CBWFT Opening

French Television Service Starts In Manitoba

CBC TIMES this week contains listings and notes for a new station—CBWFT, western Canada's first French-language television station.

The station, located in the CBC Building on Portage Avenue in Winnipeg (where it shares the CBWT tower and antenna), will begin operations at 3:00 p.m. this Sunday, April 24.

As a basic station of the CBC French network, CBWFT will bring the full service of that network to Manitoba. Programs will be presented on film or videotape after they have been seen "live" in eastern Canada. This Sunday's inaugural program, however, will be produced "live" from the Notre Dame Auditorium in St. Boniface, the "Cathedral City" across the Red River from Winnipeg.

CBWFT will be on the air for about eight hours daily, 10 hours on Sundays. It will operate on Channel 6, with a power of 2.87 kw. video and 1.72 kw. audio. The French language programs formerly seen on CBWT on Saturdays and Sundays will now be replaced on CBWT by English language programs.

The CBC's French television network is unique. It leads the world in the volume of "live" programming in French, and is the third largest producer of "live" programming in any language. It is noted for the high quality of its dramatic productions and musical programs, and the latter are expected to be of special interest even to many Manitoba viewers who do not speak or understand French.

As an integral part of the CBC Winnipeg operation, CBWFT will be under the general administration of J. R. Finlay, CBC's Director for the Prairie Provinces, and W. G. Carpentier, Director of Television for the Prairie Region. Léo Rémillard, formerly co-ordinator of French programs at Winnipeg, will become program director of the new station.

Several members of the CBC Board of Directors and other national officers of the Corporation will take part in this Sunday's inaugural program. Premier Duff Roblin will declare the station officially open, and leading members of the French-Canadian community will assist in the opening ceremonies.

Taking part in the musical portion of the program will be three French-Canadian artists who are well known to viewers of the CBC's English television network—pop-singer Georges LaFleche, bass-baritone Paul Fredette, and mezzo-soprano Rolande Garnier. Victor Feldbrill, conductor of the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the orchestra, and Marius Benoist will conduct the St. Boniface Choir.

Later the same day, actors from Le Cercle Molière of St. Boniface will be featured in a new play—Dernier Acte, by the well-known Montreal writer François Lemal. The play, written especially for this occasion, will be produced by Jean Faucher, producer of the French Network's top drama series Téléthéâtre. (See page 7 for details).

LEO REMILLARD

program director, CBWFT, plays a leading role in "Dernier Acte," a play commissioned for presentation on the first night of the new station's operations.

Major Chamber Music Works

Organ Recitals

STARTING this Sunday, CBC radio listeners will be offered an outstanding half-hour recital series by nine leading Canadian organists and by Peter Hurford, brilliant young English organist who is beginning a North American tour, and who, many critics feel, is on his way to becoming one of the outstanding organists of our time.

Quentin Maclean, organist at the Church of the Holy Rosary in Toronto, and well-known CBC performer, opens the series with works by Titelouze, Bach, Dupre, Willan, Buxtehude, Reger, and two of his own: Regina Caeli, and Victimae Paschali Laudes. Kenneth Gilbert, organist at Queen Mary Road United Church in Montreal, will be heard on May 1, playing works by Buxtehude, Couperin and Bach. On May 8 Gaston Arel, organist at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Montreal, will give the premiere performance of Sonata No. 3 (just completed) by Raymond Daveluy, and will also play Bach's Canzona in D minor. Dr. Charles Peaker, organist of St. Paul's Church in Toronto, will be heard on May 1 playing works by Liszt, Brahms, and three short CBBC RADIO'S weekly chamber music concert, formerly heard for a half hour every Sunday, will become one hour in length this week. (It will also be heard at a new time—check listings, page 22).

Program organizer John Roberts says the program's time has been increased to make possible the performance of some of the chamber works which were too long to play in the half hour program. Following is the schedule:

pieces by Schumann. Vancouver organist Hugh McLean will play Scherzo, and Prelude, Adagio, et Choral Varie by Maurice Durufle on May 22.

Maitland Farmer, organist at All Saints' Cathedral in Halifax, will give an all-Widor program on May 29. Hugh Bancroft, organist at All Saints' Anglican Cathedral in Edmonton, will be the June 5 recitalist, and his program will be announced later. One June 12 Gerald Wheeler, organist at St. Matthew's Anglican Church in Ottawa, will play selections by Balbastre and Healey Willan. Bernard Legace, organist at Ste. Cixte Church in Montreal, will play 16th and 17th-century music on June 19.

Peter Hurford will end the series on June 26 with a program to be announced. Born in 1930, he studied at the Royal College of Music and at Cambridge, and has broadcast frequently on the BBC and on Bavarian, German and Netherlands radio.

ODDS and ENDS

The law will be the subject of a special Wednesday night series this summer on CBC-TV. Also to be covered on CBC-TV—the Calgary Stampede, the Vancouver Festival, and the Stratford Festival. "Fighting Words" will be replaced by a program of an informational nature.

Continuing through the summer on CBC-TV will be: Good Life Theatre, Country Calendar, CBC Newsmagazine, Disneyland, Father Knows Best, Ed Sullivan, Don Messer, Danny Thomas, Riverboat, R.C.M.P., Kraft Music Hall, The Deputy, Man From Blackhawk, Four Just Men, Flying Doctor, Reflections, Mr. Fix-It, Dennis the Menace, and Twilight Zone.

Top-rated Canadian show, in terms of numbers watching, is Don Messer's Jubilee, according to International Surveys Ltd. It is the third most-watched program on the CBC-TV network.

"The Teenager" is the title of the May 18 program on Explorations, comparing teenagers of today with those of yesteryear. Alan Millar will interview Dr. Marshall McLuhan of St. Michael's College, Toronto, and the program will include short dramatic and musical excerpts. The cast includes Ivor Barry, Joe Austin, Garrick Hagon, Jonathan Erland, Michael Mitto, Mary Jane Ferguson, Susan Vayda, Gail Gerber (pictured this page), Beth Morris and a group of dancers. Daryl Duke is producer.

A Listeners' Lobby in Detroit lists as its major activities: (1) to fete CBE (Windsor) personnel at a party, (2) to submit a brief to the Federal communications Commission in Washington petitioning for stricter enforcement of regulations, citing CBC as an example of intelligent broadcasting, and (3) to sponsor a paid-admission talk by Max Ferguson, CBC's "Rawhide." The success of this latter project—a sell-out crowd of 1,600—has prompted a demand for a second appearance in Detroit.

P.M. Party producer Syd Wayne claims a television "first." On April 11 he introduced aromas to the show. Emcee Alan Millar and the cast tested audience reactions to canned scents similar to those used in some movie houses. Among the aromas used — "Honky Tonk," tobacco and horses.

