IN Studio Eleven at the CBC Building, school children from five Winnipeg schools sprawl happily on the rubber-tiled floor making pictures for the broadcast series "It's Fun to Draw." Looking on is INSPECTOR C. J. MULLER of the Manitoba Department of Education. Not in the picture, but present during the broadcast, are Fred Laight, CBC School Broadcast organizer, and Miss Gertrude McCance, Supervisor of School Broadcasts for the Manitoba Department of Education.

The Concert Hour

WHILE "live" programs are the centre of interest for CBC producers, it is not impossible to find interest and variety in recorded programs also, according to T. M. Taylor, of Winnipeg, a CBC producer whose attention is given chiefly to programs of serious music.

Tom Taylor

Tom Taylor was born in Alaska, son of a prospector who dredged gold in Ophir Creek in the earliest days of the gold rush, but he spent most of his youth in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley, and his years from 18 on in the R.A.F. He served through the Battle of Britain and at the time of Dunkirk was still in France. From there he went to Bengal and Burma. But his chief interest still continued to be music.

While still an airman on active service, Tom worked as a librarian with Mr. Boyd Neel, eminent London musician recently appointed dean of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and after demobilization continued his work as Boyd Neel's secretary.

The recorded program Concert Hour, heard daily on W-K-X at 4:15-3:15 p.m., is one of Tom's important jobs at CBC, Winnipeg. Last year he extended it a little to include one day a week devoted to requests from listeners, and this will continue. Another extension is planned this year, to include short talks or interviews with musical personalities, who may be asked to play their favourite records and add brief commentaries. This week, on November 9, Tom and his announcer, Maurice Burchell, will be on the air during the Concert Hour to talk a while about plans for the coming winter season. (Please turn to page 8)

FIDDLE JOE'S YARNS. A garden party in November is unseasonable, to say the least, even in St. Christophe, the imaginary village in the Laurentians, the scene of the extraordinary goings-on, recounted in Fiddle Joe's Yarns on Sundays. But one Christophien, Hormidas Grenier, sees a garden party as one way of making a big splash to celebrate his wangling an important political appointment for himself, i.e., until snow flurries start covering the ground, the food starts to freeze and the guests take the occasion to ask embarrassing political questions, to say nothing of Grenier's finding out that his political appointment carries with it such arduous duties as opening two bridges, laying a corner stone for a new jail, and kicking the starting ball for a game. Fiddle Joe, as the town's self-appointed historian, tells about the new twist author

Charles Wassermann has given to Grenier's much vaunted appointment, in this week's episode. From Montreal.
W-4:00 p.m. K-3:00 p.m. X-3:00 p.m.

JAKE AND THE KID. They don't get murders or shipwrecks or real exciting stuff in Crocus, Saskatchewan. But when Dr. Suh-zee came to town he made up for it. Explored the murky attic of men's minds with his mass demonstration of hypnotism. Memories stirred in the dusk of his hypnosis, forgotten things reared their ugly heads. All sorts of things a person wanted to forget about. Hidden, shameful things. Just one short step from the beast, as Repeat Golightly described it, and, being something of an authority on Dr. Sigmund Freud, people listened to him. Even Mayor McTaggart got excited, and before he knew what was happening, had a patient of Dr. Suh-zee reclining in a "comma" on a Softly Drowse mattress in his Trading Post window. Not since the Coronation had Crocus unwound itself in such an uninhibited way, and the first part of what happened will be described in the Jake and The Kid play by W. O. Mitchell this afternoon. Production is by Arthur Hiller.

World-Wide Christmas Exchange Originates in Australia This Year

Advance announcements by the BBC indicate that the Sovereign's broadcast and world-wide exchange of greetings, now a traditional part of the Christmas season on the radio, will this year originate in Australia and New Zealand, with a script by Alan Burgess of the BBC and John Thompson and Mungo MacCallum of the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

Burgess has already left London, flying to Pakistan, India, Ceylon, Hong Kong, Singapore, Borneo and Sarawak. Also flying to Australia is Laurence Gilliam, of BBC, who will produce the program in Sydney, in association with Neil Hutchinson of the ABC. Gilliam will visit Cyprus, Kenya, Rhodesia, South Africa, Mauritius and the Cocos Islands, on the way out.

This year's broadcast, first to originate outside London, marks the 21st anniversary of the Royal Christmas message.

