ABOUT a year ago a Gallup poll showed that, despite the controversy over the admission of Red China to the U.N. and its subsequent publicity in Canada, nearly 50 per cent of those polled believed that Red China was already a member of the U.N. Hence the relevance of the question: How Public Is 'Public' Opinion? the first in a series of University of the Air lectures. Dr. Paul Fox, assistant professor in the department of political economy at the University of Toronto, will give the lectures, starting this Monday on CBC radio. Title of the series is Politics, Personality, and Public Opinion.

"I begin with public opinion because it is one of the myths of democracy," says Dr. Fox, "a tin god which many worship." He is critical of the concept of "public opinion" because in the first place, no one ever defines what the term means: pill pushers, editorial writers and politicians all assure us that their particular line of wares is what the public wants, but their assertions are seldom based on anything more than their intuitions.

In the second place, public opinion can hardly mean majority opinion, because it seems that all too often the majority do not have an opinion. Witness the number of "I don't know's" in any public opinion polls. And while between 75 and 80 per cent of Canadian voters turn out for federal elections this often sinks into the 30 per cent figures for some local elections.

Yet there is obviously some force that calls itself "public opinion" and which politicians constantly worry about. What is it? Dr. Fox suggests the answer is pressure groups.

Lobbying has perhaps reached its highest peak at the U.S. Congress which requires that all persons representing pressure groups must register as such. Fifteen hundred active lobbyists spending up to $10 million a year (that was the figure registered in 1950) represent pressure groups as diverse as retired lighthouse keepers and the American Medical Association.

Canada and Britain, supposedly more free of these pressures, are in fact also involved. Yet we have the Native Sons and trade unions, temperance groups and hobby clubs. And recent work in Britain has shown the influence of lobbyists at work at Westminster.

"I do not wish to leave the impression that pressure groups are always a bad thing," says Dr. Fox. ". . . The fact that it is a minority that makes public opinion and runs the world does not disturb me unduly. It does not jibe with the cherished belief in democracy as the rule of all by all, but personally I think that this is an idealistic notion which never has corresponded to reality and probably never will . . . Normally we are better off with the informed minority shaping opinion and policies, provided the majority always have a check on it at election times, and provided that the governing minority is intelligent and just."

It is clear from Dr. Fox's first talk that he does not hold an orthodox view of democracy. Nor does he, in these talks, take a scholastic approach to his subject.

"Politics is the most marvellous study in the world," he says. Within the wide purview of men's attempts to rule themselves humanity in all its glory and all its folly comes streaming by. Love, hate, nobility and baseness, crude ambition and self-sacrificing idealism—the whole spectrum of human co-discoverer of insulin, and actor Tony Grey (right), who played the role of Best in the 1956 CBC-TV production "The Discoverers." The play will be seen again this Sunday on G.M. Presents. (See details page 7.) Co-author of the prize-winning script is George Salverson, whose career and writing methods are described in the article below.

George Salverson

One of Canada's most successful playwrights doesn't like the writing business

IT'S TOO LONELY. I sit in isolation with my typewriter, waiting for an idea or fighting with words. This can go on for days or even weeks and no one can help me. And when I finally emerge from solitary confinement, I don't even know whether what I've written is any good! That's why I don't like the writing business."

A surprising remark from one of Canada's free-lance radio-TV dramatists, but George Salverson, who says he was shanghaied into writing 20 years ago, is now so fascinated by the game that he would not be happy doing anything else, lonely as his working life may be. He turns out his warmly entertaining scripts (there are two scheduled on CBC radio and TV Sunday night, but more about them later) in an office he fixed up in the basement of his Toronto home. He keeps his FM radio tuned in to soft, relaxing

Journals and Letters of J. S. Mill

A CBC Wednesday Night feature by Marion Smith

HE was brought up to put reason before sentiment, but he was deeply in love with a married woman for over 20 years. He had one of the finest minds the world has ever known, but he was never a boy, and missed out on the warm, imaginative childhood that was a cherished possession of his contemporaries in middle-class Georgian-Victorian England. Raised by a father who preached the importance of free-thinking, he suffered parental domination for 30 years.

John Stuart Mill's education and upbringing seem shudderingly severe to modern parents and teachers. That is not to say that he was an unhappy little person. He could not long for a carefree existence because he had no notion of what it was. Certainly his family life was close, but he never explored the world of make-believe, of hilarious romps with Papa or painfully-kept Christmas secrets.

When he was three his mother was not, like most mothers, proud of the fact that he was thoroughly house-trained at last and could lisp Mary Had a Little Lamb: she boasted that he knew the Greek alphabet and could recite long lists of Greek words with their English equivalents. His father, James Mill, Scots historian and economist, a shoemaker's son who had acquired an important place in London through literary industry alone, was determined that the Mill children should not fritter away their time at play. In fact, fun seems to have been a word left out of his vocabulary. He did not believe in schools and kept all nine of his youngsters plugging away at their lessons at home all day. Their only recreation was a walk with father, during which he lectured them on philosophy, history or some other subject. In the evening he read aloud to them from the English classics. He taught them that religious books were full of fairy-tales and they grew up agnostics.

Instead of climbing into bed with a copy of Grimm or Andersen, seven-year-old John staggered upstairs with a volume of Xenophon's Anabasis, or Millar's Historical View of the English. Although it seems incredible, by the time he was eight he had read not only those two, but also the whole of Herodotus, Robertson's Essays, Hook's Roman History, Langhorne's Plutarch, and a list of similar tomes as long as your arm. At eight he began to study Latin, geometry, algebra, and to teach the younger members of the family. Two years later he could read Plato and Demosthenes with ease. At 12 he made a thorough study of scholastic logic, reading Aristotle's treatises in the original, and began the philosophical writing that later made him famous. The following year he was introduced to political economy. The personality and vigorous intellect of his father continued as the most powerful forces in his life. From him he learned the importance of weighing all evidence and accepting no opinion as authority, a legacy that helped

On the Cover

Louis Turenne

Many Manitobans will have recognized the son, Denis Chevalier, in Roger Lemelin's new TV serial, "The Town Above," as Louis Cusson, one of the province's brightest young actors in the period before 1956, when he moved to Montreal.

In Montreal Louis has been using his mother's maiden name for his professional work on the stage, radio and television.

By the time he moved to Montreal from his native Winnipeg in 1956, Louis had three years of formal training in dramatics, many radio roles, and both French and English stage experience behind him.

Since moving to Montreal he has been active in the Montreal Repertory Theatre and summer theatre at North Hatley Playhouse, and has taken several starring roles on CBC Montreal's TV drama showcase, "Shooting Stars."

LATE NOTES AND CORRECTIONS

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 22 - 28

Because each issue of the CBC Times must be mailed so far in advance of the program week covered in it, some changes in scheduling and in program content are inevitable. These are noted below.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 22

TELEVISION

Good Life Theatre

"Rome Eternal: City of Faith." Third program of a Roman Catholic series. The film shows examples of medieval art, the architecture of the Roman Catholic Church, and a Mass sequence from a Benedictine monastery.

CBWT—Walt Disney Presents

This week—"A Storm Called Maria." Based on the book by Prof. George R. Stewart of the University of California, this documentary-drama depicts the battle of man against the raging elements. The program includes films taken during and after hurricanes and blizzards.

Father Knows Best

This week—"Margaret's Old Flame." When Margaret and Jim Anderson decide to attend a college homecoming dance Mrs. Anderson is surprised to receive gifts and a request for the first waltz from an old boy friend.

