Margo, Los Angeles

How about a picture of Jack Rourke of the Party Line program?

Whatever Margo wants — Margo gets.

Mrs. B. R., Los Angeles

Personally, you can take Elvis Presley, Perry Como, Dick Haymes, Bob Crosby, Frankie Laine, Eddie Fisher and the rest of the top singers and instead give me Jim Roberts who sings with Lawrence Welk. Now there's a fellow who is nice looking, has a great voice and knows how to put over a song.

I also feel Ray Bolger really has something in Washington Square and I thoroughly enjoy it.

F. H., Paramount

A recent correspondent wrote that Jeanne Cagney of the Queen For A Day show is for the birds. Personally, I think Jeanne is cute and I think she is swell too. She describes the clothes so well. And when she is on vacation, we miss her. I think the person who wrote those bad things about Jeanne would surely change her mind if she saw her in person.

M. P., Van Nuys

Noah's Ark is the best ever and we love it. My little brother and sister like it too. We can't have a dog, but the kids have a cat.

We like the show too, but it is being canceled in March.

H. S., Bell

I agree 100 per cent that the spot light on TV makes the people look terrible. It is so much better without it.

J. S., Covina

Enjoyed reading a recent article about the subject "Do Disc Jockeys Talk Too Much?" However, it seemed as if the article somewhat circumvented the crux of the situation because it didn't include Jackson Wheeler, who in my estimation is the worst offender in the bunch. He certainly likes to hear the sound of his own voice.

Miss J. S. is entitled to her own opinion, of course. However, Jackson Wheeler can not be classified strictly as a "disc jockey." He spins rickers (if that's possible?) instead of recordings.

J. W., San Diego

A recent article, "Do Disc Jockeys Talk Too Much?" by Ted Hilgenstuhler made me furious. Mr. H. must be a nervous, anti-social person not to be able to enjoy a human friendly voice.

Mr. H.'s comment: "Huh? Whadi'dja say?"

FM Is Big News Again!

Shoved off into virtual obscurity by booming TV a few years ago, FM is now bouncing back in amazing way.

TOM BAXTER, director of KABC's FM broadcasts, makes selection of records from his personal library. He uses only his own records to assure quality and care in handling.

LAWRENCE WELK AND Alice Lon examine some of mail resulting from start of their stereophonic sound broadcasts over year ago.

The Facts

IN the past ten years a rather remarkable thing has happened in radio broadcasting. Following World War II, FM burst on the radio horizon offering a panacea to all the ills to which the broadcasting industry might have fallen heir. It offered a quality of reproduction startling in those pre-HI-FI days. Static and interference-free, FM radio was the "coming thing."

FM stations sprouted like weeds, but something was wrong. Despite all the promises, public acceptance of FM was slow. The bubble didn't break, but the sheen on it was dull. Many of the stations shut down. The majority of those that remained were affiliates of regular AM stations and simply broadcast simultaneously the AM station's programs. So it remained until about 1952.

Then, along came HI-FI. Along came the LP recording. Along came the inexpensive, but good quality FM receivers. And into many homes, came a basic sound reproduction system which could be satisfied only by FM. More slowly this time, but on a far sounder basis, FM Radio began moving into its own.

As a result, FM has experienced a virtual resurrection. Today in this area there are almost 20 stations broadcasting on FM. There are now some 927,000 FM receivers tuned in to these stations. A recent survey showed that nearly 47 per cent of Los Angeles homes were equipped to receive FM. Of course, not all of these homes are set up just for FM. As pointed out above, many FM receivers are incorporated in elaborate sound units.

Among the radio stations broadcasting both AM and FM is KABC, which obtained its license in May 1948. Realizing that FM was on the upsurge again, KABC recently began thinking of scheduling separate programming for FM exclusively. But before taking this step, the station manager, John Hansen, decided to have an independent survey made to find out for KABC exactly how many FM receivers there were in the greater Los Angeles area, which means Los Angeles and Orange counties.

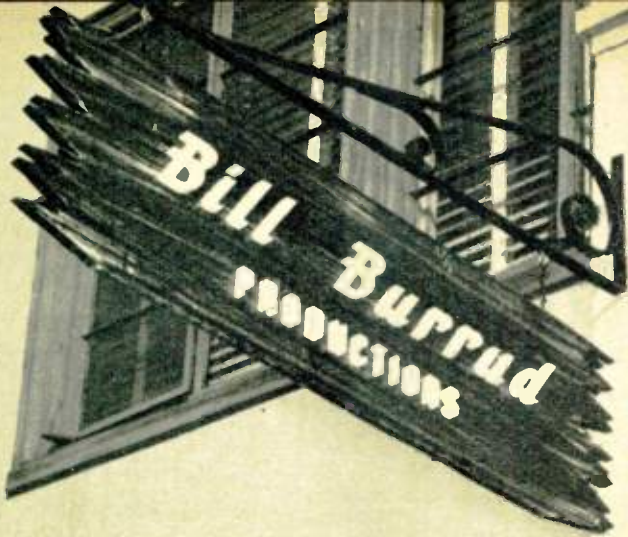

Results were so unbelievable that a second survey was made to recheck. It came out only one-tenth of a percentage point different. The survey showed the almost million FM receivers in this area.

