Gino Silvy Sextet

“VOCAL groups are coming into their own at last,” Gino Silvy told us in an interview recently. And that is good news for him, for he’s the organizer, coach and arranger for a mixed group of young people known as the Gino Silvy Sextet or the Gino Silvy Singers, depending on the whim of the producers who direct their radio and TV appearances.

“Over the last two years,” Silvy continued, “I’ve noticed that whenever a new singer is introduced on recordings, he or she is usually supported by a vocal group. This not only produces a fuller sound, but makes the platter more interesting and important. And better still—groups are not just being heard as background on radio, TV and records, but they’re being used as an integral part of the show, especially in the States. And the more they’re used below the border, the more Canadians are inclined to use them!”

Silvy’s group has been heard through the summer in Starlight Moods on Thursday nights and on Trans-Canada Hit Parade on Saturday nights. When they first began the Saturday show, three members of the sextet were unavailable for the first few shows, due to other commitments, and Silvy had a difficult time finding suitable substitutes.

“This field of group singing is brand new and practically untouched,” he said, “and I can’t understand why more vocalists don’t give it a whirl. I auditioned well over 12 people for replacements on the show, and it was then I discovered that group singers are at a premium—in Toronto anyway. Not more than (Please turn to page 6)

RECITAL. Patricia Lewis, pianist. From Montreal.

W-9:30 a.m. K-9:30 a.m. X-8:30 a.m.

HARMONY HARBOUR. Songs and stories of the sea with the Acadian Male Quartet and organist Marjorie Payne. From Halifax.

Quartet: In Frisco Bay; A Song of Ships; Wade in de Water; The One-Eyed Riley; The Three Sailor Boys; Over the Sea to Skye; Come Loose Every Sail.

K-10:30 a.m. X-9:30 a.m.

RELIGIOUS PERIOD. Rev. Norman Rawson, Centenary United Church, Hamilton.

W-1:30 p.m. K-12:30 p.m. X-11:30 a.m.

NBC SYMPHONY. NBC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Izler Solomon.

Les petits riens (Mozart); Symphony No. 5 in E Minor (Dvorak).

Although Dvorak's Fourth and Fifth symphonies were completed within three years of each other, the Fifth or New World which will be heard today quickly outdistanced the Fourth in popularity. Immediate acceptance and controversy marked the first performance of No. 5 in Carnegie Hall in 1893. The controversy centred around a suggestion that Dvorak had incorporated American folk songs into it. Dvorak later settled the dispute himself when he denied that he had incorporated folk songs note for note in his symphony. "I have tried," he said later, "to write only in the spirit of those national American melodies."

W-2:00 p.m. K-1:00 p.m. X-12:00 noon

CHURCH OF THE AIR. Very Rev. H. H. Clark, Dean of Christ Church Cathedral, Ottawa.

Dom. 2:30 p.m. MDT

CRITICALLY SPEAKING. Nathan Cohen on movies, Mary Currie on books, and Wilfred Eggleston on radio programs.

W-3:30 p.m. K-2:30 p.m. X-1:30 p.m.

ASK THE WEATHERMAN. Talks about the weather by R. A. Hornstein, Dominion Public Weather Office, Halifax. Every once in a while a great deal of excitement is caused by the alleged phenomenal predictions of some one-man weather bureau. In some cases the individual concerned has been a reputable scientist; in others he is a sensation-seeker, or worse. Today, Mr. Hornstein will discuss a Canadian who gained widespread notoriety in this field, as a preliminary to a review of the accomplishments of some of the earnest scientists who, during the last century, have done much to aid in the development of the modern weather forecast service.

W-5:05 p.m. K-4:05 p.m. X-3:05 p.m.

DISTINGUISHED ARTISTS. Randolph Hokanson, pianist. From Toronto.

Toccatto in F Sharp Minor (Bach); two Etudes in E Minor and F Major, Opus 25 (Chopin); Piano Sonata No. 2 (1952) by Dorothy Cadzow.

W-5:30 p.m. K-4:30 p.m. X-3:30 p.m.

SUNDAY CHORALE. Choir conducted by W. H. Anderson; Filmer Hubble, organist. From Winnipeg.

