Ballet for Children

Producer Neil Harris describes the new CBC-TV network series "Dancing Storybook" which begins this Wednesday

CHILDREN love dancing and children love a story. These are the twin convictions that all of us involved in Dancing Storybook carry into the production of this new network children's program beginning on April 1 from CBC Winnipeg.

And who are involved in this new program? To begin with we have the dancers of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, many of whom were seen last year in Toes in Tempo. These talented dancers will be dancing out stories written by the well-known Winnipeg writer Marian Waldman with choreography by the nationally known actor-dancer choreographer Brian MacDonald. This will be the first series for CBC Winnipeg that Mr. MacDonald has done since taking up residence in this city. In addition to his work with CBC Montreal Mr. MacDonald is probably best known as the director-choreographer of the Canadian musical, My Fur Lady. Eric Wild, the director of music for the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, will be acting in the same capacity for Dancing Storybook. Stan Langtry will be responsible for the imaginative sets. My task as producer is obviously made easier by the presence of all these talented people.

Since we are all convinced that children love a story and love dancing our purpose in this show is to entertain our audience of children by dancing and acting out the adventures of two young people as they search for a patch that is missing from a magic coat left to them by their father. In these adventures they meet with circus performers, pirates, gypsies, brave knights, and dark and evil villains.

It may seem strange that so many of these stories will be told in dance, but one need only watch children at play to realize that dancing is as natural to children as breathing. In fact, after working on this show, we are all somewhat perplexed that grown-ups should occupy themselves with anything as dull as walking. (See also page 15.)

which also helps to tell a story will be a part of "Salad Days" to be presented on CBC Folio March 24 on CBC-TV. Shown here in the leading roles are Barbara Franklin and Richard Easton. "Salad Days," which has been running continually in London, England, since 1954, has just finished successful runs in Toronto and New York.

Our Easter cover shows one of the seven panels in St. Boniface Basilica depicting the Stations of the Cross. Made by Maison Rouillard in France after paintings by the artist Bouriche, they were brought to St. Boniface in 1919. They will be seen on CBWT March 27 in a special Good Friday program to illustrate selections from Bach's "St. Matthew Passion." (See last week's CBC Times).

This Summer on TV

. . . a preview

PRODUCTION centres outside Toronto will supply important contributions to this summer's television schedule. An outline of the summer fare, issued a few days ago by the CBC's national program office, includes programs from Ottawa, Vancouver, Halifax and Winnipeg. The schedule shows some new programs coming from Toronto, as well as the return of some popular summer shows from last year, and the continuation of some favourite winter programs.

JACK SHAPIRA
leads the band on "The Show That Jack Built," which goes to the full CBC-TV network from Winnipeg this summer.

The prairies' contribution to the summer schedule will include a 13-week series of The Show That Jack Built, featuring the Jack Shapira band of Winnipeg and an array of special big-name guest stars. The program, currently being presented as a local CBC feature in Winnipeg, will begin its Tuesday night network stint on June 23.

Among the new programs will be a weekly half-hour drama series from Vancouver (replacing The Unforeseen on Thursdays, starting July 2); a country music program from Halifax, featuring Don Messer and his Islanders (replacing Country Hoedown on Fridays, starting August 7); and a magazine-type interview program showcasing well-known people, to be produced by Close-Up's Ross McLean (replacing Fighting Words on Sunday night); and a series from Ottawa.

Royal visit telecasts, beginning in June, will also play an important part in summer programming.

Some of last summer's successes which will return are Rhapsody, with Ivan Romanoff's orchestra and chorus performing the music of many countries (Sunday nights, starting June 21); Playhouse U.K., a series of films of British television plays—both BBC and Independent TV (replacing G.M. Presents); Great Movies (replacing N.H.L. Hockey on Saturday nights), and a magazine show for youngsters.

Several new variety shows from Toronto will replace the present ones for the summer. Details of these are not yet available, but they will fill the periods now occupied by One of a Kind, Music Makers '59, Cross-Canada Hit Parade, and Here's Duffy. Among the other programs that will take a summer holiday are Talent Caravan (after June 26) and The Plouffe Family.

Playbill, featuring dramatic presentations from different locations across Canada will be scheduled Thursdays.

More serious viewing will be offered on Explorations and on two new series—a quiz program produced in collaboration with the Royal Ontario Museum, and a 12-week series on physics, presented by Professors Donald Ivey and Paterson Hume of the University of Toronto (Tuesdays, starting July 7).

Complete details on all these programs will be announced in CBC Times as they are available.

"Now, CBC Television News . . ."

*Second of two articles by N. J. Lacey,
News Supervisor, CBC Prairie Region*

IT is now almost five years since CBWT went on the air in Winnipeg and television arrived on the prairies. During this period the growth of television in Canada has been phenomenal, and CBC television news has grown along with it. From a very small beginning in Toronto in 1952, the news service has grown to a world-wide news gathering agency which supplies newscast to every television station in Canada. The operation of CBC National TV News is a story in itself which perhaps we can tell in this publication at a later date.

For part of this article I would like to tell about the operation of a typical regional TV news operation—the one in Winnipeg. We started in May of 1954 with two editors, a film cameraman, and an unwritten policy of providing at least one locally shot film story a day. Since then we have shot more than 6,000 stories about Manitoba and Manitobans. Statistics can be boring, but looking back over the records before writing this article we came upon some figures which startled even our news editors. Film cameramen on news assignments have shot three-quarters of a million feet of film, or about 140 miles. The cut-down film clips used in the 2,000 news programs prepared in Winnipeg, if spliced together, would stretch from Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie and would take more than 100 hours of continuous viewing to see. This again was only film shot locally, and does not include national and international film.

At present the TV news staff in Winnipeg consists of Bert Dentry, the Editor-in-Charge, and three editors. They use the services of four staff cameramen and numerous freelance cameramen to get Winnipeg and Manitoba news captured on film.

We often get questions from interested viewers who want to know how news filmed on a certain day could be shown the same evening. This is not too much of a problem if the story is shot in Winnipeg. But when we are covering news in rural points it can be a neck-and-neck race to beat the deadline. Take for example a plane crash 60 miles from Winnipeg. This particular story started early in the morning when one of our editors received a bulletin that the crash had occurred. He immediately informed the Editor-in-Charge, who then contacted a cameraman and sent him on his way. An hour and a half after the bulletin had been received the cameraman had arrived in the general area where the crash happened. Then he found he would have to walk two miles through bush and snow to reach the scene. The trip in took nearly an hour, the filming of the wreckage took 15 minutes, and the trek out again another hour. Then there was the drive back to Winnipeg, where the weary cameraman dropped his film in the processing lab and reported to the newsroom. The time was 3:00 p.m. At 4:30 p.m. the film came back from the lab and was rushed to the film editing room where a film editor and a news editor screened it. The two editors discussed how the film should be handled and the film editor set to work with his scissors and splicer.