Ever since early 1955 when it inaugurated its pioneering Stereophonic broadcasting using two transmitters to achieve the three-dimensional realism of Stereophonic sound, KABC began receiving mail from FM listeners. According to Tom Baxter, KABC's director of FM operations, "it rapidly became apparent from both quantity and quality of mail that we were dealing with a type of listener we had seldom met before. How could we make him a regular listener to KABC's programs? The answer lay in special programming of our FM transmitter, separate from the AM program and offering him a set of broadcasting standards he could find nowhere else.

Problem

"When it came time to set up the program schedule for KABC-FM, quite a decision was necessary. The FM stations currently on the air in the Los Angeles area were generally following one of two courses: strict classical programming, or the so-called "background music" programming.

"There are advantages to both," Baxter points out. "For reasons best known to a student of sociology, the vast majority of HI-FI fans are also classical music enthusiasts. If HI-FI was our object and these listeners our target, classical music alone would be our ammunition. On the other hand, a great proportion of the (Please turn to page 11)

WHY Adventure Shows BECAME TV Clicks

IF Jack Heintz, manager of KCOP, hadn't been the kind of person who used to go to movies just to watch the James Fitzpatrick travel shorts instead of the pictures, there might not be any adventure shows as such on TV.

It all happened when Jack Douglas went to Heintz with an idea.

"I've got some clips here of people who have taken unusual trips," he said. "They're really exciting and they should make a good TV series."

Jack debated the issue for just as long as it took him to see the clips. That did it and I Search for Adventure went on KCOP shortly afterwards and soon became one of the nation's highest rated shows.

Then Douglas, who is the real pioneer in adventure shows on TV, introduced Golden Voyage and Kingdom of the Sea.

Heintz realized he had a valuable new property here so he contacted Bill Burrud who was producing similar programs on another station. After some negotiations Bill took his Wanderlust and Vagabond, written by TV-Radio Life's Ted Hilgenstuhler, to KCOP where their popularity skyrocketed in short order.

SLIM BARNARD is the narrator of Wanderlust, which is produced by Bill Burrud.

BILL BURRUD, who produces Vagabond and Wanderlust, is seen here photographing some interesting rock formation for a future show.

February 16, 1957

There's a good reason for the success of such shows as I Search for Adventure, Kingdom of the Sea, Golden Voyage, Wanderlust, and Vagabond. The men behind these programs are real TV pioneers.

By Jack Holland

Why They Clicked

"Adventure shows as such have been popular, I think because most all of us want to travel to far-off places and have the exciting experiences that those who made the films had," Jack Heintz explained. "At first, none of us knew if these shows would go. It was a gamble, but it has certainly paid off. They paid off because thousands of people are arm-chair travelers.

"We have carefully presented these shows in blocks to increase their popularity. Search is on for an hour and Golden Voyage and Wanderlust are combined for an hour, as are Vagabond and Kingdom of the Sea. We have found this type of presentation has done much to attract viewers.

"Wanderlust and Golden Voyage are enough different in type to give a nice change of pace because the places visited on Wanderlust are those easily accessible by all whereas Golden Voyage covers the world. The same applies to Vagabond and Kingdom of the Sea.

"We're now bringing in two other shows — Wonders of the World, which features the travels of the Hal Linker family, and Jungle, which is on every day and presents amazing film clips of the animal world. We expect Wonders of the World to have real appeal too because it will give viewers a look at a truly interesting family."

In the beginning, KCOP carried its first adventure show, I Search for Adventure, on sustaining for two months since few sponsors could see the value in such a show. They changed their mind in short order, however, and took on the program.

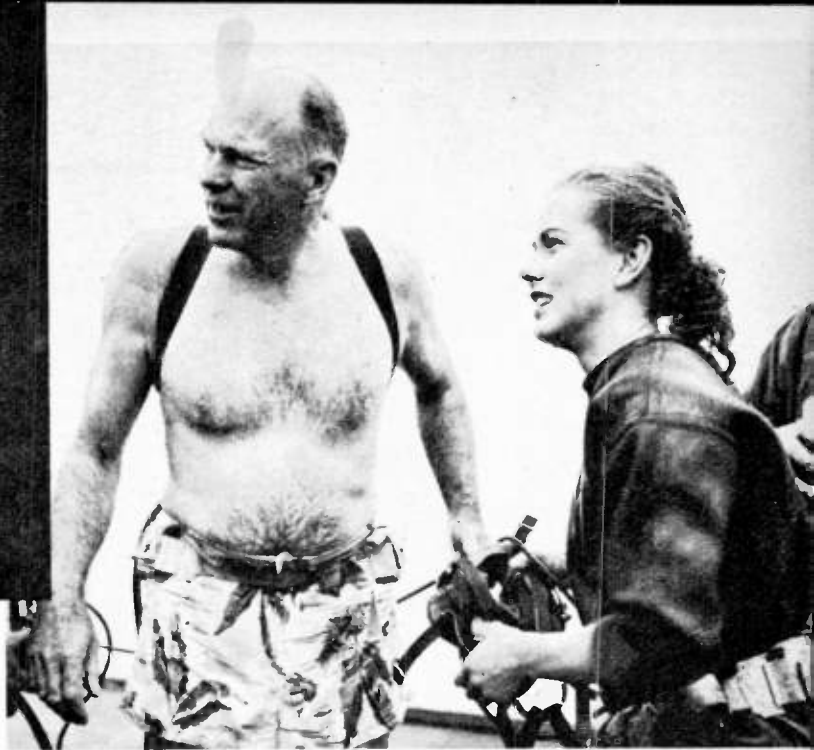

Presentation

"I think Search — and the others — have caught on because the presentation is down-to-earth," Jack Heintz continued. "They never talk down to their audience, whereas some travel shows have been too sophisticated, too aloof in approach. Douglas' attitude is always friendly and appeals to the average viewer, just as is Slim Barnard's happy, informal style.

