The Coughlin Tempest

Some listeners consider Father Coughlin a windjammer. Others call him worse. Regardless of individual likes, he does have an audience. Figures presented recently by those door-bell-ringing gentlemen who know about such things indicate that 3,500,000 regular listeners follow his talks, and that 15,000,000 have heard him at one time or another during recent months.

Any man whose voice reaches that many people can do a lot of good or a lot of mischief, according to your lights. So thought the managers of several radio stations recently when they considered his remarks to be an incitement to race hatred and refused to broadcast his orations unless he supplied copies a few hours ahead of broadcast time. The resulting hue and cry made the front pages. Followers bellowed, "Censorship." Critics yelled, "He's a menace." The battle rages.

One clear voice which has spoken of the problem is that of Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, who holds to the conviction, which we share, that the American system of broadcasting is the best system now available to any people in the world. He cuts to the kernel of the problem with:

In a country of many races and many religions amicably dwelling together, broadcasts inciting racial and religious hatred are an evil not to be tolerated. In these troubled times, there is need for national unity.

The responsibility for the content of programs rests upon the Broadcaster; to determine what is in the public interest requires the exercise of an informed and mature judgment. He is well within his rights to demand an advance copy of any proposed radio talk. He is well within his rights to close his facilities to any speaker who refuses to submit it. He is well within his rights to refuse to broadcast a speech plainly calculated or likely to stir up religious prejudice and strife.

The situation parallels the example once given by the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, where he declared that free speech did not give a man the right to yell "fire" in a crowded theater.

Smuggling

We pause at the headline that rides high on every newspaper:

Jack Benny indicted for smuggling. Already George Burns has confessed his guilt. There may be others. We ask ourselves, "Why did they do it?" They didn't need the money. Burns and Allen are getting $15,000 per hour of broadcasting. Jack Benny is figured at $16,000 for a half-hour.

Could it have been that smuggling is not a crime against anyone? Smuggling is more like a game. Children play it with their parents when they smuggle dime novels into bed after hours, or cigarettes up in the barn loft, or tune in forbidden radio programs when mother is away. When those children grow up, they play the game with Uncle Sam. What visitor to Mexico or Canada has not brought back something in a hidden pocket? What stay-at-home has blamed a returned traveler for not paying duty on that French perfume or that box of Havana cigars?

It was Jack Benny's and George

Burns' bad luck to play the game with a fellow who played for keeps, so that their names have been linked with that of a notorious and convicted smuggler.

We hope Uncle Sam will be lenient.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, RADIO GUIDE:

With a wide variety of radio programs available at every hour of the day, it is difficult for any mother to do more than express her preference in regard to what sort of program her children should hear. I have never made any attempt to tell Shirley or the boys what they should listen to. I leave that up to them.

Both Shirley's teacher and I have been very much impressed by the significant number of programs in which important episodes in American history are dramatized.

GERTRUDE TEMPLE.

Editor's Note: Although Mrs. Temple would like to have Shirley listen to symphonies and other uplifting airings, Shirley's most rabid interest still remains "The Lone Ranger" and other cops-and-robber broadcasts!

Editor, RADIO GUIDE:

Europe seems to have spawned a horde of madmen who have raised the bitter old cries of racial and religious hatred. This frightful disease of intolerance has not to any marked degree infected America. But a disease it is, and only stern vigilance on our part will save us from it.

I appeal to the radio fraternity, as a group who are themselves especially tolerant, to campaign actively against racial and religious intolerance. We are in command of one of the most influential media of reaching the public. We should use our position whenever we can to further the cause of good-will among men of every race and creed.

JOE EMERSON.

Editor, RADIO GUIDE:

Before I came to New York I heard that if you will give your radio audience prizes, premiums, or what have you, they will respond to that but to little else. I have found it different. A few months ago I wanted a certain poem and asked my audience to find me a copy. In two weeks I had more than 500 copies of that poem and in a month I had 1,000 copies. I learned something through that experience, and since then some of the finest material which had gone into the grist of my broadcast stories has come from my radio friends. I believe in the intelligence, generosity, sympathy, understanding of my audience.

WILLIAM L. STIDGER.

Editor, RADIO GUIDE:

"How many times tonight are they going to play that tune?" A standard cry, indeed. What many forget, however, is that they do not listen to one station throughout the evening. To protect the listener from an overdose of any one tune the National Broadcasting Company has set up a definite check system to allow duplication within only a reasonable period. All musical programs are submitted to the New York offices, where each number is checked against all programs already submitted, using the same network. Should any number already be listed within a period from three hours before to three hours after the time of the program being cleared, the number is deleted "because of duplication." That phrase has come to be a headache to program-builders but an unknown boon to the listener.

THINK ABOUT RADIO

I HAVE been asked to write a few words about what radio means to women. It seems to me that it is pretty obvious that radio means to women much the same as it does to men—entertainment, education, hitherto inaccessible music and drama. The whole world outside the door is now available to us all at the turn of a dial.

But it is also true that the radio means more to women than to men. There is an old saying — “Man works from sun to sun, but woman’s work is never done.” And the saying is true. Whether their work is harder than that of men doesn’t come into the question, but the fact is that the average woman is more continuously busy for more hours of the day than the average man. The wife and mother of a family without a servant, and that is the overwhelming majority of all the wives and mothers in the United States, is occupied with some form of work from morning until night. Men have always been greater readers than women—not because women’s minds are any less active and interested but because the men have had more time.

When the average husband bids his wife good-by in the morning, he has a half-hour, perhaps, to look forward to during which, riding to his work on a subway or streetcar or bus, he can read the paper. And again, when he comes home from work in the evening, he is allowed to relax with the news of the day (if that is possible in these days!) while supper is being prepared. But the wife? Does she sit down and read the paper when her husband has left the house? Not at all. There are dishes to be washed, children to be hurried off to school, the day’s menu to be planned. And, at the end of the day, it’s two to one that sheer fatigue will cause her to choose the relaxation of a nap to any serious discussion of the week’s events.

So it was that before the coming of the radio, women were pretty well inclined to leave knowledge of world news and affairs to the man of the family. A few hardy souls found the extra time to devote to politics; but on the whole, the women of this country followed the European custom of deferring in such matters to the head of the house. And it wasn’t, let me point out again, because they weren’t interested, but because they simply didn’t have the time to find out.

Now I believe that the women of the world, and especially the women of America, have a contribution to make to the progress and betterment of the world. But they can only make their contribution if they know what is going on, if they are aware of the day-to-day facts which, added together, spell the trend of our times.

Here in America we have a free radio—a radio to which a woman can listen as she sweeps her house, as she minds the baby, as she mends the family socks in the evening. This free radio of ours is all the time making it more and more possible for our women to be aware, to know their facts, to take their logical place in the decisions of the world. For this I, as a woman, am grateful, and I believe we all should be.

STARS IN MY EYES

BY WILFRED PELLETIER

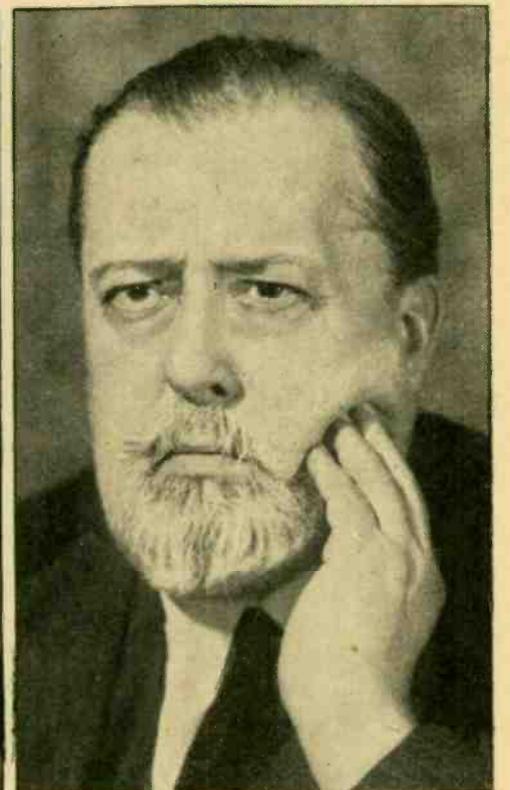

AS TOLD TO SUMNER GEORGE

Pierre Monteux, renowned conductor, introduced Wilfred Pelletier to the Metropolitan

Wilfred Pelletier is director for radio's "Metropolitan Opera Auditions" and, beginning this week, "Ford Sunday Evening Hour"

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, former Impresario of Met., ruled with an iron fist

THERE seems to be one year in everyone's life that changes everything for him. My year for complete alterations was 1917, and I will have to live a long time before I forget it! At one moment I was trudging the sidewalks hungry and penniless. The next I was a dictator—a rather timid, frightened dictator, I must admit—laying down the law to the famous stars on the roster of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

It happened this way: The Province of Quebec, in which I was born, had given me a scholarship and sent me to Paris to study. Finished with my studies there, I found a position as accompanist with the orchestra of the Conservatoire of Paris, which was just setting out on an American tour. I came on to New York in advance—and, the day I arrived, received a cablegram saying the tour had been postponed for a year. It was my first time in the United States. I had fifty dollars; not enough to take me back to France, not enough to take me home to Quebec. In two weeks the fifty dollars was gone and I had no money at all, no friends and no job. Who wanted a young musician just out of school? My only recommendation was that I had played the bass drum with a regimental band in Quebec when I was seven years old.

Then things happened quickly. I met a Metropolitan Opera soprano. She asked me to accompany her in concert. Pierre Monteux, the conductor of the orchestra at the Metropolitan, heard me. He asked me to accompany a private pupil of his named Ganna Walska.

The next thing I knew I was hired as assistant conductor at the Met. Shaking hands with great Jove himself, the shambling, bearded Gatti-Casazza, who ran the opera company with iron hand in a steel glove, he said: "You'll begin a month earlier than the others. I want you to prepare a singer."

"Who is it?" I asked.

"Martinelli."

He could not have given me a worse shock if he had said Caruso! Martinelli was at that time just reaching the height of his powers. He was one of the great tenors of the world. And I—I, the bass drummer—was to bully him, drive him into learning Faust in French. I was his new boss. His straw-boss at any rate.

"HELL come to your house every morning," said Gatti, adding ominously, "Let me know if he's late."

AN INTIMATE, UNUSUAL STORY OF THE PEOPLE BEHIND THE GLAMOUR MASKS OF GRAND OPERA, PAST AND PRESENT

My "house" was a three-room apartment far uptown in New York, with the elevated train thundering past the windows. Except for the piano, which I rented, the furniture was mine by courtesy of the landlady, who did not believe in wasting carpet with nap or chairs with sound legs on poor musicians. The bed, I am sure, was stuffed with old roller-skates. I lay awake on it most of the night wondering what Martinelli would think of me and my little palace. I saw him stalking in, a tall man with a severe face, wearing a twenty-dollar hat and fifty-dollar shoes and followed by secretaries and valets. "What is this horrible place and who is this horrible creature?" he would say, holding a bottle of smelling-salts to his nose. "Take me away."

In the morning when the bell rang I was so nervous it was all I could do to get up courage enough to answer it. Outside stood an unassuming, modestly dressed chap who might have been the piano-tuner. As I greeted him, he said something that showed he was a great diplomat, a great psychologist, a great craftsman and a great gentleman. "This is very good of you, Maestro Pelletier," he said.