Conductor Wanted

The position of conductor of the National Orchestra of the New Zealand Broadcasting Service is open and applications will close on November 30, at the office of the High Commissioner for New Zealand in the United Kingdom. Details of the position may be obtained, on request, from CBC.

Canadian Short Stories.—This CBC Trans-Canada series is now in its sixth year, and offers one of the largest markets for Canadian fiction.

I thought you may like to know that your transmission on CKNC, at 1700 hours, G.M.T., on Monday, October 12, came over as perfect, clear and strong as any of our local stations. Your reporter, Mr. Metcalfe, might have been sitting beside me, so plain and understandable was his report on the Red River flood project.

I still receive your printed program, and I very seldom miss Canadian Chronicle, for both of which I most gratefully thank you.—Frank J. Barker, Boddington, Rugby, England.

PUBLIC EYE. Stanford Van Crump (Public Eye) travels to Ottawa on a matter of great importance to the nation's security. Except in the mind of writer Alan Pearce, the exact nature of his mission is not known—and will remain a secret until tonight when he will break the case. From Toronto.

William Masselos is a native of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and is of Greek-Dutch extraction. He received most of his musical training in New York City and made his debut at Town Hall in his eighteenth year. During the thirteen intervening years he has risen to the ranks of the finest American pianists of the day through his concert appearances and as soloist with major orchestras in the United States and Canada.

Dom. 7:30 p.m. CST; 10:30 p.m. MST

BBC PRESENTS. Edgar Lustgarten's Prisoner at the Bar program which ended its second series last week, has been extended for three weeks. Three of the best broadcasts in the original BBC transcription series of one-man shows, presenting dramatic reconstructions of some of the most famous criminal cases, will be repeated. Tonight, the sensational trial of William Herbert Wallace will be heard again, and the following week the trial of Lizzie Borden, accused of the grizzly hatchet-murder of her mother and father, will be re-enacted. The programs will conclude on November 24 with the Case of Pigott the Forger, who was never arrested, never tried before a jury, never sentenced by a judge—but without a doubt was a criminal, did commit a crime, and died as a result.

Dom. 8:00 p.m. MST

CBC CONCERT HALL. Esther Glazer, violinist, and John Avison, pianist. From Vancouver.

Sonata in C Minor, Opus 30, No. 2 (Beethoven).

Miss Glazer is a newcomer to the west coast, and made her debut on a Canadian network when she appeared last winter as soloist with the CBC Vancouver Concert Orchestra.

MUSIC IN OUR TIME. Recorded program prepared by John Beckwith. From Toronto.

Dom. 9:30 p.m. CST

CANADIANA. Books and Politicians is the title of the second talk in the series Political Traditions in Canada by Norman Ward, Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Saskatchewan. Political tradition is something which has been passed on in Canada by word of mouth more than any other way. Deploring the lack of a literary tradition in Canadian politics, Professor Ward points out in this talk that only one of Canada's Prime Ministers (Sir Robert Borden) ever wrote his autobiography. Michael Hind-Smith, producer. From Winnipeg.

W-10:15 p.m. K-9:15 p.m. X-9:15 p.m.

VANCOUVER THEATRE. On the eve of Armistice Day, this program marks the occasion with a special play by Alexander McKee titled About This Time. A verse drama, produced most successfully on the BBC, it evoked the following from a BBC commentator: "The splendid and terrible campaign of northwest Europe has found its poet, and radio has found a new writer of exciting possibilities . . . I find it exhilarating that Mr. McKee should have written his 'mosaic of battle' especially for broadcasting. I found it marvellously well written and deeply satisfying. It was the truth: truly observed and truly imagined; deeply felt, brilliantly executed." From Vancouver.

W-11:30 p.m. K-10:30 p.m. X-10:30 p.m.

Today: What's New in Britain—Rose Mary Sands; The Metre Reader—Tommy Tweed; A Hooking Party—Margaret Furness MacLeod; News Commentary—Anne Francis; Songs by Joyce Sullivan.

This afternoon Margaret Furness MacLeod will be heard in the first of three talks on country life. Mrs. MacLeod lived in Prince Edward Island on a farm near Charlottetown when she was a child. Although there were no movies and no manufactured entertainment in those days, Mrs. MacLeod says the farm people knew how to enjoy themselves. The making of a rug, for example, was a social event, such a good one in fact that it is coming back into favour today. Equally enjoyable were the innumerable other types of social bees, the fairs and other forms of gatherings. Mrs. MacLeod now lives in Montreal. She studied and taught music at the Boston Conservatory, is an expert in handicrafts and has been an adjudicator at many exhibitions in Quebec and the Maritimes. She is also a past president of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Authors Association.

