Eric Wild Looks Back

Canada's only pre-war television conductor recalls some of his early experiences on two continents and considers the development of orchestral playing in Winnipeg

ERIC WILD'S long career as a conductor of broadcast music is possibly unique in that it began in television and is now very largely centred in radio.

In 1936, with the shadow of the Great Depression still hovering about, Eric went to Europe as trumpeter with a small orchestra. After a season in Monte Carlo, where he heard Richard Strauss conducting a ballet, he returned to London for an engagement at the Savoy Hotel. It so happened that at this time the BBC was just launching its television broadcasts (first in the world), and was auditioning musicians. Eric was auditioned by Sir Henry Wood, Sir Adrian Boult, and several other prominent musicians.

"It was the toughest session I ever went through," he says. "I believe I sweated more blood in those few days than I have ever done in music before or since—but I got in."

The result was that he found himself sitting for hours under glaring lights and in tropical heat, pounding out all sorts of music. But it was fascinating, and to this day Eric insists that it was his greatest thrill. The BBC was ambitious, and the TV broadcasts were often spectacular. The orchestra accompanied performances by famous comedians like Tommy Handley of I.T.M.A., songs by Gracie Fields, and ballets by the great Sadler's Wells troupe.

Before long Eric was assigned to musical arrangements and conducting.

"This was my first introduction to thoroughgoing professional work," he says. "There is really nothing like it, and I'll never regret those years. We had to meet all sorts of demands—for popular music, dance music, accompaniments, concert work, symphonic work, everything. I believe I was fortunate to get such experience so early in my career, and I think most professional musicians will agree that it is good training for any musician."

But there was a long period of training behind Eric Wild when he joined the BBC orchestra in 1936. It began in his home town of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, when he was a boy in high school. Even then Eric was a union musician, playing trumpet, violin and clarinet in concert and dance bands. But music became more and more absorbing, and 1928 found him at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, studying for a musical degree. Four years later—four years of unbroken work, because Eric had no capital and had to work his way through—he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Music. A variety of jobs followed, chiefly playing with orchestras on Great Lakes ships—including the ill-fated Noronic. A scholarship from the University gave him the chance to play with the Chicago Civic Orchestra, but he had to turn down the invitation when it came, because a big event intervened—his marriage to another musical graduate of Michigan. For a time, Eric went back to the University studying for his Master's Degree and working as a student instructor, but family responsibilities drove him out to the working world, and back to Canada. In Toronto, failing to get a place as an instructor in Ontario schools, he worked as an arranger with Geoffrey Waddington at the old CRBC station, doing a lot of conducting also. His European trip and work with the BBC followed, and at the outbreak of war, having sent his wife and family home to Canada, he worked at troop entertainment in England and France, including a trip with Gracie Fields up to the front lines just before Dunkirk.

is currently conducting two national network programs—"Dancing Storybook" (Wednesdays on CBC-TV) and "Winnipeg Summer Concert" (Sundays on CBC radio).

The following year found Eric back in Canada, working now with the CBC in Toronto, and conducting shows on which Alan Young, Wayne and Shuster, and others now prominent in the entertainment world appeared as guest artists. Then the Navy commissioned him as a lieutenant and conductor of the Navy Show, and a few months later he was back again in England. He travelled all over the British Isles entertaining troops, worked again with the BBC as arranger and conductor, and ended up with Navy Show visits to Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, and Germany.

With the war over, Eric returned to Toronto, but in 1947 he was offered the job of building up a CBC concert orchestra in Winnipeg, and acting as general music advisor to the CBC in the Prairie Region. The Concert Orchestra remains his central interest, though he has been associate conductor of the Winnipeg Symphony, and is today conductor of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the Rainbow Stage.

Looking back over his years with the CBC Concert Orchestra, Eric

AL HARRIS AND THE RHYTHM PALS

Starting this week—

The Tommy Hunter Show

Popular "Country Hoedown" vocalist and The Rhythm Pals get together for daily CBC radio show, replacing The Happy Gang for the summer

A special program of music and variety for holiday listening starts this week in the CBC Trans-Canada, Monday through Friday. It's the Tommy Hunter Show with—

- Tommy Hunter himself, the young Western singer who has drawn up to 2,000 letters a week for his appearances on TV's Country Hoedown;

- The Rhythm Pals, Mike, Marc and Jack, probably the most popular western and pops singing group ever to come from the Canadian west;

- CBC personality Bruce Smith as host;

- Al Harris with his steel and Spanish guitars;

- Guest stars, some of the biggest names in Canadian radio and TV; for instance, this week: Juliette, Sammy Sales, Betty Jean Ferguson and King Ganam.

The Tommy Hunter Show will replace the Happy Gang for the summer. Regular visitors to the Happy Gang and out-of-town visitors are invited to come to the Concert Studios, 9 McGill Street, Toronto.

"On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays we'll be having light music and popular songs," says producer Ken Dalziel, who also produces The Happy Gang. "On Tuesdays and Thursdays we'll concentrate on westerns. It should be quite a fast-moving show—certainly we've got some fine talent in our six regulars. As for guests, we won't be trying new talent but will continue with people of the calibre of Juliette, Sammy Sales, and Betty Jean Ferguson."

There'll also be a number of special features in the show. On Western days, for instance, there will be a spot for Tales of Canadian Trails when Bruce Smith tells some anecdote of the Canadian west.

THURSDAY, JUNE 4

TELEVISION

Have Gun, Will Travel

Tonight—"Death of a Gunfighter" is the subtitle.

Playbill

A play entitled, "The Wall," by Irene Robinson, has replaced "To Float One Cork," which was announced in last week's issue of the Times. Tonight's play was produced on CBC Trans-Canada radio network, June 9, 1958, on Vancouver Theatre. The story is about two spinsters (Maury and Alice) who live together in a house by the sea and are erecting a sea-wall to prevent erosion. The wall becomes symbolic of their existence, shutting out reality and, to be precise, men. Into this situation steps Jake, the foreman of a construction gang whose curiosity has been aroused by the legend that has been built up around the two women. "The Wall," features Dorothy Davies as Maury, Nonie Stewart as Alice, a cripple, and David Hughes as Jake, who wins the affections of Maury.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5

TELEVISION

Wells Fargo

Tonight—"Bounty Hunter," Jim Hardie traps an outlaw only to find that he and his prisoner are being stalked by a bounty hunter.

Cavalcade of Sports

Dick Tiger, British Empire middle-weight champion from Nigeria, versus Rory Calhoun of White Plains, New York, in Madison Square Garden.

CBW-9:30 p.m. CBK-8:30 p.m. CBX-7:30 p.m.

remembers not only the distinguished artists who were his guests, but also the fine young artists of the west, many of whom made their debuts under his baton. Among prominent performers he named Donald Bell, baritone; Anton Kuerti, pianist; Joseph Pach, violinist; Albert Pratz, violinist; Joan Maxwell, mezzo-soprano; and Ruth Watson Henderson, pianist. Others were Peter Koslowsky, tenor; Rolande Garnier, mezzo-soprano; Orville Derraugh, baritone; Gladys Kriese, contralto; Marilyn Duffus, contralto; Norman Chapman, Brandon pianist; Carlina Carr, Calgary pianist; Florence Faiers, mezzo-soprano; Evelyn Anderson, soprano; Gerald Stanick, violist; Peggie Sampson, 'cellist, and many others.

