NEWSMAKER of the week

Final lines in the organizational blueprint of a new all-broadcast industry organization are being drawn this week by management of the newly incorporated Better Broadcast Bureau. Headed by Clifford J. Barborka, Jr., who resigned a fortnight ago as v.p. for John Blair & Co., the group moves into full-scale action 1 June with a key personnel line-up.

The newsmaker: Cliff Barborka has a reputation as a whirlwind in radio sales who likes best of all to meet new and intriguing "challenges." Innovator in creative sales, programing and production for radio with Blair, he's now converting his talents in these areas to a package service for subscribers at both the national and the local level.

Better Broadcast Bureau, Inc., will combine his talents with those of several key advertising and/or broadcast pros in a partnership association in which each will perform a highly specialized role. Among the principals detailing the BBB blueprint: a marketing supervisor for a major agency, officers in a successful production company and a radio station executive.

The new company's function, says Barborka: "To offer to subscribers creative selling as well as programing and production services."

But, "more than this, we will assume an industry posture on all broadcast problems."

A composite of these services has been Barborka's forte at Blair, where in May 1959 he organized the Creative and Marketing Services division. Radio stations clients and prospects serviced by the rep were advised on creative commercials, jingles as well as on the specifics of media buying. Production of commercials with original music and lyrics is expected to be a mainstay service to agencies.

Barborka has been with the Blair organization nine of his 11 years in the broadcast business, starting in the Chicago office as a radio account executive in 1952. Before then he was a salesman for NBC Radio Spot Sales for two years following a similar two-year stint with a sales consultant firm.

He was named radio sales manager in Chicago in 1955 and two years later became a vice president of the company. His selling track record in Chicago, during which he is credited with developing much business new to spot radio with his creative tactics, moved him into the new post in New York and to concentrate on sale of the Blair Group Plan.

Read Rosser and be real

Next week Alfred A. Knopf is publishing Rosser Reeves' Reality in Advertising, and I suggest that you rush out and buy a copy.

The 50-year old board chairman of Ted Bates, Inc., has put together what is unquestionably one of the most important and significant books ever written about advertising.

He has packed into 150 crisply paced pages, 36 1.D.-length chapters, more meaty facts, more challenging ideas, more bedrock fundamentals than I've ever seen in one place before.

And I don't believe that anyone can pretend to expert knowledge of modern advertising until he has read, studied, and thoroughly digested what Reeves has to say.

Reality in Advertising has had, of course, a lot of pre-publication publicity. Only a few weeks ago it was disclosed that officials of Mobil Oil, Inc., were so impressed with an advance copy of the book that they had switched their account from Compton to Bates.

Since then the Reeves effort has received some fragmentary, often hostile reviews, in the advertising columns, and in the trade press.

It has been attacked as a "glorification of the Hard Sell," as "nothing but a long sales pitch for Ted Bates," and as having been written "without modesty."

All of which, I think, misses the point. I have been as sharply critical as anyone of certain Bates practices. And, as you will see, I still think the agency has some things to grow up to.

But this cannot obscure the fact that Reality in Advertising is a highly important book, and that Reeves, unlike most agency heads, has voiced a strong, courageous, distinctive advertising philosophy.

Advertising as an intellectual challenge

What Reeves recognizes (and what too few insiders and almost no outsiders understand) is that advertising provides one of the most exciting intellectual challenges to be found in any industry.

Ours is a business of huge, murky intangibles, and too often these are approached by admen with huge, mindless emotionalisms.

Reeves, a chess player with an international reputation, has relied on clear logic and icy intellect to bring order out of advertising's chaos. And he has constructed a philosophic system of advertising principles which would do credit to an Aristotle or Aquinas.

Not all the principles are new. Most intelligent admen, for instance, have long stressed the need for some sort of "central salespoint" as a focus for all campaigns.

But what is new is the way Reeves has welded together a complete cosmos of advertising beliefs, a coherent, logical philosophy that is backed by the experience, research and successful case histories of a fast-growing $130 million agency.

As to the principles themselves, you'll have to read, study and think about Reality in Advertising in order to understand them.

Let me suggest, though, that you pay particular attention to:

1) The copy penetration-brand usage method Bates employs in measuring advertising effectiveness.

2) The famous Bates U.S.P. (Unique Selling Proposition) and especially the way Reeves defines it. It is far more than just a catchy set of initials.

3) Freudian research. His comments on the unreliability of such "hidden persuader" hokum are most refreshing.

4) Video vampires—the visual effects in tv commercials which deplete or destroy selling effectiveness.

5) The dispersion theory in the use of tv spots and why Reeves places it above the arguments for frequency.

Such solid subjects make Reality in Advertising an immensely valuable trade tool. By all means read it and read it thoroughly.

Hobnailed boots in the boudoir

Having said that, however, I must bring up some unpleasanties. Why has Bates, more than any other big agency, been so often in trouble with the FTC (for Colgate, Anacin, Life cigarettes, etc.)?

Why is Bates copy so frequently criticized? Despite Reeves' clear logical, intellectual brilliance, is there a flaw in the approach?

I think there is. I've thought so for a long time.

Back in the early 1940s when Ted Bates broke away from Benton & Bowles to start his own agency, one of his first campaigns was a magazine series for Palmolive soap.

I can remember Neil McElroy, then P&G ad manager, now P&G board chairman, coming into my office at Compton and asking whether we should change our Ivory soap strategy.

Mac, obviously, was both fascinated and a little frightened by the Palmolive ads. Ted's techniques, even in those days, showed the unmistakable Bates stamp.

He had taken beautiful four color photographs of lovely gals and underneath had spread ugly, black, shrieking headlines that promised fast, fast, fast relief from acne and skin blemishes.

The total effect was that of hobnailed boots in a silken, scented boudoir—startling, loud, sinister, and somewhat sadistic.

You'll find this same strange strain of sadism in a good deal of Bates copy (Anacin's hammer and sparks spots and Colgate's now-banned "Invisible shield" commercials are examples of it).

It is almost as if the Bates copywriters, having settled on a U.S.P., said, "Now we gotta slug the s.o.b's."

Actually, it is a kind of Prussian arrogance, and like the Prussians, who are always startled to discover that, despite their logical methods, people resent their overbearing crudeness (and plot to destroy them), I'm not sure that Bates understands its own attitudes.

But this I do know. It is possible to follow Bates' sound advertising principles, without accepting the Bates manners.

William Esty, for instance, has done a brilliant job of staying with solid copy themes for Winston and Ballentine, without feeling any compulsion to kick their customers in the head.

And I hope to see the day when Bates, instead of behaving like a brilliant high-IQ adolescent who thinks he must be rude and truculent, employs the Reeves principles with maturity and heart.

Strictly educational

I was, to say the least, a bit concerned to see the paragraphs on the Gasoline Tax Education Committee program as reported in (27 March) SPONSOR.

First of all, the budget figure you used was way off; it reads as though spot radio is getting a $1 million budget for the third phase of this program.

Secondly, the Gasoline Tax Education Committee program is not fighting "state taxes." This is strictly an educational campaign which, although discussing all gasoline taxes, distinctly refers to the Federal gasoline tax, for this is where the last gasoline tax increase occurred—at the Federal level.

Thirdly, this is not an "all-media" campaign. There is no television.

Reps at work

John R. Wright of Peters, Griffin, Woodward, New York, calls attention to the fact that, "Over the past few years the spot special has become an increasingly important factor of our industry. You'll remember how WPXI's "The Secret Life Of Adolph Hitler" lit up the Arbitron board and hit a 49.7 average rating . . . one of the highest in New York's tv history . . . delivering half of the market's 5,000,000 tv homes. Though space does not permit a representative rundown of the spot special, stations in markets of all sizes have been, and will continue, to design excellent programming of this sort. These features are the normal outgrowth of local programming and the professional production staffs that stations have developed. Because each station has a feel for viewer tastes and habits in its market, each special can be tailored to the local audience. In addition to delivering a large audience, the alert buyer and his client will realize that the spot special lends prestige to both the product and the company image. Furthermore, the merchandising, promotional and publicity opportunities are immense, affording unbeatable total impact for the advertiser.

Fred Lyons, director, NBC Spot Radio Sales, New York, points out that "while the number one target for a radio rep must be the budget that's immediately available, the rep isn't worth his weight in old avail sheets who doesn't allot considerable time to getting new customers into the medium. Radio's advantages require constant repetition. For instance, they probably isn't an ad man left who hasn't noticed that an awful lot of moving vans have been loading the city and unloading in the suburbs. This mass migration is a vital marketing factor for all advertisers of consumer products, high priced or low. The food manufacturer suddenly finds that only half his potential is outside the city limits. The auto manufacturer knows that half the new cars sold are made in the suburbs and the better part of "second cars" sold are made there, too. It's only one of radio's trump cards, but you must keep playing on the fact that our medium covers the whole market, city and outlying counties—while the metropolitan newspapers have failed to keep pace with suburbia's growth."

The mistress of all she surveys. A gracious hostess waiting for her guests to arrive. The interesting and the interested will both enjoy the company of a "Metropolitan personality."

PUBLICATIONS INC.

- The tv networks can look for P&G's daytime pattern and philosophy to take some sharp turns during the coming season.

Immersed in the further backing away from daytime in favor of nighttime expansion are a flock of factors. Among them:

- As P&G keeps adding to its list of products, more and more of them are of a nature that have all-family appeal—and for all-family appeal nighttime's a natural.

- Household cleansers and victual brands still constitute a colossal percentage of P&G's sales gross, but the toilet soaps, deodorants and hair products in the P&G stable have been making important headway on the share level and these call for more and more all-family advertising exposure; that is to say, a greater balance toward nighttime.

- P&G is still perplexed by the character of the daytime tv audience—to just what extent daytime network tv is being viewed by the potential buyers of its products and whether it fits in with the sales pattern of its other-than-household cleanser products. For example: there are now 29 million homes with working wives.

- In recent years P&G has been frustrated by the fact that it hasn't been able to get new soap operas solidly on the rails and its media master minds are wondering whether the time isn't far off when its judgment will dictate departure from its own serials and wholesale participation in scatter plans. The old P&G serials keep rolling, but their turnover of audience seem to get lower from year to year.

- The P&G soapers not long ago got 11's and 12's, but what with three-network competitive leveling out program ratings, they're lucky now to get an 8 or a 9.

What all this inventory-taking and soul-searching simmers down to: P&G's heart and millions of its dollars will still remain in daytime, but the balance will continue to build for nighttime.

Toni accounted for the big action of the week in spot tv: it's the annual spring buy of sixteen weeks, via C. E. Frank, North, Wade and FC&B.

The campaign, involving around 50 markets and based on 100 rating points a week, takes in all products, including Paper Mate. Toni's newest product, Cascade hair coloring, is not scheduled, at least for the first nine weeks of this campaign.

The week's conspicuous buy out of New York was P&G's Tide (B&B).

Lucky Strike (BBDO) will be cutting loose soon with a substantial spot tv campaign that will run for 20 weeks, with all market categories included.

Another product using a heap of markets but for only four weeks: Chun King out of BBDO Minneapolis. The concentration is on minutes.

Watch for this revolution in the petroleum industry (and a consequent shake-up in agency affiliations): a mounting emphasis on the image of the product.

Agency experts in the petrol field note that this quest by the individual companies for distinct personalities or identity symbols for their brands goes hand-in-hand with another industry urge: to sell the consumer on far more use of his car.

The expanded use campaign, when it breaks via the American Petroleum Institute (JWT) will focus on the theme of getting more fun out of life by going places and calling attention to the great super-highways that have been made available lately.

Ford should give JWT its answer within the next two weeks to an uncommonly complex plan for air media participation during the 1961-62 season.

Key factors in the plan: (1) concentrating the bulk of the expenditure in the last 1961 quarter and the first 1962 quarter; (2) spreading the tv network buys over multiple shows instead of confining the investment to a couple of series to insure maximum flexibility in matching tv obligations to the seasonal sales pattern.

Spot buying will be subject to the same philosophy. Commitments, in effect, will be on a 13-week basis.

7-Up (JWT Chicago) is getting away from routine network tv participations, like alternate weeks and minutes, and adopting a special pattern for the 1961-62 season.

It will have a minimum of 26 shows made on the continent in the Friday 7:30-8:30 p.m. slot—circuses, miscellaneous theatrical events, etc.

A major objective: getting a different audience from the kind it's been getting the past two years and having something that it can merchandise heavily among its distributors and dealers.

The pop maker will also use heavy flights in spot, as has been customary.

National Carbon (Esty) has wrapped up a little earlier than usual its September-December tv network needs for its anti-freeze products.

Over the period there'll be about 60 commercial minutes spread over spot carriers and sports on NBC TV and ABC TV.

The competitive division at DuPont (BBDO), which last season also bought heavily in spot carriers, is working on its tv network requirements, too.

Both anti-freeze makers are perennial users of spot radio on a saturation scale.

Evidently ABC TV won't let CBS TV remain happy over the claim to be the happiest of the networks.

