a big hit.

It was a typical blue Monday when I walked over to NBC to inform Irene Wicker that her program had again been selected as the most popular children's program on the airwaves by the readers of RADIO GUIDE. Irene admitted that for some unaccountable reason she had felt blue all day, but that my message made her extremely happy. I even got a big hug for it (if my wife is reading this, I'm only kidding), which will give you an idea

BY THEIR THEMES YOU KNOW THEM

The song is not simply a conventional Tin Pan Alley expression of unreciprocated love, for thirteen years ago Humber was a struggling young musician in love with a society girl. The match crumbled, and the girl married the "other man." But Humber never forgot her and wrote the song with her in mind.

"Rhapsody in Blue" has been Whiteman's theme since 1924, when he made the song famous and the song made him famous. It was written by the late George Gershwin within a period of three weeks and expressly for Whiteman, who had determined to stake his reputation and his small fortune on a jazz concert at snooty Carnegie Hall. The song made Whiteman the "King of Jazz" and Gershwin the prince of composers.

"Rhapsody in Blue" and several other theme songs have been in a weird legal tangle and the results have been tragic in many cases, and downright funny in others. Ray Noble wrote "The Very Thought of You" for his theme song, but was unable to use it, and here's why:

THERE is a society called American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, to which song-writers belong. Its job is to protect their interests. However, about twenty-five percent of popular music is owned by three or four big publishing houses, and they in turn are owned by Warner Brothers. Warner Brothers realized several years ago that radio could wreck movie songs, simply because radio could play a song to death before a movie could be produced. That Bei Mir thing is a classic example.

So Warner Brothers withdrew its publishing houses from the society and began charging fat fees for the privilege of using Warner songs. The radio stations kicked about the fees, contending they were too high, and when the publishers stuck by their guns the stations banned Warner music.

"Rhapsody in Blue" was a Warner song, so Whiteman had to shift his theme to "Glorious Girl." Noble couldn't even play the theme he had written himself. Fred Allen replaced "Smiles" with "Smile, Darn You Smile."

The skirmish raged for years, but now a truce has been declared and the publishing houses that withdrew from the society have come back.

Phil Baker is one of the fastest theme-song writers in the business. He did "Rolling Along" in a couple of days before he went on the Gulf program.

Jack Meakin is one of NBC's most prolific theme-writers and has composed more than 50 in the last few years. His "My Life Begins Tonight" introduces his Saturday transcontinental Music by Meakin and his "Fan Fare" sets the mood for the madcap Bughouse Rhythm.

One of the best-known arrangers in radio is B. A. Rolfe, who handles the music for Ripley's "Believe It or Not." With a new musical score needed for each program, Rolfe has a real problem.

Josef Bonime is composer of the bugle call which announces that "Death Valley Days" is on the air.

Bonime searched through all available records for the authentic bugle call used in the days of covered wagons when a bugler, or a relay of buglers, summoned the teamsters to begin the day's march. But he couldn't find any. There were plenty of songs—such as "Oh Suzanna," but no bugle calls.

"So I wrote one," he said; "but instead of writing something like the familiar bugle calls of army camps I put a little melody into it as a better introduction to the program."

Leo de Mers, NBC bugler, blows the call and creates a faraway echo effect by draping his coat over a music stand and directing the notes toward the muffling-folds.

Jack Benny's J-E-L-L-O introduction is an original, but the Metropolitan Auditions borrowed Wagner's March from Tannhauser for a theme.

The "Happy Days" theme of Lucky Strike was another natural, because the program was designed to be happy and gay and the idea was to cheer up people.

Many radio fans, weary of constant plugs during commercials, have suggested that theme songs are sufficient advertising for any product and even believe a sponsor could get his product across simply by a theme song.

It wouldn't work that easily. The nearest thing that has ever come to a hand-in-hand association between a product and a song came with "The Perfect Song." Listeners really associated the song with the product the program plugged. But in spite of the success of the theme, the public actually associated the song more with Amos 'n' Andy than with their product.

So when Amos 'n' Andy switched over to the Campbell Soup program they took along the song as their theme. Without the two comedians the song is no great value to any sponsor, because the minute the public hears it Amos 'n' Andy come to mind.

That's true of most theme songs. Of course, there are exceptions. "Happy Days" is one. You think of the product and not of the band that is playing it.

But when you hear that moon-and-mountain thing you naturally think of Sister Katie, no matter what product she is trying to sell you. The songs naturally become associated with the persons who sing them or play them.

YOU notice how Eddie Cantor keeps slipping in his theme—"We Want Cantor"—as often as possible. Eddie knows the value of that theme to him. "The Mayor of Texaco Town" was a better theme for his sponsor when he was peddling good-will for that company than his own theme song, but Eddie wasn't going to let the public forget his song.

It's his luck, he believes. Many years ago when he was sweating and missing meals on New York's East Side and struggling to be an actor, Eddie often would sing for the settlement boys.

If he didn't come out on the dot, the boys would begin stomping their feet and chanting "We want Can-tor—we want Can-tor." It was sung in that queer up-down melody.

You've probably heard the same chant at a football game—"We want a touchdown." Or a baseball game—"We want a home run." You can keep time with pop bottles.

The theme is a standby for old-time rag-time tunes—four notes in the opening bars. It's a back-and-forth plunking of the bass, one of the simplest melodies of all times.

The song is a part of the pop-eyed Eddie and he first heard it among his East Side pals.

But as a matter of amazing fact, the theme was written by Beethoven! You can find it in the great credo chorus of "Missa Solemnis."

JEANETTE MacDONALD AND DON AMECHE WIN DRAMA POLL HONORS

VOTERS NAME HOLLYWOOD STARS BEST IN STAR OF STARS POLL

IN PLAY-ACTING and day-dreaming, humans release emotions beyond expression in every-day life. They are critical of professional play-actors. Professionals in turn esteem the admiration of amateurs over the plaudits of critics because amateurs are always sincere.

Thus it is an especially auspicious honor that falls this week on Don Ameche, master of ceremonies of the Chase and Sanborn Hour on NBC-Red, and Jeanette MacDonald, star of the recently completed Vick's Open House series on CBS. America's listeners have named them the air's finest actor and actress.

Ameche triumphed among the actors without serious competition, with more than three times the votes accorded his nearest rival, Nelson Eddy, who in turn won almost three times as many votes as Lester Tremayne, third-place winner.

Miss MacDonald's victory among the actresses was not so spectacular, but she had a sizeable margin of votes over Barbara Luddy, Tremayne's "First Nighter" co-star.

It is interesting to note that of the top stars listed below, thirteen broadcast from Hollywood, seven from Chicago and six from New York. Thirteen are heard on the NBC-Red network, ten on CBS and seven on NBC-Blue. (Figures do not jibe exactly because some stars are not heard regularly on any network, some are heard on more than one.)

This week listeners will vote to elect the most popular comedian or comedy program on the air. The ballot for this election is on the inside front cover of this week's issue. The ballot must be mailed before Saturday midnight, April 30. It is not good in any other election, and no other ballots may be used in this one. Vote—and don't forget the closing hour—midnight, Saturday, April 30!

Turn to the inside front cover for the ballot for comedians!

Note Program Changes

THIS week readers will notice in RADIO GUIDE's program section on pages 27 through 43 an unusual number of program schedule changes. This results from broadcasting revisions which accompany the adoption of Daylight Saving Time in many parts of the country. Next week further changes made after Daylight Time takes effect will be included. If you fail to find some of your favorites after this shuffling of stars, don't assume they have left the air. RADIO GUIDE's completely revised, up-to-the-minute Instant Program Locator, listing stars, program titles and sponsors in an alphabetical three-way index will appear in the issue for the week ending May 14.