Memorable performances Eric recalled were The Lowland Sea, by Alec Wilder, with Marilyn Duffus and Orville Derraugh in lead roles; The King and I, on Rainbow Stage, with Evelyn Anderson and Rolande Garnier; Poeme de l'amour et de la mer, (Chausson), with Rolande Garnier; Joan Maxwell in The Sea Pictures (Elgar), and Kurt Weil's Down in the Valley.

But Eric thinks that his two radio productions of Gabriel Faure's Requiem, with the Winnipeg Concert Orchestra and the Winnipeg Choristers, in 1949 and 1958, have been high points in his career.

"I have learned more in Winnipeg than anywhere else," he says, "and the two performances of the Faure Requiem seem to illustrate better than anything else the development of the standards of musical performance in this city. Many of the musicians working in the second performance were heard in the first, but the standard of performance had risen tremendously, and it made me feel proud and happy to have been associated with music here in those ten eventful years."

While he has remained pretty steadily in Winnipeg for the past twelve years, Eric has done some travelling—in the United States on tour with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, and to Toronto to conduct the Toronto and CBC Symphony.

On CBC Wednesday Night

One of the CBC Wednesday Night highlights this week will be a half-hour feature called Fanfare for Two Elizabeths, prepared by Jean Gow of Toronto, who describes it as "a device of documents, history, fact and informed fancy, with some music, spanning 400 years from the first Elizabeth, Queen of England, to the second Elizabeth, Queen of Great Britain and the Commonwealth overseas." Mrs. Gow goes on to say that "exactly 400 years ago this year Elizabeth Tudor, daughter of King Henry VIII, was crowned Queen. She was well educated, beautiful, and 25 years of age. Six years ago

Elizabeth Windsor, daughter of King George VI, was crowned Queen. She was well educated, beautiful and 25 years of age. Elizabeth I came into an unloving realm to travel her perilous and lonely way to the throne and immortality. So differently came Elizabeth Windsor into the turbulent 20th century, welcomed, protected, and from the beginning the darling of a sentimental British public. But, like the inauspicious Elizabeth Tudor, she too was a child of destiny. Elizabeth Tudor was still in her infancy when she entered the political marriage market. But within the framework of the royal marriages Elizabeth Windsor could and did choose a man she loved for her husband."

Fanfare for Two Elizabeths will include some madrigals, both

Musicians with a Mission

Taras Gabora
and Gaelyne Craig with pianist
Johan Van Beek

*Yorkton TV features young Saskatchewan
celebrities on "Profile"*

Soprano Gaelyne Craig and her violinist husband, Taras, of Mikado, Saskatchewan, were guests on the program Profile recently on CKOS-TV, Yorkton. Norman Roebuck, the station's public relations director, reports that the program was well received by the Yorkton area audience.

The Gaboras were accompanied on Profile by Johan Van Beek, Dutch-born pianist and winner of the 1957 International Piano Competition. Recently returned from studies and recital tours in Europe, the Gaboras and Mr. Van Beek are now devoting much of their time in Saskatchewan to performing for school children. While the Gaboras agree that young children are "the best audiences in the world" they claim that teen-age groups are the most difficult.

"In Canada," Mr. Gabora says, "people are not really educated to music; too often it is only a kind of background and does not communicate to people. It is too frequently considered purely as entertainment and people are not willing to put effort into it. Sensitivity to music must be developed, and we hope to develop this sensitivity and interest in children, and in that way to erase the prejudice."

The recitals by the Gaboras and Mr. Van Beek are being sponsored by the Saskatchewan department of education.

The three will be heard in a radio recital from Winnipeg this week; details are on page 31.

Four Families

American parents' greatest worry is that their children might steal; British parents' that their children be kind to animals. And somewhere in between—as usual—come Canadian parents. The famous author and anthropologist Dr. Margaret Mead, makes this observation in "Four Families," a one hour telecast, first in a series called "Comparisons" starting on the CBC-TV Network this Tuesday night. In this first program, Dr. Mead analyzes family activities and their effects on national character by taking four families, one each in France, India, Japan and Canada. In each case the family group was filmed in similar situations. The father arrives home for the main family meal . . . the family together for the evening . . . the rituals of putting the baby to bed. Despite differences in family activities in each country, the films show also startling similarities. "Comparisons" will in succeeding programs treat other subjects of international interest.

The 15th Anniversary of D-Day

CBC NEWSMAGAZINE

Will feature film of Canadians landing on the Normandy beaches on June 6, 1944. The film, taken by the Canadian army film unit, has just been released, and has never been seen by the public. Newsmagazine host Norman DePoe will do a report from the Normandy beaches as they are today.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

Will present the second program in its two-part series on D-Day. Walter Cronkite is narrator.

anniversary of D-Day. (See above). Also, late news from home and abroad in this special one-hour edition of the program.

Bob Cummings Show

This week — "Bob Slows Down." Bob's sister persuades his doctor to invent a dread illness for Bob in an attempt to halt his madcap playboy antics. Emmy award winner Ann Dairs stars as "Schultzie."

Father Knows Best

Comedy series starring Robert Young as Jim Anderson and Jane Wyatt as his wife Margaret. This week—"Ideal Father."

December Bride

The father-in-law of a young bride causes strife in the honeymoon home and the Henshaw household by meddling in the kitchen and trying to "help" with the housework. Starring Spring Byington, Henry Morgan and Verna Felton.

Showtime

Musical program featuring Bob Goulet, Joyce Sullivan and Howard Cable and his orchestra.

The World's Stage

True drama series introduced by Dr. Frank Baxter. This week—"The Vestris," a dramatization of the strange happenings aboard the bark Vestris during the voyage from Plymouth, Eng., to Boston, in 1828.

General Motors Presents

This week—"Fear is No Stranger." This suspense drama by Henry Misrock tells of the search for a murderer who has strangled three girls within a month. The district attorney, busy directing the search for the killer, is disturbed when his daughter brings home a young stranger with whom she has fallen in love. Meanwhile, fear and panic spread throughout the city.

Twentieth Century

"D-Day," (Part Two). In the chill, pre-dawn hours of June 6, 1944, off Normandy Beach, Canadian, British and American troops prepared for the most decisive invasion of World War II. This gigantic attack on the beach-heads of Normandy is recreated in the second of two chapters. Viewers will see the greatest sea-land artillery duel in history between the Allied fleet and the entrenched German shore batteries. Historic film shows paratroopers being dropped from overcast skies, the first wave loads of infantrymen hitting the beaches, the Allied planes joining the naval bombardment of fifty miles of coastline.

Weekend in Sports

The latest happenings and scores from the world of sports with Steve Douglas.

Fighting Words

Open House

AN OLD BAEDEKER—The Baedeker, for decades the world's best-known series of guides for "foreign travel," is something we usually associate with Europe. But to Europeans of fifty or sixty years ago, one of the most interesting books in the series was the one which described the exotic tours one could take through Canada! Monica Mugaan picked up one of these old editions in her travels, and this week and next she'll talk about some of the things visitors from far-off lands considered the highlights of a Canadian Grand Tour. SKETCHES — Dorothy Lash Colquhoun returns with more of her delightful sketches of people we all know.

