"WE Canadians do not have and do not need brilliant minds, but we must have clean, healthy ones. The glorious outdoors really cleans your mind out—cleans your mind clear out. The pioneers who made Canada were strong and healthy. We, too, must push back the bush. Get out and bush-push—breathe air, breathe air . . ." That was Jane Mallett, speaking right out of the photograph at the right, in one of the many impeccable characterizations that have endeared her to Toronto theatre-goers. Along with her stage work, she continues to be one of the busiest of our radio players—and at the same time she's getting ready for television.

Jane Mallett

THE scene is one of the CBC's Toronto studios. A play, rehearsal, scheduled for 3:30, has finally begun at 3:33, after several minutes of resigned clock-watching. Suddenly into the control room bursts a small, quick-moving, amber-haired figure with an intensely worried expression. "Sorry, I'm late," she pants, in a slightly roughened voice. "The most dreadful thing happened! My taxi ran into a sewer excavation. We were sailing right along and then this squirrel began racing us in

Nature Woman—"Bush-Pushing"

Queen's Park, and . . ." The producer turns on the talk-back. "Five-minute break," he tells the cast, and settles down to listen to the dramatized story of what made Jane Mallett late—again.

Everything happens to Jane, and she makes the most of it. Her excuses are always involved and funny (one actor makes a collection of them). As a raconteur she has few equals, and her favourite stories are on herself. As a comedienne, it seems generally agreed, she has no equals in Canada. Place her in the running with actresses as well able to handle straight dramatic roles, and the field is not at all crowded.

She was in the first of the CBC's Sunday night Stage broadcasts—Stage 44 it was then—and she has been one of the most frequently-heard actresses in the series ever since. She played Aunt Mary in John and Judy for six years. Now she is heard frequently in CBC Wednesday Night plays, Theatre Hour, The Craigs (the noon-hour farm broadcast serial for Ontario and Quebec, in which she plays Mary Walkins); (Please turn to page 2)

Here's a different JANE MALLET from the one on the cover—there are hundreds of them. This one is the aging film star at a script conference, who says: "Ah, I see it all now—white woman, brown man, against the technicolor wilderness. But what's there in it for me?"

Brave Voyage (a daytime serial, in which she plays Mrs. Harris, a maid); and she has been in dozens of other short stories and one-occasion programs. Originally Mrs. Harris in Brave Voyage was to have faded away after a few programs, but Jane's characterization made such a hit that Mrs. Harris was retained among the regulars.

But comedy is her greatest love—dry, penetrating, and outrageously funny. For the last four seasons, Jane has added her most successful comedy roles to an already full schedule as star of the review Spring Thaw which runs annually in Toronto's Museum

Canadiana. Nova Scotia Folklore, talks by Helen Creighton of Dartmouth. Tonight: Death Sends a Warning, a talk on the belief in premonitions and "forerunners" of death and disaster.

Theatre. Her sharply-drawn satire on the "nature woman"—sharp but not malicious—was one of the highlights of last year's performance.

Jane Mallett is a Keenleyside, a family with distinguished members in the professions and in public service. Jane is immensely proud of them, and they're proud of Jane, their only contribution to the entertainment world. She was born in London, Ontario; but Regina, where she grew up, seems to her more like her home town. There was a big family of Keenleysides—six—and they were all shipped out to the west coast for the summer, and then back to Toronto to attend university as they got older. "We nearly supported the C.P.R. single-familied," Jane recalls.

In college she gravitated naturally to dramatics, and the awakening was mutual. After getting her B.A. she went into teaching, first at Bishop Strachan School in Toronto, and then in small rural schools in the West. Finally she moved back East in search of something more stimulating. One day the mail brought a letter from her father, enclosing a large newspaper clipping about a performance by Ruth Draper. "I think this is the sort of thing you could do," he told her. "But I had beaten him to the punch," Jane says. "I had already started doing solo pieces at banquets and other social events."

She never went looking for jobs—they always came to her; but like most talented people, she has worked hard and long at polishing her craft. Her sense of timing, erratic in terms of getting to an appointed place at an appointed time, is impeccable in front of an audience. She learned it all on the job, initially as a member of George Keppie's stock company at the old Empire Theatre in Toronto.