Acting on that recent CBS TV trade ad captioned, "Ha! Ha! Ha!," ABC last week compiled the following table to show that its situation comedies garnered a bigger average audience this season than did CBS' situation comedies:

NETWORK	TOTAL SITUATION COMEDIES	AVERAGE RATING*
ABC TV	8	22.0
CBS TV	12	21.6
NBC TV	7	15.4

*January-February 1961 NTI.

Note: ABC TV also claims it came out with a better score on the situation comedies introduced this season, striking a batting average of .500 (two out of four) as compared to .400 (two out of five) for CBS TV and .167 (one out of six) for NBC TV.

There's a definite trend among midwest advertisers to combining tv and radio spot.

Wrigley about a year ago took to this pattern on a big scale and this spring that type of mixing has been adopted by Pure Oil (Burnett) for its Firebird brand, by Amoco (D'Arcy), Continental Casualty (Hartman) and Red Heart dog food (Shaw).

Another pattern getting play in that sector this spring: shorter schedules but the use of several stations in a market to get maximum penetration.

Don't be surprised if CBS Radio comes up with a sponsor for the New York Philharmonic concerts broadcast during the 1961-62 season.

One of the top-rung agencies has a client with a prestige-public image problem that's seriously interested. Package price for 28 broadcasts: $840,000.

Looks like CBS TV will inherit for the 1961-62 season that $1.5-million worth of General Mills business now on NBC TV.

The major reason: there'll be about $2 million in billings riding on Father of the Bride alone and that makes an ample base for building to a maximum discount.

With R. J. Reynolds standing pat in its refusal to accept the new 10:30 p.m. Wednesday time, the chances are that I've Got a Secret will be sold for the fall by CBS TV on a minute basis—the unsold portion, if any, going co-op.

Meantime Reynolds via Bates has committed itself for a total of nine minutes a week on the other two networks. The participations: NBC: Wagon Train, 1½ minutes; Mitch Miller, 1½ minutes; Saturday Night Movies, 2 minutes. ABC TV: 77 Sunset Strip, 1 minute; Flintstones, 1½ minutes; Lawman, 1½ minutes.

Reynolds is still in the market for three or four minutes a week, and, despite the peeve over the I've Got a Secret time switch, Reynolds will probably wind up filling in the difference at CBS TV.

CBS TV appears bent on selling the Ed Sullivan show on the basis of half-hour segments when the current contracts have expired.

In terms of time, at least, it will mean 20% more income for the network.

ABC TV salesmen last week were collecting agency reactions to the prospect of the network scheduling re-runs of hour tv films after 11:15 p.m. this fall.

Price quoted: a range of $6,000 to $8,000 per minute commercial, with the exact cost depending on the number of times used. Discounts apply to 26, 52, 104, and 250 times.

The Jack Paar Show now sells at $12,000 a minute, before discounts. ABC TV says its own stations in Paar time get a 27% share of audience.

CBS TV will have but a slight edge over ABC TV come the fall in the make-'em-laugh sweepstakes. As the schedule shapes up now CBS will have 14 situation comedies in prime time as against 12 on ABC TV.

For CBS it's no increase in that category, whereas for ABC it's a jump from 8 to 12. In other words, ABC has moved up several notches in getting over the concept of balanced programing. Westerns on ABC took another slash, going from six to four.

Here's a comparison of network types, based on shows set and tentatively scheduled:

CATEGORY	ABC TV	CBS TV	NBC TV	TOTAL
Situation comedy	12	14	2	28
Westerns	4	6	6	16
Suspense-crime	8	2	5	15
Adventure	6	4	4	14
Comedy variety	0	4	2	6
Anthology drama	1	3	1	5
Quiz-panel	0	3	1	4
Public affairs	1	1	2	4
Music	1	0	1	2
Straight variety	0	1	0	1
Sports	1	0	0	1
Feature films	0	0	1	1
To be set	1	2	5	8
Total	35	39	31	105

Chalk up Rexall (BBDO) as an account that has no hesitancy about moving with the trends in network tv usage.

Just a few seasons ago Rexall was addicted to specials. This season it sponsored an alternate half hour (National Velvet). As it looks now, it will be allied with nighttime network spot carriers for the 1961-62 cycle. To wit, a spate of minute participations.

At the rate that the brands are being wholesaled it looks as though R. J. Reynolds snagged three out of the four top-selling brands for the first 1961 quarter.

The top five as they shape up: (1) Pall Mall (American); (2) Camel (RJR); (3) Winston (RJR); (4) Salem (RJR); (5) Lucky Strike (American).

Incidentally, not one of the 40-odd brands that made their debut the past two years have been able to make a solid dent in the cigarette market.

Nielsen has apparently found a good subscription response to syndicated audience measurement of national magazines and network tv.

It unveiled these names as subscribers to Nielsen Media Service: Compton, JWT, BBDO, Burnett, Maxon, D-F-S, Tatham-Laird, NL&B, Westinghouse, P&G, Chrysler, Nabisco. On the magazine side: Life and the Meredith group.

As soon as CBS TV has put the finishing touches to its deal for the National League football games for the fall, it will ask Shell (OBM) whether it again wants to be a co-sponsor.

It's a courtesy that the network extends to all previous season's customers.

There's a report that Shell which is now entirely out of tv, is looking at nighttime network availabilities.

P.S.: If Shell passes up the football broadcasts, the quarter section will go to Amoco which has the inside track.

The networks will find, if they'll inquire around, that there's a school of media buyers who think that it's to the advantage of tv to spot public affairs programming in prime time and not only at the end of the evening spectrum.

Their view is that this is a normally good sampling device. The quintile that cottons to such fare may see something like this among the regularly scheduled programs and come back the next week.

They suggest that for the networks to fear the over-all effect public affairs programs in prime time would have on the night's rating is myopic in at least one respect. It militates against the broadening of the tv audience.

The expansion of rotating plans and the continued curbing of product protection among the tv networks could, as some mediemen see it, have marked selling repercussions in tv spot in the not too distant future.

Observe these agency people: if rotation plans spread much more on the networks the stations may be forced to sell away from fixed position and instead sell on a basis of average ratings.

What this would do to the status of salesmen and timebuyers, they interject, would be highly amusing to speculate about.

IDEA RADIO

A good idea is one that works well for everyone concerned.

That is why KMOX Radio in St. Louis (where it started) and other CBS Owned Radio Stations across America (which followed suit with their own local interpretations) are beaming about the provocative new programming idea called "At Your Service."

STEVE ROWAN COVERS THE NIGHT BEAT AT THE CORONER'S COURT

In San Francisco, listeners hear "At Your Service" on Station KCBS; in Philadelphia on WCAU; in New York on WCBS Radio. Up in Boston, the new program concept is known as "Listen!" over Station WEEI. In Los Angeles over Station KNX it is "Story Line." And now Station WBBM is planning its own show for Chicago. Wherever listeners hear it, they are reacting eagerly to a stimulating new kind of radio, more useful than ever in their lives.

Here's how "At Your Service" places radio in a more active role in its community. St. Louis, for instance. Top Midwest personality, Jack Buck, opens the program with a press conference with an unusual twist. The listening audience questions the guest of the day by phone. Answers are spontaneous—without rehearsal. The other important "regular" on the show is St. Louis educator, Professor Roy McCarthy, whose lively give and take with the audience has become a favorite local topic.

Next, "At Your Service" travels the main streets and the backrooms of St. Louis. Well-known KMOX personalities make the news come alive through the mobile microphone. The gymnasium where the Red Birds are training; the complaint department of the Better Business Bureau; the back of a snow-plow—nothing is off limits for this culture-with-showmanship program.

The final two hours are divided into lively 5-, 10-, and 15-minute time-segments, each devoted to a special department of news, sports, or provocative feature vignettes, coordinated and brightened by the presence of Jack Buck.

You find this kind of idea broadcasting only on the CBS Owned Radio Stations across America. Already sponsors know listeners are really listening. Because listeners are really buying.

Are you selling on the CBS Owned Radio Stations? They are at your service, too.

CROSLY MULLING GOING INTO REP FIELD

Crosley Broadcasting Corp. management people will decide on 2 May whether the pioneer broadcast group should go into the field of station representation, a move they've been considering several weeks.

Robert Dunville

Unlike other major groups which have toyed with the rep notion, Crosley did not initiate the idea. The Quality Radio group of two dozen radio stations is understood to have asked Robert Dunville, Crosley president, if company would be interested in representing non-Crosley stations after studying its sales concepts for area stations (established, large facilities covering a large region).

Crosley, before its decision, has been offered affiliation contracts by four stations. If it goes into representation, it would probably not accept more than six because of its own radio properties. Management of Crosley, answering the suggestion of Quality and some individual stations, proposed ideas new to the representation field if it were to decide to enter it.

Among them:

- Representation only of leader stations with area problems and with "integrity."
- A 15% commission on business lasting a year, no commissions on the same business extending beyond that period.
- A 20% commission on all business exceeding current billings.

DFS DENIES DIRECT DEAL RUMOR

Ken Torgerson, senior associate media director at Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, flatly denied last week reports from representative sources that the agency is trying to buy radio time at local rather than national rates for L&M cigarettes (Liggett & Myers).

Reports to SPONSOR from three representative organizations and several rep sales executives suggested that special crews of field men were dealing with small stations directly and bypassing reps to get the lowest possible local rate.

Torgerson said no representative had complained to him of this situation, that "we are not buying radio on local rates," that L&M business is "going to Keystone (Broadcasting System) and through reps." He referred to the ruckus as "scuttlebutt."

Reps' concern is that such an attempt could lead to the placing at a local rate of all cigarette business, which they say is one of the last bulwarks for national rate business. In the past, such product groups as beers and cars have gone from a national to a local rate by channeling money through jobbers and distributors.

Reps say the L&M money was slated to travel this path—and thus be removed from DFS' area of commissions. Those queried by SPONSOR knew of the Keystone orders but consider them a usual and "legitimate" buy at a standard national rate.

One rep last week asked an attorney to explore possibilities of legal action. One lawyer said a restraining order might be the device.

- A 30-day cancellation for the station arrangement. An order calling for 52 weeks of advertising, therefore, would be commissionable only for 30 days if the station sought to cancel the arrangement with Crosley.

- A fixed policy against any kind of rate-cutting.

There are both pro and con factions on the Crosley management team, with the outcome as to whether representation will be added for non-Crosley stations to be decided 2 May at a meeting of the management planning committee.

Pro factors: A tightly knit, national sales organization for the group's stations is now active, heavily backed with research and promotion personnel.

It could be a money making proposition for the salesmen, Crosley and the parent company, Avco Mfg., which is known to have approved whatever the management group decides.

Con factors: Outlay for salaries and additional sales personnel would be expensive initially.

Management might divert what could be considered too much time away from Crosley endeavors.

Harold McCormick to B. F. Goodrich as advertising/promotion manager

Long-time appliance and electronics pro Harold J. McCormick has been named manager of advertising and promotion for the B. F. Goodrich Tire Co., Akron. He will be responsible for activity in tires and batteries as well as auto and home supplies for company-owned stores and dealers.

H. J. McCormick

McCormick worked most recently as v.p. and manager of the Frigidaire appliance account at Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, New York, before which he was advertising and sales promotion director for Motorola's radios, tv sets and stereo hi-fi units. He's worked also in executive positions at General Electric.

Yardis agency merges with Zibman

Yardis Advertising Co., Philadelphia has acquired the David Zibman Advertising Co., its fourth in the past year and a half. Raymond Rosenberg continues as president of the parent company, with Zibman as vice president and plans board member.

Rosenberg says Yardis has tripled its size and billings in this 18-month period, during which it also consolidated with the Edward Robinson Agency, the Samuel Taubman Agency and Flacks-Abramson Agency, the last in Trenton, N. J.

Identification, reach combine to give Lorillard 125 million tv messages

"Sponsor identification" and "reach" are twin goals in '61 tv campaign of P. Lorillard, Harold F. Temple, president and chief executive officer, told shareholders in New York last week. Latest in rash of annual reports, the Lorillard summary notes tv gets more money than any other medium because of its "dramatic and continuing growth, power" in sales.

Harold Temple

Temple backgrounded his decision to combine sponsor identification with reach in delivering 125 million tv sales messages per week to viewers.

"We get maximum benefits from both (approaches), using sponsorship on three shows (four and one-half commercials weekly), participations in four (four commercials weekly)."

Explaining complex matter of net tv costs, he told shareholders "We get an average cost of $3.93 to reach 1,000 people on an hour show, $4.74 to reach a similar number during a half-hour."

He said sponsorship of an hour at $250,000 is "patently impossible."

$250,000 GLAMORENE RADIO SPOOF

New Glamorene radio commercials scheduled to take the air in 45 markets today (10) spoof some of the sacred cows of radio copywriters.

Such standards as testimonials, obvious humor and over-exposure of kiddoes are dusted off with humor in the new series. Spot radio is getting the bulk of a $250,000 budget placed through Riedl and Freede agency, Clifton, N. J.