P.M. Party

Audience participation show with fun and music; starring Gordie Tapp, Donna Miller, Rex Loring, Rudy Toth and the orchestra, and Daniel the Spaniel.

Howdy Doody

The Doodyville people are taken to an Indian village while on the way to their summer camp. Timber Tom arrives at the campsite to find that the cottage has disappeared.

The Millionaire

This week—"Angela Temple." Marvin Miller stars as Michael Anthony.

Cross-Canada Hit Parade

Guest Shelley Berman delivers a comic monologue from his current LP album. Host Wally Koster and the entire cast join in a take-off on "My Fair Lady." Joyce Hahn sings "All Alone." With Bert Niosi and the orchestra.

Danny Thomas Show

This week — "Good Old Days." Linda awakens to find a simple locket around her neck. The locket causes

TWO ELIZABETHS

Tudor and modern style, because, Mrs. Gow says, both Elizabeths had homemade music among the people of their households, especially when they were confined in country castles . . . Elizabeth Tudor at Woodstock as a prisoner in danger of her life from political enemies, Elizabeth Windsor as an evacuee from London where her life might be endangered by enemy bombs. Mrs. Gow notes that "both Elizabeths had devoted 'lady mistresses,' or governesses. Both were musical. One played the virginals exceptionally well, one plays the piano well. Both are known as horse lovers, looking well in mounted pictures, and Elizabeth Windsor is also considered an expert on racing blood in horses."

"The documentary ends with much sentimental excitement in the Williams' household.

Cannonball

Desilu Playhouse

This week—"Lucy's Summer Vacation." Ida Lupino and Howard Duff join Lucy and Ricky Ricardo for a mixed-up week-end at a lodge in the wilderness. (See picture this page.)

two coronation ceremonies, both almost the same, with the oath, acclaim and fanfares echoing down the corridors of time into the arches of Westminster Abbey."

Because of movies, television and royal tours, most Canadians are familiar with the charm, sudden radiant smile and gaiety of Elizabeth II. We see Elizabeth Tudor only through the stiff, formal portraits left to us by the masters of her time. But imagine for a moment that that haughty face has suddenly come to life, and you'll see the flashing eyes that tell of rude good health and zest for life. Note the way she turns her head to catch the light from the window on her thick auburn hair, fine skin and pale Roman nose. She moves her tall athletic figure with unusual grace acquired through exercise and great attention to carriage. She loves to dance and her enemies are sarcastic about her vigorous style. She looks imperious and she is. She speaks eloquently, in both the flowery language of the court and the vigorous, vulgar style of the peasant. She's a flirt, and her suitors are legion. She employs every artifice of adornment to emphasize her good looks, and this continues even when her youthful charms are creased by wrinkles, blotted with pock marks, and her once glorious hair topped with a hideous red wig. Flattery is her tonic, and let the heads fall where they may. From her mother she has inherited her physical attractiveness, jealousy and insincerity. From her father comes her energy, inclination to cruelty and coarseness. Her vitality is the keynote to Elizabeth I. That's something that doesn't come across in her oil portraits, but it will in Jean Gow's word and sound picture of the great queen, a new, fresh approach to her colourful life and personality.

Mrs. Gow's work is already familiar to CBC listeners. Among her dramatic works presented on radio are three serials for children: The Thunderbird Curse, The Little Loyalty, and Legends of Northern Italy.

"Lucy's Summer Vacation"

Guest stars Ida Lupino and Howard Duff join Lucy and Ricky Ricardo for a mixed-up weekend at at wilderness lodge. The Duffs and the Ricardos are accidentally booked into the same cabin in the north woods, where the men go on a fishing spree and the women are left to amuse themselves. Also on hand are the Lucy-Desi regulars, Vivian Vance and William Frawley, as the neighbourly Mertzes.

Comparisons

"Four Families." What are the greatest problems faced by Canadian parents? Dr. Margaret Mead answers this question and shows how family activities affect national character. She and Ian McNeill of the NFB compare attitudes toward children in family situations in France, India, Japan and Canada.

TOMMY HUNTER SHOW

"We get a lot of American western stories," says Ken Dalziel, "but Canada's west has a romantic history too."

Then there'll be a Back of the Barn spot: a joke each week — a different one, too—"real corny old western jokes, the cornier the better." And each week one of the regulars will sing the top number of the current Western Hit Parade, plus another number on the Hit Parade which is climbing fast.

The alternate three days will also have special features. One in particular suits the holiday mood: in Holiday Highways Bruce Smith will each week take listeners along one or another of Canada's most famous scenic highways. "It might be up the Cariboo Highway in B.C.," says Ken Dalziel, "and then perhaps we'll move across to the Maritimes."

Another special spot is entitled Time Was. The boys pick a year and recall some of the events and fashions of the day, leading up to a song of the time. There'll be interviews with out-of-town guests in the audience and the guest stars will tell something of their plans for the summer.

Tommy Hunter has been playing and singing since he was nine. He had his first radio appearance in Hamilton, Ontario. In addition to his regular spot on Country Hoedown he appeared daily for a month on the Arthur Godfrey Show. For many years the Rhythm Pals — Mike Ferbey, Jack Jensen, and Marc Wald — sang together on CBC and private radio in Vancouver. In 1958 they also had their own CBC-TV series on the West coast.

Tommy officially turned professionally when he received $1.00 as payment for an engagement consisting of two evening shows. When he was 16 the London Theatre Group chose Tommy to play and sing The Ballad of Barbara Allen for their production of Dark of the Moon. The play won the Western Ontario Drama Festival and went on to Victoria, B.C., for the Dominion Festival. It was in Victoria that Tommy made his radio debut.

Back in Ontario, cowboy star Smiley Burnett saw his act and recommended him for the Main Street Jamboree show over CHML Hamilton. He spent a year and a half with the show and then joined the Golden Prairie Boys, a radio group in Wingham, Ontario.

In June, 1956, Country Hoedown began and Tommy became a key member of the cast. He has been on the show ever since. Adulation contained in 2,000 fan letters a week, many of them proposals, is heady stuff for a 21-year-old. But Hunter is still a refreshingly modest and level-headed young man—and still single.

Between Friday night Country Hoedown shows, Tommy has been making personal appearances with King Ganam in Southern Ontario centres, and recently had an album released on the RCA Victor label.

Wednesday on "Close-Up"

$1,000,000-a-Year Bachelor

The Aga Khan in his first informal television interview

Aga Khan IV, honourable chief and spiritual leader of 20 million Ismaili Moslems, will be a guest on Close-Up Wednesday, June 10.

It will be his first informal television interview for the 22-year-old grandson of Aga Khan III, who is an undergraduate at Harvard University and 50th in a direct line of descent from the prophet Mohammed.

Khan, as he is known to classmates at Harvard, is a handsome six-footer who plays outside left on the Ivy League soccer team, lives in a regular student dormitory and occasionally rides the subway from Cambridge into Boston. He dates co-eds from nearby Radcliffe College. With a reputed income of a million dollars a year from the tithes of his followers, he is one of the world's most eligible bachelors.

years ago the Angel Gabriel ordered the Little People from heaven. Walt Disney enlists the aid of Irish actor Pat O'Brien to help find a real leprechaun. They do, and in the person of 21-inch tall King Brian Connors of Knocknasheega. Brian, however, is no angel.