With Keppie's company she appeared as everything from an ingenue to a grande dame, with starring roles in Elizabeth Sleeps Out, Personal Appearance, The Show-off, The Gorilla, and The Merchant of Venice. She played on the road and in Toronto, taking time out in 1932 to have her son, John. She had met

Club Clinic. Club Clinic opens its doors again to ailing organizations about to collapse as a result of executive quarrels, poor attendance, dull programs and other chronic problems. In the eight broadcasts prominent Canadian club women will suggest ways for reviving interest among lethargic club members. This afternoon, Isabel LeBourdais, who has served on the executive committees of numerous Toronto women's organizations, will talk about the duties and pleasures of being a club president. From Toronto.

W-3:45 p.m. K-2:45 p.m. X-2:45 p.m.

Famous People. Stories of famous people, written by Frances Wilcox. Today's story is about the famous Canadian poetess Pauline Johnston. From Vancouver.

K-5:30 p.m. X-5:30 p.m.
Tuesday, Nov. 6, W-5:00 p.m.

Jazz Unlimited. Another monthly Jazz Unlimited concert will be heard tonight. It will feature the George Arthurs Trio (George Arthurs, guitar; Jimmy Coxson, piano; Howie Morris, bass), supplemented by Doug Bennett on drums; Graham Topping, trumpet; Ross Culley, trombone; Roy Smith, tenor saxophone. Dick MacDougal is master of ceremonies. From Toronto.

Dom. 7:00 p.m. MST

Farm Forum. Discussions on social and economic problems. Tonight: Are Co-ops Democratic? Norman F. Priestley, secretary of the Alberta Co-op Union and former general manager of the United Farmers Association Co-ops, will take an affirmative stand against F. E. Smith, a grain farmer

The CBC calls on all sorts of experts for advice about specialized programs, so it really wasn't surprising when Ody, the pet skunk of R. S. Lambert, supervisor of school broadcasts, turned up at the Toronto studios recently to help edit the script about skunks for last week's National School Broadcast. Ody is a year-and-a-half old, and quite a dainty thing to have around since his spray gun was removed. Mr. Lambert says he is very well behaved, with only occasional displays of temper, marked by a stamping of feet. He eats table scraps, and is especially fond of meat, raw eggs, jam and honey. After his meals he goes through quite an elaborate toilet, even brushing his teeth with his claws. Once a week Mr. Lambert gives him a bath. He loves to be petted, and to go visiting with the Lamberts. Ody didn't just wander in uninvited and take up residence—he is a pet-shop graduate.

and member of the Farmers Protective Association of Manitoba.

JANE MALLETT.

Freddie, her husband, when they played husband-and-wife in a show at Upper Canada College, where he was, and still is, a chemistry teacher. Freddie is a long, lean Englishman; rather quiet, with a well-developed sense of humour of his own (not a defense mechanism); and through the years he has done some stage and radio acting himself, just to keep his hand in. The third member of Jane's male entourage is her architect brother, Pat, who lives with them. Jane's son, John, shows no signs of following in mother's stage footsteps. When he was 12 she asked him if he wanted to act when he grew up. "But Mom, I've been on the stage," he told her. "Remember that time at school last year—in the crowd scene?"

In 1934, with Frances Adaskin and Fred Manning, Jane presented Town Tonics, an annual production of skits and monologues that was to be one of the favourite harbingers of spring around Ontario over a period of ten years, playing in cramped auditoriums and small-town theatres. Manning recalls that Jane's best exit occurred after a scene where she played a bride, in full wedding regalia. The only means of reaching the dressing rooms overhead was by way of a ladder fastened a foot from the edge of the proscenium arch. After Jane made her grand exit from the stage she began a hasty climb to change for the next scene. Half-way up, the curtains flew out unexpectedly and revealed a startled Jane scrambling up the ladder clutching a huge bouquet in one hand, with veil and train draped around her neck, and long, full skirts hoisted over her knees. She just rolled her eyes at the sudden burst of guffaws, and struggled on up.

Around 1935, Jane spent a season in New York doing radio plays. She can't remember her radio debut; says she just found herself in radio, and that was that. She liked the excitement of the big city—goes down there often to visit her two sisters—but Canada is home, and back she came to join the John Holden stock company.

W-2:00 p.m. K-1:00 p.m. X-1:00 p.m.

