THINK BACK!

At 7:45 a.m., KSD Radio, St. Louis, broadcasts a 15-minute local newscast.

It is sponsored by the Ford Dealers of St. Louis.

Those men have sponsored that newscast six days a week, four and a third weeks a month, 12 months a year.

For 13 consecutive years. Or since that 1950 Ford pictured above came out.

The Ford Dealers think it’s money well spent. Like so many other clients, they have long put their trust in KSD Radio news. No horn honkin’ or hollerin’. Just good, honest reporting.

The ten members of the KSD Radio newsroom comprise the largest staff of any St. Louis radio newsroom. They don’t double as announcers, engineers or turntable operators. Just reporters. Good ones. Work ‘round the clock. Turn out over 100 local newscasts a week.

Even in William Penn’s day, when tea was the popular beverage, you could get a good cup of coffee in Philadelphia.

Years later in 1754, when the noted colonial printer, William Bradford, took over Widow Roberts’ Coffee House, a special “refreshment” license was required to serve the brown brew.

The coffee house grew in popularity as it became headquarters for the latest news, comment and commercial exchange.

Arthur had a big idea

A publisher's view of significant happenings in broadcast advertising

One thousand notables from all segments of the broadcast industry, including six of the seven members of the FCC, applauded when Radio Station WSB, Atlanta, was honored by the Broadcast Pioneers at its Third Annual Mike Award Banquet.

WSB was uniquely deserving of the award. But before the evening was out Broadcast Pioneer President Ward Quaal bestowed another award that was equally deserving.

Arthur Simon, a mighty mite of a man, got this one verbally. Arthur is president of Broadcasters' Foundation, Inc., an organization whose sole purpose is assisting the needy in any facet of the broadcast field. It has been in business for three years and received the full net proceeds of the Broadcast Pioneers Banquet.

We know it's bad form for a business paper publisher to heap praise on a competitor. Arthur works for Radio-Television DAILY. But at the risk of being read out of the trade paper union we must write these few words of explanation and commendation.

Ward Quaal, despite his eloquence, couldn't say it all. For example, how Arthur's big idea has caught fire. Last year the Foundation had $30,000. Now it has $50,000. And practically every cent goes to help those in need.

A committee of four passes on every case that has been investigated and is considered eligible. To be eligible the individual involved must have been in the radio broadcast field 20 years or tv 10 years. In the past year some 10 cases have come to the attention of the committee and eight have received grants.

A growing number of donors are swelling the fund. To name a few—Tony Provost, Edward Petry, H. V. Kaltenborn (he gives $1,000 a year), WWDC, Peoples Broadcasting, WSAU-TV.

Investigating needy cases (some of them stranger than fiction) and scouting out new money for the Foundation takes a lot of Arthur's time. But he isn't complaining; nor are his hard-working associates.

This is just one example of seldom talked-about service carried on by the hard-boiled denizens of the broadcast world.

Letters to the Editor

WASTELAND?
I enclose a copy of my letter to Wayne L. Hays (Dem.), Representative to Congress from the 18th district of Ohio, and having reference to the statement by R. E. Eastman regarding Mr. Minow and his inexperience. (Eastman Opinion on "Vast Wasteland," 25 February 1963.)

I thought this letter to Mr. Hay would be of interest to you.

Dear Congressman Hays:
I enclose for your information a clipping from sponsor magazine dated February 25, 1963.

Mr. Eastman, the writer of this item, is highly regarded in the broadcast industry.

It has been our feeling that the Commission has presented entirely a one sided view of the radio and television industry. Their public fan fare has always been oriented to capture the most newspaper space, and create the most controversy regarding the broadcast industry...

Certainly there are those broadcasters who need supervision; but it would be tragic if by politically-oriented supervision now we were to find that gradually we have eroded our world-leading broadcasting industry into a service controlled by the state and no longer representing the people.

As you have learned, as long as there is a fairness doctrine: as long as broadcasting is a free enterprise business with an audience which must be served for survival; as long as broadcasters have an opportunity to operate their stations within the confines of the Communications Act, and their competitive system, in the long run the public will be best served.

I hope you will give this clipping some thought. Anything you can do to put experienced men on the Commission, and keep inexperienced men off of it would be most appreciated.

JOSEPH D. COONS, president and general manager, Constrander Corp., East Liverpool, Ohio.

FARM FAMILIES AIDED
WNAX has started a series of programs which you will be interested in passing along to your many readers. Farm service director Craighton Knau is narrating the series which is aimed at informing farm families and organizations in our five-state coverage area in obtaining loans from the Farmers Home Administration for the purpose of improving housing, acquiring farms and ranches, obtaining operating capital, undertaking community development, establishing and improving water shed facilities and the construction of water systems and recreational areas.

"Pathways to Rural Progress" is a sustaining public service series carried on WNAX twice daily, six days a week, for the four-week duration of the project. Mr. Knau has obtained interviews with national, state, and county officials who are administering this federally sponsored program, and with those people who have obtained funds from the FHA. During each of these 10-minute programs, we ask for specific inquiries from listeners, and these are turned over to the respective state FHA headquarters for immediate follow up.

We at WNAX are hopeful that through your good circulation you can brief fellow broadcasters about this FHA "Special Events" program which we feel will be really beneficial to our vast rural area.

HARRIS AND RATING SERVICES—CAT AND MOUSE?

The first week of the House Commerce Investigations subcommittee rating hearings was distinguished chiefly by promises of things to come. Always unpredictable chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) appeared to be laying groundwork in his usual mysterious fashion.

This groundwork, according to broad hints, might build into a full-scale effort to embarrass the rating services. Scheduled for this week were five full days of hearings, with the services the only witnesses. The usual course of Harris hearings involves opening with hints of mighty revelations to come. Then preliminary witnesses who establish little. Finally, Harris puts those he regards as culprits on the carpet and explodes whatever he has.

Characteristically, Harris refused to be pinned down on specifics. Also characteristically, Harris dropped hints that he had examples of rating shortcomings to offer when the time comes. The time will come this week—if ever. Thus far, however, Harris has usually delivered on such promises.

Rep. William Springer (R., Ill.) also seemed to drop a hint of this type. He asked a network witness whether his confidence in Nielsen would be shaken “if these hearings prove Nielsen doesn’t do what it says it does.”

Major significance of the first week was by all odds development of evidence that the ratings will be under two guns. FTC chairman Paul Rand Dixon said the committee disputed. Network radio testimony generally held ratings unfair to medium by not measuring portable and car listening.

All tv witnesses were asked about government regulation of ratings. All, except NAB’s LeRoy Collins who said only as a last resort, rejected regulation flatly.

Radio and tv generally agreed ratings do have shortcomings, but are a needed tool.

Network heads testifying were ABC’s Thomas W. Moore, CBS’ James T. Aubrey and NBC’s Walter Scott.
Thompson resigns Pittsburgh Plate Glass account

In major agency shift of the week, J. Walter Thompson resigned Pittsburgh Plate Glass account. Thompson had glass part of Pittsburgh. Maxon has had paint and color divisions which sponsor Brinkley show. Thompson had account for two years, opened Pittsburgh office to service. Walter Prior, who has headed office, will move to New York. Walter McGreevy named new manager.

"Price Is Right" moves to ABC TV this fall

In major program shift of the week, ABC TV acquired "The Price Is Right" for day and night schedules this fall. The Bill Cullen NBC TV fixture for seven years will continue in the daytime 11 a.m. slot on ABC TV, starting 9 Sept. with nighttime position to be announced. ABC TV has also made a daytime change, effective 1 April, when "General Hospital," will start week-days at 1 p.m. Show is almost sold out with American Chicle, Campbell Soup, General Mills, Gillette, Golden Grain, S. C. Johnson, Nabisco, Standard Brands, Whitehall as sponsors.

Robert H. Alter has been elevated to vice president, national sales for the Radio Advertising Bureau, a new position, by Edmund Bunker, who took over as RAB president 1 March. Alter had headed national sales as director of key account sales. Bunker was on the move in other directions also, speaking in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. Bunker proposed an eight-point credo for professional radio salesmen.

Next Sunday, St. Patrick’s Day, March 17, station WWLP. Channel 22, will celebrate its Tenth Anniversary on the air.

Much water has rushed over the dam since we first threw the switch back in those dim, disastrous days when running a UHF television station profitably was akin to trying to empty the Atlantic with a sieve. Experience, to quote the sages, is the best teacher. Sometimes it’s a bitter and frustrating teacher but it’s still the best teacher. Many changes have occurred in our decade on the air and with each change, each new experience and each new effort, WWLP and its staff has added immeasurably to its stature.

WWLP and its sister stations WRLP, Winchester, N. H., and WWOR, Worcester, Mass., have been privileged to be in the forefront of one of the most dynamic eras in the communications field. Our list of firsts include many outstanding ones and we are proud of our efforts and achievements.

We are proud that our fight for an equitable and truly competitive national television service has borne fruit and, we hope, will eventually result in an even greater communications evolution in national TV service than the original development of television.

We are proud to have been one of the first stations in the country to editorialize in the interest of the community we serve—we are proud of our programing efforts on behalf of our local citizens—proud that in our ten years of operation we have had to expand our facilities tenfold—we are proud that we can offer the finest facilities and equipment for both our advertisers and our community—we are proud of our service shows, particularly our “At Home With Kitty” program which has become an institution to the families in the community we serve.

We are proud of the image of WWLP as a dynamic, progressive and effective entertainment, educational and advertising medium. we prize highly the comment of New York advertising executive who called us “the best UHF operation in the country.”

But more than anything else, we are proud of our staff, of the many people who have stayed with us through the bitter as well as the pleasant experiences—who have devoted their services over and above the routine requirements and who have been so important in the emergence of WWLP and its sister stations as outstanding examples of the television industry contributions to the American way of life.

We hope that on our 20th Anniversary, St. Patrick’s Day, March 17, 1973, our contributions will have been multiplied twenty-fold.

GO AHEAD, DOLLY IN

By Arthur J. Bellaire

It may come as a large-size shock to his fellow Rutgers alumni and other intimate cronies, but the nearsighted Mister Magoo, who happens to be entering his fourth record-breaking year as a General Electric TV light bulb salesman, is not really nearsighted.

Psychologists who have analyzed him and college students who have written theses about him agree that most of what Quincy would normally see at a distance he knows in advance he is not going to like. So he squints it away. And just to confirm, Magoo can infrequently be caught opening his eyes wide for a split second to enjoy a sight really worth seeing.

Bumbler or not, Magoo lives in a world of closeups and he lives a very happy life indeed.

Whether there is a parallel between his habits and those of television commercial viewers or not, I should like to draw one. More and more creative people are daring to tell their story in closeup lately and I like what I see. Unlike Magoo, who can sort of edit what he "sees" (he still thinks his cat Bowser is a dog), I have to take everything at face value and I still like what I see.

What could be more dull than a car battery? The Autolite battery on television fills the screen, then exposes its inards and a calm voice-over with new, electronic sounds in counterpoint, proceeds to tell a dramatically fascinating basic competitive story.

What could be more blah than a dish of dog food? Gravy Train keeps it tight to the camera, allowing only a big dog's snoot and some baby chicks to climb all over it as it makes its own gravy. No looking away here.

What could be flatter than a bath mat full-screen? Rubbermaid goes "dropl dropl dropl dropl" as the suction cups are pulled away from the bottom of the bathtub. That's demonstration—right in your face.

Network TV's selling season has moved four to six weeks ahead of last year, could be locked up by early April.

Many major advertisers have nearly completed their buying. Among buys for 1963-64, are several of interest: American Motors on Danny Kaye and Travelers Insurance on CBS Reports. American, a heavy newspaper user, is coming back to regular use of network TV, after an absence of many years. Travelers, which had used golf tournaments, has bought two-thirds of CBS Reports.

Despite quick pace, many millions remain outside the fold.

Ford is practically complete, with some placements still expected. But General Motors, Colgate, Best Foods, General Mills, Miles and Menley & James, among others, still have incomplete schedules.

And a very lengthy list of advertisers, are still looking, among those network users this season. These include Armour, Block Drug, Beecham, American Chicle (which placed an order with NBC), Carter, General Electric, Mead Johnson, Goodrich, Mobile Oil, Pepsi Cola, Norwich, Studebaker, Vick, Schick, Sunbeam, Staley and Revlon, among many more.