One of a Kind

Alex Barris is moderator as Kathie McNeil, Rita Allen, Lloyd Bochner and Allan Manings attempt to identify objects associated with famous people.

Kraft Music Hall Presents Dave King

King's guest is actress Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Bat Masterson

Western series starring Gene Barry in the title role. This week—"Promised Land."

The Unforeseen

This week—"The New Member" a suspense drama by Robert Lewis about a man who thinks he is made of transparent glass and who awakens from a dream to find himself in an insane asylum.

Close-Up

A live interview from Boston with the Aga Khan. J. Frank Willis is host. (See story this page).

But the Aga Khan IV is a serious student. He will graduate this spring with a straight "A" in oriental history and economics. He regularly studies until two or three a.m., devotes all his spare time to the welfare of the worldwide religious sect which considers him its spiritual and temporal leader.

With his grandfather's secretary, who lives in a Cambridge hotel not far from the Harvard Yard, Prince Karim (his given name) conducts the affairs of state for the wealthy merchants and traders who make up the largest part of his Ismaili sect.

"We get messages from everywhere," he told a reporter. "Bombay to Zanzibar to Zurich. People all over send me regular reports. But I must make the final decision. When letters say things are working well, that the efforts of the community are going ahead, my day is made."

Prince Karim, faithful to the Moslem creed, does not drink or smoke. But he is no lonely aesthete. To his classmates he is a likeable fellow. He declines to discuss his personal affairs, but when asked about girls was once quoted as saying: "I thank God for women."

Although his grandfather was one of the world's richest potentates, most of his fortune went to his fourth wife, a former French beauty queen known to Ismailis as the Begum. Prince Karim inherited mostly mosques and burial grounds, but the two and one-half per cent tithe paid by his followers has been estimated to bring in a million dollars a year. Most of it goes to the world charities established by his grandfather.

Classmates describe Karim as "no playboy." His studious nature and sense of responsibility may be the reason why Karim, instead of his father Prince Aly Khan, was chosen by Aga Khan III to inherit the spiritual leadership following his death in 1957.

RITA GREER ALLEN

takes her place on the "One of a Kind" panel again Wednesday night on CBC-TV. After first giving up the idea of becoming a painter, Rita has written about 200 scripts for CBC.

Aly, best known as an ex-husband of actress Rita Hayworth, is the chief delegate of Pakistan to the United Nations. Young Prince Karim was the child of Prince Aly's first marriage to Joan Yarde-Buller Guinness Khan, daughter of a British peer. It ended in divorce in 1949.

Karim was enrolled at Harvard during the period when his grandfather attracted world attention by matching his weight (243 pounds) with diamonds during the Bombay celebration of the 60th year of his ministry. As the fabulous Imam sat on the golden scales, the faithful contributed $2,200,000 in diamonds for aid to the sect's poor.

He had other original schemes for raising funds. Blessings were telegraphed to new business ventures for $5,000 each. After his death a wealthy merchant paid $36,000 for 25 ounces of the holy water used to anoint him.

Prince Karim is said to frown on such practices, and shuns the ostentation and self-indulgence which brought much criticism on his father and grandfather. But his philosophy and attitudes towards other aspects of his inheritance have never been publicized. These Close-Up will explore in a live interview this Wednesday.

PROGRAM NOTES

JUNE 11

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information.

Mary Liz Show

The daily life and varied activities of women at the hydro development at Kelsey in Northern Manitoba is featured on today's show, and Miss Shan Ullman will talk about that story as Mr. Stan Whittaker presents an over-all view of the breaking of new frontiers in Canada's north. Warner Troyer gives viewers his "observer's-eye view" of Legislative affairs in the province. (CBWT-2:00 p.m.).

Open House

KEEP IN TRIM — Gwen Vernon bends and stretches and invites viewers to join her! TRADING STAMPS: PLOT OR PLUM? Many grocery stores throughout the country now carry "trading stamps" or use similar "bonus" schemes. Are we really getting bargains or bonuses, or do we pay more for the food we buy? Today, a panel of people who are directly concerned discuss the question.

Douglas Fairbanks Presents

Drama series introduced by Douglas Fairbanks. This week — "Rendezvous at Dawn." An American newspaperman in Munich becomes involved with a beautiful woman, a professional killer and a big-time contraband operator, in this story of suspense and intrigue.

Maggie Muggins

Maggie and her friends present a play about a boy who sticks his finger in a hole in a dike and saves Holland—with Fitzgerald Fieldmouse in the lead. Reuben Rabbit gets into trouble with a windmill and has to be rescued by Henrietta Hen.

Pieces of Eight

Pirate adventures for children.

Whistletown

Everybody at the fire hall studies to beat the Snazzyville fire hall people in a quiz. The prize is a trip across Canada.

Hobby Corner

For the fisherman who wants to combine a hobby with his favourite sport, fly-tieing is just the thing. A few basic tools, imagination, dexterity and some "fish psychology" are all that is needed. Today's guest, Frank R. Zeaton, will discuss this interesting hobby with host Glynne Morris. (CBWT-5:00 p.m.)

Woody Woodpecker

This week—"Overture to a Kid."

Music Makers '59

Jazz singer Ann Marie Moss is Jack Kane's guest.

Cow on a Tightrope

Second of three programs prepared by the CBC Farms and Fisheries department. Tonight's program deals with what farmers need, what they are getting, how these items are related, and what farmers feel the federal and provincial agencies should do. The farm of Bruce McBlain of Caledonia, Ontario, will be used as an example. The last program (June 18) in the series will deal with the problems arising from the break up of traditional rural life.

Here's Duffy

Music and comedy with Jack Duffy and his guests.

Sales Club Prexy

Ralph Horley, senior sales representative for the CBC's prairie region, was elected president of the Winnipeg Sales and Ad Club May 25.

One of the many CBC Winnipeg staffers born in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, Mr. Horley began his radio career there as an announcer at CHAB in 1940. He joined CBC in 1948 as an announcer at CBX, Edmonton, became senior announcer later the same year, and early in 1949 was appointed presentation officer at Edmonton. In Winnipeg since 1952, he is responsible for the commercial operation of the CBC in the prairies.

Mr. Horley has been a member of the board of directors of the Sales and Ad Club of Winnipeg for four years; he is also a member of the Chamber of Commerce and an active Scout leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Horley have a true prairie regional family — two Saskatchewanites, one Albertan, and one Manitoban—all girls.

CBC-TV Networks Win Sloan Award

For the second year in succession the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has been awarded North America's top highway safety award.

The Alfred P. Sloan Award was won by the CBC-TV networks in competition with major United States networks.

The award was presented by Alfred P. Sloan, founder of the Sloan Foundation, to W. J. Dunlop, CBC supervisor of institutional programs, who accepted it on behalf of the Corporation.

The citation was read by Howard Pyle, a former broadcasting executive and ex-governor of Arizona, at a dinner held at the Waldorf-Astoria, Tuesday, May 12. It read:

"Through its English and French television networks, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation continued its yeoman work last year to improve Canadian highway safety standards.

