Successful Masquerade Starts Bob Cummings' Career

CHARLES CLARENCE Robert Orville Cummings, alias Bob Cummings, was preparing to be an aeronautical engineer before he decided to become an actor—and he's never regretted his decision.

Cummings is currently starring in a new series of The Bob Cummings Show, a comedy-adventure from there wrote job-hunting letters to New York producers.

Finally, he was engaged for a part in John Galsworthy's The Roof. He spent five years on Broadway, playing roles in Earl Carroll's Vanities, the Ziegfeld Follies and several dramatic productions. For a time he worked in radio as "straight man" for Milton Berle—still as a suave Englishman.

He was later engaged to sing and dance in a Schubert opera in St. Louis, not far from his home town, but, fearing his masquerade as a Britisher would be discovered, he joined a road company of the Ziegfeld Follies headed for Hollywood.

In 1935 he was signed to play opposite the late Margaret Sullavan in So Red the Rose, as a tall, handsome, native-born Texan. (His touch of Missouri accent and his physical makeup seem to have satisfied the role's requirements.

Since then, Cummings has been in more than 70 movies, some of which were Let's Live a Little, with Hedy Lamarr; Dial M for Murder with Grace Kelly; and the recent My Geisha, with Shirley MacLaine.

In the first series of The Bob Cummings Show, he played a Hollywood photographer with a roving eye for pretty girls. In his new series, Cummings still has a roving eye—but he also gets a chance to demonstrate his real-life skill as an airplane pilot.

Cummings is married to former screen actress Mary Elliott. They have two sons and three daughters: Robert Richard, 15; Mary Melinda Ruth, 13; Sharon Patricia, 9; Laural Ann, 6; and Anthony Bob, 4.

An enthusiastic do-it-yourself handyman, Cummings has a workshop in his studio dressing room for cabinet-making and repair projects. Significantly, he is the author of the book, How to Stay Young and Vital.

combination seen Mondays on the CBC-TV network. In it he plays Bob Carson, a modern soldier of fortune with a taste for easy living.

Cummings, born and educated in Joplin, Missouri, got his start on Broadway by posing as an Englishman, complete with British accent and London-made suit. He even gave himself the English-sounding name of Blade Stanhope Conway.

Following his decision to become an actor, Cummings attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York but stopped after six months, because of a lack of funds. He worked at nights—as a delicatessen clerk, an elevator operator, a switchboard operator and a taxi driver—haunting theatrical offices in the daytime.

Noticing that British actors seemed to have better luck than Americans in getting New York stage jobs, Cummings borrowed money, travelled to England, and

LARRY GLOVER

Larry Glover, 32-year-old radio and television specialist from Spalding, Sask., has joined the Outside Broadcasts department at CBC Winnipeg, as producer. Larry fills the gap left by the transfer of Dave Cruickshank to CBXT, the new CBC network television outlet in Edmonton.

Larry has a varied background which has seen him employed as a policeman, confectioner and office clerk . . . but always he has found his way back to the broadcasting industry. He was early bitten by the broadcasting "bug" when as a 12-year-old boy soprano his first performance gained him an honourable mention on an amateur hour broadcast.

His first announcing job came in 1949 at North Battleford. Later that year Larry married Adelaide Fiesel of Grey, Sask., and moved to CKCK Regina where he served until 1953 doing a variety of radio shows and filling the job of assistant production manager. With the advent of television in 1954 Larry was sent to study the new medium both in the U.S. and Canada and became operations manager of CKCK-TV. He comes to the CBC from CHAT-TV Medicine Hat where he served as operations manager.

FARMERS IN southern Manitoba and southeastern Saskatchewan can "attend" a week-long short course in many phases of farm operation this January—without leaving the comfort of their livingrooms.

The course, telecast by CBWT Winnipeg, CKX-TV Brandon and CKOS-TV Yorkton from 10:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon Monday, January 15 through Friday, January 19, is entitled "This Business of Farming." It will feature information on beef production, field crops, and farmstead planning. It is produced by the CBC in co-operation with the Manitoba Department of Agriculture and Conservation, and the University of Manitoba, with Vern McNair handling the Agriculture department's planning and Regional Farms Director Lionel Moore looking after the CBC's part.

Although the course is aimed at the farm population, city dwellers likely will find the programs will supply a basis for better understanding of current farm problems.

This will be the first extensive production of its kind in this area, and might chart the way for similar courses in the future.