A further note: Time shown in stories in this issue is Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

On Short Waves
Edited by Chas. A. Morrison

President, International DX'ers Alliance

Times indicated on this page are for Eastern Daylight Saving Time. For EST and CDT subtract 1 hour; for CST, 2 hours; for MST, 3 hours; for PST, 4 hours

LISTENERS to the NBC-Blue network will hear two important short-wave pick-ups from London this week, namely, the speech of Anthony Eden, former British foreign secretary, at the banquet of the Society of St. George, on Tuesday, April 26, at 3:35 p.m. EDT, and the address of United States Ambassador to Great Britain, Joseph P. Kennedy, when he responds to the toast, "Anglo-American Trade," at the seventy-eighth annual dinner of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce in London, on Thursday, April 28, at 5 p.m. EDT.

English newscasts from Japan, are radiated daily over JZJ (11.8) of Tokyo, as follows: to the Pacific Coast of North America at 1:35 a.m. EDT; to the eastern parts of North America at 8:05 a.m. and at 7:05 p.m., and to Australasia at 9:55 a.m. EDT.

The new 25,000-watt French colonial short-wave transmitter at Es-sarts-le-Roi, near Paris, France, which radiated initial tests last November, adopted an official schedule on April 1. This new station, which, with the Pontoise transmitters, is now using the call "Paris Mondial," in place of the former "Radio Coloniale," broadcasts daily as follows: 2 to 5 a.m. EDT to eastern Mediterranean and north Africa, on 9.57 mgs, in conjunction with TPA3 (11.885), which at the same time is directed to Africa, the Near East, and Australasia; 9:30 to 11 a.m. EDT to Indo-China, on 17.78 mgs, in conjunction with TPA2 (15.243), which commences this transmission at 6 a.m. EDT; 11:15 a.m. to 6 p.m. EDT to the eastern Mediterranean and north Africa, on 9.57 mgs, in conjunction with TPA3 (11.885), which transmits to eastern and western Africa, and South America; 7 to 9:15 p.m. EDT to South America, on 15.13 mgs, in conjunction with TPA4 (11.713), which broadcasts to eastern North, and Central America, and northern South America, and from 9:30 p.m. to 12 midnight EDT, to North America, in conjunction with TPA4 (11.713), which also directs part of its beam for this period to western Central America. This latter transmission period is being received in the United States with excellent signal strength. The news in English is read at 11 p.m. EDT.

Herbert Friedman of Montreal, Canada, writes that the complete list of official calls and frequencies that have been assigned the new station, are as follows: TPB1 (21.49), TPB2 (17.78), TPB3 (17.765), TPB4 (15.295), TPB5 (15.24), TPB6 (15.13), TPB7 (11.885), TPB8 (11.845), TPB9 (11.72), TPB10 (9.585), TPB11 (9.57), TPB12 (9.55), TPB13 (9.52), TPB14 (6.145), TPB15 (6.09), and TPB16 (6.04).

A little later, and perhaps by the beginning of next year, world transmissions will begin over the new 100,000-watt short-wave transmitters of the French short-wave center.

ELM in Liberia, is reported to be broadcasting daily at 1 and 5 p.m. EDT, on a frequency of approximately 5 mgs.

SHORT-WAVE SHORTS: XEWX, Mexico City, is being heard irregularly in the evenings on a frequency of 15.16 mgs. . . . EAR, the Loyalist station at Madrid, has been broadcasting on a revised frequency of 9.86 mgs, just below COCM, since April 1. . . . CS2WA (9.65), Lisbon, Portugal, is now broadcasting Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, from 4 to 7 p.m. EDT. . . . RKI, "Radio Center, Moscow," moved to its summer frequency of 15.08 mgs, on April 1, where it is being heard nightly in parallel with RAN (9.6), from 8 to 10.15 p.m. EDT. . . . According to the Universal DX Club, VE9HX (6.13), Halifax, Nova Scotia, may be heard reading short-wave mail on Sundays, at 5:30, and 10:30 p.m. EDT. . . . JZJ (11.8), Tokyo, Japan, is being received with tremendous volume in the eastern part of the United States, on the early transmission from 8 to 8:30 a.m. EDT, during which period there is no interference from COGF, Havana, Cuba, which broadcasts on almost exactly the same channel.

Daventry listeners will hear Leonard Hirsch, leader of the BBC Empire Orchestra, play in Empire programs as a soloist for the first time Wednesday

how good it made her feel. As long as I was in the studio, I accepted the Singing Lady's invitation to watch her work, which is a rare treat for anyone, because few have ever been in the studio during her broadcast. Frankly, I can understand why her program is so popular with the kiddies. It even entertained Big Kid Lewis!

Maxine Gray, Hal Kemp's lovely former vocalist, has my sympathy . . . if that's any consolation to her. Several weeks ago she was hurt in a train wreck when she was traveling with the band. As if that wasn't bad enough, she followed up her injury by contracting the measles, which kept her in the hospital a little longer. She is still wearing a brace due to the accident, so Hal decided to send her out to the Coast to recuperate, and that is why she is not with Kemp on his new "Time to Shine" program.

Judy Starr, who was Rudy Vallee's warbler, is taking Maxine's place during her absence. If you recall, it wasn't so long ago that Judy was in an accident and almost lost her sight. Anyway, get this: About four years ago a band was playing at a college prom in Parkersburg, West Virginia. A girl attending the prom was dared by her companion to get up and sing while the music was playing. She accepted the dare . . . the bandleader complimented her on having such a lovely voice. The gal was Judy Starr, and the bandleader—yes, you guessed it—Hal Kemp!

These gal singers have interesting stories to relate this week. The other night, cute Dolly Dawn, who sings so well with George Hall's orchestra, showed me a theater program. It was dated August, 1926, and was from the Strand Theater, in Brooklyn, New York. Dolly pointed to the name of Carolina Lazzari, Metropolitan Opera star, listed on the program. Miss Lazzari is now Dolly's voice teacher and also has Frank Parker, Joan Edwards and many other radio names as her pupils. Two weeks ago, Miss Dawn was singing at this same Strand Theater, which is now a vaudeville and movie house. Miss Lazzari visited Miss Dawn in her dressing-room, which was the same one she occupied when playing at that theater twelve years ago. It's a small world.

If Edgar Bergen decides to get a playmate for Charlie McCarthy, do you think he will be made of HOLLYWOOD? I made that up myself, honestly—or shouldn't I brag about it?

I must tell you this one; it's too good to keep. The gal that takes care of our little son had never seen a radio broadcast, so I got her tickets for the late broadcast of Eddie Cantor's program, for listeners on the West Coast. It was his first program in the new series for Camel, and if you heard the show you may recall Eddie admonished a woman in the first row for falling asleep. Our gal listened in at home to the earlier show, broadcast for listeners in the East and Midwest. When I came in for breakfast the next morning, she excitedly told me she had a good story for my column—and this is it. "You remember when Eddie Cantor told the woman not to sleep during the broadcast," said she, "Well, she really wasn't asleep. He said the same thing during the late broadcast!" I'm still laughing.

Here's something amusing. Paul Douglas gave up his duties on the musical "Saturday Night Swing Club" because it conflicted with his new job as sports broadcaster, and his successor on the swing session is Ted Husling, who made his reputation as a sports spieler.