That was all, but it was a great deal. I might be young, I might be inexperienced. I might be a fool who didn't know a tenth as much about Faust as he did. Nevertheless I had been assigned to coach him. His duty to his work demanded that he take my word as law. Martinelli acknowledged all of that in the single word maestro—teacher. Then I saw an example of his energy; the energy that had lifted him to the top rank. "Let's start," he said, peeling off coat, collar and tie. He sang for two hours without resting. He worked like a harvest hand.

Few singers last ten years—especially few tenors, since they sing with the greatest strain. Martinelli is still singing today after a quarter of a century. In addition he stepped down over the footlights long ago to devote his free time to public service. As this is written he is out making speeches with New York's Mayor LaGuardia pleading for an art center for New York, like the art centers in other cities. I do not need to tell anybody about him. But bewilderment. I could only shrug. "So this is what the public likes!" I said to myself. "This is the great tenor! Well, there's no accounting for tastes." We came to the mill scene. In the mill scene Samson begs for strength to endure his blindness if it is God's will that he suffer for his people. Suddenly the bleating stopped. There floated up to the rafters the most liquid human voice I had ever heard.

AFTERWARDS we learned the reason. At rehearsals Caruso squeaked along any old way, singing through his nose in order to save wear on his throat. The others knew it and expected it. But Samson's prayer was so beautiful, and he loved it so dearly, that he could never resist it. When he came to it, before he knew what he was doing he was singing in his full voice. And it was an angel singing then.

I saw Enrico nearly every morning after that for quite a number of years. I was in the prompter's box for the performance of La Juive—that was the me he'll only borrow it from me. This way I lose only the money. That way I lose the money, maybe the friend, and surely someone to play poker with."

My introduction to Lucrezia Bori was as amusing as my introduction to Caruso. We were putting on an opera written by an American composer. The job of training an understudy for one of the leading women's roles was left to me.

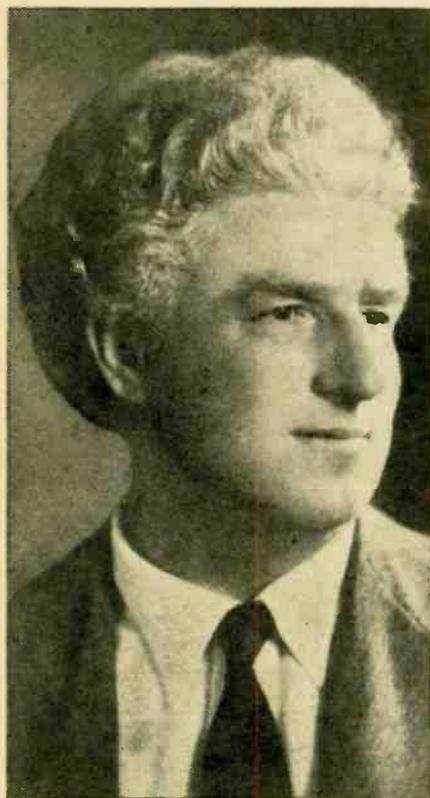

The day of the performance, the star caught a cold and my girl reported at the opera house for duty. As she stepped on the stage she heard a woman somewhere behind her say, "What a face!" She walked straight across the stage and out the door at the other side and went home in a taxicab, furious.

A performance scheduled and no singer! That meant a tornado. Gatti-Casazza was not noted for a mild temper. As I looked around me people began to fade from sight like smoke. The music secretary, when I discov-giggling, "may I present Maestro Pelletier?"

Bori has perhaps the greatest mind of anyone in the music world today. In opera, one thing is true. There is never any mistaking why the great ones are great. They are great because they have something plus. The woods are full of good voices. There are even plenty of people who have good voices, energy, intelligence, personal presence and dramatic fire. But only the truly great, the little handful of singers you could crowd into a good-sized coat-closet, have in addition that mysterious last ounce. With Lucrezia Bori, the last ounce is scholarship to a certain extent. Her musicianship is so superb that at rehearsals the men in the orchestra stand and applaud her. But she has that rarest of things, true nobility of character, as well. In twenty years I have never known her to repeat a word of gossip or say an unkind thing about anyone.

Incidentally, this may be a good place for me to explain a bit of gossip

Giovanni Martinelli, "great diplomat, great craftsman and great gentleman"

The incomparable Caruso: "You must share what you have with others"

"Lucrezia Bori has perhaps the greatest mind in the music world today"

Edward Johnson stepped from singing roles to management of the Met.

one story about Giovanni Martinelli I should like very much to tell. When Caruso died, half the tenors on the globe began to advertise themselves as his successor. Martinelli did not. Once when we were together I asked him why.

"I would never presume to step into the shoes of a man as great as Enrico," he said. "And I wouldn't use a name that has grown sacred in opera to advertise my own wares."

But, if Caruso has a successor, it is Martinelli.

My introduction to Caruso was rather startling. I had heard of him. So had Pierre Monteux, my superior in the orchestra pit; but neither of us had heard him sing. We were told to make ready for a piano rehearsal of Samson and Delilah with Caruso, Matzenauer, Whitehill and Rothier. In his street clothes Caruso slouched out onto the stage at the rehearsal and opened his mouth to sing. But instead of song I can only describe the sound that came from his throat as a bleating. Act I, Act II, Act III came and went and the caterwauling went on. He was singing through his nose. Monteux was throwing me glances of great agony and last opera he ever sang. At home he worked in dressing-gown and slippers, carrying a cigaret in a long holder. The room was bare except for a piano, a table, a pitcher of water and a pile of silver quarters. The quarters were for tips; his greatest joy. He was always inventing errands for the bell-boys so he could give them tips, just as he was always finding an excuse to give presents to the chorus people at the opera house. When life was generous with you, he believed, you should hang on to nothing that it brought you. You must share what you had with others. That was his creed. I remember something that happened once when he was playing poker that showed the lengths to which he was ready to carry it. Enrico was wild about poker. He would play with anyone, anywhere, any time. This time, one of the men at the table was winning a bit too consistently.

AFRIEND took Caruso aside. "Enrico," he asked, "don't you know that fellow is cheating?"

"Caro amico," answered Caruso, "of course I know he's cheating, a little. But if I don't let him win money from ered him, was hiding behind a door. The fateful summons came. Mr. Gatti wished to see Mr. Pelletier in his office at once. I knew what for. For a coffee without cream—opera slang for a tongue-lashing. When I arrived, Gatti was green—literally. He had one of his bilious attacks. Things did not look well.

HIS opening blast was stunning. He could swear in five languages, and I took a deep breath of relief. "Thank heavens," I said to myself, "the worst is over." I didn't think he could top his opening burst of oratory. But I was wrong. The gale rose steadily while I examined the rugs, the pictures on the wall and a handsome woman who sat in the corner with a lace handkerchief pressed to her lips—sobbing or giggling. I couldn't tell which. There was no use trying to say anything. With Gatti, cursing was an art. He didn't like to be interrupted. I stood. He cursed. Five minutes passed. Ten. Fifteen. At last he ran out of names to call me and mopped his forehead, panting.

"Miss Bori," he said with a formal bow toward the lady who had been for which I was once responsible. Although ten years have passed since then, I still meet people occasionally who wonder what ever became of the romance between Bori and Edward Johnson, who today is in charge of the Met. It was rumored that they were engaged. The rumor was my fault. Miss Bori and Mr. Johnson were rehearsing Pelleas and Melisande with me. Since they were both hard workers, the three of us were constantly together, and one day the newspaper reporters cornered me.

"Aren't those two seeing a lot of each other?" they asked me.

I was tired and cross. "It must be Pelleas and Melisande," I said. "It has a romantic effect on people."

Edward and Lucrezia plighted their troth in the evening editions.

The second and concluding installment of Mr. Pelletier's fascinating story of stars will be presented next week. There will be more intimate glimpses into the lives of the great figures whose names are known and honored the world over.

HIGHLIGHTS

PREVIEWS OF SOME OF THIS

Jovial Ken Murray, comedian, will appear without Oswald, but with Parkyakarkus, as co-master of ceremonies on "Texaco Star Theater," CBS, this Wednesday night

DRAMA THIS WEEK

Sunday: The pride, joy and inspiration of favorite character actor Edward Arnold are his three children. That characteristic should make it a pleasant opportunity for him to support a couple of aspiring youngsters on the talent-hunting "Gateway to Hollywood" program this week. (CBS: 6:30 p.m. EST, 5:30 p.m. CST, 4:30 p.m. MST, 3:30 p.m. PST.)

Monday: Alexander Graham Bell is the father of network broadcasting. One might challenge that statement and assert that Bell is only the father of the telephone. Then he is at least one of the grandfathers of network radio, for telephone lines are the means of linking together the stations of a network system. They are the web itself. So, indirect though his connection may be, it is fitting that radio should pay tribute to Alexander Graham Bell. So it does—on the "Cavalcade of America" this week in a dramatization of the great inventor's life. (CBS: 8:00 p.m. EST, 7:00 p.m. CST; for the West, 10:00 p.m. MST, 9:00 p.m. PST.)

Thursday: Pert and pretty Ginger Rogers came to the screen as a dancer, attained fame both as a dancer and a comedienne, and now hankers for a substantial chance to climb the heights of serious drama. She's originally from Missouri, so she'll probably "show them" someday her emotional ability. However, when she visits "Tune-Up Time" this week, there will probably be more comedy than tragedy in the atmosphere, for there's Walter O'Keefe to see to that. (CBS: 10:00 p.m. EST, 9:00 p.m. CST, 8:00 p.m. MST, 7:00 p.m. PST.)

Friday: Orson Welles, dramatic genius that he is, handles well any type of story. This week it's about Hollywood when "Campbell Playhouse" presents "I Lost My Girlish Laughter," by Jane Allen. (CBS: 9:00 p.m. EST, 8:00 p.m. CST, 7:00 p.m. MST, 6:00 p.m. PST.)

A DUTCH TREAT —Sunday, NBC, CBS, MBS

Whether you call it the Netherlands or Holland, it's a picturesque little country, and our own history and literature are colored with the Dutch tradition. This week the distinguished Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands will speak over world-wide radio resources in the "Salute of Nations" series of broadcasts building up to the New York World's Fair of 1939. The Queen will speak as the ruler for over forty years of a country not much bigger than the state of Maryland and with a population not much greater than that of New York City. Queen Wilhelmina also rules, however, over an immense colonial empire many times the size of Holland itself. In addition to the royal message, there will be music by the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra and the Royal Military Band.

"OUT OF THE NIGHT"

—Sunday, NBC

When that theme song floats melodiously out of the air Sunday, many lovers of dance music will perk up their ears. If they have tuned in the "Fitch Bandwagon" especially to hear this particular band, they will snap to attention. If they have tuned in at random, they will probably exclaim, "Oh, Ted Weems!" For bands may come and bands may go, but Weems goes on forever. It is hard to pin down the unique factor which accounts for the long and high consistency of his orchestra's popularity, but probably the word "balance" would describe their work as accurately as any. Some would make it a bit more extravagant and say, "They have everything." Certainly Weems' music is as danceable as any, but the ears are not sacrificed for the feet. It is very listenable, too. His tunes can swing, glide, bubble or romp. There's the deep-voiced crooning of Perry Como and the expert whistling of Elmo Tanner, as well as other solo and novelty effects. Taken all in all, Ted Weems has one of the great bands and his excursion this week into the air via the "Bandwagon" will please many listeners, especially since there will be intimate glimpses into the story of Ted himself, the man behind the music.