"Regular and seasonal aspects of safety were highlighted in established network programs with the co-operation of provincial officials, mayors and traffic specialists.

"In addition, the CBC produced excellent films promoting driver and pedestrian safety and distributed them without cost to privately-owned TV stations across the country."

Charles Boyer Theatre

Drama series introduced by host Charles Boyer. This week — "Desert Encounter." A noted author has no idea of the trouble in store when he gives a beautiful young Mexican girl a ride to her father's ranch.

Open House

LIVING WITH CHILDREN — Another visit from Peggy Austin and more suggestions about helping your children make really worthwhile collections this summer. GUEST OF THE WEEK—Margaret Peterson, the author of some of the books Peggy Austin recommends to children and their parents. Such publications as the "First Book of Animals" and the "First Book of Stones" are prized by both small readers and parents. Accurate, simple, beautifully illustrated, the "First Books" fill a real need; and it is interesting to know that their author and illustrator, now a mother herself, was able to combine her training in art and in biology to produce them. SINKSIDE SCIENCE —Rats and mice, we'd just as soon not admit they ever get into our houses, but it's a rare family that hasn't had these night visitors at one time or another. John Irwin shows

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information.

Belmont Stakes

Live coverage of the final part of American racing's "triple crown."

Rin Tin Tin

This week—"The Second Chance," Rusty, Rinty and Corporal Boone become involved with a fugitive from justice, his girl friend, a fighting marshal and a gang of outlaws. The fugitive proves himself to be innocent and a hero as well.

CBWT—Music Hall

French musical-variety show with hostess Michelle Tisseyre. This week's guests are jazz trumpeter Maynard Ferguson, singers Jeanne Bianchi and Andre Bertrand, Marc Gélinas performing three of his latest songs, comedians Paul Berval and Jean-Claude Deret in a musical parody of the Louis XV era, and Les Goetschis (acrobats). Henry Matthews directs the orchestra, and choreography is by Arleigh Peterson. (CBC Montreal film).

Mr. Fix-It

Host Peter Whittall continues his series on building a summer cottage.

Ivanhoe

This week — "Search for Gold." Ivanhoe prevents Prince John from stealing a pirate's treasure from Sir Arnold. John's purpose in wanting the treasure is to use the money to raise an army to keep King Richard from regaining the throne.

Saturday Date with Billy O'Connor

O'Connor and Vanda King welcome guests, singer Patti Lewis and trumpeter Paul Grosney.

Perry Presents

With singers Teresa Brewer, Tony Bennett, the Four Lads, and the Louis DaPron dancers, and the Mitchell Ayres orchestra. The Four Lads sing "Lucky Lindy." Miss Brewer sings "Music, Music, Music." Brewer and Bennett will alternate as headliners in future shows in the series.

Naked City

This week — "Scorpion Sting." A ruthless man fears that one of the many people whose lives he has ruined is going to kill him. The police find that the only threat to the man's well-being is the weight of his own conscience.

FRIDAY TV NOTES

viewers some of the most effective means of cutting short their stay.

P.M. Party

Audience participation show with Gordie Tapp, Rex Loring, vocalist Donna Miller and Rudy Toth and his orchestra. Comedy in music with guests Morris Bougie and Gaston Tessier, the Tune-Up Boys.

Howdy Doody

The Indians reveal their surprise. The Thunderbird ceremony begins.

Summer Begins

A special program for children about to begin their summer holidays. It will deal with camping, sports, water safety, arts and crafts, games, parties, pets, girls' fashions, dancing and other things of interest to boys and/or girls of about 10 to 13. From Vancouver.

Talent Caravan

Second of three finals. George Murray presents five previous winners. Tonight's show is from Winnipeg, Man.

Plouffe Family

The adventures of a family living in Quebec.

Too Young To Go Steady

Pam Blake cheats on a test and lets the blame fall upon another student. Her parents urge her to admit her wrongdoing.

Country Hoedown

Top Canadian folk-singing group, the Travellers, join Gordie Tapp, Tommy Common, Tommy Hunter, the Hames Sisters, and Johnny Davidson and the Canadian Hoedowners. The Travellers and Common sing "John Henry." The entire cast joins in the finale, "East Virginia."

Cavalcade of Sports

Carlos Ortiz of New York versus Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., in a 12-round match for the junior welterweight championship. This title has been dormant since 1946.

Jim Coleman Show

Interviews with sports personalities.

SATURDAY TV NOTES

Haviland. A comedy about a dull but unprincipled college professor, his wife, and a former football hero friend who pays them a visit.

Weekend in Sports

Latest happenings and scores from the world of sport with Steve Douglass.

Our Mistake

• In your very interesting article, "Who Makes a Good Panelist?" on page 7 of the May 8 issue, I was surprised to see the plural stratas. Possibly it was simply an uncaught typographical error, but I know you will agree that strata (as the plural of stratum) is the correct form. I might say, though, that yours is one of the best-edited publications anywhere—hence this reaction to the rare discrepancy.—J. L., Regina.

Devoted Listener

• I like the radio very much. I started out with a crystal set in 1922 and used it for about 25 years, then changed to a battery set which I found expensive, for batteries kept running out. Six years ago electric light came to me and I got connected up, so only a tube fades out and I soon get it replaced. I am two miles from bus and church so I rely on walking and will be 85 next week. I like your programs very much; the repeats are good and so is Frank Willis.—Mrs. E. F. G., St. James, Man.

Family Worship

• For years I have listened to your Family Worship broadcast which comes to us here over CBX at 7:55 a.m. Monday to Saturday. Although I've often thought of writing my appreciation this is the first time I have done so. The gentlemen who has conducted this period over the past few years is keeping up a splendid standard of excellence. He makes these few minutes count towards a sane interpretation of Scripture with apt and homely illustrations and by the use of most appropriate quotations, as this morning: "I Got a Glory." Please convey to the one who conducts this period my sincere thanks. Long may he continue with such a worthwhile program.—Rev. Wm. J. Huston, Killam, Alta.

Radio Drama

• I enjoy the CBC Times very much, but regret that all your radio drama is shunted to the side, hidden away from prying eyes. I enjoy the various radio dramas coming out of Montreal, Vancouver, Halifax, and of course, Winnipeg. However, with the exception of Winnipeg, never, never, do we get notes on the drama programs to be broadcast from the various centres. Is radio so dead that it is no longer necessary to tell us about the drama programs? — J. P., Winnipeg.

Not at all! In fact so many readers have scolded us for this particular sin of omission that we hope to have it corrected in a week or two.

• • •

Children's Programs

• I just had to drop you a line to tell you how much Dancing Storybook is enjoyed by the children in my studio. Every week we have a notice on our bulletin board reminding all the children that today is Dancing Storybook day, and they rush off home to enjoy the adventures of Sue and Woody. You are to be congratulated on the continuing high standard of the programs. They are enjoyed by young-in-heart adults as well as by children. It is so good to have a children's program one can really recommend to parents. Congratulations! — Wynne Shaw Dance Studio, Victoria, B.C.