O Father, All Creating; Call to Remembrance; Holy Spirit, Truth Divine; Thine Forever, God of Love; How Calmly the Evening; Gracious Spirit, Holy Ghost; Rejoice in the Lord.

W-6:00 p.m. K-5:00 p.m. X-4:00 p.m.

CHAMBER MUSIC. First of three programs from Vancouver by the de Rimanoczy Quartet.

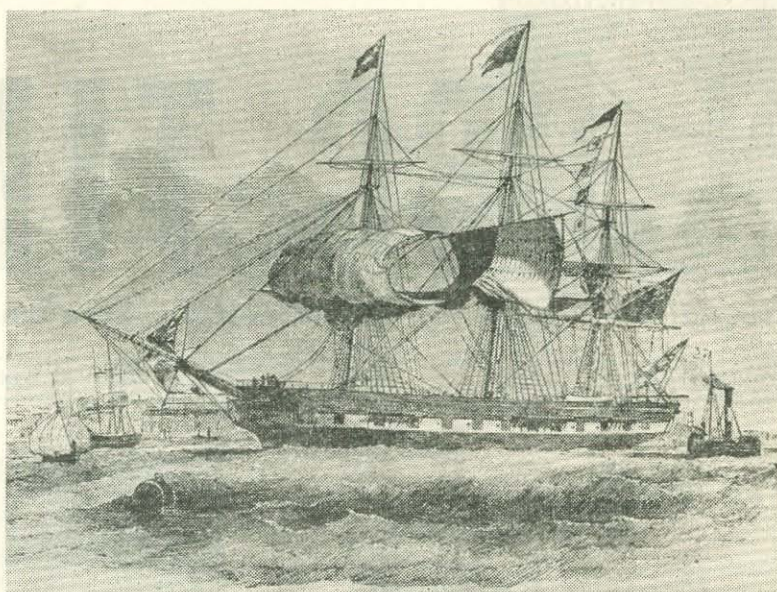

Quartet Opus 95 in F Minor (Beethoven).

Members of the quartet are Jean de Rimanoczy, first violin; John Chlumicky, second violin; Smyth Humpherys, viola; Audrey Piggott, cello.

W-6:30 p.m. K-5:30 p.m. X-4:30 p.m.

WINNIPEG CONCERT. CBC Winnipeg Concert Orchestra conducted by Eric Wild. Norman Lucas, producer. From Winnipeg.

La Cenerentola Overture (Rossini); Music for Shakespeare's Romeo and

"Days of Sail"—the Marco Polo in her heyday on the England-Australia run.

Juliet (David Diamond); Symphony in B Flat Major, No. 2 (Schubert); Sinfonietta (Arne).

W-7:00 p.m. K-6:00 p.m. X-5:00 p.m.

DAYS OF SAIL. She Never Was a Lady, the fourth program in this series by Joseph Schull, tells the story of the great New Brunswick clipper, Marco Polo. Built in 1850 in the shipyards of James Smith at Saint John, the Marco Polo was to have a keel 184 feet long, two feet longer than the Beejapore already under construction by the Wright brothers and planned to be the biggest vessel ever constructed in Saint John. When the Marco Polo was begun, the on-lookers' eyes bugged at what they termed "James Smith's folly." The lines departed drastically from the normal pattern of timber ships; she was like a box with bows, sat like a duck on top, and cut away to nothing underneath. However, misfortunes plagued Smith but when the ship was finally launched she made Liverpool in 15 days—a sensational passage. Finally she was bought for a song by James Baines, the owner of the famous Black Ball lines, and lavishly outfitted as a passenger ship to run between England and Australia. It was during her days as a clipper ship that she achieved world-wide fame. J. Frank Willis, producer. From Toronto.

W-8:00 p.m. K-7:00 p.m. X-6:00 p.m.

WEEKEND REVIEW. An analysis of the week's news by Marcus Long, Philosophy Department, University of Toronto.

W-9:10 p.m. K-8:10 p.m. X-7:10 p.m.

LITTLE SYMPHONIES. Orchestra conducted by Roland Leduc. From Montreal.

Symphony No. 103—La Timbale (Haydn).

W-9:30 p.m. K-8:30 p.m. X-7:30 p.m.