Alcoa, which had been on ABC TV, is understood to be placing an order for the NBC News half hour shows. Campbell Soup, which renewed Lassie, has also placed part of its budget for CBS TV daytime.

Radio advertisers are finding off-beat approaches useful.

Englander Company has turned to jazz to sell mattresses, running schedules in 14 major markets initially, with other schedules to be added later. Jazz artist Ken Nordine handles the commercials and developed the music.

Union Carbide will soon try a new approach, by not selling its Eveready batteries. Company's non-commercial effort will be to promote the use of portables which can be carried from room to room in the home. NAB and RAB will cooperate in the venture.

The birth of "Pebbles Flintstone" has proved to be an audience-builder for The Flintstones on ABC TV.

The event was widely heralded, with a contest to predict the weight. The Nielsen 30-market ratings for the two weeks before and for the birthday, February 22, showed this pattern:

Can 50% of Fortune Magazine's readers define what national spot television is?

Halsey Barrett of Katz, who's been touring the country with the rep's new presentation "Launching a New Product," has made a bet at the outset of each talk that they can't. So far, he's had no takers.
Success of the Coronation Street serial on British evening television is convincing many American advertisers that they should do likewise.

If plans materialize, be prepared for a flood of nighttime dramatic serials. What is certain, however, is that all three networks, before long, will be hip-deep in daytime serials.

Speaking of Coronation Street, it is Britain's top television feature and considered a must attraction from barmaids to upper strata socialites.

Television may have a formula for success in the continuing criticism and investigations taking place.

The medium stays in the news, for better or for worse—which may have a lot to do with the fact that people view more than ever before.

A new Nielsen report shows January 1963 viewing at an all-time high—6 hours and 14 minutes daily for the average U.S. television home. This is the highest ever recorded for any month. Here are viewing levels since 1958:

What J. Walter Thompson's Norman H. Strouse termed "strange, unexplainable decision" by agency client which has been with JWT for more than a quarter-century provided Strouse with a springboard for tongue-in-cheek agency memo last week.

Situation revolves around Mrs. S. Fenelon-Young, who's president of W. F. Young, Inc., manufacturers of Absorbine and Absorbine Jr. Stating no reasons for her decision, Mrs. Young wrote JWT that she was yanking the $2 million account, and switching to Ted Gotthelf Associates.

Strouse contacted Wilbur F. Young III, the drug firm's executive vice president and the man who ordinarily handles "all advertising and marketing matters." Young had no idea why his aunt had fired JWT.

Said Strouse in his memo: "A peremptory action such as this is an anachronism in the advertising business today. We can only accept philosophically what is impossible to understand rationally."

Blow to JWT, however, was considerably softened by the fact that the giant agency has been named to handle two new Alberto-Culver brands, one of which may be A-C's new anti-dandruff shampoo, Subdue. A-C budget of $37 million (more than 90% in tv) is currently split between Compton and BBDO, but JWT now has a foot in an important billings door.
Kenyon & Eckhardt has changed its commercial production teams in a move designed to produce "excellence." Formerly, the agency had a writer-art director-producer group. Now, K & E has eliminated one step to bring about eight two-man teams. Writer now works with an art director-producer.

When syndicators and film distibs gather in Chicago next month (on a separate-but-equal platform near the NAB convention) the main interest will be how much new material is offered over and above the staple fare of network re-runs.

There won't be much. In fact, station-men themselves are likely to be peddling more new programing than the syndication outfits. Reason is the increasing group involvement in production (see page 31), which is also leading the groups into outside distribution.

Examples: Transcontinent's Zoorama, originated in San Diego; now running in several sizeable markets—including New York—and also overseas (via CBS Films). Storer has its 130-hour series, Divorce Court, spread well across the country (it was one of the first programs ever syndicated on tape) and the group's program-sales subsidiary is finding outlets for B'Wana Don and Communism R.M.E.—both produced originally for Storer's own stations.

Westinghouse currently is leading the field, having placed Steve Allen in 28 markets (excluding WBC outlets)—and there's strong probability of a daytime show from Hollywood for the new season.

At least one major syndicator has covered its bet in this growing market: Trans-Lux organized cooperative program pool; has seen offshoot TAC go from 12 to 50 subscribers in one season and looks for 75-station lineup by year's end.

Reaction to demand by Colgate's David Mahoney for network guaranteed circulation (page 36) varied. Some agencies feel guarantees will come into being eventually, noting that on occasions they have been given in one form or another in past as incentive to advertisers. Networks don't go for the idea. "We're not in the business to guarantee circulation," said one executive.

Video tape enthusiasts continue to cite instances where tape competes more-or-less successfully with film in commercials.

Commercial used in General Electric's True series late last month (Agency: BBDO) was a tape job which used 30 different scenes in a single commercial. Trick was done through the use of "Editec" equipment which allowed the commercial to be shot, by Al DeCaprio, in what amounts to film technique.

Says DeCaprio of Editec: "This development now makes it possible to splice on the exact frame, as in film, and is regarded as the most important development for commercials since the innovation of video tape."

Not long ago, MGM Telestudios announced new "Gemini" technique, whereby film is shot of tape commercial by twin-mount camera, delivering 16mm film version which has more crispness and clarity for spot tv use than kinescopes made from tape.
One group which may not welcome the eventual return of newspapers to New York is supermarkets.

Most supermarket operators say they’ve done well during the strike. And if they’ve suffered any losses, reduced advertising expenditures have more than made up the difference. Supermarkets are understood to have used little in the way of supplementary air-media advertising.

“Dropout Compensator” for video tape, developed by 3M, made its East Coast debut last week.

Reportedly, the new advance will correct defects and clean up tape, giving video recording a sizable jump toward catching up with long-established film.

New device eliminates dropouts in video tape playback by substituting previous electronic scanning line for the line that has defects. Dropout Compensators have already been installed in several stations throughout the country. Ed Walsh of Mincom, a division of 3M, reports orders are coming in fast from coast to coast.

Dropouts may be caused by dirt, excessive use, or careless handling which can interfere with the head-to-tape contact. They occasionally appear on the tv screen as small random horizontal flashes, as opposed to film defects which are usually vertical disturbances.

Don Collins, chief engineer at Videotape Center, says the Compensator will assure super or composite tapes whenever there is any Intersync, Gensync, or Genlock mixing. He also sees it as improving picture quality of transfer film made from video tape.

Children’s shows have become major attractions around Saturday noon hour on ABC TV.

The first February Nielsen gives ABC TV shows from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. a 35.8 share of audience and nearly five million homes in the average minute. January ARB shows the five shows average 1.62 children viewers per set and eight million children viewers per minute.

Much radio-tv industry attention is being focussed on Washington this week due to simultaneous probes going on there.

Biggest attraction is broadcast ratings hearings being staged by Chairman Oren Harris of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce through Harris’ Special Subcommittee on Investigations. (For news of first week’s hearings, see Sponsor-Week.)

Also drawing attention is Chairman Emmanuel Celler of the House Committee on the Judiciary, who starts a probe of concentration of ownership of news media before his Antitrust Subcommittee on 13 March.

Additionally, Michigan’s Senator Philip A. Hart, chairman of Special Subcommittee, has been taking testimony on Hart’s pet project, a “truth in packaging” bill. And, FCC will hold an informal public session 12 March to hear opinions on UHF tv from interested parties.

It should be a swinging week in the nation’s capital.
Closest to the Dallas, Ft. Worth market. Indicative of the very special way children (and their approving mothers) think of Jerry Haynes. He’s WFAA-TV's “Mr. Peppermint,” now in his 14th year of making big sponsors and little viewers happy. He’s one more reason why AA-TV is closest to the Dallas, Ft. Worth market.
These shipping orders—they're getting longer and longer. So I calls up the Traffic Manager and says, "Look, old buddy, what goes with the shipping sheets?" He tells me that ever since the ratings came out, stations are ordering up these Warner Bros. TV shows like they was the only ones around. "No wonder," he says. "Maverick's right up there among the top ten off-network shows in markets like Los Angeles, Sacramento, Baltimore, Dallas-Fort Worth, Tampa, Indianapolis and others. Shows like Surfside 6, The Roaring 20's and Bourbon Street Beat are reaching more homes in many markets than network competition—in prime time yet." Then he gives me the back-buster. It's gonna be even worse when the March ratings show what that western strip—Maverick, Bronco, and Sugarfoot—does. Brother... do I hate ratings!

Smaller ad agencies are making greater use of broadcast media

Members of League of Ad Agencies now place 25% of billing in radio/tv

The unmistakable impression gained by a SPONSOR survey of the smaller advertising agencies is that they are today making increased use of broadcast media, although a goodly number of little agencies still carry a torch, albeit flickering, for print media.

At the same time, small agencies continue to proliferate like green stamps, but to date they pose no grim threat to J. Walter Thompson with its $120,000,000 billings, give or take a grand or two. Time and again, one sees scintillating examples of creative and effective media mixes emerging from the small agencies. Campaigns that make consumers look, listen and buy.

According to the Bureau of Census, there are some 1,200 advertising agencies in the United States. Many of these agencies are “no payroll” outfits, so to speak, but, by and large, they are dedicated triple-threaters bent on creating hefty demands for their low-budget clients’ products or services.

or tackle, whatever the play calls for. Furthermore, he’s got to be able to fill in, when necessary, at nearly any position on the team.”

To counsel the small agencies, a number of associations have

Smaller agency staffers plot television campaign
Typical of smaller agencies making increased use of broadcast media is Venet Advertising. Working on the “Care” account, a wash-and-wear all-purpose bleach, are Gene Sullivan, media director; Henrietta Lerner, television production; Larry Spinner, copy chief; Jerry Freize, executive art director; Zal Venet, president; and Herman Myers, account executive

The notable difference, in the broadcast era, between the big agency and the little fellow, as one expert put it, is the number of individuals involved in agency operations. Lowe Runkle of Lowe Runkle Co., a small 4A Oklahoma City agency, put it graphically when he said:

“In the big agency, the marketing research, media research, media buying, copy writing, radio, television and so on down the line are all done by specialists who have their own sphere of operation ... whereas in the small agency, most of these functions are performed by one over-worked guy. He’s got to be able to run with the ball, pass it, kick it, block sprung up, among them the League of Advertising Agencies. In recent years, the LAA went through various ups and downs with a resultant drop in the membership rolls.

Membership drive on. Under the executive secretaryship of Claude Bolser, however, the League of Advertising Agencies, currently is undergoing a drastic transformation. The wave of agency resignations from the management association has been halted and a vigorous nationwide membership drive launched. The organization, membership of 100 about seven years old, had a record years ago. Today its membership hovers around 50 and Bolser is con-

Not scared by big ones
Irwin Zlowe, pres. of Zlowe Co. Inc., says smaller agencies frequently outperform giant agencies in time buying Membership in the LAA is open to all agencies in sound financial position. Moreover, they must have adequate facilities to meet their professional responsibilities. Advantages of LAA membership are many, according to Bolser.

With the arrival of Bolser, it marks the first genuine attempt to adrenalinize the activities of the LAA. Since his arrival last year, the LAA has made many improvements, including the revival of significant manual inserts and revival of the news letter in a new format with a new editorial policy. The LAA is also launching a low-cost, outside New York membership campaign and has instituted a series of productive round table conferences for New York agency-based members.

Secretary, Myron Jonas, Myron Jonas Co.; treasurer, Ysobel Sandler, Sandler Advertising. The governors are William J. Barber, Ben Bliss, Charles J. Charney, Mel Mohr, Nat Roth, Joseph I. Sonnenreich, Karl Thall and William Weltman.

The LAA has also instituted several new advisory services for its members, Bolser told sponsor, such as insurance, production, research, and, more significantly, radio and television. The fact that the LAA has decided to provide a radio/TV advisory service, indicates that broadcast media is indeed beginning to play a more meaningful part in the billing picture of smaller advertising agencies.

$54 million billed. Bolser told sponsor that over $54 million is currently billed by the 51 member agencies of the LAA and that approximately 25% of this sum is going into radio/TV and, in all probability, the figure should rise considerably in the near future.