Our Chief Problem. In every country, people want better living conditions for themselves and their children. Most of them know what their next step towards better living should be, but very often there is a big "if" or "but" standing in the way. Maybe it has something to do with lack of manpower or over-population; lack of productive soil; transportation; money to establish new industries; schools; jobs for trained men; health services; houses; a more representative government; or fair opportunities for women. In a new series on this theme, women homemakers in different countries, who are also well-informed citizens, will describe conditions in their countries which should be changed. Today, Joyce Oliver, an Australian free-lance writer, broadcaster, housewife and mother, will discuss inflation as it affects the Australian home.

W-3:45 p.m. K-2:45 p.m. X-2:45 p.m.

CBC Wednesday Night

Socrates. A repeat performance of Lister Sinclair's play Socrates, based on Plato's and Xenophon's interpretations of the Greek philosopher. The cast will be largely the same as in the original performance two years ago, with Frank Peddie in the title role and other important parts played by Tommy Tweed and John Drainie. Music composed and conducted by Lucio Agostini; Esse Ljungh, producer. From Toronto. Lister Sinclair has contributed the following notes about his play: Socrates of Athens was executed on obscure political charges in 399 B.C., and ever since then we have been trying to find out why. The only first-hand sources are the accounts of Plato and of Xenophon, and Bertrand Russell has very well pointed out that these (particularly Xenophon's) defend Socrates so well that it is very hard to understand why he should have been executed at all. My play is based, therefore, on these two sources. The causes for which Socrates was put to death have been reduced to the simple and familiar one of criticizing the established government, and in this way I hope Socrates will appear as a symbol of the right to speak one's mind, no matter how annoying it may be. But I also hope that the solution adopted by the Athenians, namely, that of suppressing criticism, should not appear as an act of unmitigated tyranny. The really terrible thing about the whole affair seems to me to have been the way in which everyone concerned acted with the best intentions. The death of Socrates and all similar incidents show us clearly that good intentions are not enough, on either side of the argument. Perhaps Socrates himself gives us the answer when he tells us: "Do not kill others, but improve yourselves."

W-7:00 p.m. K-9:00 p.m. X-9:00 p.m.

John Newmark. A short recital by John Newmark at his Clementi piano. From Montreal.

W-9:45 p.m. K-11:30 p.m. X-11:30 p.m.

Orchestral Program. CBC concert orchestra conducted by Howard Cable. From Toronto.

W-10:00 p.m. K-8:30 p.m. X-8:30 p.m.

Oklahoma Symphony. Oklahoma City Symphony Orchestra conducted by Guy Fraser Harrison. From MBS.

Prelude to Die Meistersinger (Wagner); Mexican Rhapsody (Robert McBride); Song for Strings (Richard W. Morse); Theme and Variations from Suite No. 3 (Tchaikovsky).

This program will include at least one work by an American composer each week. This week it is Robert McBride's Mexican Rhapsody which was written in 1934. McBride comes from Tucson and is a graduate of the University of Arizona. From 1935 until the entry of the United States in the Second Great War, he was a member of the music faculty of Bennington College, and in 1941 he made a tour of Central and South America. The Mexican Rhapsody is described as a light and carefree composition based on several Mexican folk-tunes and national dances.

JANE MALLET

Later during the war, she did as many as six shows a week in service camps, canteens and hospitals, carried on her stage and radio work, and packed hundreds of parcels for the Red Cross.

She has a profound knowledge of the theatre and theatre history, and her critical comments about radio and stage work are constructive and to the point. One producer describes her as "theatre all through, always on stage"—but without being boring, arty, or silly. She drives herself hard, and is never satisfied with her work. It must always be improved, no matter how small the role. She reads a lot and listens to the radio as often as her complex schedule allows—usually when she's darning her men's socks. When an idea occurs to her she does something about it right away. Her purse usually is filled with notes to herself on bits of paper: things she has promised to do for people, ideas for skits, and a variety of weird key words that could mean something only to Jane.

Sometimes she gives the impression of being disorganized, but those who know her say that's because she is interested in so many people and

Folk-Song Riches in Nova Scotia

THE highlights of Edith Fowke's trip to the Maritimes this summer were her meetings with some of the farmers and fishermen whose songs turn up from time to time in her program Folk Song Time—Saturdays at 2:30 p.m. on CBW, 1:30 p.m. on CBK-X. Not that these old-timers originated any of the songs, but it was they who first brought them to the attention of folklorist Helen Creighton, who in turn put them on paper—and later they were recorded by professional balladeers. (Miss Creighton is currently broadcasting a series of talks on Nova Scotia folklore—Sundays at 11:15 p.m. on CBK-X, Tuesdays at 7:00 p.m. on CBW.)