FROM THE OPERAS. Orchestra conducted by Jean Deslauriers; Maureen Forrester, contralto; Guy Piche, tenor. From Montreal.

Maureen Forrester: Divinites du Styx from Alceste (Gluck); Guy Piche: Flower Song from Carmen (Bizet). Duet: Mon Coeur s'ouvre a ta voix from Samson and Delilah (Saint-Saens). Orchestra: Dance of the Buffons, and Snegourotchka (Rimsky-Korsakov); Intermezzo from Manon Lescaut (Puccini).

During the last year critics have recognized Maureen Forrester as one of Canada's most promising young

A Healthy Sign

When he appeared on CBC Wednesday Night just after the opening of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, Dr. Tyrone Guthrie, the festival director, was asked by CBC commentator Thom Benson: "Now that such a movement as this has been started in Canada, where do you think it may go from here?" Dr. Guthrie replied:

"Ah, well now, that's anybody's guess. I think this is part of a much bigger movement. I think this festival is not going to be the cause of something, but is the result of something. What attracted and interested me about the whole project more than anything else was that it seemed an expression of something that Canada was ripe for. I think this is just one of the thousands of things that are going to burst out in the next year or two, as Canada becomes aware of its power, its importance in the world, and that the Canadian spirit simply must be expressed in something more than just box car loads of this and ship loads of that. The community spirit is something more than just material expression; and, hitherto, to the world, as you will agree, Canada has seemed an enormous great, rather empty place, full of huge material potentialities. But now I seem to sense that Canadians are rather anxious to impress the world that the potentialities are not merely material but spiritual, that Canadians can be rather interesting and exciting people and that Canada is a breeding ground of people and not merely a breeding ground of the raw materials for industrial commodities."

artists. She has been chosen by La Jeunesse Musicale to give 40 concerts in Quebec and Ontario this fall and winter season. Also during the coming season she will sing with the Montreal Symphony Orchestra. Miss Forrester is a native of Montreal and is studying under Bernard Diamant. She is a winner of an Opportunity Knocks series and two scholarships. Guy Piche studied in Montreal under the D.V.A. plan after serving with the R.C.A.F., then won a scholarship to Indiana University where he received further training under Hans Busch. He has sung leading roles at Le Theatre des Varietes Lyriques and is scheduled to appear there soon in Madam Butterfly.

PRAIRIE RAILROADS. In the first of a new series of talks about prairie railroads J. W. Chafe of Winnipeg tells the story of the C.P.R.'s "Countess of Dufferin," which now stands in front of the Winnipeg station. This locomotive—the first to reach the prairies—was named for the wife of the Governor-General who passed it on its way down the Red River to Winnipeg from St. Paul on a flat-boat. Tracks were laid for it when it was rolled off the boat at Point Douglas and in 1878 it began its run between St. Boniface and St. Vincent and what is now the C.P.R. Pembina branch. Subsequent talks in the next five weeks at this time by Dan Worden of Saskatoon and Ken Liddell of Calgary trace the development of prairie railroads to the modern day of diesel express. Michael Hind-Smith, producer. From Winnipeg.

Austrian IS Repr. Touring Prairies

Mrs. Ruth Auersperg, of the Austrian section of the CBC International Service, is touring the prairies in search of material for documentary programs to be used in broadcasts for shipment to local Austrian stations, not served at present by IS shortwave.

In Winnipeg September 1 to 3, Mrs. Auersperg prepared a documentary on two Austrian physicians now working in Winnipeg hospitals—Drs. Semelka and Friedrich.

BBC PRESENTS. Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, is the subject of tonight's broadcast in the series, The British Overseas, recalling great figures of the Commonwealth. The voice of Baden-Powell himself will be heard, from the BBC's transcription archives, and many who knew him will recall memories. They include: His widow, Lady Baden-Powell; Mrs. Wade, his secretary for 27 years and one of his biographers; Colonel Granville Walton, overseas commissioner, and Fred Hurl, chief executive commissioner of the Scouts; Richard Lund, secretary of the Boy Scouts International Bureau in London; General Sir Alexander Godley, who served with B.-P. in Africa; and Sergeant Michael Duffy, who was stationed at Meerut in 1897.