Peter Whittall, CBC-TV's "Mr. Fix-It," visits Edmonton later this month to take part in the Edmonton Home Show. Before returning home to Toronto to start on his third Handy-

CANADA'S VOICE ABROAD

TO a business man in Auckland, a housewife in Manchester, a boy in Texas, a farmer in the fertile fields of France, and a student in Buenos Aires, the mention of Canada may immediately bring to mind interesting hours of listening to shortwave radio. In all parts of Europe, Latin America, Australia, New Zealand, and North, Central and South America, thousands of people hear the programs broadcast by the CBC International Service, which is celebrating its 15th anniversary this year.

The first official broadcast was on February 25, 1945, but test transmissions were carried out during the latter months of 1944, and a special Christmas Day broadcast was sent to Canadian forces in Europe on December 25, 1944.

In the first official broadcast, the late Prime Minister, Mackenzie King said, in part:

"The establishment of this service in Canada is of historic importance. It will serve both a national and international purpose. It will bring the voice of Canada to her own sons and daughters in other lands. It will also bring Canada into closer contact with other countries.

CBC International Service Marks 15th Anniversary

The CBC International Service began in an atmosphere of war. Thousands of Canadian men and women were far from their homes and the world had yet to end its tragic conflict and start the task of reconstruction.

Between those days and now, many changes have taken place in the temper of the world—cold war, a war in Korea, temporary thaws in the cold war, revolutions, disasters of many kinds, vast immigration to Canada and undreamed economic growth in Canada.

Two things, however, have not changed. They are the need for constant communication with the people of other lands and the need for the continual sending of information about Canada to peoples all over the world. These needs are predicated on the accepted premise that understanding leads to a better international climate which, in turn, could lead to some relief from the burden of armament.

It is this note which was struck by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in his message of greetings to listeners around the world on the 15th anniversary of the CBC International Service. He said:

"On the 15th anniversary of Canada's International Service, I wish to extend personal greetings to all listeners. This service is one of the means by which we have been able to tell the world not only about Canada's vigorous growth at home, but of her increasing influence abroad. Canada's traditions of imagination of men, and given rise to many attempts to emulate the birds. Even though the birds are the best known flying creatures, the air has been conquered by four different groups of animals. The Pterodactyl, the Bat, the Birds and Insects are graphically shown in their conquest of the air prior to man's limited success in this sphere.

Lassie

Timmy and Lassie plant a family of possums under a steel fence to prevent county authorities from moving the fence when a boundary dispute arises. Jon Provost stars as Timmy, with June Lockhart and Hugh Reilly as his parents, Ruth and Paul Martin. Cast also includes Eddy Waller and John Cliff.

Walt Disney Presents

Today—"Survival in Nature." Disney presents a true-life documentary feature about various animals fighting the never-ending battle to exist. Included are excerpts from the Disney films "The African Lion" and "Secrets of Life." Winston Hibbler narrates films about such creatures as the flying squirrel, the armadillo, the coyote and the pika, fighting merely to survive in their native habitat. A highlight is a battle between a horned toad and a rat.

Father Knows Best

About to graduate from college, Betty Anderson applies for a job and finds herself in competition with the same handsome veteran who bested her in the campaign for presidency of their senior class. Jim Hutton plays Betty's competitor, Cliff Bowman.

Saskatchewan-born actor Neil McCallum, Britain's most popular TV actor, as Lovely Boy Hall, a Teddy Boy. The play is about the efforts of a London police sergeant (played by Patrick McNee) to re-establish this boy offender, despite opposition from the boy's family and his Teddy Boy friends. Concern for the boy's welfare brings the policeman into conflict with his own superiors, forcing a choice between duty, career and personal feelings.

NYCOLE FORTIER

vocalist from Quebec City, returns to Music '60 for her third appearance this season, Monday night on CBC-TV.

more than 500 were selected for the exhibition. Allan Fleming will show viewers a representative group of posters from the exhibition.

P.M. Party

Audience participation program for women with emcee Alan Millar, singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring, and Daniel the Spaniel. Today's special guests, Dave Broadfoot and Jean Templeton present more of their comedy skits.

Fibber McGee And Molly

Today—"The Cow." Fed up with high meat prices, McGee decides to get a freezer and buy a side of beef. When the butcher refuses to sell to Fibber wholesale, McGee buys a cow from the dairy.

Let's Look

Let's look . . . at time. Viewers will learn about the various ways of measuring time, methods used down through the centuries. They will also see how to make some of these time-telling devices themselves.

Mr. "X" In Canada

With host Carter B. Storr, school inspector for the Ottawa Board of Education. Dr. Storr discusses another group of people who shaped Canada—and illustrates with his own drawings.

Mickey Mouse Club

Today's program will include a cartoon, "Coon Dog," another episode in the Spin and Marty series, and the Newsreel.

Quick Draw McGraw

Today—"Dizzy Desperado." Stage-coach Cooney robs the stage and Baba Looney is accidentally hit on the head with a strong box. Baba Looney is dazed and believes himself to be Little Cucuracha, the bandit scourge of the territory, and pits himself against his former friend, Quick Draw.

Don Messer Jubilee

Don Messer and his Islanders, singers Charlie Chamberlain and Marg Osburne, the Buchta Dancers and special guests, the Diamond Trio, a singing western group from Fredericton, N.B. Charlie Chamberlain sings "The Prisoner's Song." Charlie and Marg Osburne blend voices for "River of Roses" and "In The Garden." Marg Osburne sings "Village of St. Bernadette." The Islanders play "The Little Black Hen," "Down Yonder" and "The Lightening Hornpipe." The Buchta Dancers perform to "Maple Leaf Two-Step" and "Interlake Waltz."

Danny Thomas Show

Night club entertainer Danny Williams (Danny Thomas) attempts a John Alden act with a female third baseman on his son Rusty's (Rusty Hamer) baseball team. The tomboy third baseman (Barbara Beard) gives Danny much concern when he learns she has not been asked to go to a dance. With Danny's help, Rusty learns that beauty is where you find it—even on a baseball diamond. Marjorie Lord co-stars as Danny's wife Kathy, and Angela Cartwright is featured as their daughter Linda.

Riverboat

Today — "Wichita Arrow." Brad Turner (Dan Duryea), temporary captain of the Enterprise, discovers the bodies of the Mullin brothers with arrows protruding from their backs, but doesn't find a shipment of furs which the ship is scheduled to pick up. Capt. Turner subsequently becomes involved with a female passenger, a fugitive Wichita brave and a utensil peddler who wears buckskin trousers and moccasins—as did the killer of the Mullins. They all find themselves in great danger when a band of angered Indians decide to take to the warpath to even the score with an Indian imposter.

Open House

ON THE MAP—Dr. Paul Fox will give his weekly news report.

ARTIST IN THE KITCHEN—Today — “Boiling Fowl.” Madame Benoit’s culinary ability is going to be used to tackle boiling fowls, and she’ll give viewers some advice on cooking these this afternoon.