At 5:10 p.m. the film editor informed the news editor that the film had been cut and spliced and was ready to be "shot listed." This is a necessary process in which the editor lists each shot in the film so that the script can be written to conform to the story being told in the film clip. The time had now rolled around to 5:20 p.m., and the news editor started writing the script for which he had been gathering information by telephone and news agency wire copy. At 5:45 the script was ready and the announcer was rehearsed in reading it along with the film. Then at 6:10 everything was ready—and we had exactly 10 minutes to go to air time.

The above account of how a story is shown to the viewing public on the day it happens is not an isolated occurrence. It's routine. After all, news is a very perishable product which just won't keep. Consider also that this was just one of the stories in that day's news package. Similar antics had gone on for each local film presented involving the same news editor and film editor.

When the day-to-day activity of a regional newsroom in gathering local news is explained, the next most common question concerns how we can present film of events that happened in other parts of Canada or even overseas on the very day that the news occurred.

Take, for example, a big fire in Ottawa, The Ottawa newsroom goes through the exercise explained above in the plane crash story, and informs the National Newsroom in Toronto that it has covered a story of country-wide interest.

Toronto then arranges to have the film rushed there by plane, and at the same time advises regional newsrooms such as those in Halifax, Winnipeg and Vancouver to stand by for special coverage of the Ottawa fire. When the film is received in Toronto it is edited and scripted and then fed on closed circuit microwave to the regional newsrooms. This is just like telecasting the film, only it goes into our studios instead of out over the air. In our studios it is kine recorded, i.e., recorded on film just as sounds are recorded on tape. The film is then processed and spliced into the newscast being prepared in Winnipeg.

When time won't permit flying the film from Ottawa to Toronto, the whole operation of getting the story on microwave to the various newsrooms may be conducted in Ottawa, saving precious hours.

By reversing the procedure, important Winnipeg stories can be seen all over Canada on the National News from Toronto each evening. Usually, however, we are able to use regular airline flights to get the film to Toronto on time.

Getting same-day coverage from Europe is more difficult because as yet there are no means by which motion pictures can be transmitted electronically across the ocean. We must rely on aircraft. You can see that our people must be a little faster with their footwork in these cases than when covering domestic stories. But the time difference between Europe and Canada is working for us.

As our third example in this article we'll take the coronation of the new Pope last fall in Rome. Viewers half a world away saw part of the ceremony the same day on the 6:20 p.m. news over CBWT. This was done by recording the ceremony on film in London from a live telecast of the event being shown over a West European network. The film was processed quickly and immediately put on a plane to Montreal. The CBC newsroom in Montreal then edited the film and put it on the closed microwave to feed to all our other newsrooms, where it was recorded again. The result was that hundreds of thousands of viewers were taken to the scene of a colourful event thousands of miles away. They saw it happening just about as fast as they could read about it in their newspapers.

This is the part of the story of how the news of the world is brought into the living rooms of Canadians from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria, B.C. Great strides have been taken in the past five years. But what about ten or even five years from now? My guess is that same-day coverage won't be good enough. But that's another story.

On Radio-Two 10th Anniversaries

1. NEWFOUNDLAND'S

Ten years have passed since that historic April 1, 1949, in Ottawa, when former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent welcomed Newfoundland into the Canadian family of provinces.

Radio will mark the anniversary on CBC Wednesday Night, April 1, with a special documentary broadcast entitled Newfoundland Probes Confederation. The program will be produced in the St. John's Studios of the CBC.

Under three general headings the program will review the political events in Newfoundland leading up to the Referendum that decided the Island would become the tenth province of Canada.

How has the union worked out in the first ten years and what future does Newfoundland have as a province?

No public issue in the long history of Newfoundland had so stirred and divided the people as the suggestion that the Island would consider surrendering its Dominion status in favour of confederation with Canada.

In 1933, Newfoundland, in common with the rest of the world, suffered heavy financial setbacks.

Although it cut expenditures wherever possible, the government could not carry on and an appeal was made to the British Government. A loan was received from the Crown but a Royal Commission recommended that Responsible Government should be suspended in favour of a Government by Commission consisting of three appointed Newfoundlanders, three Englishmen and a resident English Governor as chairman. This form of government ruled the country for fifteen years.

By 1938 the economic situation had improved. The war years

A joint CBC-BBC production marking NATO's 10th anniversary will be presented on CBC Trans-Canada Friday evening, April 3, pre-empting regular programming for that period. Arranged as part of the BBC's Radio Link series, the broadcast will review NATO's record to date and consider what role, if any, the organization has to play in the missile age. Over a 70-game schedule, the Montreal Canadiens have again proved themselves much the best hockey team in the N.H.L. All year long it has been a five-way race for second place with the first place conceded to "Les Habitants." Now the Canadiens look down from their lofty perch, 20 points above their closest competitor, and challenge anyone to stop them from winning their fourth straight Stanley Cup.

To many observers this Canadien team is the greatest collection of hockey talent ever assembled. Such depth has the team that even the loss of such stars as Maurice and Henri Richard, Doug Harvey and Boom Boom Geoffrion has not been able to impede its march to the league championship. With three games left to play, it is only two goals short of the all-time team scoring record for one season (250 goals), while having given up only 146. Members of the Canadiens have the inside track on practically every hockey award for '58-'59 and in addition could conceivably take five of the six first all-star team positions. The scoring championship is almost certain to go to Dickie Moore with Jean Beliveau a fairly close second. Jacques Plante already has the Vezina trophy locked up; Tom Johnson seems assured of winning the Norris Trophy for defencemen, and Ralph Backstrom leads the field in quest of the Calder Trophy, awarded to the league's top rookie. About the only trophies likely to escape the Canadiens are the Hart Trophy, which should go to Andy Bathgate, and the Lady Byng which will go to Camile Henry.

The Canadiens have an excellent, though sometimes under-rated, goal tender. Plante is inclined to be a showboat but has never yet let the Canadiens down in a clutch situation. The defence headed by Doug Harvey and Tom Johnson is far superior to any other defensive force in the league. Their first two forward lines, at present somewhat scrambled due to the lack of right wingers, are free-wheeling, high-scoring units. The third line, an unheralded trio (Provost, Pronovost and Goyette) does not score frequently, but is an excellent checking line. In Donnie Marshall, the Canadiens have a peerless penalty killer. In short, the Canadiens are without a weakness.

It seems impossible, then, that anyone should be able to beat them in a best-of-seven series. In the 1956 semi-finals, the fourth-place finishers, Boston Bruins, eliminated the first place Detroit Red Wings, although they had been able to beat the Red Wings in only one game out of fourteen all season. It may be possible that the same thing could happen to the Canadiens, although certainly not in the same manner. The '56 Bruins beat the Red Wings by putting a completely checking line of Joe Klukay, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart on the Red Wing's only high scoring unit of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel. The same tactics would never succeed against this Canadien team because there are too many Montrealers capable of scoring goals.