Baden-Powell was born in London in 1857, son of Professor Baden-Powell of Oxford. He served in India, Afghanistan, and South Africa with the 13th Hussars, and was chief staff officer in the campaign in Matabelaland in 1896-97. His defence of Mafeking (1899-1900) was a celebrated feat of generalship and down-to-earth commonsense. Many of the clever tricks of woodcraft and camp life taught in the Scouts were developed by B.-P. during this long siege. Baden-Powell retired from the army in 1910, with the rank of major-general, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., K.C.B. He was created a baronet in 1922 and baron in 1929. He died in Kenya in 1941.

CRIME IS OUR BUSINESS. Several years ago a Chinese cafe proprietor in Liverpool's dockside area was killed. On the surface it looked like a very simple crime. Then the affair began to take on a bit of colour. The English press pricked up its ears, and the trial disclosed a tale of revenge for murder and robbery committed in the Far East. The background in the story is enacted for listeners in this BBC-transcribed series.

Stay Tuned!

As the leaves start tumbling down, they seem to take the shape of newly-typed script pages bearing news about the radio shows which will make up the schedule of autumn entertainment on the CBC's Trans-Canada and Dominion networks. Here are the probable starting dates of some of the top-flight Canadian radio programs which will be reappearing on the networks during the next few weeks:

In Search of Ourselves Human relations—mental health. September 22—Dominion.

Jake and The Kid Written by W. O. Mitchell. September 27—Trans-Canada.

Fiddle Joe's Yarns Written by Charles Wassermann. September 27—Trans-Canada.

The Rawhide Show With Max Ferguson. September 28—Trans-Canada.

HERE COMES THE BAND. Continental band conducted by Jake Park; Reg Gibson, vocalist. A. E. Parr, producer. From Winnipeg.

Band: Sometime Polka; Finska Valsen; Josephine Polka; Swedish Hills Schottische; Dutchman's Waltz; Clarinet Polka; Champagne Polka. Reg Gibson: Too Fat Polka; Papa Won't You Dance With Me?; Blue Skirt Waltz.

A Sleep of Prisoners

Author's Comment

By CHRISTOPHER FRY (From Radio Times—not to be reprinted without permission)

THE first thought of A Sleep of Prisoners came on a summer afternoon in 1950. I had been invited by the Religious Drama Society to write a play for them for the Festival of Britain and could bring myself neither to say "Yea" nor "Nay." I had vague ideas for two plays in my head, but both were for the theatre. I had planned to start work on one of them soon.

for Strings, Opus 22 (Dvorak); two movements from a suite written for the film Henry V (Sir William Walton); Symphony for Strings (William Schumann).

POETRY READINGS. Earlier this summer, George Whalley was heard on Trans-Canada Matinee in a series of poetry readings. Tonight he will begin a four-part "introduction to poetry"—talking about the art and illustrating his remarks with a variety of readings drawn from many sources. He is associate professor of English at Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario, where he was born. He was educated at Bishop's University, at London University, and at Oxford, where he was a Rhodes Scholar. He served with the Royal Navy during the Second Great War and is at present commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Cataraqui, the reserve training station in Kingston. Whalley's latest book, Poetic Process, will soon be published in London. No Man an Island, a collection of his own poems, appeared in Canada in 1948. From Toronto.

W-10:45 p.m. K-11:30 p.m. X-10:30 p.m.

On the other hand, I knew it was wrong ever to say "No" too soon or too definitely, since the right thing so often comes from the unforeseen. Then, on that summer afternoon, Michael MacOwan came for afternoon tea, and as we sat drinking it in London sunshine behind the house, he said that the play (if I wrote it) should be not a play performed in a church, but a play in which the action happened in a church.

Now three miles away from my cottage in the Cotswolds is the village of Burford, and in Burford, in 1649, six Cromwellian soldiers were imprisoned in the church, and one carved his name on the font — Antony Sedley Prisoner 1649. So the seed of A Sleep was sown. The play should be about a church turned into a prison camp, the prisoners not Cromwellians but men of our own time. This was an exciting idea to me, and before tea was over, another idea had joined the first one.