"The interesting thing, too, about our shows is that while some are done by commercial photographers the majority is the work of top amateurs. They prove that anyone could come up with such films if he wanted to take the time and the trouble. No stock shots at all are used. Everything is real, just the way they were taken with nothing gussied up.

"The only show that might be difficult for an average person to film is Kingdom of the Sea which deals with a very specialized kind of adventure. Yet, we hear this show has contributed much toward building up interest in skin diving."

JACK DOUGLAS, producer of I Search for Adventure, Golden Voyage and Kingdom of the Sea, is the real pioneer of the adventure series, along with the faith of KCOP's Jack Heintz.

COL. JOHN D. CRAIG, narrator of Kingdom of the Sea, and Zale Parry, female aide and champion skin diver, in action for a segment of the KCOP series.

The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has also recognized the value in two of these adventure shows. I Search for Adventure and Kingdom of the Sea have been nominated three times for an Emmy. That neither won the coveted award remains a fantastic puzzler and has only added fuel to the argument that Emmys are given out in some cases in a rather slap-dash manner.

When these shows go on your TV set, probably the most avidly interested viewer of all is Jack Heintz, who sits glued to his set not to criticize or appraise but to have himself a ball. After all, he has never been out of this country and he has traveled but little, so all of this is exciting to him.

Jack Douglas, Bill Burrud, and Slim Barnard have proved that TV is not limited just to quiz shows and family situation comedies. They have proved, too, that audiences are interested in something worthwhile. Their faith in the intellectual capacity of their viewers is one of the most significant aspects of the shows' success.

THE STORY OF Julie London AND Bobby Troup

...how it all began
... and may end.

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

Quite unexpectedly, it all began on the night of March 24, 1954. Two people who had never met before.

They had a lot in common — professionally and personally. They were both basically show business people. Both at the crossroads of their careers. He, a piano player and singer and composer was making a good living. But nothing “big” was happening. She, a former actress, was looking for something to do to keep her busy. She didn’t know exactly what.

They shared another common and unfortunate experience. They were both married and divorced. Each, a devoted parent, had two children at home.

The piano player was called Bobby. Julie was her name.

An ardent fan of good jazz music, one night Julie London was “making the rounds” with a group of friends of the various combos in town. They stopped at the Celebrity Room where Bobby Troup was playing. Bobby knew Julie’s friends and was introduced to her.

“I didn’t know who she was,” Bobby recalls, “but I thought she was awfully pretty.” (The understatement of the year for anyone who has seen the blue-eyed, golden-haired, well-proportioned beauty.)

A VERSATILE VOCALIST, Julie has already appeared as a guest on one of Bobby’s popular Stars of Jazz programs on KABC-TV, Channel 7 — and may soon do another.

“The first thing I remember saying,” Julie recalls, “is that we looked alike. Our noses and forehead come straight down,” she gestures with her hands. (Facially, they do resemble each other. But the comparison ends there — quite thankfully.)

Later in the evening, Julie invited Bobby to her house for a late snack with her friends. Merely for fun, Julie sang a song.

“I just couldn’t believe what I heard,” Bobby continues the story. “I had no idea she could sing. And she didn’t want to sing, either. At least professionally. She had only done it once before. As a band vocalist when she was 14 years old.”

It took a lot of convincing, but Bobby finally persuaded Julie to open at John Walsh’s 881 Club.

The rest is show business history: Julie’s smash recording of “Cry Me A River,” her “Julie” album; and her latest album success “Calendar Girl.”

Bobby, meanwhile, who acts as her unofficial agent and arranger (without any direct monetary compensation, he might add) has been on the upswing career-wise with nightly appearances at the Keynote on Santa Monica Blvd., movie assignments, recording dates, and of course, his own Stars of Jazz program on KABC-TV.

What about the marital status between these two who very obviously have more than show business on their mind when they look into each other’s eyes?

“Not yet,” says Bobby. “We’ve both been hurt before. We want to make absolutely sure this time.”

WHO'S THE BUSIEST lady on TV these days? Time-wise, it would be difficult to beat the long hours Betty Yoakel puts "on camera" as hostess of KITY's Rocket to Stardom. This early-morning amateur program has given "breaks" to a countless number of entertainers. Betty's mail pull (spelled "male" too) is quite considerable every week.

AS IF ONE "SCHULTZY" (Bob Cummings eager secretary) isn't enough—Warren Hull is seeing two of them! The real "Schultzy," Ann B. Davis is on the right, and the "other Schultzy" is Mrs. Perry Norton of Lexington, Mass. They're twins and recently appeared on Warren's Strike It Rich program.