• The Home and School Parent Teacher Federation of Manitoba wishes to commend the excellent quality in material and presentation of the programs Busy Fingers, Art in Action, and Nursery School Time. Each has made a noteworthy contribution in supplementing school programs, and we look forward to viewing these programs in the coming year.—Mrs. L. Shaffer, Corresponding Secretary, Home and School Parent Teacher Federation, Manitoba, Inc.

• I can't tell you how much I enjoyed the delightful ballet, Dancing Storybook. What a treat compared to the usual fare of TV. I do hope to see this entrancing group again. I often wonder how on earth we expect young people to develop any interest in the arts when they have so little opportunity to see them on TV which has such a tremendous influence on them these days. Thank you again, and we hope for further performances. — Mrs. D. F. Fagg, Algonac, Michigan.

This week's musical offering is not remarkable for its novelty, but it does contain one new work which is of particular interest to me, though I have never heard it. It is a Prelude and Fugue by Leslie Mann, to be played in the Winnipeg Summer Concert this Sunday afternoon. I've been lucky enough to have had some experience with the compositions of Mr. Mann in the smaller forms, and I have found them all very congenial and attractive, and some of them very touching in their un-slicked directness. It is pleasant to see a Winnipeg radio orchestra, among the others across the land, giving itself, even occasionally, to one of its most important responsibilities, the performance of the music of our own country. Of course, this is the time.

I was delighted to see that the Sunday Morning Recital (with violinist Andrew Svilkos and pianist Charles Reiner) includes the Mozart Sonata in B flat (K. 454), not because it is this particular one, strong, humorous and full of character though it is, but because all the violin and piano sonatas of Mozart badly need more performances. Why they are so unstudiously avoided by fiddlers I really don't know, but I could perhaps suggest a couple of mean reasons: first, the piano part is rather too important for a "soloist's" comfort; and, second, at all times the character of the music demands the qualities of sophisticated musicians rather than those of unsophisticated actors. Everything shows in Mozart, even the fact that you haven't played any good chamber music lately, or the sound of that whisky voice that comes from too much popularity. Anyway, I can't imagine any better, more peaceful, or more edifying occupation in the few hours before the holocaust than to be playing over these delightful sonatas. It would be a kind of preparation too. But perhaps the "solo" fiddlers have made other arrangements, more devilishly difficult.

More Mozart is to be heard on Prairie Concert (Thursday on CBW, Friday on CBK and CBX), this time five songs more often heard separately than together. This recent tendency in radio programming to present a number of songs by one composer, even in 15-minute periods, is to be commended. One song by each of say six composers doesn't give you a good idea of anybody, and is also very hard on the singer, who is generally no dextrous anthologist anyway. A group of Mozart's songs for voice and piano, for example, is a far better idea, doubly so because the writing, as usual, is delicate and fine, and cleverly appreciative of the medium. Hearing the songs in this way, the listener should be able to avoid that idea of vocal Mozart as a sort of simplifying simplicity ripe for parody. The problem Mozart constantly poses in his slighter pieces is how to be clean and innocent without giving the audience the idea that you are some kind of a coy 18th-century idiot.

The Romantics are always with us. I notice that the excellent Canadian pianist Neil Chotem is to play the Schumann G Minor Sonata, opus 22, in his Distinguished Artists Recital on Monday evening. This is a grandiloquent work, full of sound and fury, signifying, among other things, an excellent ear for sonorities and general pianistic know-how. If its intensity means less in these days than it did in 1835, it still has a lot more musical point than the extra-musical "profoundities" of the romantic Liszt with his stupifying meno-pauses and literary sensationalism. And it is not necessary to be enthralled by the personality of Schumann to like his music, though I suppose even with his it still helps. This sonata is broad and brilliant, and Mr. Chotem's temperament is just right for it. I can't say that I'm fond of the second movement, the Andantino, where a simple and rather banal melody is made to bear the weight of the world, but everything else is engaging and bustling, and in the fine concluding Rondo, though there's a certain strain for the listener in the two slower semi-recitative passages, even they have a charm of authentic 19th century sentiment that is very close to the atmosphere of the songs, where this composer is, after all, at his simple best. Reading through the sonata (at a reduced pace) I resolved once more to learn it, but that, though a compliment, is perhaps going a little too far in appreciation, particularly if, as seems certain, Mr. Chotem makes such a labour clearly superfluous.

A garland of Romantic delights is offered in the all-Chopin program of Ada Bronstein on CBC Concert Hall on Wednesday morning, but of course it is a Romanticism purged by French delicacy of the excesses of Lisztian Byronism. Naturally it is Chopin the Pole who

SUMMER STAGE

First in a series of one-hour dramas. This week—"The Well of the Saints," by the Irish dramatist John Millington Synge. The three-act play was first produced in 1905, and was regarded by some as an affront to Irish morals. "The Well of the Saints," is the story of a man and his wife who both regain their sight after being blind for some years. The miracle of sight as such is wondrous but they don't like what they see in the world around them. They realize that they had a greater sense of appreciation and perception when they saw life through their hearts instead of their eyes. Time has shown how deeply Synge penetrated into the soul of the Irish peasant. His greatest work is probably "The Playboy of the Western World" which appeared two years after "The Well of the Saints," in 1907. (See story this page).

LESLIE MANN

Leslie Mann
 —Composer

Edmonton-born musician Leslie Mann says that writing music is one of his "hobbies"—along with camping and gardening in the summer, and reading in the winter, and that his works are performed "at rare intervals" in both Canada and the U.S.

One of these "rare" occasions comes this Sunday afternoon when Eric Wild conducts the CBC Winnipeg Orchestra in Mr. Mann's Prelude and Fugue on Winnipeg Summer Concert.

Mr. Mann, who is 35, married, and the father of two boys (5 and 9), lived in Toronto for 11 years before returning west less than a year ago. In Toronto he worked as a free-lance orchestral clarinetist, playing with the Toronto Symphony, the CBC Symphony, the National Ballet, and on many CBC radio programs. He has also performed in public and on radio as both soloist and chamber music player.

A member of the Dirk Keetbaas Players, Mr. Mann will be heard with this woodwind group this week (June 10) on CBC Wednesday Night.

Mr. Mann's wife, Irene, is a pianist. The Manns have been heard in several chamber music programs from CBC Winnipeg, some of which included performances of Mr. Mann's compositions.

Summer Stage Returns Sunday

Each summer, along with warm, lazy Sunday evenings, mosquitoes, concerts in the park and home runs, comes Summer Stage, offering tops in warm-weather radio listening. And this season, like a long, cool soft-drink, it will effervesce! says R. S. James, supervisor of CBC radio drama.

"We're going to offer completely different drama fare," he says. "There won't be any heavy material. Just entertaining, intriguing plays designed to give our listeners a lift. We'll feature a variety of treatments, in both technique and approach. For instance, some plays will be presented with music, some without."

Summer Stage tees off this Sunday with the first of four shows from Montreal directed by Rupert Caplan, who has been doing interesting things with the spoken word for many years. This season he has Vancouver Councillor. Joan Greenwood, a freelance writer and broadcaster and a youthful grandmother, recently broke a record by being elected as West Vancouver's first woman councillor in 24 years. In this interview with Elinor Glen, Mrs. Greenwood discusses her election campaign, the issue of women in politics, and her own interests in municipal government.