It has always seemed to me that the differences and conflicts between men spring often—perhaps more often than not—from the differences between the outward armor, the facades behind which we hide our spirits. Perhaps the design of the play could be to show first of all a group of men as they seemed on the surface to each other, and then let them sleep and dream, each man dreaming of the other three and of himself, so that each character would be seen four times over.

What is the truth of a man? What is difference; what is conflict? Sir Max Beerbohm once said that if two men disagree about the character of another, the one who likes him is always in the right. By the time tea was over, I was sure that this was the one play I wanted to write at the present time.

But there was a great difficulty—what dreams would contain these ideas? How long would it be before I could work out such a complicated play? How, on a church chancel, could I make it dramatically clear what were dreams and what was waking? How could the men be sleeping in their bunks and moving about in one another's dreams?

Several weeks went by: the R.D.S. wanted an answer. I was asked to go to tea with Martin Browne and to meet MacOwan again. I set off in my car knowing that I must say it was no use: the play wouldn't take shape. And then, half way there, driving through Regent's Park, it was suddenly clear what the dreams must be. The men were locked up in a church; the church would remind them of what they remembered from their childhood of Bible stories. Cain and Abel . . . Abraham and Isaac. David and Absalom fell into place soon after.

And then? I knew what I wanted to say, but where was the dream to say it? I wanted to move from division to unity, to say that we are all souls in one sorrow, and above all to say that the answer is in ourselves, in each individual, and that each individual has in him the elements of God. What will carry the day is the belief that the good in human nature is even more powerful than the evil, if, with our whole hearts and lives, we abide by it.

I think it was Martin Browne who said? "How about Shadrac, Meshac, and Abednego?" and I saw how right that could be: the three men who had been concerned in difference now walking the same fiery furnace together, and the fourth figure, walking with them and keeping them from destruction, the human being with all his powers of hope, trust, love, and relentless will for good. The play could not end in a glorious trumpeting, or even the indication of victory—we have too far to travel for that—but certainly in hope.

So I started the play. The greatest problem was to condense as much as A SLEEP OF PRISONERS. Christopher Fry's A Sleep of Prisoners returns for its setting to the origin of the English drama, the church. The verse play, written for the 1951 Festival of Britain, has been performed in British, American and Canadian churches. An introductory talk by the British theatrical producer Michael MacOwan will precede the play. MacOwan produced two other Fry plays, Thor with Angels and A Phoenix Too Frequent, and was responsible for both the original production in Great Britain and the United States production of A Sleep of Prisoners.

To the acting version of the original play, the author has added an explanatory narration for radio broadcast. The four members of the CBC cast have all been featured in previous productions of the play. Leonard White, Donald Harron, W. H. Brodie and Patrick McNee appeared in a Toronto production last April by the Jupiter Theatre. White also appeared in the original London production as well as with Donald Harron in New York. The narrator for the broadcast will be Barry Morse. J. Frank Willis, producer. From Toronto.

MUSIC OF THE PEOPLE. Midland Light Orchestra under the direction of Gilbert Vinter in a program of traditional airs of many lands. BBC transcription.

Program: three tunes from Hungary—a sentimental song, a comic song and a czardas; from France—gay little nursery tunes, Ma Normandie and the famous Aupres de ma blonde; Russian tunes including the Song of the Volga Boatmen; melodies from Belgium; airs from the Highlands and Lowlands of Scotland including Loch Lomond and the March of the Cameron Highlanders.

Just before Gilbert Vinter left the Midlands of England to become conductor of the new BBC Concert Orchestra in London, he recorded this series of programs of traditional airs which are being heard on Thursday nights. The programs contain some of the most popular and characteristic melodies of countries in every part of the world, tunes that have been sung and played for generations past. Members of the BBC's foreign service helped him with their knowledge of the music of their homelands.