THIS WEEK'S TELEVISION-RADIO NEWS IN PICTURES

THE OLD CHAMPS meet the news ones. On the left: Erik and Helen Gude of Palos Verdes who hit the $5200 jackpot for the 15th time on the January 29 show of Do You Trust Your Wife. Their $79,200 total at this date surpassed the $74,000 racked up by the previous all-time champions Steve and Dorothy Rowland, on the CBS-KNXT show.

NBC-TV'S NEW format of Tonight got started with a bang with such opening night guests as Zsa Zsa Gabor and Dean Martin. Dean's remarks about ex-partner Jerry Lewis were certainly enough to convince viewers the program hopes to make excitement.

WHEN KTTV'S DUDE MARTIN was installed as honorary Mayor of Hollywood at the Roosevelt Hotel—the job was done right. Martin received the official "Honorary Mayor Medalion" from Art Linkletter (center) and His Honor Himself, Mayor Norris Poulson. The Kiwanis Club of Hollywood sponsored the event. (KTTV-Rothchild photo.)

WOLO, THE master puppeteer of Panorama Pacific has a "baby brother or sister" for his mouse friend, Aloysius. Sex not known yet—because the name hasn't been chosen. That's being done on KNXT's "Name the Puppet Contest," which closes February 23.

MARK SCOTT is back in town after announcing the Cincinnati major league games last year. Says he didn't like it back there, and has come "home" to stay—but is looking for things to do. He'll be back calling the Hollywood games this season.

EMILE FRACHEL finally let the "cat" or the "dog" out of the bag last week on KCOP's Adventure in Hypnotism by revealing that the mysterious "Arvo"—his most ardent fan—was really a remarkable St. Bernard dog, who could actually follow a program on TV. Saddest part to the otherwise smart promotional scheme was the untimely death of the dog.

I THINK ALCOA HOUR'S traffic drama, "No License to Kill," should be made compulsory viewing in schools from junior high up. It was a nerve shaker, but rightly so. Having blinded Victor Riesel do the narration added a special note to the presentation. I talked to Mr. Riesel at a little gathering NBC arranged the Thursday before the show. He told me he had a quick memory and experienced no great difficulty in learning his lines. Some of his more intricate parts were filmed. Someone was always near to give him a light touch to cue him. From what he said I gathered that there is hope someday he may be able to see a little. He told one chap he might be able to tell "whether I'm talking to you or Marilyn Monroe."

CLEVER PRODUCER ALAN HANDLEY should take it as a compliment when NBC-TV assigns him such difficult shows as the movies' Oscar nominations, the Walter Winchell opus and now the TV Emmy nomination telecast. This last-named production is a mean one.

THE TV ACADEMY IS ALREADY BEING attacked because it cut the categories down to 29. Only 9 of these will be included in the Feb. 16 colorcast, five nominees being named for each category for a total of 45.

WHEN I ASKED HANDLEY WHY they were doing a nomination show, he said "Money and ratings — money for the TV Academy and ratings because viewers like to watch the stars on something like this." I understand that Olds, which is sponsoring the program, has guaranteed a nice sum for the TV Academy's coffers.

HANDLEY'S BIGGEST PROBLEM is to give entertainment value to the production. First there's the value of having prospective nominees on screen. This means getting stars to show up for the telecast. This ticklish matter has been left up to the Academy, which has assured performers they won't be put on camera if they are not nominated. With a promise like this the turnout should be 100 per cent.

BUT IN ADDITION TO THE STARS' appearance, Handley has been working exceptionally hard to provide a real show. He told me he's planning to use a group of Western stars in one number and a group of top singers (Fisher, Martin, etc.) in another.

ALAN HANDLEY

HE IS PLANNING A JAZZ BAND comprising several stars who play instruments expertly — this will probably be done from both Hollywood and New York with split-screen treatment. Handley also has tricks up his sleeve for Nanette Fabray, Sid Caesar, Gertrude Berg, Steve Allen, Desi and others. On a serious note, Orson Welles will deliver a tribute to television. Handley has really hit on an idea here. In fact, an orchid to TV is long overdue.

HANDLEY, WHO USED TO WRITE, direct and produce Dinah Shore's TV show, has been flying back and forth between tremendous growth of FM has been based on a listener desire to have just pleasant music as an unobtrusive companion; a different target and different tactics.

"First, the decision was made to offer music which would interest the listener on any grounds. At seven o'clock we scheduled music with the wider popular appeal, yet with sufficient character that the "background" terminology did not necessarily apply. Although broken into two half-hour segments, the first half-hour generally presents music easy to listen to, and of a lighter nature. The second half-hour, familiar music from Broadway musical comedy. From eight to ten, the music is frankly classical.

driven there as a refuge from much of the intense commercialism of standard broadcasting.

"To the FM program director was thus presented an enigma: woo the advertiser and keep the listener. The acrobatics involved in this tightrope treading are far from simple. An educational campaign is necessary for the majority of the advertisers to convince them that only calm, intelligent, low key selling will fit the medium of FM. He must understand that, in general, this FM shouted repetitions or to the premise that quantity of commercial copy cannot make up for quality.

"No FM station which has not subscribed to, or lived by, these basic ideas, has yet been successful," Baxter concluded. "For those which have—a success story bordering on the spectacular has been the result."

Liberace is not currently being seen on local TV, but that doesn't curtail any interest in his activities. In checking up on Lee and George's recent moves I also discovered that there is one woman who really has a lot to do with running things behind scenes in the Liberace manse. Her name is Jane, George's wife.