Bolser, who received his M.A. in advertising back in 1916 (one of the first in the land), was advertising and sales promotion head for several large firms, professor of advertising in a number of universities and a committee member in five national advertising associations.

Said Bolser in summing up the advertising scene today as it impinges on radio/TV: "The scene is almost kaleidoscopic in new agencies entering the action; in mergers of young and longer established agencies; in expansion of agency activities and services; in the introduction of new and, sometimes startling, media and methods. . . . There was much hue and cry among print and other media when radio stepped into the arena. One even heard gnashing of teeth when TV made its debut. But both new media have survived and developed in stature because each played an appealing and important new role. Much to the surprise of all spectators, the roles of other media did not diminish . . . print and other media have prospered along with radio and TV. And so it will probably ever be with new and qualified media playing their added roles."

Leonard Stein, former president of the LAA and head of the ad agency bearing his name, told sponsor that "despite a plague of newspaper strikes in Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, in other . . ." (Please turn to page 45)
Tv toy advertising no children’s game

Manufacturers face problem of saturation
Big companies maintain or increase tv budgets
Retailers complain television kills profits

The marketing of toys, as many toy manufacturers are discovering, is no game for children.

For all of the major toy companies, and many of the smaller ones, marketing is in many ways a synonym for television advertising. The toy industry is now investing between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 a year in television advertising, and most of the big manufacturers spend 90% or more of their annual budget in the medium. Why? Simply because television sells toys better than any medium, and in the past decade has brought unprecedented prosperity to the industry.

“Tv has been proven to be the closest thing to a perfect medium for toys,” said Arnold Bolker of the Toy Guidance Council. “The key to television is that it can demonstrate toys, and most toys need demonstration. In addition, a large part of a toy advertising is aimed at a market that can neither read nor write—pre-school children. These kids can’t be reached in newspapers or magazines. But on tv they can see the product and they can be sold.”

But the television game is getting rough for many toy manufacturers. The stakes are getting higher and the field is becoming crowded. The manufacturers are having to face up to new facts of life. These facts include:

- A new saturation of toy advertising in the limited hours of children’s viewing.
- Rising costs and increasing competition are putting heavy pressure on the smaller manufacturer.
- A growing restiveness among retailers who claim that tv toy advertising is cutting down on their profits.

The saturation of toy advertising means “that many toys just don’t pay off on television any more,” said Henry Orenstein, president of the DeLuxe Reading Corp., a major manufacturer that distributes its toys through supermarkets. “A lot of people lost money on tv last year. When competition was less intense, almost any toy paid off with television advertising. Now it has to be the right toy with a good commercial. There certainly will be fewer toys advertised from now on.”

Toy advertising saturation is basically a problem of too many buyers for a product in short supply. The product consists of relatively few children’s programs in “prime children’s time”—Saturday morning and early evening hours on weekdays. Moreover, most of the demand for tv time is concentrated in the period before Christmas when a large majority of annual toy sales are made.

The problem has been aggravated by the fact that in many areas, local toy jobbers have bought up all available children’s time. Many of these jobbers demanded that a manufacturer buy tv time (sometimes at inflated rates) before they place orders for his toys. This meant that many smaller manufacturers were forced to take tv advertising they could not afford. It also meant that in many areas, children’s time was stuffed to the bursting point with toy commercials.

Do these facts of life indicate the honeymoon is over for toy advertising on television? For the smaller manufacturers they may, indeed, require a reappraisal and even a retrenchment of their tv efforts. For the big toy companies, however, the answer is an emphatic “no.” For many companies, the potential of tv probably is as great as ever.

Start made in 1955. There was virtually no toy advertising on television. That year a smallish manufacturer named Mattel scraped together $500,000 (a figure that approximated the company’s net worth) and invested the money in a campaign on an ABC network children’s program called Mickey Mouse Club. Ruth Handler, executive v.p. of Mattel, recalls that at the time the president of one of the largest toy manufacturers liked to tell everyone that his annual advertising budget was $320.

The results of the Mattel campaign now are a bright page in the checkered history of toy marketing. The commercials began to appear in October. By Thanksgiving giving the company was unable to fill reorders. In fiscal 1955, just prior to Mattel’s tv experiment, Mattel’s sales were under $6,000,000. In fiscal 1963, only eight years later, the company says its sales will be about $75,000,000.

This year Mattel’s tv budget will reach $6,500,000. Some 80% of the tv dollars will be in network compared to 60% last year, reflecting the company’s new “wall-to-wall” programming approach. This strategy calls for complete coverage of the important children’s viewing hours on Saturday morning with nine shows on all three networks for the full 52 weeks of the year. The company will support its network campaign with a heavy spot commitment, particularly around the peak Christmas season.

“One of the best things.” “Tv has been good to us,” Mrs. Han-wasing (Her sifiedpanies that have been turned in by the stations themselves. The increased children's promises."

Remco had been moving from its split position in network television, but this year it is reoring itself and increasing its spot commitment. It believes that spot will give it better results in the healthy economic areas surrounding major urban centers.

Ideal, another major toy manufacturer, will have 52 weeks of television advertising this year for the first time. Ideal's total tv budget will be up 15% to $3,450,000 and its network spending will be up 20%.

Louis Marx & Co., one of the largest toy companies, also is moving heavily into network television.

Toy fair starts today. Marx's 1962 tv budget was well in excess of $2,000,000. The 1963 budget will at least equal that, but firm plans will not be made until after the toy fair, which begins today (11 March). The company's tv schedule will cover from 26 to 39 weeks of the year. Marx tried a first quarter campaign for the first time last year and found it "very successful" for low priced items.

Of course, it is not only the giant toy companies who will continue to make profitable use of television. There still is room for the medium sized and even smaller companies who know how to use tv. Horsman Dolls, for example, will spend close to $500,000 in tv this year. "We have the right product for tv in our 'Thistle Cry-Baby Doll,'" said a company spokesman. "With the right product, the right commercial and the right price, television is ideal for toys."

To sum up, then, the television toy advertising situation stacks up like this:

Saturation of toy advertising together with increasing costs has presented new problems to the toy manufacturers. These problems may force some smaller companies out of the medium. The large toy companies, however, will continue to use tv as their chief, and in many cases only, advertising weapon. None of the major companies is reducing its tv budget this year and many of them are increasing it.

Seek better commercials. At the same time, these companies are trying new techniques in their television efforts. Many companies are making expanded use of network tv. A number of companies are using tv in more weeks of the year. There probably will be as many toy commercials on tv this year as there were last, but there will be fewer toys advertised and a general effort will be made to improve the quality of the commercials.

There is one more problem that continues to plague the toy manufacturers. That is the loud and concerted cries from retailers that tv toy advertising is hurting the retailer's profits. "Toys are traditionally used as "loss leaders" by retailers. In other words, the retailers sell the toys at a low price—sometimes as much as 30% below cost—to draw people into their stores.

Tv advertising, the retailers claim, is creating too much demand for some toys and making their losses too heavy to absorb. The Ftc regulation forbidding the naming of a price on the air, they say, has aggravated their woes by forcing prices even lower.

"Less than ten years ago, the retailers hailed television as a lifesaver," said Alvin R. Porte, account executive on Marx at Ted Bates. "Today they call tv a vampire sucking the life blood of profit out of them. But it is the retailers themselves who have created the problem."

Mrs. Handler sums up. Mattel's Mrs. Handler has some thoughts on the retailers' complaints. "We as manufacturers did our best to produce a good product, supported that product with sound merchandising and helped bring the customers into the stores. Some retailers knew how to take advantage of our merchandising and turned this increased traffic into profit. Others thought that price was king and emphasized price alone, ignoring good merchandising practices. These people got hurt. Those who used what we offered them constructively and aggressively profited. Those who ex-erised bad judgment committed different degrees of suicide."
Frozen show formats will be thawed by groups

- Station programmers vary the diet
- Group-owners' push toward big-time production
- Accent is midway between national and local

Buyers of tv time will have a new development to take into account in their plans for the coming season. It's the increasing amount of programing undertaken by multiple-station groups.

After polling major groups, sponsor finds production plans now being shaped call for an overall increase of about 50% above last year's level. There's big money involved (some of the budgets run anywhere from $500,000 to plus-$1 million), but a more significant fact is that over half the groups have corporate programing plans, and that several are entering this area for the first time in 1963-64.

The opportunity is being seized in different ways: The internal structure of each group plays a part in the evolution of these plans; they are further modified by the market problems of each station within each group, by the separate needs of affiliated and independent stations, and by basic policy considerations as to the desirability of a "group" identity individual station image.

The balancing of these claims means a virtual insurance that each group comes up with a different answer: Overall, however, there's such a wealth of activity that group programing can be safely announced as a strong trend.

Impact on sales. For television advertisers, the results may be neither immediate nor dramatic. But this trend will certainly have impact on the sales picture at all three levels of timebuying:
- Local advertisers will benefit from vehicles which are designed to attract the greatest community interest.
- Regional buyers may benefit from programing which bridges a gap between the purely local and the national, network offering.
- National marketers may find that the group programs are a strong ally to spot's traditional virtues of impact and flexibility, and that the combination will be another step toward pinpointing the precise audience the advertiser needs.

Sponsor's survey was related to (either) programing that's produced by a group for the use of member stations (or) individual station production which is consciously related to group needs.

The survey was not concerned with normal news and sports coverage, or community special-events, or to outstanding individual shows which wouldn't normally be seen outside their own market.

Here's a cross-section of the findings (much information was given in confidence and cannot be specifically attributed because of competitive pressures):—

At the station level, a typical example is KPHO-TV, Phoenix, which will produce five hours of special programing for use by itself and other stations in the Meredith group. Four of these hours will be slotted in prime time on KPNO; local clients will account for about half of the expected advertiser support; the five hours represents an exact 100% increase in special programing by the station, and is probably applicable to the group as a whole.

At the group level, RKO General is maturing its plans for at least 16 one-hour specials, plus a number of half-hours. Most of these will enjoy at least one prime-time screening; local ad support is expected to be about 60%, in addition to regional and national business.

Cooperative pool. As another example, each of the Storer stations is committed to producing at least one half-hour monthly in 1963-64; through the cooperative pool directed from Miami headquarters, each station will have theoretical access to a minimum of 30 hours' programming in the year.

Metropolitan will have up to a dozen group specials (retarded children; a bio of Joe Louis) plus regulars such as the Weekly Washington Report, a quarterly medical series, and the perennial Open End.

In New York's Time-Life building, the broadcast division is firming up its proposals for between four and six hours of special programing. This will be produced corporately, in addition to a strong effort by the individual stations. Production costs: Up to $60,000.

At the end of the scale is, inevitably, the Westinghouse Co., whose late-night show plus other ambitious projects will, in the new season, yield a staggering 637 hours of group tv programing, excluding all local station-produced shows.

Up and down the line, it's fair to say there's a strong urge to get stations and groups more deeply into the programing picture. Reasons are varied: a lot of activity is coming from the belief that groups per se can accomplish more than individual members.

Transcontinent, for example, does a show in San Diego on safety problems at the local airport; group HQ ensures that film material is made available from other stations to strengthen the local program, in turn giving it a potential for use in outside markets. At another level, Taft Broadcasting stirs up a cross-current information on community problems for editorializing; station comment is enriched by the knowledge of steps taken on similar problems by other cities served by Taft. Many other groups today are making fuller use of their existing facilities, to broaden the service given by each station.

Needs and opportunities. Some of the new programing evolves out of a peculiar local opportunity, and some is devised to fill a peculiar group need. RKO's WNAC, for example, recently drew on Boston's hospital and university complex for an authoritative picture of current medical research in that city; parts of the show (including open-heart and brain surgery sequences) may be made over into program which, stripped of purely local references, may become suitable for national exposure. In another way, an unusual opportunity is offered to Time-Life through its world-wide corps of correspondents; the broadcast division now is exploring the best way to exploit this advantage for its stations.

Fulfillment of a group need is strikingly illustrated by the Westinghouse late-night show. It's about 3½ years since a WBC planning committee began looking for potential trouble-spots in the group schedule; the outstanding conclusion was that supply of feature-film could be drying up, and the station's late-night slots could consequently run into trouble.