TEN-PENNY PARADE —Sunday, NBC, CBS, MBS

"The March of Dimes" is the appropriate title of a mammoth charity program in the interest of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Leading the parade of the well-spent coins will be a formation of glittering names and great talent. Many of the most outstanding stars of radio, screen and stage will appear on the show, with Eddie Cantor scheduled as the master of ceremonies. The star-studded program is part of the annual campaign for funds to fight the plague of infantile paralysis by the support of such institutions as the Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia, in which President Roosevelt is vitally interested. These special charity programs often develop into highlights of the whole year's radio entertainment, aside from their worth-while motive.

9:00 p.m. Mountain Time; 8:00 p.m. Pacific Time

ROWDY ROSALIND

—Tuesday, NBC

"A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men"—and women. So Rosalind Russell, serious actress and elegant lady, goes humorous on Bob Hope's program. Her radio appearance now is provocative, for Miss Russell is pretty much in the entertainment eye of the public for her starring performance in one of Hollywood's most discussed motion pictures of 1938, "The Citadel." Her role, however, on the radio program will be nothing like that of the doctor's wife in the film. She couldn't be that serious around bubbling Bob Hope and his troupe, who are week after week presenting one of the most meteorically popular comedy shows on the air.

10:00 p.m. Eastern Time; 9:00 p.m. Central Time
8:00 p.m. Mountain Time; 7:00 p.m. Pacific Time

TWO-IN-ONE

—Wednesday, CBS

"Mama, that man's here again!" Sure enough, burly, breezy Ken Murray is in again—this week, but there won't be an Oswald to draw "Oh yeah!" Parkyakarkus, the radio Greek, however, will have a word for Ken. The two funny fellows will do double duty in the m.c. spot on "Texaco Star Theater" left vacant by the Broadway-bound John Barrymore. Carrying on with the policy of presenting one-shot guests in this spot, the program has enlisted these two popular comedians to succeed Eddie Cantor, who did his turn last week as the first guest. Murray, with or without "Oh yeah!" Oswald, is well known to stage, screen and radio. Parky is heard at present as Al Jolson's ally and heckler. The two will share the honors—fifty-fifty; they will share the wit—half and half.

THE WINNAH, J. L! —Wednesday, NBC

This week two sturdy lads fight for the heavyweight championship of the world, and you can safely bet that a dark-horse will win—for both boys are colored. You can also bet that the last name of the winner will be pronounced like Louis as in "Joe Louis," but it might possibly be spelled like Lewis as in "John Henry Lewis." The fifteen-round battle in Madison Square Garden will be described blow by blow, probably by Clem McCarthy, with the probability also that Edwin C. Hill will do the "color." These two colored fighters are among the outstanding fighters of all time in their respective divisions. Joe is well known for his ability to convincingly blast everything under the "heavyweight" heading. John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion, has never been knocked out, and many doubt that he will meet that fate this time. There should be plenty of real action for listeners-in.

HIGH C'S FROM LOW LAND —Thursday, NBC

Little Holland finds its place in the radio sun this week with double brilliance. In addition to the world-circling address of Queen Wilhelmina on Sunday, the "Dutch Nightingale" makes her American debut on Thursday. Cote Vandermark, distinguished operatic and concert soprano of Holland, will bow to the radio audience of this country via Bing Crosby's "Music Hall." Miss Vandermark has been heard frequently over the Dutch radio stations NCRV and AVRO, but her appearance Thursday will mark the first time a singer of the Netherlands has been featured on American radio. Called the "Dutch Nightingale," she lists among her Continental triumphs a command performance in honor of the late Queen Mother Emma of Holland.

8:00 p.m. Mountain Time; 7:00 p.m. Pacific Time

ROGUES—RIGGS —Saturday, NBC

Those demons of imitation, the Radio Rogues, will do their stuff as guests of Tommy Riggs on the "Quaker Party." The versatile trio is known to stage, screen and radio for their accurate and entertaining impersonations of celebrities. They are currently one of the big reasons for the tremendous success of Broadway's hilarious "Hellzapoppin." Wonder if they'll impersonate Tommy Riggs' Betty Lou or if the little girl, quite a rogue herself, will imitate the Radio Rogues? Bea Wain's songs and Larry Clinton's music round out the program.

THE RADIO PLAYBILL: THIS WEEK — "MYRT & MARGE"

"MYRT AND MARGE" is the story of two gallant women—mother and daughter—trouper in the finest sense of the word. Myrtle Hayfield is a veteran actress and a widow. She has fought to find happiness for her daughter, Marge, and herself. Marge is a lovely young woman whose life is overshadowed by tragedy. Her husband has been murdered and Marge accused. She has been acquitted, but the stigma is a blot on her life. The theater team of mother and daughter gradually gets back on its feet. They go to London to make motion pictures. While there they aid Randy Greenspring, a young Englishman, to regain his title of nobility. Randy, unfortunately, falls in love with Myrt. Meanwhile, Marge is attracted to Lee Kirby, although he is involved with a crooked wife. Myrt is finally forced to confess to Randy that she does not really love him. In the meantime, the movie the women have made opens in London and makes a hit. With Lee Kirby's wife, Paula, on her way to Paris to get a divorce, Lee and Marge plan to marry. Paula, however, joins with a group of crooks in a plot to frame Myrt, Marge and Lee. She also refuses Lee a divorce and, heartbroken, Marge runs away to Paris. Lee refuses to give her up and resolves to fight Paula for his freedom so that he may still claim Marge. And so the girls are in the thick of another struggle. Such, it seems, is their lot. "Myrt and Marge" may be heard Monday through Friday over CBS at 10:15 a.m. EST, 9:15 a.m. CST; for the West, 2:15 p.m. MST, 1:15 p.m. PST.

NEXT WEEK

"COUNTY SEAT"

MYRT HAYFIELD (played by Myrtle Vail) is one of those indomitable dynamic women who make their own way in the world. Approaching forty, Myrt is still quite attractive, and with a deep understanding born of experience, she has the power of inspiring and encouraging men as well as attracting them to her. Myrt and Marge are more than mother and daughter. They are real pals. Myrt's wisdom has often pulled Marge through complex problems. Myrt has a deep regard for Randy Greenspring through her natural sympathy, but she cannot reciprocate his intense love for her. As it always has been, the welfare of Marge comes first

MARGE ARNOLD (played by Donna Damerel, Myrtle Vail's real-life daughter) is young and beautiful, but already she has had more than a normal share of tragedy. Somehow, though, she manages to retain a warm and generous outlook on life. Deeply grieved at the death of her husband, Jack Arnold, she gives no thought to romance until she meets Lee Kirby and falls in love with him in spite of herself and in spite of Lee's difficulties with his estranged wife, who holds him by threats. Marge has a great affection for her mother, Myrt, who has devoted her life to Marge's welfare. Fate is often unkind, but Marge never ceases to hope

—Walter Seigel

LEE KIRBY (played by Santos Ortega) is manager of Colonial Pictures in London, for which company Myrt and Marge work. He is thirty-five, with a forceful, aggressive personality, and he's a brilliant director. Years of unfortunate marital difficulties have made him bitter. Marge, however, has helped him regain his optimism

PAULA KIRBY (played by Lucille Fenton) cares nothing for her husband, Lee Kirby, but refuses to give him up as long as he is in a position to supply her with money. Her selfish, vengeful nature leads her even to the point of blackmail and law-breaking to further her ends. She tries to spoil the love of Lee and Marge

RANDY GREENSPRING (played by Roger De Koven) is the rightful Earl of Foresby, to which title he is restored through the aid of Myrt and Marge. Wealthy, charming, a man of the world, he loves Myrt and feels he could make her happy. Myrt is foad of Randy but not to the extent of his love. He hopes she'll change her mind

—Walter Seigel

"POP" NUNALLY (played by Joe Latham) is a plain, shrewd, warm-hearted American, who first met the girls while they were on location at his farm. Since then he has been their right-hand man in any emergency. At present he is in London with them, managing their business, personal interests

—Walter Seigel

CLARENCE TIFFINGTUFFER (played by Ray Hedge) is an expert costume-designer. He has been associated with Myrt and Marge in their theatrical career for years and is almost a member of the family. Fluttery and excitable, he is none the less likable for his sincerity and good humor

PETE VANESSI (enacted by Teddy Bergman) has an old score to settle with the girls, harking back to the time Myrt nearly exposed him for his crimes. A shrewd, calculating criminal, Pete is now bossing a spy ring in Paris. He is also conspiring with Paula Kirby to ruin the girls' career

DELL SHARBUTT is the announcer for the sketch. His father planned for him to be a lawyer, but Dell wanted to be a great tenor. He went to Texas Christian U. in Fort Worth, his home town. There he was busy with dramatics, glee clubs. He became an announcer in 1928

Hatred in Music

DURING the World War, after the United States got into the conflict, I was sitting in my office when a burly individual came in and with a strong Irish accent said, "I'm from the Secret Service. Is your name Liebling?" "Yes," I answered, "What's yours?" He tossed a card on the desk, which told me that he was Mr. Mulcahey.

"Do you believe that might is right?" he barked.

"No; do you?" I snapped back.

"Certainly not."

"Then why do you think that I am damfool enough to believe it?"

"Where were you born?"

"In New York. Where were you born?"

"Never mind about that."

"What's the matter? Ashamed of your birthplace?"

"I was born in Dublin."

I must have looked my amazement when I replied: "Well of all the nerve! You, a native Irishman, whose mother country is not in sympathy with England, asking a native American such questions."

Mr. Mulcahey produced a package of printed matter and asked, "Did you write these articles in your paper?" (The Musical Courier). I glanced at them. They were editorials ridiculing our symphony conductors for excluding German music from their programs, and the Metropolitan Opera for banning Wagner from their repertoire.

"Yes, I wrote them; so what?"

"So what, you're aiding and abetting the enemy."

Space prevents me from reporting the rest of our conversation, but I succeeded gradually and gently in convincing my inquisitor that America was not making war upon art, and long-dead composers in particular. The interview ended by my quenching Mr. Mulcahey's thirst from an editorial bottle in my desk and taking him out for lunch. We became and stayed good friends, and I often furnished him with useful information for the Secret Service.

I am recalling that story now because I see and hear dread signs that some misguided persons are again active against German music in our land, and I fear that their propaganda might eventually result as it did before. New York subscribers to the Philharmonic and Metropolitan are threatening to withdraw their support if those organizations continue to perform German compositions, and doubtless the same kind of misguided zeal is being manifested in other parts of the country.

Intelligent, broad-minded readers of RADIO GUIDE will of course agree that such a viewpoint is dangerously subversive to the best interests of art and should be sternly opposed wherever it makes itself manifest. To exile music on account of political or racial promptings would be to place ourselves on the level of Nazi fanatics who burned books and refuse to perform certain music for the same reasons.

It is to be hoped that should any further anti-art propaganda be spread about, the sensible public may regard it as the arrant nonsense which it is.

Speaking Up

By V. V.

Little did NBC know what they were inaugurating when they brought Toscanini back from Europe to head their brand-new orchestra and provided a weekly studio audience for him. His concerts, during their short existence, have become the most prized experiences of the New York season.

Tickets, by invitation only, are at a premium. The large beige-and-red NBC studio seats fourteen hundred people, but demands for tickets run into the thousands. These demands are sifted carefully and the places are already allotted long before the series begins. A second sifting disposes of the reserved seats in the small loge section upstairs, which is kept for critics, big-name musicians, visiting celebrities and friends of company officials.