John Roast was one of the most interesting. The songs he sang for Mrs. Fowke and her husband included The Crocodile, a sea chantey about a fabulous animal like the great Derby Ram, and a romantic ghost song called William and Margaret. "Mr. Roast lives at Chezzetook a tiny village a few miles from Musquadoiboit Harbour," Mrs. Fowke related. "I asked him if he knew Canaday-I-O, a famous lumberman's song. He didn't, but he knew a much older song about a sailor who was going to 'that beautiful country called Canaday-I-O'. This was the original song from which were derived not only the lumbermen's song, but also the American ballad, The Buffalo Skinners."

"One afternoon, we went along with Helen Creighton while she recorded songs sung by a man with the remarkable name of Grace Clergy! She also took us to see old Ben Henneberry, who is 87 and laid up with a bad heart. He was one of the first to sing folk songs for her, back in 1928 when he was living on Devil's Island. One of Miss Creighton's best women singers is a Mrs. Duncan, well over 80, who protests that her voice is gone. But she's as spry as a cricket and can still convey the charm of some of the old romantic love songs."

Balladeer JOHN ROAST with the FOWKES.

School for Parents. Guiding Our Children, a series of talks by Dr. S. R. Laycock, Dean of Education at the University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Laycock feels that one of the requisites for a happy personality is self-confidence. At the White House Conference on Children and Youth, which he attended last year, it was decided that the job of building self-confidence in a child should start when he takes his first steps, and that the most important period in this part of his development lasts from that time until his fifth year. Of course, the parents' responsibility goes right on, as Dr. Laycock shows in his second talk, which concerns some six-year-olds he knows.

Radio Cartoons. Alas, Poor Yogurt, a radio cartoon on growing old, by Ted Pearce of Vancouver. Golder found growing old a terrifying experience and after diligent search in the realm of diet, exercise and abstinence of various kinds, he hit on the happy secret of how to grow younger instead of older. You would think that this discovery would make everyone very happy, but it didn't. Growing old is a relative matter, Golder found, and there's not much fun in playing with a yo-yo if everybody else is more interested in drinking weak tea and taking cat-naps. The case will include James Johnston, Walter Marsh, Ed MacNamara, Peg Dixon and Joe Austen.

K-9:45 p.m. X-9:45 p.m.

Vancouver Concert. CBC Vancouver Concert Orchestra conducted by John Avison. From Vancouver.

A Children's Overture (Quilter); things, more than she has time for. Like her feet, her mind travels so fast that she's usually talking about two or three subjects at once, leaving her listeners to finish sentences and connect thoughts.

In recent weeks, Jane Mallett has added television to her repertoire of media, getting back into greasepaint for a closed-circuit television play at CBC Toronto. "I dreaded it," she says, "but it turned out not so different from stage acting, although quite a challenge. I think it's going to be fun." Acting before cameras isn't anything new for her, for last spring she made a film for the National Film Board (so far not released), based on some of the high-jinks in Spring Thaw. They called her one-take Mallett, but she didn't like the standing around on cold sets and getting up early in the morning.

When she made the transition from stage to radio, an old friend said to Freddie: "She's taking on a tough job. The competition is terrific." He is said to have replied, with more truth than originality, "But there's always room for the cream to come to the top." That's Jane Mallett—zany, charming, and a great actress.—J.G.

« « NOTES » »

The Royal Visit. From Charlottetown, arrival at the Legislative buildings; greetings by the Premier; guard of honor; entry into the Confederation Chamber.
W-9:45 a.m. K-8:45 a.m. X-8:45 a.m.

The Royal Visit. At the Exhibition Grounds in Charlottetown for harness racing (weather permitting).
W-1:15 p.m. K-12:15 p.m. X-12:15 p.m.

School Broadcast. For everyone interested in the problem of conserving soil, water, fish, flesh and fowl—but particularly for National School Broadcast listeners in Grades 7-9—the CBC presents a series of plays by Len Peterson called The Adventures of Nanna-Bijou. The series is about the Indian demi-god Nanna-Bijou and his efforts to follow the instructions of the great Manitou, who ordered: "Let there be always harmony and abundant life in the Garden of Canada."
W-3:00 p.m. K-2:00 p.m. X-2:00 p.m.