Mead Johnson for its Metrecal reducing aid has bought through Kenyon & Eckhardt eight nighttime minute participations equally divided between ABC TV and NBC TV and eight daytime minute participations on ABC TV. PAY TV: BLAST IN PITTSBURGH AND A PUSH IN HOLLYWOOD

An explosive blast against pay tv was lodged last week at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Radio-TV Club by Art Duram, senior v.p. for air media at Fuller & Smith & Ross.

Art Duram

Pay tv made news on the West coast, too, as National Telefilm Associates announced its plan to manufacture and license a pay tv home entertainment system.

Duram outlined the "myths" of pay tv, key among them:

- "There is not a vast reservoir of talent and material ready to silence critics, entertain public. There is practically NO reservoir.

- "There is not an exciting future in special events because free tv has and will do an outstanding job of giving the viewer everything he wants.

- "Pay tv is not an opportunity to make minority or intellectual groups happy with the kind of programing they desire."

He warned his audience of ad and broadcast men that "Unless we find some meeting ground between tastes of masses and intellectuals, some mighty money men are going to take over our job of filling that 24-inch screen."

NTA, working with Home Entertainment Co., says the new system for pay tv "costs 50% less to manufacture, 70% less to install and 70% less to maintain" than competitive systems.

It would offer viewers three pay tv channels, two with pay programing and one free with show information and entertainment.

Combo media plans give hypo to radio

Reports from Chicago and New York last week point to a blending of radio and print in the media mix as a big reason for the hypo in radio this spring.

SPONSOR's Midwest staff reports heavy combination radio-print business as advertisers, scrutinizing what their dollars buy, take note of radio's "ability to hit hard between impressions of other high-impact media."

Among them: Commander through Leo Burnett; Accent (NL&B), various dog foods with the exception of Ken-L-Ration, and most farm machinery—International Harvester, John Deere and J. I. Case (with the notable exception of Massey-Ferguson).

In New York, Pepsi-Cola President Herbert L. Barnett noted in an annual stockholders report that the company was "largest user of network radio and the fifth largest for color newspaper ads" last year.

Ad Row's 'clumsy amateurs'

"There's no business that so thoroughly punishes the clumsy amateur." Charles Brower, board chairman of BBDO, noted this fact of advertising life in his report to stockholders on 1960's progress.

"In a business such as ours, where boys and girls become men and women rapidly, you've got to have a lot more than heart. You've got to have that—plus responsibility, sensitivity, judgment, understanding."

JANUARY NET TV BILLINGS UP $4 MILLION FROM LAST YEAR

National advertisers spent $4 million more on network tv time this past January than during the same month in 1960, with an average dollar gain of 7.1% averaged for all three nets.

So Television Bureau of Advertising reported last week, noting that the biggest gains were scored for daytime slots and at ABC TV. Latter saw a 19.9% rise in gross time billing, contrasted with a 9.6% gain for NBC TV and a 2.3% drop for CBS TV, all for comparable January periods.

LNA-BAR analysis of sales by day parts shows that daytime for the full week was up 21.8%, with Monday-Friday periods rising 28.5% and weekend slots down .6%. Nighttime time sales rose .9%.

All told, gross billings for time periods sold in January amounted to $61.8 million—$40.8 million at night and $21 million daytime.

ABC division contributed $222 million of AB-PT's '60 total of $334 million

Springtime verve and optimism were reflected in AB-PT's annual report to stockholders released last week.

The ABC division contributed the bulk of the company's income for the year—$222.4 million of a $334.4 million total. Gains in tv were especially auspicious, with these summaries reported by the network.

- "First position in share of audience during prime evening hours" in three-network markets;

- Addition of 16 full-time primary affiliates, with a total of 115 stations giving direct live coverage of 88% of the nation's tv homes;

- Share of nighttime home viewing hours went from 32% of the three-net total in '59 to 34% in '60;

- Gross time sales zoomed 26% above '59, "again the largest percentage as well as dollar increase" of the networks.

Dollar billings for time moved from $20 million in 1953 to $120-plus in '59 and $160 million in 1960.

— he laughs best (©) who laughs last —

Some people started laughing right off the bat when they heard we planned to concentrate on comedy this season. They were sure it wouldn't work. These days they're not laughing so hard—but the nation's viewers are, and so are the sponsors of our comedy programs. The audiences attracted by the average comedy program on the three networks this season tell the story: Network Y—7.3 million homes... Network Z—8.9 million homes... CBS Television Network, 9.5 million homes.* Moreover, in the latest Nielsen report three of our funniest shows are in the Top 10—and two of them are brand new this season.† But the thing that keeps all our advertisers smiling is that the CBS Television Network attracts the biggest average audiences in every category of entertainment, laughs or no laughs. * Nationwide Nielsen, 6-11 pm, AA, † Oct. 1960—1 Mar. 1961 † 1 Mar. 1961, AA (CBS 7 of Top 10)

Stuffed Red Snapper

OLD NEW ORLEANS
FAVORITE...

Season 6 fillets of red snapper (each 6- or 7-oz.) with salt and pepper, rub with butter, broil until done.

Prepore dressing: Combine 1 cup dry, fine bread crumbs with 1 cup raw shrimp (peeled, deveined and chopped), 1 cup chopped raw oysters, 1 cup chopped scallions (green and white). Saute these ingredients in 2 tbsp. melted butter and add 2 tbsp. fish stock. Yields 6 portions.

Heop dressing on brown side of broiled fillets. Serve piping hot, with garnish of your choice.

WWL-TV... new New Orleans Favorite

Few programs in New Orleans television history have received the praise and applause—both on a local and on a national scale—as that received by “Channel 4 Reports,” a news-public service feature produced by WWL-TV News Director Bill Reed.

One “Report” show, entitled “Crisis In Our Time” and dealing with the explosive integration disturbances which rocked New Orleans last fall, drew praise on a national scale from Sponsor magazine columnist Joe Csida:

“This certainly is a prime example of the increasingly brave, socially aware attitude of our broadcasters . . .”

And, locally, the editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune not only made a personal request that the show be repeated but also published a message to the general public promoting the repeat showing. This shows the respect and esteem in which WWL-TV’s public affairs programming is held even by its competition.

1961 spot forecast: tv up 7%, radio up 5%

Figures from 1959-60, prepared by McCann-Erickson for "Printers Ink," refer to total client spending: time, talent, production and commercials (1960 based on nine-month data). SRA and TvB predictions would make M-E's 1961 totals: radio, $220.5 million; television, $546 million

GOOD NEWS! SPOT ON MOVE!

- ▶ Radio and tv spot expected to benefit most quickly among media to economic upturn and have record year
- ▶ Heavy March buying adds to feeling much ad money held back during slowdown was always intended for spot

Spot radio and television, despite a slow start, can expect a record year in 1961. The feeling in the industry is that the spot media—more sensitive to the zig-zags of the national economy than any others—will rebound quickly with bettering of economic conditions.

Strong spot buying in March, after a slow January and February, has boosted media morale, and selling—especially in tv—is expected to be extremely brisk for April and May. Most observers also agree that summer will be about the same as last year and fall very heavy. Radio had its best 1960 period in the second quarter and can be expected to follow last year's pattern from now on. A big second quarter will also prove, representative and station sources declared, that money kept on the shelf by advertisers—as they held back to judge conditions—was allocated to spot all along.

Because spot is so tied to the ups and downs of the nation's business, there are several factors, they pointed out, that have turned the 1961 arrow upward:

- Because of the short-term buys possible with spot, it is the first to benefit from the upturn as it was the first to feel the pinch last summer.
- Because of the market-by-market nature of the spot media, they are ideal for the introduction of new products. In the 1960's, big advertisers will have to come out with more and more new products to keep up their profit margins. This has already been evident. The value of spot to the smaller firm (the classic tv example being Lestoil) is well documented.

- Because auto buying and production usually reflect quickly on spot billings, an expected upturn this summer should help spot. Auto production means a steel pick-up, and all of this spurs a lot of advertisers, gets a lot of complementary industries moving.

- Because newspapers are giving headline treatment to various inquiries into air media—especially ratings—there is a feeling, articulated mostly in the mid-West, that some advertisers may divert money into spot rather than sponsor the public-service type programs that will evolve, programs that Congress and the FCC wants but which only a small segment of the population watches. Instead, advertisers are expected to latch on to adjacencies of popular shows wherever possible. This thinking is based on the theory that tv money lost to the network is most likely to end up in spot.

But reps and station men saw several good signs that indicate that most stations can expect a good year. First, not many of them expected a very good March and April, and this was reversed. Second, in tv especially, even when things fell off at the beginning of the year there was no unusual "chiz-biz"—i.e., no selling off at local rates. This indicates soundness in a medium, they said, when it has held the line. Third, salesmen were pretty much on the jump at mid-March, getting quick availabilities and confirmations, and are, to all appearances, hepped upon making it a big spring.

Radio had been slow until March, which was as brisk as the weather—particularly in Chicago. "Radio," as Larry Webb, managing director of the SRA, put it, "depends on the economy. If things continue to pick up generally, we have high hopes that radio will.

"Under these conditions, there is no reason why radio shouldn't be a good deal better than in 1960. The second quarter, in fact, should be a good deal better than last year, and that was our best 1960 quarter. Overall, I'd say we'll hit $200 million." (SRA estimates are based on time sales; for 1960, SRA estimated spot radio at $191 million.)

Television's 1961 outlook is varied depending on which markets one is judging. The major markets, according to Larry Israel, president of TvAR, are in for a record year. "We had a very good first quarter," he declared. "Major markets make the difference. The medium is picking up now; with a new wave of spot buying it's definitely increasing in tempo. We are hopeful for a better than average or at least a normal summer

What sellers say about 1961 prospects for spot tv and radio

MAJOR MARKETS, says TvAR's Larry Israel (left), should have a good year, but no particular "boom" should be expected. There will be some spotty periods, but over-all he expects a record year for his firm's represented stations. G. Richard Swift (right) of Bolling says smaller markets may be exceptions to the record year, "due to the fact that network participation schedules have diverted money that would ordinarily have been allocated to spot television in the small and in some medium-sized markets.

RADIO WAS BRISK in March, says Larry Webb (left) of SRA, and "if things continue to pick up generally, we have high hopes that radio will" for the whole year. He predicts a 5% increase over the record spot radio billings of 1960. George C. Lindsay (right), director of TvB's midwest bureau, thinks that spring and summer "look very good," and notes that tv-viewing hit an all-time high in February, and new Nielsen-TvB data, refuting the summer audience fall-off, should encourage the advertisers."

"There will, of course, be a great variance from market to market," he admitted, "but by and large, the major markets should have a good year. It's not fair, however, to predict any big boom, as there will be some spot-TV periods. But overall, we expect a better year in 1961 for our markets—and 1960 was a record year for us."

G. Richard Swift, president of The Bolling Co.'s tv division, noted that while the big March selling brought first quarter spot up to or above 1960, there were a number of markets which have felt some drop.

"The biggest exceptions have been the smaller markets," he said. "They have not enjoyed as much dollar volume primarily due to the fact that network participation schedules have diverted money that would ordinarily have been allocated to spot television in the small and in some medium-sized markets.

"Despite the siphoning of national spot dollars," he predicted, "we are looking for greater development of new advertising in the third and especially the fourth quarters of this year that will more than offset losses and put the 1961 total dollar figure ahead of last year.

"To what degree," he added, "is not immediately discernable, but a favorable climate has been forecast for overall business and this can be expected to reflect further increases in national ad dollars."

In the midwest, optimism is running high for the immediate future of spot—both radio and tv. Many of the factors making for Chicago's rosy attitude are the same as in New York: new products using spot, general economic upturn trends, hopes for an improved auto buying year. An added factor is increased market penetration. Several recent buys have been on a multi-station per market basis.

Spring and even summer look "very good" for spot tv at TVB's midwest division. Director George C. Lindsay noted that "tv viewing hit an all time high in February, and new Nielsen-TvB data, refuting the summer audience fall-off, should encourage the advertiser awareness of television's summer potential."

Part of the bright outlook stems from the feeling that the network spot carriers will not drain as much money from the midwest as they will from the east this year. Thomas S. Buchanan, v.p. in charge of midwest sales at Everett-McKinney, supported this theory, and said that "as a result, we see every indication that the third and fourth quarter spot radio and tv orders placed from here will again break records this year. Spot radio and tv," he said, "are ideal media for the many regional midwest advertisers whose distribution does not need network coverage."

Dwight "Doc" Reed, executive v.p. of H-R, Chicago, noted that some advertisers were placing shorter schedules this year, but, despite this, spot income will be greater than in 1960. The reason: "Accounts are concentrating more in market participation, more stations are being used in each market, and this will increase total spot revenue."

But the talk (about spot tv) in New York was concentrated on new products. Putting the situation very aptly, Halsey Barrett, The Katz

WHAT'S BEHIND THE

► All three nets will have prime time cartoon series in 1961-52 paid for by advertisers with adult product

► Seven shows are set for the tv webs. The cartoon trend also hits national spot and syndication programming

A show to watch this season, The Flintstones—first half-hour regular prime-time cartoon series on tv—has come through in two ways.