Rough play is another technique devised to hold down the Canadiens, particularly by the hard-hitting Boston Bruins. The only weakness in this system is that the Canadiens, for the most part, are perfectly capable of looking after themselves. They leave most of their hitting to the defencemen, and Johnson and Harvey are as rough a pair of body-checkers as any in the league. Also, there's the gamble of taking penalties against the Canadiens. Their productive power play makes it unwise to take any foolish penalties.

Can the Canadiens be beaten? Frankly, I don't see how. — Dennis O'Neill.

The Probable Challengers . . .

BOSTON BRUINS

The Bost Bruins seem to have the strongest chance of overthrowing the Canadiens. Over the past three years the Bruins have had the most success against Montreal. Last year they carried the final to six games before succumbing and this year they've beaten the Canadiens 5 times while losing 6 and tying twice.

A big, rugged team the Bruins revel in the rough going. They're led by two potent scoring units, the "Ukes" (Horvath, Stasiuk and Bucyk) and a line composed of Don McKenney, Fleming Mackell and Jerry Toppazzini. Another strong point is their two fine defencemen, Doug Mohns and Fern Flaman. The balance of the defensive brigade is ordinary although Leo Boivin is reputedly the league's hardest body-checker.

The Bruins' weaknesses are inconsistent goaltending and a relatively poor third line. Regular goalie Don Simmons has had a bad year (his average ballooned to over 3.00 goals per game) and replacement Harry Lumley is not the dependable blocker he once was.

CHICAGO BLACK HAWKS

The Black Hawks are completing their best season in a decade by finishing no worse than third. They've come a long way from their position as league door mats, and with an improved farm system and young stars they will probably continue to get better.

Their record against the Canadiens this year has been a disappointing one win, eight losses and five ties.

They have two great young players in Eddie Litzzenberger and Bobby Hull. Litz's first line (with Ted Lindsay and Tod Sloan) is one of the league's best and the second line—Hull, Murphy and Nesterenko—is not far behind, if the injured Murphy is able to play. The third line is less than ordinary and defence is sometimes shaky. There is no outstanding defenceman on the club although all (Arbour, Pilote, Vasko, and St. Laurent) go well in spurts.

Lindsay makes Chicago the most-penalized team in the league, and against Montreal penalties are disastrous.

Goal is no problem for Chicago with Glen Hall protecting the nets.

NEW YORK RANGERS

The Rangers have been a bit of a disappointment this season. They haven't been able to repeat the team effort which carried them into second place last year and have ridden into the play-offs on a few excellent individual performances.

Andy Bathgate has had a great season and has received support from 30-goaler Andy Heberton, Camile Henry, Captain "Red" Sullivan, Bill Gadsby and goalie Lorne Worsley. Otherwise the Rangers have been disappointing. Highly-thought-of rookie

Andy Bathgate

Eddie Shack failed to live up to expectations and the entire defence has flopped badly at times.

The Rangers' forte is speed, but this is still something at which nobody can beat the Canadiens. Never a very strong team physically, they've added size this year in Bartlett, Shack and Ciesla and now are not so easily pushed around. Lack of depth makes the Rangers a definite dark horse, assuming they beat out Toronto for fourth place. As this is written the Leafs still have a slim chance of overtaking New York.

another wedding anniversary and Betty, learning that her parents were not married in church, plans a second wedding with all the ceremonial trimmings.

December Bride

Ed presents an all-comedy show filmed in Paris in which Brigitte Bardot will dance, the Paris Opera Company will present a comedy skit called "The Liberty of Horses," and the Comedie Francaise will perform two satires—one on "The Bridge on the River Kwai," and one called "Strep Tease Magique." From New York.

The World's Stage

True drama series introduced by Dr. Frank Baxter. This week—"Flight For Life." The dramatic story of a C-97 military air transport which lost two engines at the point of no-return on a flight to Honolulu, August 8, 1957, and how the crew nursed their crippled plane to safety.

General Motors Presents

"Not Made in Heaven," a romantic drama by Howard Rodman. This is an original teleplay about the plight of Melissa Turner who, at the age of thirty-two, much to the consternation of her parents, is still unmarried. Considered plain and homely even by her father and mother, Melissa revolts against their constant reminders that she ought to get married. Finally George, her father, puts his foot down and decides to carry out a plan to get his daughter a husband—even if it means that "her marriage won't be made in heaven!" The man in George's plot is a time-keeper by trade, a lonely bachelor named Forest Eberhaus. Ronald Weyman, producer. From Toronto.

The Twentieth Century

A searching two-part study of today's college youth begins this week. Part one of this study, "Generation Without A Cause: Self-Portrait" brings viewers into touch with typical college students, and their comments about their generation and the future. The program concentrates on the values and attitudes of the majority of today's youth, giving viewers a sampling of their "tranquilized" opinions, hopes and goals. The program also touches on that small group who are "Beat," and visits them in a Greenwich Village jazz spot to draw out their feelings and beliefs. Some of the comments you'll hear from typical college students on the program are like those made by a young college boy: "Upon graduation I'll be looking for a job which will provide me with a secure, stable future." Another boy: "I feel that whatever I accomplish in life will be through my own efforts and that people should look out for themselves." And a college girl: "The thing that's going to give me the most satisfaction in life is marriage and family." In the words of Dr. Philip E. Jacob, professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania: "From these and hundreds of other consistent attitudes a profile emerges—a profile of a new kind of young American. He is unabashedly self-centered— aspiring above all, to material gratification for himself and his family."

Weekend in Sports

brought even greater financial recovery and it was evident that Newfoundland was becoming self-supporting. Agitation for a return to Responsible Government began and a National Convention consisting of forty-five elected representatives was convened in September of 1946. The terms of reference of the Convention were "... to consider and discuss the changes that have taken place in the financial and economic situation of the Island since 1934 ... to examine the position of the country, and to make recommendations to His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom as to possible forms of future government to be put before the people at the national referendum."

After many months of study and debate and considerable controversy, two points of view became evident. One group of members believed that only two forms of future government should be considered, a continuation of Commission Government or a return to Responsible Government. Another group upheld the view that all acceptable forms of government deserved consideration and union with Canada as a possible alternative was introduced into the proceedings.

Subsequently, two delegations were appointed; one to go to England and the other to Canada to ascertain the advantages of continuing political connections with Great Britain or of joining Canada as a tenth province.

The delegation to England was informed by the Crown that if Newfoundland decided to continue Government by Commission, Britain would give whatever financial assistance she could but if, on the other hand, Newfoundland decided on a return to Responsible Government, it would have to run its affairs without aid from the British Treasury.

The delegation to Canada brought back terms which were offered by the Canadian Government as "a fair and equitable" basis for union between the two countries.

At the close of the Convention, a motion to place Commission of Government and Responsible Government, only, on the referendum ballot was carried unanimously. A motion to include Confederation was defeated by a vote of twenty-nine to sixteen. The advocates of Confederation circulated a petition, signed by many thousands of people, and forwarded it to the British Government. The Commonwealth Relations Office overruled the Convention's recommendation and issued instructions that Confederation should be placed with the other two forms of government on the ballot paper.