Two Irish Colleens

BRAVERY PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART FOR BILLIE AND ALLIE FLANNERY

BY GEORGE MARSHALL

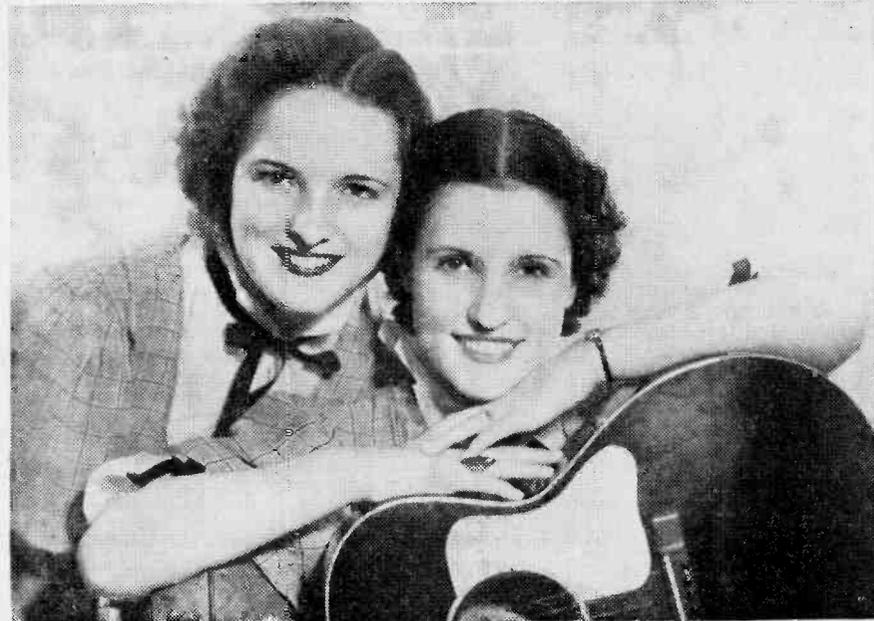

TO GET anywhere, you have to have what it takes. Everyone knows that. But that "what it takes" is a pretty uncertain quality—or quantity, because sometimes "it takes" a lot more than you'd expect. Just examine the case of the Flannery sisters, for instance. "The Two Irish Colleens," now favorites of the popular WJJD Suppertime Frolic, had charm, personality and unusual talent—but, strangely enough, none of these was as important to them as bravery when it came to launching a radio career!

No, I don't mean the kind of bravery it takes to get up and face a microphone or an audience. Lots of people will argue that requires a great deal of courage, and certainly you can't belittle it. But when they started on their radio career Billie and Allie showed actual physical bravery.

tain-fed river. As they hesitated to determine whether or not the bridge was safe to cross, the supports gave way and a section of the wood structure was washed downstream.

This looked like the final straw, but Allie was insistent. Uncle Mark pleaded with the girls to turn back, but while Billie argued with him, Allie rode her horse right into the river, and began crossing . . . Billie and Uncle Mark followed.

Needless to say, the girls made it on time, and although a bit disheveled, they put on a passable show and managed to get by the crucial period. From there on, the story is one success after another—the National Barn Dance on one network, "American Family" on another, and finally to the popular Suppertime Frolic where they drew as high as 177,000 letters in one week.

The pretty misses hiding behind that guitar are the Flannery sisters, Billie and Allie. You know 'em better as "The Two Irish Colleens" of the Suppertime Frolic

The girls had been trying for months to get on radio, with a small station in northern Wisconsin as their immediate goal. Finally word came from the North Woods that their audition had been successful, and they were to appear on the next Wednesday afternoon for their first broadcast!

Preparations for the epoch-event started as early as Sunday, when Billie and Allie began entertaining the lumberjacks in "Uncle Mark's" camp with their proposed routine. The act went over so well that the lumbermen demanded encore after encore. And the girls were only too glad for the chance to rehearse before an audience. By Tuesday night both the men and the girls knew the program to perfection.

LA TE that evening a cloudburst set off a heavy downpour that reached flood proportions by morning. The sisters were warned against leaving in the heavy rain but they were determined—the chance might never come again! Getting an automobile through the woodland trails was out of the question, as the roads were bogged with rain. So the two girls, both expert riders, started out on horseback for town, eighteen miles away.

Well protected against the rain, Billie and Allie, accompanied by Uncle Mark, had little difficulty until they reached the wooden structure bridging the swirling waters of the moun-

The popular young "Irish Colleens" were born and educated at Crandon, Wisconsin, in the heart of the North Woods, midst the falling of pine trees and calls of "mess."

The Flannery sisters' career, however, was not all a life of lumbercamps followed by microphone appearances. After a year of radio training, Billie and Allie were signed for a nationwide tour of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Circuit, and later for a similar tour of the Loew's with Gene Autry.

When discussing their brief but eventful past, both Billie and Allie confess that the highlight of their career came when they were asked to entertain a group of shell-shocked war veterans at St. Cloud, Minnesota.

FORMING an integral part of one of the most popular hillbilly combinations on the air, the Flannery sisters broadcast at 6 p.m. CDT every night except Sunday over WJJD along with the act voted the outstanding hillbilly show, The Cumberland Ridge Runners . . . Karl Davis, Hartford Taylor, Doc Hopkins and Mert Minnick—assisted by such prominent entertainers as twelve-year-old Shelby Jean Davis, Esther and Buster Blossom, Uncle Ervin Viktor, and several others. But with two hours of entertainment nightly by the large cast, requests continue to pour in for the popular "Two Irish Colleens," Billie and Allie!

Censors are Mugs

With rare exceptions, censors are mugs. They may begin as sweet-minded and public-spirited citizens, but the virus of "Thou shalt not" turns them sour and intolerant.

Broadcasting does not want and does not need censors. Several days ago, William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, said as much. He is not the sort of man to cry wolf without reason. He has discerned trends and policies and built his hunches into a great broadcasting service. Today his hunch is that censorship is dangerously close.

How would broadcasting be censored? By a government board, of course. Politicians would appoint good Democrats or good Republicans. These appointees would determine what American ears might hear. Can you imagine what would happen to our programs? Or to our free speech? Free speech, within the limits of decency, is the foundation of democracy. Placing it in the hands of the best men in America might bring no menace to our good listening today, but tomorrow other men will wield those powers, and day after tomorrow still others. What then?

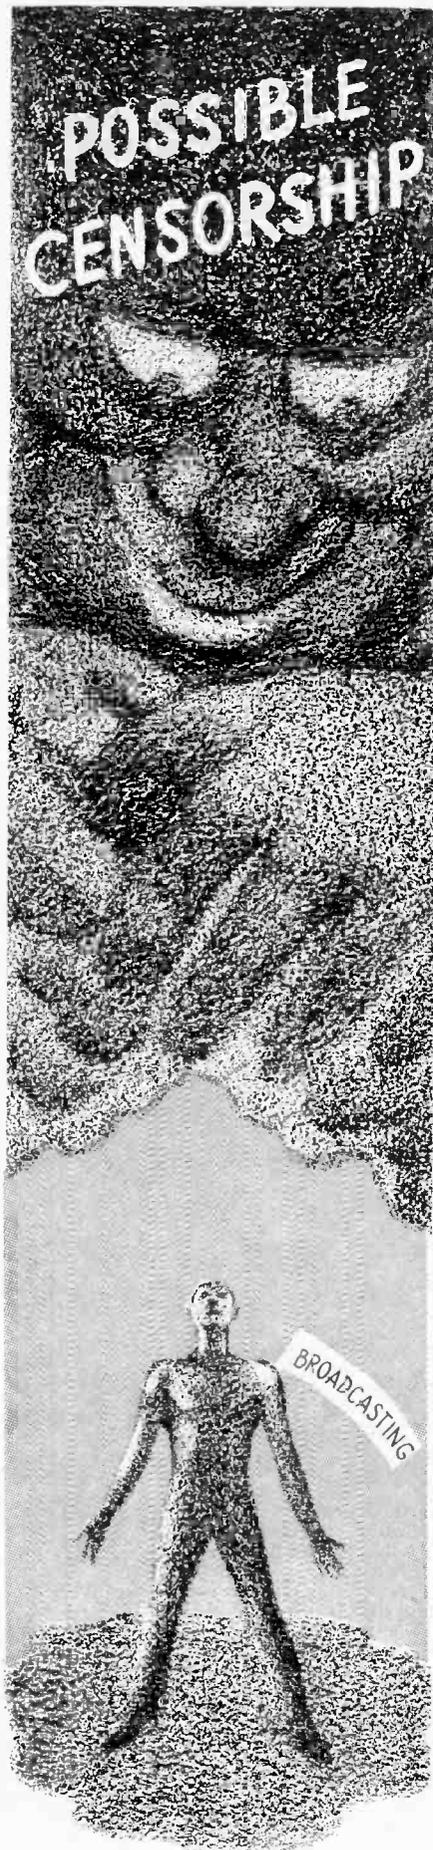

Censorship could not help. In the first place, broadcasting does not need it. In the second, growth comes only when men say "Let's try this"; never when they say "Don't."