THE SINGING PRIEST — Our guest of the week is Father de Brienne, a 34-year-old Franciscan monk, with a classical music background, whose work in Ottawa is chiefly with young people. Father de Brienne thought music would help him to reach his audience, but the teenagers let him know he was a bit of a square with his classical music, and that he’d better try his hand at the guitar. Having a guitar, Father de Brienne practiced, wrote dozens of rock and roll tunes, and became a hit with the teenagers at his meetings. Father de Brienne will sing some of his music today on Open House.

Mantovani

Today — Mantovani will play the music of Broadway. Guests will be singer John Hanson and the singing Hi-Lo’s.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Today, we hear of the national and local programs of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, with Colonel E. A. Baker as our guest, and of the CNIB Women’s Auxiliary from Mrs. T. Campaign who is convening this year’s B-day activities. Gerdine Crawford starts a new sewing series with instructions for making summer handbags. Mrs. Harry Rowlin describes special plans for the 40th anniversary celebrations of the Winnipeg Branch of the Registered Music Teachers Association.

Susie

Today — “The Servant Problem.” Susie poses as an English maid in the home of a backer who has withdrawn $100,000 with which he had intended to “angel” a musical show promoted by Peter Sands. Susie delves into the background of the former backer’s wife and proves that her ancestors were really no better than most people.

Friendly Giant

Friendly’s book today is “Brown Cow Farm,” about counting the animals on a farm. Friendly and Rusty decide to try counting Jerome’s spots —and Jerome helps them, with the aid of a mirror.

Maggie Muggins

Miss Nightingale, a newcomer, has moved into the cottage down the road and Reuben tells Fitz and Maggie that she has caught Henrietta Hen and put her in a cage. Miss Nightingale refuses to release Henrietta who has ruined some of Miss Nightingale’s flowers. Mr. McGarrity saves the day.

Sportstime

Host Doug Maxwell shows us more film of the 1956 Olympics in Australia.

How About That!

Today, host Jim Mitchell presents Hollywood actor Walter Brennan in “Hidden Hunger,” the story of how a nation, with an abundance of food, literally starves itself by lack of knowledge of the basic food values. In addition to an interview with a special guest, Jim will present a cartoon about the history and development of modern agricultural equipment from the medieval ox-drawn plough titled “Speed the Plough.”

man’s Manual he will take a holiday in Vancouver.

Janee Ray, 10-year-old Toronto singer who played the role of Juliette as a child on An Hour With Juliette April 13, proved to be a natural for the part, with one exception — her dark hair had to be dyed blonde.

Blanche Lund recovered from a back injury received during rehearsal about six weeks ago just in time to appear on Joan Fairfax’s program Easter Sunday.

Jack Kane is expected to be back on Music ’60 by May 9 if his present rate of recovery from an operation is maintained.

Press Conference will be replaced by Robert Herridge Theatre, starting July 5. The CBS series will star such well-known performers as William Shatner, Michael Kane, Eli Wallach, Sam Jaffe and Bert Wheeler. Among the episodes are adaptations of John Steinbeck’s “The Chrysanthemums,” Edgar Allan Poe’s “The Tell-Tale Heart,” Mark Train’s “Huckleberry Finn” (in three parts), Sean O’Casey’s “The End of the Beginning,” and Plato’s “Trial and Death of Socrates.” Also in the series are two jazz shows and a ballet version of Frankie and Johnny.

SIR RALPH RICHARDSON is one of the British theatre stars featured on the Perry Como Show this Wednesday. The entire program was filmed in England.

House prior to leaving for England with her husband. She'll leave some exercises behind to help us keep in trim while she's away.

MARY HUMPHRIES REPORTS—What are good buys in pots and pans?—what cooks fastest, wears longest, cleans easiest? Marry Humphries reports on this today.

P.M. Party

Emcee Alan Millar, with singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring, and Daniel the Spaniel. Song and dance man Joey Hollingsworth is today's guest.

CBWT—Ladies First

Pianist Jose Poniera and announcer Ken Dunstan welcome a special guest singer to entertain the ladies.

CBWT—Busy Fingers

Beth Nickerson's guests today are three Grade 9 students from St. James Collegiate who demonstrate how to make plaster carvings.

Friendly Giant

Friendly's book, "Apple Pie", is about an "alphabet" apple pie and Rusty dons a chef's hat and apron and prepares to bake one of his own. He digs into his book bag for the apples, but as fast as he brings them out Jerome makes them disappear. Rusty decides to fool Jerome by substituting a wax apple.

Uncle Chichimus

Title of today's episode is "At The Beach," and a lazy day at the beach is interrupted by a frolicing bear cub.

Helene Winston plays the part of the zoo keeper.

Huckleberry Hound

Today—"Goldfish Fever." Jinks is beset by "goldfish fever" when a goldfish pond is installed in the yard next door. Even the dog which inhabits the yard is terrified by the crazed cat. Jinks receives a serious set-back when he discovers the fish are Siamese fighting fish—well able to defend themselves.

Art In Action

Final program in this series. Today—Professor Swinton and his guest, art educator and artist Elizabeth Harrison discuss children's art and how it develops into the art of the adult.

R.C.M.P.

Today—"Back to School." Corporal Gagnier has to leave the Shamattawa detachment to attend a refresher course in Ottawa. Before the spit-and-polish course ends Gagnier breaks regulation after regulation and is warned about neglecting his duties. Bob Christie plays the Officer Commanding and Buzz Martin plays Padgett.

Perry Como

Presents a special pre-recorded London, England, telecast of the Perry Como Show. This program will feature noted British personalities and English locales chosen during a recent survey of London by Como's producer and production staff. Guests will include: prima ballerina Margot Fonteyn; ballet star Michael

Harry Secombe

Somes; the Duke of Bedford; Sir Ralph Richardson; comedienne Fenella Fielding; pantomimist Harry Secombe; and pop pianist Russ Conway. Locations will include Woburn Abbey; Parliament Square; Covent Garden; The Bull and Bush (one of London's most popular pubs); and the BBC-TV Theatre where the show will conclude. Also participating will be Mitchell Ayres, Ray Charles and a group of singers, and Frank Gallop.

One Step Beyond

"The Captain's House." A young New York architect and his wife find their dream house in a New England fishing village. They move into the reputedly haunted house and learn about the original owners, a sea captain and his wife. The husband becomes more and more like the late captain and his wife is terrified when she learns that the old boy had murdered his wife.

Explorations

holidays, exchange presents and have tea. Miss Madeleine and Dick say goodbye to the children for the summer.