The result was initiation of Mike Wallace's PM East & West, (which didn't make money) and the Steve Allen show, (which now is running in the black). Although WBC is turning a profit with Allen via sales to other stations, it's notable that the original impetus for this type of show came out of reasoned analysis of WBC's own market needs.

Feature-film shortage. To date, the single most important piece of leavening in the average station schedule has been the feature film. Conceived as a totality, rather than merely one of a series of episodes, and imbued with production values which equal the most ambitious network spectaculars, the feature film has provided the essential element of "difference" to offset and relieve the national program.

The end is in sight, however. Though one or two significant packages have yet to come into general circulation, television has nearly exhausted the 30 most productive years of Hollywood.

The search for new product already is leading the groups far afield: RKO, for example, recently signed with Joseph Levine (Hercules, Attila the Hun, and other muscular epics) to a contract which includes not only Levine's existing library, but also a number of features yet to be produced. But co-production of this kind is likely to be the exception rather than the rule; tv syndicators meantime are sitting pat in the knowledge that this situation cannot but work for their long-term advantage. (Seventeen distributors have signed for this year's exhibition, concurrent with the NAB convention in Chicago. It's the first time the distribs have mounted their own separate show, which connotes a certain bullishness, but it's thought unlikely that there'll be an important amount of new, original product available this season.)

Neither course really solves the problem: the amount of suitable foreign fare is even more restricted than Hollywood's production, and there are both financial and tactical reasons why the local market can't take an unlimited amount of network fare.

Favorable climate. It's into this vacuum that the groups' own programming resources are being attracted. Obviously, even the biggest corporations aren't going to suddenly fill their screens with a home-grown product, but the situation is extremely favorable to the more modest proposals which their programers are offering to management.

Radio listeners show strong preferences for music, but a significantly large number have a primary interest in talk on radio. This finding, and several hundred additional facts, comments, and observations on the status of radio today, are contained in a new status report on the medium prepared by CBS Radio Spot Sales.

The presentation of the seminar has already been made to advertisers and agencies in a number of key markets. Maurie Webster, vice president and general manager, CBS Radio Spot Sales, gives this reason for the comprehensive seminar, which will soon be available in written form: "It was our feeling that the broad subject of radio—what it is and how to use it—had to be put into a new prospective for agencies and clients. Some of the information covered has been made known before, however much of it is from special studies that have been conducted in the past two years. Radio's story is a strong one, as I believe this report shows."

Listener programming preferences, determined in a CBS Radio study conducted by Motivation Analysis, showed 34% had a predominant preference for talk, while 63% of those surveyed preferred music. Miscellaneous rated 3% Within the music bracket, 10% liked popular, 16% classical and semi-classical, and 7% rock 'n' roll. The report notes: "That they like music is not surprising. But more significant is the finding that one-third of all listeners prefer programming other than music. And this is the neglected audience, passed over by those stations which concentrate on musical programming."

Taking off with the question "Radio—what is it?" the report covers all phases of radio's workings from audience to station organization to the role of weather. Highlights of the report, selected by sponsor, are these:

Radio listening is up. Media hours for radio were up 6.1% in

More radios than people. Radio sets in use total 200 million against only 187 million Americans.

Radios ARE everywhere. R. H. Bruskin study on set location shows 65.6% of bedrooms have sets; 55.8% of kitchens; 40.2% of living rooms; dens 13.8%; dining rooms 9.6%; basements 7.4%; bathrooms 3.9%, and other rooms 12.5%. "But remember, in addition to in-home listening, 80% of all automobiles are equipped with radios," says the CBS Radio Spot Sales report.

Portables 41% share. A study by A. C. Nielsen shows auto and battery-owned sets are listened to 8 hours and 24 minutes per week per radio home, while line cord set listening is 12:12. Line cord listening accounts for only 50% of the total estimated hours of radio usage per home per week. This has been the basis for radio audience measurement reports.

Station coverage. "The disparity of coverage between am stations can be as sharp as 1260:1 ... am outputs range from 250 watts to 50,000 watts ... the am broadcast band extends from 550 kc to 1600 kc. Low frequencies are the most sought-after, because they cover a greater area than the higher frequencies."

Music listening. Most people listen to music as background. Among listeners preferring talk-music programs, 84% listen as background, 42% to hum and sing to, 39% with attention. Among those preferring classical and semi-classical it is 81% for background, 40% to hum and sing to, and 43% with attention. In the popular music preference group, 85% listen for background, 19% to hum and sing to, and 21% with attention. Fewest express attentive listening in the popular music group.

Newscasts, how long? "Studies tell us that listeners who prefer music resent interruptions by newscasts more than two to five minutes long. Conversely, those who turn to radio for companionship and information like the longer newscasts. The background music listener is inclined to resent a long interruption for news reporting, possibly because he is unwilling to give it the attention it demands."

Networks' role. It's linked by phone lines, furnishes shows, network does selling, network pays stations. Advertiser values include single purchase, national coverage.

Why spot radio. Choice of markets, choice of stations, right time periods, localized message, local personalities, local back-up are cited by CBS Radio Spot Sales.

The bedroom is king among radio locations, with the kitchen and living room next, in that order. In addition to in-home locations radios are found in 80% of autos.
Network television has become too big a gamble. Odds against success have lengthened, and stakes have gotten too big, in the view of David J. Mahoney (left), executive vp of Colgate-Palmolive.

In the name of national advertisers, Mahoney demanded a guaranteed circulation in the keynote speech at this year's ANA TV Workshop, held in New York last week.

"We are required," said Mahoney, "to put good money on the line for long periods of time on unknown quantities with no assurances . . . the time has come for the television industry to adopt an Audit Bureau of Circulation technique and guarantee audiences.

"If a particular show does not deliver agreed-upon ratings and audiences, the advertiser should be offered additional time free of charge until the original levels are met. Other competing media provide such assurances."

Advertisers took all the risk, Mahoney contended, in backing new shows, with networks subsequently raising the price if the show turned into a winner. He claimed that Dr. Kildare had risen 73% in three seasons, with a corresponding 94% loss in efficiency. The removal of Perry Mason from Saturday to Thursday had been followed by higher costs, smaller audience, and 21% poorer efficiency. Mitch Miller, in a new slot, was allegedly giving 44% less to advertisers.

"The advertiser faces the dilemma," reported Mahoney, "of hoping his show will be a success; at the same time he is scared to death that if it is, he might not be able to afford it in the future.

"The only advertisers who can sleep well are those few who own controlling interests in successful shows. They can exert pressure on the networks for choice time periods and other advantages."

In addition to a guaranteed audience, Mahoney also suggested that the networks develop a pre-testing system for new shows (analogous to the theatrical out-of-town tryout), and also a "regional buy" for net programs to facilitate test-marketing of new products.

Tv spots give Hudson products important regional strength

- Hudson biggest tv advertiser in paper business
- Wrapper provides distinct product difference
- Gives products fashion which moves sales

One of the interesting phenomena of the post-war marketing age is the growing success of the regional brand.

And one of the prime factors in this growing success is spot tv. It enables a regional advertiser to make a big splash against the national giants in his own area.

Hudson Pulp & Paper Corp., is an example of how a regional advertiser can look like a giant through the medium of spot tv. Hudson’s markets are in the New England to Florida territory. Until late in the 1950s, the company’s income was derived primarily from industrial paper production. Its only consumer product was a paper napkin. Then it made the decision to market facial tissues, paper towels, and bathroom tissues as well.

“The advertising comes off with the wrapper!” says the glamorous model, the interior decorator, or the “voice over” as the wrap is removed from a box of Hudson Golden Showcase Facial Tissues in Hudson’s commercials.

Slip-off wrapper. This slip-off wrapper has been a Hudson “product difference” for three years. Its development was based on research that had shown that women were hiding tissue boxes in drawers, or buying expensive metal dispensers to hide the package. Hudson designed a package without a word on the box—merely a fleur de lis pattern. A box that could be left out in the open in any room, once the wrapper was removed.

The point was an eminently demonstrable one. Hudson and its agency, Grey Advertising, Inc., decided to go strong on television.

“We chose spots, both daytime and nighttime, for utmost flexibility and ability to concentrate where distribution is most important,” says Richard B. Moller, Hudson’s vice president for consumer products.

During these last three years, Hudson has been putting about 75% of its media budget into tv. In 1963, Hudson’s increased total ad budget includes an 87% allocation for local tv.

That Hudson’s sales message was effective was obvious not only from its sales of Golden Showcase, but also from the fact that competition redesigned their own packages to minimize the print. (They did not, however, use the overwrap, which remains a Hudson marketing area exclusive.) The overwrap concept, by the way, has been extended by Hudson into its paper napkins now called Showcase Napkins.

Towels too. Paper towels were another strong competitive area in which Hudson proved the value of its tv approach. With a new product, and the battle cry of “spongeability” from the mouth of comediene Alice Pearce, Hudson moved in one year to a sizeable share of the paper-towel market. Adding Giant Towels to its list in 1962, sales increases continued.

Bathroom Tissue, a television problem, received special commercial treatment from Hudson. A combination of tv spots, two-color newspaper ads, plus some regional magazine buys, put Hudson Bathroom Tissue sales at an all-time high in 1962.

“We brought out bold colors last year,” says Moller, “and put some life into the toilet tissue business. We found that housewives like to coordinate their colors in the bathroom, as well as their other rooms. That’s why they reached for our new colors—as well as the old ones.”

As a result of Hudson’s believing so completely in the power of television advertising to move its product, its sales meetings are given over in large part to educating salesmen on how to discuss advertising with their chain buyers.

First in its markets. On the premise that buyers understand the proved sales effect of heavy advertising, Hudson salesmen, armed with reach and frequency figures, explain how, in each area, Hudson is the biggest TV advertiser in the paper business. During January, as a matter of fact, company and agency executives could find only one other brand of any kind spending more money in Hudson markets on spot.

"Because we’re a regional company,” says Moller, "buyers may not realize we can put heavier weight into a single market than our competition. That’s the advantage of being able to move fast and not have to worry about national problems. We know our markets and we watch them carefully. We spend a lot of time working with Grey on media analysis and station selection. It pays.” When Hudson went into its spring display promotion “Garden of Color,” it took advantage of having spots on Maggi McNellis’ “Leave It to the Girls” show. Maggi taped a special commercial standing in front of a supermarket display to make sure her fans looked for it when they shopped. The commercial also helped the salesmen push the display with their buyers.

Tissue sales up. The Hudson Pulp and Paper Corporation annual report stated that tissue business was good on all fronts—higher sales, higher market share, and higher earnings.

Competition and change are as much a part of the tissue business as much-talked-about automobiles or clothing. The company competes for the favor and attention of buyers, especially housewives, in style, fashion, utility, new features and product imagery, as well as price. The company believes strongly in knowing the customer—her thinking, her likes, her attitudes, her choices, her characteristics, her motivations.

Fashion. Styling, as well as usefulness, is of major importance to Hudson. In addition, the company tries to keep the product within the budgets of most income groups. These advantages are relayed to the consumer market via TV, in order to pre-sell the product, and also, to make the retailer aware of the value in featuring the item.

The company believes in research on market, product, and copy. As a result, it always has several tests in the field. Every commercial is measured against a strict set of objectives. New product development is an essential and continuing activity.

The results:

Less than 15 years ago, consumer products was a small part of the Hudson operation, primarily an industrial producer of Kraft, gummed tapes, grocery bags and sacks, and the like. Today, the company, reporting about $80 million of sales in all divisions, draws a large portion of its profit and revenue from consumer products. In the last three years alone, sales have increased 35%.

"And,” concluded Moller, "we’ve just begun to scratch the surface of consumer needs in the paper field. It’s exciting, creative—and profitable. We’re counting on television to keep it growing. That’s why, this year, we upped our budget to considerably more than we’ve ever spent before: almost 100% more, in fact.”

"Attila" was ranked No. 1 in its time period (7:30-9:00 P.M.) on WOR-TV's "The Big Preview." On Friday, February 23rd, "Attila" achieved a 24.7 average quarter hour rating according to the Nielsen Station Index. It had 31.5% share of audience in the New York Metropolitan Area.