CBC Wednesday Night

KING HENRY IV. Second in the series of Shakespeare's historical plays on CBC Wednesday Night is King Henry IV, a work of the dramatist's middle period, and so highly-coloured with the boisterous humour of Falstaff, King of Comedy, that it hardly fits into the historical sequence at all, the fictional characters—as Falstaff seems to be, despite rumours—quit outshining the historical ones. The tales of the misspent youth of the Prince—later Henry V—are mentioned in Holinshed, but the attribution of the character of Falstaff to Sir John Oldcastle, Lollard martyr, seems to have little foundation, and is specifically denied by Shakespeare in the epilogue to the second part, to be performed in this series on December 9. Even more far-fetched is Balzac's remarkable error in identifying the mighty Shakespearean clown with the Sir John Fastolfe of King Henry V. But here in this greatest of English comedies is a marvellous evocation of the spirit of reckless youth, the wild heath about Gadshill, trickery and merriment at the Boar's Head Tavern, and a wealth of mingled beauty and laughter. From the moment when he wakes in the Prince's lodging, to speak his oddly-poetic lines: "Marry, sweet wag, when thou art king, let not us that are squires of the night's body be called thieves of the day's beauty; let us be Diana's foresters, gentlemen of the shade, minions of the moon"—Falstaff dominates the scene, a blundering, uproarious, occasionally wistful character, the like of which was never seen on the stage before or since.

W-7:30 p.m. K-8:30 p.m. X-8:30 p.m.

MUSIC BY SCHUMANN. Schumann's songs form the greater portion of this week's program, the second of six devoted to the music of the great 19th century Romantic composer. Maureen Forrester, contralto, assisted by Dorothy Weldon, harpist; John Newmark, pianist. From Montreal.

Maureen Forrester: Poems of Byron. John Newmark: Blumenstueck, Opus 19.

Schumann composed over 200 songs, the majority of which were written in the happy year of his marriage. "I can hardly tell you," he wrote to his beloved Clara shortly before the event, "how delightful it is to write for the voice, and how agitated and excited I am when I sit down to work."

W-10:45 p.m. K-11:30 p.m. X-11:30 p.m.

Second Talent Series For Prairie Artists

CBC Program Director Announces Plan

For some time younger talent on the prairies has had an opportunity to perform for the regional audience through the CBC program Prairie Showcase, heard on Fridays at 7:15 p.m. MST in the mountain zone, and 10:00 p.m. CST in the central zone.

On November 4, a new series was established, under the title Guest Appearance, which will provide further opportunities of this sort. This will be heard on Wednesdays at 4:15 p.m.

CST, and 3:15 p.m. MST. These programs, as in the case of Prairie Showcase, will originate in various cities throughout the Region, to make them available to as many capable artists as possible.

In announcing the new series, Dan E. Cameron, CBC Program Director in the Prairie Region, drew attention to the fact that artists auditioned by the CBC are judged on a comparative basis.

"That means," he said, "that they are measured by our Audition Board in terms of what is known to be available throughout the Region rather than what is available in their own particular town or district. Before auditioning, artists must complete our Application for Audition form, in order that their background of training and experience may be considered."

A Yodel for Joe?

It's surprising that Fiddle Joe's Yarns have retained their authentic French-Canadian flavour lately, for as playwright Charles Wassermann prepares his scripts, he can look through the window to see not the red-and-gold blaze of the Laurentian hills, as you might expect of someone who writes so intimately of St. Christophe, P.Q., but the dark green firs of an Alpine village. When he pokes his head out of the door to say hello to a passerby, he sees, more than likely, a figure in the traditional leather shorts, gaily-embroidered bretelles, short jacket and feathered hat of the Austrian mountain dweller, instead of Fiddle Joe's capuchin or Hormidas Grenier's tasselled toque. Austria is Wassermann's homeland, and for some weeks, now, he has been living in Altausee, a summer resort situated on a small lake in the Steiermark district of Central Austria. Like St. Christophe, the Austrian countryside is rich in folklore and it was natural that Wassermann should take an interest in the French-Canadian equivalent when he settled in Quebec. . . .