Open House

ADOPTION—What chance does a baby of mixed racial background have of being adopted? How many people have the qualities which will enable them to adopt such a child, love him, and help him meet the problems which will arise as he grows up? Today, in this final program of the series, we'll meet two families, both of which have adopted several children of mixed racial origin. They'll tell us why they decided to adopt their families, and of their experiences to date in bringing them up in their communities. From the Canadian Welfare Council, Phyllis Burns will discuss problems in adoption of children of mixed racial background.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

The Art Fair is featured on today's program as we preview some of the highlights of tomorrow's gala events. Mrs. A. E. Loadman of the Women's Committee of the Art Gallery guides us through the various attractions of the Fair. Frances McKay suggests the "Buy of the Week" and in the religious series Mr. Stephen Samitz describes the development and philosophy of Christian Science.

The Millionaire

Today — "Jerry Mitchell." A discharged Korean war veteran vows to pay his late father's huge bankruptcy debt but finds it impossible even after receiving a gift of $1,000,000.

Just Mary

Just Mary's story today—"Golden Shoes," is about Dibby, a little girl who dreams of having a pony called Golden Shoes. Dibby plays at the big deserted house on the hill, where she hears the bluebells ringing, but one day Mrs. Great House returns and puts up a "Keep Out" sign. Dibby's friends, the blacksmith and the policeman, decide that Mrs. Great House has no sunshine in her life, so Dibby collects a kettle of sunshine and gives it to Mrs. Great House.

C A S T

Dibby Syne Jago
 Mrs. Great House Winnifred Dennis
 Blacksmith Sid Brown
 Policeman Gillie Fenwick

Roy Rogers

Today—"The Scavenger." Roy and the sheriff find the saddlebags of two counterfeiters but cannot find any definite evidence because the two crooks had dropped their phony money into a garbage can. "Old Mose," a miserly scavenger, finds the bills and adds them to his secret store of money, thus becoming a target for murder.

The Deputy

Henry Fonda stars as Simon Fry, marshal of the Arizona Territory. Alan Case plays Clay McCord, his deputy.

Talent Caravan

This week George Murray presents amateur talent from the Toronto district.

Man From Blackhawk

Adventures in the early West. Robert Stockwell stars as insurance investigator Sam Logan.

RUTH WALKER

is guest vocalist on the last Wayne and Shuster Hour of the season this Saturday night on CBC-TV. (See page 19 for full details.)

Much of the peacefulness of the Victorian age was due to the fact that people hid their faces from the stern realities of life—the men behind whiskers, the women behind veils—and that truth was believed to come only from facial bushes—hence the saying, "barefaced lies."—Robert Wardle, on University Talks.

"Peppy," a story about a lonely puppy. They make their final plans for holidays and say goodbye to the children until fall.

Open House

THE TEENAGER— Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson, Associate Physician, Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, will talk about teenagers' food requirements.

SEWING SCHOOL— In the last program of this series, Mary Holliday will show viewers how to take up a hem successfully.

P.M. Party

Emcee Alan Millar, with singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring, and Daniel the Spaniel. Today's guest, Barbara Hamilton, does a monologue titled "Lollipops."

This Is Alice

Today — "Dandy Donovan." Alice causes Soapy's father to buy a race horse named Dandy Donovan and talks him into entering it in a race. It loses, but Alice realizes that it only runs best when it can hear her voice, so she sets up an amplifier at the track for the next race. Jockey Willie Shoemaker is guest performer.

Pictures With Woofier

Woofier hides in a hat box to fool Patty (Donna Miller) but when Patty takes the lid off Woofier has disappeared. Films — "The Camel," "Broken Toys," and "Samoan Family at Home."

Minnow On The Say

In today's episode "The Old Bridge," Adam and David remember that a bridge was in the portrait of Jonathan Codling. Eventually the boys discover the right bridge, one 400 years old, and with one carving of the Tudor Rose. Suddenly Mr. Smith appears and the boys hide.

Follow Me

Today — "Plywood." This program will show how logs are taken from the Fraser River and converted into plywood.

Fury

Today — "Fire Prevention Week." Joey is appointed chief of the valley's branch of the national Junior Fire Department and puts his company through drills with Fury hitched to an old two-wheel hose unit. Billy Johnson makes fun of the fire-fighters until his father's supposedly fire-proof house bursts into flames and he finds himself trapped on the second floor.

Four Just Men

Today — "Man with the Golden Touch." In Rome, Poccari (Vittorio de Sica) helps a one-time juvenile delinquent who is accused of stealing a precious antique urn. Richard O'Sullivan plays Pietro.

Flying Doctor

"The Riddle." Dr. Graham answers a call for medical help only to find the callers gone and only their dog remaining. Realizing that the callers have typhoid, Graham sets the dog on their scent. He finds them, kidnapped by two men after their gold.

Cavalcade Of Sports

A fifteen-round middleweight championship bout between Paul Pender of Boston and "Sugar" Ray Robinson of New York.

PROGRAM NOTES

APRIL 30

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

Young People's Concert

Leonard Bernstein conducts the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in the last program of this series. Commentary is by Mr. Bernstein. (No details available in time for publication; if possible, they will be included in the late notes section of next week's issue—page 4.)

Sports—Mobile

The Queen's Own Rifles of Canada

Bruce Marsh is narrator of this pictorial history of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada from their birth in 1860 to their 100th anniversary this month. It is Canada's oldest rifle regiment and has won honors in many battles, four V.C.'s from the First World War and one from the Second. The program traces the history of the regiment through graphics, etchings, early film from the First World War and later film from the Second. A CBC film unit was in Calgary recently, the home station of the regular army, to film the regiment's modern manoeuvres, mortar firing, winter assault course, march pasts, etc. The regiment's official historian, Lt. Col. William Barnard, talks about its history, including its part in battles—the North West Rebellion (1885), the

Sunday on radio

"The Old Soak"

A prohibition era comedy by Don Marquis, author of "archy and mehitabel"—adapted for CBC stage by Jack Blacklock

FLAPPERS and Barney Google, dance marathons and H. Rider Haggard, high living, wild spending, breaking bonds of propriety and shaking heads over what the young people were up to—the 1920's when man's best friend was said to be his bootlegger.

Not the least of those interested in the secret pouring of beverages was The Old Soak, a charming, romantic, rascally, shrewd old tippler dreamed up by American novelist, poet and dramatist Don Marquis. And when we tell you that Marquis was also the author of archy and mehitabel, a series of hilarious sketches about the doings of a cat and a cockroach, you will realize what fun is in store for you Sunday night when CBC Stage presents Jack Blacklock's radio version of The Old Soak. Esse W. Ljungh is producer.

As Clem Hawley's wife puts it, "Clem used to work at one time. Since Prohibition set in, he's stuck to hard liquor more than he's stuck to hard labour."

"Hard labour!" snorts Clem. "A man can't set down to rest under his own vines and fig trees without someone brings up the subject of hard labour. Ain't I always been a goodpervider to you Matilda? Ain't I pervided you with a couple of children to work for you? Three things I hold by—the old-time religion, and calomel and straight whiskey. They got more kick in 'em than any of these here new-fangled notions."