Here Comes the Bride. This is an account of a wedding in Khartoum, related by a guest at the wedding. The ceremonies observed by the guest were completely alien to her and she comments upon them as would a Canadian visitor.

Today's news commentary is by Jeanne Sauve of Montreal; the recorded music will be selected and presented by the well-known Halifax soprano Audrey Farnell, and the reading, by Amelia Hall, is from Jessamy West's "To See the Dream."

is more evident in the Polonaise in E flat minor, published in 1836, but even in its dark and sinister rhetoric the poise and elegance of his writing makes finally invulnerable what otherwise might be damaged by the whims of emotional fashion. There is generally a period, soon after youth, when one reacts against one's infatuation for Chopin, like the sudden disapproval of one's weakness for the sweets of Tennyson and Keats, but then later on the reappraisal is inevitable, and blessedly received, as all the fresh sadness and strangeness of universal human experiences which the "mature" scoffer has missed, come flooding back. I remember, when I was twelve, asking for the Nocturnes of Chopin at Christmas. Tennyson said "deep as first love," and he was right. Ada Bronstein is going to play the Nocturne in B major. Since there are three in this key, the jaded anti-romantics can interest themselves in the game of guessing which one it is. However, all three are meticulous, proud, and beautiful.

The evening concert of the Vancouver Chamber Orchestra on Thursdays has earned its reputation as the embodiment of enterprise and novelty in programming. But this week, under the guest con-ductorship of Sir Ernest MacMillan and with pianist Edwin Heller, the program has, for me, simply the long-established attraction of one of my favourite piano concertos, the Ravel in G. Here again, as in Chopin, we have that curious mixture of elegance and pathos—craftsmanship so brilliant that it discourages the amateur on a technical level, but with a piercing compassion that makes the artist and listener one. I like all three movements of the concerto, but it is the slow second that I find unforgettable. It has a very long piano introduction, very slow and with a strange gangling French charm, the charm of awkwardly beautiful childhood I think. No one but Ravel could have written it or could have got away with it without introducing more obvious excitements and delights. And yet when the orchestra finally enters lightly with a delicious falling phrase of the flute, one recognizes the strength and rightness of the opening measures. This is one of the great moments in 20th century music, a donnée used by a master.

some delightful surprises up his sleeve. The first is The Wells of the Saints by the Irish poet and dramatist John Millington Synge, adapted by Mac Shoub.

On July 5 there'll be a show from Winnipeg, then one from Halifax, and after that the series settles down in Toronto as a producer's showcase. Mr. James says he has arranged for a number of guest producers to direct plays of their own choice, and their choices are scintillating enough to keep even the most energetic of listeners from straying very far from their radios for an hour on Sunday evenings. Titles and dates will be announced later. In the meantime, here is the list of producers who will be lending their talents to the series beginning with the July 19 broadcast: Alan Savage, writer-producer; Peter McDonald, director of TV networks (English); Doug Nixon, assistant director of radio networks (program); Mavor Moore, free-lance actor - writer - producer; Joseph Furst, actor-writer-director making his Canadian radio directing debut; Gordon Babineau, producer in the CBC talks and public affairs department; Alan King, actor-writer; Beth Lockerbie, actress; John Barnes, TV production manager; and Bob Allen, supervising producer, TV special programs. Many of these people first made their names in radio drama production, have since moved on to executive positions, and getting back into harness will be as big a treat for them as for their audience.

This Sunday's play, The Well of the Saints, is a short, three-act comedy about a couple of blind beggars, husband and wife, who both regain their sight through the efforts of a wandering saint in the guise of a friar. But they don't like what they see in the world around them. They realize that they had a greater sense of perception and appreciation of life when they saw it through their hearts instead of through their eyes. Each is shocked at the appearance of the other. Martin had been told that Mary was a fine-looking woman with beautiful golden hair and deep blue eyes that shone like pools of sparkling water. Sight shows him that she is really an ugly old woman. And Mary doesn't see the handsome man she believes Martin to be. She sees instead a little stump of a fellow who looks like the fool of the world.

When their eyes begin to grow dim again the friar offers to perform a second miracle. Then, before a horrified crowd Martin strikes the can of Holy Water

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

How Do You Dust a Bird's Nest? Shirley Suttles is a Vancouver housewife and mother of six who strives for gracious living as exemplified in slick magazine photographs. But how do you dust birds' nests? she asks, and what do you do with a stuffed deer with pink antlers, and plasticine snakes on the coffee table, and pietins full of plaster of paris?

Shango. Shango is the African counterpart of a Christian saint. In Trinidad, where Montreal broadcaster Raoul Engel visited not long ago, Shango lent his name to some fantastic ceremonies, ceremonies begin with intense bongo drum rhythms that increase in speed and intensity as the ceremonies continue. Mr. Engel has recorded some of the music, describes the Shango ceremony and interviews Andrew Carr, an anthropologist and expert on Shango.

Springhill Revisited. Last fall, Joan Watson reported to Matinee on the tragic mine disaster at Springhill, Nova Scotia. Today, she visits the town again.

Today's news commentary is by Jeanne Sauve of Montreal. Audrey Farnell will introduce some more of her favourite records, and Amelia Hall will read another excerpt from Jessamyn West's "To See the Dream." CBW-3:33 p.m. CBK-3:33 p.m. CBX-2:33 p.m.

PRAIRIE TALKS

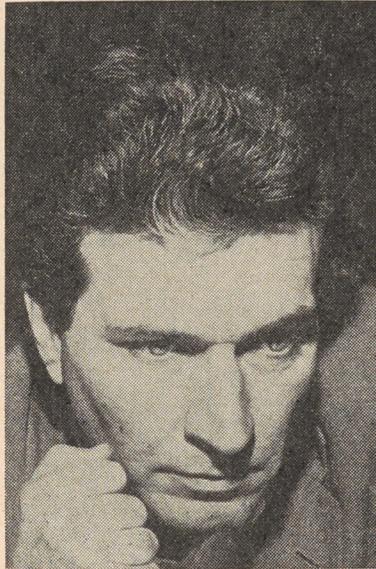

Tonight—A. D. Henry, an Alberta businessman, takes a close look at "sick" humour. He gives listeners some rather choice examples, historically and otherwise, and comes to the conclusion that sick humour is like a leper's bell; it's only a sign of something even more revolting, the sick mind that creates it. Mr. Henry has an enjoyable time tracing examples of sick humour through pre-Victorian times to the modern day, finding it lurking in such unlikely places as modern-day advertising.

On CBC Wednesday Night

A Drama of War

Michael Kane stars in "So Has The Roaring Ravaged Us," a play by Boyce Richardson, based on the writings of Wolfgang Borchert

MICHAEL KANE

CBC Wednesday Night this week presents a vivid story of the ravages of war on mind and body in the dramatization of Wolfgang Borchert's prose works The Man Outside. The drama, So Has the Roaring Ravaged Us, has been adapted by Boyce Richardson, former Winnipeg newspaperman now living in Montreal.

Wolfgang Borchert was born in Hamburg, Germany, in 1921. At the age of 20 he was a private in the German Army invading Russia. In 1942 he was wounded and repatriated and, in the same year, spent six months in solitary confinement under sentence of death for plain speaking in private letters. The sentence was commuted because of his youth but he was again imprisoned in 1944 after more service on the Russian front. After the war, he had small positions in theatres and cabarets for a few months but his health was ruined. From the end of 1945 until his death two years later, he was in bed with fever.