"Don'titis" is a serious disease. Once it touches radio, the listener will suffer because inevitably his programs will be less original, less exciting, and much less honest.

Someone to Instruct

When William Lemke was his candidate, Father Coughlin promised to leave politics alone if he did not receive 9,000,000 votes. Lemke polled less than ten percent of that figure.

But today Father Coughlin is again in politics. He is credited with having done much to defeat President Roosevelt's reorganization plan in Congress. When a man makes a public promise and then breaks it, he must have good reason for his action.

RADIO GUIDE wired Father Coughlin asking if he had made such a statement, or if he wanted to make an explanation of his re-entry to the political scene.

His answer:

"The statement that you refer to was made by me at the close of the election of 1936. I returned to the air at the request of my many faithful followers, who felt that they were in need of someone to instruct them on national affairs."

Broadcasting, with Father Coughlin helping, gave Franklin Roosevelt his seat in the White House in 1932. We wonder if radio, with Father Coughlin helping, will unseat the same gentleman in 1940.

Tribute to the Engineers

Remembering the early days of broadcasting, when we thought we were lucky if we could make out a human voice or the thin wail of a violin through the ominous crackling and popping of our headset, we are delighted to find that critics are coming around to the view that radio nowadays is more than merely adequate for the transmission of music.

Olin Downes, the New York Times' renowned critic, wrote of a recent broadcast of the NBC Symphony that "the brilliant strings had far more resonance and glow than when one was in their presence. The great chords for the brass were smooth and golden." Other critics have made similar observations, and they confirm our own—which is that, thanks to the engineers, the real miracle men of the industry, it's often far more enjoyable to hear a concert by radio than it is to attend one.

Aid of the Party

Arthur Godfrey, the laughing, laughable Barbasol mikeman, has the sensible answer for listeners who find their ears rattled by radio "sales messages." He suggests the simple recourse of turning the dial.

It's the obvious, never-failing expedient.

Grant that the initiative for the improvement of "commercials" should come from studio heads and sponsors, but don't deny the sensitive listener his undeniable privilege of "turning it off" when he finds announcers' vigor and ad-writers' enthusiasms upsetting.

Most of the current woof concerning the bad taste of commercial messages comes from folk who insist on referring to program-reception as "inviting a guest into the home." This attitude consists of nine parts tommyrot, one part short-circuit thinking. The "invitation" is reversed. Listeners are invited—begged—to attend a particular party. The price of admission is the simple acceptance of the host's greeting—a "commercial" greeting to be sure—but if you don't like the party you can leave.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

BLOCKHEAD BEEF

VOL: "So the best musical program was that little 'blockhead's'? I don't believe it! This program is largely conversational. There are fine singers on the program, but they are given much less time than they deserve. I personally am bored with the comedy and have given up the musical entertainment for that reason . . ."—CARL HOVINGTON, Chicago, Ill.

The announcement that the Chase and Sanborn Hour had been voted the air's most popular musical program in the first division of the Star of Stars Poll was titled "Won by a Blockhead," since Charlie McCarthy is best-known of the program's stars.—Ed.

RECOGNITION

RADIO GUIDE: "Evidently some member of your staff does not recognize public figures as easily as one of your readers does . . ."—MAURICE J. MAGNER, Sisterville, W. Va.

Not one but dozens of RADIO GUIDE's readers recognized Public Figures George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania, and Joseph F. Guffey, U. S. Senator, whose pictures were transposed side-by-side in the issue of April 2.—Ed.

EXPLANATION

VOL: "I am enclosing my ballot, and I thought you might be interested to know why I voted Walt Disney my choice for the best actor. As he is not an actor himself, he should be given great credit for his animated creations. His pictures are enjoyed by everyone. What fun would it be to go to a movie if we couldn't see a Walt Disney cartoon? His picture, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was tops . . ."—PHYLLIS PORTER, Newark, N. J.

For news of actors who polled more votes than Animator Disney, see page 15. For news of the men who provided voices for his "seven dwarfs," see an item on page 1.—Ed.

OPEN LETTER

RADIO GUIDE: "Has Miss Ruth Etting really retired from radio? If she has retired, I would appreciate it if you would publish the enclosed letter . . ." "Dear Miss Etting: I want to take this opportunity to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the many pleasant hours I have spent listening to your lovely voice, and for the privilege of seeing you on the screen . . . I hope that your life will be overflowing with health, happiness and the best of luck, and that you may have everything you desire. Again, may I thank you for your excellent performances."—OLIVE HORAN, Montreal, Quebec, Canada.

On Nov. 15, 1937, Ruth Etting announced, "I have made my last public appearance," on Nov. 30, 1937, she was granted a divorce in Chicago, told the press: "I am going to be a free woman in every way." Her plans for the immediate future, she said, included a trip around the world and other pleasures her public life had not allowed her at any time before.—Ed.

EMERY DEUTSCH GOES TO THE DENTIST

EMERY DEUTSCH, like most mortals, must make periodical visits to the dentist. Good teeth mean better health, pleasing appearance. Medical experts say one should consult a dentist at least once, preferably twice, a year. Dr. Samuel N. Rudolph of New York does Emery's work, assisted by Nurse Eleanor Kaye. Deutsch, composer of "Play, Fiddle, Play," "When a Gypsy Makes His Violin Cry," and noted as a Gypsy-tune specialist, recently played at Radio City's Rainbow Grill, is now kept busy with college proms.

MURDER ON THE AIR: A REPORTER'S SOLVING OF A

Jack Johnstone, producer and director of the "Front Page News" sketches, reads introduction to the performance, as he stands before microphone in CBS studios, preparing to rehearse for the regular Saturday night show

Players leave studio to enact drama. Actor Arthur Vinton, as the hold-up man, steps on running-board of taxi, aims pistol at driver. This scene stopped traffic on New York's busy Madison Avenue

Obliging cabbie, carefully forewarned of part he is playing in radio dramatic show, looks genuinely startled as "hold-up man" climbs into cab. In real life, Cabbie John Peterson of Bridgeport was killed by bandit, who obtained total of seventy-five cents

Five years after slaying, Reporter Baum, of the Times-Star, and City Editor Quinlan discuss "Five Years Ago Today" column. Quinlan tells Baum that Peterson's killing is still listed as unsolved

The Times-Star reporter and his city editor, adjourning to a restaurant, are still involved in a discussion of the unsolved murder. Baum is determined to reopen investigation of the case. Their waitress, hovering near by, overhears their conversation

5-YEAR-OLD CRIME IS DRAMATIZED SATURDAY ON CBS

BY SPECIAL arrangement with the sponsor and producer of "Front Page News," CBS dramatic feature, built around real-life adventures of newspapermen who solve mysteries and bring criminals to justice, Radio Guide presents a preview of one of the dramas—one which will be broadcast on Saturday, at 8:30 p.m. EDT, and 7:30 p.m. PST.

Members of the cast of "Front Page News" left a rehearsal to stage this pre-enactment of the crime, were trailed by Radio Guide Photographer Charles P. Seawood as they dramatized the hold-up murder of a taxi-driver in Bridgeport, Connecticut, July 20, 1932, and the story of the discovery and capture of the killer five years later by Reporter Abraham A. Baum, of the Bridgeport Times-Star.