A lazy, talkative, good-for-nothing? The Old Soak seems like that to most of his family. But he solves some tricky situations for them with the combined techniques of a diplomat and a thug. He is one of the most appealing characters to turn up on radio for some time.

It never ceased to annoy Don Marquis that he had worked 10 years on The Dark Hours, a drama about the Crucifixion, and it was a flop, but spent only three days on his howling success, The Old Soak. To all appearances he was a born wit, bubbling with humour most of the time. But, like most clowns, he was sad at heart, an embittered cynic. He spent his last six years as tragically as a "penniless and jobless cripple."

Christopher Morley, a friend of Marquis, once described him as "a careful blend of Falstaff and Napoleon III." Before his final illness Marquis looked like a prosperous mid-Western farmer, heavy-set, with a cheerful round face. Benjamin De Casseres called him, "Shelley trying to lasso the Golden Calf: a born poet and bitter satirist."

Marquis was born in Walnut, Illinois, in 1878. After he left high school he taught school in the country for a while, clerked, and baled hay, then studied for a year-and-a-half at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, but left because he felt he did not have what it took to succeed as an artist. Next he landed a job with the Census Bureau and reported part time for the Washington Times. After that he had a fling with a third-class touring stock company which, of course, went broke on the road.

Marquis did not begin to hit his stride until he got a job as editorial writer on the Atlanta Constitution. Editor Joel Chandler Harris, author of the Uncle Remus stories, grew interested in him, offered him a job as assistant editor of the Uncle Remus Magazine, and encouraged him to try his hand at creative writing.

In 1912 Marquis went to New York and began his celebrated Sun Dial column in the Sun, where many of his colourful characters,

MUSIC ON RADIO

By BOYD NEEL

PROBABLY no series of works by a famous composer is as generally unknown as the string quartets of Schubert. Apart from the overplayed D minor ("Death and the Maiden") Quartet and occasional performances of the A minor, the quartets are hardly ever heard. Why this should be, I have not the slightest idea, since they contain much very beautiful music by a great master. I see that on Sunday the Vancouver String Quartet is playing the G major, Opus 161, and we shall have a chance to hear this amazingly original composition.

First, a word of warning. When you prepare to listen to this work, do not expect to hear the Schubert whom you know from the symphonies, songs and odd pieces commonly heard. Instead, you will hear a composition much more like the later quartets of Beethoven than anything else I can think of. Gone are the lilting Viennese melodies and gay dance rhythms of his better known works. This extraordinary quartet would seem to indicate that when the composer died at his tragically early age, he was on the threshold of a completely new style of composition, which, if he had lived, might have taken him into realms which even he was only vaguely conscious of.

It has been said that most composers write their best songs during the early part of their lives, and this, strangely enough, would seem to be true of a great number of famous men. Apparently, when Schubert offered his last C major Symphony to the Philharmonic Society, he told them that he had no intention of writing any more songs, and the G major Quartet would seem to indicate the line he intended to pursue. As one critic has written: "We appear to find here a new cerebral type of harmonic audacity in the moving voices which produces a stimulation found only in the last of Beethoven's sonatas and quartets." The strange thing is, that the composers who directly succeeded Schubert and Beethoven never seemed to have followed up the new world of sound which was indicated to them by these great masters. Weber, Wagner, Chopin, and their contemporaries seemed to have turned a blind eye to this rather self-denying asperity, and preferred to wallow in the lush pastures of romanticism. The possible exception was Berlioz, who was always a law unto himself anyway.

The tune of the Andante in Schubert's G major Quartet was said to have been taken from a Swedish folk song which had been set by Isaac Berg, who is known to have sung Swedish songs to the composer during his visit to Vienna

More Listening With Leggat

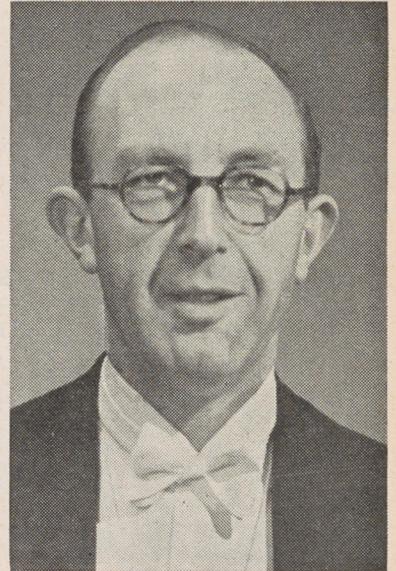

An old friend of CBW listeners returns to the air for a week this Monday.

He is Donald Leggat, former conductor of the Winnipeg Philharmonic Choir, the Winnipeg Male Voice Choir and the Winnipeg Boys' Choir, whose Listening With Leggat programs became essential listening three times a week for many prairie residents a few years ago.

Since returning to England in the fall of 1955, Mr. Leggat has been busy as a conductor, adjudicator, church musician, and radio commentator.

"I have been broadcasting regularly for the BBC on Music to Remember (rather similar to Listening With Leggat, except that a large number of us take turns at introducing the music, which is performed live), and on Music Masters, Let the People Sing, and the school broadcasts," writes Mr. Leggat in a letter to CBW program director Alfred Parr.

One of his most interesting achievements, he says, has been the founding of a new orchestra in 1957—the St. Bees Festival Orchestra. Mr. Leggat is conductor and artistic director of the festival; president is Sir John Barbirolli. The three-day festival, Mr. Leggat says, has become an "intimate part of the cultural life of the public school of which I am director of music."

Mr. Leggat is in Canada to adjudicate for the Canadian Federation of Music Festivals in Newfoundland and New Brunswick. He will be in Winnipeg from April 24-30. Listening With Leggat will be heard at 4:30 p.m. (on CBW only) April 25-29.

MATINEE HIGHLIGHTS

She Tells Tales To Tiny Tots. Mary Grannan's voice and the efforts of her pen have long been familiar to Canadian children. She is the creator of the famous "Maggie Muggins" and the author of many children's stories which have been published and which she has told on CBC radio programs for children. Miss Grannan retired from the CBC recently; she talks about her career with another popular performer, J. Frank Willis. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee 22/4/60).

Spanking. A group of St. John's residents discuss the proposition that spanking is a form of punishment that gives more therapy to the parent than discipline to the child. Participants are: Mrs. Grace Butt, librarian, housewife and mother; Mrs. Helena Frecker, member of the staff of the English department, Memorial University, and mother of eight; and Dr. John Williams, St. John's psychiatrist. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee 11/4/60).

POSTMARK U.K.