Intimate, friendly charm, unobtrusive elegance and intent concentration are the keynotes of the concerts. The doors close promptly at ten o'clock. No announcer is visible or audible. The clock on the side wall is covered, so as not to get the audience nervous if the broadcast runs over the specified time. The programs are heavy sheets of thick blotting-paper, to prevent rustling. The orchestra tunes up, and suddenly is quiet. The lights dim gently and all eyes focus on the small side door of the stage. The Maestro emerges and walks briskly to the podium. Courteously he cuts short the applause, raps sharply with his baton and begins the business of the evening.

In the intermission, the loge occupants are allowed into the hall for a smoke. Here you see a cross-section of Vogue, Stage, Harper's Bazaar and the Sunday rotogravure. Dorothy Thompson, handsome in black velvet, smokes contentedly, with the air of one who has found familiar and precious respite from a chaotic world. Mrs. Jascha Heifetz smiles enchantingly at Walter Damrosch with the same smile that millions saw on the screen when her name was Florence Vidor. Lily Pons, her tiny figure almost obscured by a floor-length cape of blue fox, twinkles up at her other self, her husband, Andre Kostelanetz. David Sarnoff, host to this extraordinary gathering, moves beaming from group to group. Jimmie Walker and Gene Tunney, ex-politician and ex-prize-fighter, find the music a common denominator.

Gala on a diamond-horseshoe scale, these concerts are social events in the highest sense of the word. They attract the aristocracy of every art, every profession. But there is an entirely different note in this most modern of concert halls, from where music reaches out to the whole world. This audience comes to listen. There is no fanfare of publicity, no "grand opening," no reams of print in the society columns. Music's most eloquent interpreter dominates the evening. And to pay him tribute, these most unique among audiences bring what they know pleases him best, a sincere and appreciative understanding of what he is trying to say to them.

THE CAST:

Louise . . . . .	Grace Moore
Julien . . . . .	Rene Maison
Louise's Mother . . . . .	Doris Doe
Louise's Father . . . . .	Ezio Pinza

Conductor - - Ettore Panizza

GUSTAVE CHARPENTIER, seventy-nine-year-old French composer of "Louise," has lived most of his life in Paris, which he calls "the very breath of my existence." After his musical studies ended, Charpentier gave himself over to a typical Bohemian existence in the Montmartre section, and became a leading spirit among the students, working-girls and grisettes, joining in their poverty, romances, sorrows and carousals. "The lights, the houses, the people, the streets of Paris intoxicate me," he wrote on one occasion, "and the heroine of my opera is not so much the title character as the city she typifies."

ACT I

A Paris garret, 1900.

From his window across the narrow street, Julien, a young artist, sings a love-song to the listening Louise, sentimental, romantic sewing-girl. Julien wishes to marry her, but Louise's unimaginative parents object to the shiftless artist. The youthful lovers mock and abuse the mother, who eavesdrops

Grace Moore sings the title role in Metropolitan presentation of "Louise" and drags the happy Louise away. The father arrives, a tired laborer. The daughter sets the table; the mother works in the kitchen. The family sup and discuss Julien's letter asking for Louise in marriage. The mother berates him, the father ridicules good-naturedly. He is content with his family, his pipe, and before all things, his good Louise. She, touched, promises to try to forget Julien.

ACT II

Scene 1

A street in Montmartre.

Early morning. Characteristic street cries of vendors; rag-pickers, scavengers, marketers, late revelers come and go. Louise's mother escorts her to work and leaves. The hiding Julien emerges, pleads with his sweetheart to elope and is refused.

Scene 2

The workroom filled with sewing-girls.

Louise sits silent and thoughtful. Julien is heard singing in the street. A band plays, and as the excited girls crowd to the window, Louise rushes out and joins her lover.

ACT III

A tiny house and garden on Montmartre hill. Early night.

Louise and Julien are living together. Happily she sings her famous aria, "Ever Since the Day," but falls into remorse about her father. A joyous crowd arrives and celebrates the crowning of the Muse of Montmartre, none other than Louise. Her mother interrupts the festivities to tell the girl that the father is dying of grief and only Louise's visit can save him. She tears herself away from Julien after the mother finally agrees to let her return to him.

ACT IV

Same room as Act I.

The broken father sits sadly by the table. Louise sews gloomily. Through the open window, the lights of Paris glow beckoningly. Louise pleads to go to Julien, but the mother refuses. The father takes his "little girl" on his knee and sings a touching song. But her love-longing prevails and she defies her father, who, enraged, threatens to strike her and screams "Begone!" She whirls about like one possessed, calling for "Paris, Paris, Paris!" and "Julien!" The frightened mother intervenes, but too late. Louise has gone, forever. The father rushes to the window, shakes his fist impotently at the city and despairingly cries out, "Paris, oh Paris!"

Jose Iturbi, conductor

Overture to "Don Giovanni" (Mozart)
Symphony (Cesar Franck)

IT IS time to call attention again to the excellent series of the Rochester Philharmonic, this afternoon led by the able Iturbi. The orchestra, of high quality, has developed into a major symphonic instrument.

Some of the "Don Giovanni" melodies are masterfully exemplified in Mozart's immortal overture.

Cynical critics and oversophisticated music-lovers belittle what they call the "hackneyed" symphony by Franck and point to its "Wagnerisms." Nevertheless, to many of the rest of us it continues to be a mighty proclamation, noble in themes and fashioning, irresistibly glowing in harmony and orchestration, combining mystic fervor with deep human feeling.

Recently I reread the biography of Franck, and was moved afresh by his touching sincerity, simplicity, and the tragedy of his indifferent and antagonistic treatment by the critics, the public, and his colleagues of the period. Then came his sad death, preceded only by the success of his string quartet.

THE NBC SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

SATURDAY, JANUARY 28

On NBC at 10 p.m. EST; 9 p.m. CST; 8 p.m. MST; 7 p.m. PST

Arturo Toscanini, conductor

Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis"
(Gluck)

Symphony No. 8 (Beethoven)
El Amor Brujo (De Falla)

Overture to "William Tell" (Rossini)

OH, OH, Maestro, you are letting yourself off rather easily tonight and leaving us wishing for something more of classic magnitude and weight. What of the Eighth Symphony, you ask? Splendid, we answer, but certainly not towering into the skies, like Beethoven's Third, Fifth, Ninth, or even Sixth and Seventh. And surely there are more significant overtures than those from Italian operas, even though composed by Rossini. However, though you are sometimes an errant and wilful program-maker, there's no quarreling with you in the light of the grandiose feats you always achieve with the baton. Anyway, thank you for flavoring the program with the spicy suite by De Falla.

HOME WAS NEVER LIKE THIS!

Harry Swan has a way with his furred and feathered friends, as illustrated with his unusually tame and affectionate pet squirrel, which makes its home in Harry's bathroom. Harry is a bachelor, but he isn't lonesome, for his animal pals keep his home lively.

HARRY SWAN, known as "The Man of a Thousand Voices," makes animals and birds live realistically on the air with his voice because he associates with the real pets in his home. Harry's imitations are heard regularly in "Dog Heroes" (NBC: Sunday, 5:45 p.m. EST—available only to East) and "Let's Pretend" (CBS: Monday and Thursday, 5:15 p.m. EST, 4:15 p.m. CST, 3:15 p.m. MST, 2:15 p.m. PST). Swan is also a writer, actor, linguist and authority on dogs. Because Harry was born in the "sticks" and loves the country, he's tried to bring some of it to the city. He's happy with his pets.

Photographs by Gene Lester

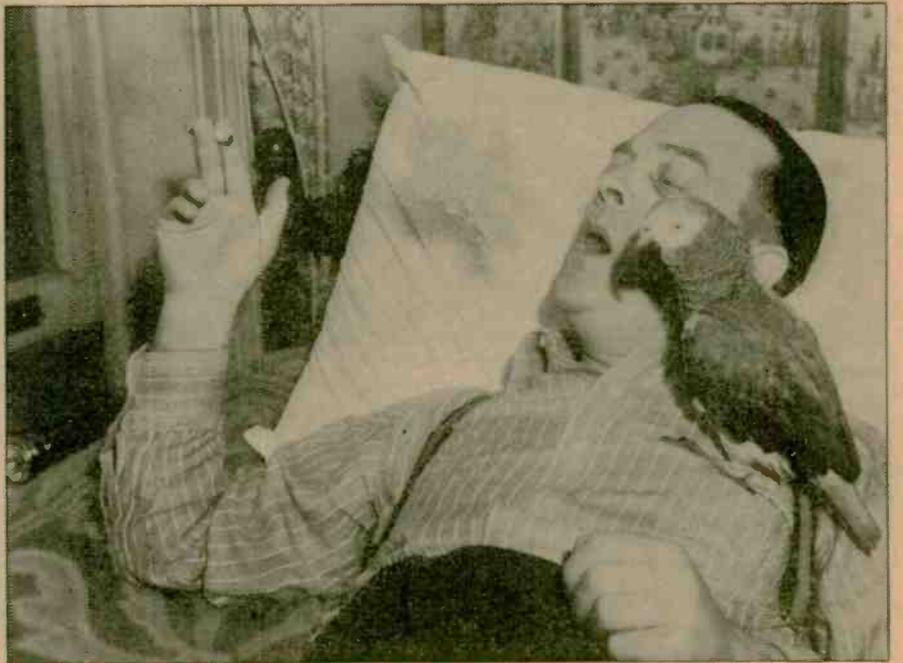

One reason Harry is a bachelor is that he's afraid no woman would care for a living-room decorated with parrots and a duck. The chair at left is exclusive property of parrots.

These two birds are budgerigars from Australia. Jackie (left) talks very well. Harry owns two dozen birds, keeps voice in trim talking with parrots. They actually converse with him.

Harry is only pretending to fry Donald, mischievous little duck, but the pet actually did die of unknown causes soon after its picture was taken, leaving a much-regretted empty place in the Harry Swan family circle.

Toots, an African gray, likes to relax with Harry and doesn't mind smoke. Toots once heard thunder, and screamed, "Who-o-o, ha, ha, ha!" Swan keeps the pets in his Long Island home because he really likes their company.

NEW YORK.—Believe it or not, Bob Ripley will not be back on the air for the same sponsor that bankrolled the program last season. Ripley auditioned last week for the soft-drink sponsor whose last program featured Tim and Irene, and the announcement of Ripley's return to the kilocycles is expected any day now . . . Johnny Mercer, the singer and song-writer who has penned such hit tunes as "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby," "Pardon My Southern Accent," and "Lazy Bones," clicked big enough with the listeners to the Benny Goodman show to rate him a permanent job on that airing. He will act as announcer and emcee . . . The Phil Spitalny-Dorothy Thompson show is shopping around for a new spot to get away from the "Radio Theater" competition . . . Those who missed the Orson Welles "Men from Mars" fright-opus or wish to have a copy of that memorable broadcast for their files, will find a reprint of the script in RADIO GUIDE's new sister publication, Radio Digest, now on sale at all newsstands everywhere.

If current plans go through, the activities of the radio division of the Federal Theatre will be seriously curtailed, which will be a shame after the splendid records made by that division. Over fifty-eight different radio series have been produced by them in the last 2½ years and $5,000,000 worth of radio time given free by the stations. Among the outstanding shows were "Tish," over CBS, which was voted most popular sustainer on the network last spring; "Epic of America," and the current "Men Against Death," on CBS, a fine dramatic series based on Paul De Kruif's books. Graduates of the project include Minnie Dupree, who stole the picture "Young in Heart," Howard Da Silva, now in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," Ira Ashley, CBS director, and many other radio actors and writers who received their chance on the radio division.