Ed Sullivan Show

Add to guests—singers Carol Channing, comedians Wayne and Shuster, the Count Basie band with singer Joe Williams, singers Trude Adams and Dick Roman, comic Al Bernie, and aerialists Larible and Company. Wayne and Shuster will do their skit on the discovery of a rock 'n roll singer.

The Twentieth Century

This week—"Goering." Walter Cronkite narrates a filmed biography of the Nazi air marshal Hermann Goering.

Background

This week Rick Hart's guests are the English scientist and author C. P. Snow, and mathematician-writer Dr. Jacob Bronowski, who will discuss the educational, political, and economic implications of the scientific revolution of the present time. Dr. Bronowski's prize-winning radio play, "The Face of Violence" was heard recently on CBC Wednesday Night.

Comedian Dave King returns this week as Perry's guest. Other guests include the singing Lennon sisters, 15-year-old pianist Lorin Hollander, and vocalist Rod Lauren.

Explorations

"Courtship"—first program of Lister Sinclair's three-part series "The Logic of Life," originally scheduled to begin Nov. 4 but pre-empted by W.L.F.U. and Big Four football games. The program illustrates the forms of selections animals used to propagate the species and shows how nature cares more for the species than the individual. Lister Sinclair and John Livingston (of the Audubon Society of Canada) are hosts.

RADIO

Obscenity and Censorship

An inter-city discussion on the amendment to the Criminal Code of Canada which defines as obscene any publication "the dominating characteristic of which is the undue exploitation of sex . . ." Taking part in the discussion will be Richard Pennington, librarian at McGill University (who maintains that the legal definition is out of date), and Professor Emmett O'Grady of the University of Ottawa (who believes that obscenity, like disease, must be controlled and, if possible, eradicated). Walter O'Hearn, managing editor of the Montreal Star, will act as moderator. (This replaces "Journals and Letters" in the Nov. 25 listings).

UNIVERSITY OF THE AIR

personality is revealed in the never-ending drama and comedy of politics . . .

"Yet despite the throb of human passion which animates the political scene," he continues, "the professional students in the field, the political scientists, manage often to make it a deadly bore. Too much law and too much history. Not that political science does not owe them a debt, because it is from their loins that it sprang . . . (but) politics is alive, one of the most lively subjects in the world, full of the vibrancy and pathos of personality."

In an interview, Dr. Fox sketched some of the later talks in Politics, Personality and Public Opinion. The second deals with some of the powerful forces moulding public opinion, in particular, the press.

"I raise some technical points here," says Dr. Fox, "in regard to the headlines placed on stories, the possibility of slanting stories so that two newspapers can take the same set of facts and make something completely different out of them."

Dr. Fox is no believer in the theory of the inevitability of historic events. "That's not to say that I accept any 'great-man' theory of history either," he says. "But the longer I watch political processes, the more I believe in the importance of personality rather than policies and beliefs, in shaping events."

In his third talk Dr. Fox examines some of the great figures of recent years in Canadian and world history: Churchill, Roosevelt, Attlee, Truman, Eisenhower and Diefenbaker.

"I am fascinated at the change power can make in a man," says Dr. Fox. "Truman was completely changed by assuming the Presidency, while Eisenhower seems a new man in the past few months."

Dr. Fox draws one main conclusion: it is impossible to predict how a political figure will turn out in the long haul. "What chance

"Preview to Christmas"

Marion Craig

Betty Steele and Marion Craig, both well-known TV personalities in Edmonton, are hostesses on Preview to Christmas, a special seasonal program now in its fourth week on Edmonton's station CFRN-TV.

Preview to Christmas offers TV viewers new ideas on Christmas parties, indoor and outdoor Christmas decorations, Christmas cards, and gifts. Interviews and reviews are part of the program, and there are some VIP guests, including Santa Claus himself and his reindeer, and some learned exponents of Christmas stories and legends, old and new. Edmonton religious leaders are participating to give this program some of the true meaning of the festival of the Nativity.

Viewers will get some useful tips on planning Yuletide celebrations, and on how to make inexpensive gifts for the children. There will be book reviews, as well as stories. Preview is designed to be an informative and entertaining half-hour for CFRN-TV's audience. Many viewers have sent in their own ideas for decorations, gifts, etc., and these will be made available to all through the TV medium.

Preview to Christmas is on the air four times a week at 4:00 p.m. — Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays.

Betty Steele is familiar to CFRN-TV viewers as the hostess on Siesta Fiesta when the regular hostess, Laura Lindsay (CBC Times, April 12-18) is on vacation. Betty is the wife of a clergyman, and one of the most interesting of her contributions to Preview

Betty Steele

Two popular Edmonton TV personalities offer Christmas hints to CFRN-TV viewers four days a week to Christmas is her series of stories on the religious aspects of Christmas. As the accompanying picture indicates, she is a very pleasant person to meet on the air.

Co-hostess of the program is Marion Craig, who offers viewers some of the remarkable organ playing that has delighted Edmontonians for many years. Marion is a favourite performer at clubs, on the stage, and on television. One of her favourite memories is the time she accompanied soloists of the famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company of London, England.

Often heard on other programs, these two girls now appear on CFRN-TV (Channel Three) in their own show.

Preview will continue every afternoon except Wednesday from now to Christmas, four to forty-three. Program people at CFRN-TV feel that it is a show with the merriment of a party and the sparkle of a Christmas tree, as well as some of the imaginative qualities of children's Yuletide dreams.—Gary Greenway, CFRN-TV.

Sir Thomas Beecham is like a ripe old brandy that has matured and with every minute got better and better.

Partly it is the nature he was born with—an aristocratic nature, and one that didn't make music his business but his art. He has a real understanding of human nature, for otherwise he could never conduct as he does. He lets the music happen; he lets the playing happen. When one is playing with him one never has the feeling of anything constrained, or anything arbitrary, or anything that was deliberately planned in a certain way. It just happens, and that is the pinnacle of art.

Father Knows Best

This week — "Kathy becomes a Girl." Kathy decides to forsake football and try her feminine charms on the neighbourhood boys at a party.

Joan Fairfax Show

This week's show will have an Oriental theme. Program includes the Chinese dragon dance, and Joan will sing "Tea for Two" with the famous Japanese tea ceremony as a background. Special guests will be dancer-choreographer Charlotte de Neve, singers Bill Cole, Betty Young and Roy Pasano. Roy will sing "Westward Wind" to his own guitar accompaniment, doing the lyrics in both Japanese and English. From Toronto.

Ed Sullivan Show

Jerome Robbins' "Ballets: U.S.A." makes the first of two appearances on this week's show. They will present "N.Y. Export: Opus Jazz" with original music by Robert Prince and decor by the celebrated Artists Ben Shahn. Mr. Robbins, one of the best-known creative talents in the American entertainment world, is currently represented on the stage by "Gypsy," which he directed. His other theatrical credits include "West Side Story," "Bells Are Ringing," "The Pajama Game," "The King and I" (both stage and movie versions), "Call Me Madam," "Miss Liberty," "High Button Shoes," and "On the Town." Robbins' dance group was originally formed to represent the U.S.A. at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, and at the Brussels World Fair. Following its initial success in Europe ("a delightful distillation of our jazz fads and fancies") the group toured many cities in Europe and North America. (Date of the group's second appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show will be announced later). Other guests tonight—members of the All-American football team, Canadian-born singer Dorothy Collins, Tony Pastor and his family, and a vocal group—The Wanderers.

