OUR MORALS:
What Is Radio
Doing to Them?

Hands Up, You

These governments have a way with them, don't they? King Henry VIII, for instance. He is remembered as something of a card, and a glutton for food and women. What isn't so generally remembered is that he held a gun at the head of the Catholic Church, drove it out of England, and took over the church's land for himself in order to pay for his own incredible extravagances. Not that he had anything against the Catholic Church. He merely needed money, and the church had plenty of it. In the name of religious liberty and for the good of his subjects, so he told them, he drove out the old church and invented the Church of England.

It has happened many times since. Religion is older than governments and its goods are the accumulation of centuries. When the Russian Communists needed money, in the name of a new life they abolished their church and seized its properties. When Mexico needed funds, it did the same. Hitler has not yet grabbed the properties of German churches, for they are strong. Instead, he has followed the ancient pattern by attacking the rich but weak Jews and confiscating their possessions.

Now what does all this have to do with the picture of Uncle Sam and his surprising six-guns and black mask? Simply this: When a government grabs, it grabs for power. In those other days and in some countries today the church was or is all-powerful. In other countries, in this technical age, there has developed a new power. It is radio. It is the means by which a man may speak to every hamlet and every family in every hamlet at the same instant. It is the means by which the truth may be made known instantaneously, or a great lie may be told. It is the modern power supreme.

In our land, broadcasting belongs to the people, and its programs are created and produced by freely acting private individuals. We say what we wish within the bounds of decency. Through our representatives in Congress we have appointed Uncle Sam to act as a policeman to see that individual stations stay in their own channels, but we have never allowed anyone to select for us the sort of programs we may hear.

Yet there are those in the Government today who are saying we have no right to choose our own programs, that this is a function of a Government bureau. We have men who would, if they could get away with it, hold a six-gun to the head of every listener in America just as King Henry VIII held it to every Catholic in England four hundred years ago, and take away from us our right to listen to uncensored programs.

These are the men and theirs are the plans against which we must be on our guard. A free radio is essential for a free nation. Had Germany enjoyed a free radio, Herr Hitler could never have come into power. Europe would not now be a cauldron of fear and hate, and Czechoslovakia would not be a dis-emboweled and pitiful vassal state of Nazi Germany.

We must keep our radio free, impartial and tolerant.

We must continue to trust Uncle Sam with the important job of policing our aerial highways.

But we must see that he never becomes an aerial highwayman.

Thank You Note

If anyone recalls our open letter to a station-manager some weeks back, he may recall that we blamed a certain station for canceling a fine cultural program in favor of a fifteen-minute commercial. Promptly, a score of letters came from all parts of the country naming a station in the writer's own town as the anonymous offender. Obviously, the abuse was, and still is, widespread. However, we are cheered to know that the networks are conscious of the shoddy practise and are doing all they can to correct it.

Typical is the recent move in Chicago which brought to the Columbia Broadcasting System a second CBS station in the Chicago territory. To be candid, our original editorial was directed at CBS's WBBM right here in Chicago where RADIO GUIDE is published. Too many good network programs to which groups planned to listen were canceled because of slight local commercial offerings. Now, with WIND as their second station in the same area, the many fine CBS sustaining features are available at all times.

The move has corrected one of broadcasting's worst faults in one area. We hope other localities may have the benefit of some similar arrangement by equally progressive and straight-thinking radio-station operators.

Millionaire Discovered

We asked recently in this space for a millionaire angel who would back a young playwright until the whole range of possibilities of radio drama had been explored. That millionaire has been discovered—not as a person but as a corporation.

The National Broadcasting Company is the angel and Arch Oboler is the playwright. On Saturday, March 25, listeners heard the first of the Oboler dramas on the NBC-Red network. The National Broadcasting Company has given him a strong and satisfying group of players and is permitting him free rein in the development of his experiments. Remember the "Lights Out" series that Oboler once wrote? Recall "Alter Ego" which he did for Bette Davis' premiere with the new Texaco program last autumn. His "Rich Kid," in which Freddie Bartholomew starred on Rudy Vallee's program, was such a success that it has been repeated three times.

So at last radio is beginning to practise the principles we have advocated in these columns for three years. Radio is beginning to develop its own, discarding the worn-thin formulae of Hollywood and Broadway for something that will be vital and novel and important. From this beginning, great things may stem.

GREAT AMERICANS THINK ABOUT RADIO

WHAT RADIO HAS DONE FOR DRAMA

BY CECIL B. DE MILLE

ONE of the most vital franchises allowed the American people is the privilege of turning on and off their radios. With this sublime authority they can edit the world, bring its happenings to their own hearths, or stifle with infinite finality any program which in the least displeases them.

This is a highly dismaying thought to any artist and a constant spur to all who use the microphone as a medium. If for no other reason, radio is continually trying to improve, to widen its horizons, to bring the great things of the world closer to home.

My own province in radio is the drama, and like a good shoemaker I shall stick to my last. Drama has done much for radio. In the early days, it brought dignity and artistry to the experiment of entertaining people with commercial programs. It attracted a portion of the present audience which could not possibly be held by the run of dance music, inept ballyhoo and the endeavors of mediocre artists with which—despite the many great artists radio has created—our pioneer sets were filled. Drama, in short, helped to elevate radio to its present important place in American life. But radio has done much more for drama.

First of all, broadcasting has created the largest stage and the largest audience drama has ever had in the history of the world. Motion pictures, to be sure, play to many millions, and the potential audience of a picture like "Union Pacific," on which I have been at work for the past year, is several hundred million people. But surveys indicate that a single audience for one presentation of the Lux Radio Theater may include anywhere from 15,000,000 to 30,000,000 people—the program playing to an estimated 500,000,000 people each season. It's no wonder the "miracle of radio" is an overworked expression in conversation and on the air!

Seen from the above viewpoint, the Lux Radio Theater is now the largest theater in the world. But radio's contributions to the drama are more than physical. It has given the great artists of the stage an opportunity to entertain many millions more than they could ever reach within the limited compass of the legitimate theater, and has at the same time given the listening millions an opportunity to enjoy artists and productions which they would never otherwise know except by reputation. It has inspired the ingenuity of dramatists who have felt themselves confined by the limitations of the theater and who can appeal to the sheer imagination of the listeners with productions designed solely for the mind's eye. It has provided a complementary form of entertainment for pictures, and enabled audiences to know and like picture stars better because of the intimacy of radio.

In many ways, it has rejuvenated the drama, made it seem a new and always more vital art, and has provided outlets for many capable players, dramatists and technicians that the legitimate theater and pictures have failed to find place for.

Let us hope that it will soon reach its greater maturity, as an even greater medium for the drama, with the coming of television.

OUR RETURN TO DECENCY

WHAT IS RADIO DOING TO OUR MORALS? THIS STORY GIVES THE SURPRISING ANSWER

BY LORRAINE THOMAS

The pose above is of Barbara Luddy and Les Tremayne, stars of the popular radio program, "First Nighter." It suggests the normal, wholesome type of love-making which prevails in radio drama and which is helping to lift America out of the shockingly disgusting gutter indicated by many of the newspaper stories of real life today

THIS is to be an embarrassing, shocking article, and as I sit down to write it I wonder whether or not I shall succeed in treading successfully that fine line of narrow pathway which lies between justifiable frankness on the one hand and unwarranted candor on the other. For much of the material with which we have to deal in any discussion of our morals and what radio and other forces are doing to them must necessarily be frank.

The time has come to speak concerning the current battering being suffered by that shredded and tattered thing which we Americans call our moral code. Those of us who are parents of teen-age girls are desperately aware of what is happening. Those of us who are not parents have only to look about to see the confusion in which young and old alike flounder helplessly and hopelessly.

Well, what is happening? What is radio doing to our morals?

To answer quickly would be to open ourselves to the criticism of being narrow-minded and a blind protagonist of broadcasting. So we shall present the evidence gradually and, we hope, with whatever delicacy the subject permits.

But here, now, what is your own standard of morals? Is it Catholic, Protestant, Jewish? Was it learned by rote at your mother's knee or is it an accumulation of callouses left by harsh experience? Whatever your standard and however you got it, you must admit that much of it came to you through those simple means by which knowledge itself is spread: newspapers, books, plays, and movies.

And so it is today.

SO IT is today except that now radio also plays an important role. We listen, on the average, several hours apiece per day. Young or old, we receive thousands of impressions of personal relationships, of right and wrong, of what's done and what's not done, from the voices of the persons to whom we tune.

So radio, for better or worse as we shall presently understand, does loom large among the old factors. Such an old factor as newspapers, for instance. While more than 700 stations have been pouring their programs ceaselessly into our homes from early morning until after midnight with scarcely a slip—I can recall the Mae West furor and one or two others—what moral precepts have we got from the newspapers?

Here is one. Mrs. Helen Tiernan, who lived alone with her two children, had a lover who came frequently to spend the night. Her accommodations were so small that all four individuals, adults and children, had to share the same bed. The children became such an inconvenience to Mrs. Tiernan that she took her babes into a wood near Brookhaven, Long Island, hit each child in the head with a hammer, and then attempted to build a brush fire over the bodies to destroy them. The fact that the boy was not dead and lived to put the finger on his mother has nothing to do with the moral guidance we are afforded by the tale.

A splendid Autumn story for 1937 was that of the shooting of John Kimmel by his best friend, Paul A. Wright, who returned unexpectedly to his California home one evening and found his wife and Kimmel in a position so compromising that newspapers openly hinted at the abnormality of the relationship. Mr. Wright also shot Mrs. Wright dead that evening.

There was the case of Mariano Fanti, a Brooklyn businessman, whose secretary and assistant was Mrs. Bertha Nolan. Mrs. Nolan was also Mr. Fanti's mistress, in addition to which there was a Mrs. Fanti at home. Things came to a head when Mrs. Nolan, who had invested some of her money in the Fanti business, wanted it back. Mr. Fanti, fearing bankruptcy and fearing also that his own wife would hear of his duplicity, killed Mrs. Nolan by shooting her through the face with a .32 caliber revolver.

What do stories like those do to your moral standard, Mrs. Grundy?

Or this story?

Last year twelve-year-old Irene Giricz took the witness stand in a Pennsylvania court to testify that she had killed her father because she could no longer stand his abuse. He had raped her, she testified, the first time when she was four and thereafter until she shot him with his own rifle. His wife, the child's own mother, we learned, knew of the relationship, tried to stop it and failed.

Is there guidance there for our boys and girls? Or for any of us, for that matter? Is there guidance in any of the millions of newspaper stories which tell of love-nests and embezzlements and thievery?

Where does one turn? To books, perhaps? To literature? Let's see.

SHE wanted to borrow money, desperately. She heard him say:

"I don't like your collateral. What else have you to offer?"

"I—I have myself."

He said nothing. She spoke again:

"You said—you said you'd never wanted a woman as much as you wanted me. If you still want me, you can have me. Rhett, I'll do anything you say, but for God's sake write me a draft for the money . . ."

"Just a minute," he said. "What makes you think I still want you? What makes you think you are worth three hundred dollars. Most women don't come that high."

Then, finally . . .

"Now, let me get this straight, Scarlett. You are coming to me with a business proposition. I'll give you three hundred dollars and you'll become my mistress."

"Yes."

That was Scarlett O'Hara, the most widely publicized female heroine of the decade, offering to sell her body to Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind."

Moving southward into Florida, let's drop in on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gordon. He is a man of money, she a woman of experience. Each is guilty of infidelity.

"You have lipstick on your shirt," she said, "and over your ear."

"What about finding you lying on the couch with that drunken slob," he retorts.

It is the beginning of a dispute. Finally she tells him she is through with him. She has found another man who loves her.

"You're married to me."

"Not really. Not in the church. You wouldn't marry me in the church and it broke my poor mother's heart . . . My, I was a damned fool. I broke my own heart, too. Love was the greatest thing, wasn't it? I was your partner and your little black flower. Slop! Love is just another dirty lie. Love is ergoapiol pills to make me come around because you were afraid to have a baby. Love is quinine and quinine and quinine until I am deaf with it. Love is that dirty aborting horror that you took me to. Love is my insides all messed up. It's half catheters and half whirling douches. I know about love. Love always hangs up behind the bathroom door. It smells like lysol. To hell with love."

THAT, from last year's best-seller, "To Have and Have Not," by Ernest Hemingway.