CBC's FARMS DEPARTMENT and the Corporation have received an award from the National Safety Council, with headquarters at Chicago, for outstanding public service to farm safety during the National Farm Safety Week in July. A U.S. radio network, 28 radio stations and 11 TV stations in North America also received awards, it was announced.

TALENTED YOUNGSTERS in grades 7, 8 and 9, are invited to apply for an audition for the forthcoming CBWT talent series, Junior Hi-Lites. Auditions commence December 9, and applications must be in by December 2. Send them to:

Britain's

MODERN NEW

Look

An old stone church at Stevenage, 30 miles outside London—symbol of the past that is giving way to a fresh outlook in Great Britain today.

AN EXAMINATION of the social and industrial revolution which England is undergoing will be seen this Monday night on CBC television. Postscript to Empire, the third program in the series of hour-long documentaries produced for Intertel, focuses on two communities which typify the opposing forces at work in the move from traditionalism to modernism.

Produced by the National Educational Television and Radio Centre and Westinghouse Broadcasting Company, of the United States, Postscript to Empire shows the change, through film shot at the Isle of Dogs, a River Thames peninsula community in the heart of London, and Stevenage New Town, one of England's 15 post-war new satellite cities.

The Isle of Dogs is a community of stable population. Jobs, almost entirely dock and shipping work, are handed down from father to son. Residents, both comforted and imprisoned by historical tradition, have little hope or interest in changing their drab surroundings: The dock workers' unions and the tugboat owners lament England's diminishing shipping trade and argue for a modernization of harbour facilities, but for themselves the people ask and expect little in improved housing, higher education and material luxuries.

It's GREY CUP Time Again!

Saturday is Canada's day to really cut loose, as the great sports classic is played again.

THIS SATURDAY is Canadian football's once-a-year day; the day when a large segment of the country's population is divided into two groups—true football fans and those who don't know what football is all about but who enjoy the celebrations which surround the national championship game.

Until 1948, the Grey Cup game was of interest only to those who enjoyed football and the game was the one event that took place. There had been a flurry of excitement around Winnipeg in 1935 when the underdog Winnipeggs defeated Hamilton Tigers 18-12 at Hamilton to give the West its first Canadian championship but other than that there were no celebrations.

Then in 1949, Calgary Stampeders won the Western Interprovincial Football Union championship and the right to represent the West in the Grey Cup game at Toronto, November 27. The Stampeders and train-loads of fans from across the Prairies stormed into staid Toronto, changed the Grey Cup's impact on the national scene from a speck to a spectacle and gave the white Stetson industry something to cheer about.

In many respects the 1948 East-West final was overshadowed by the spontaneous chuck-wagon parade, led by Toronto mayor Hiram "Buck" McCallum on a white horse, the square dancing in the streets, and the 500 Calgary fans decked out in cowboy and cowgirl outfits, complete with 10-gallon hats, who served beef stew to the throng of Torontonians, from steaming pots on the chuck-wagons.

The annual festivities have gathered momentum ever since and the Grey Cup "day" has expanded into a three-day weekend.

The increase in interest in this annual spectacle is reflected in the broadcasting pattern of the games over the years. The first Grey Cup broadcast was a one-station affair in 1928. Gradually, the number of stations carrying the game increased, the total reaching 30 in 1936, 52 in 1949 and 77 in 1953. This year 62 commercial stations on the Trans-Canada network will carry a live English-language play-by-play broadcast of the game while another 23 stations will broadcast the game live in French. In addition to these, the CBC radio stations in northern Canada and Canadian troops overseas will be provided with play-by-play coverage.

The Grey Cup received another boost in 1952 when the game first was televised by one CBC station, CBLT, Toronto. In 1953 three CBC stations carried the live telecast and since then the number of television stations has increased. This year a total of 60 English and French-language stations on the CBC networks will have live coverage of not only the game itself but also the Grey Cup parade, which is to be held in downtown Toronto on Saturday morning.

It's interesting to look back to the days before radio to see how the results of the game were relayed to those interested in the outcome. In 1910, for instance (the second year of the Grey Cup contest) police reserves were called to handle crowds waiting outside Toronto newspaper offices for the latest scores of the Toronto Varsity-Hamilton Tiger game at Hamilton, won by Toronto 16-7. In 1915, the final, between Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Rowing and Athletic Association, was played at Toronto's Varsity Stadium. One newspaper dramatized its coverage of that game, won by Hamilton 13-7, by releasing homing pigeons to carry the half-time score 40 miles to Hamilton. Jack Sullivan, in his book

The Grey Cup Story, says that one sports writer duly reported at half-time, when Tigers trailed 4-1, that "the pigeons circled around the stadium for 15 minutes. They appeared dazed and loathe to take the 4-1 adverse score home."