This is the second of the thirty-three motion pictures purchased by WOR-TV, Channel 9 from Embassy Pictures. The first, "Hercules," smashed all opposition in racking up the all-time rating high on WOR-TV.
The recent media department upheaval at OBM (New York) which accounted for the mass exodus there of a few buyers, including long-time Ann Jantowicz (See Timebuyer's Corner, 25 February), also brought in a few new faces. Among them: J. Walter Thompson's Norm Goloskin and Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample's Doug Flynn. Norm, who bought on the Ford account at JWT, will be media buyer on Bristol Myers and Lever Bros. at OBM. Doug, on the other hand, is still without an account assignment. Both start at OBM today, 11 March.

It's true! Ellington's (New York) media director, Dan Kane, as reported here last week, is getting ready to quit the agency, although he isn't about to divulge future plans.

In other agency action: At SSC&B (New York) two recent additions to the buying staff are getting into the real swing of things there. The duo: Stu Hinkel and Bill Birkbeck. Stu is assistant media director on Lever Bros., while Bill is associate media director on such accounts as Pall Mall and Noxzema.

And in our you-never-can-tell-what-buyers-will-do-in-their-spare-time-dept.: Take Benton & Bowles' (New York) Bob Gorby, for example. Right now, he's exhibiting his skill at home decoration by painting (all by himself, yet) his new apartment. And if you're interested in the color of his new pad, we suggest you examine the current color of his fingernails.

The Corner pays its respects this week to Zlowe's (New York) senior buyer, Arthur Edelstein. Art, who buys on such accounts as Deluxe Reading Toys, Dannon Yogurt, and Sealy Mattress, is undoubtedly one of the most traveled timebuyers in the Gotham buying arena. Last year, for example, in the course of his buying chores, Art chalked up better than 30,000 miles visiting markets, setting up schedules and locking up time periods. Brooklyn born, Art first got his feet wet in the ad business back in 1958 as an estimator at Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample. He was soon moved up to assistant buyer there on the Falstaff Beer account. After two years with D-F-S, Art joined Grey Advertising where he was exposed to the intricacies involved in all media buying on some 19 different accounts. Among them: P&G, Greyhound, Mennen, Revlon, Chock Full 'O Nuts, Ideal Toys and Lionel Trains. Art, who believes in sticking real close to his work (he moved from Brooklyn recently to a Manhattan apartment just four blocks from his office) is still a bachelor. He was graduated from New York University with a degree in journalism, attended Miami University and Mexico City College. He also managed somehow to find the time to spend two years (1952-54) in the service of the United States Navy.

Newlyweds returned to the winter scene: Donahue & Coe's (New York) Pete Schulte and his bride, the former Genevieve Aubry, are now back in chilly New York after spending their honeymoon in sun-drenched Puerto Rico. We extend our best wishes for a wonderful future!

Notes from Park Avenue: Foote, Cone & Belding's (New York) Pete Bardach tells us that media supervisor Ed Fonte, who joined the agency last month, will advance to associate media director before long. Ed buys for General Foods, was formerly with SSC&B New York.

The moving man cometh: The Ides of March will find the Street & Finney organization getting settled in new quarters at 535 Fifth Avenue. Good timing for a clear view of the St. Patrick's Day Parade, S&F-ers.

The good word from Peerless Advertising (New York) is that H. M. (Mike) LaTerre has been appointed executive vice president. Mike was once a buyer at J. Walter Thompson, and supervisor at Ogilvy, Benson & Mather.

More from Peerless: consensus of knowledgeable reps-around-town is that Peerless has gathered more than its share of pulchritude with buyers Joyce Lane and Lee Kaye on staff.

Basic facts and figures on television and radio

Education and Television

"The People Look at Television," the new study of viewers' attitudes to television, presents findings which if combined with other available data, suggests interesting possibilities for future programming. Author Gary A. Steiner holds that education goes up, the public seeks more information programs, less entertainment; would rather see more specials and less regular programs; that viewing hours tend to decrease as education rises (sponsor 25 February). In many respects, rising income also affects peoples attitudes toward tv, sometimes favorably, other times unfavorably.

Recently completed studies by J. Walter Thompson on educational levels may therefore be considered of great interest for their potential affect on viewing in the years ahead. High school graduates now add up to half of the population and will be 58% of total adults over 20 by 1973.

Even more phenomenal is projected college enrollment in the next ten years. J. Walter Thompson predicts a 105% increase by 1972.

An estimated 7.6 million will be in college by 1972. High school enrollment is also on the rise, up an estimated 41% in the next decade. All together, some 62.8 million will be in school by 1972, more than double the 30.3 million in school in 1950, and 32% above the 47.7 million in school in 1961.

SMALLER AGENCIES

cities, and now in New York, the air media seem to have experienced a normal rather than a startling increase in time sales."

Among the smaller and medium size agencies comprising the LAA membership, there has been an increasing use of both local and area radio and tv because of the large number of retail and territorial accounts serviced by members, Stein noted. He also said that "some of the experiences of member agencies, where radio and tv have been successful, indicate these media will continue in schedules with a probable reduction of some print media space."

Buy radio/tv well. Small agencies buy broadcast media—and they buy it well, Mike Fabian, executive vice president of the March Advertising Agency, told sponsor. Fabian noted that size alone was no determinant, "for media selection obviously depends on the client's marketing needs."

The small agency, Fabian explained, doesn't have a staff or buying power of a large shop "but this is offset by the fact that account people, often agency principals themselves, get involved in buying, as well as planning."

The result, he thought, was a closer control of all the details and, most important, closer coordination between the buying and the vital sales and merchandising support.

"Media representatives, as a result, will often get a better briefing on the specific objectives of the campaign," Fabian continued. "All told, there's a tighter area of media responsibility, a better awareness all the way down the line of sales and marketing objectives. And being small, perhaps a greater incentive and feeling of pride in getting the most mileage out of every dollar spent."

No mystery, says Zlowe. Not all smaller agencies regard radio/tv with hesitation. One of the most creative and dynamic of the smaller agencies (a 4A member, in this instance) is The Zlowe Co., Inc. Irwin Zlowe, president of the agency, told sponsor that there's no mystery about radio/tv. He said smaller agencies, properly staffed, can frequently out-perform the giant agencies in the purchase of time, particularly spot, "because they move fast with a minimum of red tape."

"They can provide more than routine merchandising aids from stations and tailor the time buying to a client's needs, rather than operate under formula methods, because they are flexible and closer to the client's problem," Zlowe explained. "A knowledge of the markets, and the stations in those markets, plus personal contact with station personnel is important in doing an intelligent, effective advertising job. We have found that visits to stations around the country pay off in closer working arrangements to effect successful promotions. We have used both radio and tv effectively and profitably even when it was considerably smaller than it is now. As a result of first hand experience in this area, we have been invited to test-market products for several companies."

Personal and small. Like taxes and whiskies, small agencies will always be with us, and they will always play a conspicuous role in the nation's economy. As Marion Harper Jr., chairman of the 4As and chairman of the board and president of Interpublic, Inc., observed recently, the agency business, historically speaking, has been a personal business "and it also has been small."

Harper stressed that American business is "considerably dependent on the success of many small agencies." "While large agencies continue to grow and offer additional services, the number of small agencies has been increasing," Harper pointed out.

Harper cited statistics: number of agencies with billings of $5 million and over showed a five per cent increase from 1957 to 1961; simultaneously, there was a 27 per cent increase in number of agencies with billings under $5 million. He said that during the same period there was a 12 per cent gain in the number of agencies with billings of $10 million and over, compared to a 21 per cent gain in those with billings of less than $10 million.

It is clear that Harper and many of his top-ranking colleagues have a deep regard for the small agency operator. "Their enjoyment of business is likely to be the day-to-day excitement of the talented entrepreneur," is the way Harper expressed it recently. "Much of this satisfaction comes through the sale of an advertising program and through applause for good creative performance. Often they have not associated creativeness with the planning and building of a business over a given period. In this kind of creativeness, of course, there can be quite as much satisfaction as in any other."

The Interpublic chief also noted that small agencies display great strength in their upper echelons. A small agency, he observed, "holds a strong advantage in being able to offer a high level of personal service that its owners and partners provide." This "high level of personal service" that Harper spoke of was mentioned time and again by small agency owners. Sy Levy, president of March Advertising, Inc. said recently that the small agency will always have an important place in our economy. "We do a better job because we care more about the job we do," he explained. "A little bit of our hearts and souls are expended."

In the broadcast era there is, most assuredly, a place for the small agency and the nucleus of imaginative figures who head up such operations. Budd Getschal, president of the Getschal Company indicated to sponsor last week. "Is a big barber shop better than a small barber shop?" Getschal asked, answering his own question almost immediately. "Depends on who cuts your hair, doesn't it?"

Small agencies can outgun. Getschal said advertising involves a group working in established areas of effort. "When an advertising agency has each area manned, it's as big as it needs to be—its legs are long enough to reach from its hips to the ground," he observed. "It takes only one man to develop a sound media plan. And creating the effective commercial message based on a worthwhile exclusive benefit has meant and always will mean one man or woman practicing the lonely and singular agonies of ingenuity."

Small agencies who concentrate on regional advertising in their own backyards "can outgun, out-maneuver and outsell the outsized outsider" Gerschel exclaimed, adding that "a remote agency a thousand miles away has tough going trying to match the job which an on-the-scene, livewire agency does watching availabilitys, checking performances, pressing for merchandising, etc." He went on to say that "more and more prudent pennies and instant nickels are successfully battling polysaturated dol-lars."

"Industry is appreciating more and more the fact that when marketing requires regional selling offices those regional selling efforts require regional advertising support with local ad agency principals working side-by-side with regional management," Gerschel said. "The umbrella of national advertising stays over their heads while the overshoes of regional advertising keep their feet firmly on the ground in the broadcast era."

Salesmen in dual capacities. How does Louis E. Reinhold, new president of the League of Advertising Agencies and president of Richmond Advertising Service, an agency billing slightly over $1 million, view the persuasive powers of radio/television? He had a number of suggestions regarding sales departments of stations contacting small agencies.

"It is the hope of the smaller-sized agencies, which do not have specialized departments for radio/television, that broadcast media would offer more in the way of services to guide them toward proper planning and production," Reinhold told Sponsor. "I believe broadcast media require men who can serve in dual capacities both as time salesmen and production consultants. Broadcasters, I think, should be doing a better job indoctrinating smaller agencies in the values of their own media."

Approximately 30% of the Richmond Advertising Service business goes into various broadcast media, he said, adding that most of it is allocated to radio. "Broadcast media, however, represent a vital means of communication and therefore can not be overlooked when planning any program for a client," he concluded.

A past president of the League of Advertising Agencies, Alfred J. Siegel, president of Harold J. Siegel Co., told sponsor that small agencies are making constant use of broadcast media.

"Broadcast offers the small agen-cy great opportunities in two directions: First is profit because, unlike print, radio/television advertising technique indicates repetition of a limited number of commercials," Siegel observed. "Point two: it expands the creative department of the agency because, again, unlike print media, small agencies draw on outside producing companies and their creative departments to produce commercials."

The Siesel agency bills around $3.5 million but less than 10% of this sum currently goes into radio/television. Siegel said this figure would jump later this year. Siegel is currently on the board of governors of the LAA.

Ben B. Bliss, head of the Ben B. Bliss Co., an agency organized in 1946 and now billing in the region of $1 million, also said small agencies are making excellent use of broadcast media. "Very definitely," Bliss, a member of the LAA board of governors, said to sponsor. He noted that the smaller agencies have greater flexibility. "We work the country on an individual market basis conforming with the personalities and the requirements of the individual market," he told Sponsor.

More brain work. "Since the consumer reacts and acts at the point of sale, in a purely local purchase, marketing and advertising (which includes the proper utilization of radio/television) also must be geared to the appeals that will make local consumers respond," Bliss said.

Like other small agency opera-tors, Bliss was quick to point out that the small agency, because of its size, does not become ensnared in large staff media departments where the buyers are very remote from the markets in which they buy time. "Nor do we become involved with the mechanization of automation and computer thinking," Bliss said. "In other words, the individuals in the small agencies do more brain work. There is no substitute for an individual's judgment."

Fifty per cent of the Bliss billing goes into radio/television; mostly in radio.