"Keeping up with Lee and George is really a job!" the very personable Jane remarked recently. "Since last April they have been in their homes for just ten days. They are forever on tour and I'm usually the one who is put in charge of taking care of their business while they're gone.

"George and Lee are quite different, and I must say George has spoiled Lee. Lee, who is a really fine person, has, however, some very confusing characteristics. For one, he has no sense of time whereas George is very punctual. And in the days when Lee wasn't driving a car and we had to get him to various appointments there was really confusion," Jane laughed.

"I can never forget one night when Lee was due at the Shrine Auditorium at nine for a concert. George and I arrived at Lee's house at seven-thirty but Lee wasn't ready to leave until twenty to nine. George got him to the Shrine — how I'll never know — one minute before he was due on stage. Lee was as calm as he could be and did a terrific show.

"George and I asked Lee why he didn't drive and he only said, 'I get too nervous.' Finally, I asked a friend of mine who sold Cadillacs to take his most elegant model to show Lee. He did, took Lee for a ride, Lee loved it, and bought it. He got driving lessons along with the car. A few days later he proudly announced he was going to get his driver's license to which I said, 'You have to know how to back up first.' Lee tossed this off with, 'Oh, you just push a button and the car goes.' Well, typical of Lee, he got his test, passed it 100 percent, and is now driving all over the place. Interestingly enough, since he has been driving he is always on time for his appointments."

When George and Lee went to Europe for the London engagement some months ago, Jane went along. She was told it would be a fine vacation for her. Well, that isn't what it turned out to be!

"Lee must have autographed 4,000 autograph books," Jane recalled, "and there were at least 10,000 letters to be answered from fans there. We tried to get him to stop giving so many autographs since he was having no time to himself, but he wouldn't let his fans down. So answering the mail and taking care of all the fans who wanted to see Lee required the constant services of myself, Mrs. Seymour Heller, who was along on the trip, and Lee's mother. We didn't even have a chance to see any of the sights at all! What a vacation! Lee would even sit and visit with people who came to the hotel and claimed to be relatives of his. This man just loves people.

"I marvel at Lee and the way he does things. When he did his Las Vegas show, three days before the opening he decided to create a terrific production instead of just an act. George was worried and nervous, but Lee took it all in his stride — and he put on a tremendous show. God watches over Lee, believe me!"

Capsule Comments: Alcoa Hour's production of "No License to Kill" was good drama, but it will take something stronger than this to help prevent accidents... "Mayerling" was, on the whole, an impressive effort, but Mel Ferrer's uneven performance robbed it of a good deal of its necessary sensitivity and emotion. Audrey Hepburn was a dream, with Diana Wynward superb in her one big scene.

JACK HOLLAND asked in his column last week for views from his readers on whether the cultural shows, such as "Omnibus," are being wasted on TV. Well, I'm a reader of Jack's column and my view is that as long as people read cultural columns like his and mine, there will be an audience for cultural TV. Please watch "Omnibus," everybody... there aren't any movies on then, anyway, and it's a cracking good show.

"It's in the Bag." (9) Feb. 19, 9:00. 1945. Fred Allen was responsible for some of the best humor ever to be offered the American public and for some of the worst and this film manages to touch both the high and low points in Allen's talent. It is on the whole a funny picture, and abetted by such fellow comics as Jack Benny, Victor Moore and Robert Benchley, Allen does quite well in a medium he never considered his own. His uncle dies and leaves him five antique chairs, which he immediately sells before discovering that there are several million dollars hidden in the bottom of one of them, the hunt for same occupying his time the rest of the picture.

"Alexander Graham Bell, The Story of." (11) Feb. 20, 7:00. 1939. You've heard all the hoary jokes about Don Ameche discovering the telephone? Well, watch this and see why. He discovers it, all right, with the aid of helpful wife Loretta Young and assistant Henry Fonda. With Alex and his wife, this picture ought to have at least two Bells, but I'm afraid it barely rings once.

"Woman in White." (5) Feb. 17, 7:30. 1948. Eleanor Parker plays a dual role, here. She is wealthy heiress about to marry schemer John Emery and she is her own cousin, locked up in an institution for the mentally deranged. As the suspected psychotic (she has, of course, been railroaded) she dresses all in white and escapes to warn her cousin about the bouncers she is mixed up with. Sydney Greenstreet, Alexis Smith and Gig Young are variously heroes and villains of the movie, a period piece set in England of 1850.

"Girl in the Painting." (7) Feb. 16, 7:30. 1949. A British soldier on lonely leave happens by an art gallery and is admiring a painting of a lovely girl when a stranger mentions that he believes the subject to be his long lost daughter. The soldier is intrigued and tracks the girl to Germany, where she professes complete ignorance of any parents other than those she is living with. A tightly knit British puzzle, quietly exciting and nicely acted, with Mai Zetterling and Herbert Lom.

"Journey For Margaret." (11) Feb. 22, 10:30. 1942. Adapted from a true story by W. L. White, this tale tells of the adoption of a couple of British war orphans by an American war correspondent. There is a lot about the difficulty of the children to adapt to strangers and some pure movie hokum about White's wife losing a child and forming an antipathy toward the little tots, but in the end all is well in a movie that really jerks tears, as I remember. With Robert Young, Laraine Day and Margaret O'Brien.