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

Jean Hersholt "Vacations" in New York

Jean Hersholt is in New York on his annual vacation and is broadcasting his dramatic series, "Dr. Christian," from CBS Playhouse No. 2 each Tuesday night. Hersholt is the guiding genius of the actors and actresses assembled for the program. Tall, well set up, looking many years younger than his admitted age, he is easy in manner before the microphone, reads his lines easily, and his gestures and facial expressions are uncannily like those you would expect from your favorite family physician. Rehearsals are held on the day of the broadcast from 10 a.m. until early afternoon. Dress rehearsal begins promptly at 9 p.m., with everyone reporting in full evening clothes. Mrs. Hersholt, tall, dark and distinguished-looking, attends every rehearsal here and in Hollywood. She says she does so because her husband requests it. "Jean says he feels more comfortable if I am around," she explains. Their visit to New York, which will terminate about the first of February, hasn't been much of a vacation after all. Hersholt, known as one of the most progressive and charitable personalities in the movie world, is vitally interested in the Motion Picture Relief Fund, of which he is president; is chairman of the executive committee of the Screen Actors Guild, and a member of the board of directors of AFRA and the Theatre Authority. Much of his time has been spent attending meetings of these organizations. He has also made two guest appearances on other radio programs, and up to this writing managed to see six shows on Broadway.

Cantor Can Clown

Despite the fact that I listened to Eddie Cantor's last broadcast from New York while I was eating dinner at home, I went over to the studio later to watch the repeat broadcast, which goes on at 10:30 p.m. in the East for listeners in the Midwest and West. When Cantor came out on stage to welcome the audience, he noticed a little boy sitting in the front row. "Aren't you out late tonight; how old are you?" he asked. The youngster replied, "Nine years old." Then addressing the woman sitting next to him, who turned out to be the boy's mother, he said: "I'd like to see you later. I have a daughter about his age, and maybe we can get together." This started the chuckles. When Cantor mentioned it was the last broadcast from New York, there were a great many "oh's" from the audience and the musicians in the band. Cantor responded, "Maybe you'll really miss us, but those musicians only said 'oh' because they'll miss the money." He then walked over to the girls who sing in the chorus and kissed each one of them and said, "It's all right, Ida isn't here tonight."

Cantor Can Be Serious

That, ladies and gentlemen, is Cantor the comedian. But he can also be serious—very serious. During his stay in New York most of his spare time was spent attending luncheons and playing benefits to raise money for the unfortunate refugees. He stopped off in Chicago en route to California to attend a luncheon to raise money for the same cause, and his eyes took on an added sparkle when he told me he was out to help raise two million dollars. More power to you, Eddie Cantor, and I hope you will be with us a long time to carry on your great work.

Bert Parks His "Varieties" Script

I happened to drop in on a Ray Bloch rehearsal over at CBS and caught the farewell program of announcer Bert Parks. Bert was saying his goodbys in preparation for his Hollywood trip with the Cantor troupe, and everybody reversed the usual procedure and seemed quite happy about the whole affair. Ray's "Varieties" is over a year old and one of Columbia's funniest and best musical afternoon shows. Ray says it's the show where anything can happen, and after watching the boys cut up for a while, I began to agree with him. Ray rehearses the band in windmill style, using both arms and no baton. Being a lefty, he emphasizes the left arm with novel results, especially when you're used to watching normal bandleaders. Bert Parks disdains studying his script and plans dire things for Bloch, with whom he has been feuding on the air for a year. When the broadcast goes on, the ad-libbing begins, and Bloch, Parks, Barry Wood and Audrey Marsh take turns at ribbing one another. It's a thoroughly pleasant broadcast and one which the cast enjoys just as much as the radio audience.

Behind the "Seen"

At a "For Men Only" rehearsal, Peter Van Steeden, the maestro, leads the band with one garter trailing on the floor. He is completely unaware of this flaw in his sartorial perfection, and as he glances behind him seems puzzled at the smiles of amusement he finds mirrored on the faces around the studio . . . Ezra Stone, the red-haired rascal of the "Aldrich Family" sketches on the Kate Smith Hour, who usually wears a sweater and slacks for his broadcasts, dressed immaculately in white tie and tails as he attended the repeat broadcast of Ben Bernie on a Sunday night . . . At a CBS Playhouse Phil Baker rehearsing "Deep in a Dream" on his accordion. A chap sits on a stool near by and beams HOLLYWOOD.—This small town of big names staged two premieres over the week-end; will usher in the Kellogg whopper of the year January 15, which falls between my writing and your reading dates. But as for the newcomers—well? . . . Wrigley's "Gateway to Hollywood" must pack a lot more action into its first fifteen minutes than the opener yielded; enough talk and back-patting is enough. And here's hoping that the talent auditions are conducted with meticulous care not to break any more hearts than already are smashed in the routine drift of allegedly talented youngsters toward the magnetic lure of Hollywood's gold and glamour . . . As for the Gulf-oiled "Screen Guild Show," it's a natural if it can maintain the first edition's pace. Those Screen Actors Guild members who packed the studio audience had best understand, however, that their wooden-handed overapplause at the least possible excuse sounded over the air just like it was a phony, overdone build-up . . . Nope, your reporter hasn't turned sour, and to prove it here's plums for that grand Stephen Foster memorial Alex Woolcott gave out on January eighth's Magic Key. Won't someone please bring Alex back to the air in a regular series?

Rom-Antics of Vallee, et al.

Wonder if the Palm Springing Judy Stewart knows about her Rudy Vallee and the lovely ex-Desmond's model—and right under Judy's nose, too? Well, Rudy leaves for the East again after his January 26 airing here, so maybe she can put him back under control . . . Tyrone Power's mother has Annabella as house guest, and as star boarder, Tyrone! . . . Honeychile (Patricia) Wilder and Skinnay Ennis, who both talk cracker, have found the "real thing," according to Honeychile, which indicates that it may stick for at least two weeks . . . That looks genuine between Virginia Verrill and Bob Parrish

. . . Helen Wood, the "Those We Love" and RKO Pictures brunet pretty, is still dating publicist Bob Taplinger, she thinks, but fears that his mind is having dates with publicity ideas while he is holding her hands . . . The Wayne Morris-Bubbles Schinasi wedding gift from her ma was a trifling five-acre Brentwood estate and home valued at $60,000!

Our Sympathy to Andy and Wife

On Thursday night, January 5, Amos 'n' Andy gave their early broadcast as usual. Immediately after, Andy raced to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital to greet the long-impending stork; a few minutes later became the happy father of his first child, a girl. His joy turned quickly to tragedy. The infant died an hour after birth. Broken-hearted, he was so unstrung that he couldn't do the late repeat broadcast that night. His eleven-year partner, Amos, carried on alone, taking Andy's lines himself and changing them, as he went along, to quotations and third person statements, an amazing feat. Next night, Andy begged to remain at the bedside of his wife, the former Alyce McLaughlin, and Amos, aided this time by Genevieve Blue, did the episode. Fortunately, Mrs. Correll has withstood the shock; is convalescing comfortably.

Bugs and Juries Lay Stars Low

Gracie Allen, running a fever of 103 degrees, defied her doctor to broadcast on the Chesterfield Show of January 6, and Jack Benny, though bitten also by the flu bug, dashed to New York to appear before the grand jury, which, having no sense of humor, indicted him for smuggling. Third cold-sufferer of the week was Edgar Bergen, whose voice, strangely enough, failed to show the hoarseness that was evident in the mouthings of Charlie McCarthy. Cecil B. DeMille, on the other hand, was hospitalized by a glandular disorder resulting from overwork and was ordered to stay off his feet. He did, but he appeared just the same on Lux Theater, reclining on an ambulance couch-bed.

Off a Live Mike

Nelson Eddy sings his swan song January 29 on the coffee hour; will be replaced February 5 by Donald Dickson while Eddy concert tours. And the tour can't be too long for certain of the coffee crew! . . . This is Hollywood: George Burns, eating lunch on one side of the Brown Derby, Carole Lombard on the other, and both wearing berets . . . That new Kellogg Circle, by the way, really is that. The stars all sit at a round table so no one will be closer to the microphone than the others. The program's "laughs, but no applause" edict, in emulation of Kraft Music Hall, has our hooray-and-happy-days! Incidentally, the little-heard-of-lately Col. Stoopnagle is writing gags for the Marx Brothers' use on the Kellogg hour . . . Irene Rich is doing a slow burn because her NBC sponsor wouldn't okay her guest-starring one week on Lux Theater . . . A bill before the California State Legislature would exempt radio stations from liability for slander. If passed, won't the radio gossips go to town! . . . Funny girl, that Martha Raye, a perfect riddle. Despite all her hoydenish manners, Martha is seriously continuing her nursing studies; now may assist in surgery cases.

Speaking of Dogs—

Although Don Wilson vented his usual hearty, uproarious laugh as the dwarf Happy in Jell-O's "Snow White and the Seven Gangsters" burlesque, he didn't feel that way. His favorite hunting-dog, Mike, an Irish setter, had just died, and Mike's son was ailing too at the veterinary hospital. More luck was Andy Devine's, whose favorite coon hound, Bessie, presented him with seven puppies. The mother was one of six dogs of the breed that Lum's Abner gave Andy last summer. Funny story, that one about Raymond Paige's inability to take a streamliner east last week because the fast trains didn't make enough stops. Seems that conductor Paige, whose new airshow starts February 22, took along his pet airedale, Punch, and Punch likes his trees ever so often. Hence a slower train with more stops! Al Pearce is having mutt trouble, too, with Sandra, a nine-month-old Great Dane but fully grown. Sandra almost wrecked all his furniture before he decided to board her at a kennel until he could have a reinforced-concrete dog-house built.

Back Stage Stuff

Best-dressed artist yet at NBC's Hollywood Radio City was dusky Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, who turned up at the New Year Benny show in top hat, white tie and tails, on his arm his girl friend formally rigged in snow-white tulle . . . Bing Crosby sat on needles just prior to his January 5 Music Hall airing; his guest, Roland "Topper" Young, had been called to the bedside of his ailing wife ninety minutes before airtime. Bing didn't know whether he'd have Young back in time or not until a bare ten minutes before the show started, when the breathless guest dashed into the studio . . . At Texaco Star Theater, January 4, Jimmy Wallington was making his prebroadcast speech to the audience when an irate waiter from the Brown Derby dashed onto the stage, handed a dinner check to Jimmy, and loudly protested that Wallington had

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

First Reading

CHICAGO.—I "covered" Edgar A. Guest's show from first rehearsal to actual performance, and I saw just how much effort was spent in preparing the program. At 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening director Henry Klein has his first rehearsal in one of the smaller CBS studios. First reading, it's called, and in the top picture you can see the performers in a huddle with Mr. Klein and assistant director Jim Cominos. Since a different success story is dramatized weekly, different characters are used in every show. Jim has to know all the actors in town, just what they can do, and what parts they play best. Then Mr. Klein and he discuss the cast and choose the players. When the artists appear for first rehearsal, their parts have already been assigned. First rehearsal lasts a couple of hours and it is held to familiarize the actors with their parts. No timing is taken, but after getting pointers, tips and hints from the genial director, the actors really get the feel of their parts.

Early Breakfast

Wednesday morning at 7:30 your Tattler dashed over to the Drake. Edgar A. Guest, star of the show, arrives from Detroit at 7, and it is an unwritten law that the Messrs. Klein and Cominos join the famed poet in his hotel room for breakfast. For four years now the breakfasts have been "on Eddie." It is at this time that the show is discussed with Mr. Guest and poems are selected for the broadcast.