This week, Colin Wills takes Postmark listeners to Northern Ireland, otherwise known as Ulster. In Belfast, the capital, he sees the shipyards of Harland and Wolfe's, which have helped to make Ulster known the world over as a ship-building country. Outside the town he visits the Linen Research Institute, and hears how Ulster is keeping up with the times in the making of fine linen, Ulster's most famous products. In County Down, one of Ulster's six lovely counties, he learns from a folklore expert that some of the Irishman's belief in fairies may have a very down to earth explanation, and that the Celtic imagination draws on legends from lands as far apart as Scandinavia and the Middle East. MUSIC ON RADIO in 1827. There seems, however, to be a certain confusion as regards this story, because we feel that it must relate to the second movement of the Piano Trio in E flat, Opus 100, which undoubtedly has this origin. Altogether, this Quartet is one of the monuments of chamber music and will certainly never be "popular" with the music public at large.

This leads me once more to the subject about which I have written at some length in the last few weeks. What is "popular" music? What are "pop" concerts? The reader who informed me last week that the "pop" referred to the opening of the champagne bottles during the concert, has a point, but, on going further into this matter, I find that the most famous series of "pop" concerts of all time, were those held during the 1880's and '90's at the old St. James Hall in London, and I am quite certain that no champagne bottles ever popped off in those austere surroundings. You will remember that W. S. Gilbert refers to these concerts in the Mikado's song as the "classical Monday Pops" and I have been looking up some of the programs that were played during the series.

To my astonishment, the first I came across consisted of the Joachim String Quartet playing the Schubert G major Quartet, Opus 161, which I have just been discussing, and the Beethoven, Opus 130, with the fugal ending! If this ranks as a "pop" concert, then we shall obviously never arrive at a suitable definition. And the other programs were all of this nature, so this was apparently the kind of fare deemed "popular" in the later Victorian era. That is, of course, if "pop" is short for "popular."

At Home With Glenn Gould

A repeat broadcast of Vincent Tovell's illuminating interview with one of Canada's outstanding young musicians

THE first cousin of Glenn Gould's mother's grandfather was composer Edward Grieg, the only known professional musician among Gould's ancestral connections. William Lyon Mackenzie was also a distant relative, “which is perhaps where I get my interest in things avant garde,” says Gould. But that seems about as far as heredity can be stretched to explain the extraordinary phenomenon that is Glenn Gould.

Gould was perhaps three or four years old when he learned to read music, before he could read words, and his mother began teaching him the piano. He was six when he heard his first orchestral concert, and as he rode home late at night, drowsing on the back seat of the family car, he conjured up from his sleepy imagination “incredible orchestral sounds.”

It was not for several years that he knew, in a vague way, that he wanted to make a career out of music. At 12 he graduated from the Toronto, Royal Conservatory; at 14 he gave his first piano recital; at 15 he made his first appearance as soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

Today, at 28, Glenn Gould has a world-wide reputation as a pianist. Canadians will get another chance to appreciate the solid foundation of that reputation when he plays with the CBC Symphony on Friday. (See page 33 for details.) In addition listeners will get a fascinating insight into Glenn Gould, the man, on Project '60 on Tuesday. This is a repeat of the highly commended interview last November with Gould by Vincent Tovell.

Most publicity about Gould paints him as an eccentric genius. And certainly, the special but rather battered chair which he insists on carting with him wherever he plays, the gloves, the overcoat, the singing and the beating time with his spare hand—all this has caused much comment. Neville Cardus, for instance, music critic of the Guardian of Manchester, wrote that Gould would be an even better pianist “if he were to build up his strength so that he could sit up erect on the austere piano stool of common usage.”

Someone once asked Dr. Leslie Bell just what he should do at a Glenn Gould concert—listen to him or look at him. In his Toronto Star column, Dr. Bell suggested that the best way to appreciate Gould's mastery of the piano was to listen only to his records. Yet perhaps music lies in its performance, and perhaps watching is part of the enjoyment of that performance. Certainly, Gould can give reasonable explanation for each of his idiosyncrasies. However that may be, Gould's genius is hardly questioned.

In his interview, Tovell deliberately all but ignores the idiosyncrasies of Gould. But on several occasions Gould's lack of interest in publicity shows through. When talking of his relationship with Grieg he remarks that it would make a very good publicity stunt “but I don't happen to like Grieg's piano concerto.” It does not even occur to Gould to play the piano concerto, like it or not, for the sake of publicity.

Again, when commenting on the vociferous approval of Russian audiences—and they showed plenty when he toured there—he remarked

PROGRAM NOTES

UNIVERSITY OF THE AIR

"The Greek and Roman World." Fourth of a ten program series by Dr. W. G. Hardy, head of the department of classics at the University of Alberta. This week—"The World's First Democracy." The Athenians were the first people to establish a true political democracy. But this democracy was a direct or "town-meeting" type of government. This lecture will explain how such a form of government was able to run a state and an empire with a reasonable degree of efficiency. There will be a glance at the Athenian courts where "mass-juries" operated. Finally, there will be a brief analysis of Athenian democracy in terms of its lessons for us.

THE OLD SOAK

including archy and mehitablel, first turned up. Later he wrote the Lantern column in the Herald Tribune.

Once he remarked gloomily that "it would be one on me if I should be remembered longest for creating a cockroach character." Like A. A. Milne, who wished people would remember that he had written something besides Winnie the Pooh, Marquis rather resented the fact that archy and mehitablel's popularity left little room for his other characters to shine—although The Old Soak runs the cat and the cockroach a close race. It would please Marquis to know that critics feel his best work in some ways is an unfinished novel Sons of the Puritans, published after his death in 1937. It is a demolishing expose of a puritanical small town, but in this he wrote without his former caustic satire, and in earnest simplicity. Those who knew him well say that much of his own life was woven into it.

LATE CONCERT

Presents an opportunity to hear a representative work by Josef Bohuslav Foerster, considered by central Europeans to be the most honoured Czech composer since Dvorak.

Violin Concerto in C major,
op. 88Foerster

that of course it was very pleasant while you were in the middle of it but afterwards you wondered just how much it meant, artistically. "It's a sign of warmth (on the part of the Russians) but not necessarily of musical erudition."

The interview shows clearly that Gould prefers the recording studio to the concert hall. "I don't notice audiences. They are there only to listen . . . I hope to found a concert hall where all audience reaction, cheering or jeering, is verboten." He is patiently sincere when he insists that this is not an attitude of disdain towards audiences but a "healthy indifference."

The microphone worries him not at all. "For many years I only gave performances on the CBC, who were extremely good to me. I got used to the mike and thought of it as a friend."

Gould is still nervous at public recitals; in fact he is more nervous now than he was at his first recital when he was 14. "I was then blissfully unaware of the responsibilities" that playing music imposes on the performer. The responsibilities, of course, are to the music. Gould shows up as intensely serious when he talks of these responsibilities. His attitude is perhaps crystallized in a remark he makes about the musician he most admired when he was a teenager: Artur Schnabel. "Schnabel didn't seem to care much about the piano itself. For him it was just a means to an end and the end was Beethoven."