"The Perfect Woman." (7) Feb. 20, 3:00. Based on the life of Josephine Dahl, wife of the famous columnist.

Men of Annapolis

Ch. 2 KNXT

Thursday 7 pm.

THOUGH I have heard no direct comment from a barnacle-bottomed sea-dog on Men of Annapolis, it would be reasonably safe to assume that the traditional sulphuric command of the English language would be vigorously upheld on glimpsing this recent addition to television fare.

Men of Annapolis presents all the more sorry picture considering the inherent wealth of material one would normally assume to be part and parcel of a naval school whose products have played decisive roles in national and world history. It is unfortunate that Annapolis and its sea-dog heroes should meet such a major defeat in collision with television.

My first brush with Annapolis via television leads me to suspect there is probably much more to the naval college than can be gleaned from the trivial banality dished up by script writers. Granted that Naval Academy midshipmen are not above romance, it is also conceivable that the rigorous training of one of America's toughest centers of learning offers a mine of dramatic material.

Whether or not the Annapolis heirarchy sat in on the concoction of the show I witnessed, I know not. But the prospect of a future admiral who considers an unseemly proboscis his greatest obstacle at Annapolis left me with a quivering fear for America's future on the high seas. The blighting effect of the unseemly nose really shifted into a high-gear complex when our young mid-shipman felt himself somewhat becalmed on the seas of romance when it came to making time with a Maryland female. That his nose was most unattractive cannot be denied, and it must be admitted that even a man of potential naval might could suffer a twinge or so at being so afflicted. But it was a jolt to see our hero go to a plastic surgeon to have his condition straightened.

As if that weren't punishment enough, he then finds that people really liked him better (girl included) before his nasal transfiguration. It wasn't the nose that counted after all; it was himself. Obviously the tactical problem was to restore the nose to its former status.

But the fate of our potentially neurotic fleet commander was neatly, unblushingly and unbelievably solved by the destruction of our hero's rebuilt olfactory organ in a football game. And you'll never guess it — his nose returned to its same endearing ugliness that caused all the trouble in the first place.

Annapolis deserves better treatment. And so do television watchers.

Label Talk
BY TERREA LEA

ONCE upon a time there was a little girl named Cinderella. She had a stepmother and two half sisters who were very mean to her. She also had a Fairy Godmother who was very good to her. And because of this Fairy Godmother, Cinderella met and married Prince Charming. They lived happily ever after and Cinderella had everything her heart desired.

This is a rather condensed story of Cinderella but I think it may be a way for me to point out that there are many today who can't have all they desire — and since there are no Fairy Godmothers roaming around — sometimes it's difficult to get these things.

Well, if you've read this column before, you know what's coming, don't you. Same few words on a way for you to have a few of these things. Label Bank. Now Label Bank can't offer you a Prince Charming but it can offer some material things such as toys, electrical appliances, linens, sporting goods, silver — hundreds of things. Top quality products you can buy anywhere — that cost you no more money. Compared to another popular premium plan, Label Bank requires fewer trips to the store and fewer purchases to get the gifts you want.

Send for your catalogs and list of products. Write to Label Bank, Dept. TVRL, 727 North La Brea Ave., Hollywood 38, California, or call WEBster 8-2438. You'll find that Label Bank is the best way to shop and save.

EAR, EYE . . . Inspire the Pen
 J. E. W., Pasadena

So far, all letters in about Elvis Presley, have, essentially, said, with two recent correspondents, either that, "The only ones that don't like him are a bunch of old maids;" or, that swooning over him is "our American way of showing we approve of him."

The main concerns here, I think, are the reputation and future of these United States of America,—which would seem to be complementary elements. Who will deny, that many other nations look down upon the "American way of showing we approve of him," as base, vulgar?—an impression certainly not unjustified. And what person with learning, ignores the problem of the present apparent decline of morals among some of our teen-agers today, and its devastating effect upon the future of this country?

Possibly some of us could give a little reflection to these problems, — rather than centering all our attention upon our own desires and lives.

▲ CLEVE'S ASSOCIATE PRODUCER, GOLDY NORTON, starts their 18-hour day at 7:30 in the morning, preparing The Early Word in Sports, which Goldy airs at 8 a.m. on KFVB. The Hermann-Norton combination has been in existence since their days at the old Daily News when Cleve discovered Goldy was a walking reference book on sports.

AT HOME WITH CLEVE HERMANN

▲ SPORTS ARE A 24-HOUR BUSINESS — and pleasure — for the Cleve Hermann family at KRCA, KFVB or home in the Hollywood Hills. As Fran puts it, "You talk to him about sports or you don't talk to him." Seven-year-old Steve goes along with that . . . he's impatient to become a Little Leaguer. Four-year-old Larry isn't quite so enthusiastic . . . his ambition at present is to become a farmer who sings like Pat Boone . . . and his twin sister, Laurie Ann, fancies a dancing career.

THERE'S NOT too much time for scenes like this in the busy Hermann day. But Cleve's a firm believer in the value of sports of all kinds in giving youngsters a sound foundation for life. It's more important for a boy to have a football on the tips of his fingers instead of a hand grenade.