JEFFERSONIAN HERITAGE. A series of historical dramas tape-recorded by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters in the United States under a Ford Foundation grant. The series deals with Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States, and his political ideals. The story of Jefferson's fight for religious freedom will be told in the fourth program in this series. The laws of the state of Virginia in 1776 provided penalties against dissenters of the established church. For Thomas Jefferson the struggle to change these laws was a trying task, not only because of the illness of his wife but also because in the legislature of 1776 he was opposing the cherished beliefs of his neighbours and friends. But Thomas Jefferson saw his duty clearly. "To save ourselves from future disension and destruction," he says, "we must grant each human being the free right of conscience and tell a world that watches us that in matters of opinion our philosophy is: Divided we stand, united we fall. Because unity of opinion is uniformity. Because uniformity of conscience is coercion. And coercion is the greatest of all tyrannies over the mind of man."

two of the ones I listened to had the raw material for good group singing. Only the odd concert singer can adapt to group work, and none I heard would do. I had to break in brand new people. The night the show began I used three of them — it was their radio debut. But they caught on very quickly, and now I have experienced substitutes to call on in future emergencies."

We asked him what was his chief objection to using highly trained voices in the group. "Trained vibrato and other qualities stick out in a group. I strive for an over-all blend that sounds like one voice singing five or six harmonies. The greatest female group singer for my money is Jo Stafford. She has two different voices, you know. One for solo work, and one for groups. When called on she can sing the notes the way they look on the sheet, as you must do for good group work, and then she can do her own phrasing for solos. There's quite a knack to suppressing your natural vocal effects, and your personality, to produce an adaptable sound. If one voice sticks out in a sextet, it isn't a group any longer. It's a chorus."

The Sextet has been singing together for about three years, and Silvy says it contains some of the finest, most conscientious people you could find in show business. Most of them are fairly reserved until they're called on to do something difficult, and then they throw themselves into the job with spirit. The success of the group Silvy attributes to the fact that its members know each other very well, like each other, and co-operate. Nearly all of them are solo singers. Silvy has been singing in various small groups in Hamilton and Toronto for 16 years. He joined the Bill Brady Sextet in 1949, and when Brady had to give up directing the group because of other work, Silvy took over. The other five are Clare Kennedy, Babs Babineau, Ellie Van Evera, Ronnie Martin and Freda Wright. Ronnie and Babs sang with Dorsey for a year and made recordings with him. Freda has been heard in most of the leading Toronto clubs and with dance bands; and three others are also instrumentalists: Ellie plays trombone and trumpet, Clare plays trombone, and Silvy plays sax and clarinet—has been a part of Cable's Concert Band since it was organized.

Last year the group sang on The Big Revue, but mostly out of camera range. This season they hope to be back on the show, and viewers will have a chance to see them, too. Several other radio and TV shows are also in the offing. They record a great many commercial jingles, and sometimes, says Silvy, they're called on to do the "darndest" things. "Nothing is too tough for us to try! On Glover's Lane one time we all had to imitate the ticking of different clocks. Boy, what a weird sound that was!" They have barked like dogs on occasion, and have even sung opera.

Recently Silvy has experimented with featuring one or more voices of the group, with the rest singing a separate background. From the reports of listeners and other critics, this has been quite successful. He is constantly looking for new effects and vocal tricks. "Of course I have to throw a lot of them out," he admits, "but we do strike some novel arrangements and sounds. I've tried using tenor sax and chorus with the group, and it seemed to work out pretty well."

I could into an hour and a half, since an hour and a half is as long as I could expect an audience to sit attentively on church pews. This meant that the play could hardly hope to be a very easy one. The audience would have to remember which man was dreaming, and that the other characters were figures in his dream.

Moments of the opening scene of the play, when the men are awake, would echo and re-echo through the dreams and the most difficult of all would be the end when the Corporal, lost and adrift when he isn't efficiently obeying army orders, dreams of the raft; and his dream merges into a dream shared by the three of them, the Corporal, David, and Peter. David brings to it the memory of a dogged march in the pouring rain. Peter brings to it his own nervous flippancy. And together they dream themselves to be three men condemned to the fiery furnace: their future is one as their dreams are now one. They are inspected by material power and purpose ("Nebuchadnezzar" whose words have lost their human meaning) and, when they walk like Shadrac, Meshac, and Abednego in the furnace, they find the fourth figure with them, human nature with hope.

I hope I have made this concentration of purpose as simple for a first hearing as I can.