First, good Niensens put it in the circle of new hits of the year. This led to renewals by Miles Labs and R. J. Reynolds.

Second—and much more important—the show seems to have touched off a programming trend toward cartoons for 1961-62. It could be the biggest trend since the Westens. ABC TV may be the prime mover in cartoons as it was in Westerns at first.

There'll be seven cartoon shows on the networks, possibly one or two more. Every network has at least one, but ABC TV has the most.

ABC TV will be represented with two new cartoon series and two renewals: Top Cat and Calvin and the Colonel are new and Flintstones and Bugs Bunny are in the renewal category.

CBS TV has one new series, Alvin and the Chipmunks.

NBC TV's two shows are in color. Each is refurbished but not totally new. They are: Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color and Bu Winkle.

Paralleling the network cartoon vogue is the trend in national spot besides Kellogg's three series, Post cereals has Dick Tracy. There are also a spate of syndicated cartoon shows.

Why a cartoon vogue? Why now? Who is it for? Who watches? Who are the sponsors? How big can the trend get? What, if any, are its natural limits?

FIRST of the regular nighttime half-hour tv cartoon series and one of the ratings hits of the present season is 'The Flintstones' on ABC TV, renewed by Miles and R. J. Reynolds for next year. Show is by Hanna-Barbera, who began with three others for Kellogg in national spot

TREND TO NETWORK CARTOONS

Until a few years ago cartoons meant one of two things: animated characters in commercials, and Hollywood cartoons made for theaters and shown by stations. There were some network cartoons, but they were either brief segments, like Ruff and Reddy, or short-lived, like Boing-Boing.

Then a cartoon revival occurred—but still not on the network level. Kellogg put one, then two, finally three cartoons into national spot: Cluckleberry Hound, Quick Draw McGraw, and Yogi Bear. All were made by Hanna-Barbera, through Screen Gems. The made-for-tv cartoon was slowly replacing its ancestor, the theatrical cartoon.

Finally last fall ABC TV decided to take a chance. It put a regular half-hour cartoon series into the prime-time schedule: The Flintstones. Also out of the Hanna-Barbera shop, the show was scheduled at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

The Flintstones was one of the hits among the season's new network shows. Its Nielsen average for the season is 23.6 (average audience) and 38% share. The latest Nielsen puts it 15th among shows for average audience with a 41.9 share and a 25.4 rating. The 17 March 24-city Nielsen gives Flintstones a 31.4 rating and a 50 share.

ABC TV's other regular cartoon series this year, Bugs Bunny, made by Warner Bros., was also a rating success.

For fall ABC TV has sold two new series: Top Cat, produced by Hanna-Barbera (Wednesday at 8:30 p.m., to Bristol-Myers and Kellogg)—the latter the most experienced advertiser with cartoon shows on tv today. ABC also sold Calvin and the Colonel to Whitehall and Lever Bros. for Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

CBS TV's new cartoon series is Alvin and the Chipmunks, made by Format Films, scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, and sold to General Foods and probably General Toy.

NBC TV's Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color is sold to RCA and to Eastman Kodak, a full hour at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, preceded at 6:30 by Bull Winkle for General Mills, also in color.

Today's cartoon vogue clearly has several aspects, all important. Programming has graduated from children's fare to family fare, but many of the producers started in juvenile entertainment. Hanna-Barbera, Warner Bros., and Walt Disney all went into tv cartooning with a heavy emphasis on younger viewers.

All of the cartoons are scheduled in early evening. All leave the air by 9 p.m., and most of them by 8 p.m. From the network viewpoint it means catching the younger viewers relatively early in the evening and attempting to use their influence to control the set into the middle part of the evening.

Advertisers in the shows are interested in adults, not children. With the exception of Kellogg, General Mills, and General Toy, these advertisers all have adult products: Miles, R. J. Reynolds, Bristol-Myers, General Foods, RCA, and Eastman Kodak.

Some insiders see an eventual conflict between the producers and networks, who are interested in a children's audience, and the advertisers, who want adults. But no problems have cropped up yet. R. J. Reynolds

THEATRICAL PRODUCERS are stepping up tv cartoon production. Warner Bros.' 'Bugs Bunny' is renewed on ABC TV; Disney switches from ABC TV to NBC TV, goes to color and to a full hour in the fall

IN PREPARATION is tv's greatest crop of new cartoons to date. Storyboards are from 'Top Cat' on ABC TV; others include 'Calvin and the Colonel' on ABC TV and 'Alvin and the Chipmunks' on CBS TV

MAPPING OUT super-saturation campaigns is a joint project at Zubrow. Here vice president and account executive Bill Drutt (hand on ear) discusses new strategy with (l to r) timebuyer Yolanda Tini, art director Ed Macon, merchandising director Ted Stein and other staff members

SO YOU THINK YOU BUY SATURATION?

- ❖ Illinois food producer, Brooks Foods, buys 400-700 spots a week per radio station through S. E. Zubrow
- ❖ Brooks' sales are up considerably since its crash spot radio effort began last year in three midwest markets

"Yolanda, buy 600 spots on WMAQ, Chicago, for the week of the 4th, for Brooks." You heard it right. The man said 600, for just one week, on one station, in one market.

The man in this case is Bill Drutt, vice president and account executive at S. E. Zubrow, Inc., Philadelphia agency for Brooks Foods. Yolanda is Zubrow's timebuyer Yolanda Tini, and it is nothing for her to buy anywhere from 400-740 spots per week, per station in a given market on behalf of Brooks. She buys these intense radio saturation campaigns in six- to eight-week flights.

These crash buys are made four times a year in three markets—Chicago, Indianapolis and St. Louis—on behalf of Brooks' three most popular specialty items: catsup, barbeque sauce and chili hot beans.

"When you're competing for sales with giants like Heinz, Hunt's, Del Monte, you've gotta do some fast thinking," explained Drutt. "They've got the extensive advertising budgets and can go all-out in tv, radio, print, billboards, you name it," he said.

When Zubrow took over the Brooks account about a year ago, it decided to concentrate its low six figure budget in one medium, in just a few select markets, and for just three of their major products. (The other products are tomato juice, pork and beans and a variety of soups.)

"With Brooks' limited ad budget, we built their advertising campaign on two principles: (1) concentration of the advertising dollar by market territory, and (2) integration of advertising, sales promotional effort and sales effort," said Drutt.

Out of Brooks' 33 mid-western marketing territories, Zubrow selected Chicago, Indianapolis and St. Louis for this concentration.

"After selecting radio as the best buy for Brooks, we decided we would completely dominate those stations we'd use in these three markets with from 400-700 spots per week," said Bill Sherry, Zubrow media director. "In some cases we were on every 10 minutes, round-the-clock, on a given station," he said.

Stations which received this extensive business last year included WMAQ and WLS, Chicago; WIBC, Indianapolis, and KWK and KXOE, St. Louis.

On the creative end, Drutt and his staff extended the concentration principle by building all of the Brooks copy around a single theme: "There's a sizzle in the flavor of Brooks' tangy catsup (barbeque sauce or chile hot beans)."

Five-second and minute spots were bought, primarily the former. In the case of minutes, the five-second spot was used as a lead-in to live copy prepared for local announcers.

Meanwhile, Brooks' own chief executives, Glen Knaub, vice president and general manager, and Joseph Butts, general sales manager, got behind the campaign by generating enthusiasm among the sales force, brokers, and production personnel through a series of presentations.

In terms of the integration principle, all merchandising was tied in with the advertising. "To get the fullest utilization of this advertising the promotional and dealer allowances in markets where we used saturation was less than in markets where we bought considerably lighter radio," said Drutt.

In addition, the agency recommended the use of a "Brooks Broadcast Bonus Plan." Under this setup Brooks spots were shared with key chain and independent grocers in exchange for displays and promotion of Brooks products in stores.

What about results? In the first 10 months of the campaign (April 1960-January 1961) Brooks' sales were running 20% ahead of the preceding year in markets where the radio concentration was used, Drutt reported. Total company sales, including all Brooks products wherever they are sold, are running about 10% ahead of the previous year, he said.

The number of key advertising markets for the present fiscal year has been increased to five, the two newcomers being Detroit and Cleveland. Brooks' total advertising budget has been increased by 35%. This is due to the increase in sales, Drutt pointed out.

Needless to say the client is delighted. "We have together developed a smooth team effort in the first year of our relationship," said Glen Knauh. "Our agency, sales management and general management meet in regular joint sessions for budgeting and objective planning. In addition, the sales management and agency work together at the operational level—that is, in the field as well as at the plant."

Brooks' plant is in Collinsville, Ill. The company has been in operation for over 50 years. In 1959 it merged with Ritter food products of Bridgeton, N. J.

This concentrated use of spot radio is "representative of the philosophy of operations of Brooks and Zubrow," said Bill Sherry. "In today's competitive environment the small advertiser can make effective use of his advertising budget to get sales increases," he said.

"The entire economic scene has changed in the last 10 years," Sherry pointed out. "Ten years ago, people were 'buying, buying, buying.' But today with unemployment and the changing structure of the economy, the little companies and the big companies have to compete for the same sales dollar. We do it with concentration."

But why such intense concentration? "You have to tantalize the housewife, penetrate her mind and emotions," said Bill Sherry. "You have to create a state of mind in her
(Please turn to page 60)

AGENCY ANSWERS THREE PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Why does Zubrow buy so many spots for Brooks?

ZUBROW'S THEORY is that when a low budget advertiser is competing with giant corporations he must concentrate his buying in one medium, in a limited number of markets. In order to create a state of mind in the potential buyer, who has been using a name brand, Zubrow believes in monopolizing a station and pounding away at the listener. Copy line is also concentrated and repetitious.

How does the agency find all those availabilities?

THE AGENCY has learned that to find 700 or so availabilities it must do its buying months in advance. Stations are reluctant to sell such huge blocks of time. It is fairly unprecedented and it might tend to alienate other customers, say the stations. Zubrow is willing to wait for a long period of time to put through its desired super-saturation orders.

What is the cost discount in these situations?

THERE IS no set pattern or framework which stations go by in buys of this quantity, Zubrow has found. Stations are not prepared for these buys in their rate structures. Therefore discounts are negotiated separately in each case. In one instance Zubrow found a 1,000 time discount but used it up very fast, and had to renegotiate with the station.

"BEDSIDE NETWORK" AIDS VETS

400 admen and broadcasters provide unique rehabilitation help through VHRTG for the more than 125,000 patients in 115 veterans hospitals across the country

This week marks the thirteenth anniversary of the "Bedside Network," a unique cooperative endeavor of the broadcasting, entertainment and advertising industries that is bringing hope and pleasure to thousands of the nation's hospitalized veterans.

The "Bedside Network" is the "brand name" of the Veterans Hospital Radio and Television Guild, a group of more than 400 professional advertising men, actors, writers, directors, engineers and musicians who volunteer their services to aid in the rehabilitation of 126,601 patients in 115 Veterans Administration hospitals across the country.

Lending their talents in any way possible from directing performances in locked mental wards to typing scripts and raising money, these dedicated volunteers from Madison Avenue and Broadway encourage and train the hospitalized veterans to produce and perform in the all-patient shows which are taped for broadcast over the hospitals' closed-circuit radio and TV networks.

The idea, as it was conceived by the VHRTG's co-founder, A. Carl Rigrod, a vice-president of Donahue & Co. advertising agency, is to teach the patients to entertain themselves and at the same time to involve them in a group activity which has proved to have a valuable therapeutic effect, especially on mental patients.

From the beginning, the "Bedside Network" has had the support of the leaders of the advertising and broadcasting industries, as well as veterans' and service groups. Members of the Ad Men's Post No. 209 of the American Legion and the American Red Cross act as drivers for the teams of volunteers who visit VA hospitals in the New York area four nights a week.

Arthur Hull Hayes, president of CBS Radio, and Stanley Adams, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, serve on the VHRTG advisory council. On the organization's board of governors are Claude Barrere, executive director of the Radio and Television Executives Society, and G. Thaine Engle, manager of NBC's national advertising department.

The networks and individual writers donate radio and television scripts to the "Bedside Network's" "Script-Kit Service"—a lending library of scripts which is used by 99 hospitals in 48 states. Writers also volunteer their skills in preparing the scripts for use by the hospitals.

To carry on its work, the "Bedside Network" must rely on voluntary contributions solicited entirely in the New York area. It receives no financial aid from Federal or state governments and operates on a tight budget of $25,000 a year.

Another chronic need is for volunteers—anyone who can answer a telephone, type a news release, operate a tape recorder or carry a tune. The work is often tedious and difficult, but the rewards are as obvious as the smile on a paralyzed veteran's face.

Returning from a visit to a hospital ward reserved for quadriplegics, VHRTG member Bill Kaufman, of NBC sales, shook his head and said:

"I'd like to take every guy on Madison Avenue and walk him through that ward. I defy anyone to look at those men and not be moved to help."