Christmas Gifts. Hazel Stevenson, CBC consultant on home sewing, is currently giving a series of talks on new ideas for making Christmas gifts. Last week she gave directions for making gifts for the table. This afternoon she will talk about travelling aids, such as a lingerie pack of quilted plastic, a hat box, a garment cover, a jewelry catch-all that folds away, and a utility bag for gloves, hosiery and purses. Next week her directions will be for making oven mitts, plastic covers for kitchen gadgets and novelty aprons. On the 23rd she will tell how to make Christmas door decorations, including a candy cane and a Santa Claus. From Toronto.
W-3:45 p.m. K-2:45 p.m. X-2:45 p.m.

The Royal Visit. Dinner given by the Prince Edward Island Government. Address by the Duke of Edinburgh.
W-6:45 p.m. K-5:45 p.m. X-5:45 p.m.

Theatre Hour. The Innocents, the first play by William Archibald, a promising young writer who was born in Trinidad. He is known for his painting almost as widely as for his writing. The play was first performed on Broadway in February, 1950, and received the approval of the critics. It is based on Henry James' classic, The Turn of the Screw. Critics have never been able to agree on the meaning of the original story. One interpretation is that the ghosts which appear are only creatures of the heroine's mind. Another critic claims that the story is an outright psychological study. For the stage, Archibald chose to concentrate on the ghosts rather than the psychology. The radio adaptation is by Lister Sinclair. From Toronto.
Dom. 7:00 p.m. MST

Vancouver Theatre. The Conscience of Marcus Craig, by Charles Hatton, an English writer. From Vancouver. Michael Collins takes the title role,

Frank Wade

Junior Club News
On CBC Broadcasts

This week three groups of young people from the Prairie Provinces will leave their farm homes for Toronto where they will represent Boys' and Girls' Farm Clubs at the National Club Contests to be held there November 11-16. Competitions will consist of judging and oral tests for each of the projects. Boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 21 from all parts of Canada will be competing.

On Saturday, the groups from the West will arrive in Winnipeg to be joined by the Manitoba members. CBC Farm Broadcast commentators Bob Knowles and Lionel Moore will be at the station to record interviews before they leave for Toronto. The recordings will be heard on the Junior Farm Club broadcast on CBW at 12:15 p.m.

The CBC Farm Broadcast department has made arrangements to have the results of the competitions wired to Winnipeg and Edmonton for inclusion in the daily Farm Broadcasts for the Prairies. In addition, on-the-spot interviews and reports will be recorded in Toronto by Peter Whitwith Frank Wade playing the supporting lead. The story is an interesting character study of a man with a conscience. Marcus Craig is a wealthy and successful banker whose success weighs heavily on his mind. The fantastic and intricate way in which he gains his eminence in the banking world is minutely described and keeps the listener in a state of suspense until the climax.

W-10:30 p.m. K-9:30 p.m. X-9:30 p.m.

Northern Messenger. This week's broadcast will again be heard fifteen minutes later than usual. Next Friday, October 16, the broadcast will return to its regular time.
W-12:30 a.m. K-11:30 p.m. X-11:30 p.m.

tall, Norn Garrioch and other members of the CBC Farm Broadcast. These will also be heard on the Farm Broadcast during the competition and the following week.

On November 29, the CBC Farm Broadcast in Winnipeg will be host to 120 Manitoba Junior Club members. They will be in the city to attend Junior Club Week and will be in the studio to watch the broadcast and meet the commentators.

Shank's Pony

ON the last few Sunday nights, passers-by behind the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto may have noticed a man sprinting along the street. He appeared each week at exactly the same time—a minute after 9:00 o'clock—coming from the direction of the CBC Playhouse on Grenville Street and heading for the Jarvis Street studios of the CBC. The man was Esse Ljungh, at the height of what he called his D-Day. At 8:30 Ljungh produces the half-hour show with the Leslie Bell Singers at the Playhouse, and for four Sundays his next appointment after it went off the air was just 15 seconds later—in the big Studio G on Jarvis Street for Stage 52. Producer Art Hiller was enlisted to put the Stage cast through the first few minutes of the play; but Ljungh, naturally, wanted to take over as soon as possible. The first night he tried a taxi, but traffic lights and paying off the driver ate up five-and-a-half precious minutes. Then he discovered that Shank's pony would get him there faster! Rehearsing the two shows was a problem, too, but this was solved by sandwiching the Stage 52 dress rehearsal into the two-hour dinner break in rehearsals for the other show. This Sunday, with J. Frank Willis taking over the Sunday-night plays, Ljungh can relax a little.