▲ BASEBALL PRACTICE in the Hermann back yard is devoted to making switch-hitters out of Steve and Larry. Cleve figures that if the boys take after him in speed afoot, they'll need that extra step if they're ever going to get to first base.

DUE TO SENIORITY, Steve's the T-formation quarterback in this shot, but Larry's in training for the same position in view of the demand . . . especially locally . . . for players at that position.

YOU!

THE BIG MOMENTS ON It Could Be You

EVEN THE STAGE HANDS get surprised on It Could Be You. Learning that Glendale Smith, who is in charge of the curtain for the NBC-TV program, had news that his 92-year-old mother was quite ill in New York, and that he didn't have money enough to go see her, Bill surprised him on stage, told the story, and presented him with a round-trip ticket to see her. You can see the reaction of Mr. Smith for yourself. When it comes to doing nice things for nice people, it's tough to beat It Could Be You. (NBC photos.)

RALPH EDWARDS (left) is really the brain trust behind It Could Be You. Busy with so many other programs, particularly his favorite This Is Your Life, he couldn't possibly handle the difficult emcee chores. As a result he hired the person whom he considered perfect for the part: former disc jockey and KTTV star, Bill Leyden. It's the biggest break of Bill's career. His next ambition: to win an Emmy as Ralph did. Maybe this year he'll get one for It Could Be You? As one of his friends remarked to Bill, "It could be you, you know."

THIS ONE WAS FOR LAUGHS — in a scary sort of a way. Filmom's newest Tarzan (Gordon Scott) saves San Clemente's Mrs. Ella Hall from an unfriendly Gorilla (no, not Bill Leyden on the extreme left) but the next gentleman (?) George Barrows.

THIS WAS REALLY A BIG MOMENT. Learning that Tim Palmer of Sepulveda (second from left) is sometimes self-conscious because he is so tall for his age, Bill Leyden (the little guy in white) introduced him to a couple of exceptionally tall and very successful men: (left) Clint "Cheyenne" Walker, six feet six inches, and Locks Martin, seven feet, seven inches.

Not a year old yet,
the NBC-TV program has had some of the biggest stars and some highly dramatic moments.
Do you remember these?

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH DUKE, Specialist Third Class at Fort MacArthur, and his wife, Frances, a WAC, were introduced by Bill Leyden to Janis Paige who invited the newlyweds to her opening night at the Coconut Grove.

BILL LEYDEN surprised Evelyn Lindskog by bringing her mother, Mrs. Edward Wilkinson, from Wakefield, Massachusetts. Elsie Morris and Greta Howard joined Bill in the happy reunion.

A TENSE MOMENT in a Code 3 sequence where the Sheriff's deputies stalk out a killer. The show is on KTTV and has been a big success.

HOW Code 3 HAS HELPED THE LAW

This is no mere crime show. It has also been of real public service to the public and to law enforcement.

By Jack Holland

NOT MANY TV shows can claim to be aids to law enforcement as well as to be labeled entertainment. KTTV's Code 3 is the exception to the rule. And a welcome one too!

The series has proved that a program can be in the top ten nationally among syndicated shows and yet be of public service. An incident in Nashville is typical of what Code 3 has done.

Ben Fox, the producer of Code 3 and of Waterfront, heard of the Nashville incident shortly after it had occurred.

Nashville Story

"We had filmed a show called 'Charged Bottle,'" Ben remarked. "It dealt with some children finding dynamite caps and plastic bottles containing explosive chemicals. One of the boys was playing with a cap, it exploded, and blew off his arm. It was, unfortunately, a true story.

"A news broadcaster in Nashville had seen this show prior to its being run in that city. He knew that 10 dynamite caps had been taken from a construction camp, so he called the Sheriff's office and invited the deputies to see this film which was to be broadcast the next day. The Sheriff was so impressed that he informed all of the public schools in the city and asked them to urge their students to see the film. Then he went on at the end of the showing to plead for the return of the missing caps.

"Two days after the telecast, all 10 caps were returned, thus forestalling what could have been a tragedy similar to the one we pictured in 'Charged Bottle'."

Interestingly enough, the last line on that show, as narrated by Richard Travis, was written by Ben Fox. It read: "If Billy Armstead (the boy in the picture) had seen this show he would still have his left arm." It was a potent close.

The DuPont Company heard of the Nashville incident and wrote a letter to Rheingold Beer, which sponsored Code 3, congratulating them on the public service aspect of the show. However, the series has more than once purposely set out to present subjects that were of public import.

One of the first programs of the series dealt with a little girl who was lost. At the end, Richard Travis asked anyone who saw a child out late at night alone and who seemed lost to report the instance at once to the Sheriff's office. Before this was written, Ben Fox called Under-Sheriff Peter Pitchess and told him what he wanted to say.

"You'll probably get a lot of nuisance calls, so will you okay this?"

Pitchess remarked, "I'll take hundreds of nuisance calls if it'll save one child."

As a result of that show, the Sheriff's office has had several messages about apparently missing children — and some have been of real service.

Code 3 has also increased interest and attracted attention to the Sheriff's office itself. Both Sheriff Biscailuz and Pitchess have told Ben Fox that the volume of recruits in their office was the highest in the history of the department, a fact they directly attributed to the impact of the show.