But Gould's seriousness of purpose does not exclude a delightful sense of humour. Gould, for instance, has an intense admiration for Anton Bruckner. But the Project '60 interview opens with Gould's hilarious explanation, delivered in a thick Austrian accent, and illustrated on the piano, as to why the romantic and stormy Bruckner does not like the bright and shining key of G major.

During the interview, Gould makes many interesting comments on his highly successful Russian tour. He met a number of Russian composers, mainly the less well-known ones, as the best-known figures seemed to be out of the country on a cultural mission. Gould felt that some of those he met were actually better craftsmen than many of the contemporary Russian composers well-known in the West. He heard rumours of young composers, meeting secretly at night and playing one another their compositions in the 12-tone idiom, but those composers he met kept solely within the traditional idiom.

Even in the playing of Bach he found Russian musicians about 40 years behind the West (and he performed Bach with a Russian orchestra). The Russians revere Bach so much, he says, that they are afraid of him. And certainly the Russians were delighted with Gould's playing of Bach. The Soviet Literary Gazette wrote of him: "Until now we knew comparatively little about the musical life and musical culture of Canada. . . . It is with great satisfaction we can now state that in the person of Mr. Gould we have met one of the most outstanding and original contemporary musicians . . . (playing) Bach in his immutable historical objectivity and sincerity and yet as if enriched with the subsequent two centuries of musical art. . . ."

Although Gould was conservative in his concert selections (by choice, and not by any Russian suggestions), he did give a lecture in Russia on music which concentrated mainly on the modern Viennese school of 12-tone composers. (Please turn to page 33)

Almost Nothing's "Beyond Our Ken"

When Beyond Our Ken first went on the air in July, 1958, it proved to be one of the wittiest and most diverting BBC comedy programs of the year.

It is as impossible to describe the exact ingredients of this hilarious mixture as it is to define exactly what makes people laugh, and scriptwriters Eric Merriman and Barry Took will go no further than saying it is "a sort of radio show which includes this and that with bits and pieces from here and there on one thing and another."

"Prime ingredient in its success is, of course, Kenneth Horne himself, well-known to listeners in Britain and overseas as one of the most polished artists in radio ever since he and Richard Murdoch established their long-running partnership in the BBC comedy series Much-Binding in the Marsh.

Beyond Our Ken was one of the first BBC programs Kenneth Horne undertook after recovering in 1958 from a sudden illness which made him decide to give up some of his heavy business commitments. For years he has successfully combined the role of radio and television comedian and master of ceremonies with important posts in British industry. One engagement he keeps with the BBC which combines something of both occupations is a broadcast in the Enterprise program, broadcast monthly in the BBC's "Calling East Africa" service, in which he presents, in a light-hearted, but well informed manner, news about inventions, industrial achievement and enterprise of all kinds as they particularly affect East Africa.

NOTHING BEYOND HIM
Kenneth Horne helps to pull Kenneth Williams aboard just before the balloon goes up on the BBC comedy program "Beyond Our Ken," heard Thursday nights on CBC. Assisting are Hugh Paddick, Ron Moody, Patricia Lancaster and Betty Marsden.

Oldest Musical Instrument." Victor Feldbrill, conductor of the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra and narrator for this series of five broadcasts points out that music probably began with man's early discovery that the human voice, accompanied by rhythms tapped out with the hands and feet, could be used to express the basic emotions of joy and sadness. As early man felt the need for further variety in his music he developed the song. The last part of the broadcast will deal with the introduction of primitive accompaniment to the voice by the addition of a flute to the melody line and drums to underline the rhythm. GLENN GOULD

Two professors walked out of the lecture, but the younger people showed considerable interest.

Gould seemed to find the young Russian people as most friendly. But he also found "troublesome" a tendency to respond to questions with automatic, stereotyped attitudes. On seeing a bust of Turgenev, Gould asked his interpreter—a pleasant young lady—what she thought of the writer. "We say he had the most beautiful lyric style of the 19th century," she replied. And of Dostoevsky, "Well of course he was a great man—but he was a pessimist."

Gould has much more to say to Tovell—

Of music in Canada: since the war the climate for Canadian musicians had changed greatly by the influx of European musicians. These newcomers were valuable not only for the individual influence, in teaching and composing, but also collectively, in showing Canadians the rich variety of contemporary idioms and traditions.

Of critics: "I often find things eminently worthwhile (in the writings of critics) more often than not of course peppered with nonsense." But critics serve a function that is "well-nigh irreplaceable."

Of composer Richard Strauss: musically "my great God of the twentieth century."

Of composing: "I don't compose at the piano. Ideas coming from the fingertips are too facile."

Of touring: "I don't enjoy it . . . come close to loathing it" and "I'm not a very good tourist."

Of his String Quartet: "It didn't completely come off as I didn't fully know what strings could do. . . . But on the whole I am extremely proud of it."

Of opera: he likes Mozart, Richard Strauss, but does not enjoy listening to Italian opera.

Throughout this interview, Gould constantly illustrates these and many other remarks on the piano. And on top of all this, he plays two Bach fugues and a version for piano of his own String Quartet. These form a magnificent musical bonus to a fascinating hour.

INTERNATIONAL SERVICE

justice, tolerance, and individual liberty shape the role she plays in international affairs. They also stand as an example for millions of people behind the Iron Curtain.

"Canada speaks not only in the tongues of the two great nations from which she sprang but, as well, in the languages of many other races.

"It is my sincere hope that listeners to the International Service will find Canada's voice one of continuing moderation and understanding, a means of working towards that goal for which Canadians all pray: an international order based on freedom and justice."

At the present time, broadcasts are sent by direct shortwave transmission in 16 languages — English, French, German, Dutch, Italian, Danish, Norwegian, Swedish, Czech, Slovak, Russian, Ukrainian, Polish, Hungarian, and in Spanish and Portuguese to Latin America. Recorded programs are sent to radio organizations in Austria, Finland and Greece. In a number of countries, as well, the local radio organizations rebroadcast material transmitted from Canada by short-wave.

The Policy Coordination Department of the CBC International Service is in constant consultation with the Policy Coordination Division of the Department of External Affairs. These consultations are essential in the matter of broadcasts to Eastern Europe. Other governmental departments, especially those with their main interest abroad, such as Immigration and Trade and Commerce, consult with, and are consulted by, the CBC International Service. In an indirect way, then, the shortwave broadcasts further the interest of Canada on the trade level, in matters of immigration, in matters that help to create the true image of Canada in other lands.

The CBC International Service also produces music and spoken-word transcriptions which are provided free of charge to radio organizations outside of Canada. Spoken-word transcriptions in English, French and Spanish include folklore, biographical material, narratives about historical events, plays and literary excerpts.