Exclusive Radio Guide Photographs by Charles P. Seawood

Explaining she has heard what was said, waitress tells reporter and city editor a former acquaintance of hers committed the murder. Baum starts private manhunt, tracing his man through army records

Reporter Baum, having discovered his man's whereabouts, telephones city editor that he's getting ready to clean up story

Back in newspaper office, the city editor talks with Baum by telephone, congratulates him on finding suspect in five-year-old mystery murder, makes suggestions as to how story should be handled, prepares to "take it for a ride"

Unarmed and unaccompanied, Baum goes to suspect's hotel room, confronts him, putting right hand in coat pocket to suggest presence of revolver, and flourishing official-looking press card. Frightened man surrenders

Taken to the newspaper office, the suspect, under the impression the reporter is a police detective, signs a confession, admits his guilt in connection with the crime, and closes the book on a puzzling five-year-old mystery slaying

The confession signed and delivered, the reporter who solved the mystery relaxes, explains hoax by which he trapped suspect into confession, and enjoys laugh. Meanwhile presses have begun to hum with news of exploit

AIRWAVES OVER BROADWAY: THE LEGITIMATE

Vandamm Studio

Margot Stevenson, of CBS' "Aunt Jenny" cast, also plays the role of Alice Sycamore in the 1937 Pulitzer prize play, "You Can't Take It With You." She is shown above with Henry Travers in a scene from the play

Gus Gale

In broadcasts of "The Goldbergs," Carrie Weller is "Mrs. Wilberforce." In Broadway's "Our Town," she is woman in the balcony. This play, featuring Frank Craven, is done without scenery, which seems to be the trend this season

Vandamm Studio

Also in "Our Town" is Martha Scott, in white, here talking to Mr. Craven. On the radio she is Connie Davis in "Pepper Young's Family," plays many roles in "Aunt Jenny." Says N. Y. Herald Tribune Critic Richard Watts, Jr.: "Finest of all is a young actress named Martha Scott." "Our Town," produced by Jed Harris, plays at the Henry Miller Theater

IT IS a fact that the Broadway legitimate stage has heretofore ignored radio talent when casting. It is also fact that radio has not been too generous with its presentation of stage luminaries other than in the usual scant guest appearances.

Fact, too, is the realization on the part of drama-lovers that the stage is not the power it once was. This has caused much concern and even appeals to the Federal Government for subsidies.

A recent issue of the "Billboard," theatrical publication, points out that Actors' Equity, labor clearing-house for the stage, for one year issued 1,693 contracts for salaries between $40 and $99; 522 for salaries between $100 and $199; 402 for salaries of $200 and more. All of which are a far cry from the lucrative stipends drawn by actors of the same rank who work in radio and in motion pictures. And below the figure, too, earned by actors working on W. P. A. projects.

This season, however, a weak stage and a strong radio are being more closely interwoven. To the footlights are going more and more of radio's ace star performers. And to the microphone are coming more than the usual quota of Broadway dramas and great personalities.

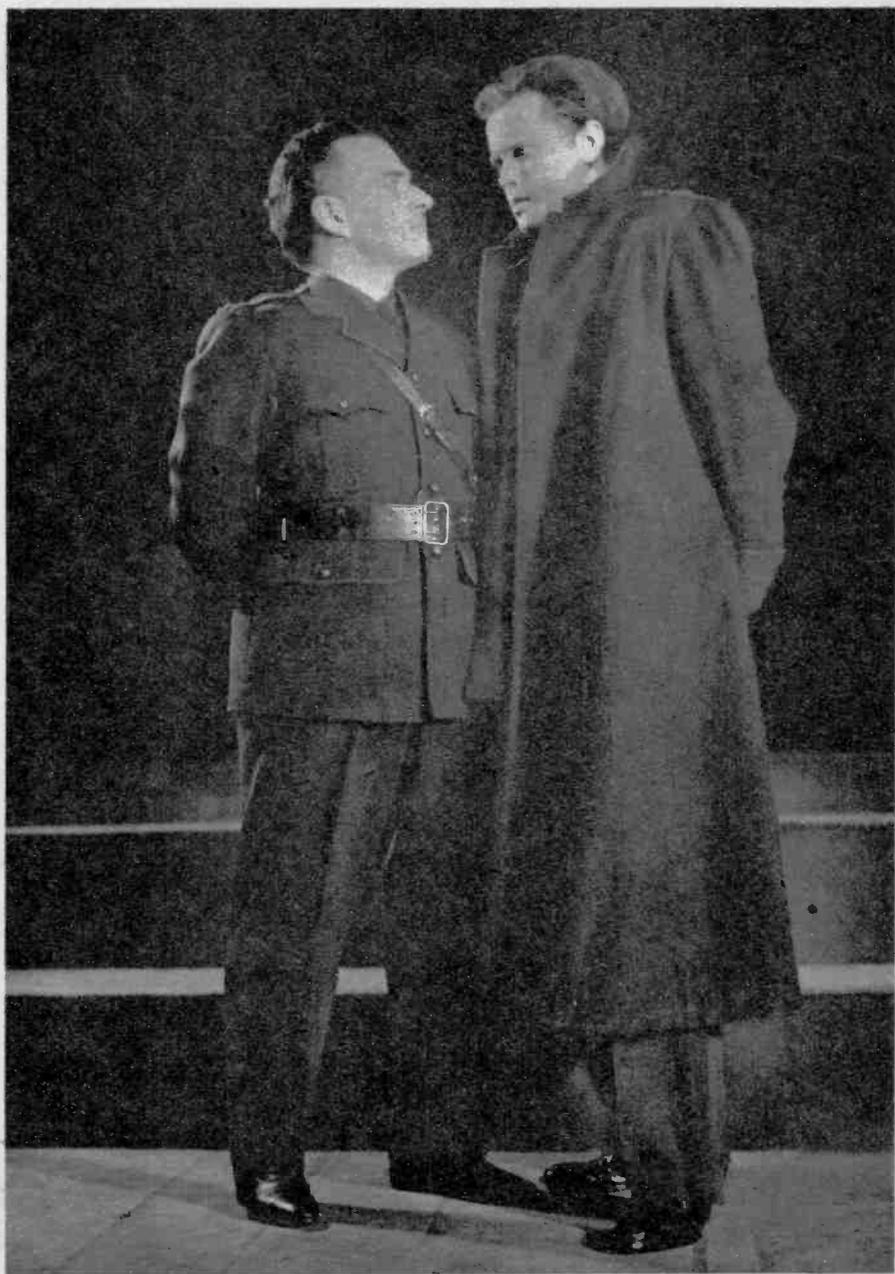

It may mean the happy solution to a perplexing problem.

STAGE LEANS HEAVILY ON RADIO

Lucas & Pritchard

Alice Frost plays Portia in "Julius Caesar" and Rose in "The Shoemakers' Holiday," both running simultaneously on Broadway. In radio, Alice is "Big Sister," is on "Town Hall Tonight," "Johnny Presents," "There Was a Woman," others

Lucas & Pritchard

Martin Gabel, left, plays Cassius in "Julius Caesar" on the stage, plays Dr. Wayne on "Big Sister" and Neil in "Easy Aces" on the air. Orson Welles produces "Julius Caesar," plays Brutus. In radio he's "The Shadow"

George Tobias is "Mike" in "The Goldbergs," "Boris Kolenkov" in "You Can't Take It With You"

Familiar as "Sammy" to "The Goldbergs" audience is Everett Sloane, who's "Charlie" in "All That Glitters"