The result of the vote was 22,311 for Commission of Government; 64,066 for Confederation and 69,400 for Responsible Government.

The Referendum Act stated that if no one of these three forms of government secured a clear majority over the other two combined, the form of government receiving the least number of votes would be eliminated and a second referendum would be held in which only the other two forms of government would be put to the people. Accordingly, the Second Referendum was held on July 22, 1948. The result of the voting was 78,323 in favour of Confederation and 71,134

On the Frontier of Space

No one realized it then, but the wartime pulsing of the German V-1 in the sky over Britain was the sound of man knocking on the door of space. The beep-beep of Sputnik I signalled that the door was open.

A THREE-PART CBC-TV series entitled On the Frontier of Space (Saturdays—March 21, April 4 and 18) will trace the progress in missilery since the early German experiments. CBC producer Norman Caton, in preparing the program, has collected a variety of film (Russian, American and Canadian) and has interviewed both the scientist and the man-on-the-street. He will also use models of space vehicles and graphic illustrations to bring the viewer closer to the realities of space conquest.

Although not directly connected with the artificial satellite program itself, Canadian scientists of the Defence Research Board were interviewed, on film, at the Defence Research Medical Laboratories in Toronto, and at the Canadian Armament Research and Development Establishment in Valcartier, Quebec. As part of Canada's contribution in the International Geophysical Year, instrument packages (instruments used to derive scientific information from the stratosphere) were sent aloft from Fort Churchill, Manitoba, using the U.S. Nike missile as a vehicle. Canadian scientists have also been active in the development of solid rocket fuels and have conducted experiments dealing with human survival in space.

On the Frontier of Space, says Caton, deals with three distinct levels of the overall subject. The first part concerns hardware—rockets, instrument packages, and the evolution of the space vehicle. The second part explores the complexities involved in uniting the space vehicle and man — or the human element. And the third deals with the future—speculation as to where the space trend is leading us."

Sputnik II startled the imagination almost as much as Sputnik I. It carried a passenger, the first living creature sent into outer space. For days the world listened and waited as "Laika" (a dog) circled the earth, her blood pressure and other essential data being relayed to earth by delicate instruments attached to her body. It proved beyond any doubt that life could be sustained in the reaches of space. The dream of space travel had advanced another step.

"Our second program deals with this phase," says Caton. "Problems encountered here are perhaps the most complex ones of all. Can a human stand the escape velocity of 25,000 miles per hour required before an object can leave the earth's atmosphere? Films from various research centres in the

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Today "The Mary Liz Show" presents a special feature for the children who are home for the holidays. Viewers will hear the story of the Children's Festival of Arts presented by the Manitoba Arts Council. Four young ladies from Portage la Prairie—Pat Carter, Sally Gilroy, Heather Belbin and Faye Chesney—show viewers some of the prize results of their sewing classes, and viewers will also meet their teacher, Mrs. Edna Durnin. Our provincial affairs observer, Warner Troyer, keeps us posted on doings in the legislature. (CBWT-2:00 p.m.)

Open House

KEEP IN TRIM—It's getting closer week by week—the season when many of you will want to hop into pair of shorts and a shirt and enjoy the warm sunshine. But those shorts may reveal saggy muscles after an indoor winter, unless you hop on Gwen Vernon's exercise wagon! If you haven't already started, you can't do it any sooner, so today's the day! (Other items on today's program to be announced).

Speaking French

French lessons for children and adults, with Prof. Jean-Paul Vinay, assisted by fashion model Phyllis Clapperton. From Montreal.

Pieces of Eight

Pirate adventure series for children.

CBWT—Hobby Corner

Glynn Morris' guest is again Jack Robbins, who this week shows how to build a 90-power telescope. (CBWT—5:00 p.m.)

Music Makers '59

Guests this week are The Modernaires, vocal group, who join Jack Kane and his orchestra and vocalist Sylvia Murphy. From Toronto.

The Unforeseen

This week—"Torment," an original teleplay by Michael Dyne. Set in a European country ruled by a dictator, the story concerns a woman's frantic attempts to save her husband from execution. From Toronto.

Wyatt Earp

Western series starring Hugh O'Brian. This week—"Young Gun." A teen-ager comes to Dodge and picks a fight with a notorious gunslinger to prove to Wyatt that he can handle a gun.

Loretta Young Show

This week—"Marriage Crisis." A desperate wife uses shock treatment to jolt her pleasant but immature husband into realizing his responsibilities as a husband and father.

Explorations

"Tomorrow Is Now," Part two: "An Ill Wind"—a discussion of the problem of increasing air pollution in cities. In mild forms, irritants in the air cause disfiguration and property damage; in severe concentrations, some authorities feel they can be cancer-producing. Duncan Cameron, director of public relations at the Royal Ontario Museum and Thelma Dickman, free-lance writer, explore the problem.

Here's Duffy

Musical variety show starring Jack Duffy, with the Crescendos vocal group, Ed Karam's orchestra, and comedians Alfie Scopp and Doug Romaine. Special guests this week are jazz singer Ann Marie Moss and actor John Drainie. Duffy Scopp and Romaine will do a comedy sketch on the "beat" generation, and Drainie will read some Stephen Leacock sketches. (Larry Mann will not be on this week's program as he is in New York preparing for a Wayne and Schuster sketch on the Ed Sullivan Show.)

tion, and Drainie will read some Stephen Leacock sketches. (Larry Mann will not be on this week's program as he is in New York preparing for a Wayne and Schuster sketch on the Ed Sullivan Show.)

CBWT—Roundtable

Panelists this week include Hilda Neatby, professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan, and author of "So Little for the Mind," and Kurt Swinton who, like Dr. Neatby, has played an active part in educational reform. From Winnipeg. (CBWT—10:15 p.m.)

FRONTIER OF SPACE

United States, and a visit to Canada's Defence Research Medical Laboratories will show viewers some of the experiments being carried out to establish the precautions that will have to be taken to make man a space traveller."

The foremost problem is not that of getting man into space, but rather of how to get him back to earth safely. Re-entry into the earth's atmosphere at too great a speed would result in frictional heat so intense that a vehicle would melt and disintegrate. A film on the experiments conducted to rectify this problem will also be shown.

"Our third program," says Caton, "is based on speculation. When man has conquered the atmospheric problem and is free to come and go from an earth-bound existence, the most logical step is to manned-satellites and interplanetary travel. The never-ending questions arise again—How far into space can man go? How would a space ship be provisioned? Can good communications be established? How will man stack up in his new environment of airlessness and weightlessness? What are scientists doing and how long will it take them to achieve these aims? Will the ideas of Jules Verne, once thought ridiculous, become reality after all?"

Next Week—

NATO ANNIVERSARY

will be another example of the intercontinental actuality type of broadcast made possible by use of the trans-Atlantic cable.