G.M. Presents

"The Discoverers," an award-winning drama by Max Rosenfeld and George Salverson, starring Murray Westgate, John Drainie and Ted Follows. The play recreates the events leading up to the discovery and successful use of insulin, the achievement of Sir Frederick Banting and Dr. Charles Best. The work of Banting and Best has saved the lives of hundreds of thousands, including the estimated 200,000 diabetics in Canada alone. "The Discoverers" was first produced by Ronald Weyman, who will also produce tonight's performance, in the First Performance series in 1956 on CBC. It was later produced in New York for Kraft Theatre. At that time the authors received a Christopher Award for their play. Westgate and Drainie will play the roles they played in the original production—those of Banting and Dr. Gilchrist (the man who was the first human guinea pig in the use of insulin) respectively. Ted Follows will play Dr. Best. Others in the cast—Kay Hawtrey as the girl, Doug Master as Morrison, Alan King as Chambers, Claude Rae as Thompson Banting, and Alex McKee as Dr. Addison. Others: Al Pearce, Diana Pearce, Gulliver Pearce, Felicity Pearce, Judith MacLeod, Randy Robinson, Sandra Scott, Bill Glover, Al Waxman, Loretta Sherman, Sydney Brown, Rosemary Palin and Edward Simay.

Jack Benny Program

With Jack Benny, singer Dennis Day, Rochester (Eddy Anderson), announcer Don Wilson, and the Sportsmen, vocal quartet. From Hollywood.

The Twentieth Century

This week — "Satellite Back in Orbit," first of two programs examining present-day Poland and its 28 million inhabitants who, among the billion people in the communist camp, are the least communistic and the most pro-Western. And yet, by and large they have accepted the communist rule. Tonight's program attempts to explain this strange enigma through a series of interviews. CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr will be seen talking to an art student, a housewife, an actress, an architect and a radio engineer. The program will also trace the slow, eventful development of this enigma from 1944 when Hitler, in retaliation for Warsaw's desperate six-week uprising, ordered the city destroyed, to the anti-communist rebellion of October, 1956. Shopping in Poland's department stores and private shops and the home life of a typical Polish family will also be seen.

Weekend in Sports

Latest happenings and scores from the world of sport reported by Steve Douglas. From Toronto.

Background

An examination of political events and their backgrounds by Rick Hart. From Toronto.

Fighting Words

Panel discussion of controversial quotations submitted by listeners and viewers. Nathan Cohen is moderator. (Repeat of the program heard last Wednesday on CBW; preview of the program to be heard next Wednesday on CBK and CBX). Canadian novelist Jack Ludwig is one of the panelists on the program seen in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Advice For Asian Travellers

Michael MacLear, special projects editor for CBC-TV news has some advice for tourists planning to go to southeast Asia: be prepared for unusual travelling companions.

MacLear's recent six-week news hunt took him to Communist-imperilled Laos. Pressed for time, he decided against travelling over the country's miles of twisting, snake-infested cows paths, and flew into the capital of Laos in a shaky plane—sharing the cabin with a smelly assortment of barnyard animals and a corpse being returned home for burial.

MacLear and his cameraman spent three days driving to Mussoorie in northeast India. The trip paid off with the first interview granted by the Dalai Lama since his self exile began.

Let's Look

This week — a look at some of the stoneware in use in grandmother's day, and at their present-day substitutes.

Science All Around Us

Today — tips on how to build a steam engine and turn a pint of water into a barrel of steam. Isaac Watt did the groundwork; now boys can begin right away on steam engines without having to sit contemplating the kettle.

Youth '60

"Slimnastics" is the theme of today's show. Guests will be Douglas Kerr, instructor in physical education at Western Technical and Commercial school in Toronto, who will bring along six boys to demonstrate work-outs on a "horse," parallel bars and trampoline; Joan McCormick, director of the Thornton model agency and some of her models; Joy Davies, director of the Art of Femininity, who will discuss the care of skin, hands and hair; Jill Weatherstone, dietician at the Toronto General Hospital, who will talk about diet; and dancers June Sampson and Wally Burgess who will show how a well-trained and well-groomed body can be a thing of strength and beauty. A panel of boys and girls will discuss the role of physical education in the school. Tommy Common is host. From Toronto.

CBWT—How About That!

This week Jim Mitchell presents three films: "Trail by Fire," the story of what happens when 50,000 people are cut off when a telephone exchange is destroyed by fire; "Sound Recording and Reproduction," which shows how the sound track of a motion picture is made by converting sound waves to light rays; and "Stepping Along With Television," which shows how a live television program (the ballet, Sleeping Beauty) is carried from city to city via microwave.

Don Messer's Jubilee

This week — an all-Scottish program. Guest is Pipe Major Harold Sutherland. (Originally scheduled for Nov. 23). From Halifax.

Riverboat

This week — "Strange Request," with guest star Jan Sterling. A beautiful actress commissions Grey Holden (Darren McGavin) to take her, her manager, and a cruel ape-like man to Red Bluff on the Enterprise, with only a skeleton crew aboard.

Music '60

This week — The Hit Parade, with singers Joyce Hahn and Wally Koster, PUPPETEER SHARI LEWIS and dancer-choreographer Gene Nelson are guests on The Hit Parade, this Monday's Music '60 presentation on CBC-TV.

Bert Niosi's orchestra, and guests Shari Lewis, puppeteer, and Gene Nelson, dancer. From Toronto.

The Town Above

Roger Lemelin's serial about a French-Canadian family living in Quebec City's "upper town." Starring Roland Chenail as Fred Chevalier, Denise Pelletier as his wife, and Louis Turenne (see cover), Catherin Begin and Yvon Thibotout as their children. From Montreal.

CBWT—Happyland

With Jake Park's polka band, and singers Kerr Wilson and Donna Aardt. Ernest Mutimer, producer. From Winnipeg. (Sunday on affiliated stations).

GEORGE SALVERSON

music to help counteract the sensation of sitting in a vacuum. "That way the silence of my typewriter is less accusing!"

When he comes up for air periodically his actress, wife, an attractive brunette called Sandra Scott, gives him a hot meal, he has a brief romp with the children (Julie 4, Scott, 1½) and then goes back downstairs to tackle the drama dragon again. The life seems to suit him. He used to look like a bean-pole, but Sandra's cooking has filled him out into a husky football-type.

George limits his writing to the daytime except when an idea has suddenly crystalized and then, like all writers, he works with feverish haste into the night, even if he has no urgent deadline. He finds documentaries more fascinating than straight dramas when they investigate a real-life human problem, "but I wouldn't get a kick out of preparing a script about how steel is made." Some of his most successful documentaries have been on alcoholism, citizenship and medicine. One of them, The Discoverers, recreating the events leading up to the discovery and successful use of insulin by Sir Frederick Banting and Dr. Charles Best, will be seen Sunday night on General Motors Presents. George based the documentary on the book by Max Rosenfeld, first presented three years ago by the CBC in Canada and Kraft Theatre in the United States; it won a Christopher Award for promoting good will in the entertainment field.

George has a shy friendliness that helps him disarm the people he interviews in his research, and good time to help with the Christmas gift list. Alice Poyser surveys an array of winter reading possibilities in an informal book review, and Bob Ellison of the Manitoba Theatre Centre talks about the MTC's presentation of "On Borrowed Time."