It was in hospital in 1946 that Borchert wrote about the war and its effect on himself and his comrades. As the play opens, Borchert (played by Michael Kane), looks back on the death and destruction of the war and tells about his friends, the dead generation, and himself, the youngster who was recruited and told to kill. He hears the voices of the few who were "half alive" after the slaughter in the snows of Russia, those who returned to Germany and to a door they couldn't open. "We are the generation without a God, because they gave us no God," he says.

There was Radi, a soldier who died in Russia; the Corporal who said the work must be done; Jesus, the meek one who measured graves; the Sergeant, who heard Christmas carols in February; Bill Brook, a Canadian soldier in Hamburg who went for a walk in the borough of Billbrook.

And there was Beckmann (played by John Hempstead), who came home to no home and decided to adopt the River Elbe, only to have its waters refuse his suicide.

Borchert's friends haunt him as he sits in his bed awaiting release from life. He sums up the futility of it all as he says, "Before we understood, it was over, and now we are spewed out at night, secretly, contemptibly, on to the incomprehensible coast of space, and no one, no one recognizes us, 20-year-old, old men, so has the roaring ravaged us."

The CBC Wednesday Night drama will be produced in Montreal by Rupert Caplan.

Jamaican Women in Canada. In 1955, the Canadian government agreed to a request from the governments of Jamaica and Barbados that a limited number of selected women from the British West Indies be permitted to enter Canada as immigrants provided they agreed to fulfill a one-year contract as domestic servants. Violet King reports on the activities of the women who have come to Canada through this agreement. Miss King is Canada's first woman negro lawyer, formerly of Calgary and now with the department of Citizenship and Immigration in Ottawa.

Today's news commentator is Ann Francis of Ottawa. Audrey Farnell of Halifax will introduce some more of her favourite recordings and Amelia Hall will read another excerpt from Jessamyn West's "To See the Dream."

Tonight—A. D. Henry, an Alberta businessman, takes a close look at "sick" humour. He gives listeners some rather choice examples, historically and otherwise, and comes to the conclusion that sick humour is like a leper's bell; it's only a sign of something even more revolting, the sick mind that creates it. Mr. Henry has an enjoyable time tracing examples of sick humour through pre-Victorian

Scientists and Hucksters

EVERY YEAR about 15 or more learned societies . . . representing humanists, geographers, historians, physicists, mathematicians, etc., meet together in some part of Canada to exchange ideas. This week they're in session at the University of Saskatchewan, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary. CBC radio will present two reports on their meetings, one by a layman and one by an expert scientist. On Saturday, June 6 (This Week), Jean Hinds tells what she, as a layman, was able to learn from attending the meetings. And on Monday night (Post-News Talk) Leon Katz, professor of physics at the University of Saskatchewan, will interpret some of the more technical aspects of the discussions.

Another interesting Post-News Talk this week, on Tuesday night, concerns The Conjuring Trick, or the art of distraction. The speaker is Jim Parr, professor of metallurgy at the University of Alberta. He says the art of distraction, as practiced by salesmen, statesman, journalists and advertising men, is the knack of attracting attention to things that don't matter, to conceal the faults of things that do. For instance, advertising for a new car may announce proudly that the tail fins are several inches higher this year, while no mention is made of improvements to the engine, the part that really counts; or the superior quality of the bonus dish-towel enclosed with detergent may be played up in advertising, instead of the qualities of the detergent itself. "But," says Mr. Parr, "we're the ones who let this happen. We contribute to this frightening joke. We buy the coffee with the horrible taste because the ads say its aroma is so bewitching!"

and Victorian times to the modern day, finding it lurking in such unlikely places as modern-day advertising. CBW-7:30 p.m.

from the friar's hand, and says: "Let you walk on, now, Holy Father, with your worn feet and your holy ways. For if it's a right some of you will have to be fasting and praying . . . and the right some of you have to be working and sweating . . . I am thinking it's a good right ourselves have to be sitting blind, hearing a soft wind turning round the leaves of spring and feeling the sun, and we not tormenting ourselves with the sight of the grey days and the dirty feet is trampling the world."

Some critics have accused Synge of laughing at those of his countrymen who prefer the dream to the reality, but others point out that this is too nationalistic an interpretation when there is so much in life to laugh at. Mac Shoub's adaptation of The Well of the Saints was presented on CBC Wednesday Night 10 years ago, with Rupert Caplan producing.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

At the United Nations. Activities at United Nations headquarters in New York are discussed by Kathleen Teltch, U.N. correspondent for the New York Times.

A Book I Like. L. M. Montgomery's "Anne of Green Gables" has become a Canadian classic, beloved among children and adults alike. Montreal's Kay Jones counts it among her favourite books and talks about it in the second of Matinee's summer series, "A Book I Like."

Meals on Wheels. People who are old and infirm often have problems

On "Prairie Concert" - The Gaboras of Saskatchewan

Soprano Gaelyne Craig and her husband, violinist Taras Gabora, were born less than 200 miles apart - in Regina and Mikado, Saskatchewan, respectively—but it was not until they went to Europe to study that they met. In fact, although they both left for Europe at about the same time in 1952 they didn't meet until three years later, when they attended the same summer school in England.

The Gaboras are now back in Saskatchewan giving concerts for school children under the sponsorship of the Saskatchewan department of education. With them is 24-year-old pianist Johan Van Beek, winner of the 1957 International Piano Competition who, at 24, holds a professorship from the Amsterdam Conservatory of Music.

The three have appeared on CKOS-TV, Yorkton, on the program Profile, (see page 5). This week they will be recitalists on the CBC radio series, Prairie Concert, heard Thursday night on CBW, and Friday morning on CBK and CBX.

Gaelyne Craig studied singing and piano in Regina, Charlottetown and Halifax before going to Europe. In 1952 she won top honours at the Halifax Music Festival and a scholarship from Charlottetown. She then went to London to study at the Guildhall School of Music; while studying there she made a tour of the principal cities of England and Scotland. Another scholarship enabled her to continue her studies at the Vienna State Academy, from which she was graduated with the highest honours in 1958. She has given recitals in Vienna and Amsterdam and has been presented to the Queen at Buckingham Palace.

Taras Gabora has studied in Winnipeg, Paris and Vienna, and his teachers include three internationally famous artists - Szymon Goldberg, Georges Enesco, and Rene Benedetti. While a student at the Vienna State Academy, Mr. Gabora was concertmaster of the Academy orchestra and leader of the Academy string quartet. He graduated in 1956 with the Education Ministry State Prize as the best graduating student of the year. In 1958 he was awarded a Canada Council Scholarship to study with Szymon Goldberg in Amsterdam. Here he also played with the Netherlands Chamber Orchestra. With this group he toured Holland, France, Italy and Yugoslavia, made many recordings. Mr. Gabora has performed on radio and television in Austria, Ireland and Canada.

There is so much in life that is exciting but which we take for granted. We are inclined to accept things as of no interest and without curiosity, rather as a cow views a passing train. This is a great mistake.—Lord Brabazon of Tara, on BBC.