ONE-SHOTS CAN PUT REGIONAL

- BBDO brings them in for Schaefer, other clients, at $5,000 to $70,000 for one market, clears prime time
- Hour-long St. Patrick show, with only 20 seconds of commercials, beats out two nets in N. Y. showing

How does a regional or local tv advertiser, up against the glamor of network series and specials, manage to stand out?

BBDO tackles this problem for Schaefer beer and other clients by means of local specials. The agency develops the program idea, plays an extensive co-production role, negotiates for advantageous station slots, and promotes the way a network would within the markets covered. Production costs dip as low as $5,000 for one market, which allows for the occasional splurge which can hit $70,000.

BBDO executive v.p.-creative director Bob Foreman sees the local special, with careful attention to quality, as a natural for "advertisers of pride and taste who may have shied from tv because they felt the local-level programing available to them did not meet their requirements." (Foreman feels that with the exception of locally-produced news and weather franchises, much of the ready-made programing within reach on a local or regional basis is not attractive to such advertisers.)

Back in 1960 BBDO blanketed a 20-state sales area with a one-shot for Gamble-Skogmo, Inc.'s mid-West retail chain. That was a prime-time operation on 70 stations affiliated with one network or another. Another multi-market special, particulars not yet for publication, is forthcoming from BBDO.

In the case of Schaefer, Foreman describes an extremely competitive situation, especially in New York, with most of the battle being fought on tv. To gain notice you have to do something different, points out Foreman, so Schaefer is supplementing its hefty tv schedule of sports-casts and announcements with these specials, on a frequent basis.

Most recent of the Schaefer one-shots was "The Story of St. Patrick," presented in four markets on the eve of St. Patrick's Day. The hour-long show, narrated by actor Myron McCormick and illustrating the story by means of filmed paintings and other works of art, ran in prime time over WNEW-TV, New York, and also was aired in Boston, Philadelphia and Albany.

Commercial material consisted of three mentions that Schaefer was presenting the program—which took up about 20 seconds of the hour. It was assumed that this commercial restraint, in keeping with the religious nature of the show, would be appreciated by the viewers, many of whom represent an important beer-drinking group, the Irish-American market.

In New York the show's Nielsen average hit 12.7, nosing out two of the network presentations that ran simultaneously. Other sources of satisfaction for advertiser and agen-

Scene from show (l) is from a Nigerian school. A time slot was opened by pre-empting Schaefer's regular Saturday night musical variety show on WABC-TV, New York.

16 MARCH—"The Story of St. Patrick," was seen on the eve of St. Patrick's Day over WNEW-TV, New York, and in Boston, Philadelphia, and Albany. For this hour-long film depicting the story via paintings and other works of art, BBDO was responsible for research, format, and introductory writing prior to turning the script assignment over to WNEW-TV's Mel Bailey. Scene (c) shows narrator Myron McCormick and St. Killian's boys choir.

Davis is shown in picture (l) with academy award winning cameraman, James Wong Howe, who is doing the filming. Project was assigned to producer David Wolper. Negotiations are on for four markets.

CLIENTS IN THE TV LIMELIGHT

They were favorable reaction by the newspaper tv critics and warm letters from viewers. Additional mileage from the show, brought in for minimal production costs, is potentially endless since expectations are it will develop into a perennial presentation.

Foreman cautions that agencies earn their money "the hard way" when they build this kind of show. BBDO people originated the idea, did the research, developed the format, and had the writing well under way before turning the project over to Mel Bailey of WNEW-TV. He adds that agency and advertiser can take great pride in the quality of the end product, as can the tv station that carries it.

And, from a purely practical standpoint, these programs can be spread over a number of areas and clients. BBDO plans to make its local specials available to clients of the agency's 18 branch offices throughout the U. S. wherever possible.

While Schaefer's local specials are designed to be of interest to as wide an audience as possible, especially among beer-drinking males, most of them still seem to have a little extra appeal for one important segment of the market. With the St. Patrick program, it was the Irish-American market, especially in New York and Boston. Some other Schaefer specials indicate to the trade that the brewer is making a special pitch to Negroes.

Back in February Schaefer presented "Now Nigeria" to New York over WABC-TV, preempting its own Saturday night variety show time slot (11-11:30 p.m.). BBDO relied on independent producer William Alexander, himself a Negro, to bring

Why BBDO likes the local tv special

BOB FOREMAN, executive v.p.-creative director, BBDO, strongly favors the spot special as a means for regional or local advertisers to stand out in their markets against network and other competition on the tv screen. He points out it's a lot of work for the agency, but well worth it in terms of impact and achieving quality programing. Otherwise, according to Foreman, there's no ready-made one-shot program material and as for series, he feels that the advertiser of pride and taste is hard put to find what he wants among what is available at the local level beyond station-produced news and weather.

EXTRA OOMPH for Raggedy Ann spot tv drive comes from hefty in-store merchandising that includes shopping bags (l) with cut-outs of animated characters. Merchants also got lp (r) describing drive

Who's Raggedy Ann? Tv tells all

- Food marketer's brand awareness problem alleviated by spot tv lineup heavily merchandised at point of sale
- Phone survey shows number unaware of brand down 75% after month; number in know more than doubles

Too many people in Chicago continued to associate the term Raggedy Ann only with dolls after a number of years of outdoor and newspaper advertising by Raggedy Ann Foods, marketer of over 75 products.

To boost brand awareness, Raggedy Ann last fall launched a heavily merchandised spot tv schedule on WBBM-TV, Chicago, its first entry into the medium.

The animated spots, in a humorous vein, are spread over the station's Monday-Friday schedule. In-store merchandising material includes free shopping bags with a cut-out tv set and a strip of cartoon characters from the commercials which children can pull through the cut-out "screen" and thereby run their own commercials. The bags have "WBBM-TV, CBS" printed on the sides.

Those stores that sign up for the display program (over 500 have) receive for a small fee window blow-ups of the "Special of the Week," which also is featured in each week's tv spots, plus bulls-eyes and "tv special shelf signs." In addition, a long-playing phonograph record describing the entire campaign was made by WBBM-TV personality Lee Phillip and mailed to all retailers taking part.

To test the effectiveness of this two-fold effort, Raggedy Ann arranged a brand awareness telephone survey at its start and one month later. Among the findings:

- Number of respondents unaware of Raggedy Ann as a brand name was down 75% (from 38 originally to 10 for the second survey)
- Concept of Raggedy Ann as only one product was almost eliminated (down from nine to one)

- Total of those cognizant of Raggedy Ann as a line of several food products more than doubled (up from 30 to 65)

- Those who associate Raggedy Ann strictly with dolls, comic strip characters or storybooks were reduced in number nearly 50% (from 21 to 12)

In assessing the results of the tv campaign and accompanying merchandising program Bill Olendorf, marketing v.p. of Raggedy Ann's agency, Tobias, O'Neil & Gallay, had this to say: "The brand has been enjoying an increase in consumer awareness and movement that had never been achieved before when we were using just newspapers and bill boards."

As for tangible sales results, field trips made to retailers during the campaign arc reported to show that merchants who promote the "Special of the Week," featured in the tv spots hike sales of the spot-lighted item by at least 300%. One store reported an increase of 2,000% on the sale of a "Special" item.

Tv viewers are financially secure

Income study of tv households based on top ten shows reveals high percentage reporting middle-upper incomes

More than three-quarters of all tv's viewing homes have a gross annual income over $4,000, the American Research Bureau indicates in a recent national report.

Based on the top ten network programs, a highly representative sample, the survey shows that a high percent of these homes reported yearly earnings better than $7,000. This category represents 25%.

The wage bracket of most television households is between $4,000 and $6,999. Slightly over half—51% of all respondents—are within this income range. Ironically, the remaining 49% are divided virtually equally between brackets under and over this category. Twenty-four percent earn less than $4,000 and, as mentioned previously, 25% make more than $7,000.

With the exception of the lowest and highest dollar categories, there's no extensive variation in the range of incomes viewing the various programs falling into the Top 10 category. The highs and lows are as follows: A. 10-4%; B, 19-12%; C, 54-46%; D. 20-14%; E, 10-6%.

The rank of the top ten by the percent of viewers earning more than $7,000 looks like this: 1) Untouchables; 2) Bob Hope; 3) Gunsmoke; 3) Have Gun, Will Travel; 3) Perry Mason; 3) Rawhide; 7) Ed Sullivan; 8) Chevy Show; 8) Wagon Train; 10) Real McCoys.

Dear Norman:

Enclosed is an exact copy of a letter which a young Communist sent to a friend of his back in the United States.

The letter appeared in "Presbyterian Survey" - - a very fine publication of the Presbyterian Church. In reproducing it, the editor made one of the most profound and thought-provoking observations I've ever read. He said, "We think this letter shows more graphically than any editorial what total commitment means." He went on to say, "Are we as committed to the truth as this young Communist and millions like him are committed to an empty hope?"

To a great majority of people in the Free World, particularly people in America, this kind of dedication is unheard of. They simply cannot believe that the architects of Communism, Karl Marx, Lenin, et al, could possibly have such influence on any human being. I feel that to defend and protect freedom as we know it today, it is imperative that all people in the Free World understand the inner feelings of those who are determined to destroy it. I am hopeful, therefore, that you - - through your widely read publications - - will give the enclosed letter as much publicity as you see fit.

We simply must convince Americans and as many of our friends in the Free World as possible that Communism is by no means just another political party. It is a form of religion..... a complete dedication..... a total commitment designed to enslave a total world.

Sincerely yours,

Charles Crutchfield

A young communist writes . . . "What seems of first importance to you is to be either not desirable or impossible of realization. But there is one thing about which I am in dead earnest—and that is the socialist cause. It is my life, my business, my religion, my hobby, my sweetheart, wife, and mistress, my bread and meat. I work at it in the daytime and dream of it at night. Its hold on me grows, not lessens, as time goes on. I'll be in the rest of my life. It is my alter-ego. When you think of me, it is necessary to think of socialism as well, because I'm inseparably bound to it.

Therefore, I can't carry on a friendship, a love affair, or even a conversation without relating it to this force which both drives and guides my life. I evaluate people, books, ideas, and notions according to how they affect the socialist cause and by their attitude toward it.

I have already been in jail because of my ideas, and if necessary I am ready to go before a firing squad. A certain percentage of us get killed or imprisoned. Even for those who escape these harsher ends, life is no bed of roses. A genuine radical lives in virtual poverty. He turns back to the party every penny he makes above what is absolutely necessary to keep him alive. We constantly look for places where the class struggle is the sharpest, exploiting these situations to the limit of their possibilities. We lead strikes. We organize demonstrations. We speak on street corners. We fight cops. We go through trying experiences many times each year which the ordinary man has to face only once or twice in a lifetime.

And when we're not doing these more exciting things, all our spare time is taken up with dull routine chores, endless leg work, errands, etc., which are inescapably connected with running a live organization.

Radicals don't have the time or the money for many movies or concerts or T-bone steaks or decent homes and new cars. We've been described as fanatics. We are. Our lives are dominated by one great, over-shadowing factor—the struggle for socialism. Well, that's what my life is going to be. That's the black side of it. Then there is the other side of it. The Communists have a philosophy of life which no amount of money could buy. We have a cause to fight for, a definite purpose in life. We subordinate our petty personal selves to a great movement of humanity. We have a morale, an esprit de corps such as no capitalist army ever had; we have a code of conduct, a way of life, a devotion to our cause that no religious order can touch. And we are guided not by blind, fanatical faith but by logic and reason, by a never-ending education of study and practice.

And if our personal lives seem hard or our egos appear to suffer through subordination to the party, then we are adequately compensated by the thought that each of us is in his small way helping to contribute something new and true, something better to mankind."

What's the next trend in pop music?

Stephen H. Sholes, RCA Victor manager, Artist & Repertoire, popular records, New York

Predicting the next trend in Pop Music is like predicting the Stock Market. If you're right, you're hailed as a wizard. If you're wrong, you ain't nuthin' but a hound dog.

Crystal-balling is all but passe in the recording industry today.

Some basic reasons for the de-emphasis of "calculated guess-work"

Trend is to a keener pursuit of the possibilities in all musical areas are: A rapidly broadening musical taste in America, the tremendous growth of an international market, and the drop in the age level of the average pop disk consumer to that between eight and 14 years old.

A more varied musical product is an absolute must.

The young buyer of recordings expects something new each time out, and, subsequently, we, the producers, attempt to work in much closer contact with the market. Disk jockeys, radio program directors, record librarians and distributors are now playing a larger role than ever before on the recording scene. Their collective opinions are invaluable in our efforts to pinpoint our public's pulse. Extensive research projects are now Standard Operating Procedure in the industry; much more so than in the past.

It is our response, then, to the existent diversity of taste; our efforts to appeal to and satisfy a fluctuating consumer market, that suggests a trend. An operational one, however, rather than any new surge to Calypso, Answer Songs, Foreign Imports, etc.