The Guest Arrives

About 11 o'clock, the guest of the show makes his appearance in the studio after a comfortable night's sleep and a hearty breakfast at the Drake. Floyd Roberts, winner of the 1938 Indianapolis auto races, was the guest the week I covered the show. He is introduced to Mr. Guest and members of the cast, and the kindly poet and the actors make him feel "right at home." It is at this time, too, that the honored guest reads his lines before a mike. And here is where director Klein, in a calm and fatherly manner, leads the radio novice through the hazardous perils of a first reading.

Lunch "on Eddie"

At 12:30 everybody adjourns for lunch in the Wrigley Building restaurant with Mr. Guest as the host. "Bugs" (rough spots) are discussed and straightened out, and the show sounds swell when another rehearsal is held after lunch. At 3 o'clock the actors make way for the musicians. Bob Trendler directs the orchestra and chorus, with Mr. Klein supervising the entire rehearsal.

At 6 o'clock, for the first time, the complete show, music and all, is gone over in its entirety. This is the initial "dress rehearsal," and everybody is now dressed formally. The show runs a couple of minutes overtime, so at dinner, when Mr. Guest again presides, Mr. Klein figures out "cuts"—portions of the show which can be eliminated without destroying the continuity of the program. The last "dress" (rehearsal) is held after dinner, and a few minutes before 9 o'clock, while the audience streams in, the performers go out for a final smoke.

The Show Is On!

Your Tattler watched the show from the control room. Director Klein has no watch, but was constantly looking up to see if the show was "on the nose" (running on schedule) or losing or gaining time. At one point the show was a minute short, but director Klein deftly "stretched out" the remaining portion so that it finished "on the nose." Included among the signals that engineer Harlan Gregg and assistant director Cominos give Mr. Klein during the show at various times were: Placing a finger or hand on nose (on the nose); putting hand across throat as if cutting it (meaning "cut"); and stretching an imaginary string (meaning "stretch it out").

Plenty of Work

And everything I've written so far still doesn't include all the work that goes into the show. How are the guests engaged? Well, the name of the show is "It Can Be Done." Through magazines, newspapers and books, Jim Cominos searches for successful people whose stories might fit into the show. Names are submitted to Mr. Klein, who gives the final okay to the choices. Care must be taken that those selected are really worthy of the honor. Then correspondence begins. In practically all instances the guests are only too glad to appear on a nationwide Columbia hook-up. When a guest has been chosen, he sends in his complete biography. Then script-writers Lucille and Morris Fisher get to work transforming the material into script form. The honored guest arrives on the day preceding the show. On Tuesday afternoon he goes to the Palmolive Building, where the offices of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborne, the advertising agency handling the program, are located. There the script is read to the visitor. Usually the guest is thoroughly pleased with the script, but sometimes he wants a few changes made and these are complied with. Well, I hope I've given you a little idea on how much effort goes into a weekly half-hour show. That bald spot you see on Mr. Klein's pate was certainly not caused because of the ease with which half-hour Coast-to-Coast shows are strung together.

Bits About the Show

Edgar A. Guest never looks at the script when reading his poems. He knows most of his writings by heart and so finds it unnecessary to "follow copy" . . . Floyd Roberts, honored guest, said that he didn't have much to do with airplanes because he thought they were too dangerous. He thinks nothing, though, of driving an auto 117 miles per hour on a race-track . . . Forrest Lewis played the part of Robert in the dramatization. Others in the cast included Ed Prentiss, Willard Waterman, Michael Romano, Bill Amsdell, Olan Soule and youthful Frankie Adams. The last-named actor played the part of "Skippy" when it was on the air . . . Show always has an announcer and a narrator, and these are, respectively, Vincent Pelletier and Bret Morrison . . . Sound-effects men certainly had a workout. Auto races, crashes and crowd noises kept both sound-chief Urban Johnson and his assistant, Lee Randon, plenty busy . . . Noticed Bob Trendler is one of those rarities—a left-handed orchestra-leader . . . That was the Doring Sisters, good-looking trio formerly heard on the "Laugh Liner" show, who comprise the feminine element in the "Household Finance" chorus.

Tattler's Tidbits

Edward G. Robinson dashed over to Art Institute between trains en route to New York . . . Month-end parties include Marek Weber's shindig for his musicians in celebration of the beginning of the maestro's second year on the "Contented Hour" and Eileen Palmer's birthday party January 29 for fellow members of the "Scattergood Baines" cast . . . By the way, have you read "Don't Touch a Blind Man's Dog," by Bob Becker in RADIO GUIDE's new sister publication, Radio Digest? Don't miss this surprising story of a Seeing Eye dog in Radio Digest, on sale at all newsstands.

1. Many applications for listening-centers are received. Elmer G. Sulzer, U. K. radio director, assistant Lucile Thornton study one

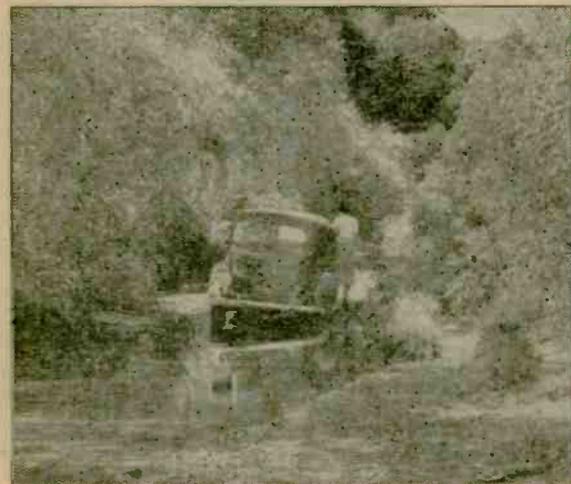

2. They decide to establish the center at the home of Jim Terry at Yellow Mountain in Knott County. That means an arduous trip. The car proceeds into the heart of the hills (above); but last lap of journey must be on foot

3. A common sight in Kentucky, a suspension bridge over Troublesome Creek. This creek is famed in "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come"

4. On the way to Yellow Mountain is another typical sight, a crude corn-mill operated by a dam's water power from Troublesome Creek

6. Deeper into the recesses, the car can still travel as the start up Salt Lick Creek is made. The going is slow and wet but not hazardous yet

RADIO COMES TO YELLOW MOUNTAIN

THE University of Kentucky is probably the only educational institution in the country that controls both the sending and receiving ends of their broadcasting activities. For ten years that university has conducted regular broadcasts over WHAS, Louisville, Kentucky. Their "Listening Center" idea has been in operation since 1933, and its growth to the present 30 centers has been steady. The listening-center directors maintain their battery sets in operating condition and must make the university broadcasts available to all the people of the community. They may tune in any beneficial type of program at their discretion. Isolation from transportation and communication is the chief factor in the establishment of a listening-center. Through the cooperation of the National Youth Administration, Corsia Whitaker, a mountain girl, makes the rounds of the hazardous hill trails organizing and supervising the activities. These mountain people are natively shrewd, not the ignorant hillbillies often pictured by writers and artists.

5. Students of Caney School, Breathitt County, check out books from Homeplace Travelling Library. Hillfolk are underprivileged but alert

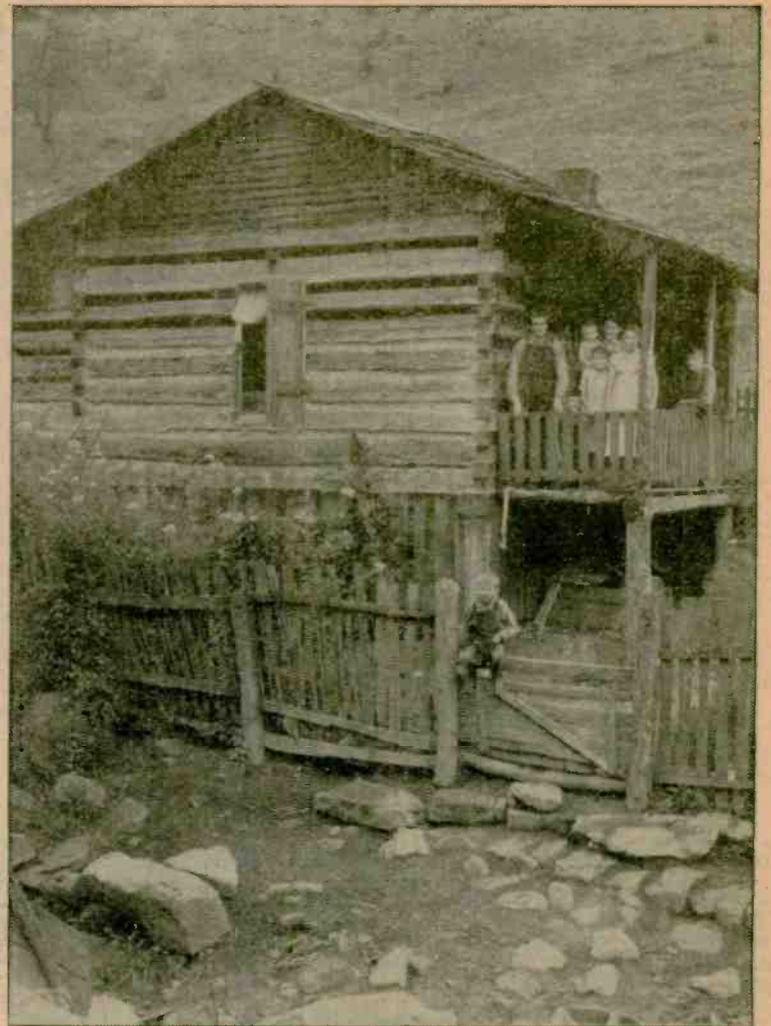

7. The mailman is passed as the "road" becomes tougher. Director Sulzer has worn out a car a year in the work. Mailman makes 28 miles daily

8. Picturesque one-room, windowless cabins dot the hillsides in remote sections. The people are naturally keen, friendly

9. End of the road for car. Sulzer loads Claude Conley, local man, with radio as Miss Whitaker stands by and watches

10. Finally the expedition reaches Jim Terry's place, where Jim and family greet them from porch. Jim was born in the cabin, has lived all his life there, characteristic of hillfolk

11. Miss Whitaker fills air-cell A battery. Rural electrification is scarce, but listeners are proud of elementary battery sets

12. When Sulzer gets set connected, neighbors will flock in, many to hear their first program. They listen purposefully

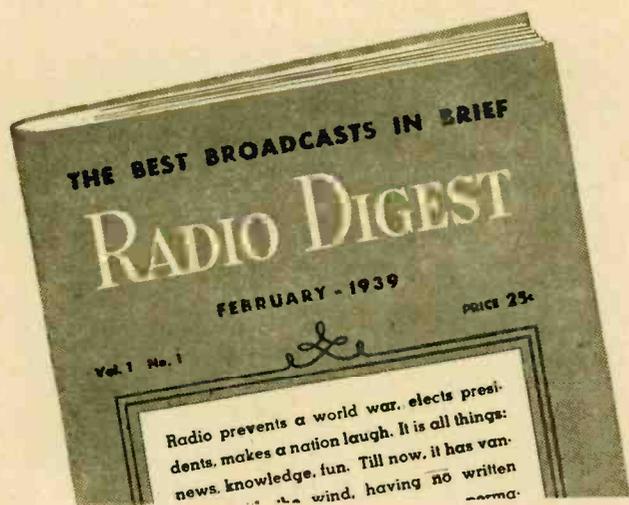

13. It works! And news, music and drama comes to the people of Yellow Mountain, as it is coming to others in the mountain fastnesses long denied by circumstances the blessings available to more fortunate people elsewhere. Radio-education makes it possible

14. Back to the sending end. Some programs for the University of Kentucky listening-centers reach the air through the antenna tower of WHAS, 50,000-watt station in Louisville, Kentucky approvingly at the jester's interpretation. He's Eddie De Lange, Baker's new bandleader, who wrote the hit tune . . . "Okay, give us 30 whenever you're ready to start," a fellow on the stage during a "Johnny Presents" practice session informs the control-room men. Which brings to mind that both radio and newspapers use the same phrase, but in radio 30 means to begin while in fourth-estate parlance it signifies the end.