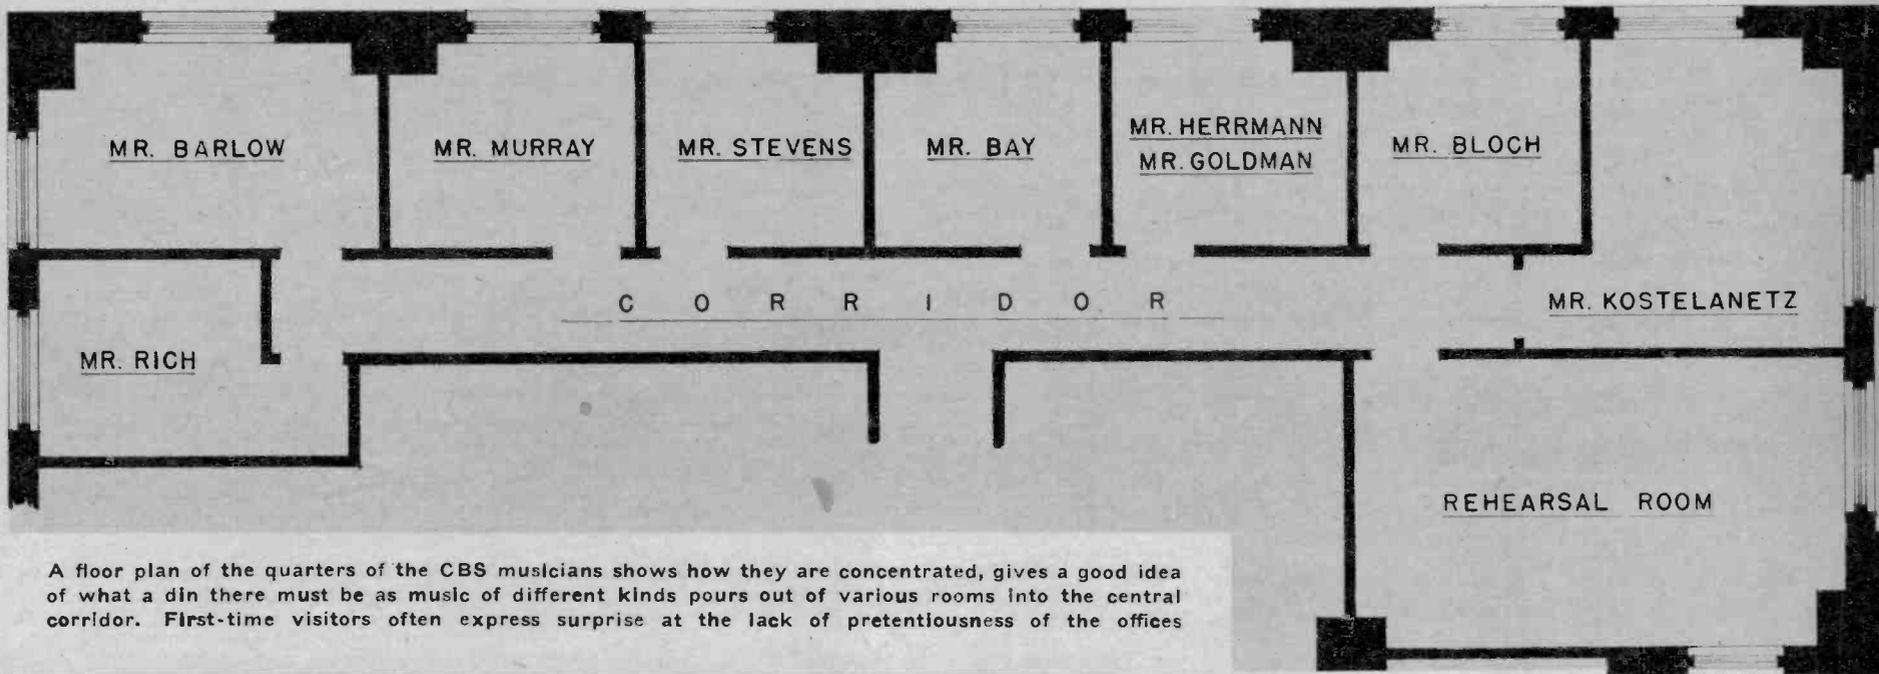

Nancy Kelly, in "Susan & God," works in radio on "March of Time," "Gang Busters," and other shows

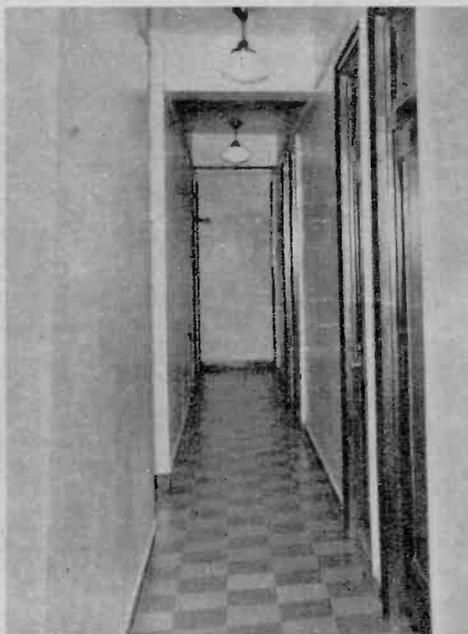

Maurice Seymour

Irene Winston of "Boy Meets Girl," "Having Wonderful Time," "Tovarich" is radio's "Woman in White"

MELODY LANE: HERE SWING AND SYMPHONY

A floor plan of the quarters of the CBS musicians shows how they are concentrated, gives a good idea of what a din there must be as music of different kinds pours out of various rooms into the central corridor. First-time visitors often express surprise at the lack of pretentiousness of the offices

Radio artists, composers and executives troop along this corridor on way to and from the maestros' rooms

Song-pluggers, whose job it is to see that tunes they sell are heard on the air, wait patiently in a reception room for a chance to see the men who make musical programs

TINY offices along a narrow corridor on the sixteenth floor of the Columbia Broadcasting System's building in New York City house some of the busiest and best-known musicians in radio—Andre Kostelanetz, Ray Bloch, Bernard Herrmann, Leon Goldman, Victor Bay, Leith Stevens, Lyn Murray, Howard Barlow and Freddie Rich. Highbrow collides with lowbrow in this crowded little alleyway, classicists rub elbows with swingsters as the great and near-great of music move in and out of the cell-like retreats of Columbia's maestros. A casual visitor hears an inartistic hodge-podge of sound, but order comes out of the chaos, and so far there have been no complaints from the inhabitants of the corridor. In fact, when CBS officials decided recently to move their music-masters into more comfortable quarters they found them none too pleased. They've grown accustomed to their situation, and an indefinable air of happiness hangs over their offices as they plan music for the nation's listeners.

Photographs by CBS, Gus Gale and Charles P. Seawood

Conductor Howard Barlow, who presided for CBS in its premiere symphonic broadcast September 18, 1927, now directs several programs, talks with Hollace Shaw, coloratura soprano, heard on two CBS shows

Lyn Murray (at piano), up-and-coming orchestra leader and choral director, rehearses Baritone Barry Wood and Nan Wynn, "Mistress of Song." Wood, Murray and Miss Wynn co-star in CBS' Sunday evening "Musical Gazette"

MEET AND RUB ELBOWS

Bernard Herrmann, with his partner, Leon Goldman, is responsible for many CBS sustaining programs featuring concert and classical music. Herrmann composes, arranges, conducts, began writing music when he was 13

Victor Bay, brilliant conductor of "Essays in Music," famed CBS Thursday evening broadcast feature, pauses at the door of the cubicle where he arranges music, plans programs which invariably draw praise from critics

In his crowded office, with a small upright piano against the wall, Leith Stevens arranges music, talks to song-pluggers who come in with new tunes, prepares for numerous programs, including the Saturday Night Swing Session

Ray Bloch's office is often crowded with groups of pretty girls, members of choruses he coaches and directs, in addition to his work as an orchestra leader. He is shown here with part of the membership of "Swing Fourteen"

Pretty Doris Rhodes, songstress, discusses with Maestro Freddie Rich, veteran orchestra leader and composer of popular music, the arrangement of a number to be sung by Doris on one of the programs she and Rich present