Mantovani

This week Mantovani and his orchestra present "Favourites Forever," assisted by vocalist Carole Carr and Les Compagnons de la Chanson.

Friendly Giant

Snowmen provide the theme of today's show. Rusty and Jerome have decided to be snowmen to get into the spirit of things. If Friendly can keep his teeth from chattering he'll read a couple of poems - "Jonathan Byng" and "Sir Benjamin Buzz."

Maggie Muggins

When Maggie's friends down in the meadow decide to hold a contest to see who will be the waiting maid to the fairy Queen (alias Grandmother Frog) everyone disguises himself as a flower. The gentle Reuben comes as a daisy, but half way through proceedings only a daisy stem can be found, and what with cows mooing nearby, all fear that Reuben has been mistaken for a real daisy and is now in some cow's cud. As a daisy Reuben is a flop, but as a rabbit he's his usual success.

On Safari

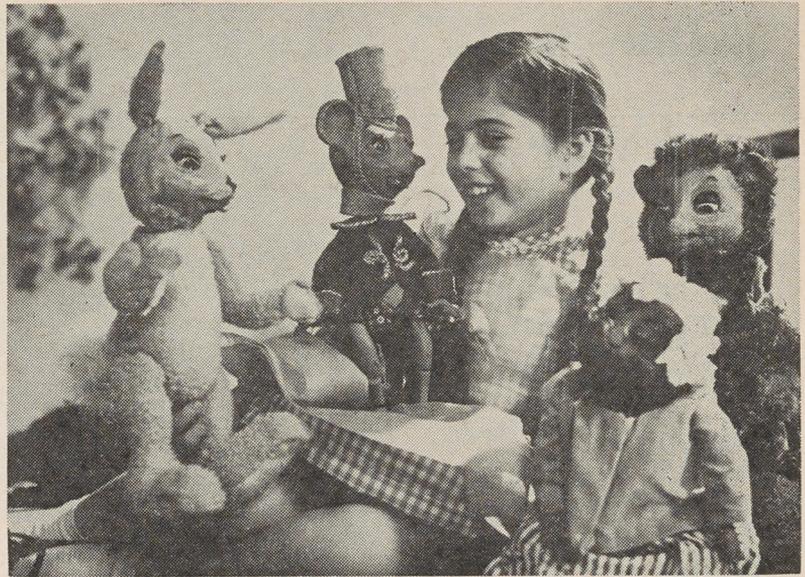

This week's film, entitled "King of the Beasts," finds Armand and Michaela Denis "hunting" lions with their cameras. Program opens with some footage on elephants and their young, and then shows lions feeding on their night's kill—a dead zebra. The lion-followers—hyenas, jackals, and vultures—are seen, and an amusing sequence shows jackals at play. The film ends with shots of baby lions amusing themselves, making playthings out of sticks and twigs.

Startime

"A Clearing in the Woods," Arthur Laurents' psychological fantasy about a successful but unhappy career girl who finds that her present problems stem from almost forgotten experiences in her past; starring Nancy Wickwire. (Originally scheduled for Nov. 24).

Sky King

Adventure series about a flying rancher. This week - "Ring of Fire." Sky helps an Indian chief whose son wants to take his father to the ancestral burial ground where a treasure is hidden.

NEW FACE IN OLD ROLE—CBC-TV has a new Maggie Muggins—eight-year-old Mary Long of Toronto. She replaces Deanne Taylor, who has outgrown the role. Young viewers can watch the adventures of Maggie and her puppet friends Tuesday afternoons on CBC-TV.

get to the core of their thoughts and attitudes without seeming to probe. He has just spent nine months preparing 16 scripts for the R.C.M.P. series for CBC-TV. "Only a very few of the stories were taken from files," he told us. "The rest were all gathered from conversations with R.C.M.P. men—fascinating fellows. We'd get a couple of them talking around a tape-recorder. One would stimulate the other to recall incidents in their careers and away they'd go. We'd examine their stories for script possibilities. A writer would work up a treatment, and then sit down with the Mounties and discuss the whole thing again. They would sometimes get so enthusiastic about the creative method and dramatic problems in the script that we had to hold them back—their ideas were dashing off away ahead of ours! The scripts were scrutinized by the R.C.M.P. at every stage of development, and an officer was always on the set during filming. They never interfered with poetic problems, though, just helped to prevent our stepping into the ridiculous or extreme."

We asked George what were some of the problems he encounters in adapting from one medium to another. "Say you're dramatizing a novel or short story," he said. "A fiction author frequently uses the stream of consciousness method—freely moving in and out of his characters' minds. Sometimes he tells his story almost entirely introspectively. The whole drama is in the mind of the leading character, and none of the others know it exists. It makes exciting reading, but the dramatist has to search for a logical way to let the introspection emerge without damaging the story. Or take the story with a rather complex plot and a large number of characters. The adapter has to combine in one character the aspects of three or more. Switching from fiction to drama you have to pull free-wheeling action into dramatic unity of time and place. A story spun over weeks must be confined to one evening or weekend. It requires mechanical thinking—a matter of architecture. You must empathize into the basic feeling, characters and statement while pulling the story from its original on the series "Logic of Life," Nov. 25, Dec. 2, and Dec. 9, are John Livingston of the Audubon Society of Canada (left) and Lister Sinclair. On the first program they will talk about courtship of animals, on the second and third about the migration of birds.

"EXPLORATIONS" HOSTS

NEW FACES. More beauty tips from our make-up expert, Lydia.

P.M. Party

Audience-participation program for women with emcee Alan Millar, singers Donna Miller and Alan Blye, announcer Rex Loring, and Rudy Toth's orchestra. Today's guest is dancer Joey Hollingsworth. From Toronto.

CBWT—Ladies First

Songs and piano stylings by Jose Poneira. Ken Dunstan is announcer. Ernest Mutimer, producer.

Friendly Giant

Beady Bear is a small wind-up bear who belonged to a small boy. One day when left to his own devices Beady decided the time had come for him to strike out and live like a real bear. He found a cave, but it was so bare that he made many trips back home to get furnishings. This is the beginning of the story that Friendly will be reading to his young audience today. He will also show some other wind-up toys.

Art in Action

With Prof. George Swinton. This week CBWT carries the second program of Series II — "The Non-perspective Types of Space." Affiliated stations carry the first program of Series II — "Definition of Space," which shows how to translate a three-dimensional world onto a two-dimensional surface. Frank Rasler, producer. From Winnipeg.

R.C.M.P.

This week — "David and Goliath." Constable Mitchell (Don Francks) puts aside his R.C.M.P. uniform and manner for the clothes of a juvenile beatnik in order to attempt to convict a giant of a man suspected of peddling narcotics to teen-agers. Cast includes Gilles Pelletier as Corp. Gagnier, John Perkins as Constable Scott, Lou Pitoscia as "Crusher" Murphy, Alfie Scopp as Icky Williams, Ed McGibbon as Corp. Zaggerman, Martin Andrews as Sgt. Bruce, Francie Jones as Audrey Fielding, Syd Brown as City Sergeant, Brian Brown as a piano player, and Bernie Earley as a waiter.

The Unforeseen

"Heaven Can Wait," by C. B. Gilford, adapted by John Clement. Alexander Arlington, a writer of mystery novels, finds himself in Heaven. Arlington learns from the Archangel Michael that the cause of his death was murder. He is piqued because this is one crime he has not been able to solve. Arlington's depression softens the Archangel who allows him to return to earth for 24 hours to solve the mystery of his own death. Norman Campbell, producer. From Toronto.