The chairman, to be located in Ottawa, will be Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's Magazine, who has just returned from a trip to Berlin. The panelists will be—in Ottawa, the Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Leader of the Opposition in the Canadian Government, who was Canada's Minister for External Affairs when the North Atlantic Treaty was signed on April 4, 1949; in London, former Marshal of the R.A.F. Sir John Slessor, and other panelists in France and the U.S., in Paris.

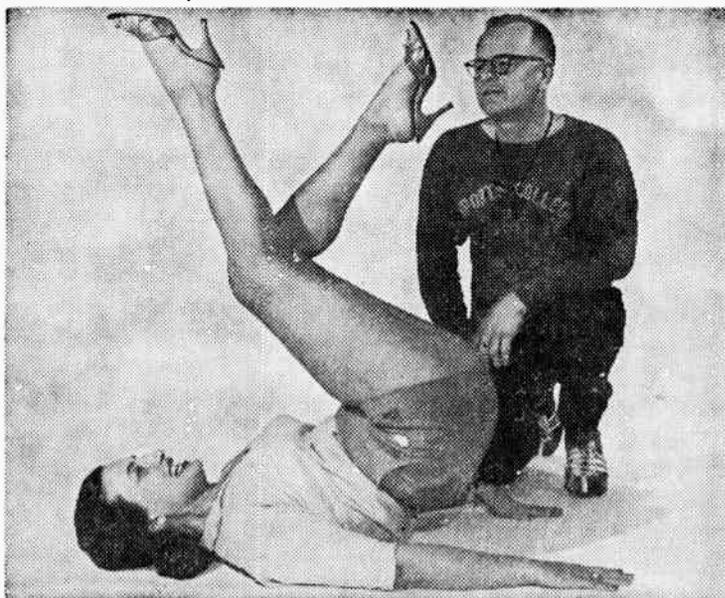

The BBC will carry the broadcast "live" on its Home Service. CBC will air it on a delayed basis as they have other Radio Link broadcasts. Canadians have participated in the series previously but this is the first time that the CBC has shared in the planning and production of a Radio Link program and is the first of such broadcasts with Canada as the hub.

The North Atlantic Treaty was signed on April 4, 1949, and went into force on August 24 of that year. One aspect of the Treaty was mutual defence. In Article 5 the parties agreed that "an armed attack against one or more of them . . . shall be considered an attack against them all" and that should such an attack occur, each of them will take "such action as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force, to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area. Another aspect of the treaty was contained in Article 2 in which the member nations agreed to contribute toward "the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well-being."

Twelve nations signed the original Treaty: Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the United States. Greece and Turkey acceded on February 18, 1952. The Federal Republic of Germany came into NATO on May 9, 1952.

New Radio Fare Starts April 1

IT'S not that we don't like winners; we have, on occasion, snowballed with the best of them. Yet every year when Easter rolls around we start looking plaintively at the sun.

The people who determine the CBC radio schedule seem to have had much the same idea. As soon as the sap began to show the slightest signs of flowing, their faces lit up and they began muttering such time-honoured incantations as "brand new concept" and "impact programming." The staff doctor was called in and prescribed rhubarb—but it was too late. At least six new programs were well past the embryo stage.

The first of the new additions to the schedule starts this Wednesday. Its name is Tempo and it will run for three hours in the early evening, each weekday on CBC Trans-Canada. Basically, Tempo is a sort of share-the-wealth plan. It's an attempt to provide stations along the network, at a peak listening time, with a framework of national service within which they can program items of local interest. Established programs like Roving Reporter, Byline, Rawhide, Supper Magazine and Monitor Stars will be included in the block, as well as music, regional and local news reports, and other features. The national host will be Bill Bessey.

Festival in Sound, which starts this Friday night on Trans-Canada, promises to be just that. Some of Canada's top groups and soloists in the field of pop music from across the country have been recorded in high fidelity and will be heard from in this period. As of April 14, a half-hour edition of Festival in Sound will be broadcast on Tuesday evenings in addition to the quarter-hour show on Fridays. Host for both programs will be Clyde Gilmour.

Some of the groups and artists to be heard from are Toronto's Phyllis Marshall backed by the Chicho Valle band, Phil Nimmons nonet, Sylvia Murphy with music by Lucio Agostini, jazz singer Ann Marie Moss with the Moe Koffman quartet. There will be music from Winnipeg by Eric Wild's orchestra; from Halifax, the Continentals and Nicky Vallee's orchestra; and from Vancouver, the Ricky Hyslop orchestra, Dave Robins and the Top Brass group, the Lance Harrison Dixielanders and Blues singer Eleanor Collins.

It won't be long now before umpires across the country start crying "play ball" and again this year CBC will be co-operating with the Mutual Broadcasting System to get Trans-Canada listeners a box seat ticket to a major league ball game every Saturday of the 24-week season which starts on April 18. Commentators this year will be John MacLean, Gene Elston, Don Dunphy and Whispering Joe Smith. Canadian announcers Doug Maxwell and Jim Chorley will fill in with scores and news from local leagues.

Not all the action on Saturdays will be confined to the ball parks. For Valor, which starts on CBC Trans-Canada April 18, will recreate a more bitter kind of action—the kind that bred the heroes who wear the claret-red ribbon of the Victoria Cross. Canadian winners of the highest award for gallantry will be interviewed by Jed Appel, Dick Lillico and Jack Webster.

John Reeves, who has a new hour-long program titled Four's Company starting on April 18, will be using a technique that is tried and true radio. He will sit two actors and two actresses around a microphone and set them talking. "What we're aiming at," he says, "is four people sitting around in armchairs reading aloud. It needn't be dramatic material; in fact, it could be any good writing that is

Big Week For Bob . . .

Three programs in two days—that's Bob McMullin's score this week. "Music by McMullin," the popular radio network series, switches April 1 to a Wednesday afternoon spot. The last program in the Tuesday morning series will be heard on March 31. Bob's work for the third program has all been completed. On April 1 he'll take a rest from conducting the two broadcasts and listen to the first performance of his own "Prairie Sketches." The work was commissioned by the Ontario Music Educators' Association and will be conducted by Geoffrey Waddington on a special CBC Wednesday Night concert marking the inauguration of a national association of music educators. The suite consists of three movements—"Songs at Sunrise," "Prairie Panorama," and "Dance." (For full details on the program see page 29).

THEATRE IN THE ROUGH

The last in a series of four talks by Victor Leathers, Professor of French at United College, Winnipeg. This week—"The Battle of Hernani." In this final talk Dr. Leathers discusses the opening performance of Victor Hugo's Hernani which in February, 1830, brought to a climax a long-standing literary war in France between the classicists, who took the dramatist Jean Racine as their model, and the romanticists, who looked to M. Hugo for leadership.

married in the Gateway City. In fact, like Donna Andert (who will also be heard later on a semi-final) she's never really been out of her home province.

Kay has sung "as far back as I can remember" at parties, church concerts, and family get-togethers. Her first opportunity in radio came when a musician friend persuaded her to try out for a program on CKRC, CBC's Dominion Network affiliate in Winnipeg. The result: a full season on the Paul Grosney Show.