The music transcription service makes available to radio organizations in other countries the works of Canadian composers, arrangers, conductors and performers. To United States educational stations goes a weekly program called Over the Back Fence, excerpts from the press of Canada, particularly those dealing with Canada-United States relations.

The various language-service staffs are familiar with the type of listening audience to which they are broadcasting, and programs sent to Poland, for example, will differ from those sent to Western European countries. In all services, however, the basic news bulletin is virtually the same — coverage of the day's news, both international and Canadian. From time to time, language services have a period dealing with mail from listeners. The English-language service has a program called Announcer's Choice, which permits the producer to introduce many of the CBC International Service music transcriptions to audiences throughout the world.

The French-language service of the CBC International Service has a wide audience in France and in French-language areas in North Africa and other parts of the world. In this work, the French-language staff, in addition to originating many programs, utilizes to the full many of the best programs broadcast on the French network in Canada. In return for this, French-language listeners in Canada hear many of the programs produced by the French section of the International Service — programs which frequently hold as much interest for Canadians as for listeners in other lands.

Since the start of the CBC International Service, more than 400,000 letters, cards and reception reports have been received from listeners. These are answered in the language in which they are written. Questions deal with every conceivable topic. Listeners do not confine their queries to program matters. Therefore, CBC International Service supplements answers with printed information from provincial and federal bureaus and departments and from a host of other sources.

To keep its listeners posted, the International Service distributes a printed and illustrated Program Schedule to some 200,000 listeners seven times a year. This Schedule tells of the times and frequencies of the programs and also provides some information about program content. Each issue deals with some timely aspect of life in Canada. Many listeners in other countries also learn about Canada and the radio programs through articles and photographs in their own program schedules and in newspapers and magazines. This material is made available by the Language Services and the Information Services of the CBC International Service.

The International Service of the CBC is operated on behalf of the people of Canada and is financed through annual grants by Parliament. Headquarters and studios are located in the Radio-Canada building in Montreal. The Service's two 50-kilowatt transmitters are located in Sackville, New Brunswick.

Shortwave, transcriptions, tapes and discs are all part of the technical ingredients that go into this service. Even television has been employed to convey Canadian life to viewers abroad. Employing existing TV facilities, the International Service has filmed several interesting events for its contacts abroad. One of the most gratifying results was a recent cable from Moscow TV saying that a filmed concert by a prominent Russian artist in Montreal last fall had been shown twice over the TV facilities in Russia.

Strong Signal

• I thought you might like to know that we hear you down here in Oklahoma, about 65 miles from the Texas border. I was listening to CBW this morning while driving to work, and your signal was so strong it was blocking out local stations. I would like to thank you for playing one of my favourite tunes—The Blue Danube.—A/2C Larry G. Krefer, Elk City, Oklahoma.

Academy Awards

• I have just finished listening to the broadcast from Hollywood of the presentation of Academy Awards. It is strange that so many celebrated actors and actresses should become so fumbling and inept on such an occasion. One can appreciate the feelings of the winners of the awards, who might be expected to become inarticulate, but what of the other celebrities who were presumably well rehearsed in their job? Apart from the master of ceremonies, who was irrepressible, the performers tonight were chiefly remarkable for their stilted dullness. To make matters worse, the two commentators provided to clarify matters for listeners served only to confuse. Sometimes one could hear neither their comments nor the background dialogue. May we ask that in future the last few minutes of awards—best actress, actor, and film—be broadcast, and that the preceding froth be confined to television?—R. S. M., Edmonton.

National Music

• On St. Patrick's day and for several days before we hear scads of Irish music and see Irish dances. The English have their turn on St. George's Day, and the Scottish have two days—St. Andrew's and Burns'. Then comes Jan. 7 and we hear Ukrainian Christmas carols by the dozen. I'm not complaining; I love the music of every nation equally well. But when is French-Canadian Day? After all, we are a bilingual nation, and French-Canadian songs and dances are spirited and interesting and charming. Can CBC-TV do something to remedy the situation?—S. D. Dietz, Humbolt, Sask.

Cradle Song

• I must let you know how much we enjoyed Cradle Song on television last night. One film of the quality and beauty of this one is worth a hundred of those dreadful, monotonous westerns and neurotic psychological plays. We certainly have no complaints regarding the other programs on your channel, which we find interesting, informative, and entertaining.—Miss I. D., Winnipeg.

• I wish to extend to you my congratulations and thanks for the very wonderful film, Cradle Song. It was greatly appreciated, and it is on occasions like this that a man regains hope and confidence in the men who produce and direct plays. I hope the program selectors will carry on in the same spirit and give us more of these excellent plays.—A. T., St. Boniface.

Understanding

• CBC Times is a very fine guide to our TV and radio programs and artists, and offers other valuable information from time to time. I fully understand Grace Brown's problems (March 27-April 2 issue), myself having been in the movie show business since 1933.—A. F., Plunkett, Sask.

Children's Magazine

• I listen to Children's Magazine every Sunday morning. It's the best program I've ever heard. I hope you do not stop it for the summer. My whole family enjoys the program. In the summer we are usually out in the boat but we have a radio so we could still listen to it. Could Rod and Charles visit a human ear and explain how we hear. I am ten years old.—J. M., Vancouver, B.C.

J. M., whose letter is written in Braille, will be happy to know that "Children's Magazine" continues through the summer though Rod and Charles will be on holiday for three months. We have passed along the suggestion of explaining how we hear.—Ed.

No Shakespeare for Children

• As I am about my home duties taking care of my six children I always listen to the school broadcasts . . . I have enjoyed a lot of programs immensely and do thank you for them. But today as on other days when Shakespeare's programs are on I shudder at such horrible, vulgar reading material you are presenting to our easily influenced young people. Dear sirs, if you can't find better reading material for young people than Shakespeare, then for Heaven's sake don't give them anything. Such horrible, horrible, horrible stories. By the time our children have reached Shakespeare's school period, I hope his writings will all have been BURN'T.—(Mrs.) G., Englefield, Sask.

Groben Unfog!

• This letter comes somewhat late to you but I thought it might be of interest to you. As an interested reader of the series Music on Radio I noticed that in CBC Times, Vol. XIII, No. 10, Dr. Boyd Neel asked for readers' comments in regard to the practice of playing the 3rd Leonore Overture after the dungeon scene. If I am correct this practice must have been introduced around 1900. My father was a young man then and wrote to Felix Mottl asking him for his opinion on the subject. (My father objected to this practice for the same reasons as given by Dr. Boyd Neel.) Dr. Mottl's answer was explicit: He wrote that he considers the playing of the 3rd Leonore Overture after the dungeon scene "gross nonsense" ("groben unfog"). This letter is still in our family and I can vouch for the fact that "groben unfog" is underlined twice!—Margaret Kuntzemueller, Winnipeg, Man.

Every Victorian girl knew that a career was all very well, but you couldn't run your fingers through its hair.—Robert Wardle on University Talks.