For full selling impact for their clients, the small agencies can use broadcast effectively, Zal Venet, president of Venet Advertising Agency, Inc., Union, N. J., told Sponsor. Venet observed that too many times the only way the small agency considers broadcast, is as an afterthought. Said Venet: "For it is true that it is easier to make a print page up and place it. When pressed, many smaller agencies will admit that they understand the printed page better, and take its measure easier, than the 'mystery' of the airwaves, be they radio or television."

Venet and his colleagues insist that a smaller agency can use broadcast as effectively for sales results as print. He cited the case of Mrs. T's Frozen Pierogies, a frozen food specialty from Shenandoah, Pa., with a $5,000 budget for advertising. Venet bought a six-week campaign on WOR, New York. It proved "sensational" for several reasons, he said. The agency chose personalities and put the audience loyalties of such hardy names as Dorothy and Dick, Al and Dora McCann, Dr. Carlton Fredericks and others. Venet wrapped this up in a strong pre-sell kit and merchandised the spot with chain tag lines and request for a free package to listeners.

Venet said the pulling power of the advertising was so great that the offer had to be withdrawn after but two weeks. More than 20,000 coupon requests were received. One of the results was that distribution for the client was 93% of the market in a short time. "The results were so good because the combination of a strong broadcast buy and good print ads make a total selling tool for the client."

Venet's thinking is that small agencies must realize that total sell is necessary in today's marketing and a shop cannot ignore the media it does not understand. Said Venet, with emphasis: "If it doesn't, it had better get out and learn, so that it understands the entire media sell."

Lester Harrison, chairman of the board of Doner-Harrison, Inc., which bills about $5 million (23% in broadcast) told Sponsor that the progress and growth of his agency...
You believe it. You believe in it.

Who could be so square as to sell ice cream by letting a plate of it sit in front of the cruel camera for most of a minute? Sealtest does it, and you crave it because good photography makes it much more appetizing than do happy people eating it.

The Excedrin ECU technique grabs me so close I get a headache just watching it.

If this is a trend, let it come, for it offers enough latitude just by the difference in products and product features to live a long effective life. Squeeze motion was a technique, but squeeze is squeeze and it should eventually choke. "Slice of life" is a trend and, in most cases, it is "Slice of Schmaltz." The closeup, on the other hand, is intimate. It involves. When made interesting and relevant, it just has to sell.

I am certainly not advocating that the "pull back" be abolished, but simply observing that when the camera does offer a medium or long shot it reveals something worth seeing.

Because seeing comes before selling.

Too many long shots are wasted on a guy and a dame sitting on a rock smoking, on a housewife talking to an off-camera announcer who has no right in her home in the first place while her husband is at work, or on the know-it-all, sophisticated slob trying to level with me when I'd rather be spoken to.

When we do seek the wide-angled scene, why not the animated guy who punches his friend in the nose in the Hawaiian Punch commercial? Or the head-on car crash in the Liberty Mutual commercial? Or the "inside-the-bottle" shot in the Teen commercial?

Sure. Some products are harder to surround with interest than others. But isn't this also a convenient excuse?

Playing it close to the eyelashes is a good place to begin because it concentrates the interest and comes out big. This is where empathy begins.

And as a secondary reward it generally saves on high talent payments and repays as well, which will soar even higher next November if sensible negotiations do not occur during the summer months.

ARTHUR J. BELLAIRE

Arthur J. Bellaire, vice president and associate creative director in charge of radio and tv production and a member of the board of directors at BBDO, is one of the foremost authorities on television commercials. His book, "IT Adverting—a Handbook of Modern Practice," published by Harper and Brothers, has been widely used as a source book. Bellaire joined BBDO in 1943 as a print copywriter, transferred to the radio copy group in 1945, began creating tv commercials in 1948, was placed in charge of the broadcast copy department three years later, and was elected a vice president in 1954. Before joining BBDO, he was city editor of the Daily Iowan and Iowa City Press-Citizen, and a radio news writer for United Press. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa.
GROUPS EMERGE

There's one other element in this picture, of dominant importance: the Federal Communications Commission. Last year's hearings in Chicago, and their repeat in Omaha last month, have strongly projected the FCC's interest in local-live programing. That interest may be misplaced, or at least naive, but it's certainly a major factor in the consideration of next season's plans by the groups.

In these two hearings, the FCC tried to find out (a) what stations had done to ascertain their community's needs, (b) how they'd tried to meet these needs, and (c) how well satisfied the communities were as a result. Both sets of hearings produced much the same pattern: lengthy recitation of station public-service projects, followed by impressive testimonials from community leaders. (Said the Governor of Nebraska, "My biggest problem has been keeping off television.")

Strong public service. Stations demonstrated that, in every feasible way, they were intimately concerned with civic affairs: The public-affairs departments of the Chicago stations, for example, have become unofficial clearing-houses for almost all community charitable causes. They further demonstrated that, in the areas of documentary journalism and of generally prodding the public conscience, grass-roots tv is today accomplishing a great deal.

The hearings also produced a reminder that the problem is not as simple as the regulators might wish. The commission itself nurtured the networks, first in radio and then tv, as the only sensible source of a high-grade national program. It had some difficulty, therefore, in confounding Frank Fitzgarty, when the Meredith Stations' vp said: "WOW-TV implements my conception of tv as an art form, first of all by giving exposure to many very fine dramatic productions and musical productions on CBS-TV, which tend not only to satisfy the taste of the Omaha viewing public, but also to elevate it. That's my basic answer."

The enquirers also had some trouble when they prodded the network-owned stations, in Chicago. WNBQ's Lloyd Yoder sharply recalled to the FCC the fact that: "The licensees of all the stations are responsible for determining all the programs those stations carry, network and local. The National Broadcasting Company, as licensees of WNBQ and four other stations, is similarly responsible for all the programs those stations carry, network and local.

Involved structures. The FCC also had a brief object lesson in the complexities which surround the internal operation of an independent group, and which affect its programming policies. Here's Ward Quaal on the subject: "WGN Inc. is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Chicago Tribune and the president of WGN Inc. is Howard Wood, who is also president of the Tribune Company... (in the operation of the stations) I have complete autonomy. I report to the board; once a month... the Chicago Tribune is part of the Tribune Company which is a holding company and it in turn owns the NY Daily News which, in turn..." (Please turn to page 61)
“Charlotte’s WSOC-TV... draws food customers for us from as far as 70 miles away”— Reid, Park ’N Shop

“Our use of WSOC-TV over 5 years has drawn a tremendous number of our customers from as far as 70 miles away. This big plus volume is the “extra” that has helped our two stores capture nearly 12% of Charlotte’s $81 million retail grocery busin. es.”

CHAS. N. REID, Pres.
Park ‘N Shop,
Charlotte, N. C.

According to Chas. N. Reid, Park ’N Shop president, this 24,000-pint arch probably is the largest mayonnaise display ever built.

Among metro areas of the Southeast, Charlotte is first in retail sales per family. Its 75-mile radius population is the largest in the Southeast. This density of free-spending consumers within the friendly persuasion of WSOC-TV keeps a lot of our advertisers wonderfully happy. See Mr. Reid. Let the plus volume WSOC-TV will produce for your schedule make you happy, too. One of the great area stations of the nation.

WSOC and WSOC-TV are associated with WSB and WSB-TV, Atlanta, WHIO and WHIO-TV, Dayton

Take a good look at this smart new model. Here's that "custom" appearance to satisfy the proudest management; "custom" quality and flexibility to please the most discriminating engineers...all in a production-model!

CUSTOM STYLING—Striking new lines in blue and silver bring a color accent to control rooms. Color-coded operating controls are engineered to avoid errors. Only 39" long, it is compact and self-contained...to satisfy new or existing arrangements.

CUSTOM QUALITY—The BC-7A is fully transistorized for long-term reliability. All amplifiers have input and output transformers...precise impedance matching for both program and monitoring circuits. You get quality stereo monitoring (10 watts output), quality gain controls, quality leaf-type key switches on all program circuits.

CUSTOM FLEXIBILITY—You have interchangeable plug-in modules...preamplifiers, isolation/balancing units, program amplifiers, monitoring amplifiers, cue amplifier and power supply—all in one self-contained unit. You get three-mode operation...selector switch to instantaneously convert from dual channel, parallel or stereo operation.

We can't name them all here, but we believe you will agree that this is the kind of customized styling, quality, and flexibility you want. Let your Broadcast Representative show you all the features that make this consolette your best buy. Or write RCA, Broadcast and Television Equipment, Bldg. 15-5, Camden, N.J.
Broadcasting and advertising entered into a busy time on capitol hill.

The House Rules Committee considered opening house committees to radio and television. The House Commerce Investigating Subcommittee began its hearings on the rating services. The House Commerce Communications Subcommittee began work on political-equal-time Sec. 315. The advertising profession was forced to keep its attention on renewed hearing on packaging and labeling conducted by Sen. Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), which Hart insisted would result in tighter laws.

There was a prospect that Kenneth A. Cox might be confirmed as an FCC Commissioner by the end of this week. The Senate Commerce Committee, in its organization session, failed to take action. It is expected to approve the nomination this coming Wednesday. Senate confirmation would not then be delayed for more than a day or so.

When Cox takes his place—permitting present commissioner T.A.M. Craven to enter that retirement which was supposed to take place on 1 February—the FCC pace may quicken.

Inability of cameras and microphones to cover house proceedings has stood out as a sore point in broadcasting’s efforts to attain “equal access.” House Rules Committee hearings opened in an atmosphere of hope.

For the first time, house advocates of such coverage were able to enlist the active support of Rep. Oren Harris (D., Ark.), powerful House Commerce Committee chairman. Harris, in turn, gave broad intimations that House Speaker John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), would support the idea if the rules committee decided to approve it. Though Harris refused to put this in the form of a flat statement to the committee, McCormack had said as much in a public statement the day before.

The resolution considered was introduced by Harris, himself, and is limited to coverage of committees, after committee majorities have voted to permit it, and no witness would be forced to appear before the mikes and cameras.

Sec. 315 hearings also brought out old arguments, both for and against. Network toppers Frank Stanton and Robert Sarnoff said broadcasters could be trusted to be fair and complete repeal of Sec. 315 would permit greater coverage of all political campaigns.

It was evident that the committee members were thinking only in terms of the Harris resolution. This would lift 315 only for 1961, and only for candidates for President and Vice President. Some members still expressed fears—not of the networks—but that small local stations might favor one committee or the other.

Congressional pace in these fields will quicken even more this week, with Celler hearings due to kick off on Wednesday.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.) will look into growing concentration of ownership of newspapers, a subject on which he concedes Congress is powerless to act. In a sector more sensitive to Congressional pressure, he will examine the wisdom of newspaper ownership of broadcasting stations. There will be particular emphasis on newspapers which have no competition, and in towns which boast only one broadcasting station or in which the newspaper-owned outlet is dominant.

FCC is in a mood of uncertainty in view of the general feeling that chairman Newton Minow will definitely resign. However, there is no evidence to support belief in some quarters that this situation will have any real effect on commission actions.
Effectiveness of 20s cited by TvAR

There's the name, the claim, and demonstration in a 20-second TV commercial. TvAR reports in a new presentation, "Twenty is Plenty." Dealing with creativity, costs, and effectiveness, the station reports notes more 20s are being used by more advertisers than ever before. But, they add, since the fall of 1961 when station break time was expanded from 30 to 40 seconds, the availability of 20s has also increased substantially, bringing commercial length into increasing prominence.

Citing Schwerin research, TvAR reports viewers prefer a short to long commercial, 20-second commercials tested being 81% more popular than minutes. As for recall, Schwerin analysis for TvAR shows only an 80% spread in brand name recall between a 20-second and 60-second commercial. "And when it comes to the playback of the specific sales points, the 20-second spot, with only one-third the time, is 71% as effective as its 60-second brother," TvAR said.

Prime time 20s in the top 50 markets (see illustration, left), TvAR also reported, have good cost efficiency. Three announcements per week reach 41% of the families per week, 66% over a four-week period.

Gotthelf lands $2 million W.F. Young account

The switch from J. Walter Thompson to Ted Gotthelf by W. F. Young is a big billing shot in the arm for the drug-oriented agency.

Young, which manufactures Absorbine and Absorbine Junior antiseptic liniments, bills approximately $2 million, with most of it slated for broadcast advertising.