Explorations

"The Logic of Life" — Part 2. This week Lister Sinclair and John

Livingston discuss some of the phenomena of migration of animals, birds and fish. Using a bird in the studio, they show how scientists have sought the answers to many of the riddles of migration. A unique sequence of film, never before seen on television, is used to illustrate migration. It shows a new system of tracking the migratory movements of birds by means of radar, a system developed by a Swiss scientist. The film is speeded up so that about 30 seconds of film is equal to about one hour of migration. Norman Caton, producer. From Toronto.

On "P.M. Party"

Tomorrow's Headlines Today

Dr. Spencer Thornton is a young American surgeon who claims to be able to mind-read and predict the future. He does it just for entertainment. He is not a crystal-gazer, and he insists that he has not supernatural power, just "empathy," the imaginative projection of one's own consciousness into another being, and something, he says, that anyone can do if they try hard enough.

When he appeared on CBC-TV's P.M. Party on October 19 he predicted: Russia will be on the gold standard by next spring; a break in Arab-Russian relations this December; a purge in the Cuban government in three weeks; and a tidal wave in the Pacific on November 28, preceded by earth tremours extending from Western Canada to the Aleutian Islands.

At a press conference after the show Dr. Thornton also predicted that Princess Margaret would marry in two years, and that the initials of her husband-to-be are some combination of the letters R, J and T.

Dr. Thornton makes a return visit to P.M. Party this Wednesday afternoon. The day before he will send a registered letter to P.M. Party in which he will predict the following day's headlines in the three Toronto Daily newspapers. The letter will be opened on the show.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Frances MacKay

Today Frances MacKay of the Department of Agriculture continues her weekly consumer information service. Mat Gauer starts a new series of low-budget, high interest international meat recipes; Joyce

Rogers opens the door on opportunities for volunteer service, and Lillian Allen has more suggestions for the "home beautiful."

This Living World

With host Steve Bloomer. This week's program is devoted to a study of the intelligence of animals. Experiments will be done with mice, guinea pigs, dogs, chickens, and a chimp. From Montreal.

CBWT—Busy Fingers

Betty Nickerson's guests this week are grade 5 and 6 pupils from King George School in Norwood who will show how to make Christmas angels out of construction paper, tinsel and cotton.

The Deputy

Western starring Henry Fonda as Simon Fry, marshal of the Arizona territory. This week—"Land Greed." Clay McCord and Herk Lamson have trouble on their hands when a land-greedy widow tries to frame her neighbour on a charge of cattle rustling.

Talent Caravan

This week's show comes from Sydney, N.S. Appearing on the show will be 12-year-old Bobby Rudderham, who will sing Red River Rose; David Gallant and Eugene Wynne, singer-guitarists; Diane Stephen, 16-year-old pops singer, who will sing Big Daddy; Ivan Burgess, 20-year-old Calypso singer, who will sing Island in the Sun; The Swing Low Quintet, a jazz group whose selection, Motivate, was written by the group's leader, Charles Doucet; and the winner of last week's show from St. John, N.B.

Man From Blackhawk

Starring Robert Rockwell as Sam Logan, investigator for the Blackhawk Insurance Company. This week—"Contraband Cargo." In order to prevent Sam Logan from reporting that a schooner is rotten, Jim Hulk, the owner, shanghaies him and sets sail for South America.

On CBWT

Mary Liz Returns

Are you interested in food, handicrafts, interior decoration, sewing, welfare, gardening, books, travel, history, music, ballet, theatre, art, museums, pets, flowers, repairs, sports, health, safety, architecture, archaeology, people?

Not all at once? Maybe two or three of these at a time—twice a week?

Good. If you're a woman and you live in or around Winnipeg you'll find something for you on every Mary Liz Show. The popular women's feature returns for its fourth season on Tuesday, November 24, and will be seen every Tuesday and Thursday after that at 2:30 p.m. on CBWT.

"We have a tremendous variety of material to choose from," says hostess Mary Elizabeth Bayer, "and our viewers seem to be interested in everything, so even after more than 200 productions both the supply and demand seem inexhaustible."

Several new series will be added to the show this season. Miss Frances MacKay, known to CBW listeners for her Word to the Wives every Friday on Manitoba Memos, will appear every Thursday with consumer information, showing the best buys in food products and giving pointers on their quality, value and use.

Early in the new year a series on religion will examine the doctrines and philosophy of various religious denominations.

Informal book reviews by Mrs. Edward Poyser will keep viewers up to date on the best in good reading.

And old friends will be back. Mat Gauer returns in December to demonstrate easy, intriguing holiday recipes. Gerdine Crawford has a new basketful of sewing hints, and Cynthia Coop will show how to be an expert in purchasing furniture.

Viewers will see stages in the construction of one of Winnipeg's newest houses—the stone and concrete dream home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Booth. And Professor Lillian Allen and Mrs. Evelyn Franklin of the University of Manitoba will share ideas for holiday, party, and winter-long home decoration.

In line with its purpose as a community service program the Mary Liz Show will continue to report on the huge volume of volunteer work being done by members of organizations throughout the province. Viewers' comments indicate that this feature of the show has been well received.

Fun is mixed in with the facts. Fashion notes, accounts of travels to exotic countries, special features for children, historical anecdotes and other special stories are designed for pure enjoyment.

Mary Liz is officially described as commentator-researcher for the show. Production is by Miss Jean Mackay, CBWT's only woman producer (who produced the network series Rope Around the Sun this summer and is currently working on the Provincial Affairs telecasts). Shirley Lawrence is script assistant, and Bill Guest is host.

"We all do our best, but it's the guests who make the show a success," according to Mary Liz. "In the past three years nearly 1,000 people have appeared to tell their story or show us their skills. We're looking forward to meeting the stars of the new season, and we're sure our viewers are too!"

shape and means of expression. It's quite a gamble, really."

"Sometimes," he says, "you're haunted by censorship." He struck an "irreverent problem" when he was asked to adapt Bruce Marshall's book Father Malachy's Miracle for CBC Stage this Sunday night. It involves some highly amusing and controversial shenanigans between a Roman Catholic priest and a Protestant clergyman in Scotland, who have a kind of bet involving the elimination of a dancehall. "The book is extremely erudite, witty and irreverent in a good-natured way, probing deeply and respectfully into the logic behind the actions of the two clerics. The Stage play took a different approach—it was just fun."

George had written exclusively for radio until four or five years ago, when he became the first CBC-TV drama editor; he took the job to learn the mechanics of writing for television. He held the job for three years, and "it was fun, but heartbreaking when I had to hand out a disappointment to a writer who had almost written a good play, or to one whose work was good but didn't fit into any market." He left to take on the R.C.M.P. assignment.

Although he grew up in a home where writing and markets were discussed almost daily, George says he had absolutely no interest in a writing career when he finished school. His mother, Laura Goodman Salverson, is a well-known Canadian novelist of Icelandic background. His father, of Minnesota Norwegian extraction, was a CNR dispatcher in Western Canada for many years. George set out to be a radio newscaster—first in Flin Flon, Manitoba, and then in Winnipeg. He soon found that because he had a mother who wrote, he was consulted on writing problems, at the studios, and before he knew what had happened he was writing commercial copy, continuity, and finally, plays. He discovered that he liked the work he had once thought he would not touch with a ten-foot pole. He haunted the CBC studios where Esse Ljungh was producing network dramas. Ljungh encouraged him and he was given a job of preparing a series of war documentaries for the Canadian Army. One day he woke up to the fact that Fate had made him a free-lance writer in spite of himself. Today he is a highly successful one.