Run down the list:

A man of wealth visits his mistress:

"Maud closed the door and playfully helped Christopher to undress. She opened buttons, slipped his garments off his shoulders. Deftly she folded the silk bedspread, and turned back the light quilt. Then, with two swift movements, she dropped her pale blue pajamas to the floor. Her breasts were high and well-rounded, with tips that were small and pink, like those of a young girl. Christopher lifted her onto the bed. Then he lay down beside her and took her in his arms."

So wrote the eminent writer, Elmer Rice, in "Imperial City."

Purple passages aren't new nor is their impact on our understanding of what is morally right and what is wrong new.

He was white, she was black.

"She lay on a light couch which she had pulled out from a corner and placed for coolness close to the rush screen . . . She lay breast down, coverless . . . The curious effect of parallel black stripes and silver fell obliquely across her honey-colored hips.

"He shifted her head slightly and she awoke, looking up at him half dreamfully, contentedly setting herself in her nest face down. He put his arms about her, locking his hands on her breasts and letting his weight come upon her. She sighed fondly, and locked her legs about his own."

So wrote Hervey Allen quite a few years ago of Anthony Adverse and Neleta, his African mistress, in what was the most sensationally popular book of its day.

BUT white or black, married woman or mistress, faithful husband or philanthropist, is there no single standard by which people live and about which writers may write.

The playwrights have an answer. I know it already, for I have been to Broadway this year and other years. What moral situations did I encounter? You be the judge.

Situation 1: A hard-working mother spends years at hard labor in order that her daughter may have a career as a singer. The daughter grows up and is doped and then raped by a gambler whose own life had previously been saved by the mother. The baby is born dead and is buried without benefit of law or clergy. The gambler preys on the ignorant mother, taking every penny she can get. Driven to desperation, the mother finally chokes to death the gambler with her bare hands and then commits suicide.

The play is "Mamba's Daughter," now a hit on Broadway.

Situation 2: A southern girl is selected to play a part in the motion-picture treatment of a famous novel. She goes to a Connecticut week-end party, which is climaxed by a bedroom melee in which a motion-picture producer chases the girl unremittingly and whose intentions are strictly dishonorable, as he frankly boasts, until she shoots him.

The play is the season's success called "Kiss the Boys Goodbye."

Situation 3: Dr. Ferguson, who is a very tired and worried doctor, has an affair with a nurse named Barbara. She becomes pregnant and, unknown to him, has an abortion performed. Septic poisoning develops and she is rushed to the operating-room, where Dr. Ferguson must assist his chief surgeon in an operation to remove her uterus. His regular sweetheart happens to be at the table-side to watch the operation and there learns for the first time of the affair. The nurse dies, the doctor repents, and the sweetheart forgives.

That was a Pulitzer prize-winner called "Men in White."

Situation 4: Mr. Marrant suspects Mrs. Marrant of having an affair with the milk-collector. He pretends to leave for Bridgeport and returns unexpectedly, catching his wife and her lover together. He kills them both.

Pulitzer prize-winner "Street Scene," by Elmer Rice.

Situation 5: An American vaudevilian in Europe encounters a French munitions magnate and his mistress, who is supposed to be a mysterious Russian noblewoman. He thinks he recognizes her from somewhere. She denies it. Finally he remembers: "Certainly it's you. And it's no good shaking your head and looking amazed. No matter how much you may lie, you can't deny the fact that you slept with me in the Governor Bryan Hotel in Omaha in the fall of 1925 . . ."

That was from another Pulitzer prize-winner called "Idiot's Delight."

Many of these plays have been made into movies. One comes to mind instantly, "Yes, My Darling Daughter."

The above sexy scene is taken from one of the lurid movies of the old order, the type that might be responsible for actual erotic tendencies. With the coming of movie censorship such scenes are no longer allowed

This picture of Jeffrey Lynn and Priscilla Lane, like the one on our cover, illustrates the new type of love-making now seen, for the most part, at the neighborhood movies. Is it more healthy for American morals?

COMING EVENTS

Previews of some of this week's better programs

THE WEEK'S BEST DRAMA

Sunday, NBC

It is rare when a man appropriates a word so thoroughly for his own that mere mention of it immediately brings to mind that man and his works. Not by his own deliberate planning, an inseparable association has been formed between the word "whimsy" and the plays of J. M. Barrie. Many love the sweetness, sentiment, soft humor and pathos; others resent the quaintness and unreality. Of all Barrie's plays, the most famous is the delightful story of fairies, "Peter Pan." The role of Peter Pan has usually been enacted by girls, and it is inseparably associated with the name of Maude Adams. "Great Plays" presents "Peter Pan" this week.

Eastern 1:00 p.m. Central 12:00 noon Pacific 10:00 a.m.

Sunday, CBS

A girl with a beautiful face, a vivid personality and an excellent radio voice graces the "Silver Theater" presentation this week. Rosalind Russell, whose father wanted her to be a lawyer and who considered theology and writing for careers, finally found her niche as an outstanding screen star. She appears in one of the original radio dramas by Grover Jones and True Boardman.

Eastern 6:00 p.m. Central 5:00 p.m. Pacific 3:00 p.m.

Monday, CBS

Just as surely as spring comes and the birds return, so surely does the baseball season come and the thousands of fans begin chirping the song of the horsehide and hickory. To some ardent fans hot-dogs and homers seem almost as essential as food and shelter. Many can't imagine a happy world without baseball. Yet the game is only a century old, much younger than chess and bull-fighting. In honor of the baseball centennial, "Cavalcade of America" will dramatize the history of the game.

Eastern 8:00 p.m. Central 7:00 p.m. Pacific 9:00 p.m.

Friday, CBS

The "Show Boat" churns up the channels—the air-channels—again this week. Edna Ferber's perennially popular musical drama will be performed on Orson Welles' "Campbell Theater." Co-starring with Welles will be a woman intimately associated with Broadway and other musical-revue spots, with night clubs, with "Show Boat," and a little less intimately associated with, but still well known to radio. The woman is piano-sitting, handkerchief-twisting, punch-singing Helen Morgan from down in Danville, Illinois. As a supplement to the presentation of "Show Boat," Welles will interview the author, Edna Ferber.

Eastern 9:00 p.m. Central 8:00 p.m. Pacific 6:00 p.m.

In honor of the celebration this year of baseball's centennial, Ford Frick speaks to boys on "So You Want to Be —" (CBS, Wednesday). Above: A baseball game in the pioneering days of the great American sport

Friday, NBC

Probably not many people, perhaps even not many of the proud California boosters, know just what the state's "Bear Flag" stands for. There's a romantic story back of the flag, a story in which a relative of Abraham Lincoln figures. The story will be related on "Death Valley Days" by the Old Ranger.

THE WEEK'S BETTER PROGRAMS

CORNET PRODIGY Sunday, NBC

Joseph Merello likes photography, swimming and taking care of his pet cow. He thinks swing is "awful." Joseph plays classical music on his cornet. No "Floogie" stuff for him. He plays with class, too, even though he is only fourteen. Joseph, a freshman of Maplewood-Rochmond Heights Senior High School of St. Louis, will be guest soloist this week in the "Parade of Musical Prodigies" on the "Armco Band" series. At the age of eleven he won first-division rating in the 1936 national scholastic contest, and since then has won other major awards. He will play Herman Bellstedt's "La Mandolinata." Selections to be played by the Armco Band, under the direction of Frank Simon, are Goldman's march "On the Mall"; "On the Trail," by Ferde Grofe; the rhapsody "España," by Chabrier; Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee," and the march, "Around the Marble Arch," by Butler and Gay.

Eastern 3:00 p.m. Central 2:00 p.m. Pacific 12:00 noon

Inter-city finals of the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament will be broadcast Wednesday night by all three networks. Above: Two of the young fighters battling in last year's contest between America and Europe

GIN AND JIG

Sunday, NBC

Even men of destiny are subject to the quirks of Fate. Eli Whitney's name is indelibly written on the tablets of progress for his contribution of the cotton-gin. But King Cotton has kept in the shadow of his throne another of Whitney's inventions, less impressive-looking than the cotton-gin but considered by many authorities to be at least as revolutionary and important. The little-known story of the "jig" and Eli Whitney's development of replaceable parts in manufacturing will be dramatized on "The World Is Yours" this week. The story will tell how Whitney, discouraged and bankrupt by the outcome of his famous "Cotton-Gin Trial" in 1795, set out to manufacture guns with replaceable parts so they could be produced in quantity. Later he showed the War Department experts how a worn and damaged gun could be put back in service simply by replacing the worn part by a new one made from a stock pattern. The manufacture of new parts then became a matter of unskilled labor with the help of a "jig." Today there are too many guns, but Eli Whitney's contribution has made possible also mass production of many of the great material blessings of our time.

PURSES

Sunday, CBS

How can the Government economize? We'd all like to know the answer. The men in Washington would like to know. After that question is answered, many would like to know how we can make the Government economize. Anything that affects your pocketbook stirs up either your pleasure or your ire. Which one depends on whether the debit or the credit column is affected. Of course, you don't want any American to starve, but then you don't want any more money taken out of your pocketbook if you can help it. As the national debt rises, a determined bloc in Congress becomes more insistent for economy, and behind the men in Congress the men with the pocketbooks, full or empty, apply the spurs. Still others, both in Washington and elsewhere, still insist on more spending for progress. The subject of economy will be considered this week on "People's Platform" by four people, two experts, two ordinary citizens, besides chairman Lyman Bryson. All those interested in private and public purses may well listen.

BALLADS FOR JOHN BULL

Monday, NBC

If you tune in the program this Monday of Carson Robison and his Buckaroos, there's a sidelight that might lend zest to your enjoyment of this regular show presented by the top-notch western-music outfit. It's the fact that Englishmen, from the cultured wife of Anthony Eden to the cockney cabby, "go for" America's western and hill-billy music. Robison takes his Buckaroos each year to London's fashionable Berkeley Hotel and always makes a hit. Mrs. Eden has come backstage a number of times to request western ballads. Other consistent fans are the two sons of late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

BATTER UP! Wednesday, CBS

"Hey, Skinny, ask your ma if you can go over in the lot and play ball. If you ever expect to hit homers like Babe Ruth, you'll have to practise." So you want to be a ballplayer? Well, that's not unusual. There are many thousand other Skinnies and Willies and Johnnies who cherish the same ambition. If it were not for you guys batting them around in the lots, there wouldn't be many Ruths, DiMaggios and Hubbells. The big-league authorities know that. They encourage and foster the budding bambinos with training-schools, junior clubs, and so on. Ford Frick, president of the National League, lends his voice to the process of laying foundations not only for big-league baseball but also for athletic manhood. Mr. Frick will speak to the aspiring youngsters of the diamond on the "So You Want to Be—" program, the series which gives tips to aspirants in many fields of endeavor. So come on in off the lot, Skinny, and listen a while.

DRUM DEMON Wednesday, NBC

Donald Budge pounds tennis-balls with such uncanny speed and accuracy that he stands alone in the tennis world. Joe Louis has pounded other fighters into a mountainous heap for his throne to rest on. Pounding on drums is Gene Krupa's specialty, and he has steadily and rapidly beaten all opposition into submission. He is king of the drums, though a sort of savage kingdom it may be. He's an artist as well as a mad swingster. About a year ago Gene made two guest appearances on Tommy Dorsey's program. Tommy introduced Gene, former Benny Goodman drummer, to the public, heralding his new venture as an orchestra-leader. Now, as Tommy and his orchestra take a vacation from their regular program, Gene returns to fill in, a big man of music in his own right. His orchestra has been helping Chicagoans go rhythmically native at a specially designed "Panther Room" in Chicago's Sherman Hotel.

FINAL ROUND Wednesday, NBC, MBS, CBS

It's the wind-up this week of the country's biggest and most colorful amateur boxing-show—the Golden Gloves tournament. The combats have reached the finals stage, the inter-city clash in Chicago between the champions of the New York City division and those of the Chicago section. A group of efficient announcers of all three networks will be on hand to give listeners a graphic picture of the proceedings as the boys give and take for honor, pride and Golden Gloves. For Mutual, the descriptions will be handled by veterans Quin Ryan and Bob Elson. It will be Ryan's ninth consecutive year of broadcasting the fights, and Elson's sixth year. For NBC, Bob Brown will do the color and summaries, with Lynn Brandt giving the blow-by-blow account of the bouts. For CBS, ace sportsman Pat Flanagan, who worked the fights last year, will undoubtedly be at the mike again this year.

