Manhunt has been re-titled and will go on the air on Sept 20 over NBC, Fridays, 9–9:30pm EDT as M Squad, described as a special detail of top detectives who can cover any division of police work. The series stars Lee Marvin as a plainclothes detective of the Chicago Police Dept (the wave is spreading East; New York may make it with a series yet). Playing as Detective Lt. Frank Ballinger, Marvin will be a bachelor with no special romantic interests, and he will be the only regular cast member in each episode. Richard Lewis is exec producer for Revue Productions, Inc. Michael Abel, originally slated to produce the series, has been replaced by John Larkin, with Lee Marvin getting co-producer credit, and Jerry Adler as production coordinator. Directors include Don Weis, Bernard Girard, Robert Florey and John Peyser. The writers include Joel Marcott, Larry Marcus, Bernard Shoenfeld, Harold Jack Bloom and Sterling Silliphant.....Jim Moser is back at Mark VII Productions, writing Dragnet for his original boss Jack Webb. Meanwhile, Moser's partner and producer on the Medic series, Frank La Tourette, is also working with Webb on the creation of a new series. Andy's Gang, kid film show starring Andy Devine, will debut over the NBC-TV net on Nov 23, Saturdays, 10:30-11am EST. The series and its predecessor, which starred the late Smilin' Ed McConnell, were formerly national spot.

Paul Monash is collaborating with Barnaby Conrad on the script for "The Death of Manolete," first drama for Playhouse 90's second year, starting Sept 12. Jack Palance will star in the title role as the great Spanish matador......Paul Gregory announced that he had positively completed the cast for "Crescendo," first of the Du Pont Show of the Month series, set for Sunday, Sept 29, 9-10:30pm EDT over CBS. The cast includes Rex Harrison, Ethel Merman, Louis Armstrong, Eddy Arnold, Dionne Carroll, Carol Channing, Benny Goodman, Mahalia Jackson, Stubby Kaye, Peggy Lee, Lizzie Miles, Tommy Sands, Dinah Washington, Turk Murphy and His Dixieland Band and the Norman Luboff Choir......The production staff for the six Du Pont shows to be packaged by Talent Associates includes David Susskind as producer, Michael Abbott as associate producer, Audrey Gellen in charge of scripts and Rose Tobias handling casting (the latter not open yet)......Although the Guy Mitchell Show had its origination switched from New York to Hollywood when its sponsorship and schedule were changed, its casting will still be handled thru GAC's New York office. The same outfit handles the casting for the new Pat Boone Chevy Showroom, which is being packaged by Coogamooga Productions, Inc., thru GAC......The Verdict Is Yours, new CBS afternoon show which had its title changed, has also had a producer change. The Frank Cooper package will be produced by Eugene Burr, replacing Stanley Nias. Byron Paul remains as director. Burr has been at Young & Rubicam, but previously was script editor for Goodson-Todman on the live version of The Web when it was on the CBS net.......U. S. Steel Hour is now looking to the West Coast as a possible source of stories, with BBDO's Gerry Morrison in Hollywood to handle new scripts.
The spurt of outdoor adventure pix continues, with the story backgrounds ranging from the Civil War up to the start of the Twentieth Century. CBS, which has announced a fast sales spurt for its The Gray Ghost Civil War series, is also planning Blockade Runner, to be filmed by Lindalee Parsons with a Civil War background. James Saphier has acquired the title Western Union and rights to material in the company's 106-year history for use in a TV film series. NBC will have its Union Pacific and Boots and Saddles on the market, with other adventure series already in the plotting stage for the 1958-59 net and syndication season. Meanwhile, back in Dodge City James Arness prepares to start his third season on the air as Marshall Matt Dillon in Gunsmoke, claimed to be the trend-setter in this matter of adult westerns on TV.

On the other hand, ABC this week set in motion 26 Men, with Tris Coffin as star, to be produced entirely in Arizona and based on exploits of the Arizona Rangers. This will be a standard Western six-gun series, along the lines of other law-and-order films set for this season.

NBC will program four of the one-hour AT&T Bell System science films this season, two new ones and the two that were previously shown over CBS last season. All four were produced by Frank Capra. "The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays," will be seen Oct 25, Friday, 9-10pm NYT. "Our Mr. Sun," the first repeat, will be seen Dec 15, Sunday, 5:30-6:30pm NTT. "The Unchained Goddess," a scientific explanation of what makes weather, will be seen Feb 12, 1958, Wednesday, 9-10pm NYT. "Remo the Magnificent," the second repeat, will be shown March 12, Sunday, 5:30-6:30pm NTT. All four will be seen in color. NBC has put together films previously seen on the net under various titles, predominantly as Conversations With Elder Wise Men, and with many new films, will program 26 half hours as a weekly series, Wisdom, Sundays, 2:30-3pm NTT, starting Sept 15. Nineteen of the Wisdom conversations have previously been shown on the air on an irregular special basis. NBC will again work with the Educational Televisión and Radio Center and present five new live program series this fall for the country's educational TV network as the second half of the project presented earlier this year, beginning Oct 28. Each of the five series will include ten sessions telecast over a 10-week period, each weekday night from 6 to 6:30pm EST. NBC will again underwrite the costs and develop three series; the Center will underwrite and produce the other two.

Jim Moran's Courtesy Theatre over WGN-TV in Chicago, Sundays, 10pm, begins its ninth consecutive year of feature films on Sept 1, the oldest feature film theatre in TV and the longest under continuous single sponsorship. NBC's Wide Wide World will have four producers this season, each heading his own production staff and each will produce five of the 20 shows in the series for the coming season. The four, under the supervision of exec producer Barry Wood, are Ted Rogers (former exec producer of Home), Herbert Sussan, Alan Neuman and John Goetz. Someone at NBC took a second look and things are now back to normal for Tuesday evenings with The Eddie Fisher Show and The George Gobel Show, instead of the previous title inversions. Although Polly Bergen is set as the star of the alternating Saturday half-hour, 9-9:30pm NYT over NBC for Max Factor (after an unprecedented "loan-out" from CBS), the Liggett & Myers portion of the program, intended to star Dean Martin, is still a headache. Martin originally only wanted to do four to six shows, in addition to his two specials committed for other sponsors, and then grudgingly went up to a possible 10, but has balked at going over that. Among familiar names that will be returning to the airwaves are Johnny Carson as the m.c. of the new ABC daytime version of Do You Trust Your Wife, starting Sept 30, Monday thru Friday, 4:30-5pm EDT, originating in New York, and Jay Jackson as m.c. of the evening version of Tic Tac Dough, starting Sept 12, Thursdays, 7:30-8pm EDT, over NBC. Jackson was last seen regularly as moderator of Twenty Questions on the old Du Mont net. The Nat "King" Cole Show will move to its new early Tuesday evening time on Sept 24, 7:30-8pm NYT, with the same production staff, musical backing and guest policy currently prevailing in the 10-10:30pm spot.