He is subject to hobby rashes, and he finds when the hobby bug has bitten him that he has far more enthusiasm for his writing — gets really excited about his scripts. Recent hobbies have been hi-fi building and constructing a model railroad, with routes for 10 trains, six main lines, and 1,000 feet of wiring in the control "brain." George was highly amused when his father, who had dispatched CNR trains successfully for years, had his first head-on collision when he tried to operate his son's basement railroad! Eventually the thing got so big and complicated that George decided it had nowhere else to go except in competition with the CNR, so he cut all the wires leading to the brain.

He is between hobbies now, so when he gets steamed up over a script or hits an unclimbable dramatic wall, he goes for a long walk, takes his family to the supermarket, or makes a trip downtown to see someone at the CBC. We hoped this interview would be the catalyst that would start his type-writer humming again.

17-year-old Spanish girl, is sent to the Castle of Learning to acquire a knowledge of household subjects.

P.M. Party

Today's guest is Lotta Dempsey, Toronto Daily Star columnist, who will talk about the newspaper business and her experiences on such assignments as the Royal Visit and Khrushchev's American tour.

Sportstime

With Doug Maxwell. Today grade fivers will demonstrate the fun to be had from a good rousing folk dance.

Four Just Men

This week Jack Hawkins stars in a story about a cabin boy who runs away from his London-based ship.

Sports on TV

• I don't know why people (Mailbag, Nov. 8-14) complain about the sports programs. There are few enough of them compared to all the rest of the programs. There is something for everyone—music, drama, etc.—all week long, so why complain if some people like good clean sport? I for one wish we had more of it—and that we could at least see the whole hockey game on Saturday night instead of old movies.—A. W. F., Morris, Man.

Objectivity

• I much prefer your reporting of American political news to that of our U.S. stations. Perhaps the figurative distance lends itself to objectivity.—K. W. S., Zap, North Dakota.

Stage Door

• I am disgusted with Stage Door. I cannot understand how people of sound judgment can allow a program of this calibre to be transmitted. The persons appearing on it are without appeal; they can neither sing, act or otherwise.—C. H. G., Winnipeg.

• I am most impressed with Stage Door. It seems to move along quickly, the songs chosen are listenable and originally presented, and Georges LaFleche is one of the most poised and talented hosts we have seen. Please continue this calibre of production.—P. N., Winnipeg.

Printed Talks

• Could you start a monthly magazine containing reprints of broadcast talks and comments and criticisms of personalities and programs?—H. T. W., Blackie, Alta.

No regular publication of this type is under consideration at the present time. CBC is, however, publishing more scripts of the more important series (University of the Air, etc.) than ever before. When these are available announcements are printed in the CBC Times and given on the air.

Sunday on Radio

The Great Adventurer

A first-person "Scrapbook" on Robert Edwin Peary, who may—or may not—have been the first to sail to the North Pole

IN 1909 the ship Roosevelt returned to Battle Harbour, Labrador, after a voyage into the far north. Aboard her was an American naval officer, 53 years old, several of his toes missing from frost bite, a man who had failed several times previously in an attempt to reach the North Pole. Now he reported success.

The man, of course, was Robert Edwin Peary. And waiting to greet him in Battle Harbour was a shipload of newspapermen. One of them, Delt Edwards, of the New York Herald, tells the story of that famous return on The Great Adventurer Sunday on radio.

"Mr. Edwards, who is now 86 years old, is one of a number of men who speak about Peary from their personal knowledge," says Dick Halhed, producer and narrator. "The oldest speaker is George Carr of Prince Albert, Sask., now 93, who recalls dramatically the privations he suffered with Peary on an earlier expedition to the north in 1893.

"We also have representatives of the famous Bartlett family of Newfoundland," says Halhed. "Bob Bartlett who navigated the Roosevelt for Peary is dead but his brother William, a crewmember and his nephew, Rupert, who has made a study of Peary, will speak."

Highlights of the broadcast will be a recording of Peary himself describing the epic journey. "As Peary died in 1920, the recording technique in use when this was made was not the best," says Halhed, "but the record is quite fascinating." Halhed learnt of the disc when he asked the CBC in St. John's, Newfoundland, to find people who remembered the Peary expedition. CBC's Director for Newfoundland, William Galgay, heard of the search and offered Halhed the record which he has in his large record library.

The story of Peary involves a strong element of controversy which could not properly be omitted from a portrait such as this. In his final dash towards the Pole, Peary took only his personal servant and some Eskimos, none of whom could navigate. This meant he had no confirmation that he had, in fact, reached the Pole.

This, coupled with many puzzling features of the trip—the last phase must have been covered in almost superhuman time—has led some Arctic historians to doubt Peary's claim of attaining his objective. One such is John Fuller of Buffalo who will speak on the program.

Peary's character is also complex. He admitted to a powerful ambition, a burning desire to achieve world wide fame. Yet without exception, the speakers on this program who best knew and worked with Peary are firm in their belief that he was not capable of making the false claim with which he has been charged. The strongest criticism was that he was unwise not to have taken with him a man capable of confirming his calculations. And even here, Peary gives his reasons.

Another speaker is Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith, a Canadian glaciologist who a few years ago found the tattered remains of an American flag in ice in the North. Peary

THE SELKIRK SETTLERS

An artist's sketch depicts the dauntless spirit of the first Selkirk settlers, subject of this week's National School Broadcast (Friday afternoon). The program is a dramatized story of the experiences of a young Scottish boy who comes to the new world with Miles Macdonell, who has been appointed governor of the Earl of Selkirk's new colony to be established on the Red River.

CBC STAGE

"Father Malachy's Miracle," by Bruce Marshall, dramatized for radio by George Salverson. The play is about a Roman Catholic priest and a Protestant clergyman in Scotland who have a kind of bet involving the elimination of a dance hall. Salverson (see page 3) describes the book he has adapted as "extremely erudite, witty and irreverent in a good-natured way, probing deeply and respectfully into the logic behind the actions of the two clerics." Esse Ljungh, producer. From Toronto.

W-10:00 pm K-10:00 pm X-10:00 pm

TALK

"The Childlike World of Charles Dickens," by George Baldwin of the University of Alberta. Mr. Baldwin suggests in his talk that Dickens' continuing popularity is a result of his special view of the world, a world he saw with the innocent eyes of a child. Even his villains are villainous in the way of a fairy tale's villains, and lacking the degeneracy, despair or neurosis of real villains. (Monday night on CBW).

"Foggerty's Philtre," by Don MacClure. The story of what happens when a love-potion Foggerty intended for his would-be bride finds its way into his cow's trough.