ABC OF NBC Friday, NBC

What do you know about broadcasting? You know that a program is produced in a special studio and somehow by means of microphones, electric wires, ether waves, aerials, tubes and loudspeakers you hear the program almost instantaneously just about anywhere you happen to be with a receiving set. If you're an average person, you have only a scant, vague knowledge of the multitudinous steps that go into the production of those delightful shows you hear, for only a comparative very few have had even a slight contact with network broadcasting first hand. Do you like to know about what goes on at the other end? Evidently you do, for when NBC presented a series of programs two years ago designed to acquaint the public with the ABC of network radio, the programs made a big hit. Now they are presenting a sequel series in more comprehensive style. In the first of the series last week the general studio set-up at Radio City in New York was pictured. Subsequent chapters will explain the master control-board, the operation of the NBC networks, short-wave relays, sound-effects, building of programs, and the many other activities that go into the making of our radio entertainment.

FOR WOMEN ONLY Saturday, MBS

"Especially for women" might be a more appropriate lead for this announcement, for men are coming more and more into the fashion spotlight so long monopolized exclusively by the ladies. However, they're still a long way from challenging the dominating sartorial position of the women around Easter time. Radio is lending its voice in helping our women and girls dress up in the most tasteful and enhancing finery this year. A preview of Easter fashions will be given listeners this Saturday over the Mutual network. The feature attraction will be a trip through the New York establishment of Nettie Rosenstein, one of the country's outstanding fashion-designers. The broadcast will also include an interview on fashions with Mrs. Edna Woollman Chase, editor-in-chief of Vogue magazine. Mrs. Chase will describe what smart American women will be wearing during the spring months. So, ladies, be smart, listen and be smarter.

VOICE FREAKS Saturday, NBC

Andy Devine is mayor of Van Nuys, California, and he doesn't care who knows he means business. The mayor of Van Nuys is father of a recently born second child, and he's proud of that. The mayor and papa has a voice which hits all varieties of lows and highs and meanders in all directions. He isn't at all ashamed of that. He shouldn't be. It's his living. When the off-key stooge of Jack Benny visits Tommy Riggs this week, there will be quite a study in vocal contortions, for Tommy does some exceptional voice juggling himself in creating the invisible little sprite, Betty Lou. Tommy's show is currently emanating in Hollywood, and Freddie Rich's orchestra has replaced that of Larry Clinton.

THE RADIO PLAYBILL: THIS WEEK: "LIFE AND LOVE OF DR. SUSAN"

DR. SUSAN CHANDLER (played by Eleanor Phelps) is thirty-three years old, the mother of twins, Dickie and Marylin, and the wife of Dr. John Chandler, now missing in South America. Residents of Valleydale, where Dr. Susan is helping her aged father-in-law in his practise, refuse to accept a woman doctor, but she is bent on convincing them of her competence

JOHN CHANDLER, his wife Susan, whom he married when they were both in medical school, with their twins, Marylin and Dick, make a research trip to South America. John disappears and Marylin gets a tropical fever. Dr. Susan, when John cannot be found, takes the children back to the United States and settles in Valleydale, where John's parents live. There she aids Dr. Howard Chandler in his failing practise. Dr. Susan has a problem on her hands in befriending Peter Bradford, his wife Abby and their baby when Peter turns his back on his father's millions rather than give up his wife. The Chandler family's finances are in a desperate state. All Valleydale, in fact, is suffering from the decline of its chief industry. They are trying to interest wealthy old Hiram Blodgett. "Life and Love of Dr. Susan" is heard Monday through Friday (CBS), 2:15 p.m. EST, 1:15 CST; for West, 3:15 p.m. MST, 2:15 PST.

DR. HOWARD CHANDLER (played by Fred Bar-ron) has the old-fashioned doctor's habit of never pressing his patients to pay their bills. He is making a hard struggle to keep his practise from being taken by an ambitious young newcomer to town

MIRANDA (played by Mary Cecii) is Dr. Howard Chandler's wife and the kindly practical overseer of the Chandler household. She lives in the memory of her son, John, missing in South America. Little Dickie reminds her much of her own son

NEXT WEEK:
"THE ALDRICH FAMILY"

MARYLIN and DICKIE (played by Gloria Mann and Tommy Hughes) are the twelve-year-old twin children of Dr. Susan and John Chandler. They were with their parents when their father John disappeared in South America, and they were brought back to the United States when Marylin contracted fever. Both children have to put up with much "ribbing" because their mother is a doctor. Dickie even threatens to leave school

MRS. JOSHUA WAITE (played by Allie Lowe Miles) is the wife of the mayor of Valleydale. She is social leader of the town, and she had wanted her daughter to marry John Chandler. After John married Susan, Mrs. Waite became a vindictive enemy of the other woman. She constantly works against Dr. Susan out of spite. It was upon her insistence that her husband blocked Dr. Susan's admission to practise at the local hospital

ABBY BRADFORD (played by Elspeth Eric) is the young wife of Peter Bradford, heir to the Bradford millions. Old Stuyvesant Bradford forces Abby to agree to divorce her husband and give him custody of the child. Abby flees to Valleydale and is sheltered by Dr. Susan. Young Peter Bradford appears and manfully reclaims his wife and baby in spite of the fact that he must renounce his inheritance to the Bradford millions to do so

FRANK LUTHER has a unique job with this serial. Crooning commercials is his part. It's an original idea and Frank fills the bill. Luther is a tenor well known to radio as a member of the Revelers and with his own programs. He was once an evangelist and a pastor. He was a personal friend of the late Will Rogers and he taught the former Prince of Wales how to play trap drums. He knows how to play a dozen musical instruments

SHE LIVES ALONE AND LIKES IT

Well, she did finally get that moon over the mountain, and with it came fame and as much fortune as any girl could desire. Now Kate Smith's Thursday evening program is one of the nation's great oases of listening pleasure. As a people, we judge things in comparison to other things. To make her success clear, we can compare the audience which listens to her and that which listens to the Rudy Vallee Variety Hour, both of which broadcast at the same hour. After months of trailing the perennially popular Rudy, recent surveys have shown the Kate Smith show winning the larger audience. So we present her here in another James Street word-portrait as a great lady of radio.—Ed.

KATE SMITH, the vocal gal who made good in every city, sat in a corner of her dressing-room and stared through her glasses at your reporter, seemingly thinking he was wacky. Her opinion was justified, for I had just met her and, without tact or warning, had bleated: "Miss Smith, I've been assigned to write your life-story for RADIO GUIDE and I want to do it without mentioning your size. I want to write about you as a woman, the femininity of your being."

"What is this," she demanded, "a gag?"

"Indeed not! I am weary of gags about Kate Smith and I believe the American public is. And I'm serious about writing your biography without harping on your weight, without mentioning it other than to say you are a healthy woman."

Her face lighted. There was a yearning in her eyes, a note of pathos in her voice. "Oh, if you only would. If only something would be written about me without saying how big I am, I'd be very happy. I am tired of being the butt of wisecracks. After all these years, it would seem that those who try to get laughs at my expense would turn off the heat. I am not overly sensitive about my weight, but I am a woman and ridicule hurts. It hurts deeply. I have worked hard to get where I am. I've never hurt a soul in the world that I know of, but I've been hurt often by gags about me. I don't want sympathy. I don't need it. I simply want to be treated with the respect to which a woman whose life has no bad marks is entitled. Everybody knows I am large, very large. But I wish they would stop talking about it. I would be grateful if you would write my story and forget my size. I'll give you a medal."

I'm sorry, Miss Smith. I wanted that medal. And, honestly, I tried to report your history and explain your personality minus a word about the 235 pounds you carry so nimbly. But it was no go. It's like trying to write about the sea without telling of the storms, or the sky without the clouds, or the moon without the mountain.

MISS SMITH'S size has influenced her life and shaped her personality too much to be ignored. It has made her a woman of complexes, a dual personality, an introvert in private but a driving, forceful character in public, whose inner self seems to be saying to her, "You'll show 'em, Kate. They laughed at you. You'll make 'em eat every giggle. You've got something they haven't got. Men and women in your own business have earned their bread by cracking at you. Don't crack back. The public is on your side. You don't have to make a living hurting other people's feelings. You can sing. So sing, darn you. You'll show 'em."

But when she is alone, and she often is, she remembers something somebody has said in a jest and she cries. She is sensitive. Who isn't? She lives alone and says she likes it. She has everything many women would want—poise, fame, wealth, grace, and the most beautiful complexion I've ever seen. But one gets the impression that she yearns at times for a family of her own. She is the type to whom a fellow wants to tell his woes, the kind of person the maudlin song-writers call "pal," perhaps because it works with "gal."

But women were not made for pals. Let's get the lady's avoirdupois behind us, once and for all. When she goes out funning, which is very rare, somebody always says "My dear, she is even larger than I thought she was!" She is. But it hurts to be told so.

"I am a big woman," she said. So many persons would have said "I am a stout lady," or a "healthy girl," but not Miss Smith. There is nothing fakey about her. She weighs 235 pounds and her weight never varies. She is five feet eleven inches tall. She eats well, but not overly much. She doesn't diet. It wouldn't do any good and her health is too valuable to gamble with, and she is too sensible to take a chance.

The consensus is a glandular ailment is responsible for her weight. That is not known generally, but the public assumes it because it's the proper and current theory that a haywire gland manufactures fat. Glandular disorders are very fashionable this season, my dears. They have crowded tonsils right out of the picture and are running neck and neck with sinus as our popular ailment.

However, if glands are to be blamed for Miss Smith's size, she came by them naturally, for her father was a tremendous fellow and her mother still is a large woman. Oddly enough, her only sister, Helene Smith, never has weighed more than 125 pounds.

SURELY, she kids about her own weight at times, but she does it because she thinks it eases tension and it also is good showmanship. It conveys the idea of a good sport, one who can take it. And Kathryn Elizabeth Smith, "the songbird of the South" who lived only a few days in the South, the only private citizen privileged to use the President's gate at the Washington station, the big girl who made good in the big city because she had sense enough to heed her manager, is essentially a showwoman from the tips of her trained toes to her beautiful blond hair and her frosty-blue eyes.

She always wanted to sing and would bear down too heavily on "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful" at Sunday services in Washington when the Smiths—Father William, Mother Charlotte, Sister Helene and Sister Kate—crowded into their pew.

When the organ would peal the first note of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," little Katie would jump to her feet and sing. "Mother always said I could sing before I could talk," Miss Smith recalls. "I didn't talk at all until I was three, but at five I was singing at every opportunity."

She was born in Greenville, Virginia, on May 1, 1909. Her father was in newspaper-circulation work in Washington. Greenville is less than half a whoop and holler over in Virginia. The mother fetched Katie back to Washington, but she was born in the South, and that gives her a leg on the title, "Songbird of the South." However, Sherman was more of a southerner. He stayed there for years, teaching southern boys to be soldiers. Later he went back and helped kill some of his former students.

She was not a large child and was a tomboy, racing fire-engines and skinning cats—figuratively, of course. She organized a club and put on shows. She did the singing. She would sing at the drop of a note—at school, church, benefits and socials. She was a fair-to-middling student in public schools and later in business high school, which was not a business school at all. As a matter of fact, Miss Smith is not a business genius.

She says the French Blue Devils put the show-bug in her cap. She was about eight. The United States was in the great credit-and-carry crusade to make the world safe for Adolf Hitler, and Washington was a madhouse.

Soldiers, politicians, dollar-a-year millionaires and minutemen with hour speeches flocked to the capital to keep the Nation's fever up. Kate sang for soldiers. The doughboys would put her on a table, a chair, anything, and she would give 'em that "Oh, How I Hate To Get Up In the Morning" business.

Then our supersalesmen sent to France for some honest-to-goodness veterans, and France loaned us one hundred simon-pure Blue Devils. The people were loaning the government money, France was borrowing as much of the money as she could, so it was fitting and proper that the Blue Devils come over and high-pressure us.

They gave a party for them in the Peck Memorial Chapel in Washington. Kate was to sing. She says she was a scrawny, lanky, long-legged child with taffy-colored hair, rather stringy, that was parted in the middle and brought back in two light braids looped up underneath and tied with large bows of blue ribbons. She wore a new white dress and flat-heel, patent-leather slippers.

First, she gave them "Over There," and the Blue Devils whooped, but you can bet they were quite pleased to be over here. Then she kept the home fire burning and wound down that long, long trail. That got them. The crowd roared and the captain of the Blue Devils jumped to the platform, kissed little Katie on both cheeks, and planted his cap on the side of her head. Then the folks went out and bought Liberty Bonds, and the boys went around and signed a lien on their lives and went away, and some never came back.