CBC French Network

Programs to be heard on the western section of the CBC French network this week include: On Sunday: Musical Masterpieces, a recorded program, in which two works by Beethoven will be played, Symphony No. 7 in A, Op. 92, and Concerto in C, No. 1; a commentary on the Davis Cup tennis tournament; and La Fin du Jour, recorded program including Symphony in D Major (Wagenseil), Airs Serieux (Couperin), and Concerto Grosso in A Flat (Vivaldi). Monday: Yvan l'Intrepide, for children; Un Homme et Son Peche, daily serial; and Fete au Village, a visit to a family at Timmins, Ont. Tuesday: A L'Autre Bout du Monde, report of a mission to Cambodia. Wednesday: Lever de Dideau, D'Artagnan et Cyrano, by Emile Roudie. Thursday: Les Livres Parlent, readings from the classics. Friday: Nouveautes Dramatiques, Les Parques distraites, by Louis-Georges Carrier.

CBC News Roundup

Western Reporters (III)

James Knight Nesbitt, third in the Times series of CBC News Roundup reporters, is a native of Victoria, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Nesbitt, who came round the Horn to Victoria from Ireland in the 1850's.

James K. Nesbitt

Jim's mother is also Irish, Molly O'Keefe, who came from Newfoundland to Victoria around 1880.

Nesbitt, he says, went into the newspaper business as a paste-pot filling office boy at a Victoria daily in 1927, and after 18 years with the paper—during which he had a wide range of assignments, from covering a meeting of the Crematorium Society to the marine and legislative beats—he became Victoria correspondent for a Vancouver daily, and, subsequently, for the CBC. He also does a weekly "report from the capital" for B.C. weekly newspapers, and writes a weekly historical article for a Victoria daily.

The News Roundup job he remembers best was done from Ottawa in 1948 following the Liberal national convention which elected Mr. Louis St. Laurent as Liberal leader. He was on a program with three other reporters, giving the "views of a Canadian from the far west of Canada." Commentaries from Vancouver on provincial election nights also are among his exciting memories.

Nesbitt is not married, and says that at his age—somewhere in the forties—a man's pride is sensitive, and he's afraid of being turned down. If he's around for another ten years, he thinks he'll try to work up enough courage and brass to ask a trained nurse to be his wife.

Mail Bag

Greetings.

Greetings to the CBC.
Salutations to you from me.
I think it of you very kind
To assume I have an adult mind
And now in turn would signify
How much appreciate you, I.
Though housewife, nurse and chate-laine

I like to feel I have a brain
And so I iron or mend each day
Tuned to Trans-Canada Matinee.
And just last night from Couchiching
I heard the voice of freedom ring;
Of admiration a full beaker
To Arthur Phelps, my favourite speaker.

I stood in Odysseus' great hall
Kindness of Kaplan of Montreal,
Nor do wish to leave unsung
E. Maldwyn Jones or Esse Ljungh.
Oh let the bagpipes loudly skirl
For Cameron, Dan and Cameron, Earl.

FOLK SONG TIME. Today's program deals with "blues" songs, with some early examples by Ma Rainey, Bertha Hill, Blind Willie Johnson, Blind Lemon Jefferson, and Bessie Smith, and later opera by Huddie Ledbetter and Josh White.

VANCOUVER DRAMA. The Eyes of Stormy Grey, by Captain Thomas Gilchrist, a story inspired by a poem written some 20 years ago by Phyllis Guernsey Wright of Tasmania whom he met at that time. The problem facing the Board of Wind, Wave and Tide is to stage the re-union in Fiddler's Green of Captain Dare (who has been in the Green for 25 years), and his widow, now dying. The trouble is that she is dying ashore—and as is well known, she cannot reach the Green from shore. Therefore, Mother Carey is called in to send up her stormy petrels, that they may induce Lorna Dare to request burial at sea. Then the Little Sisters of the Groundswell can restore her to her youth and re-unite her with Captain Dare. The tale itself will be narrated by the dying Lorna to her daughter and her doctor. From Vancouver.

SALUDOS AMIGOS. Orchestra conducted by Don Roberto; Linda Thomas, vocalist; E. C. Mutimer, producer. From Edmonton.

El Rancho Grande, Samba; La Paloma, Bolero; El Manisero, Rhumba; Noche Azul, Bolero; El Carbonero, Gurache; Linda Thomas; In a Little Spanish Town. Don Roberto; Easy Does It.