Data from latest Pulse TV audience profile issued

A new Pulse study of the U. S. TV audience shows 12.9 million employed housewives compared with 35.5 million for whom housework is a full-time occupation. Information is contained in the sixth edition of Pulse's TV Audience Profiles, based on November 1962 interviews.

According to the report, 49 million U. S. families were in the TV audience as of last November, with these families accounting for 174.8 million individuals. Of the families, 39% are in the "children under six" cycle; 28% have children six to 17, while the remaining 29% have no children under 18.

The study also shows 21% of the families were headed by individuals with some college education or better. High school graduates head 57% of the U. S. TV families. Annual incomes of 55% of the viewing families were between $1,000 and $7,499, 20% had incomes of $7,500 or over and 23% were under $1,000.

A total of 36% of the families had five or more members, 40% had three to four, and 23% had one or two members.

B&B's grass roots guide to public image problem

Advertisers and agencies are famous for fostering industry-wide projects to improve the public's opinion of Madison Avenue. That such massive maneuvers may be falling short of the mark got further substantiation recently in the form of a request that Benton & Bowles board chairman Robert Lusk received from 16-year-old Minnesota high school student Judith Puggen. She wanted some help with a research paper—"Corrupt Advertising."

Lusk’s answering letter explained that Judith’s topic covered but 1% of the industry and he invited Judith and her teacher for an all-expense-paid weekend in New York to prove it. Two days touring Benton & Bowles and Time magazine proved a valuable research aid for Judith, whose topic turned out to be just “Advertising.”

More cooperation a must in co-op advertising

Daniel A. Packard, vice president of Geyer, Morey, Ballard and a specialist in appliance merchandising and advertising, has some strong words to say on “some habits which have crept into appliance cooperative advertising.”

He was one of the speakers on a panel at the 31st annual convention of the Institute of Appliance Manufacturers in Cincinnati.

Too much of the local advertising has been on “picture and price alone,” said Packard. “There’s nothing truly cooperative about a dealer charging a manufacturer excessive rates with the result that co-op funds are sometimes diverted to increase dealer profit or lower prices.”

TvQ to do demographic breakouts

Latest to hop on the demographic program data bandwagon is TvQ.

A special section which features a different demographic characteristic for each report is now a regular feature of the TvQ monthly analysis.

Products, agencies, tv draw Philip Morris praise

Role of new products in a company’s business draws emphasis in the 1962 Philip Morris annual report. Last year, 91% of the company’s cigarette sales were in products they didn’t have ten years ago.

The company also has a good word for Leo Burnett and Benton & Bowles, its two agencies. Notes the report: “Advertising agencies play a vital role in our marketing and we are keenly aware of the significant contributions made by the highly competent people of these distinguished organizations.”

And on tv, Philip Morris said: “We feel a real sense of identity with the very talented people who produce and star in our shows. They represent us in the minds of millions.”

Cyanamid acquires Breck

The American Cyanamid Company acquired last week the assets and business of John H. Breck, Inc., a manufacturer of shampoos, hair sprays and other hair preparations. Breck, with 1962 sales of over $28,000,000 will be operated as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cyanamid and will retain its present management.

The acquisition will involve the transfer of an undisclosed amount of Cyanamid stock and will be concluded early in May.

The 46th National Conference of the American Marketing Assn. on 17-19 June at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C. Emphasis will be on the creative approach to marketing in a program bearing the theme 'Innovation: Key to Marketing Progress.'
HOW DO YOU MEASURE A BROADCASTING STATION?

Only a shadow serves as the symbol of a person with a strange addiction. The other person is WTIC-TV News reporter Stan Simon who helped uncover the addiction of hundreds of youths of the Hartford area to easily obtained cough preparations. The upshot was the startling WTIC-TV documentary, "Warning: May Be Habit Forming" which, for the first time, revealed that youngsters are becoming addicted to narcotics which can be obtained at local drug stores for as little as $1.25 a bottle. A videotape of the program has been requested by the Hartford educational station for in-school showing so that thousands of youngsters may be forewarned.

Surveys, such as ARB and A. C. Nielsen, clearly define WTIC-TV's outstanding audience leadership in southern New England... but a documentary such as "Warning: May Be Habit Forming" tells of another kind of leadership we prize even more highly.

Also evicted were Berton Schneider, former treasurer to v.p. and treasurer, and Russell Karp, from secretary to v.p. and secretary.
Time broadcasting sets new revenue records

New revenue records for broadcasting operations were reported for 1962 by Time. Overall net income for the company hit $10.2 million, highest since 1957.

Local programing continued to be given top priority at all Time stations, "and all pursued a policy of vigorous editorializing during 1962." First year as an independent for WTCN-TV, Minneapolis, showed important gains in both audience and revenue, the company said. Time also noted its expansion in international broadcasting activities, with Latin America the main focus.

Audience board charges 'hostile' industry climate

Peter Goelet, president of the National Audience Board, charged the television industry last week with attempting to create a climate of public opinion that is "decidedly hostile" to the Federal Communications Commission's grass-roots hearings into the community service aspects of local tv.

Purcell expands, acquires ICBM production arm

Don Purcell, the former executive vice president of Radio Concepts who a few weeks ago went out on his own, has acquired Inter Continental Broadcast Media from the Franklin Broadcasting Corp.

ICBM will function as a production and creation subsidiary of Purcell Productions providing radio and tv stations with varied services for promoting local sales and custom-created singing commercials for local advertisers.

Program features ranging from one-minute to hour-long programs and from complete station break packages to single station breaks will also be available.

Screen Gems organizes international division

Screen Gems has organized an International Broadcast Division and named Boris Frank manager.

The new branch will function as consultant and/or representative of Latin American tv stations, also acting as technical programing, or overall management consultants or time sales reps.

First station to sign with the new division is HIX-TV, Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Negotiations are underway with four other Latin American tv stations for consultancy or representation agreements.

13 to NAB Radio Board

The National Assn. of Broadcasters has elected these men to its Radio Board of Directors:

Ben Strouse, WWDC (FM), Washington, D.C.

The two-year terms begin 3 April, the concluding day of NAB's 41st Annual Convention in Chicago.

New Nielsen local service

A. C. Nielsen is planning a new measurement for local radio to bow in 1964. The new service will include more of the sources of listening including personal portables, auto radios, and fin, and will use larger samples to help show differences between audiences of radio stations.

Before the service bows, NSI local radio service will discontinue per-broadcast ratings. Cumulative audiences by quarter-hour, daypart, daily, and four weeks will be reported until the introduction of the new NSI report.

TAC broadens service

Television Affiliates Corp. (TAC) is making available to its subscriber stations a new service.

Called "Community Special Programming," the series is composed of programs specially prepared for telecast as local, live community service programming.

Topics covered in programs ranging in length from nine to 12 minutes include child guidance, safety, crime prevention, and public health.

MPO makes its move

The first step in a major MPO move into its new Videotronics Center has been completed.

Offices, editing, and screening facilities are now in full operation at the Center, 222 East 44 St., New York, and the rest of the move is expected to be completed shortly.

Westinghouse sales rise

The Westinghouse Electric Corporation's annual report, issued last week, shows the company's 1962 earnings were $57,061,000 on sales of $1,954,479,000 compared with earnings of $15,446,000 on sales of $1,913,770,000 the previous year.

In his report to stockholders, Westinghouse president Mark W. Cresap, Jr. predicted that the company's 1963 sales would be the best in its 77-year history. The company's best year to date was 1957 when its sales totaled $2,009,011,000. Cresap and chairman Gylynn A. Price said that their optimism was based on "quickness of activity in the electric utility market and greater expenditures for defense and space."

Radio

Sales: Portland Beaver baseball games will be sponsored this season by Union Oil of California (Smock, Debuin, Waddell) on KEX, Portland, beginning 13 April... Harry Mopp, of the dry hair ads, didn't make the Tricorn Club

Harry wasn't in the lifeless scalp commercials. He just buys TV spots for them. He just didn't know that North Carolina's No. 1 metropolitan market is the prosperous three-city Golden Triangle... Winston-Salem, Greensboro, High Point... No. 1 in population, households and retail sales. Knowing those facts is all it takes to crack this exclusive club, Harry. Then schedule WSJS Television, of course — which is the No. 1 way to saturate the Golden Triangle Market (and the surrounding rich area thrown in). You get a club hat with feathers, Harry, if you also remember North Carolina is the 12th state in population... and that no self-respecting spot schedule can ignore the No. 1 market in the No. 12 state! You'll be a real smoothie with clients and account execs, Harry, when you join the Tricorn Club — provided our official hat can fit onto your tousled wig.

It will include all fees of the Music Center and is open to instrumentalists, conductors, and choral singers who are at least 18 years old. Winners will be selected by audition at Boston's Convention Hall on 19 March by orchestra and faculty members.

Changing hands: KILE, Galveston, has been sold by Island Broadcasting to Galveston Radio Inc. Selling corporation is headed by David Nathan, local business man, while the buying group is headed by Frank Junell of Lubbock. Consideration was $165,000, and transaction was handled by Hamilton-Landis.

For armchair sportsmen: Cleveland sports columnist Frank Gibbons has flown to the Indians' training camp in Tucson for a series of exclusive reports on KYW, used in the 7:55 a.m. "Sports Round-Up" Monday through Saturday. It's sponsored by the Schaefer Brewing Co. . . . WOLF, Syracuse, will carry all playoff games of the Syracuse Nationals, beginning with the start of the Eastern division semi-final round on 19 March.

Extra curricula notes: Harry T. Wilcox, vice president, general manager of WFBL, Syracuse, named radio representative to American Red Cross Recruitment and Community Relations Committee, Syracuse . . . LeRoy Collins, NAB president, was appointed to the governing body of the National Commission on Community Health Services.

Programing notes: A four-part series of Federal and New York State Income Tax returns began yesterday on WHTI (AM & FM), Hempstead. They continue on the next three Sundays at 5:15 p.m. . . . For the remainder of the current session of the New York State Legislature, WOLF, Syracuse, is presenting weekly 5-minute interviews with State lawmakers representing Onondaga County, as part of the Sunday evening "Discussion '63."

Kudos: Dick Clark, star of "The Dick Clark Radio Show" and "American Bandstand," awarded a citation by United Cerebral Palsy Asso. for "humanitarian service and outstanding cooperation" . . . WWJ, Detroit, won a George Washington Honor Medal Award from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge for series "Great Voices of Freedom" . . . KGW news director Jim Miller has been praised by the Multnomah County Sheriff's Office, Portland, Ore., for assistance in the capture of three AWOL sailor escapees from Rocky Butte Jail . . . WIRL, has been named winner in the radio creativity of the annual Peoria Advertising and Selling Club Awards Competition . . . WIL, St. Louis, commended by both Associated Press and United Press International for excellent cooperation in feeding news stories to the wire services.

owns WPIX Inc. I serve on that board.

"I also am president of KDAL Inc., which is a wholly owned subsidiary in Duluth-Superior, Minnesota and Wisconsin; a wholly owned subsidiary of WGN Inc."

If the commission hoped to start a hare at its hearings, it was certainly disappointed, if only because in the more obvious areas, most stations perform a conscientious and continuing public service. But to industry observers, the underlying concern with local-live programing indicated that the commission might be slightly out of touch with reality.

Sponsor put this question to many group heads. A typical response came from RKO-General's head, Hathaway Watson, (none of whose stations were involved). Watson's reply: "I would prefer to survey a community's needs and then find the best way of filling them. It's quite possible that, for a particular situation, an "outside" program will meet the problem better than one originated locally."

In Chicago last year, Commissioner Lee asked the question: "How do you preserve the good local programs?"

None of the witnesses was able to give an optimistic answer, although WGN's Quaal shed an interesting sidelight on the economics of small-scale syndication.

"The only program we've successfully syndicated is Great Music," said Quaal, "and we have yet to make a profit on it. With Series Three (of Great Music) which has considerable variety in it, we'll again a break-even point when we save a total of 30 stations under contract. They will have to involve 10 stations in the top 25 markets."

Some form of cooperative exchange would seem to be the most promising answer. The idea occurred to Robert Weisberg three years ago; after trying unsuccessfully to interest NAB and other industry groups, he turned to Translux and persuaded the syndication group to launch Television Affiliates Corporation.