Kay was married in 1952, gave up singing professionally, and devoted her time to bringing up her children—Shannon, now 5, and Gregg, 4.

In 1956 she returned to the air on CBW's New Voices, a 15-minute local series which discovered many talented performers. She has since sung on the radio network program, Music by McMullin, and the local TV series, The Show That Jack Built.

On Sunday's program, Kay, who prefers the "standards" and dislikes rock 'n' roll numbers, will sing Happiness Is Just a Thing Called Joe.

voluminous apron that protected its wearer from dust, clouds of flour, and served as a convenient place for storage. None of these frilly "cocktail" aprons for Monica Downes, Vancouver housewife and freelance broadcaster. She recalls fondly and nostalgically the apron of yesteryear.

Matinee also features the second in a series of eight programs of "Cooking School of the Air." Today's program is entitled "What Shape Are You In?" If the long winter's lack of exercise has put unwanted pounds 'round the waistlines of Matinee's listeners, today's cooking school lesson will provide just the right advice for acquiring the willowy look spring fashion leaders advocate. In the second of her spring cooking school lessons, Eustella Langdon talks about calorie-cutting, good food habits, and the foods that everyone should eat daily for good health, well-being and, ultimately, beauty.

Another feature of Matinee will be "Windsor: Past, Present and Future." A light look into the history of the border city and some humorous speculations about its future mark the first day of Matinee's origination from Windsor. Val Clare, now retired, still comments on local and international news six days a week for CBE Windsor and has spent all his working career as a radio news writer and editor.

On the musical portion of Matinee Roma Butler, a Canadian soprano who now lives across the border in Detroit will select and introduce recorded music. Today's reading is from J. B. S. Haldane's "My Friend, Mr. Leaky," a modern fairy story for children of all ages. Professor Haldane is a distinguished English scientist. The news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

suitable for reading in this way. It might even be just conversation."

At least one radio producer has really been smitten by spring. Murray Edwards, generally the quiet, reserved type, has announced plans for a new evening series starting April 27 called Man to Man. He describes it breezily as radio's Esquire, a radio magazine for men (which should accumulate a sizeable female audience) edited by Rod Connybeare and a host of experts. There will be features on sports, entertainment, music, cars, food, women and even a department for legal problems.

The week of May 31 to June 6 has been set aside for a series of programs saluting the bi-centenary of Handel's death and the 150th anniversary of Haydn's death. The series will open on Sunday evening, May 31, with a talk on Handel and Haydn by Sir Thomas Beecham, followed by a Haydn concert by the CBC Symphony orchestra. In other concerts scattered throughout the week, listeners will hear the works of both composers performed by such artists as harp-sichordist Greta Kraus and the Baroque Ensemble, soprano Elizabeth Benson Guy, the Hart House String orchestra of Toronto, flutist Nicholas Fiore and pianist John Newmark. The climax will be a performance, on June 6, of Handel's Utrecht Te Deum and Jubilate by the Elmer Iseler singers and orchestra under Sir Ernest MacMillan.

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL, Dean, Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto

For anybody interested in the music of France, this week is particularly illuminating. Not only is the New York Philharmonic program on Saturday evening (March 28) composed entirely of French music, but it is also a kind of historical survey of the last hundred years, and, if I were lecturing on this subject, I could not think of a better series of works to illustrate the music of this country during that time. Starting with the Roman Carnival Overture of Berlioz, which is a concert piece he made out of some of the music in his opera Benvenuto Cellini, we hear a symphony of Saint-Saens, a suite by Gabriel Faure, and a ballet by Ravel. For French chamber music we have two superb specimens on Sunday Chamber Music in the Divertissement of Roussel and the Sextet for piano and wind by Poulenc. Then on Monday evening we can hear Gerard Souzay, probably the best singer of French songs since Maggie Teyte, in an all-French recital including songs by Faure, Poulenc and Ravel. So here is a chance indeed to study many aspects of French music.

The Berlioz Roman Carnival Overture is taken from the carnival scene of Benvenuto Cellini, one of the most exciting scenes in all opera. Quite a lot is lost in this concert piece owing to the absence of the chorus, which makes the scene so exciting on the stage. Those of you who know the overture well can have some conception of the thrilling excitement when this music is both sung and danced in the carnival scene. The opera has been played at Sadler's Wells quite a lot recently and, what with the revival of The Trojans at Covent Garden, London has been getting quite a good idea of Berlioz as an opera composer. It would be wonderful if, when the O'Keefe Auditorium opens, we could have the Covent Garden production of The Trojans in Toronto, because until one has seen the Berlioz operas on the stage, it is almost impossible to realize what a superb dramatic composer he was.

The Saint-Saens symphony is the well-known one in which the organ plays such an important part. One of the finest symphonic works to come out of France, it has been a prime favourite of all the great conductors. The Faure suite of incidental music to Pelleas and Melisande is very well known and has achieved "pop" status by now. The Ravel La Valse is another of the magnificent scores which have come out of France in the last 50 years. It was written for Ida Rubenstein, a wealthy dilettante dancer, who did an enormous service to music by commissioning many fine composers to write works for her company, rather in the manner of Diaghilev, and it is significant that two of Ravel's finest compositions came into being in this way: Daphnis and Chloe for Diaghilev and La Valse for Rubenstein. I can well remember her first production of this ballet and it will always remain in my memory as one of the most beautifully staged spectacles I have ever seen. At the rise of the curtain, all

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

"Freeloaders on the Farm" - There are lots of animals on the farm, useful ones, chiefly, that earn their keep or make profits for their owners. But there is one group, "freeloaders," Jean Tweed calls them, that not only doesn't earn its keep, it's a menace. The rabbits, foxes, coons, rats, and ugh! skunks, belong to this group. What happens when a farm family tries to eliminate these freeloaders is the subject of Mrs. Tweed's talk today. Mrs. Tweed is the wife of Tommy Tweed and they live on a farm on the outskirts of Toronto.

"Missionary to the Eskimos" - A man who knows Canada's first citizens, the Eskimos, their language and their way of life, and who ministers to them over a five hundred mile area of Labrador, talks about his work in today's Matinee interview. He is Rev. F. W. Peacock of Happy Valley, Labrador, superintendent of missions on the Labrador coast, and he is interviewed by Iris Power, the CBC's morning commentator in St. John's.

On the musical portion of Matinee soprano Roma Butler will select and introduce recorded music. Today's reading is from J. B. S. Haldane's book "My Friend, Mr. Leaky." The news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

Music Education

Music education and educators in Canadian schools will be saluted this week on CBC Wednesday Night. The Ontario Music Educators Association of elementary and high school music teachers will hold its 40th annual convention in Toronto, April 1, and at the same time play host to an organizational meeting of a national association of music educators.