We, the Artist and Repertoire managers, must be infinitely more aware of and attuned to the re-actions of consumers, today. That taste range is vast; interests move around—to lush-stringed instrumentals, novelties (which have popped up out of nowhere, suddenly, throughout recording history), movie themes, country songs, folk fads, comedy tracks, Calypso, and even the spoken word.

The trend is to a keener pursuit of the possibilities in all of these areas, even to the point of employing "specialists" to fit the particular talents of individual artists. The trend, too, is to a much wider search for recording material. And, finally, the current trend runs to the contracting of a plethora of young artists, contemporaries of the youthful consumers with whom an all-important rapport can more easily be established.

Entertainment values on Pop singles are rapidly approaching these on long-playing albums. We are only now beginning to explore, to the fullest, our industry's capabilities.

By doing so, we hope to make trends—rather than wait for them to "happen."

Don Costa, director, Artists & Repertoire, United Artists Records, New York

Forecasting the new trends in our business can be most hazardous, but these forecasts are vital if the industry as a whole, and an individual

A rather uninhibited R&R sound using standard tunes, name artists company, are to continue to progress.

Right now, it would appear that we are going to see a marked shift toward the Latin beat, not in the form we now know and hear, rather through the use of smaller orchestras and combos who specialize in this type of rhythm. The swiftness with which the Pachanga-Charanga arrived is one indication of this, the wide acceptance by the younger record fans of pop tunes with a Latin beat is another.

Most of us are agreed that Rock and Roll is now an established part of the music field. I believe we will see a move to the sound of three or four years ago in this area, a combination of the rather uninhibited sound plus the use of more so-called standard tunes. An example would be the combination of sound plus the old hit, Blue Moon which would appear to be the forerunner of this trend.

I believe the full Sounds employed by the singers like Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, for example, will continue to increase in popularity, and that the trend towards best-selling motion picture themes, performed as instrumentals, will also be on the upswing in the months to come.

Over-all, I look for a resurgence of the record business at most levels, with the stress on sound plus the use of the best-possible names and songs to accentuate the recordings.

David Kapp, president, Kapp Records, New York

Any man who stays in the record business for an extended period of time must attempt to anticipate the kind of music to which people will respond. I don't know what the next trend will be, because trends are not necessarily planned. As a matter of fact, like "Topsy" most of them "just grew." No one planned the rock 'n roll craze. The tag actually appeared long after the music itself was accepted.

The time of the year, to an extent, determines the kind of recordings we plan. If I were to predict the kind of music people would be buying from November to February, I would think of the kind of music they listen to indoors: the music that is most suitable for the time of the year when night comes very early. As we prepare for the releases during the spring and summer months, I think in terms of music which has a brighter feeling. For example, we recorded Itsy Bitsy Teenie Weenie Yellow Polka Dot Bikini in May, for I believe it is easier for people to sing "Itsy etc." than Gloomy Sunday while driving on the open road with the top down. Our hope is that we can properly guess where the people will go to satisfy their musical appetites and what these appetites will be. My guess, at this point, is that people will be looking for inspirational music and inspirational themes in the days ahead of us.

Public will be looking for popular inspirational themes such as 'Exodus'

They are already responding to the film and music of Exodus, which represents the struggle of a people for freedom. This struggle for freedom of expression and faith continues in Africa and within many other nations whose goals are the same. It is mirrored in the message of our new President Kennedy, and as more people join the "movement," so will they want the songs to sing. I think they will be looking for songs which will mean to them what "Battle Hymn of the Republic" meant in its day and still means today.

This does not necessarily mean that the demand will be for "triumphal marches." It will mean only that there is an awakening and when there is an awakening there must be a song to tell the story. It is easier to sing God Bless America than it is to say "God Bless America." People can put an emotion into a song which they can never put into a speech.

One of the most important records we ever issued is In Jerusalem sung by Jane Morgan. People hear it and are inspired. I think there will be other songs which will instill in people the power of faith and devotion, and I hope they come soon.

"Youth: a Summer Crisis?" on WABC-TV, New York

One of the superior productions through which creative talent and community leadership are continually building new vision into Television on stations represented by

BLAIR-TV

"Today's youth is tomorrow's citizen. Invest in him today—train him, teach him, employ him today—and the community will be proud of him tomorrow. That principle has inspired WABC-TV's youth project—a continuing series of varied programs, designed to uplift the values, raise the standards and stimulate the ambitions of today's young people."

JOSEPH STAMPLER
Vice Pres., WABC-TV

Priceless Asset

The needs of New York youth are a challenge to WABC-TV. Specifically, it asks, what are these needs? And what is being done to meet them?

Probing for answers, the station has struck a rich vein of program material. For example, "Expedition: New York," a series presenting the sights, sounds and people of the world's greatest metropolis. "Expedition: New York" was launched in October 1960. Presented in prime time, it appeals strongly to all age groups—yet always spotlights the traditions that help us better understand the New York of today—and tomorrow. Outstanding programs include Sloan Wilson on "It's a Great Place to Learn"; Sam Levenson on "Education: Tailor-Made"; Myron Cohen on "The Fabulous Five Streets"; the Herald Tribune editorial board on "The Newspaper Game".

When mail count for a single program exceeds 4,000, when an average of 350 students submit essays on each telecast—then a station can truly be said to have developed "a winner."

Guarding a community's priceless asset, youth—does not begin and end with a single series. It is a continuing campaign: "Youth: A Summer Crisis?," examining problems of teen-agers with time on their hands; "High School Sports," emphasizing fair play and leadership; "Salute to Youth," presented in cooperation with the U.S. Commerce Department; and a "Jobs for Youth" campaign with the NY State Employment Service.

To Blair-TV, creative community-interest programming by great stations like WABC-TV is a real source of inspiration. We are proud to serve more than 100 stations in national sales.

SPOT AGAIN

Agency's director of sales development, stated: "This will be the new products decade, and spot tv is the medium for new products."

Barrett has just released a presentation to advertisers and agencies called, "The 1960's: Your Products and National Spot Television," which documents, among other things, the success of new products introduced via the medium (French's instant potatoes, Folger's coffee, Amso sponge cloth, Sara Lee frozen chicken, and Comet cleanser among others).

Explaining the reason for the study at this time, he pointed out that "big companies are looking for something fresh—to steal a march—like Metrecol. Products such as Listerine, old and established and with a 50% share of the market, are faced today with sudden competition. We count five or six companies going after the oral antiseptic market.

"The challenged leaders are going to have to advertise more. Even if they hold their share, and that's doubtful, their profit margins are going to be squeezed out. New products will give them fresh new profit margins. Metrecol, the original example, is now faced with perhaps 100 competing brands, counting all the private labels." (See, "A booming new industry watches Metrecol." SPONSOR, 9 January 1961.)

Flexibility and balance are two other major attributes of spot tv. The Katz presentation quotes a 10 October 1960 Sponsor-Scope item to the effect that "It is this superior flexibility that makes it possible for an advertiser to plug up the competitive weak spots within two weeks after the issuance of a Nielsen Grocery Index." This makes media buying for packaged goods "more and more of a hand-to-mouth process."

Most of the excitement in the industry in the past few weeks has been in spot tv—although the networks are doing exceptionally well, too. New York business included: P&G's Duz (Compton), Avon cosmetics (Monroe Dreher), Palmolive soap (Bates), American Home's Instantine (Compton) and Sani-Flush (Bates), Ivory liquid (Compton), Calumet Baking Powder (FC&B), Post Toasties (B&B), El Producto and La Vera cigars (Compton), General Mills Twinkies (D-F-S), Maxwell House instant and Yuban coffees (B&B), Jack Frost sugar (Y&R), Carter Products—various (SSC&B), Best Food's Hellmann's mayonnaise and Dash (D-F-S), Zest (B&B), and Bumble Bee tuna (Manoff).

Radio business out of New York included: Beech-Nut coffee (Chas. Hoyt), Hills Bros. coffee (Ayer), Seabrook Farms (Al Paul Lefton), DeCaf (McCann-E), and Ohio Oil (Ayer).

Spot tv business coming out of Chicago since mid-March: Mr. Clean (Tatham-Laird), All-State (Burnett), S. C. Johnson's Holiday (FC&B), Butternut coffee (Tatham-Laird), Lever's Swan (NL&B), Brown Shoe (Burnett), Purina dog chow (Gardner), Quaker's Life (JWT), Pet Milk's Sege (Gardner), Kool-Aid (FC&B), Also Kellogg (Burnett), Rust-Oleum (O'Grady, A&G), American Dairy (Campbell-Mithun), Amoco (D'Arcy), Continental Casualty (Hartman), Pure Oil's Firebird—radio and tv—(Burnett), and Alberto-Culver (Compton).

TV'S NEXT TREND

and Miles, for instance, have renewed The Flintstones.

There is a special advantage to cartoon shows which seems to outweigh any such conflict. It's this: the animated characters can be used in commercials. Reynolds and Miles have used Flintstones characters in opening and closing billboards and in final commercials, but not in middle commercials.

The size of the current cartoon trend is not unlimited. None of the new cartoons is scheduled after 9 p.m. and it seems that this pattern will keep cartoons out of later-evening programming.

The dependence of cartoons on children is economic as well as a matter of audience taste and interest. For years cartoons were regarded as too expensive for tv. Then new techniques were developed. First limited animation was employed. Tv cartoons do not require as much painstaking work as theatrical ones. Second, segment rotation was developed in national spot cartoons. Segments could be gradually re-used

The re-use of cartoon material depended on the quick turnover of audience among children. While the programming pattern of network cartoons is quite different, national spot did provide a proving ground for many cartoon problems. Furthermore, since the national spot and syndication revivals of cartoon production preceded the network revival by several years, it seems likely to some observers that non-network re-use of cartoons can provide an economic cushion for producers of network cartoons.

The color capability of cartoons is being exploited by RCA in its new Sunday Disney series to be seen on NBC TV. Another cartoon show seen the same day, Bull Winkle, will also be in color. But ABC TV and CBS TV are sticking to a black-and-white cartoon policy.

There is, meanwhile, revival of cartoon production in national spot and syndication. Most are shows designed for children's audiences or for early evening family scheduling. Besides Screen Gems' three national spot cartoon series sold to Kellogg's, UPA-TPI has entered cartoon productions with Dick Tracy sold to Post cereals 50 market participation. They also have Mister Magoo.

Commercials producers, too, have jumped on the cartoon bandwagon. Video-Craft has a new Pinocchio series in syndication. Other syndicators with new cartoons include UAA with Mello-Tunes, King Features with new Popeye cartoons, CBS Films with Deputy Dawg, and Trans-Lux with Felix the Cat—all shows that antedated the current network boom.

A characteristic change has taken place in syndication cartoons over the past two seasons. Previously, syndication cartoons were almost always tv releases of films made initially for theaters. But today's cartoon is a new product, made expressly for tv and designed to meet tv budgets and animation standards—each lower than its theatrical counterpart.

Although few network users have too much concern with national spot film programming or syndication, the fact cannot be overlooked that it is in precisely these areas that today's cartoon boom began. And these too, are the same places where today's cartoons could end up as re-runs a few years from now.

to just try the product," he said.

"The personality sell idea has run its gamut, just as the singing jingle and regular saturation have," he said. "We've come up with super-concentration which adds up to impact—and sales results," he said.

Although Zubrow does not do brand awareness tests for Brooks, it does buyer reaction surveys on various products. "Awareness tests have not been undertaken for a basic reason," said Drutt. "We operate on a local basis, therefore we know each month what advertising and promotional expenses have been and we can correlate them with our sales," he said. "We are on such a direct line (advertising, sales promotion and sales effectiveness) that we don't have to get at effectiveness through consumer awareness," he said.

What about the future of Brooks' radio advertising? "Although the technique we've used for Brooks has been very effective," said Drutt, "it has created a considerable amount of interest among agencies and advertisers all over the country.

"We therefore know that at some future time we won't be able to use this effectively for Brooks. We have planned for that day when super-saturation technique loses the effectiveness it now has." While he declined to discuss details of these plans, he intimated they involve broadcast media.

Brooks advertises in flights by necessity. "Even if we could afford to be on 52 weeks a year with the kind of concentration we've found necessary, we wouldn't use it because it might tend to create consumer ill-will," said Sherry. He explained that Zubrow has designated four promotional periods for Brooks during the fiscal year. All advertising and merchandising efforts are concentrated in these promotional periods. There is no set pattern for determining when these periods will fall. But there is a six- to eight-week flight in each quarter.

Besides the three (now five) "A" markets designated by Brooks for heavy concentration, there is also some broadcast activity in what the agency calls "B" markets. There were six of these in the last fiscal year, and, in these markets, "average" spot buys are made. Gradually the agency hopes to nurture these markets to "A" status, as has been done with Cleveland and Detroit.

There are also "C" markets in which Brooks Foods is "hanging on by its fingernails." In these 12 markets Brooks presently just hopes to stay in business against the day when the "C's" can be elevated to "B's."