CBC VARIETY HOUR

Today's program comes from Toronto and stars singer Terry Dale and writer-comedian Rod Coneybear, backed by Lloyd Edward's orchestra. "We're after a nice blend of music and comedy," says producer Bob Arnett. "We'll have four satirical sketches, announcer Bruce Marsh doing one, and Rod and Terry doing the others—which Rod wrote himself. Terry will sing five numbers." The first sketch, by Rod Coneybear, is typical of the wit that has made such shows as Man to Man and the current Children's Magazine (Sundays) such a delight. It tells of a young private-eye, Johnny Celeste, who likes to sit around a jazz joint. Even casual TV viewers will get the idea. The second skit, And Then I Wrote . . . describes what happens when American entertainment stars are imported into Canada. Finally, Young Widower Brown is a soap opera, except that—shunning all conventions—its main character is a man. W-2:00 pm K-1:00 pm X-1:00 pm other valuable nutrients; fish can also be a gourmet dish of the first order. For those who like fish (and or those who must eat it) Matinee's cooking expert, Eustella Langdon, today presents some tantalizing recipes. Her "Fish Grill," "Baked Fish" and "Brandade of Cod" all make use of economical ingredients; the additions of herbs and seasonings assure that economy go hand-in-hand with delectability. For a buffet supper that is decidedly different Mrs. Langdon will also offer a recipe for "Sea Food and Chicken Stew," a delicious combination of shrimps, chicken oysters, mushrooms and sherry.

A Liverpool Childhood. When Norman Gridgeman was a child he lived with his family in an ancient house directly across the river from Liverpool. The port city was his favourite holiday visiting place. Today Mr. Gridgeman recalls the delights of his childhood pilgrimages to windy, bustling Liverpool. He now lives in Ottawa.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Robert Duffy (Ottawa affairs), recorded music by Ruby Mercer of Toronto, and another episode in Marian Waldman's serial, "The Dancers," produced in Winnipeg by Gus Kristjanson.

did Attlee have following Churchill?" he asks. "Yet in his quiet way Attlee made himself a great name in British history. In a way I suppose this conclusion forms a penance for me: some years ago I predicted George Drew, not John Diefenbaker, as the future Conservative prime minister of Canada."

The fourth talk discusses the question: Was Plato right? Dr. Fox concludes that philosopher-kings may be less impressive as members of parliament than decent, honest, industrious men. In the fifth talk he tells why he can see no fundamental differences between the major political parties.

The last talk is entitled How to Win an Election. However, he does not pretend to give practical hints to young politicians. First point, for instance, is: make sure your outweigh the theft of his childhood.

At 14 he was sent to France to live for a year in the home of Samuel Bentham, brother of Jeremy Bentham, father of utilitarianism, where he studied chemistry, botany, French (for nine hours a day), tackled complicated mathematical problems, kept a diary full of notes on French scenery, people and customs, and was so overwhelmingly impressed by Bentham's doctrine of the greatest happiness for the greatest number that he became a convert to utilitarianism for his lifetime, though in his later years he somewhat modified his ideas. On his return to London he found that his father had determined on a law career for him, and he set about studying psychology and Roman Law. But shortly afterward it was decided he should enter the East India Company instead, where his father's influence found him a clerkship in 1822. He was there for 33 years. It was inevitable that there would be a clash between the quiet, over-educated youth and the stiff mould into which he had been cast. His health had been permanently ruined, and when he was 21 he went through what was called "a spiritual crisis." He saw that in his attack on the bondages of convention his happiness lay in working for the end, not in the end itself.

"I seemed to have nothing left to live for," he wrote. He saved himself from despair by reading the romantic poetry of Wordsworth. He suffered brain exhaustion at 30 which left him with a constant twitching over one eye. Again at 33 and 51 his constant study brought on long sieges of illness. It is rather ironic that the great advocate of liberty achieved his own personal freedom only when his father died in 1836.

The other most important event of Mill's life occurred when he was 25. He met Harriet Hardy Taylor, an invalid and probably tubercular. It was love at first sight. She admired the tall, thin, blond young man with the brilliant mind, and he was equally impressed by her intellect. Unfortunately there was a Mr. Taylor, a drysalter of small intelligence, who, realizing that he could not compete with a mind like Mill's, and that an English divorce was impossible, quietly slipped into the background, leaving the field to his utilitarian opponent. For 20 years Harriet and John were lovers. When Mill visited her home the gallant but simple drysalter slunk off to his barrels of fish with his heart in his pocket, erasing himself from the scene as much as possible. Finally he erased himself altogether, but for some reason hard to define, Mill and Mrs. Taylor waited two years after his death before marriage. The terrific Victorian scandal that ensued came as something of an anti-climax, but it meant that they did not go about socially and had few friends. Mill adored her. He never tired of extolling her nobility and inspiration. She certainly influenced his emotional at-

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

The Kingdom of Books. When Kate Munro of Toronto was a child in Scotland the books she was given to read more often contained a sermon than a story. There were so many deaths at tender ages, and so many horrible examples of what might have happened to you if you were bad that she wonders why she wasn't frightened of books forever. Then Kate discovered "Tom Sawyer" and "Alice in Wonderland" in the local library.

Up in the Clouds. Margaret Dunseith is a woman who keeps her head in the clouds and gets paid for it. Her feet are always firmly on the ground, however. She is air traffic controller—the first in Canada and one of only five in the world. She works at the Toronto Island airport, taking turns with four men at clearing and landing planes and guarding the movements of any men and machines moving on the two runways and the two taxi-strips squaring out before her glass tower. Wendy Butler interviewed Miss Dunseith earlier this year for today's broadcast.

At Home With the Ancients. Today, in the last of seven talks about home life in ancient civilizations, George Woodcock of Vancouver talks about the Scythians. The Scythians really didn't have much of a home life; they were warriors and nomads and carried their families and possessions about with them in great six-wheeled wagons, perching now and then in great felt tents on a new piece of grassland, then moving on again when the pasture had been consumed.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Robert Duffy (Ottawa affairs), recorded music presented by Ruby Mercer, and another episode in "The Dancers," Marian Waldman's serial, produced in Winnipeg by Gus Kristjanson.

titudes towards the subjects he studied, and encouraged his advocacy of reform and economic and political rights of women.

Unfortunately it was also she who was responsible for allowing a servant to burn the only manuscript of their friend Thomas Carlyle's History of the French Revolution, either through carelessness or jealousy because Mill had thought of working on the same theme. Fortunately, after Carlyle's roars had died down and he had read Captain Marryat for a week to steady himself, he sat down and wrote the whole history over again!

After Harriet's death in France Mill was inconsolable, bought a house as near her grave as possible, and spent a good part of every day

Devil, God the Father, His Son, and the Virgin Mary, but also to the wind, the stars, the rose, the snail, and many other parts of Creation—with a delightful mixture of comedy and tenderness. Satan bets God that he can make two beautiful sisters fall into mortal sin within two days. Using his many disguises and assuming many shapes, Satan proceeds to woo the girls. But a change comes over the Devil, making him see the joys of heaven and shed a tear. Moved by this weakness, God gives the tear the power of continuing coolness so that the Devil will have some protection from the devouring flames of Hell. The play will be produced in Montreal by Rupert Caplan. Original music is by Neil Chotem.

by her tombstone. Her daughter (by the drysalter), who lived with him, finally shook him out of his self-pity, he returned to England and became M.P. for Westminster for three years, but his political views were so unprejudiced that many in the House of Commons found him tiresome, and he finally left Parliament to spend his remaining years in France.

Carlyle called him "a logic-chopping machine." But he had much more personal warmth than is usually associated with logicians—highly emotional, tender-hearted, generous, quiet and self-contained except when he championed the cause. (He was once in trouble for poking pamphlets on birth control down area railings). It was in the field of political philosophy that his greatest work was done. As Lord Mosely put it, Mill in his time set the problems and defined the channels for all people with a taste for thinking.