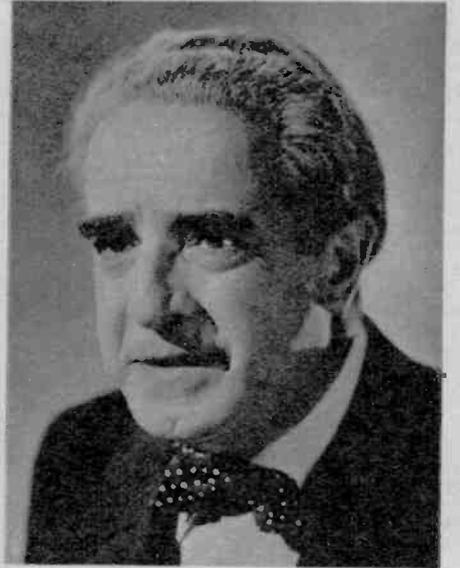

Lawrence Tibbett, Andre Kostelanetz and Deems Taylor meet in Kostelanetz' office. Tibbett is often heard on CBS programs; Kostelanetz is one of the most noted of conductors; Taylor is Columbia's music consultant

One Man's Family Meets For 1600th Time Wednesday

To J. Anthony Smythe (Father Barbour) goes much credit for human interpretation of family life

Michael Raffetto (Paul) was ill for 9 months, was written out of script but kept alive by reference

Author Morse has brought Clifford (Barton Yarborough) through six years, a marriage, a separation

Mother Barbour (Minetta Ellen) and Family are on NBC Wednesdays for East, Sundays for West

ON WEDNESDAY "One Man's Family" celebrates its sixth anniversary, gives its 1,600th program. Starting in the West April 29, 1932, the show became Coast-to-Coast May 4, 1934. Sponsors have included salad oil, cigarettes, gelatin, tea. There have been 325 original broadcasts; 364 repeats. In Australia there have been 936 transcriptions. The cast has rehearsed 3,000 hours and Author Carlton E. Morse has written 2,275,000 words of script.

There has never been a substitution of the seven original members of the cast; 41 characters have come and gone; 6 children have been born in the script—3 to Hazel, 3 to Claudia, one to Beth. Claudia was married twice; Hazel, Clifford and Beth once. Beth was divorced; Clifford separated. Four deaths were Claudia's baby, first husband, mother-in-law and Phillip Spencer.

This Week's Program Schedule Revisions

The introduction of Daylight Saving Time this week accounts for the numerous program changes readers will notice in "This Week's Programs." The broadcasting schedules published here are complete and accurate, as based on the broadcasters' own information. However, where there is so much change, many plans never materialize. In some other cases networks and stations will feel that they can improve these schedules, and will make further changes. For those reasons next week's RADIO GUIDE will carry practically as many changes as does this issue. Look for further revision of your listening-life in RADIO GUIDE for the week ending May 7. It will be on your own newsstand Thursday of this week—April 28. Don't miss your favorites—keep up to date with RADIO GUIDE!

NBC-New York Drama Critics'
Circle Award: WHO WTAM
WMAQ (sw-9.53)
The New York Drama Critics' Circle Award for the season's best play by an American author will be presented. George Jean Nathan, critic for three national magazines, and president of the Drama Circle, will preside, and will award the honorary plaque.
The author of the chosen play will be heard in his speech of acceptance, and scenes from the winning play will be enacted by the original cast. Among the current successes which have been mentioned as logical contenders are Thornton Wilder's

"Our Town," "Of Mice and Men" by John Steinbeck, Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy," Rachel Crothers' "Susan and God," Maxwell Anderson's "The Star
Wagon," Paul Osborn's "On Borrowed Time," and "The Ordelle Will Rock" by Marc Blitzstein. This year for the first time there also will be a elation for the best foreign drama to be seen on Broadway. "Shadow and Substance" by Paul Vincent Carroll has been named as the best possibility for this honor.

Mrs. Ruth Harkness, only person to bring pandas to America, will be guest, and highlights of her expeditions into China and Tibet will be drama-tized. Four native Chinese youths, students at Northwestern University, will be heard in the dramatizations, using their native tongue as it is spoken in China. These youths have been in the United States but a short time and speak Chinese fluently.

Title of tonight's thriller is "They Died." It is the story of a young couple pursued by a strange malignant spirit. An unusual aspect in the production of this opus is the use of numerous types of microphone filters to gain the effect of numerous types of voices.

HOLLYWOOD PREMIERE

as the public is concerned—will emerge from obscurity and become permanent exhibits.

A special glass-enclosed booth has been built in the sound-effects department's lounge and library. Here, on each day of the week, one of the seven CBS sound-effects engineers in Hollywood will appear to demonstrate for visitors how the various effects are created. There will even be "request performances."

Through sound-proofed, shadowless, double-glass windows visitors will likewise be able to inspect the master control unit, where programs originating in the studios are routed to the Coast-to-Coast network. Sound-waves of broadcasts in the process of transmission will be visible on oscilloscope screens. Electric signs will trace the operations of the control units.

IN LINE with the discoveries of researchers in acoustics, the studios will have inclined walls to minimize the effect of what engineers call "room-flutter," that is, the repeated reflection of sound between parallel surfaces. These walls were designed by Dr. Verne O. Knudsen, of the University of Southern California, acoustical consultant to CBS.

They slope inward from floor to ceiling, and, as is the case with most recently built broadcasting chambers, both the walls and the floor "float" on material which insulates them from the rest of the building and from the effects of sudden shocks.

The need for many portable sound-effects devices has been eliminated. In the new studios, for example, when a dramatic script calls for the sound of feet on gravel, or turf, or snow, the engineers have only to lift up a section of the floor and performers will actually tread on boards which will produce the effect desired.

In the basement of the studios have been built a number of sound-reverberation chambers where engineers can mold and work with voices or music as if they were putty! Principles discovered during CBS Workshop experiments with radio drama contributed to this.

The following special broadcasts will be heard in connection with the dedication of the new CBS studios in Hollywood:

JEANETTE MacDONALD has never appeared in grand opera, although she was invited to do so by the Metropolitan Opera Company two seasons ago. Film commitments prevented her from accepting the offer at that time. Miss MacDonald has several grand opera soprano roles in her repertoire. As she expects to make a comprehensive concert tour next winter, the chances of opera work being included in her schedule are very slim.—F. F. F., Corpus Christi, Texas.

HOWARD CLANEY, NBC announcer, was born in Pittsburgh on April 17, 1898. He is five feet ten inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds, has brown hair and eyes. He started in radio as an actor in 1927, and in 1930 became a member of NBC's staff of announcers. Mr. Claney is not married.—E. W., Fresno, California.

JOAN BLAINE'S birthday is April 22. She weighs 115 pounds, is five feet six inches tall, has dark brown hair and blue eyes. Her new series, "Valiant Lady," originates in Columbia's New York studios.—L. A., Bellefontaine, Ohio.

ANNETTE KING was born in Kankakee, Illinois, but has lived in Aurora, Illinois, most of her life.—O. T. M., Thibodeaux, Louisiana.

M. SAYLE TAYLOR is the "Voice of Experience."—V. H., Lawrenceville, Georgia.

In "One Man's Family" the part of CLAUDIA is taken by Kathleen Wilson, and the part of BOB by Michael Raffetto.—M. E. H., Galesburg, Illinois.

The role of BETTY in "Betty and Bob" has been portrayed successively by Beatrice Churchill, Elizabeth Reller and Alice Hill. The part of BOB in this serial has been portrayed by Don Ameche, Les Tremayne and Spencer Bentley.—E. M., Tallapoosa, Georgia.

So You Like Contests?

LAST week a tremendously controversial topic broke over the horizon of this department's view. That topic was Eric Bender's sensational new book, Tickets to Fortune. The section of the book devoted to prize contests raises three issues:

1. Are they on the level?
2. Why do the sponsors do it?
3. What chance have I to win?

Bender's answers to the two first questions—and ours—were published here last week. This week, as promised, we turn to that most important question, "What chance have I to win?" Bender says:

"What chance has the average person of winning in an important contest? No chance whatever!