The rest of Brooks' 33-market distribution is known as "all others." Brooks has sales representatives here. There are occasional orders. At present Zubrow is sitting tight with these, but hopes one day to continue the graduating process.

in the film depicting the progress and problems of Nigeria's peaceful emergence as one of the free nations of Africa. BBDO's role consisted of some writing, structuring and basic editing on the program.

On deck are two hour-long pictorials, one about Los Angeles Dodgers rookie Willie Davis, the other, decathlon champion Rafer Johnson. Here again, there's general appeal both from a human interest and sports standpoint, plus, industry observers note, little extra dividend for the Negro viewer.

For the Willie Davis pictorial, to be aired in New York and three other markets tentatively on 2 May, BBDO turned the assignment over to David Wolper, independent producer, who was responsible for the widely circulated one-shot, "Race for Space." Academy award winning cameraman James Wong Howe has been filming scenes re-creating Willie's early days in California and his current Florida spring training adventures.

The Willie Davis show is expected to have a prime time showing probably on WNBC-TV, New York. Placing local one-shots advantageously is of course always a major problem. While it's an exception to find a choice slot on a network o.d.o. good openings are to be had for quality material. The stations and the medium benefit from carrying such programs, says Foreman.

Another important segment of the Schaefer special lineup is Award Theater, which consists of the "cream" of the feature film packages, presented by WCBS-TV, New York, approximately once a month.

she can prophesy trends in any area of the arts, to say the least, is sadly mistaken. Therefore may I suggest that there are a few basic things that are happening in today's record market which are deserving of attention. These are, firstly, the stability of the so-called unstable Rock and Ro market, and the revival of old songs that once made it in the Rock and Roll field and which are apparently making it again, either by way of re-release or new recordings of same.

All types of pop music are gaining stability in today's record market

Secondly, the stability of the ever widening Pop market which seems to transcend and encompass all spheres of musical tastes—meaning Country and Western, Rhythm and Blues and Rock and Roll. No longer does the subject selectivity surround the individual Pop buyer. As a matter of fact, it seems that the Pop record buyer of today is the only one who actually buys for the sound rather than the product; in other words, the average Pop record buyer will go in a store and walk out with as many as four or five different types of records, which we as a company find very stimulating and challenging.

Unfortunately, many people in our industry are here solely to make fast buck. I think that the time has arrived when all of us in the business should take the time out and do a little soul searching. I am sure this is not a unique proposal but on the other hand the salvation of the record business and especially single records is at stake. It is with much interest that I note the data given to products by a couple of the major companies and I assure you that we here at Mercury, while unaware of what the future may hold and certainly not being in a position to predict the trends will, nonetheless, devote ourselves to offering the public the best product available. And if any new trends are on the horizon, we shall endeavor to sell them.

The Justice Department and the FCC are at each other's throats on an anti-trust question.

These are the same two government bodies which acted together to secure the "landmark" Supreme Court decision naming Justice, and not the FCC, as the "expert agency" on antitrust matters, even in the broadcasting field. This decision, in the RCA-NBC case, led to the plea of "nolo contendere" which ended the case.

The current case is the complicated Philco protest against renewal of the NBC Philadelphia licenses, which has been denied by the FCC twice and which is now in its second go-round in the Appeals Court.

Justice backed up Philco in asking that the case be returned to the FCC for consideration of the RCA-NBC antitrust violation history. Justice strongly criticized the FCC for allegedly not worrying about such conduct in the past.

The Court will, of course, decide whether the FCC must re-hear the case to consider this antitrust history. But it would be a mistake to assume that a sweeping precedent, going to the heart of future FCC treatment of antitrust law violators, will be involved. The court is likely to decide only on the narrow issue of whether Philco has been adequately heard.

It would be an even more serious mistake to consider, as some in the industry do, that the FCC as presently constituted is arguing before the court that antitrust consent decrees and pleas of "nolo contendere" are not to be taken as seriously as Justice wishes.

The FCC is arguing purely and simply that Philco had no case.

A stronger crackdown on antitrust law violators in the future than has been true in the past is a certainty, regardless of the outcome of this case. It will hit new applications with much more force than applications for license renewals.

To mention specific cases, Westinghouse and GE, along with any less recently involved station operators should have little difficulty with license renewals. The FCC will weigh the type of service given to the public. It could be rougher on NBC in view of allegations that this network is in something of a monopoly position in broadcasting. It could be plenty tough on those broadcasters with antitrust backgrounds who can be accused of poor performance as station operators.

Applicants for new stations, where there are competing applications of a qualified nature, are apt to find an antitrust background an absolute disqualification.

The unnoticed part of the current FCC-Justice squabble is that the FCC did not dispute the over-all Justice theme. It merely said these considerations should not apply in the Philco case.

The fact is, the FCC has changed since then-chairman Doerfer said that antitrust violations are merely a penalty of doing business on a big scale. The current commission will take such violations seriously.

As for the Justice Department, it not only failed to advise against renewal of the NBC Philadelphia licenses, it approved the consent decree and interposed no objections to the series of proposed sales and trades which followed.

The Justice brief, however, does clearly mirror the close attention which that Department will be giving to business practices in broadcasting.

The quiet of the past few months in first-run syndication of action-adventure shows has been ended at last by Ziv-UA's release of King of Diamonds.

The show stars Broderick Crawford, four-year syndication veteran of Highway Patrol.

In the last six months the only other action-adventure shows from the major shops have been just two: Ziv-UA's Miami Undercover last October and Screen Gems Tallahassee 7000, which came out in December.

An oddity of the current market is this: overseas demand for new product is high in areas like Australia.

Hence, don't be surprised if you discover that shows are sold overseas before they are sold at home—a reversal of the usual procedure.

Twentieth Century-Fox serves as one model of what a feature film producer without a syndication affiliate can do to sell its post-1948's to tv.

The producer broke up its movie inventory into groups: one went to NTA some time ago, a second was sold to NBC TV for Saturday night exposure (the first major prime time network sale of features), and now it has put out a third group which Seven Arts Associates will handle.

The lessons of 20th's pattern seem to be this: a feature film producer can sometimes do best by dividing up its libraries into packages of a size that stations can digest readily and by using several distributors it puts more salesmen to work on its features.

Hopes still being held out by syndicators of making network deals for next season are growing fainter and fainter.

As of this week, with the final score not yet in, several syndicators could be mentioned who had network deals this year but who have none for the upcoming 1961-62 season.

Should a negative trend continue, this loss of network business couldn't come at a worse time—just when the domestic syndication program market for first-runs is also in a slump.

One long-range prognosis is that re-runs, feature films, children's shows, overseas sale and licensing—all only recently regarded as peripheral syndication activities—to play major and increasing roles through 1962.

Syndication's adventure programming often depended for its inspiration upon network trends, but in cartoons the shoe is now on the other foot.

The boom in cartoons in national spot and syndication of the past season or two has finally spread to all the networks.

This season ABC TV had two prime time cartoons, Flintstones and Bugs Bunny.

But in 1961-62, all three networks will have at least one prime time cartoon. ABC TV is renewing its current shows and is adding Top Cat and Calvin and the Colonel, while CBS will have Alvin and the Chipmunks, and Disney is switching over to NBC TV with a full color emphasis.

(For story, see p. 38, this issue.)

Marty Roberts of NTA reports a solution to a long-standing feature film promotion problem: the high cost of special promotion slides.

Formerly stations were provided with one slide for each feature, costing the distributor about $75 for each 100 pictures, a figure that easily mounted into the thousands when the cost was multiplied by the number of stations getting the service.

Roberts' solution: preparing slides in strip form which the stations could mount as needed, costing only $4.

The practice has now become widespread. Other feature film distributors using it are Seven Arts, PTI, UAA, and Flamingo.

Insiders guess that this year's total of new shows for syndication might not exceed six or seven.

If true, this means that major syndicators won't have more than a few shows each, many not more than one, and some none at all.

Although Seven Arts has taken the station-by-station route to sell the Warners Films of the 50's group, its slow but steady flow of business has already reached 62 stations.

Among most recent sales is WJBK-TV, Detroit.

NTA is one of the few tv-based companies to jump into the pay-tv field.

It claims that its system, NTA-Home Entertainment, costs 50% less to make and 70% less to install and maintain than competing systems.

Others in the pay-tv field include: Paramount-Telemeter, Western Union-Teleprompter, Zenith-Phonovision, and Skiatron.

Television Enterprises Corp. (TEC) has a music series and an adventure show on its production drawing boards.

The shows are: Mahalia Jackson Sings, and Sebastian, a full-hour adventure.

CBS Films has been active lately in license merchandising of network news and entertainment properties.

Dell will do a paperback book on Danger Man, an ITC series on CBS TV; in addition, hard-back books by Little, Brown or Lippincott will be done on three CBS News series and Carousel Films division of McGraw-Hill will get non-theatrical distribution of several news programs.

A syndicated property just licensed is Deputy Dawg; stuffed toys will be made by Earle Pullan of Toronto.

Overheard: that another network will follow CBS' example shortly in divesting itself of some of its tape facilities—but in this case to sell to an independent tape producer.

Unlike CBS, which curtailed its tape operation recently for policy reasons, another network seems on the verge of shuttering part of its tape operation along with studio property for reasons of cost efficiency.

Picking a show for the fall in ABC TV's Thursday 9:30-10 p.m. period has become a whopper because it entails the meeting of four minds.

It starts off with a two-way agreement between Compton and B&B, entails the blessing, of course, of P&G and, beyond that, the choice must meet with ABC TV's approval.

One of the more important drug packaging accounts is in jeopardy at a top-rung Madison Ave. agency.

A major disgruntlement on the part of the client: the network tv record.

Second top-rank man in one of the biggest agency billers in air media is beginning to feel the squeeze from his fellow brass because of a particular failing.

The indicted penchant: veering away from strong, knowledgeable, key personnel when it comes to staffing the departments under his authority.

One agency has become so cynical about the purported expertize in picking nighttime network tv shows that it's quietly engaging in an experiment of its own.

The stunt: putting all the programs it has explored in a hat, picking out a batch of them and, at the end of the season, matching the selectees against the actual hits.

It's being referred to as the Monte Carlo systeming of program selection.

Members wearing two, or even three, hats have become a sort of travail within the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Some of the ANPA's board of directors are grumbling that half of their confreres have tv/radio affiliations, and this inclines them not to be aggressive enough against broadcast media.

What probably contributes much to JWT's stability on the tv front is the fact that its strength is pretty well distributed between the New York and Chicago offices.

In Chicago there's Kraft, Quaker Oats, Schlitz, and 7-Up, while in New York the tv billings derive in the main from Lever, Scott Paper, French, Kodak, Standard Brands, and Ford. The latter might be regarded as a twin responsibility of the Detroit and New York offices.

Barter and P.I.'s are no recent innovations in the business.

Back when radio was just coming out of the cocoon Anacin bought advertising with either stock or on the basis of a percentage of sales within a specified area.

You never can tell where Booz, Allen & Hamilton will figure next in this business.

For many years it's been NBC's consultant mainstay on organization, personnel and whatnot.

Lately, it had much to do with the decision of the station groups to put itself into the business of representing itself in spot sales.

Radio Stations

Washington radio station WQMR, winter-weary of broadcasting stay-at-home bad driving conditions, has tailored the traffic warnings format to spreading sun-shining reports and urging listeners to "go out and shop."

The cheery tid-bits, aired via short tag lines during regular weather reports, has a promotional angle, it ties-in area shopping places.

Permission for these tie-ins were solicited by letters to retailers signed by WQMR v.p. general manager Ed Winton like this: "let me know if you have a particular shopping center you would like to have included in this campaign. We would like to have your permission to use it—with out charge."

Ideas at work:

- WINS, New York, is putting its Record Review Board to work. The club is open to listeners who join by writing for a membership card. There are 84,000 members and they're being called on to "audition" new record releases in their own communities. Under the direction of program director Rick Sklar, the WINS Listening Post calls for audition sessions every Monday-Friday, attended by listeners in their own neighborhoods.

- Do you have the WKDA diamond? Passersby in Nashville are asking each other this question since the station began its "treasure of diamonds" listener promotion contest. There are six diamonds, total value $5,000, being carried by some secret citizen.

- Tucson KAIR's gold key shopping spree contest came to an end last week after 137 clues to the location of the hidden key were given on the air. The winner, Mike Stefanik, returned the key to Goodmans Marks (co-sponsor of the contest) and received $1,000 in exchange. A 15-minute free shopping spree at any Goodmans Market was also part of the prize.

- WBIC, Long Island, announced the start of an around-the-clock Long Island news service. The station has installed automatic telephone answering devices on which it records capsule headlines of important area stories. Listeners can call anytime, day or night, to get late news.

- CKLW, Detroit, sponsored a "Looney Lid Contest" to see who could put together the most "hectic hat" for its d.j.'s to wear in the Easter Parade. More than 983 hats, made out of everything from wastebaskets to rabbit's food, arrived at the station.

The central theme: how the programming which CBS introduced last November is compatible in the needs of the listeners—an audience in motion—and of the advertiser who's looking for a medium to give a sense of immediacy to his product story.