A Salute To Music Education, a 90-minute program sponsored by the O.M.E.A. to celebrate the inauguration of the national association, will be broadcast from the University of Toronto Convocation Hall over CBC Trans-Canada network. "This program will show," according to Dr. Richard Johnston, president of the O.M.E.A., "that the arts are not suffering in our schools because of the tremendous importance that has been attached to science education since the launching of Sputnik I. Music is still a vital force and music educators stand for the best in music."

A Small Ado

—Much

Spring, the Etruscans used to say, is an ideal time for taking stock. CBC Wednesday Night this week pays tribute, in a special 50-minute program, to some of the ways in which radio program planners have best succeeded in capturing and stimulating the imaginations of discriminating listeners.

Radio has always been—indeed, may remain—the ideal medium for fostering an appreciation of fine music. It is radio, too, with its inherent intimacy, that has allowed the public to share the thoughts and ideas of some of the great thinkers and innovators of our time. Radio has provided a platform for our bards and poets. It has, on occasion, been a time machine through which we can revisit the fountainheads of our culture.

Wednesday's program will be in four parts, each representative of a particular and significant type of program. The first will be a recital devoted solely to the music of the late Canadian composer, Casimir Oudendorp. It is planned here to give listeners, in addition to a rare chance to hear Oudendorp's work, a comprehensive picture of his development as an artist. A selection was shrouded in a kind of grey mist. As the waltz tune gathered shape in the music, so fleeting glimpses of waltzing couples could be obtained through the fog. These became clearer and clearer exactly as the music became clearer and clearer, and at the entry of the waltz tune fortissimo, shorn of all its cloudy harmonies, the whole stage suddenly leapt into a blaze of light, revealing a vast ballroom hung with huge chandeliers and filled with waltzing couples as far as the eye could reach. It was one of the theatre's great moments and, once seen, never forgotten. It is a shame that these days few ballet companies can afford the expense of such a production. Ravel's Bolero was also written for Rubenstein and this was another of her wonderful productions. One is apt to forget how good a ballet the Bolero is, so coarsened and cheapened by it been by "popular" treatment.

The Ottawa Philharmonic program on Wednesday morning is built on a most ingenious idea. It is entitled The Violin, and consists of three pieces, in two of which the violin plays a leading part dramatically, and, in the third, a leading part musically. After the Fantasia on One Note of Purcell, in which the viola holds one note for five minutes, the other instruments weaving a magnificent contrapuntal tapestry around it, we shall hear the overture to Die Zauberflöte (the Magic Violin) by Werner Egk. Egk is a contemporary German composer still only in his 50's, who writes music which can be understood by anybody at first hearing. This opera, The Magic Violin, was written in 1935 and had a great popularity in Germany. Its story was based on a puppet play by Count Pocci and the music is full of catchy tunes superbly orchestrated. The third work, a ballet by Malipiero, called Stradivarius, dates back from 1947 and tells the story of a Stradivari violin which awakens other instruments at midnight and all join in a ballet. All in all this should be an extremely good concert.

On Thursday evening (CBC Chamber Orchestra) there is the name of a composer which will probably be strange to most listeners. This is Burrill Phillips, an American who hails from Omaha, Nebraska. He studied at Eastman and took his master's degree there. He has become one of the leaders of the American "folk" school and has stated his ideas on the subject thus: "There was a time when I believed the best American music had to have a definite American flavour, something the composer should strive to express. I have changed my concepts about that now, believing that no serious and honest American composer could keep the desirable Americanness out of his music if he wished."

in favour of Responsible Government—a majority of 6,989 for Confederation.

A delegation of seven men from the business and professional life of the country proceeded to Ottawa early in October of the same year where discussions with Canadian representatives continued until December. The agreement, embracing the final terms, was formally signed in the Senate Chamber in Ottawa on December 2, 1948. The official date for the entry of Newfoundland into the Canadian family of provinces was set for one minute after midnight, March 31, 1949.

Ten years have passed since then. Has Confederation succeeded or have the worst fears of those who opposed the union been realized? Are Newfoundlanders Canadians? What benefits have come to Newfoundland? What did Canada get out of the deal? And more important still, what of the future? Will Newfoundlanders always be second-class citizens and live in a "have not" province? Or does Newfoundland, with its great wealth of untapped natural resources, stand on the threshold of a new and exciting future?

Today Kathleen Teltsch, United Nations correspondent for the New York Times, brings her weekly report on what's new "At the U.N."

Another feature on today's program is an interview between Wendy Butler and Monica Dickens. Monica Dickens, the great-granddaughter of Charles Dickens, was born in England in 1915. She was presented at court as a debutante but decided this wasn't a very useful way of life. So she went to work—as a cook-general, a nurse, in a factory—and studied drama for a while. Her first book "One Pair of Hands," was based upon her experiences as a cook and another, "One Pair of Feet," upon her work as a nurse. She has written some 13 books in all. In this Matinee interview, Miss Dickens tells Toronto freelance broadcaster Wendy Butler something about her work and her many experiences.

On the musical portion of Matinee soprano Roma Butler will select and introduce recorded music. Today's reading is from J. B. S. Haldane's book "My Friend, Mr. Leaky." The news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

music particularly suitable for performance of students, therefore, will be featured in the concert.

His Honour, the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Mr. J. Keiller MacKay, will open the program with an address to the music educators and the nation. He will be introduced by Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto.

Money has been made available by the Canada Council to bring Sister M. Lucienne and her superb choir from the Notre Dame d'Acadie in Moncton to Toronto to sing a group of folk songs. The premiere performance of Prairie Sketches, a specially commissioned suite for orchestra by Robert McMullin of Winnipeg will be broadcast. Mr. McMullin was asked to "tailor the suite to the demands of a high school orchestra," according to Dr. Johnston. At the Wednesday Night concert however, Prairie Sketches will be played by a professional symphony orchestra provided through the courtesy of the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Recording Industries and the Toronto Musicians' Association (Local 149 of the American Federation of Musicians). Dr. Geoffrey Waddington, director of music for the CBC will conduct the orchestra.

Instrumental soloists will include Pierrette LaPage from Laval-des-Rapides, Quebec, who will play the first movement from the Tchaikovsky piano concerto in B flat, and Orval Ries of Toronto who will play the Cimarosa oboe concerto. Both Miss LaPage and Mr. Ries are students at the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

will be in Brandon all this week to bring prairie listeners daily reports on activities at the Manitoba Winter Fair. Gren will contribute items daily to the farm broadcasts on radio. Special reports will also be carried Tuesday to Friday at 5:00 p.m. on CBW, and Saturdays CBC Farm Club for Manitoba will originate from the fair. Television viewers across the prairies will see a full hour of fair events direct from the Judging Arena on Saturday afternoon, with Vern as emcee and Dick Painter, regular Fair Ring Commentator, as commentator on the light horse events.

of his most significant compositions will be performed by violinist Morris Solway, 'cellist Cornelius Ysselstyn, pianist Leo Barkin, and tenor Peter Dimuantes.