Newspaper coverage during the two days prior to the game get out their biggest type to blare out in headlines that the festivities have begun. "THE WEST IS HERE," "WELCOME," "THE FUN HAS BEGUN," are the type of headlines which appear in the papers of the host city. The usual format for most papers across the country for final editions of the day of the game is one-word headlines with the name of the winning team.

When the first trainload of Western supporters roll into Toronto, where this year's game is being played, it's the signal for downtown hotels to clear their lobbies of anything that can't be nailed down and make way for the mass of yelling, snake-dancing people who weave their way through the corridors and lobbies.

IT'S GREY CUP TIME AGAIN!

It has been estimated by the Junior Board of Trade Grey Cup Committee in Toronto that from 40,000 to 50,000 visitors will invade the city for this year's shenanigans. They will spend an average of $100 each on food, liquor, transport, accommodation and entertainment. Up to $5,000,000 in extra business is expected, with hotels, restaurants, bars and taxi companies doing at least 48 hours of booming business as the city goes slightly tipsy.

The celebrations for those in the Toronto area begin anywhere between Thursday night and Friday night. For the rest of the country, CBC television offers all the activity which goes on Saturday.

First, the Grey Cup parade, with some 25 floats from all sections of the country, 15 or 20 bands and the nine Miss Grey Cup contestants, including Miss Grey Cup herself, will be telecast from midtown Toronto on the entire CBC television network. Commentators for the 90-minute program will be Byng Whitteker and Bill Herbert.

Prior to the game, a 30-minute pre-game program of interviews, forecasts and analyses of the Grey Cup celebrations and game will be seen on the network.

The coverage of the game itself begins with 30 minutes of colour commentary and interviews from the site of this year's national final, the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium. Steve Douglas of Toronto and Don Wittman of Winnipeg will be the play-by-play commentators. Doug Maxwell will provide colour commentary and statistics. During the

New on 6

The magic makers come up for another study on a new series commencing this week end on CBWFT. Titled "Illusions," the program will be seen Saturday December 2nd from 8:30 to 8:45 and every Saturday following. Readers will please note several time changes due to this new arrival: Long Métrage at 8:45; Club des Autographes at 10:15 and Long Métrage at 10:45.

For Friday of this week and every week hereafter: a new detective serial titled Inspecteur Blaise. The series, produced in France, stars Jacques Duby. It will be seen between the Cinéma International (at 9:00) and Cinéma (now at 11:00).

Feature Movie

What happens when an Embassy resorts to foul play in order to further the work of its country's spies is skillfully and dramatically portrayed, Sunday December 3 at 3:30 in a movie titled "Le Rideau de Fer" (The Iron Curtain.) This U.S. espionage drama stars Dana Andrews and Gene Tierney. It is based on authentic material developed at the inquiry into Soviet espionage at the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. The dispatcher of the Embassy reveals to the RCMP certain details that lead to the arrest of leading spies working under cover of diplomatic immunity.

Music-Hall

Charles Aznavour, who is one of the leading figures in the new world of song in France, will be guest on Music-Hall, Sunday, December 3 for an hour-long solo recital. It is Aznavour's captivating rhythm that has propelled him to fame. Recently acclaimed in a number of night-club performances in Montreal and Quebec City, the Armenian songster likes to think of Canada as "his" country, and of Montreal as "his" town . . . since he knew his first real successes there.

Drama

Two excellent dramatic productions are featured again this week on CBWFT. Sunday evening, December 3 to 9:30 (following Music-Hall), Guy Provost, Françoise Faucher and Janine Fluet star in a love drama

Different as DAY and NIGHT

ALFRED K. KNOPF AND VICTOR GOLLANCZ are as extraordinary as any two publishers in the English-speaking world. Sunday afternoon, CBC radio's Project '62 finds out why, in a program titled The Right and the Left.

Recently, well-known broadcaster John David Hamilton went to New York to talk to Knopf and to London to talk to Gollancz. His two interviews provide fascinating glimpses of men at the top with strikingly individual ideas, and the means and initiative to make them realities. Knopf (who insists on having each letter in his name pronounced) and Gollancz have some interesting parallels in their lives, but otherwise they are as different as could be.