CBC TIMES

(PRAIRIE EDITION)

Published weekly by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation at its Prairie Region Headquarters, 300 Telephone Building, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Editor: C. E. L'AMÉ.

Subscription Rate, $1.00 per year. Authorized as Second Class Mail, Post Office Department, Ottawa. Postmaster: Please return if not delivered within five days.

With his hand cupped behind his ear, to hear the sound of his voice more clearly, CBC newscaster EARL CAMERON reads the National News Bulletin from Toronto. He started in radio 12 years ago at Moose Jaw, first as an operator, and later as announcer, writer, and commercial manager. In 1944 he joined the CBC in Toronto, and has been announcing the news ever since.

At the Movies

with CLYDE GILMOUR

A couple of new movies now in circulation contain fairly frank and unorthodox comment on phases of our society which are not often scrutinized closely on the popular screen. By a coincidence, both have universities as their setting.

SATURDAY'S HERO has college football as its subject. But you won't find any rah-rah psychology and last-minute touchdowns in this movie. What you will find is a savage expose of athletic commercialism on the campus . . . According to this disturbing chronicle, about the only

"amateur" sport remaining in America is hopscotch . . . The actual football shots are as vivid and violent as I've ever seen in the films . . .

PEOPLE WILL TALK is the keenly-awaited 1951 opus from producer Darryl F. Zanuck and writer-director Joseph L. Mankiewicz, who last year gave us ALL ABOUT EVE. Their new film is not nearly so notable as its predecessor, but it contains enough smart dialogue and reasonably grown-up philosophy to make it an item worth seeing. "An item worth hearing" might be a more illuminating way of saying this, because the title is all too indicative of the film's relentless wordiness . . .

While we're on the subject of movies intended for customers other than the bubble-gum set, I'd like to put in a word for a Hollywood crime-drama called THE PROWLER. This is not recommended for sheltered children or for older ticket-buyers who want all films to fit cozily into the category of "light entertainment." Adults less restricted in their appetites are likely to agree that here is a picture which chooses a harsh but honest story and tells it with an integrity and vitality sufficient to command respect on either side of the Atlantic. It concerns a sordid and murderous love affair between a crooked policeman and the restless wife of a middle-aged radio disk-jockey. — From Critically Speaking.

Tokyo Performance of "The Mikado"

RECENTLY Japan had its first opportunity to see The Mikado by Gilbert and Sullivan—complete with a Japanese cast. The performance took place in Tokyo and Norman McBain, CBC correspondent in Korea and the Far East, was there to see it.

The opera, he reported, was presented by The International War-Bereaved Mothers' Association and commemorated the signing of the Japanese Peace Treaty. Evidently, it all went off very well although language presented a major difficulty and McBain said that sprightly patter-songs sung in English by a Japanese chorus had to be heard to be appreciated. Nevertheless, the audience—soldiers and Japanese citizens—loved them, and the show was an enormous success.

Most of the old jokes were still there, but there were one or two topical additions. For example, when Ko-Ko and Pooh-Bah were trying to decide on a victim for the execution and Ko-Ko was suggested, he remarked: "Old samurai never die—they only fade away." That one, according to McBain, had a mixed reception.

After the final curtain, he went back-stage and, with the aid of an interpreter, talked to members of the cast. Miho Nigato, the Yum-Yum of the performance, remarked that the big problem they had to overcome was to convince the cast that The Mikado was a satire on English life of the time and not a caricature of things Japanese. Miss Nigato paid Gilbert and Sullivan a compliment by saying that she thought the music truly suggested Japan.

The cast had been working on the show periodically for four years, but the actual performance was the first time that they had sung the entire opera. They have also been rehearsing The Old Maid and The Thief by Menotti and Puccini's Madam Butterfly, although there has been no performance yet of either of these. Much credit for the Mikado production went to an American sergeant who had been working with the cast ever since they started singing in English.

McBain congratulated the singers on a good workmanlike job in a language they neither spoke nor understood. As he left he heard a tongue-in-cheek remark: "The make-up sure was good," a soldier said. "Why you'd almost swear the cast was Japanese."