On the second portion, Maxwell Ferguson ("Rawhide") will chat with Luther and Orville Goomer of Gaspereau, Nova Scotia, the only surviving exponents of a type of folk-music which seems to have been overlooked in the collections.

Another highlight of the program will be readings from, and discussion of, recent significant contributions in the field of modern American poetry, with particular reference to the revival of the medieval custom of presenting poetry with musical accompaniment.

The special program will conclude with a performance of The Flying Scotchman, an operatic study of the journals and letters of the renowned 10th century Bard of Dundee, described in his own time as an "aviatore and mystick."

Responsibility for the production rests entirely with John Reeves, who has called the program A Small Ado About Nothing Much.

NATO is not a supranational body. It is an international organization in which the members retain their full national sovereignty, while practising the principle of interdependence. The North Atlantic Council, composed of representatives of the governments of member countries, is the highest authority in NATO on both civil and military matters. The Secretary-General is chairman of the council and responsible for organizing its work, with the assistance of the International Staff Secretariat, permanent council committees and temporary working groups. The Military Committee, composed of one of the Chiefs-of-Staff of each member country possessing armed forces, is the highest military authority. A standing group, composed of representatives of the Chiefs-of-Staff of France, the United Kingdom and the United States, is the executive agency of the Military Committee. The command structure is broken down into Allied Command Europe, Allied Command Atlantic, Allied Command Channel, and the Canadian-United States Regional Planning Group. The Supreme Allied Commander Europe (SACEUR) is in charge of Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE).

Adventures in Music

• I just want to let you know how much my husband and I appreciated the TV program, Adventures in Music. Surely we should have more such programs. There are so few really good musical programs on TV.—D. F., Winnipeg.

• I don't see why programs such as Adventures in Music has to replace such programs as Bat Masterson and Danny Thomas. Why not put them on after the regular schedule. Those that want to see them badly will watch them. Why spoil it for everybody?—Mrs. E. A., Steinbach, Man. Everybody?

Late Movies

• It would be fun to see the Dr. Kildare series with Lew Ayres and Laraine Day again. We never miss an English movie, and hope you can keep them coming. Have been watching for This Happy Breed and for Sid Field, one of the most hilarious of them all, in his old movies.—H. L., Winnipeg.

Film director Grace Brown reports that neither "This Happy Breed" nor the M.G.M. "package" containing the Dr. Kildare series has yet been released for TV in Canada.

Marian Anderson

• We want to express our deep appreciation for the CBC's presenting The Lady From Philadelphia last night. My father and I sat and listened, at times so profoundly moved that we could not speak, but just look at one another. I know we both felt enriched for having not only listened to her glorious voice in song, but also for listening to her thoughts, which seemed to us like eloquent miniature sermons. A program like that truly makes TV rewarding. Thank you so very much.—Miss W. M. C., Winnipeg.

• We would like to express our sincere appreciation for the wonderful program, Lady From Philadelphia. To us, it was one of the most outstanding productions ever seen on TV. The entire presentation was put together with so much care, sympathy and skill that it really succeeded in doing justice to a beautiful voice and a remarkable woman, Miss Marian Anderson. Listed below are the signatures of my co-workers who also enjoyed the program and would like to see and hear it again.—(22 signatures), Winnipeg.

• Please let me thank you for the lovely film on Marian Anderson last night. It was a very pleasant surprise and really most enjoyable. She is one of my favorites and we could do with more films like that. A lot of people I have spoken to did not see it, so it would be very welcome if it were repeated. Please give us some more like that.—Mrs. W. B., St. James, Man.

Como's Salary

• I used to enjoy the Perry Como Show occasionally, especially when he had Patrice Munsel and other real singers as guest stars. But the pleasure is gone since I heard of his recent $25 million contract.

Perry Como has a pleasant face and manner but it is now evident that he has not the character to withstand the temptations of success. The exorbitance of the contract indicates that he's "out to get 'his' while the getting is good," a trait characteristic of our western so-called Christian civilization. He probably imagines himself patriotic. Has he considered what wonderful propaganda he has supplied the communists, especially the Chinese branch, to spread throughout starving Asia? They'll now be able to say more emphatically, and with less exaggeration than usual, that the people of North America care more about a few hours of entertainment than about helping their struggling, less fortunate brothers, that North Americans are so bored and unenthusiastic about their work and their way of life that they'll pay anything to help themselves escape and forget, that we are such a grabbing, competitive, harassed, tortured people that we have just about reached the stage in our fear and desperation where we are ready to abandon posterity, ideals and everything, and "strike first" in a "preventive" war of maniacal suicide and world destruction. Perry Como is merely a manifestation. He's just doing what most of the rest of us would if we could, and what other "stars" of TV and sport are doing. Our society is to blame—people like you and me who vegetate in front of our TV sets and acquiesce as long as we're not disturbed. It is we who idolize crooning voices and sports prowess and put them in a position to demand such ridiculous salaries. And we'll probably sit drooling, superior and smug, while Perry Como, in lavish settings, murmurs some "nice" Easter songs praising (theoretically) the one who gave His life for the fruits of the spirit. Meanwhile the Communists, by showing their zeal for an interest in the welfare of its people, continue to win Asia.—Mrs. E. Luca, Foremost, Alberta.

CBWT Power

• During the past few months the CBC Times has carried articles on other television stations in western Canada, and it has been interesting to compare these stations with CBWT. Most of these other stations serve areas less populated than that of CBWT, yet the power output of these stations is anywhere up to three times as much as CBWT. I'm not asking that Winnipeg be the most powerful station on the prairies, but CBWT has been on the air now for almost five years, and outside of changing channels the CBC has done nothing to improve reception for its viewers. Are we to remain victims of poor reception because of CBWT's mediocre output? Most of us are tired of watching the same snow storm night after night.—A. W. Dales, Great Falls, Man.

Mr. Dales errs in assuming that extra power would improve reception at Great Falls. Reception is affected by topography and by the type and location of the antenna used. Mr. Dales does not say what type of antenna he is using or describe what attempts he has made to adjust it correctly. Great Falls is near the outside edge of the "fringe" reception area, and possible reception is hampered by the presence of water and hills—which we cannot remove! In short, power is not the only factor involved in good reception. Doubling CBWT's video power would not result in any greater coverage area.

New Format

• Bravo for you new TV set-up in the CBC Times—also the new radio listings. They're the ultimate.—F.E., Winnipeg.

Trail of '98

In 1898 thousands of men trudged up a 45-degree slope in the biting cold, laden with tools and provisions that would help them make a fortune. They were bound for the Klondike, in the last great "gold rush." Toronto journalist Pierre Berton (left) himself a native of Dawson City and son of a Klondike fortune hunter, wrote the script for Trail of '98, a documentary on the Klondike gold rush presented January 8 on CBC-TV. In response to hundreds of requests Trail of '98 will be repeated this Tuesday (March 31) on CBC Folio. The film includes interviews with surviving "ninety-eighters" and is narrated by J. Frank Willis.