"We have seen that most of the competitors are not even alert enough to abide by the rules. They can never even hope to have their entries read.

"Assuming that you are better equipped than these unfortunates, and have sense enough to read the rules and follow them, the chances are still ten to one against you, for the figures show that you will not be able to devise an entry worthy of consideration.

"But suppose you are capable of producing a worth-while entry. Suppose that it passes the preliminary tests. Now what are your chances?"

"No better than they were at first, for at this point you are competing with the professional contest answerers, and unless you wish to adopt their tactics, you are going to waste a whole lot of time and money . . ."

This heart of Bender's condemnation of contests is reprinted verbatim here because despite the fact that this department's editors cannot agree with any of the major conclusions he reaches in Tickets to Fortune, they still feel that his arguments are worthy of a hearing.

What about this contention that the average contestant hasn't a chance?

In a superficial sense, Bender is perfectly correct. The average person can't win a contest in which there are a hundred prizes and a hundred thousand entrants. The average in such a contest would be, obviously, one-thousandth of a prize to each contestant, or one prize to each thousand contestants.

If the matter is regarded from any other viewpoint, Bender's statements simply do not conform to facts as recorded by independent agencies. Bender does not base his arguments on the fact that there are not enough prizes for everyone to get one, for that hazardlessness of contesting is perfectly apparent to everyone who enters, and probably it adds much of the appeal of contests.

Bender's arguments against the chances of every-day people who enter contests are based on two premises:

1. Most people don't have sense enough to follow the rules.
2. "Professional" contest followers win 90 percent of the prizes.

As for the first argument, it is true that most people don't have sense enough to follow the rules. That is no news. This department has stated time and again that its readers must be careful to observe every condition stated in contest rules—and that most other people won't.

Figures indicate that in practically every contest ever held, well over half the people who send in entries do not prepare them properly. They don't include dealers' names and addresses where they are called for; if the rules say "write or print," many send type-written entries; if the rules say "complete the sentence," hundreds send entries containing two or three sentences; no matter how long the contest runs, thousands send entries after the closing date; where twenty-five words are allowed, contestants send up to two or three hundred—and it takes only twenty-six to eliminate an entry; finally, there are the witless contestants who forget to sign their own names or addresses or who send entries to the wrong places or forget to enclose the box-tops or cartons or other purchase-proofs required. In summation, let it be understood that RADIO GUIDE feels and has felt before—and we're sure every other contest writer or judge or authority of any veracity whatsoever will agree—that most contestants cannot win contests simply because they won't follow the rules. The fact that people are careless eliminates anywhere from forty percent to seventy-followers. The rest go to people who must be classified as casual contestants.

Bender refers to these hypothetical persons who, according to him, win nine out of ten prizes as "professionals." He does not clearly explain the term. To us the term would seem to refer to people who make their living by winning prizes.

If that is Bender's idea, then we must disagree again, for according to more statistics from National Contest Headquarters, there are none, or practically none, of these people. Contesting is not a vocation, and it never will be. There will never be a class of people clever enough to make a decent living on contest prizes alone. If there were such clever souls, they would do much bet-desires sincere testimonials, not extravagant adjectives.

2. It fulfilled the special requirements of this contest. It complied with all the rules. Rule No. 5 stated, "All entries will be judged on the basis of sincerity, clearness and particularly originality." This entry is crystal-clear. It is sincere. It is original.

3. It gives the reader a word-picture of the writer. It discloses a glimpse of a cross-section of the writer's life. Twenty-five words do not permit a complete picture of the writer and her experience with Oxydol. Therefore she gives the highlights and suggests the details.

4. It has emotional appeal. It strikes a responsive chord. We, too, have had similar experiences and can sympathize with the writer's role. The test of emotional appeal is the degree with which the reader can identify himself with the writer.

5. It pays a powerful compliment to the product without superlatives, by picturing Oxydol making good under exacting circumstances.

6. It brings out a number of virtues, by inference and effect. The phrase, "with little time for washing," implies that Oxydol does not require long or hard rubbing, that its suds works fast and thoroughly.

7. It pictures a special virtue of Oxydol solving a special problem of the writer. Specifically, clean linens are not enough for the sick-room. Some cleansing agents leave a strong, lingering odor—not desirable when one is ill. Moreover, a discerning housewife might regard this odor as proof that the soap is too strong and might injure fabrics. Thus the word "sweet-smelling" carries a double compliment.

Shepherd's analyses of winning entries are part of RADIO GUIDE's course in contest-writing. Look for criticisms of non-winning entries, with reasons for their failure, in next week's issue!

five percent of the entries in every contest.

What does this mean to you? Does it mean that you haven't a chance to win a contest? Perhaps it does. If you can't follow clearly stated rules, you will never win a contest. You might just as well understand that now. Contesting is no sport for people who simply won't take the trouble to do what they're told to do.

Bender's second argument is more frightening. He says that professionals have taken over contesting to such a degree that outsiders might just as well spend their energies writing letters of protest against double-feature movies.

Perhaps Bender is right. His information on many points is certainly well prepared and intelligently presented. It is on points such as this, however, that we must make a mental reservation.

Bender says that professionals win practically all the prizes. That much is all right. However, he shows no statements from contest judges to support his statement. He tells of no contest sponsor who has found this to be true—and if it were, sponsors would know about it! He presents no figures on any contest to support his contention.

In the absence of any figures presented by Bender, we must turn to figures compiled by others. National Contest Headquarters, a service employed by sponsors, judges, contest periodicals and other publications, and which acts as an adviser to contestants themselves, has never found that more than one out of ten prizes go to confirmed contest ter for themselves as novelists or as advertising directors for the companies whose prizes they could win.

We feel justified to dispute Bender's claim that there are contest "professionals," and to question his statement about the number of prizes won by these people. Until he can present figures to support his claims, Tickets to Fortune will appear to us a sensational treatise whose foundation totters when attention is called to the fact that there are no figures offered as proofs.

Winning Entry Analysis Wilmer Shepherd Tells Why!

Four weeks ago this department published the first in a series of analyses of winning entries. These are to be prepared exclusively for RADIO GUIDE by Wilmer Shepherd, the teacher of contest technique. Here is the second of the series:

The Prize:

$100.00 in the 1938 Oxydol contest.

The Entry:

"I consider Oxydol the perfect laundry soap because, acting as housekeeper and nurse recently, with little time for washing, I depended on Oxydol for clean, sweet-smelling linens for the sick-room."

Seven reasons why it won:

1. It fulfilled the one supremely important requirement of all Procter and Gamble contests. This sponsor

This Week's Prize Special A $30,000.00 Opportunity

One of the most important contests of the year has just been announced. It is particularly noteworthy in that it reflects the current trend toward a large number of prizes for those whose entries are not spectacular enough to win the top prizes. Here are the prizes:

First, $1,000 a year for life, paid in the form of an income policy with the Aetna Life Insurance Co., or a lump sum of $12,000; second, $2,000 cash; 10 prizes, each $100 cash; 50 prizes, each $50 cash; 100 prizes, each a $25 merchandise certificate; 100 prizes, each a $10 merchandise certificate; 1,000 prizes, each a $5 merchandise certificate, and 2,000 prizes, each a $2 merchandise certificate. The merchandise certificates paid to the 3,200 smaller winners are redeemable at any grocery store, and may be used for the purchase of any items in the stores.

To qualify for the prizes, complete in thirty additional words or less the sentence "My favorite Libby Food is Libby's . . . because—." Entry blanks, available at grocery stores, may be used, or entries may be sent on plain pieces of paper. Enclose labels from three different Libby canned foods with each entry. As many entries may be sent as desired, but each must be accompanied by three different labels. Your own name must be used, and the full name and address of the dealer must be on each entry. Entries will be judged and graded on sincerity, uniqueness and advertising value. Open to the United States only. Send entries to Libby Contest Judges, Howard-Clark Bldg., Chicago, Illinois. Entries must be postmarked before July 9 midnight.