The reception that Kate received was a shot-in-the-arm to her. She decided then to be a singer. She never took a lesson in her life and can't read a note of music. The agony of the war passed and the afterpains set in. Among the curses of the spree was the Charleston, that dance that jumped overnight from Charleston's catfish row to New York's drawing-rooms.

Kate was doing amateur shows at every opportunity and won a few prizes with her songs.

"I was beginning to get heavy," she said. "I was in high school. I was a healthy child and ate and rested well, and took a lot of exercise. But I grew and grew. I didn't think much about it at the time. My friends, accustomed to seeing me every day or so, apparently thought nothing of it either. My weight didn't handicap me in any way. I played all games I liked and had a lot of fun."

She enjoyed singing blues and jazz numbers at the amateur shows, and one night when she performed, a Negro Charleston dancer stole the show and won the five-dollar-gold-piece award. Kate had watched his routine, and hurried home, locked the door to her room and began learning the Charleston.

She held a big arm-chair for support and pumped her feet. She sang to herself and eventually mastered the dance. Her parents wanted her to be a nurse and sent her to Georgetown. She didn't do so well.

She didn't like standing on her feet so long, or walking about on rubber heels and whispering. So after a few months probation work, she cashed in her hand and went home. The Smiths didn't approve of her proposed theatrical career, but she had her way.

A musical-comedy performer from New York was doing a bit in Washington and heard her and offered her a spot in "Honeymoon Lane," a musical in which he was interested. Kate was wisely skeptical. She had been offered jobs before, but this time there was a check and a contract. She was still in her teens when she arrived in New York, took a small room and began rehearsing. She danced and sang and sweated.

"Yes, sweat," she said.

Fat and Lean Fees

THERE are some subjects calling for attention not so much in the way of criticism but rather in an effort to ascertain public reaction. One of them is the matter of the fees paid to musical performers in radio.

The last air appearance (about fifteen minutes on the Ford Hour) of Yehudi and Hephzibah Menuhin netted the young pair a sum approaching $9,000. That was topped by Paderewski, whose NBC microphone debut last month rewarded him with a reputed $10,000. The Menuhins gave general artistic satisfaction; the Grand Old Man of the Piano impressed the average listener but offended strict critical taste with many wrong notes and lapses in style and interpretation.

Irrespective of merit, are single radio guest-spot performances worth that kind of money, considering that Toscanini and the Metropolitan earn far less and that many hundreds of unknown but highly deserving artists are given shamefully small emoluments and mostly cannot even get a five-minute appointment, an audition, and much less an actual studio engagement? They haunt the studios until they drop off from disappointment or disgust.

Of course, moneyed sponsors gladly pay the exorbitant fees in order to secure talent with the greatest name-value, so as to attract the largest possible number of listeners. But is the disproportion between the fortunes garnered by the "stars" and the pit-tances that go to performers on sustaining programs not altogether unfair and even tragic? I don't know whether the practise should or will continue. I am only wondering and asking.

Ear and Mind

In his new book, "Music and the Listener," Harry Allen Feldman (E. P. Dutton & Co., $2) has the bright inspiration in his preface to look upon himself as a physician and asks his reader-patient "Where is the pain?" The answer might be, he says, "I have a slight pain with my Bach; my Brahms refuses to respond completely; I'm terribly worried about my Wagner; and my Ravel, Stravinsky and Schoenberg—I find it almost impossible to digest them." Then Dr. Feldman operates with 195 pages of painless recipes and helpful diets. You will not err to use him as your guide—and to continue to dial the best programs if you would join the musically blessed.

Thanks—to the many readers who wrote agreeing letters with my recent opinion that some serious artists do too much clowning on the variety radio hours.

Speaking Up

By V. Vidal

A touch of spring—a good lunch—a susceptible broadcasting official—one slip of the tongue—and our "At Long Last" department gets a break! Gian Carlo Menotti's NBC commissioned opera, to be premiered April 22, is based on a contemporary American theme, with its setting a modern American town. And if you don't think that's news, remember the last two commissioned operas, laid respectively in a South American jungle and Fairyland.

Far removed from prying eyes and ears—presumably in the Radio City cellars—Menotti is holding auditions for his cast, which comprises a baritone, a contralto and two sopranos. The conductor is to be Alberto Erede, young Italian who directed the Salzburg Opera Company on its recent American tour.

Menotti's first opera, "Amelia Goes to the Ball," has been a rousing success at the Metropolitan, and seems to have won a permanent place in the repertoire. The story and title of his new work are still shrouded in Garbo-like secrecy, but NBC will probably break down and tell all by next week.

Radio officials aren't the only ones affected by spring. Our typesetters went slightly haywire last week and had the Knights in "Tannhaeuser" "slap the impious singer." Change "slap" to "slay" and you have the real story instead of something to giggle at.

The last weeding out of Metropolitan Auditions contestants has taken place, and the six finalists are Robert Nicholson, baritone; Margaret Carlisle, soprano; Jean Merrill, dramatic soprano; Winifred Heidt, mezzo-soprano; Anna Mary Dickey, soprano, and Mack Harrell, baritone. The last three were March of Music selections.

Mack Harrell, whom inside gossip picks as one of the winners, is a baritone from Greenville, Texas, and has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia and Boston Orchestras. His New York recital this season received excellent reviews.

Margaret Carlisle, of Elgin, Illinois, gained her experience in leading roles at Covent Garden, London, and in such productions as "Show Boat" and "Virginia," while Anna Mary Dickey, also from Illinois, has devoted most of her time to study.

Richard Crooks discovered Robert Nicholson in Australia and persuaded him to come to America and compete for the auditions.

Winifred Heidt, of Detroit, Michigan, has sung with the San Francisco Opera Company, and Jean Merrill, born in the State of Washington, has specialized in church singing.

We wish them all good luck and success!

Wyoming Valley Bach Festival, MBS. Symphony orchestra, soloists and chorus of 200 voices. Paul Gies, conductor. St. Matthew's Passion (Bach).

Bach wrote his "St. Matthew's Passion" for the Good Friday services at St. Thomas Church, Leipzig, in 1729, and thereby gave to the world the deepest and most compelling expression of religious devotional feeling in the whole of the musical repertoire.

The libretto is of exceptional length, and the score of a magnitude stupendous for those days, as it calls for two separate and independent bodies—two four-part choirs, each supported by its own orchestra of strings, flutes, oboes, harpsichord and organ. In the cast are Jesus, the Evangelist, Peter, Judas, Pilate, the Two Priests, Pilate's Wife and the Two Maids.

From the mighty opening chorus, "The Road to Calvary" (with the Man of Sorrows bearing the Cross) to the end of the terrible threnody, the hearer is unendingly awed, moved and inspired. Bach wrote the masterpiece under irresistible stress of feeling and every measure breathes intimate sympathy with the text (much of it Biblical) and glorified emotion, "embroidered with tears and tinged with flame and blood."

The more difficult to understand, therefore, that soon after its first performance, the "St. Matthew" fell into complete neglect and was not heard again until 100 years later, when the youthful Mendelssohn exhumed the exalted music and conducted it in Berlin with sensational result.

It is a far jump from Johann Strauss to Wagner, but Richard Tauber effects it here. He is one of the few tenors mastering both grand opera and musical comedy, and Radio Guide has reported previously that Tauber's musical versatility is not confined only to singing, for he is also a conductor and composer, among his performed works being a symphony and an opera.

The "Don Pasquale" excerpt, rarely heard, is a merry revival.

Alfred Catalani's (1854-1893) "Loreley" had its American premiere at the Metropolitan in 1922; "La Wally," another of his operas, came to that stage in 1909, led by Toscanini. Both works

One of the strangest symphonic pieces of writing is Berlioz' "Fantastic Symphony" (1829), well-named because its form and content are as eccentric as the frame of mind of the composer when he conceived and set it down. Wildly imaginative, and further stimulated through his love for an actress (as this department related last week), Berlioz makes himself the hero of his five-part symphony, for it tells his own romantic story, completely identified by the composer's program annotations:

(1) Adagio (Reveries and Passions). A young musician madly in love with a woman of ideal perfection, represented by an oft-repeated theme (Idee Fixe) which haunts him unrelentingly. (2) The Ball. Even in the midst of sensual festivity and waltz music, the vision of the loved one haunts our hero. (3) Scene in the Fields. Pastoral peace, night, and gentle thoughts, but soon the obsession returns and as a storm nears, melancholy fills the soul of the tormented one. (4) Journey to Execution. The desperate lover tries suicide, but takes an opiate instead. He imagines he has killed his mistress, is marched to the scaffold and executed. One hears the stroke of the ax. (5) Dream of the Witches Sabbath Night. Really a continuation of the previous movement. The lover meets the witches and demons gathered to attend his burial. A wild orgy ends the work and the distressing dream.

Something About the Symphonic Poem

By Leonard Lieblich

WE HAVE sketchily traced the history of the two types of symphony, "absolute" and "program," or "programmatic." The former, abstract music making its own intrinsic appeal; the latter, based on some concrete idea or identifying suggestion.

For a long time, the "program" experiment was timid and tentative, often consisting merely of a title, motto or a few lines of synopsis. Then came nineteenth-century French romanticism, and with it Berlioz of the flaming spirit and fancy. He departed radically from the old style of symphony and made his music conform to definite emotions, scenes and personages, all vividly colored, realistic and passionately dramatic.

His contemporary, Liszt, became also his direct artistic descendant after finding piano composing inadequate to express sufficient tonal power and variety. He turned his attention to the orchestra and created two long "program" symphonies, "Faust" and "Dante," and invented the symphonic poem. It discarded the old regular symphony mosaic of unrelated sections and instead used one pauseless movement with music and style shaped by the underlying "program" or poetic idea.

Liszt wrote thirteen symphonic poems (1850-1860), of which eight refer to actual poems by Hugo, Byron, Schiller, Lamartine ("Les Preludes") and others. Their music strives for local color and authentic characterization. Also it carries further in resourcefulness and brilliancy of orchestration than that of Berlioz. Liszt's theory was that the form of a symphonic composition should be conditioned by content and not by a prearranged pattern, as in the case of the ancient classical symphony. As means, he used certain recurring representative themes and rhythms ("leading motives") tagged to specific ideas and developed much as Wagner used them in his operas—although Berlioz and Liszt antedated him in the system.

The highest eloquence, dramatic force and descriptive power as well as the most expert and realistic orchestration were achieved in the realm of the symphonic poem by Richard Strauss, from "Don Juan" (1889) to "Heldenleben" (1899). The former probes deeply into the character of the hero in Lenau's poem about the great amorist; the latter concerns itself psychologically with man and his struggles and triumphs in life. "Thus Spake Zarathustra" is the musical embodiment of the pessimistic philosophy of Schopenhauer's similarly titled volume. (Strauss has said himself that the music does not preach those views, but aims only at putting the hearer into a frame of mind analogous to that which would result from the study of philosophy.) "Till Eulenspiegel" occupies itself with a more literal and photographic presentment of the impish figure of German legend; in the score one hears even the dying squeak of Till as he is strung up on the gallows. (A far distance from the musical methods of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms!)

In Strauss' "Don Quixote" there are the imitated bleating of sheep, the battle with the windmills and the distorted harmonies indicating the mental derangement of the Don and their beatific transformation to express his final sanity as he dies. (One of the most-moving and poignantly beautiful episodes in all music.) The "Symphonia Domestica," in effect a tone-poem, takes us into the Strauss household, where we hear the oboe d'amore typifying the baby, the violin voicing Frau Strauss, while the rest of the score describes still more intimate secrets and somewhat egotistically pictures the adventures of the composer himself, his early efforts, his tilts with the critics and his final recognition and triumph. "Death and Transfiguration," possibly Strauss' most-inspired symphonic poem, treats of a dying man, racked with pain, finding moments of relief in recalling tender memories, but at last succumbing to the final attack of Death, with his spirit soaring heavenward, purified and transfigured. The concluding measures are a veritable paean of spirituality and musical loveliness.

STRAUSS' reforms were at first completely misunderstood by critics and many musicians. He was accused of deliberately misusing the proper functions of music and, in his efforts to be realistic, featuring discord and ugliness in tone. As usual, the public ignored the critics and made up its own mind about Strauss, accepting him as a new voice with a vital message; as an uncompromising realist, true enough, but also as an anointed apostle of expressiveness and beauty. Certainly he has tremendously widened the boundaries of orchestral expression and staked out a path which music has followed ever since.