CROSS SECTION. Last week this program took a look at housing problems across the country. This week, it concentrates on slum conditions with a script by Angus McLellan called Squalor for Rent. Pointing up the social and personal cost of the big city slums, it studies the problem of the family living in crowded, ill-kept quarters, and then moves into the larger picture of the situation—the cost of policing the district set against the ARTURO TOSCANINI, now 86 years of age, arrived in New York on Saturday, October 24, to prepare for his 16th (and perhaps his last) season as music director of the NBC Symphony Orchestra, which begins its winter series on Sunday, November 8 (W-7:00 p.m., K-X-9:00 p.m.). He was returning from one of his most enjoyable vacations in many years. This summer in Italy, surrounded by family and friends, he found new peace and enjoyment at his island home in Lago Maggiore, some miles north of Milan.

His life followed an almost regular routine for several of the summer months in the company of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Toscanini, their son Walfredo, the young conductor Guido Cantelli and Mrs. Cantelli, and NBC general music low taxes derived from it, for example, and its effect on surrounding districts that are still "presentable." Still in the field of building, Cross Section on the 19th will present a combined documentary and panel discussion on the construction industry. From Toronto.

director Samuel Chotzinoff and Mrs. Chotzinoff.

Mornings, after his usual early rising, Maestro Toscanini spent in his room working at the piano on music he is going to conduct during the coming season. At noon, he would appear for lunch, fully dressed, with his usual starched collar even in the hottest weather. After lunch in the courtyard, while he sipped his coffee, he would watch family and friends playing the Italian game of boccie, a version of bowling played with wooden balls. The great rivalry was between Cantelli and 24-year-old Walfredo. Toscanini cheered them both from the sidelines. As a youngster he was himself quite a good boccie player. This time he doubled as umpire and audience, since virtually everyone else played.

Evenings, after dinner, they all went up to Toscanini's sitting room where Walter had rigged up a high-fidelity sound system, and listened to recordings of the maestro's past performances of works he planned to repeat this season. Toscanini allowed friends to make up the programs, and he sat in his chair and conducted with his usual fervor and excitement. Sometimes he disapproved of the tempo the Toscanini on the recordings had taken, and decided that next time it would be different. Even at 86, he still feels he has much to learn.

The details of his 1953-54 broadcasts have not been announced, but a few years ago Toscanini gave a clue to his main ambition in his last years. He said: "I played the first Stravinsky, the first Sibelius, even certain of the first Wagner operas to be heard in Italy . . . I worked and I fought with all my power for the new music, which is what a young artist, above all others, should do. Now, let the young men take up this fight. I want to understand Bach and Haydn and Beethoven a little better before I die."

School Radios. — Out of 23,000 schools in English-speaking Canada, 10,000 now hear school broadcasts regularly via CBC.

U.S. Critics Comment on Carnegie Hall Concert

KAY O'NEILL. On the second Friday of each month Kay O'Neill, CBW morning commentator, talks to Mrs. Kay Russenholt of the Canadian Association of Consumers about housekeeping. The Association is a national organization which helps the wise shopper make her funds go twice as far as the one who is entranced by fancy wrappings. For her program today, Miss O'Neill will make a visit with Mrs. Russenholt to a Winnipeg grocery store for a lesson in wise buying. From Winnipeg. W-9:45 a.m.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE. Today: News from Our Village—Happy Bonnell; Arthur L. Phelps; Adopting a Family—David Has a Sister—Lou Allderdice; News Commentary — Anne Francis; Songs by Joyce Sullivan. W-3:30 p.m. K-2:30 p.m. X-2:30 p.m.

CONCERT HOUR. Program of recordings. From Winnipeg. Symphony No. 4 in D (Schumann) played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra; Ballet Suite, The Incredible Flutist (Walter Piston) played by the Symphony Orchestra of Radio Berlin. W-4:15 p.m. K-3:15 p.m. X-3:15 p.m.

CURTAIN MELODIES. Orchestra conducted by Eric Wild; Mary Gynn, soprano; Kerr Wilson, baritone; and the James Duncan Chorus. Norman Lucas, producer. From Winnipeg. Ensemble: selections from The King and I, The Chocolate Soldier, and Fifty Million Frenchmen. Mary Gynn and chorus: When You're Away. Kerr Wilson and chorus: Tramp, Tramp, Tramp. W-7:00 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, K-5:30 p.m., X-5:30 p.m.