Both are around 70, stocky, proudly Jewish types with a deep self-confidence; strong, aggressive, vigorous in the best traditions of publishing, but very human men as well. "Gollancz," says Hamilton, "doesn't give a darn about his appearance, wears worn tweeds in the British way, with a heavy ribbed sweater. Knopf is a sensational dresser. He might wear tweeds, but they would be louder and newer than Gollancz', and always exquisitely cut."

Alfred Knopf, Hamilton says, is a strong conservative, but he isn't interested in politics. His father was a reasonably well-to-do New Yorker, a standard middle-class Jew, who sent his son to Columbia. Afterwards Alfred went into a publishing firm to learn the business. Because of the American parochial attitude to books, he saw there was a big need for large-scale publishing of translations of European books, and he set out to introduce foreign authors to the U.S.A. He first brought Thomas Mann into American publication, and Mann, a Nobel Prize-winner, became his great showpiece. Knopf also introduced Sigrid Undset to North Americans. Willa Cather is another of his well-known authors, and Hamilton says Knopf has an almost reverential attitude to her talents. He has had seven Nobel Prize winners in his literary stable.

Since 1916 Knopf has published the beautifully made Borzoi Books. He insists that books with real intellectual status and creative beauty should be put in a form which precisely expresses these qualities. So he creates a physically lovely body for his texts, hires the best book designers from all over the world, uses expensive paper and concentrates purely on the book itself, with what Hamilton terms a sort of ivory tower attitude. It is usually his wife and partner, (Please turn to page 25)

SPORTS

TO BEGIN WITH, I wish to inform our Times readers that I am not in my right mind for even attempting this sterling piece of literary genius. The reason being that as I sit here going over the events that are to take place this week in the world of sport, I don't know for sure who the combatants will be in the biggest, most outstanding sports spectacle on the Canadian calendar. I refer, of course, to the 1961 Grey Cup Final, which will be held in Toronto's spacious CNE Stadium, on Saturday, Dec. 2.

However, having overcome my innate shyness, after long hours of brainwashing, I am going to take the plunge. I predict, or should I say suggest, that the Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats will take the field to do battle in this year's Grey Cup classic. A prediction like this could result in my losing face, not to mention friends, in Calgary and Toronto. The fact remains, however, that on the season's play, both of these teams have shown the consistency of performance displayed by all champions. The Toronto Argonauts are the best bet to make me turn in my prognosticator's badge since they on occasion can come up with an awesome attack, capable of scoring bushels of points. Be that as it may, I'll stick with Winnipeg and Hamilton to again belt each other about the gridiron for the fourth time in five years. The Winniegs will nose out the Hamiltons of "Jungle Jim" Trimble by about one touchdown. (Later in this "gem" which will probably set sports writing back 20 years, my colleagues in Edmonton and Winnipeg will get their chance to walk the plank, as a result of their predictions.)

In other weekend action, the Toronto Maple Leafs will host the (Please turn to page 23)

LATE CONCERT

Recorded Louisville Commissioned works, from the current series:

1. To the Chief Musician, Metamorphoses for Orchestra by Israeli composer Paul Ben-Haim.

This work, says the composer, is based on a single theme, which is then varied and transformed in much the same way the Psalms treat a basic idea in poetic variation. The 49th Psalm was chosen as the model.

2. Variation for Violin and Orchestra, op. 71, by the American composer Wallingford Riegger. Sidney Harth, violinist, with orchestra. Consisting of a theme, 12 variations plus a cadenza, this work is dodeca-phononic or 12-tone in its technique, even though certain of the variations have a way of deviating from a too strict application of it.

3. Cuatro Madrigales Amatorlos—by Spanish composer Joaquin Roderigo. Audrey Nossaman, soprano with orchestra. With What Shall I Wash Myself? You have killed me, you bare-headed child! From whence do you come, Love? From the poplars, Mother, I come.

Four Spanish "Coplas" from Andalusia as originally improvised by woman at work are orchestrated with sophisticated skill while the vocal line retains the simple quality of the words.

Prepared by Ben Horch.

Chicago Blackhawks for the CBC Saturday night telecast. Two other games are scheduled with Detroit at Montreal and the New York Rangers at Boston. At the moment (Nov. 17) the Montreal Canadiens are leading the league with a one-point bulge over Toronto, while the Rangers trail the Leafs by one, with Chicago and Detroit tied and Boston in the cellar, two points behind the Hawks and Wings. Finally, Montreal appears to be missing the presence of Jean Beliveau, after they got off to a good start, while the rookie-studded Boston Bruins are making a determined bid for the upper reaches of the standings.