"The original concept of the program came from Hal Roach, Jr.," Ben went on. "He and I worked on it together. We both agreed on one big point — that there would be no star name as a regular in the cast. At first, the sponsors objected to this, but they finally agreed. We simply pointed out that our only stars were to be the sheriffs of Los Angeles County themselves."

For the most part, Code 3 has used such directors as George Waggnar, who has directed the largest number of shows, Paul Landres, Owen Crump, Peter Godfrey, William Thiele, and Ted Post. The writers have been Jerry Lewis, Paul Franklin, Jack Laird, James O'Hanlon, and William Rousseau, among others.

Sheriff Pitchess sort of summed up the high respect Code 3 has gained when he said to Ben, "The Sheriff and I are particularly pleased with the taste in portraying the deputies and their casting. You have often portrayed them as we must hope we will be rather than what we always are."

Prayer

Good taste and integrity have always been high points in Ben Fox's career — and personal life. He has overcome amazing obstacles in getting his shows on the air. He believes in what he does. And yet in back of his efforts is a strong personal faith which best explains the man. The basic part of that faith is given in a prayer Ben wrote which he called "A Producer's Prayer":

"Lord, help me to remember often during this day that I shall never have a greater opportunity to serve you better or to help and cheer others than I have right now! Let me be mindful that happiness, love and security are attained not by impressive resolutions of how I will improve tomorrow — but by my thoughts, my acts, my words today.

"I will try to practice your inspiring message that what I do to the least of these I do to you. Let me remember that the first step in being loved — is to love; in being happy, is to make others happy; in being spiritually and physically healthy, is to take daily care; and in being secure — is to know the definition of security.

"Help me to keep in mind your own clear doctrine — There is only one security, — peace of mind and soul. And that by myself alone without your guidance, I will always fall short of the goal.

"Finally, give me the grace to understand why I was born into this world: — to unite with my family in serving you well and to prepare for a glorious rebirth through death to join you in life eternal."

WHAT YOU WON'T SEE ON Milady

Although Milady's format is very liberal, all of the articles submitted cannot be shown.

By Charles Stalnaker

HOSTESS DOROTHY GARDINER, second from right, is shown with two models and Delgaard, hair dresser, who has just finished demonstrating coiffures to match the oriental type of fashion.

WHY wasn't an elephant allowed to appear on the Milady show, KTLA's daily half-hour program? It certainly wasn't because Dorothy Gardiner, creator and hostess of the show, didn't want it. The elephant was supposed to have been a live model for a cape. Unfortunately for the animal, the format of the program, much less the physical facilities of the studio, wouldn't allow the showing.

Of course an elephant is an extreme example of something Dorothy has had to turn down. There are other things of a milder nature, but nonetheless they are rejected.

Dorothy has had to turn down, for example, some pieces of art simply because of the nature of the subject matter. As Dorothy explains it "It is not because I don't feel that these articles, such as paintings and sculptor works of female beauty, are not art that I turn them down; it is because I feel that there might be someone in the television audience who will not appreciate the art and might get a misconception of the meaningful purpose of the program. I have to do it sometimes, regrettingly."

Sometimes Dorothy has to turn down parents' requests for their children to appear on the program to recite a poem or some other form of elocution. She doesn't like to, since she can understand the good intentions of the parents. It is just that she has the interest of the audience as a whole at heart.

Although it is quite embarrassing sometimes, Dorothy has had numerous animals on the show and will continue to do so. She has also taken quite an interest in the things that the average housewife creates in her spare time. Sometimes, through Dorothy's program, the individual will get requests for the item that has been shown and not unlikely, develop a small business out of it.

Format

The format of the program is like a magazine in that Dorothy tries to bring a variety of culture into the home in different ways. Sometimes Dorothy will show china or just have the creator of some well-known brand on as a guest, describing how he makes the product. Quite often she will have the producer of a notable movie on the program, discussing the production of the picture. More often than not she will have the costume designer on too, showing different periodical gowns that were worn in the picture. This is, as Dorothy puts it, "letting the viewers of television see these people who create these beautiful clothes in which the movie stars emote in." As Dorothy explains "I want to show the women of my audience the nicer and finer things in fashions even though they can't afford them. All women like to look at nice things, such as a Don Loper or a Hattie Carnegie gown. Of course, not all of the fashions I show are above the budget of the average housewife. Some of the clothing is very reasonable. And besides, the clothing that isn't still tends to give the lady of the house some inexpensive dressing hints."

Original Creations

Every so often Dorothy will have a certain portion of her program set aside for the author of a book of the month who will read parts of the book and will go into detail about certain of its aspects. "Since I like to show the people the details of things, it is sometimes necessary to have the person connected with an item bring on the program some interesting items that they can show the audience. These usually come from the individual's personal life in relation to his work production," Dorothy stated.

"For instance, I have had Sascha Brastoff on my program several times. He is very cooperative in bringing along his sketches which he works into his china. For example, he had made an extensive trip to South America to get designs for his work and surprisingly enough, brought numerous articles to the show that he brought back with him. I know it was interesting to the viewers to see where the designs of these completed products got their origin."

Through all of this screening a televisioner can be assured of the finest and most tasteful works of art, because as Dorothy says, "I show the things that I might like to see if I were one of the audience."

SASCHA BRASTOFF is tracing itinerary he took into South America. Dorothy is seen with ceramic mask and stole that Sascha brought back to study.