The symphonic poem has not, however, succeeded in eliminating the traditional "absolute" symphony. It seems that our contemporary composers, either unable to acquire the descriptive technic or lacking the pure creative ability of a Strauss (or perhaps feeling that he has exhausted everything in that direction), are turning backward to the methods of the classicists. They pour new matter into old molds; devise abstract themes or motifs and develop them merely as musical material, again calling upon the quick - slow - merry - animated or dramatic movements of the regular symphony. What the future will determine as to the survival of the symphonic poem, no man can guess.

Amos 'n' Andy (pictured above as real-life Freeman Gosden, left, and Charles Correll) change networks beginning April 3. They'll move from NBC to a CBS network so they can have a summer vacation and still retain their same time spots, something they were not able to do at NBC

When Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Don Ameche, Dorothy Lamour, Donald Dickson and other members of the "Chase and Sanborn Hour" arrived in New York to do their first broadcast from there, this tremendous crowd was on hand to greet them at Grand Central station

NEW YORK.—As predicted in last week's column, Arch Oboler has been signed by NBC to write a series of plays which can be heard on Saturday nights at 10 p.m. EST. Oboler, who is best known as the original writer of the "Lights Out" series, states that the new dramatizations will be from original stories of fantasy and they will definitely not be horror stories . . . The popular show "What's My Name" has left the airlines. It was replaced by a dramatized quiz-show titled, "Where Are They?" starting March 24 . . . Bob Benchley shifts networks starting May 23, when his program will follow immediately after "Information, Please" . . . There is a possibility of the Phil Baker program switching to another night. He may take over the spot to be vacated when Jack Haley departs from the kilocycles . . . Burns and Allen are planning to broadcast from New York during the months of April and May.

The news of the dropping out of Columbia's "Saturday Night Swing Club" was a surprise to many fans who have been following the broadcast for the past three years. What can be told now is the additional treat they missed, which I learned about some time ago and was keeping secret till the proper moment. Plans had been made for a gala anniversary show in June from the New York World's Fair grounds. Foreign pick-ups from London, Paris and a boat on the high seas were being arranged, and the network intended to devote ninety minutes to the program. Every "great" of the swing kingdom was booked for the gala show—and then the roof fell in. CBS decided to withdraw the "Swing Club." In memoriam, let us remember the emergence of the Raymond Scott Quintet from the "Swing Club" band; appearances by Bunny Berigan, Jimmie Lunceford, the Dorseys, Goodman, Shaw, Ellington, White-man, Bobby Hackett, Kirby, and inspired conducting, first by Leith Stevens and lately the talented Walter Gross. I anticipate CBS will receive many complaints from the devoted admirers of the "Swing Club."

Visiting a Charlie McCarthy Broadcast

By the time you read this, the Charlie McCarthy show will have departed from the eastern aircastles. Never has the network been swamped with so many requests for broadcast tickets. The lucky ticket-holders started to fill the seats more than an hour before airtime while the cast was still rehearsing. Five minutes before broadcast time, Don Ameche greeted the audience with "Good afternoon," forgetting for the moment that he was in New York and it was 8 o'clock, not 5 o'clock, the time the broadcast goes on when in California . . . Charlie McCarthy was introduced, and then Dorothy Lamour was called over to talk to Charlie, who asked, "Where did you get that hat?" The dummy wasn't the only one wondering; everyone within hearing distance of where I sat seemed to ask the same question and included her dress. When I saw the show on the Coast last year, I remarked that Dorothy Lamour went to extremes in her dress, and that still holds true . . . Bergen was telling the audience that he and Charlie don't have mike fright, and Charlie quipped, "The h——l we don't." Then Bergen stated that there was time for just one more story, and Charlie added, "A dirty one." Cute kid . . . The program got under way and Lamour, Ameche and Donald Dickson started to sing together. They began to laugh and it was difficult for them to carry on. If you wondered why, the boys were tickling Dotty. I bet you tunerinners enjoyed that . . . Every time Dickson went up to the mike to sing, he went through the weirdest contortions of the face, which looked very affected to me, as did Don Ameche's constant laughter throughout most of the program. Ameche, of course, hears the entire program during rehearsal, and I can't reconcile myself to the belief that he enjoys the quips so much the second time to almost cause him to go into hysterics. But don't get me wrong, folks—I enjoyed the program, especially the expert acting of guestar Helen Hayes, who should be heard regularly on the airlines.

Winchell Wants Warmer Weather

Walking out of the Charlie McCarthy studio, I ran into Walter Winchell, who was just coming out of his studio. Walter looked disgustingly healthy with a grand coat of Florida tan. All that day New York was having one of the worst snow and hail storms of the year and it was typical flu weather, which prompted the newscaster to remark, "I had to come back from Florida for this."

I walked into a rehearsal of the "Hobby Lobby" show the other day and was surprised to see Harry Salter, who supplies the music for the program, up in front of the mike reading from a script. I later learned from producer Joe Hill that Salter had been scheduled to go on the show for the past four weeks but the program had been running overtime, which necessitated cutting Harry's part out of the show. If one of these Wednesday nights you hear the ork-pilot telling about his hobby, you'll know that he has waited and rehearsed for weeks for the big opportunity.

From "Hobby Lobby" I rushed into the Fred Allen studio just as Harry von Zell was looking for a place to park his gum. As Peter Van Steeden approached, I ran my fingers through his loose and fluffy hair, which falls all over his face so that Allen can gag about it. "Some day I'm going to fool Fred and will come to the studio with my hair slicked back." Peter remarked . . . "The Person You Didn't Expect to Meet" that evening was the female Fuller Brush saleswoman. After she finished her bit in front of the mike, Allen walked over to where she was seated and asked, "Now that you've been on the radio, can I have your autograph?" To which she replied, "I'd love to have yours before the evening is over." One of the many nice things about Allen, he never fails to go over to his guests and compliment them on the nice job they did.

Behind the Scene

Every time I've gone to a rehearsal of Kate Smith's program, Ted Collins, Kate's manager-announcer-director, has worn a blue, short-sleeved sports shirt, a gray pair of trousers, and brown suede shoes. However, you'd never think it was the same person if you saw him at night all dressed up in a full-dress suit looking more like a male clothes-model . . . At a rehearsal of the Andre Kostelanetz-Walter O'Keeffe show, the comic showed up wearing a bright-green tie with a green handkerchief in his breast pocket, rushing St. Patrick's Day a bit.

Out across the American countryside are countless thousands of audiences that laugh, and cry a little, too, at plays that don't win Pulitzer Prizes—but which never close their runs. These simple dramas and comedies of America's collective "rural theater" are being brought to the air in this CBS series. It opened last July with "Aaron Slick," and is re-enacting this, one of the most popular of all such plays, by audience-demand this week. Country-boy-foils-city-slicker is the plot of this melodrama by Walter Ben Hare, performed more than 25,000 times.

HOLLYWOOD.—Off live mikes: Lord Leverhume of England, maker of a half a dozen soaps abroad and here, including those two products sold by the "Big Town" dramas, is just a little bit skittish about his star, Edward G. Robinson, playing a starring role in Warner Brothers' "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," a film with a pointedly anti-Nazi theme. Reason is that Leverhume owns a big factory in Munich, Germany, and he wishes to court no reprisals. So odds are high in Hollywood that there'll be a new "Big Town" star when the fall radio season opens . . . Odds are just as high that Burns and Allen will carry on for Chesterfield. Options of their supporting cast have just been picked up to make their contracts effective through June . . . But the smart boys missed when they figured the headliners wouldn't give "Good Gulf" their best performances when recruited for the charity Screen Guild shows. This Sunday evening series is one of the hottest spots on the dial and getting hotter . . . Zasu Pitts loyally thumbed down a big-money guest-starring offer submitted by another Tuesday evening Hollywood aircomic to carry on her every-other-week appearances with Fibber McGee—which are, by the way, by way of conditioning the listeners to the early return to the cast of Molly! . . . Jack Oakie's much-publicized wasp waistline is almost back to normal since he added twenty pounds . . . Lennen & Mitchell agency is hunting for original radio dramas for Charles Boyer, but they must be good. Incidentally, Boyer and Irene Dunne are tops in RKO's "Love Affair" . . . Movie-actor Truman Bradley is tired of the grease-paint; is hoping the deal jells for him to mike the New York baseball games . . . Eddie Cantor did it again! He and his troupe grossed $37,800 in paid admissions during their week of appearances at the San Francisco Exposition.

Making Book on Mars . . .

Want to make some quick money? Bet against a general European war this year. "Chances are," said CBS commentator H. V. Kaltenborn upon leaving southern California to continue his Pacific Coast lecture tour, "five to one that there will be no war this year, and even greater that America will not be involved when it does happen. Kaltenborn is convinced that Adolf Hitler still lives, rumors to the contrary about his death and double notwithstanding. The famous European authority said that he has interviewed Hitler personally many, many times and heard him broadcast more often, and that he could not be mistaken in recognizing the German dictator's voice.

East Meets West; West Loses

When Rudy Vallee arrives in Hollywood, as he did last week again to broadcast and make another motion picture, he hires a taxicab with a driver in uniform to take him to his residence, which has been arranged for in advance by his manager. Several months ago, when Rudy moved the "Variety Hour" here, a stranger stepped up to the crooner and said that he had been asked by a friend to meet the train and drive Vallee to his residence. Entering the car, Rudy soon learned that the stranger was a real-estate and insurance man who devised the ruse in order to get his sales story over. The supersalesman forgot one important thing: Vallee is a New England Yankee . . . The realtor escaped, however, without buying any yeast, Royal Gelatin or battle-scarred boxing-gloves.

NBC's Head Man Lohr Talks

Major Lenox R. Lohr, NBC's president, visited

Hollywood Radio City last week and declared it "the finest radio plant in the world, even superior to NBC's Rockefeller Center equipment." (That loud ouch came from Father Knickerbocker.) The Major also said (and he'd better keep out of Grover Whalen's path), "The Golden Gate Exposition is the most beautiful I have ever seen" . . . Patriotism and religious tolerance are the key-notes of radio entertainment today, he went on, and speaking of the movie "war" on radio, declared: "Taking motion-picture stars off the air wouldn't deal a death-blow to radio, but I don't expect that to happen." The network top executive discussed television and its many problems to be solved in the development of the new medium. He can't see it becoming the rage overnight. It will, he believes, take five or ten years to get anywhere important.

Rom-Antics and Results . . .

A month ago John Frazer, "The Circle" announcer, met Paramount starlet Dorothy Howe on the NBC sustaining program known as "What's the Big Idea?" The program's script called for John to keep asking Dorothy for a date and for Miss Howe to continue to reject the proposal. After the broadcast, however, John asked her really for a date and was accepted. Now they're engaged! . . .

But what's happened to the Rita Johnson-Broderick Crawford hand-holding? . . . Looks as if veteran bachelor Harlow (Glocoat) Wilcox has been snared at last . . . Tom Lewis' appendix-removal recovery is being speeded by the bedside presence of Glenda Farrell . . . Benny-scripter Bill Morrow's double-harnessing has made his buddy, Ed Beloin, lonely. Business Continues During Alterations

Hollywood programs are shifting around at a dizzy pace. You know, of course, about Amos 'n' Andy changing to the CBS network April 3, but NBC retaliates May 23 by swiping Bob Benchley's "Melody and Madness," thus relieving "The Circle" from a stiff half-hour of competition. "Those We Love" folds its tent March 27, and the hitherto Pacific Coast favorite, "The Grouch Club," extends to transcontinental proportions on April 16. Joe Penner's "mysterious letter," to be opened March 30, will tell him that his vacation starts now, and that Joe E. Brown will take over the Penner spot.

Irene Rich Remembers . . .

This issue of RADIO GUIDE goes on sale just as Irene Rich is opening her new play, "A Broom for the Bride," in San Francisco, and thereby lays a story or two. One is that San Francisco has always been lucky for Irene. She began a successful realtor career there when a young woman. The other concerns a promotion idea for the play. Seeking to tie up the play title with his brooms, one manufacturer offered to plaster the city with posters and stand the expense. But Miss Rich has had thousands of letters from blind and shut-in listeners. She could not let them down. Instead, she proposed to tie up the broom idea with the Blindcraft firm which handles brooms and other products made by the blind. She not only made the proposal but she said she would stand the expense of the posters!