The National Football League has one of the closest races in years going and there will be the usual Sunday afternoon telecast on Dec. 3. The teams slated to oppose each other this Sunday are the Detroit Lions and Chicago Bears, with the game to be played at Chicago. However, this game could be changed if a more important one comes up. I am thinking of the game between the New York Giants and Green Bay Packers, to be played at Milwaukee. As this is being penned, the Giants are tied with the Philadelphia Eagles for leadership in the Eastern division, while the Packers are leading the Western division. It's conceivable the Packers could clinch their divisional title with a win in this game, while the Giants could be eliminated.

That completes an exciting week-end of sport for CBC television. Now I shall bow out, allowing Messrs. Afaganis, Bjarnason, Moir and Wittman also to hang themselves with their Grey Cup predictions.

BOB MOIR—First, because of our early press day, I'll have to assume, on a basis of play throughout the season, that Winnipeg will be the western representatives in the game. No matter which team the Blue Bombers meet in the Grey Cup final, they'll be the winners, but Winnipeg would have a tougher time against the Toronto

Argonauts than they would against Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Toronto's high-powered pass attack could give Winnipeg's deep defenders a problem. And, don't forget, Winnipeg has never beaten Toronto in a Grey Cup game.

DON WITTMAN—Each year at this time we wipe the dust from our foggy old crystal ball, and attempt to forecast just what will transpire when east meets west in the annual battle for Earl Grey's battered hunk of silverware. So prepare yourself for Wittman's wise words of wisdom. The Winnipeg Blue Bombers will sip champagne at the expense of the Toronto Argonauts. The score? Winnipeg 24, Toronto 14. But one word of caution. Don't wager the old home-stand on our prognostication.

GLENN BJARNASON—Toronto Argos will win the Grey Cup in 1961. They will beat the Winnipeg Blue Bombers on Dec. 2 simply because a good passer can throw against Winnipeg and there is little doubt that Tobin Rote is a good passer.

I have assumed that Winnipeg has already captured the western title, although at the time of this writing neither the Eastern or the Western finals are complete. At about 4:30 pm EST, on Dec. 2, Toronto Argos will have won their first Grey Cup since 1951.

ERNIE AFAGANIS—This Grey Cup game could be one of the real thrillers of the past 15 years. It will be a battle of two teams quite different in makeup—Toronto, a hot and cold team depending on the arm of Tobin Rote, and the Winnipeg team, who are solid throughout. The Bombers are a well balanced team who are not spectacular, but potent nevertheless. I'm betting that Rote won't be allowed to get too hot, and that Winnipeg will win by 10 points.

Blanche, who goes out and collars the authors for his firm. Strangely, his best-seller for years has been an odd book by a Persian mystic. He concentrates on more high-brow literary people than does Gollancz, who publishes mystery writers among others. During his great hey-day in the 1920's and '30's, Knopf was the friend of many great literary figures, went around with the glittering Algonquin set in New York.

His New York office, where Hamilton interviewed him, is like a Hollywood set. Hamilton says it contains every conceivable luxury, with expensive leather chairs, gorgeously jacketed books around the walls, and lavishly framed photos of celebrities (such as Katharine Cornell) with affectionate messages penned on them. An extraordinarily flamboyant person, Knopf admits that he loves the good things of life. He's a famous wine-taster, and enjoys the best in clothes, music, ballet, theatre.

Victor Gollancz' office, on the other hand, is in a rabbit-warren of a building in London's Covent Garden market. Hamilton had to pick his way between vegetable trucks and arguing costers to reach it. On the musty street floor he was passed along by a few precise old clerical workers with parchment-like skins, then climbed five or six little flights of stairs and there he was.

"Gollancz' office," he says, "is very basic, almost threadbare, with just a few books on the walls, interspersed with crayon drawings and water colours by his wife, and with postcards, Christmas cards and newspaper clippings tacked up here and there. It was hard to find a chair to sit on with more than three legs.

Gollancz comes from a slightly lower Jewish middle-class family than Knopf, but a family whose members were all completely familiar with the great composers' works, and, as with Knopf, music has been Gollancz' life-long interest.