After the presentation has been shown around New York via lunches it will be taken to Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, the West Coast and other points.

ABC TV reports it had $185 million in time and programming (prime evening time) sold for the 1961-62 season as of 1 April.

Last year's same date tally: $154 million, a 20% difference.

Net tv sales: General Mills and Campbell Soup (both BBD&O) to share alternate sponsorship of CBS series Father of the Bride . . . Mutual of Omaha (Bozell & Jacobs) has bought sponsorship of NBC's Chet Huntley Reporting . . . Reynolds Metals (Lennen & Newell and Clinton Frank) to sponsor The Reynolds Aluminum Dick Powell Show series: Say When, and All-Star Golf, all NBC TV, this year.

Renewal: United States Steel (BBD&O) has renewed The United States Steel Hour series for the 1961-62 season over CBS.

PEOPLE ON THE MOVE: William C. Gillogly, promoted from director of sales, ABC TV Central division, to v.p. in charge of sales, ABC, Chicago office . . . William Aronson, from television program sales, General Artists Corp., to account executive, ABC Television sales . . . Allen Ludden, from director of program services, CBS o&o radio stations, to newly created position, consultant for creative services, CBS News . . . John M. Otter, from special program sales staff, to director, special program sales NBC TV.

Representatives

Appointments: KROY radio, Sacramento, Venard, Rintoul & McConnell in the east, and Torbet, Allen, and Crane in the west, effective 1 April . . . WWSA and WWSA-TV.

Harrisonburg, Va., to Clarke Brown, Dallas, Tex., from H-R.

PEOPLE ON THE MOVE: Prem M. Kapur joins H-R staff as tv account executive; a native of India, and graduate of Cambridge and Bombay, he was formerly with WCAU-TV, Philadelphia, ITC, NBC Films, the Indian Diplomatic Service, the United Nations, and the Ford Motor Company . . . John P. McWeeny appointed account executive in the Chicago office of Storer Television Sales, a newly formed unit; McWeeny previously served with Edward Petry; J. Walter Thompson; Needham, Louis & Brorby, and Young & Rubicam—all in Chicago.

Film

Coverage of the nation's tv markets by new properties in syndication reaches as high as 93% in the case of Ziv-UA.

Study of three new shows, Sea Hunt, Lock Up, and Miami Undercover reveals that sales have been made in all but 7 per cent of the nation's 269 markets.

By comparison the figure for Ziv-UA a year ago was 91 per cent.

A stepped-up advertiser and tv broadcaster demand for cartoon commercials has triggered a large-scale expansion and reorganization program at Sturm Studios, according to the company's new president, Harold Hackett.

Hackett, who took over the presidency of the 12-year-old commercial production firm's new company last week, is a veteran in broadcasting: for 19 years he was v.p. in charge of radio and tv for Music Corporation of America; from 1953 to 1960, he was Official Films president and board chairman; for the past year he has been in charge of Program Sales.

Other officers elected with Hackett: Raymond Junkin, executive v.p.; William Sturm, v.p.; Oreste Calpini, secretary; and George Richfield, treasurer.

New company plans include the inauguration of other divisions to be concerned with: the acquisition of package programs series; the establishment of full syndication sales and service operations; and the development of live and film programs.

New cartoon techniques are also being developed.

Sales: Seven Arts Warners Films of the 50's to WJBK-TV, Detroit; KGMB, Honolulu, and WDAF-TV, Kansas City . . . Screen Gems reports $2,067,000 earnings for six months ending December 1960, compared to $1,147,000 in 1959, with profits of $970,000 compared to $647,000 for the earlier period . . .

Screen Gems' The Web to WNBC-TV, New York; national distribution of the off-network re-run begins shortly.

International: South American and Latin American rights to Rocky and His Friends awarded to Magnum Tv International; show is to be dubbed into Spanish and Portuguese.

Programs: Moulin Studios of San Francisco is producing Santa's Village, a 52-week half-hour color series, one of the first tv series ever produced in the Bay Area.

Tv and radio NEWSMAKERS

Glenn Gilbert has been appointed manager of AM Radio Sales' Detroit office. He comes to AM Radio Sales from Avery-Knodel where, for the past five years, he has been office manager of the company's office in Detroit. Prior to his affiliation with Avery-Knodel, Gilbert was a member of the Katz Agency sales team, also in Detroit. Earlier, he was sales executive at WGAR, Cleveland. A native of East Cleveland, Ohio, Gilbert began his career in the commercial department of American Tel. & Tel.

William F. Schnaudt, general sales manager of Beacon Broadcasting's Hartford, Conn., radio station WKNB since December 1958, has been named manager of the station. He replaces Norton Virgien who has left the broadcasting industry. Prior to his affiliation with WKNB, Schnaudt was with WICO, Salisbury, Maryland, a former Beacon property. He entered the industry in 1939 after graduation from Fordham U. and has held positions with WPAT, Paterson, N. J. and WPTR, Albany, N. Y.

Miss Beulah Funk, a member of the Blair Television Associates sales development staff since 1957, has been promoted to director of sales development. To her new assignment, Miss Funk brings a background of wide experience in broadcasting and in film programing for television. For the past four years, as sales development staffer, she specialized in the preparation of station sales material and program promotion. She was assistant film manager at WOR-TV, N. Y. and in sales service there.

Franklin Sisson has been appointed manager of radio station WWJ, Detroit. Formerly local sales manager of Grand Rapids, Mich., television station WOOD-TV. Sisson began his broadcasting career at WKLA, Ludington. From there he went to radio station WOOD as program director. A popular platform speaker, Sisson appeared with the touring panels of the BMI Clinics discussing station programing and promotion. He is a past president of the Grand Rapids Optimist Club and chairman of their convention.

The seller's viewpoint

Though the technicians maintain that it isn't the size of the sample but the quality of the method that matters in taking a rating, nothing bothers buyers and sellers of ratings so much as sample size. In this piece, Jay Victor, who heads a Newark, N. J., agency of that name, proposes an independent audit of rating services in the New York market by using students from the many colleges in the area to sample around 80,000 homes. This, he says, would keep the cost of validation low, and provide believable data.

Needed: large-sample validation of the ratings

The over-all "image" of the rating services is at an all-time low. Their methods are under attack, the size of their sampling ridiculed, their projections disputed, their integrity maligned and comments on the final figures (especially when they are unfavorable) range the gamut from "inadequate" to downright "dishonest."

I'm not here to take sides. But I do believe the time has come for both advertiser and broadcaster to demand that some proof be forthcoming to corroborate (1) that the samplings are, in truth, adequate; (2) that the ethnic composition is accurate; (3) that the income level samplings are in proportion with the latest available figures; (4) and most important, that a projection of some 800 or 1,000 names into 15 million really works.

I have an idea to prove this out and a way to put it into practice as well. I propose a completely independent audit. And before anyone begins shouting "It's expensive!" I suggest that the plan I have will be most economical in the bargain. This independent audit would not reach a mere 300 doorknobs but could be closer to 80,000 homes per survey. And this one hundred-fold projection would prove, beyond question, whether the services are actually close to the mark or not worth the paper they're printed on at all. I think the time is here for a showdown. Every other set of circulation figures has some independent audit—why not radio and tv? Advertisers and agencies have a right to demand this and rating services, which have faith in their methods, should be willing to put their product on the line.

The idea came to me while I was perusing a partial list of the many colleges that flourish in the 17-county greater New York area. It appears to me that there are over 50 of them. I suggest that the presidents of all these institutions be approached with the idea of joining forces to make an annual independent audit of every rating service in the market. I don't mean looking into their books. I mean testing their methods. Every college would allocate X number of students. The rating services would be asked to furnish each college with a list of questions identical to those they give their own people and furnish the identical methods of questioning as well. All other things would be equated, too (like ethnic composition, income level groupings, etc.), to the satisfaction of all interests concerned.

Every college would be allocated an area, would make its own survey, would tabulate its own figures and funnel all the results into one central point. When all the figures were in, final computations would be made, then stacked against the figures of the rating service itself.

All things being equal, the final evidence should stand on its own. With the exception of Nielsen (whose system I believe, offers the tiniest sampling of them all in greater New York), every major method could be explored in the 17-county metropolitan area. What the results prove or here will determine the next steps to be taken. Whether the final comparisons wind up odious or otherwise, I guarantee they should be interesting.

Fees should be modest. I have approached no college but my feeling is that many might be willing to help in the project as a public service or perhaps for some free air time thrown in for recruitment. If a little larger sum should be needed, all interested parties should contribute on some mutually agreeable basis.

I would be happy to be part of any committee chosen to help work this out. I believe some sort of independent check on ratings is long overdue. Advertisers have a right to know what they're buying. Equally, rating service should have a right to prove what they're selling. So let's have it. The "truth" will benefit the entire industry. ▼

THANK YOU, CONGRESSMAN OREN HARRIS . . .

CHAIRMAN, HOUSE SPECIAL SUBCOMMITTEE ON LEGISLATIVE OVERSIGHT

ARB wishes to commend you and your committee on the objective and non-partisan manner in which the recent comprehensive statistical evaluation of audience measurement services was conducted. A complete description and comparison of ARB methodology with that of other services is most welcome to us and should be one of the most important research documents in our industry. This is especially true because of the outstanding qualifications of those who prepared the report.

While we do not agree in principle with the necessity for Congressional inquiry, ARB feels that you have performed a most valuable service for the industry.

We take particular note of one of the committee's major recommendations—that which advocates complete disclosure of methodology and sample size in each printed report. ARB, and only ARB in the television field, has consistently furnished this information fully and clearly in every copy of every report. We will continue to do this as well as work toward implementing the other recommendations of the committee.

SPONSOR SPEAKS

A Puzzling Question

Recently Republican National Chairman, Senator Thurston B. Morton issued a strong protest before a Senate subcommittee, that station WMCA, New York had abused a broadcaster's right to editorialize, by the way in which it had backed John F. Kennedy in the campaign last fall.

Senator Morton attacked particularly WMCA's advertising of its political position, though he did not question a station's right to endorse a candidate.

To us this seems a little like evading the real issue. The heart of the problem is not how a station backs an individual political figure but whether station editorializing should be confined, as many broadcasters believe it should, to issues rather than personalities.

It is a very puzzling and difficult question and there has never been enough discussion of the point.

We believe that Peter Straus of WMCA has done the industry a real service by taking a stand and forcing this whole matter out into the open.

As to the arguments pro and con the practice of endorsing candidates, we'll reserve judgment. We'd like to hear more from broadcasters and others on this difficult subject.

Chuck Worcester Specialized in Service

The recent passing of Chuck Worcester, news director and former farm director of the WMT stations, Cedar Rapids, in an automobile accident, underscores the debt that radio and tv owe to their news and farm specialists.

We worked with Chuck on many farm projects. He represented the best in broadcasting to millions in the wide areas served by his stations, as well as throughout the industry.

Chuck's specialty, and it is a specialty of many of the news and farm experts, was service.

He was regarded a member of the family by countless families throughout the WMT areas. His loss will be keenly felt, because, in the finest tradition of broadcasting, he was constantly asking, not "What can I get?" but "What can I give?"

10-SECOND SPOTS

Mark this down: One of the big retailing firms, it is rumored, is set to sponsor a Western series next season. The title: Colt 44.95.

Pray ball: They did "Casey at the Bat" at N. Y.'s Upstairs at the Downstairs—as a Japanese Kabuki troupe might do it. Just before the last stanza, an announcer interrupted with: "But first, a word about Girrette Brue Brades."

Adlai and Al: Doubletalker Al Kelly has been nominated (by columnist Bob Considine) as a deputy to Governor Stevenson at the U.N.—because Kelly proved to the nation on tv recently that he had developed doubletalk into an even greater art form than the Russians. As an example of how he does it, Considine quotes an exchange with Happy Chandler, then Commissioner of Baseball, that took place on a dais somewhere: "Durocher feltered that team like a granlist and didn't deserve the frizzim of the agitative suspension," Al declared. "You've got a point, there," said the former Kentucky governor, nodding sagely. "If you want action, though, you'd better put in in writing."

Hoodwinked: We heard about this guy who was so influenced by the losers on those tv crime shows seen in the '20's and '30's that he went out and bought a big, black sedan and fixed it so that when he gets out all four doors open at the same time.

Heritage: CBS TV made a pitch for "the pursuit of excellence" on its Great Challenge special, but CBS Radio beat video to the punch. The senior web interviewed one Sol Richman who told this story: "We have a fellow, Harold Jaffe, a salami stuffer. His father was a salami stuffer, his grandfather was a salami stuffer. His great-grandfather was salami stuffer in Germany. This has been handed down as an art. At this man, he refuses to this very day to tie knots at the ends of the salami by machine—only by hand. He is adamant. And the irony is, he can tie more salamis by hand than the machines do. But where can you get another Harold Jaffe today?"

TIME OUT FOR LOGIC

The combined ages of Mary and Ann are forty-four years, and Mary is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was half as old as Ann will be when Ann is three times as old as Mary was when Mary was three times as old as Ann. How old is Mary? *