Weisberg's plan was simple enough. Stations or groups would pay a membership fee and submit to the pool their outstanding programs. Every time a show was screened by another member station, it earned a fee; intra-pool earnings would be shared proportionately by members after TAC withdrew its management fees.

Three seasons' growth. Surprisingly enough, the idea has developed almost according to plan. TAC began organizing itself in 1961, and went "on air" in January 1962, with 12 members.

At the start of its second operating year, the group now has 50 members and a hand-picked library of about 100 programs. By the end of 1963, it's expected the roll will be 75 stations and 150 shows, in markets ranging from 50,000 to 3,000,000 homes. Annual fees vary from $1,750 to $20,000.

Program earnings. What this means in dollars and cents can be gauged from TAC's top six money-earners in the first half of 1962:

- Speedway Through the Years, (WFBM, Indianapolis), $1655;
- Strategic Air Command, (WBNS, Columbus), $1993;
- Great Shake, (KRON, San Francisco), $738;
- Walk Through the Valley, (WGN, Chicago), $737;
- Inside the Congo, (WXYZ, Detroit), $735;
- Smoke Jumpers, (KOMO, Seattle), $729.

The full year's earnings are predicted at about double these amounts. In essence, however, TAC doesn't produce windfall revenues for its members. What it does do is amortize a respectable amount of production costs. Weisberg's theory is that this, in turn, leads to higher standards of local production.

A somewhat similar exchange system is being operated by the CBS-owned stations, within their own group. In the Repertoire Workshop series, each station produces seven half-hours which are seen on all the stations, thus giving each outlet a 35-week series. During the summer months they run the domestic public-affairs program exchange for a 20-week period. Each station submits its best locally produced show, which is seen on all the other stations.

CBS is the only network group with a formalized exchange system; both the other owned-station groups have considerable internal liaison in planning of station shows, and continuous reporting systems to apprise station management of programs that may have application or appeal to their market.

The sales problem. The leader of the CBS-owned group, WCBS, has had considerable success in attracting advertiser support of New York market specials. Chock full o' Nuts coffee came in with a bulk purchase of all quarterly documentaries in New York, plus 12 half-hour specials "sight unseen." The station didn't offer a guaranteed circulation, but it's notable that audience for the shows is at least as predictable as in most timebuys: Spirit of Christmas Presents, in November last year, had about 1,400,000 viewers; December 5's Superfluous People attracted 1,720,000 average; All That Glitters Isn't Deductible, last January gained 1,050,000 viewers; February 27's Bouquet for Rawley had 1,070,000 viewers.

Another network-owned station, WNBC, has pioneered a method of selling its original shows which may achieve wider application. Under the Pathways plan, sponsors are offered participations in a complete package of public-service, cultural and other limited-audience shows. Their spots are rotated through the year's programs; the economics-plus-image costing is apparently cogent enough to have secured three sponsors for the full series, since the plan was announced late last year. The other NBC-owned stations are watching with interest, and the principle has obvious application to any group-produced series.

This type of imaginative sales approach will command a premium. As stations and groups become more and more involved in their own programing, sponsors' survey of the leading groups across the country indicates that several thousand hours of airtime will be filled with original material in the 1963-64 season. A good deal—possibly as much as half—of this material will be placed within prime time. The result must be some fresh thinking on both sides of the timebuying fence.
selected programs from a local public affairs series for broadcast on the other four stations.

Programming notes: They Call It Folks Music, a history of America's early years as preserved in its songs, will be the next entry in the monthly series of hour-long Specials for Children being produced by Westinghouse Broadcasting. ANA TV WORKSHOP

The widespread popularity and misuse of part of the Nielsen Media Service which adds magazine coverage patterns on top of television coverage patterns has most likely contributed to confusion in the area of inter-media comparisons. Herbert Zeltner, sr. v.p., director of media for Lennen & Newell, told the workshop.

Today, he said, some of the best research talent is being applied to inter-media comparisons, and though the end-effect may be as valueless as some of the superficial comparisons of a few years ago, "the staging and techniques are a great deal more impressive."

Truly measuring advertising effectiveness variables in one medium as compared with another is still a long way off, he added.

Changes seem to be in the offing in media planning with television, he continued. Changes in the time immediately ahead, he predicted, will include:

"Both show and spot purchases will be more and more closely related to the marketing and media news of the advertiser. More attention than ever before will be paid to the viewers in front of the sets. Set counts may no longer be sufficient. . . ."

"We will see a greater diversity than ever before in the ways in which the medium can be bought. Geographic regionalization appears to be a definite possibility in coming network seasons. . . ."

"A fundamental question in television we feel is going to come in for a major re-examination in the near future is the whole problem of tuning vs. viewing. . . . We can no longer rely on six restricted pilot studies to justify measurements of tuning as a reasonably accurate estimate of who is viewing. . . ."

"We are waiting for that definitive study of spot which proves people are watching and paying attention and that the lower cost per thousand represents not only great efficiency but a rare and welcome opportunity to stretch our advertising dollars without imperilling our selling effectiveness."

FACILITY AND RATE CHANGES

WMAQ, Chicago: Rate card No. 21, effective 1 Feb. established a separate rate for 30-second announcements, scheduled at station breaks and, or within programs, unit prices for 25- and 30-times-per-week in run-of-station package plans, and extends class A time to 3 to 7 p.m., weekdays.

KHOL-TV, Kearney, Nebraska: Commenced operations with new tower of 1163 feet above ground and 316 ERP, effective 17 February.

WPTZ-TV, Plattsburgh, N. Y.: New evening hourly rate $500, effective 1 March. Former rate $100. Advertisers receive protection for six months from 1 March.

There are two kinds of viewers, favorite and non-favorite, Henry Brenner, president, Home Testing Institute and TVQ, said. They are "The favorite viewer who is interested and attentive who views because he wants to and the non-favorite viewer who is present at the set because of circumstance, who at best is uninterested or at worst is not even watching."

In the future advertisers using television will be more concerned with the size of the primary target who are favorite of a particular program, he also emphasized.

Two major papers dealt with the effectiveness of the tv sales message. Pre-testing of commercials was discussed by Alvin A. Achenbaum, v.p. and research director of Grey Advertising. Optimum positioning of commercials (program v. station-break) was analyzed by L. E. Purvis, president of Gallup & Robinson.

Launching your new product
That was the topic of slide presentation delivered by Katz dir. of spot tv sales development Halsey V. Barrett (r) to Ad Club of Greater Boston, William Morton (l), club pres. and exec. v.p. of Sherraton Corp. of America, opened meeting, and Jack King (c), Katz Boston mgr., was luncheon chmn.
February marked the closing of a number of program sales for both NBC TV and ABC TV. During the last ten days of the month sales of $18,380,000 were completed for the '63-'64 season, according to Don Durgin, vice president, NBC Television Network Sales. Sales for $13,500,000 were recorded for second and third quarters by ABC TV sales department—about $11 million in nighttime and $2 million in daytime.

Highlights of the period for NBC TV are the complete sale of The Virginian and Dr. Kildare, substantial orders on The Eleventh Hour and The Richard Boone Show, and renewals from two two-week sponsors for Saturday Night at the Movies.

Dr. Kildare's six sponsors renewed to sponsor the program's third season.

The Virginian was completely sold to seven sponsors: Carnation, Procter & Gamble, Alberto-Culver, Miles Labs, Liggett & Myers, Bristol-Myers, and Noxzema. R. J. Reynolds Tobacco and Thomas Leening renewed sponsorship in Saturday Night at the Movies.

Twenty-six advertisers contributed to the ABC TV sales. Procter & Gamble and Bristol-Myers each bought over $1 million, while orders between $500,000 and $1 million came from Schlitz, Noxzema, Remington, Polaroid, Sinclair Oil, and Derby Foods.

Advertisers ordering between $250,000 and $500,000 were Kaiser, Contac, Dodge, General Mills, Sterling Drug, Clairol, Lend & Fink, Chesbrough Ponds, Beecham Products, Polk-Miller, and Plough, Inc.

In daytime, large orders came from Nabisco, Sunshine Biscuits, Beechnut Gum, and Cutex Products.

Sports orders included Rise in the Professional Bowlers Tour, Goodyear Rubber in the August Green Bay Packers College All-Star Football Game, a P. Lorillard renewal in Wide World of Sports and a sell-out of the Coaches All-America Football Game in June to U. S. Rubber, Hartford Insurance, Schlitz and Bristol-Myers.

NBC finances study on tv political debate

NBC made known it will finance an independent study by the American Political Science Assn. to determine the best format for tv debates between presidential candidates in 1961. Announcement was made by chairman Robert Sarnoff before the 26th Chicago World Trade Conference.

Study will be conducted by a seven-man committee of experts in political science and communications.

Alternative for radio traffic hours

The other week a timebuyer called to set up a product spot schedule. He wanted the usual traffic times, 7 a.m.-9 a.m. and 4 p.m.-6 p.m. We were happy to get the business and supplied the requested times.

That little episode started us thinking. Practically all of our agency business during the past half-dozen years has been placed in the so-called "traffic" times at the request of the timebuyer. It seems to us there are many other times equally as good to which the buyer should give consideration.

We can't deny that a lot of people are available to be exposed to an advertising message by radio each morning and afternoon during the traffic hours. However, did you ever stop to think that you may find more people listening at other times? Between 9 a.m. and noon . . . 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. . . . and after 7 o'clock in the evening. A home with school-age children can be a very hectic place before 8:30 each morning; the mothers we know don't get much of a chance to relax and listen, and, more importantly, absorb a commercial pitch, until the kids and hubby, too, are out of the house and on their way. She can then grab a second cup of coffee, relax . . . listen . . . and be impressed. This is the time to reach her. It seems to us that chances of selling this gal a new soap, a new breakfast food, or most anything are better at 9:10 a.m. than at 7:10 a.m.

But, what about the business men? They're lost to all radio exposure after 9 a.m., you say! We admit that 7 to 9 a.m. is an excellent time to reach them. We personally shave each morning with a transistor radio playing at our elbow. We're monitoring our "valuable" 7 to 9 a.m. period, so we're an exception. How about the family man who_deserts the evening because he can't stand the noise and the silly situation-comedies?

Another timebuying quirk is practiced by the advertiser who wants to reach a farm audience. He is usually trying to reach the male head of the farm family. Most farm advertisers (fertilizers, fumigators, equipment, etc.) ask for time in the 12 noon to 1 p.m. period. A few will accept early morning time before 7 o'clock. We just don't have enough time in the noon hour at our station to supply the demand in peak seasons, let alone give ample time protection.

There are many other good times to reach the farmer. A farmer is a businessman. His business is very mobile. He's driving back and forth across the countryside at all hours of the day. His car or truck is usually radio equipped . . . and he listens while he drives. I have seen tractors right here in our country that are also equipped with radios. Why not sell him fertilizer or a new harvester at 10 o'clock in the morning . . . or three o'clock in the afternoon? The old custom of everyone on the farm sitting down to eat at high noon is not true any more. Many farms are owned by "city" people. These are the folks who make the buying decisions. And most of them sleep late in the mornings.

Another area in which national and regional advertisers can secure loyal listeners is in local sports broadcasts. High school and area college sports broadcasts attract large local audiences. Our play-by-play of high school football and basketball games at home and away give us some of our highest audience ratings. And, all of these games are at night! East Carolina College is located in our city. The college, with an enrollment of almost 6,000 students, is now engaged in an expanded sports program. Our exclusive broadcasts of their football and basketball games reach a very loyal and interested audience. Hundreds of stations throughout the country offer similar broadcasts. Local advertisers have long recognized these as excellent vehicles for their commercial messages. Why not regional and national advertisers?

Many stations have just about exhausted their supply of avails in the traffic hours. What to do? The station manager should make an effort to survey his audience to give the buyer factual data concerning his market's listening habits.

Several months ago I was in another city in our state and listened quite a bit to a fine station managed by a long-time friend. He was "loaded" with beer commercials between 4 and 6 p.m. A number of times he had competitive brands no more than four minutes apart. I asked him about this and he replied, "They all want the same time, so I put 'em there. What else can you do?"

I sincerely hope this isn't the alternative.