His most famous work is probably his Essay on Liberty, published just a century ago in the same year as Darwin's Origin of Species, in which he, too, preached the doctrine of revolt against the tame acceptance of conventional opinions. Short and easy to read, his Essay is filled with a nobility of thought, feeling and language that make it one of the greatest expressions of the human spirit. He held that liberty is the condition of progress, that a strong, happy nation must also be a free one, in which the pricelessly few men and women of vision can be heard and honored, even though what they stand for is unpleasant to some.

This week on radio CBC Wednesday Night presents a portrait of John Stuart Mill, seen through his journals and letters, prepared by Marian Smith.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Those Good Old-Fashioned Winters. Old-timers like to say that winters in Canada aren't like they used to be. Edith Paterson, a Winnipeg housewife who makes her debut as a broadcaster in this Matinee talk, is inclined to agree. She remembers growing up in the Prince Albert area of Saskatchewan and the preparations for a long, cold winter that were made in her family home. Mrs. Paterson now finds that the temperature in Winnipeg seldom drops below 20° (below, that is!)

TV and the Child. How much time does the average child spend watching television? What would he be doing if he were not watching? Are there age-and-income patterns to a child's TV viewing? These are some of the questions that Thelma McCormack asks in the first talk in her three-part Matinee series. Mrs. McCormack, a sociologist, has done an extensive amount of research in the field of social attitudes and public opinion. This year she's teaching a class on Public Opinion Propaganda and the Mass Media at the University of Toronto. She's the mother of twins—5½-year-old girls—whose television watching habits are carefully scrutinized by their mother.

The Domestic World. Florence King Blackwell of Montreal takes a look at "The Domestic World," a book published in 1873 and purporting to be "a practical guide in all the daily difficulties of the higher branches of domestic and social economy." The advice it contains may be somewhat impractical today but it does offer a glimpse at a more leisurely way of life.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Mattie Rotenberg of Toronto (international affairs), recorded music, and another episode in Marian Waldman's serial, "The Dancers," produced in Winnipeg by Gus Kristjan-son.

MUSIC ON RADIO

by DR. BOYD NEEL

FOR ME, by far the most interesting program of the week is the group of arrangements which we can hear Friday on CBC Concert Hall.^{*} It is not clear from the information I have as to just what each arrangement is. I notice that there is only one flute player in the program, otherwise I would have looked forward to that incredible arrangement of the Hallelujah Chorus from Messiah as a duet for two flutes, but maybe we shall have it for flute and violin. The Ave Maria of Gounod is, of course, another type of arrangement, being a melody superimposed on the C Major Prelude from Book 1 of Bach's 48. The Quadrille on themes from "The Ring" was written, I believe, by a group of French composers of which I am fairly certain Chabrier was one, but there is no indication as to whether this is the piece I am thinking of. I sincerely hope it is, as it is one of the funniest pieces of music I know. That is, of course, if you know your "Ring" well, which I am sure all readers of this column do.

The question of arrangements in general has formed one of the chief debating topics in music throughout the ages. Arrangements can be horrible or tolerable. I don't think anyone really likes them; a lot of the the time they are completely unnecessary, but have become a kind of habit—so much so, that many people are quite surprised when a piece is not an arrangement. I recently conducted a concert, after which someone from the audience came around and asked "who did your arrangements?" All the compositions we had performed were played exactly as the composers wrote them and the question of arrangements never entered into it at all, but so prevalent has this arranging business become, that many people seem to imagine that to play a piece in its original form is quite unusual—a really terrible state of affairs.

One can hardly blame listeners for this attitude, when virtuoso pianists who never perform Bach's 48, have no hesitation in playing Liszt's arrangements of Bach's organ pieces at their recitals. Could stupidity go further? All great composers have suffered from arrangers. The wretched E flat Nocturne of Chopin has, among many other arrangements, been published for four pianos, for mandolin, and for saxophone with guitar accompaniment. Why? His E major, opus 10 comes off even worse, and arrangements of this lovely piece for trombone solo with jazz band, singing saw, violin, and voices can be found.

Other famous compositions have had a terrible time—the Dead March in Saul was once published as a four-part glee; Chopin's "Funeral March" became a comic song about Li Hung Chang. Some incidental music to Macbeth written by Locke appeared as a "Sacred Cantata, Praise God on High" and it is in this arrangement that we get the superb transformation of the words of the fourth witch in Macbeth "My little merry, airy spirit, see, sits in a foggy cloud and waits for me" into "The cherubim and seraphim continually do cry Holy! Holy!"

It is by no means only the hacks who have gone in for arrangements. Bach himself was the arch-arranger of all time and his passion for Vivaldi expressed itself in an enormous number of arrangements of that composer. Even Bach has been criticized by no less a person than Schweitzer for arranging the slow movement of the C minor oboe and violin concerto for keyboard instruments.

"Additional" accompaniments are a kind of arrangement and who has not heard Messiah with Mozart's added accompaniments? Scorn has been poured on this version of musicologists in recent years. "Stucco ornaments on a marble temple" was one of the famous criticisms.

The case for or against arrangements will never be brought to any kind of satisfactory conclusion and it is fairly certain they will be with us until music ceases to exist.

On Sunday evening in the concert by the Vancouver Symphony, we can hear the London Symphony of Vaughan Williams, which received its first performance in 1914. After that date it was extensively revised by the composer and the version we hear today differs in many respects from the original. To a Londoner, it is extraordinary how well it conveys the atmosphere of the city. The other famous "London" composition of a great English composer is, of course, the Cockaigne Overture of Elgar and it is most interesting to compare the two works and to note how, although so utterly different in musical material, the atmosphere of London is so strong in each case.

records leaving such a flag at the Pole. Though Hattersley-Smith found the flag far from the Pole, this neither confirms nor refutes Peary's story; the shifting of polar ice would inevitably remove the flag.

Two famous Arctic explorers also speak on The Great Adventurer. One is Vilhjalmur Stefansson, now 80 years old, who recorded an interview at his home in Hanover, N.H. The other is Donald B. MacMillan, a member of the crew of the Roosevelt on Peary's voyage to the Pole, who later became an Arctic explorer in his own right. Also on the program, CBC Washington correspondent James M. Minifie will report on the observance in the United States of the 50th anniversary of Peary's trek to the Pole.

"Trouble is, the story (of Peary) doesn't end," says Tom Fairley, writer on the Arctic who researched and wrote for The Great Adventurer. "And you are left with the feeling it probably never will. While Peary's story is probably one of the most intriguing, it is also the most infuriating I know of in polar annals. You finish up with more questions than you started with."

This being so the people in the program say their piece, and the program lets it stand. "It will be a scrapbook rather than an orderly montage," says Fairley, "but it will be a very vivid scrapbook and the listener should get enough to begin his own evaluation of the story."

Peary was born at Cresson Springs, Penn., and entered the U.S. Navy in 1881. In 1884-85 he was engaged in surveys of a projected canal in Nicaragua to which he returned in 1888. But in 1886 he had made a trip to the Canadian north and saw there a tremendous challenge. That began his series of exploratory expeditions and his determination to reach the North Pole.

Regardless of the ultimate controversy and the ethical question involved, Peary remains one of the great adventurers of this century.

"Even to attempt the final dash at his age and with the physical handicap of the loss of his toes is a thing to be wondered at," says Halhed.