One of Kay Kyser's musicians dons the maestro's professorial cap and gown used during "College of Musical Knowledge" and starts to give a burlesqued conception of the maestro at the microphone. Kyser walks in, the musician hastily disrobes and retreats back to his seat in utter confusion, kicking over a saxophone and a fiddle while Kyser grins . . . Franchot Tone is glimpsed in amiable conversation with a matronly looking woman as he guides her through a crowd of autograph-seekers backstage to the CBS Playhouse from where the Kate Smith show emanates. The loungers start to conjecture as to her identity, but eavesdropping proved they didn't know. She was Elaine Sterne Carrington, writer of the daily serial "Pepper Young's Family," who also pens the radio material for the screen star . . . Lucille Manners, the soprano, dressed in a lavish evening gown, stoops to pet a mongrel dog outside Radio City, and the puppy trots after her to her car, where it jumps on the front seat and refuses to budge. The car gets under way with the dog still in it . . . At the "Hobby Lobby" rehearsal, Dave Elman asking a couple of page-boys to get some flies for the albino frogs brought to the studio by a hobbyist. One lad shrugs his shoulders. "That's not difficult," he says. "Why, a couple of weeks ago we had to get some worms for walking fish!" . . . At Columbia's Playhouse No. 3, the songstress, Joan Edwards, calls the dances while the Modernaires do a comic square dance . . . And Paul Whiteman stomps his feet . . . At Columbia's studio 21, rhythm-singer Nan Wynn and Buddy Clark read nice, friendly lines to each other—without raising their eyes from the script. Still feuding . . . At the Tommy Riggs rehearsal, songstress Bea Wain lurching on—bird's-nest soup and chow mein.

Several columns ago, I asked the readers of this department to give me their opinion as to which band they considered the best, Benny Goodman or Tommy Dorsey. The response was better than anticipated, so thanks to all of you who took the trouble to write. Goodman won out, but only by a very slight margin. Some of those voting for B. G. stated they had a difficult time in making their decision. Miss A. F. of Delaware, Ohio, writes, "I think Artie Shaw has them both beat." Mr. L. N. Schisler, who runs a music shop in Macomb, Illinois, writes his first "fan" letter, as he calls it, and admits it's hard to choose between them. He states he and his record customers like them both. Thanks again for your opinions.

walked out of the restaurant without paying his bill. The gag was a frame-up by writer Hal Block and producer Bill Bacher. At the same show, hubby Jon Hall whispering encouragement to the debuting Frances Langford—unnecessarily, as it turned out, for she wowed her listeners.

Cantor Defies Hoodoo Day

Eddie Cantor returned to Hollywood a year ago on a Friday the thirteenth. He repeated this month, and could see no trouble ahead unless that ordinarily to be expected from the Mad Russian . . . Fanny Brice is dieting—to wear her Baby Snooks costume . . . Jack Haley invited twenty-five midgets from the M-G-M "Wizard of Oz" cast to be guests at his broadcast—and then seated them in twelve seats! . . . The Rose Bowl game gave Meredith Willson a hoarse voice and "Good News" writer Morey Amsterdam an idea. He'd have Willson imitate Andy Devine. Came the rehearsals for the January 5 airshow, and the musical conductor's voice had returned to normal; he no longer could do a Devine. So that was the reason for the yelling, shouting and screaming in his dressing-room just before dress rehearsal. He was regaining his hoarseness with a vengeance . . . Tommy Riggs, with Betty Lou but no railroad ticket for her, will check into Hollywood early in February; another film brews for him . . . Off the air because of Archie's illness, "Frank Watanabe (Eddie Holden) and the Honorable Archie (Reggie Sharland)" have returned via KHJ-Don Lee stations Sunday to Tuesday nights inclusive at 9:15 p.m. PST. The pair were great favorites on their previous run . . . Bing Crosby and Bob Hope played an exhibition golf match last Sunday, tied with two birdies on the fifteenth hole, and both decided to quit, as they couldn't top that. Bing has posted $3,000 in cash prize-money for the annual Crosby amateur-pro tourney January 28 at Rancho Sante Fe, and also will spend $2,000 more on the all-night barbecue for the entrants and press . . . Frank Morgan is now a recognized LIAR, elected as such at the annual meeting of the officers of the Burlington Liars Club, who made the "Good News" comedian a life member.

Flicker Flicks

Joan Blondell canceled her eastern radio-guesting dates to accept the lead opposite Bing Crosby in his forthcoming Universal picture, which went before the cameras last week . . . Don Ameche's best screening yet may be the Paramount picture he's just finished with Claudette Colbert as co-star . . . Skinnay Ennis will make the music for Columbia's next Blondie film, "Blondie Steps Out" . . . That lot has just signed Joe E. Brown to a two-year pact . . . Shirley Ross and Martha Raye both join Bob Hope in "The Cat and the Canary."

Last Line from Lum and Abner

"Advice is a lot like money. You gotta git a store of it in the cash-box afore you kin afford to go givin' any of it away." By the way, don't miss the reproduction of the script of one of radio's all-time classics, the famous "Lum and Abner" Christmas broadcast. Records of the Week

A department reviewing the recordings of your radio favorites

SWING had a very healthy year in 1938, judging from record sales and commercial radio bookings, and the first releases of 1939 augur well for another batch of strong swing-aros; so this week we dedicate our entire column to the jitterbugs. The recent "Swing Session with Benny Goodman" and Bix Beiderbecke compositions, recorded by Bunny Berigan and his men, have already been mentioned in these columns, and this week another remarkable album is out, the Bob Crosby Showcase, a fine collection of varied and intelligent swing, with bass-player Bob Haggart the personal star of the group—not only because of his playing but his composing and arranging. There are 12 sides, as follows:

Summertime, the Crosby theme, well played, of course.

I'm Free, Haggart-composed, featuring throughout the superlative trumpet work of Billy Butterfield, and it is one of the prettiest tunes you ever heard.

Speak to Me of Love and The Big Bass Viol, which spotlights singer Marion Mann, ably backed by the Bob Cats, picked swingmen from the band.

I Hear You Talking and Call Me a Taxi, by four of the Bob Cats, all four who rated first places in Paul Whiteman's choice of the All-American swing band—Zurke on piano, Beauduc on drums, Miller on tenor-sax and Haggart on bass. Zurke stars.

Honky Tonk Train, written by boogie-woogie pianist Mead Lux Lewis, which gives Bob Zurke another chance to prove Mr. Whiteman's choice an excellent one.

The Big Noise From Winnetka disproves any theory that drums and bass can't carry a whole record alone. Beauduc-Haggart.

Loopin' the Loop is more good swing by the Bob Cats.

My Inspiration is another Haggart tune, starring clarinetist Fazola, and good.

Swingin' at the Sugar Bowl—the one weak spot in the batch.

I'm Prayin' Humble—magnificent style borrowed from the Carolina spiritual singers, rollicking and inspired. Haggart again.

Next in line for a little hat-throwing is Benny Goodman's newest—a five-clarinet festival written by the blind pianist, Alec Templeton, Bach Goes to Town. Swing fugues are not entirely new, but nobody ever half approached the perfection of this one (Victor). Benny must be inspired lately by the close race he is getting from another clarinet man around town, Mr. Artie Shaw. Artie's latest is a full-bodied reading of a good commercial tune, Say It With a Kiss (Bluebird).

Comes now the screwball tune, Hold Tight. This one tops all the flat-foot floogies, tutti-frutti's and tisket-a-taskets. It's subtitled "Want Some Seafood Mama," and is sung by the Andrews Sisters; Jimmy Dorsey in solid background (Decca).

Don Redman, one-time top swing band, makes a worthy reappearance on wax with Down Home Rag. The rest of his new issues are over-vocal'd (Bluebird).

LISTENING TO LEARN

... A Ceaseless Search, an Unquenched Thirst for Knowledge ...

Person-to-Person

• Announcement comes from Elmer G. Sulzer that the University of Kentucky's new radio program booklets are now available to all who request them. Highlight of the second semester's schedule is a new series of "on the spot" broadcasts from various Kentucky industries, such as lumbering, coal mining, cigarette manufacturing, etc. This series marks the first time in several years that the U. K. microphones have been taken any considerable distance from the studios to pick up programs of this nature.

• Product of a unique combination of Department of the Interior experts and Columbia network technicians, directors and actors is a series to be premiered on January 28. Titled "What Price America," the programs will show the United States' bitter fight to regain its priceless resources. Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Sterling Fisher, Columbia's director of education and talks, are expected to speak on the opener.

• Recent visitor at Indiana State Teachers' College was Dr. Earl A. Moore of Western Kentucky State Teachers' College. W. K. S. T. C. plans to build a radio studio on the campus and Moore was sent to get ideas on studio arrangement. Unique in many respects is Dr. Morgan's I. S. T. C. set-up with commercial station WBOW gladly donating time and school radio equipment that didn't cost a fortune.

• Get ready for eleven trips to as many interesting and strange parts of the world if you are a follower of the "New Horizons" series in Columbia's American School of the Air schedule. Again under the supervision of Hans Christian Adamson of the American Museum of Natural History, this series for the second semester, starting February 1, follows the paths of adventure and discovery of great scientists. To give listeners a visual aspect of these explorations, maps prepared by Thomas Voter, of the American Museum, will appear weekly in RADIO GUIDE. First-hand acquaintance with many of the world's great scientists and explorers living today will be another outstanding feature of the second semester's outline.

• Teachers' manuals outlining the entire second semester's schedule of American School of the Air broadcasts are available to all educators. Best procedure for securing copies is by writing to your nearest Columbia affiliate station or direct to the Columbia Broadcasting System, New York City.

• Directly following one after the other, Progressive Education Association and National Education Association meet in conference next month. P. E. A. meeting will be in Detroit, Michigan, February 22-25; N. E. A. school administrators convention in Cleveland, Ohio, February 25 to March 2. It's about time that a discussion of "radio" be considered at the general sessions.

• Alameda, California, educators find the fifteen-minute radio program best for pupils and that it is desirable to have classroom programs come over the same station at the same time every day. —J. H.

Eavesdropping On a Bull Session As College Youth Speaks Its Mind

"BULL SESSION" probably dates back to the first two or three men who had an idea and the desire to discuss it. But the regular practise of "bull sessions" gained its greatest impetus among students so that today the term is most closely associated with the informal gatherings of college men who come together to smoke at ease and talk about the things that interest them most.

That there is much in the average "bull session" to interest the participants needs no defense here or elsewhere; and that there is much in an average "bull session" to interest the general public has been proved by the University Broadcasting Council through the facilities of station WBBM, Chicago.