CHICAGO.—Attended a party on the Twentieth-Century Limited in honor of the cast of the "Chase and Sanborn Hour"—and played a hunch. Of course it's nice talking to Don Ameche, Dorothy Lamour and Edgar Bergen, but somehow I had a hankering—which perhaps you share—to know a bit more about the less-publicized members of the stellar cast—Donald Dickson and Robert Armbruster. It was a happy hunch. They're both peachy, somewhat of a contrast. Though you never hear him speak on the air, you'd think Armbruster a comedian rather than a maestro. He's pint-size, but brimming over with fun and amiability. Donald Dickson is tall, athletic, modest and quite congenial. A Metropolitan Opera star at the age of twenty-seven, he doesn't show any conceit about such distinction; is man enough to praise the work and personalities of Nelson Eddy, Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas and others of his fellow singers. The whole "C. and S." cast must have a good time. On the train taking the crew to New York for a couple of broadcasts the conductor asked Armbruster if they couldn't arrange to go back to Hollywood on a certain date when he would be again on duty. He hadn't had such a rip-snortin' good time these many years of railroading.

Shorties

Don't be surprised if a network show appears in the near future with a new idea that is the brain-child of Chicago's popular street interviewer, Don Norman, who has also just introduced a "man on the stage" type of show, appearing with a "movie quiz" once a week on the stage of the Oriental Theater . . . The Hoosier Hot Shots have just had a couple of their hot-selling records released, "Annabelle" and "Lonely Trail." Fast-rising young Skip Farrell, who, they're saying, is a combination of Tony Martin and Bing Crosby, does the vocals . . . It looks like a contest—can't help noticing that more than half the men connected with "Scattergood Baines" sport mustaches, including producer Walter Preston, engineer Henry Whitaker, and actors Stanley Gordon, Willard Waterman, Al Halus, Orrin Brandon and Boris Aplon . . . Stanley Harris (Rodney Adams in "Betty and Bob") won a Golden Gloves lightweight championship in Seattle in 1933 for putting opponents on the canvas, later won an art scholarship for putting paintings on canvas . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blanchard are also Mr. and Mrs. in the sketch, "Scattergood Baines," as Hobb and Bessy Pickett, New England Yankees. Tom was born in Gardiner, Maine, but Mrs. Blanchard had to learn her New England accent from her husband, for she hails from Nebraska . . . Ken Griffin, "Road of Life" star, likes to broadcast in his shirt-sleeves so he can bolster his poise by hanging onto his suspenders with his thumb . . . Les Tremayne, "First Nighter" leading man and Bob of "Betty and Bob," receives about three-fourths of his mail from female fans and most of them want to know if he's married; Les is thinking of getting a card printed to use in reply; it would carry the simple message, "no" . . . Another reunion by radio: Arthur Page, conductor of the WLS "Dinnerbell" program, recently read a letter over the air from Alta and Esther Carrol, of Shumway, Illinois. Dorothy Thomas of Chicago heard it and rediscovered the cousins she had not seen since their grandmother's funeral twenty-one years ago to the very day.

Have You Heard About Pat and the Mike?

Here's the personal piece you've been asking for, wherein Pat Murphy tells all about Pat Murphy. At present Pat is playing Scoop Curtis in "Girl Alone," Jerry Craig in "Woman in White," and Bruce Valentine in "Young Mr. Croesus," the current "Story of the Month" on NBC.

"If there's one thing an Irishman likes to do it's talk—so here goes. If the records do not lie, Murphy was born twenty-eight years ago on the wind-swept prairies of North Dakota. Since that time he has grown alarmingly, and at present is hard pressed to make his waistline correspond with his height, which is five feet eleven inches. As to his appearance, he is prejudiced, but after a brief glance in the mirror, he finds he has blue eyes and brown hair. The good Benedictine monks attempted to do something about educating him. He had good grades in history, philosophy, literature and athletics, but left the hallowed halls abruptly one day because he flunked sadly in deportment. After those few years at St. Johns in Minnesota, he stopped briefly at the U. of Minnesota. Then he went to Iowa—that is, he almost did, but took a job at a radio station just in the nick of time. The job was announcing at KSTP in St. Paul. Next was a job as production manager at WEBC in Duluth, where he produced thousands of one-minute announcements and a series of eight symphony concerts by the Duluth Symphony Orchestra. Murphy still retains a lot of the affection for literature taught him by the good monks, also his fondness for sports. It might be put this way: He likes Gorki, Gogol and golf—in the winter he indulges in Bach, Beethoven and badminton. He would admit that he studied music, piano and organ for ten years, but people have heard him play in the studios—and why lead with the chin?" Signed: Pat Murphy.

More Shorties

Two top-notch orchestras have been signed to furnish music for the forthcoming dinner-dance sponsored by the NBC engineers: Ina Ray Hutton and her female Melodians and Charlie Agnew will share the music-making . . . Recent changes and additions in casts: Donna Reade is Agnes Stevens in "Betty and Bob"; Henrietta Tedro replaces Marie Nelson in "Manhattan Mother" because of the latter's schedule conflict; the new role of Grandpa Sutter in "Road of Life" is being played by one of the busiest and most accomplished actors in radio, Hugh Studebaker . . . Guitar-strumming baritone Johnnie Johnston, who boasts a repertoire of 1,400 songs and a vocal range from low G to F above middle C, has been added to "Ransom Sherman Presents" . . . Don McNeill, emcee, and Walter Blaufuss, conductor, of NBC "Breakfast Club," recently dedicated an original song on the air to the new Pope Pius XII; a few minutes after the program a music-publisher was ringing McNeill asking for publication rights. The new number, "Let Us Have Peace," will be off the press soon . . . The Franklyn MacCormack Club gave the actor-announcer-poetry-reader a birthday banquet in the Wrigley Building dining-room a few days ago. Of course, only a small percentage of the 3,500 members could be present. They gave Mac a beautiful table with a painted portrait under a glass top, also a candid camera. By the way, MacCormack's former "Poetic Melodies" sponsor still likes him and his work very much, and it wouldn't be surprising if the same set-up with the same sponsor appears on the air again one of these days.

I Still Think

Ransom Sherman deserves to rank with the best of the air comedians . . . Alec Templeton deserves a starring program . . . Names of actors should be given a break on the air . . . Radio is old enough to shift for itself without the movies horning in.

LISTENING TO LEARN

Person-to-Person

• What a health department can do via radio to protect the health interests of the public is being given a thorough test in and near the State of Illinois, where nineteen stations are now carrying transcribed programs prepared by the Illinois Department of Public Health. The popularity of this series is another example of how educational subject-matter—sometimes drab, sometimes indelicate—can be made intensely appealing to the public when dressed up by good showmanship, professional acting, and presented with a stimulating human-interest approach. By administering to the specific needs of the territory, the program carries more particular interest for its listeners, and points out one job that can be handled much better regionally than nationally.

• With the educational sanity of certain types of quiz programs definitely established by universally favorite comment on the Answer Me This broadcasts, now off the air, NBC has found room in a crowded schedule for a new series. Conducted in a studio, with contestants, the questions—or descriptions, to be specific—are based on geography, history and biographies. The series may be heard twice a week, Sunday afternoons and Tuesday nights.

• Unique is the WBAL Traveling Educational Radio Show, which since its beginning last November has given thirty-nine performances before more than 27,000 students. Instituted to satisfy the interest of Baltimore high-school students in the inside workings of radio, the traveling unit performs either in school auditoriums or the WBAL studios, illustrates what happens to sound between microphone and receiving set, how news is gathered and broadcast, and numerous other interesting phases of the business. Educators and radio-station operators from many cities have investigated this novel stunt and are adopting it in their own communities.

• Recordings of several programs in the U. S. Office of Education's Americans All—Immigrants All radio series, current over CBS, are now available to educational institutions and public-service agencies. For details write the Federal Radio Education Committee, Washington, D. C.

• Station WBBM's effort to aid students in making the all-important choice of the right career is the Know Your Job series, which each week since the beginning of the current school term has been describing industries and occupations and providing expert authorities to discuss the field. A new policy was adopted recently that includes student participation in the broadcast. In the first program under this new plan, four high-school students asked questions of executives of a large mail-order company, and transcriptions of actual interviews with workers on their jobs—made in the mail-order house through the facilities of WBBM's Mobile Air Theater—were included in the broadcast to complete the picture. Extremely comprehensive, the series does not try to cover an entire field of employment in a single broadcast, devoting from four to five consecutive programs to one industry.

Directing more than 21,000 broadcasts a year, NBC's A. A. Schechter keeps America informed on outstanding current events, history in the making

History in the Making

One phase of broadcasting that enjoys the unique distinction of having the unreserved approval of education experts is current events. Included under this general title are news reports, at-the-scene descriptions of significant local, national and world happenings, broadcasts that bring the voices, counsel and wisdom of great people into the home and classroom. Current-events broadcasting offers an unequaled opportunity to every man to ear-witness history in the making, makes possible ear-association with the great and near-great of the day. A peek at the National Broadcasting Company's set-up to handle this phase of its service may give an insight into the magnitude of the undertaking.

Surrounded by telephones—inter-office, city, long-distance, emergency—with two secretaries to aid him, and ten assistants—all ex-newspapermen—busily typing out news as fast as the press associations bring it in by teletype printers, A. A. Schechter directs NBC's News and Special Events Division. Responsible for the coverage of all major news and sports events, Schechter's office directs more than 21,000 broadcasts a year, coordinating the services of division offices in San Francisco, Hollywood, Denver, Cleveland, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Schenectady, Boston and Washington. In addition, Schechter's office has available to his department the services of NBC's European managers—Fred Bate, Max Jordan—and others throughout the world who are subject to call in emergencies.

A special studio opens off the news-room making it possible to put important broadcasts right on the air without running to the regular studio section of the building. In emergencies like the war scare last October, when broadcasters are vying for the distinction of bringing the facts to the public first, microphones are set up right alongside the teletype printers and the news is put on the air as fast as it comes in.

As head of NBC's News and Special Events Division, Schechter has been in charge of such broadcasts as: American political conventions, the inaugurations of President Roosevelt, American election coverage, the abdication of King Edward, the coronation of King George VI of England, the Czech crisis and the Munich conference. In addition, his office has handled the radio news coverage of the Sino-Japanese War, the Spanish War, the Austrian Anschluss, and all news broadcasts, commentator programs and major sports events.

Schechter's assistants are all ex-newspapermen. Since coming to radio seven years ago to organize the news department for NBC, he has had to train many newsmen in the art of radio-writing as against newspaper- and magazine-writing. A recognized authority on his subject, Mr. Schechter has spoken on radio news-writing before journalism groups throughout the country.

It's a tremendous undertaking, bringing the outstanding details of history in the making into the home and classroom. The expense, trouble and ends to which NBC and the other major networks have gone to handle this job right make very convincing arguments in favor of the American system of broadcasting.

"Empire of the Feathered Serpent"

CENTURIES have passed since the Spaniards conquered Mexico and Central America, but the ruins of the ancient Mexican and Mayan civilizations still lift their heads to strange gods above the Yucatan jungle. Dr. George C. Vaillant and Mr. Clarence L. Hay of the American Museum, who have explored many of these ruins, will tell of the search to reconstruct the hidden history of these, at one time, great nations.

Chichen Itza in Yucatan, one of the most striking and best-preserved monuments of ancient civilization in the New World, was built during the renaissance of the Mayas around 800 A. D. Among the many beautiful structures in this "City of the Sacred Well," one of the most magnificent is the restored Temple of the Warriors, situated at the top of a high pyramid.

Not only did these people build great city-states such as Chichen Itza, Uxmal, Kabah and Coba, but they also constructed wide stone highways to connect their cities. Besides developing great artistic and architectural skill, the Mayas also invented a peculiar calendar system as accurate as our own; built observatories for their astronomers, who predicted eclipses of the sun and moon and chartered the stars and the signs of the seasons.

Dr. Clark Wissler, curator of the American Museum's Anthropology Department and one of the foremost authorities on American Indian lore, will review his explorations of the Indian cliff dwellings in our own Southwest.

Mrs. Blair Niles, known for her writings on Central and South American people, will tell of the foods and other products first used by natives of the New World and now used throughout the entire world to feed, clothe and run the wheels of industry.

"Empire of the Feathered Serpent" is the subject of the March 29 broadcast in the "New Horizons" series. Time: 2:30-3 p.m. EST; 1:30-2 CST; 12:30-1 MST; 11:30 a.m.-12 noon PST.

Radio Guide's April Educational Program Classifier will appear in the issue dated April 15, 1939

Recognized as the great chore of Russian literature, Count Leo Tolstoy (1828-1910), subject of this dramatization, used the novel, drama and essay with equal brilliancy in expressing his passionate social and religious philosophy. Blessed with the usual advantages of noble birth, he was given superb training for literary work, and except for a brief period of service in the Crimean War, devoted his whole life to writing.