TORONTO POP CONCERT. Toronto Symphony Orchestra conducted by Paul Scherman with Mac Morgan, baritone, in a request program. From Toronto. W-7:30 p.m. K-8:30 p.m. X-8:30 p.m.

LISTENERS who heard the recent concert of Canadian music which Leopold Stokowski conducted in Carnegie Hall, New York (broadcast on October 18), may now be interested to compare their own reactions with those of two of this continent's most experienced music critics, who covered the concert for their respective papers—Virgil Thomson for the New York Herald Tribune and Olin Downes for the New York Times.

(The guest artists were Montreal violinist Noel Brunet, Toronto soprano Lois Marshall, and the Westminster Choir of New York. The program consisted of Pantomime, by Pierre Mercure; Violin Concerto, by Alexander Brott; Tabuh-Tabuhan, by Colin McPhee; Antiphone, by Francois Morel; Two Mystical Songs (poems by John Donne), by Godfrey Ridout; and Coronation Suite, by Healey Willan.)

In the way of general comment, Downes wrote:

"The concert might have appeared as an event of special political and diplomatic significance, so far as externals were concerned. The hall was hung with the Canadian colours; representatives of practically every delegation to the United Nations were there. The program consisted entirely of works by Canadian composers and was heard with manifest approval by a brilliant audience. But that is of secondary importance where this review is concerned. The concert was of exceptional interest and artistic significance. Not one of the scores was of a merely conventional character. Not one of them but revealed an individuality of more or less strength on the part of the composer, or that failed to show an impressive degree of technical mastery."

Thomson said the concert was notable for two "absolutely first-class" works (those by McPhee and Morel), and one other "almost as fine" (Godfrey Ridout). The other three, he said, were "respectable."

Some of the comments by these two critics on the individual works were as follows:

Tabuh-Tabuhan, by Colin McPhee Thomson: "The whole piece is a delight for bright sounds, lively rhythms, and lovely tunes. It may be the ending-piece that all conductors are looking for, something to be used in place of Ravel's Daphnis et Chloe. For it is completely brilliant, busy, sweet and fun."

Downes: "This score is fascinating for its timbres, for the use of overlapping rhythm groups and the dramatic accumulating power of its deep pulse and its superimposed rhythms."

Pantomime, by Pierre Mercure Thomson: "... makes neatly angular motions but does not explain (or quite justify) its choice of instruments" (winds and percussion).

Downes: "One is not certain that the composer, born in 1927, has completely found his style, or perhaps exactly satisfied himself in his orchestral balances, conceived for brass, woodwinds and percussion instruments."

Violin Concerto by Alexander Brott Thomson: The concerto is "percussion neoclassicism in which overstatement, though essential to the style, weakens the expression." Brunet was "agreeable for tone, if not always for pitch, in an ungrateful work."

Downes: "Original, brilliant, technically resourceful, more than adroit and individual in the way that the form is handled and in the manner of writing of the solo instrument and orchestra. One wonders here if there is not something really new under the sun in the composer's approach to the modern concerto form." Brunet performed "very efficiently and effectively."

Antiphone by Francois Morel Thomson: "A lovely piece, an orchestral meditation on model melodies of Gregorian chant." The harmonies were "wondrously mysterious and ever so suavely orchestrated. This piece by a young man still well under 30 has poetry and style. I should have liked to hear it right over again."

Downes: "A suggestion of the primitive, couched in a highly sophisticated modern technique—one of the most interesting, if highly experimental, pieces of the evening."

Two Mystical Songs by Godfrey Ridout

Thomson: "A neoromantic's need of paying homage to Bach seems to have been their inspiration. But their melodic lines have a grace as of Schubert, and their dramatic moments remember Berlioz and Meyerbeer... They are lovely and can be used to advantage, I am sure, in the voice-with-orchestra repertoire." Lois Marshall's "clear, high soprano voice and lovely musicianship are ever a delight."

Downes: "Admirable for the model harmonic quality far nearer to the esthetic of Donne's period than of ours, and admirable scored. Miss Marshall—not for the first time in this city—won an ovation for her performance."

Coronation Suite by Healey Willan Thomson: "The eclectic creation of an organist and choirmaster wholly formed in the last century. It is British official art at its most characteristic." The Westminster Choir "sang consistently out of key."