Masters at the art of building informal discussion-type programs are members of the University Broadcasting Council. In tackling the job of capturing the atmosphere of the average college "bull session" for radio listeners, Parker Wheatley, UBC man supervising this program, faced a really difficult assignment. To begin with, the usual practise of using scripts and rehearsals had to be abandoned for fear of killing the true spirit of the "bull session," strict informality. To overcome this difficulty Wheatley assembles the men in a clockless studio at least one-half hour before broadcast time, has them seated in comfortable chairs arranged in a circle. They are then served refreshments and left alone. By the time the program goes on the air they are usually warmed up to whatever subject they strike on and the "bull session" is caught right at its most interesting peak. Significant also is the fact that the men do not know when they are on the air and when they are talking to a dead mike; and they usually are not informed that the program is off the air for fifteen or twenty minutes after they have been signed off. The free association method employed in these programs allows any student to break in and speak his thoughts as a question is tossed back and forth and developed.

Indication of interest among participants has been shown by the fact that 150 students competed in tryouts from the University of Chicago. Fifty of them got as far as the microphone auditions, and from this group seven or eight were selected to take part in the actual broadcast. Selection is based entirely on student's ability to think before a microphone, which eliminates the possibility of formal debaters or orators dominating the program. By this procedure any student with ideas gets a chance to prove his worth.

Both college men and coeds have been used in these programs, but experience has shown that each group works better alone; that mixed groups show a tendency to allow a question to lag or to allow the other to take the lead in the discussions. According to Parker Wheatley, men talk more readily and literally "out-talk" the women's groups on all questions brought up of interest to the world today.

Ever since November 5, 1938, the "Bull Session" has been a weekly local program feature of station WBBM in Chicago. During this two-month period students from Northwestern University, De Paul, Illinois, and the University of Chicago have been heard. Requests have been received from many other colleges and universities, and if the program gets a regular network berth, there is every indication that the plan will be expanded to include other groups.

Test spots were given this program on the Columbia network January 14 and 21. If national response measures comparatively with the interest and comment it aroused in the Midwest as a local feature of station WBBM, it's a cinch to become a regular Columbia network feature.

Free-for-all, knock-down-and-drag-out "bull sessions" aroused much interest in the Midwest. Atmosphere of studio is purely informal

For Alameda Schools It's All Drama

Drama's the thing in Alameda, California. Not an early pioneer but one that is making definite contributions to vitalized radio-education, the Alameda City School of the Air began presenting programs for classroom listening in 1933 under the jurisdiction of the Alameda Board of Education. It was soon decided that the dramatized lesson performed the most beneficial job in the classroom, and today it's all drama for Alameda schools and the nearly 800 others within the listening range of station KLX. Deserving of close study are Alameda's arguments in favor of the dramatized lesson:

1. More realistic and interesting
2. Holds attention of pupils more closely and impresses them more deeply
3. Improves retention of facts
4. Makes easier the formation of desirable emotional sets
5. Best motivator of classroom activity
6. Gives the teacher greater opportunity to improve the pupils' taste
7. Most influential in bringing school closer to home and community
8. Develops greater appreciation of literature.

Examination of the staff, which under Erle A. Kenney's direction writes and presents Alameda's weekly schedule of dramatizations, suggests the reason why the Alameda City School of the Air has had such promising results with dramatized lessons. No amateur jobs are turned out here, because the scriptwriters all have had some background of training and experience in writing, and the actors a background of training and experience in dramatics. Kenney supervises the writing and dramatic staffs to guarantee the educational validity of the programs. To keep him in touch with teachers' needs and educators' opinions, an advisory council that works without authority, as advisory councils should, assists him in his work.

So noteworthy is the work being done by the Alameda City School of the Air that it has been voted first in the field of school broadcasting in a two-year survey by Princeton University and George Peabody College for Teachers. Recognition has also come from the U. S. Office of Education and, through funds made available by the department of the Interior, another phase of education by radio is being carried on under the Alameda College of the Air. Programs in the college series deal with safety education, fire-prevention, parent education and juvenile delinquency, and here again all programs are dramatized.

Radio-education's battles are being fought out today by several such seldom-heard-of units as the Alameda City School and College of the Air. In one city the theory of dramatized education is being studied; in another, student and faculty participation is being experimented with; in still another, the possibilities of the ultra-high-frequency band just for education are being explored. What these pioneers, these experimenters, these explorers are doing is helping to make the future of education by radio, and whenever possible this department will bring their stories to you.

NBC-Adventure in Reading: KANS KGBX KTHS WREN (sw-15.33)

John Milton (1608-1674), who devoted his life and literary powers to upholding Puritan ideals, is the subject of today's Adventure. Son of a London broker, he was educated at Cambridge, three times married, totally blind at the age of forty-four. His "Paradise Lost" is the only piece of English literature which ranks with the great epics of other peoples.

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL. It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections. No MORE BUZZES, OLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F & H Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Anyone can connect it in a moment's time to the radio set—occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind the set, yet enables your radio to operate without an aerial and tune in stations over the entire broadcast band frequencies and short wave channels. ELIMINATE THE AERIAL FOR GOOD. Attach this unit to your radio—make your set complete in itself—forget aerial wires and troubles—move your set anywhere—no more roof climbing, unsightly lead-in or aerial wires. NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED. On the market five years, 100,000 customers in U.S. and foreign countries. In use from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Cannot harm set—Easily connected to any radio, including radios having no ground or radios for double aerial. Note: It will not operate on battery or automobile radios. 5 DAYS TRIAL. Mail coupon at once. Pay postman $3.00 plus a few pennies postage on delivery. If not entirely satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question. JUST MAIL THIS COUPON. F & H Radio Laboratories, Dept. 87, Fargo, N. Dak. Send $1.00 for Capacity Aerial. Will pay postman $1.00 plus few cents postage. If not pleased will return within 5 days for $1 refund. Check here if sending $1 with order—thus saving postage cost—same refund guaranteed. Check here if interested in dealer's proposition. NAME: ADDRESS: CITY: STATE:

On Short Waves

Edited by Chas. A. Morrison

President, International DX'ers Alliance

Times given are EST. For CST subtract 1 hour; MST, 2 hours; PST, 3 hours

AS MANY gates as there are months in the year; as many windows as there are days; as many pillars as there are hours are some of the remarkable features of Salisbury Cathedral, which is to be described over Daventry stations GSC, GSD and GSL, Sunday, January 22, at 6:50 p.m. EST. This 700-year-old building, reckoned to be the finest example of early English architecture in existence, dominates the beautiful Wiltshire landscape near Salisbury, England. . . . As Governor General Designate of Australia, H. R. H., the Duke of Kent, will broadcast a message of greetings to the Commonwealth on Australia Day, January 26, at 4 a.m. EST, over GSE, GSD and GSF. The talk will be heard again in recorded form at 8 a.m. EST, over GSF, GSG and GSJ, Daventry, England.

Short-wave station W9XA (26.45) of Kansas City, Mo., broadcasts news commentaries daily at 12:30 and 6 p.m. EST, and DX tips Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12:45 p.m. EST.

According to Frank Sekach of Detroit, Mich., the mysterious Italian station which is being heard with tremendous volume afternoons from 3 to 6:40 p.m. EST on 9.67 megs, is 2RO9, one of the new 100,000-watt Italian Imperial short-wave transmitters operating experimentally. Reception from 2RO9 is excellent until W3XAL appears on the same channel at 5 p.m. EST, after which time it is a toss-up as to which station will be heard, first one and then the other on top, with neither worth listening to. To further complicate this situation, the North American transmissions from Prague, Czechoslovakia, which are heard week-days except Saturdays from 7:55 to 10:50 p.m. EST are now being broadcast over OLR3B, also on 9.67 megs. The Czechoslovakian station is seldom heard through W3XAL, save as an annoying heterodyne whistle. Here we have an absurd three-cornered international dogfight for possession of this channel, with both broadcasters and listeners the losers.

HAT4 (9.125), Budapest, Hungary, is now broadcasting the latest news in Hungarian, Slovak, Carpathian, Russian and English, nightly except Saturdays from 7 to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 6 to 7 p.m. EST. The power of this station will soon be greatly increased.

HIGH - FREQUENCY HIGH-LIGHTS: John DeMyer of Lansing, Mich., writes the best time to log VUC2 (4.88) of Calcutta, India, is on Sunday mornings from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. EST, during which time church services in English are broadcast. . . . "Stazione Di Addis Ababa," of Addis Ababa, Italian Ethiopia, is definitely on the air and broadcasting daily from 1 to approximately 3 p.m. EST, on a frequency of 9.65 megs. . . . Another interesting station to try for is YI5KG (7.2), 1,000 watts, operated by I. Hassan, supervisor wireless station, Civil Airport, Baghdad, Iraq, and on the air daily from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. EST. . . . According to the National Radio Club, the following new commercial short-wave stations have recently been added to the JV network of Japan: JVV (7.255), JVV2 (9.665), JVV3 (11.725) and JVV4 (17.825). . . . Julius Pedersen of Bridgeport, Conn., writes the Danish short-wave station is now broadcasting Sundays from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. EST, over OZH2, on a new frequency of 15.32 megs. . . . Gerry Sayre, operator of OX2QY and W10XAB, on the recent MacGregor Arctic Expedition, now at home at 250 College St., Milton, Wis., writes that all reception reports on transmissions from Greenland have now been verified. Gerry is open for a job in either a police, broadcasting, or airways radio station, and any offers will be given careful consideration.

It is doubtful if W6XBE, the General Electric transmitter being installed on Treasure Island at San Francisco, Calif., will be opened for some months to come, since a modification of construction permit has been requested from the F. C. C., which will again delay completion of the new station for six months more.

Listeners to international short-wave station W2XAF often hear this group of South American entertainers. Center: Luis Orioli, Spanish announcer, heard on programs beamed to South American countries

High-Test OXYDOL represents a revolutionary new advance in laundry soap. And contains an amazing new ingredient that enables it to do these things as compared with old-fashioned bar and package soaps tested:—

- (1) Washes white clothes up to 15% whiter. (2) Gives up to TWICE THE SUDS. (3) Soaks dirt loose without scrubbing or boiling in as little as 10 minutes. (4) Makes clothes last 2 to 3 times longer from the standpoint of washday wear and tear, compared to clothes washed by old-fashioned methods. . . . Yet is safe as ever for washable colors, hands.

Get busy right now! Remember there is a new contest every day (except Saturdays and Sundays) for six weeks—eight chances each day to win a brand-new $100 bill - - with a $1,000 grand prize at the end of every week in addition! Start now—and enter as many times as you wish!

Ask for High-Test OXYDOL at your dealer's. Mail your entry today! Procter & Gamble.

Hints ON WINNING!

To make up a winning last line, notice that the jingle urges women to try the new High-Test OXYDOL. Imagine what happens when they do. Are washdays faster and easier? Are women surprised at the extra suds? Do clothes come out whiter and brighter? Make the last word in your last line rhyme with the last word in the first two lines. Foreexample:—"You'll get your clothes clean without fight" . . . "And make your whole wash a delight."

The above last lines are merely examples. You can probably think up any number of better ones in less than five minutes.

One of the best things to do is to write down all the words you can think of that rhyme with the word "bright". Words such as "light"—"kite"—"right"—etc. Then pick out the ones which seem to fit best, and build the last line around them.

And don't make the mistake of thinking your last line isn't good enough. Remember the old saying:—"Nothing ventured, nothing gained." Send your last line in now! Let the judges decide!