SHE LIVES ALONE AND LIKES IT

"There is no other word for it. I lost weight. I was lonesome and homesick. Nobody cared what I did. Nobody knew that I was just a great, big, overgrown girl, cast in a comedy role and choking with loneliness. I cried a lot in those days."

The show opened in Atlantic City on August 29, 1926. Katie was billed as "Tiny Little." In the tryouts, the critics were kind to her. But that was not New York. The boys gave her a hand for her singing, and didn't take her apart. Newspapermen are a good sort with kind hearts, if you blast for them. But New York! Her own friends in the show warned her. The wolves were waiting.

Even New York was glad to see her. She sang "Half a Moon" and did the Charleston, and the New Yorkers applauded. But the next morning the critics began their left jabs. She was called a "find with huge, though somewhat comely, proportions." "She literally carried weight with her audience," another crack said. Others were "im-mense in more ways than one" and "she is sitting on top of the world—nothing else could bear that weight."

"Then I realized," she said, "that the road to success for a 'stylish stout' girl was a bit thorny. It never had occurred to me that my singing would not be considered seriously, or that the critics would stress my poundage and personality rather than the quality of my voice. For the next few years, there was no getting away from the fact that those who remembered me at all thought of me first as a fat girl."

She learned to play the ukulele and accompanied herself. She had a good ear for music and the musicians liked her and helped her. But it was a tough business. She played next in "Hit the Deck" and was the blackface mammy who rattled the rafters with "Hallelujah." Then she got a job in "Flying High" and took a lot of punishment.

She was a stooge to the comics and was the butt of all the jokes, some of them tainted.

"For the first time in my life, my pounds weighed heavily," she said, "and my heart was heavier."

If she got peeved at the wags, it was worse than ever, for they tried to take off the hide. They were out there fighting for laughs and nothing was sacred. Of course, she could have quit, but, thank God! there are some persons in the world who won't quit when the going gets tough, and Katie is one of them. She covered her tears with cold-cream and kept on plugging.

She never went out. She didn't smoke or drink and didn't like night-clubs. She had no real friends. She spent her spare time in her stuffy little room, brooding, living alone and having to like it.

In 1930, while cast in "Flying High," her emotions reached a new low. Letters from home praised her. The folks were proud of her success, what there was of it. She wasn't happy with her associates.

"They were not my kind of people," she said. "I bore them no grudge. We just didn't see things alike. They thought I was lucky. I thought I was a failure."

Then came a telegram from her grandfather and grandmother down in Maryland. They were coming up to see the show. Kate's heart flopped. Grandma and Grandpa were straight-laced, God-fearing folks. They wouldn't think some of the gags of the show were "fit'n," and when they discovered that their Kate was the butt of the jokes—well, Grandpa was apt to wave his cane, climb on the stage, fracture a few Yankee skulls and take Katie home.

She was frantic. The first thought of faking illness or a broken ankle. But she couldn't do it. She even begged some of the folks in the show to go easy for just one night, explained that the old folks would be present and that they wouldn't like the gags. The troupers just stared at her. They never had heard of such a thing!

Everybody laughed at the show that night except Kate and Grandma and Grandpa. The coarse jokes seemed coarser. Grandpa squared his jaw. Grandma blushed. After the show, Grandma said, "No amount of money can pay you for going through that." "I won't give up," she said.

Her father died while she was in musical comedy and her mother spent her time evenly between Kate and Helene.

She was making a name for herself, but she was unhappy. She was a natural for cartoonists and publicity men. Every city editor in town knew the Kate Smith gags. They were trite and fuzzy. I saw a city editor pick up a handout about her one day, read it and scream. Then he jumped on his desk and shouted to his staff, "Listen, you muggs! I'm sick of the Kate Smith cracks. The next guy who writes about her size will answer to me. Give the girl a break, she has taken enough punishment from wisequys!"

Ted Collins missed a train one night, and Kate Smith's life was changed. Collins is as Irish as peat; smooth, smart and gay. He knew his way around. He was an official of the Columbia Phonograph Company, and the night in 1930 when he missed a train he decided to kill a little time by seeing "Flying High." He saw only Kate Smith. He saw her for what she was—every inch a showwoman. She had everything except a break.

After the show, he sent her his card. The stage-door man handed it to her and she read his name. "I never heard of him," she said. She reckoned he was a smart guy, calling to take her to dinner so he could tell his pals the next day how many steaks she ate. "I don't want to see him," she said.

Then she chanced to turn the card over and on its back was written, "Important business."

That night she met Ted Collins, and the fates ran around the corner and doubled up with laughter—first at Kate Smith, then at Ted Collins, and at all the cutting cracks that had been flung at her. Thousands of people had laughed at her while she was weeping inside, but the fates laughed loudest.

Before Collins entered her dressing-room, she tore up his card.

"I wish I had kept it," she said.

He wanted her to make some records. That night he told her that some day radio would rival every other form of entertainment.

"Your success will come in radio," he told her. "Keep plugging and wait."

They became friends. She made recordings for him and often visited his office and sat around and talked shop. He took her for what she was—a singer who wanted to make good. He always called her Kathryn. One day she told him, "Look here, Mr. Collins. I've been in the show business four years, and I'm not getting anywhere."

Suddenly she began to cry. He let her weep. Then she talked. She told him how unhappy she was.

"All the bitterness in my heart poured

Now they can easily gain naturally attractive pounds, new health, pep and popularity, often in just a few weeks—by simply taking these pleasant little Ironized Yeast tablets.

Why they build up so quick

It's easy to understand. Scientists have discovered that hosts of people are thin, run-down and nervous simply because they don't get enough Vitamin B and iron from their daily food. Without these vital substances you may lack appetite and not get the most body-building good out of what you eat.

But now you can get these exact missing substances in these easy-to-take little Ironized Yeast tablets. And the improvement they make in a short time is often astonishing. Thousands have gained 10 to 25 pounds of naturally good-looking flesh in just a few weeks. Their tired feeling and nervousness seem to have just flown away. They're full of pep, look like new persons, and are more popular and happy in every way.

Make this money-back test

Get Ironized Yeast tablets from your druggist today. If with the first package you don't eat better and FEEL better, with much more strength and pep—if you're not convinced that Ironized Yeast will give you the normally attractive flesh, new energy and life you have longed for, the price of this first package will be promptly refunded.

Only be sure you get genuine Ironized Yeast, and not one of the cheap, inferior substitutes often offered which do not give the same results. Look for IY stamped on each tablet.

Special offer!

To start thousands building up their health right away, we make this special offer. Purchase a package of Ironized Yeast tablets at once, cut out the seal on the box and mail it to us with a clipping of this paragraph. Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 19. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

IN An air-mail communication from Walter Th. Kammann of Caracas, Venezuela, he advises that all short-wave stations in his country will soon be operating in the new 62-meter band. The new frequencies, most of which will be in effect by the time you read this, are as follows: YV5RN (5.04), "Radio Caracas," Caracas; YV4RQ (5.02), "Radio Puerto Cabello," Puerto Cabello; YV5RM (5.01), "Radiodifusora Venezuela," Caracas; YV5RK (5), Caracas (reserved for the government); YV3RX (4.99), "La Voz de Lara," Barquisimeto; YV1RJ (4.97), "Radio Falcon," Coro; YV5RS (4.96), "La Voz de la Philco," Caracas; YV4RO (4.95), "La Voz de Carabobo," Valencia; YV5RO (4.94), "La Voz de Venezuela," Caracas; YV4RP (4.93), "Radio Valencia," Valencia; YV5RU (4.92), "Estudios Universo," Caracas; YV1RY (4.91), "Radio Coro," Coro; YV6RT (4.90), "Radio Bolivar," Ciudad Bolivar; YV1RX (4.89), "Ondas del Lago," Maracaibo; YV6RU (4.88), "Ecos del Orinoco," Ciudad Bolivar; YV2RN (4.87), "La Voz del Tachira," San Cristobal; YV1RL (4.86), "Radio Popular," Maracaibo; YV1RZ (4.85), "Radio Valera," Valera; YV4RX (4.84), "La Voz de Aragua," Maracaibo; YV5RH (4.83), "Ondas Populares," Caracas; YV3RN (4.82), "Radio Barquisimeto," Barquisimeto; YV1RU (4.81), "Radiodifusora Maracaibo," Maracaibo; YV1RV (4.8), "Ecos del Zulia," Maracaibo; YV5RY (4.79), "La Voz de la Esfera," Caracas; YV1RO (4.78), "Radio Trujillo," Trujillo (under construction); YV1RT (4.77), "La Voz de la Fe," Maracaibo.

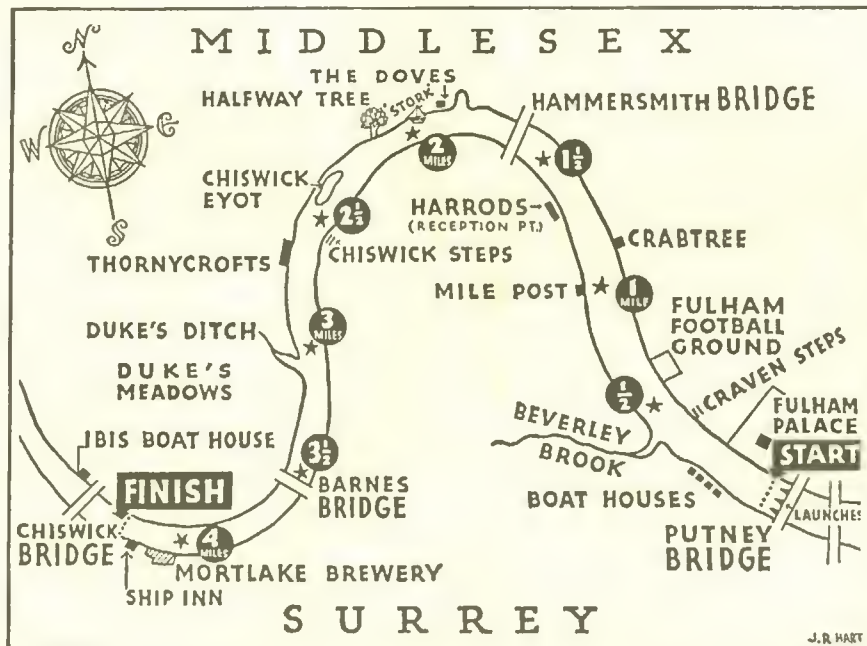

The creation of the 62-meter broadcast band was one of the greatest achievements to come out of last year's Cairo conference. Nearly fifty stations will soon be broadcasting in this band. This is quite significant, since it means the simultaneous release of almost as many overcrowded channels in the important 49-meter band. By next winter I predict reception on the 49-meter band will once more be interference-free and enjoyable. Be sure your new all-wave receiver includes the new 62-meter band (5.02 to 4.77 megs), since some of the late models have been omitting frequencies between the 49-meter and broadcast bands.

For the eighth successive year Daventry will broadcast the world-famous Oxford and Cambridge boat race. The broadcast will originate from a small short-wave transmitter aboard the BBC launch Consuta, which will follow the crews along the four-and-a-quarter-mile course from Putney to Mortlake. The race can be heard Saturday, April 1, at 5:45 a.m. EST, on GSF, GSG and GSJ.

SHORT-WAVE SHORTS: The University Club station at Boston is conducting experimental tests on frequencies of 11.73 and 15.13 megs, using the call W1XAR. . . The following India stations now come on the air nightly at 9:30 p.m. EST: VUD2 (9.59) and VUD3 (15.29) in Delhi, and VUB2 (9.55) in Bombay. VUC2 (9.53), Calcutta, comes on at 10 p.m. EST. . . Charles Guilbert of Paris, France, writes PSE (14.93) of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, broadcasts a French talk on Saturdays at 3 p.m. EST. . . A new Soviet Moscow-Komintern station is said to be broadcasting on 15.39 megs daily from 3:30 to 7 a.m. EST. . . TGQA (6.4), "The Voice of Quezaltenango, Quezaltenango, Guatemala, operates daily from 8 to 11 p.m. (to 1 a.m. on Sunday mornings) and Sundays from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. EST. . . A Portuguese station, believed to be a new frequency for Emissora Nacional de Lisbon, is being heard frequently on 15.12 megs. . . The short-wave relay of LRI, "Radio El Mundo" in Buenos Aires, Argentina, operates as follows: Daily over LRX (9.66) from 6 to 6:45 a.m. and from 9:15 a.m. to 10 p.m. and over LRU (15.29) from 7 to 9 a.m. EST. . . The International Listeners Association reports that VK2MA (42.86), the first ultra-high-frequency station in Australasia, is now in operation and relaying VK2ME (9.59), Sundays from 1 to 3 and from 5 to 11 a.m. EST. Who will be the first North American listener to hear VK2MA?

The story of Lloyds, established in 1771, one of the most famous institutions in the world, with whose underwriting members it is possible to insure against almost every kind of risk and which has thousands of policy-holders in America, will be told by its chairman, S. J. Aubrey, on Thursday, March 30, at 3:45 p.m. EST, over GSG and GSP.

Listeners to the annual classic, the Oxford vs. Cambridge boat race, heard Saturday, April 1, at 5:45 a.m. EST over GSF, GSG and GSJ, will find it easier to follow the description of the race with this diagram

It's plot is simple. A modern girl who is in love with a somewhat confused young man wants to try out marriage before she actually says her vows. She talks it over with her mother, who once lived in Greenwich Village and prides herself on a liberal viewpoint. The mother turns maternal, however, and refuses her permission. It is the daughter's discovery that the mother herself had a famous affair in her lavender past which had been commemorated in a poem of passion, and that the old lover has now become a trusted and respected friend of the family, which elicits her mother's unenthusiastic support. In the play, all ends happily because we learn that the trial week-end of marriage was a great success and they plan to be married. In the movie, the entire family sees them off on an ocean liner, whereon they will be made one by the obliging ship's captain.

I said in the beginning that this was to be an embarrassing and shocking article. I said also that I would present my case in such a way that I would not be accused of complimenting broadcasting without reason.

It may be said that the instances cited are not typical of all newspaper stories or books or plays or movies? What if they aren't? What if they are typical only of fifty, or forty, or ten percent of those means of communications of knowledge. Nevertheless, they do exist, and they do exist in considerable quantity and quality and are accepted by all with no outcry being made against them. Available on the screen, in municipal libraries, on newsstands, these are the impacts which batter the American standard of morals.

So now I submit a certain white knight named radio.

Radio has done more to return our boys and girls to decency and will continue to do more, if we don't throttle it, than any force in the land. Shall we call the roll? Let's do, proudly!

"One Man's Family!"

If there were a Pulitzer prize for radio drama, this program would win it. But here are no mysterious mistresses, no harum-scarum infidelities. Instead, a solid and lovable American family with its feet on the ground.

"The O'Neill's!"

Ever since Pa O'Neill died, Ma O'Neill has had to be both father and mother to her family. She is the corner-stone that holds together the separate parts of the family structure.

"Those We Love!"

This is a human and emotional story of a substantial family in any New England town of 10,000 or 15,000 population. In this case, the family is the Marshalls, and the New England town is Westbridge, Conn. Head of the family is John Marshall, who scorns corruption and encourages the elements which make for a peaceful, unhurried town of substantial families. Mrs. Marshall died the day after Mr. Marshall came back from the war. Kathy and Kit, the 22-year-old twins, do not remember her, but John, who never married again, adores them, being first a father and then a lawyer.

"The Goldbergs!"

The story of The Goldbergs is the story of the great melting-pot that is America, with all of the early scenes laid in New York City. Molly's beautiful philosophy, developed in girlhood, has helped her through the years as she and Jake, her husband, climbed from moderate success to near-affluence and later through the depression, which put them back to a point below where they had started life together.

"Vic and Sade!"

Vic and Sade Gook live in a "small house half-way up the block." Their homely every-day doings make the show. Often it's nothing more important than Vic and Sade's conversation on "beef punkles" and "Limberschwartz cheese" or a ride with the Stembottoms. The big thing about this show that makes it unique is the fact that there's never a tear, tragedy or heart-throb.

"Aunt Jenny's Stories!"

Listeners to this program were quick to accept its true-to-life nature. It is estimated that today approximately nine million people listen each week to "Aunt Jenny's." The program is built around the story-teller, a kindly, warm-hearted woman whom everyone in her small town calls Aunt Jenny. Her stories from real life combine love, humor, pathos and adventure. In the course of the informal stories the listener makes the acquaintance of various members of her family and some of her friends who drop in to chat with her.

"Those Happy Gilmans!"

This is the story of an average American family—a happy family. Ethel and Gordon Gilman, the parents, face the ordinary problems of a $2,000-a-year family. Phyllis and Stan are just a normal American girl and boy, experiencing the usual things that most happy, carefree youths experience. The current plot deals with a misfortune of Wheezy, the youngest child. He is suspected of having disobeyed his father and gone out of the house when he had promised not to. To add to his discomfiture, some ice cream is filched from a party and Wheezy's mittens are found beside the abandoned freezer.

We could go on naming others—all those splendid unsung shows on local stations, and those which have run their span and then faded from the air.

We could hail Lum and Abner or Amos 'n' Andy or the "First Nighter" plays as clean, honest, and good fun. And that unforgettable romance between Lanny Ross and Mary Lou.

But it would do no good for some people, we are afraid, because it is human experience that we must always have with us some of those carrot-nosed busybodies whose only enjoyment is complaining. Let another Mae West open her lips before a microphone or let a turn of fate's wheel spin some luckless radio producer into a slip of judgment and their ranting fills the blue.

If I were a government commissioner appointed to administer this broadcasting business in the public interest, convenience, and necessity, and I found my ears abuzz with the drivelings of dunghill critics who claimed that some broadcast or other was harmful to our morals, I know what I would do.

I'd say, "Thank God this American radio is clean."

And I'd mow them down.

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

SHE LIVES ALONE AND LIKES IT

out," she said. "I rambled for an hour. And when I stopped he said, 'Forget it. I'll be your manager from now on. All you have to do is sing.'"

She said, "Okay."

And there it was, one of the strangest partnerships in the show business. There wasn't a contract and still isn't, only a mutual understanding. He went to the theater and was able to tone down some of the gags. He insisted on her staying with the show until it closed.

Collins had been pulling wires. He finally landed her a spot with NBC. It was a late evening slumber-hour and was too sleepy. They wanted it pepped up, and figured Kate's voice could do it.

But it didn't, and few persons recall that Katie's first venture in radio was a flop; the big girl had come to the big city and hadn't made good. She went home to Washington. A vacation, she called it, but really she was heart-broken.

But not Brother Collins. He had been around New York too long. He knew he had something. He pushed her records and they sold, then he got a spot for her at the Capitol and wired her to come back to the big city, that all was forgiven. Back she came and sang at the Capitol. Collins had arranged for some officials of the Columbia Broadcasting Company to be present.

He told them he had a radio voice that could sell anything, told them to close their eyes and imagine they were in Podunk listening to a radio. And when Miss Smith sang, the officials were impressed, a little.

She got a job. She was paid $50 a week! She had earned $5 a week when she was 11, singing for such persons as Nicholas Longworth, Woodrow Wilson and Warren Harding. She had made $300 a week in musical comedy.

Today, Kated, Inc. (Kate and Ted) is capitalized at $400,000 and Kate and Ted are the only stockholders. Ted is president and treasurer. Kate is vice president.

Who says Cinderella was a fake? James Street's frank and concluding article about Kate Smith's life appears in next week's issue.

Reducible FAT GOES!

*She Lost 55 lbs. this Easy Way

Don't just sit back and envy slender women! If many fat people only knew it their type of fat often may be reduced. It is possible that you are one of these people. If so, try the modern REDUCE-OIDS Way, like Mrs. I. R. Schulze of Jackson, Mich. "After being overweight for years I tried REDUCE-OIDS and lost 55 lbs. I look 10 years younger!" Mrs. Porter Tyler of Cranston, Wis., writes: "Lost 67 lbs., felt better from the start." Mrs. Gladys Ryer, Reg. Nurse, Dayton, Ohio, writes: "Lost 47 lbs. with most satisfactory results!" Miss Elvora Hayden of Marion, Pa., writes: "Lost 30 lbs., left me looking like a Miss Loretta Lee of Los Angeles writes: 'My sister's physician recommended REDUCE-OIDS. I lost 21 lbs. Feel so much better.' Many others write of their success with REDUCE-OIDS. Since individuals vary, so do the causes of overweight, we do not claim that everyone using REDUCE-OIDS will receive the same splendid results. REDUCE-OIDS are intended for the reduction of reducible fat. In be used only by adults who are otherwise healthy and normal, and whose fat is caused by a disturbance of some of the glands of internal secretion, known as hypothyroidism and accompanying subnormal metabolic rate, one of the common causes. In other words, when these glands do not aid the system in using a sufficient amount of calories, energy is not made available for the system to maintain proper functioning. Therefore, weight usually increases. REDUCE-OIDS are intended to aid these glands. REDUCE-OIDS must be used according to the easily understood full directions given on the label and pamphlet accompanying each package, which may be seen at your druggist's. No other claims are made, and as you can readily understand, we do not diagnose or prescribe. We believe that you will agree that REDUCE-OIDS are worthy of a trial. Surely no woman would want to be burdened with reducible fat by choice. Don't let this ugly reducible fat rob you of your success and happiness! REDUCE-OIDS have been on the market for over twenty years, and millions have been sold. Testimonials tell of their results. If your druggist is out of REDUCE-OIDS, have him order from his wholesaler today. If still unable to obtain REDUCE-OIDS, write at once, giving druggist's name, to American Medicinal Products, Inc., Dept. G539, 6630 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.

SECRET LOVES THAT SHOOK THE WORLD

The Strange Passions of Kings, Queens and Consorts That Built Empires—and SMASHED Them!

At Last Unveiled!

Of the hundred and one versions of the romance of Antony and Cleopatra—the strangest, most exotic love story known to history—here is the one which tells the TRUE account of the Roman soldier's blind passion for the sensuous Egyptian Queen!

"HITLER needs a woman!"—a famous German recently exclaimed. "A lovely woman could change the whole destiny of Europe!"

Could she? The world may never know. But we do know that beautiful women, wives and wantons, have changed the very face of the earth. From palaces, humble homes and brothels these most fascinating creatures of all time have soared to their mighty conquests. Their arts of love have toppled thrones, torn empires asunder, thrown whole nations into bloody chaos!

What were these irresistible women REALLY like? What amazing secrets of their sex did they possess? What made the world's greatest kings and conquerors surrender helplessly, passionately, to their spell? How and where did they and their lovers meet so secretly, again and again, when thousands of eyes were glaucously watching their every move?

At last the truth can be told! Now, in 3 magnificent full-size volumes, you can read the unbelievable but startlingly true detailed accounts of these astounding women, ancient and modern, who ruled the rulers of the world with Love. Now you can know the strange vices of Czar Peter, that made Catherine the Great throw herself into the arms of Orloff, and Potemkin, and so many others. You can understand why Queen Elizabeth's courtiers were so careful to call her—fiery daughter of lusty Henry VIII—"The Virgin Queen."

No longer need you wonder why "George Sand" assumed a man's name, smoked black cigars, dressed like a man—yet embraced the greatest poets, musicians and artists of her day among her scandalous conquests! You can read the astonishing story of how Cleopatra, exotic Queen of the Nile, first appeared in Caesar's tent—and vanquished him with her own young, radiant, irresistible self. And how next, using even greater wiles, she caught Mark Antony in her silky net.

Love Affairs That History Didn't DARE Disclose!

Why has the story of Napoleon—not the Emperor and soldier, but the lover—been denied you? Read how he ruthlessly forced consummation of his marriage to Marie Louise before the vows were spoken; and how he conducted his friendship with beautiful Mme. Walewska of Poland.

Do you know the actual love stories of Marie Antoinette and Count Ferson, Charles II and Nell Gwyn, of Dean Swift and the two Esthers? What really happened between the King of Bavaria and the outrageous Lola Montez, Lady Blessington and Count d'Orsay, Lord Byron and the Countess Guicciolo? Here, in all their passions, are the true love dramas of those who defied convention and let their ardor carry them to unprecedented heights—or to the depths of human degradation.

No mere illustration or description can do justice to the rich, luxurious beauty of this great 3-volume set of the ROYAL ROMANCES OF HISTORY. Not only will they reveal to you some of the most amazing and outstanding facts in history, but they bring to your library an air of distinction and taste. These volumes—printed on quality paper, bound in pebbled grain cloth handsomely stamped—represent one of the most remarkable values ever offered. The low price of only $2.89 is not for one book alone—but for all 3 of these superb volumes!