Gollancz went to Oxford and graduated about the same time as Knopf did from Columbia, taught at Recton, a well-known English school, for a year or two, and then, after the First World War, went into the publishing field. Unlike Knopf, he believes in publishing good books at popular prices, to enable more people to buy and enjoy them. His big achievement in the thirties was the Left Book Club, which was left-wing but not communist. Hamilton says "Gollancz has the reputation of being an extreme left-winger, but he has a sort of Christian-socialist philosophy, and I don't think he's a communist."

In spite of his strong feelings about Hitler and Nazism, Gollancz' first activity after the Second World War was organizing a relief campaign to send food parcels to Germany. He is not a practising Jew, though he clings to some of the basic Jewish traditions; but he won't call himself a Christian. His food parcel campaign touched a soft chord in the British public, but at first encountered stiff government opposition. Eventually John Strachey, food minister in the Labour Government, called Gollancz into his office and said: "Victor, you've got us over a barrel." And within a six-month period after that 750,000 parcels were sent to Germany.

"Recently," says Hamilton, "Gollancz created an uproar in world Jewery with his book The Case of Adolph Eichmann. The best thing the Jews could do," he says in it, speaking as a Jew, "is to set Eichmann free." He believes Eichmann should be locked in a monastery or put to work in a kibbutz.

"Gollancz has other liberal views," says Hamilton. "He believes there should be more sex freedom, but always within the limits of Christian principles. He believes in the emotional and spiritual fidelity of husband and wife, but not necessarily a physical one. In his autobiography, A Letter to Timothy, and its sequel, both in the form of a letter to his grandson, he is so frank and revealing that it is almost embarrassing—confesses many things about his emotional relationship with his artist wife, for instance."

IT'S GREY CUP TIME AGAIN!

intermission at half-time, videotaped highlights of the first half of the game and the entertainment from the field will be telecast.

George Retzlaff, producer of the Grey Cup telecast every year since it went on the network in 1953, has one of the most enviable locations for watching the game and yet he can't enjoy it.

"It's a case that I can't let myself enjoy the game," says Retzlaff, who is on duty in the CBC mobile unit outside the stadium. Among his many concerns is to decide which "shot" from the five monitors (one for each camera used in the coverage) will go on the network.

"If I stopped to watch a play or let myself get carried away by some catch or run, I'd miss something else," says Retzlaff. Anticipation of what is going to happen is one of the assets in this job and, so far, the telecasts of Grey Cup games haven't missed anything important.

"The only trouble we ever got into was in the 1954 game at Toronto's Varsity Stadium when Edmonton Eskimos defeated Montreal Alouettes 26-25 on the play in the last minutes of the game when Eskimos' Jackie Parker picked up a Montreal fumbled ball (by Chuck Hunsinger) on the Edmonton 25-yard line and scampered 85 yards for the game-winning touchdown. It took us the whole first quarter of that game to get used to the ball-handling of Edmonton quarterback Bernie Faloney, who faked everyone in the park, game officials and us included, right out of our socks."

CBC radio will begin its coverage of the game with a 45-minute pre-game broadcast of interviews and recapping of the highlights of the festival to that point. Fred Sgambati, one of the very few former game officials or players who are broadcasting football in Canada, will be the play-by-play commentator. Sgambati was an official in the eastern Big Four Football Union in 1948 and then refereed in the Senior Intercollegiate Union for eight years before turning to sports broadcasting.

Norm Marshall of Hamilton will provide the colour highlights during the game.

When CBC Times went to press, everyone knew that there would be a series of celebrations forthcoming, including the Grey Cup dinner and dance and the crowning of Miss Grey Cup, Friday night, a parade Saturday and, of course, the game. But what wasn't known at the time, was which two teams would be in that game. It was either Winnipeg Blue Bombers or Calgary Stampeders from the West and Hamilton Tiger-Cats or Toronto Argonauts from the East.

EAST WIND—RAIN

A 90-minute documentary of the attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese Imperial Airforce on December 7, 1941.

Rather than a political commentary, the program tells the story of the personal lives of men and women deeply affected by the attack—such men as Takeo Yoshikawa, Japanese espionage agent at Pearl Harbor, whose coded weather report "East wind—rain" meant the Japanese had attacked.

Included on the program are recordings at the time of the bombing with voices from both sides, recordings that have never been broadcast before.

This is a Vancouver production written and produced by Doug Collins and Jim Henderson.

BRITAIN'S MODERN NEW LOOK

is a modern, rapidly-created industrial city, applauded by some Britons and denounced by others. Its adherents hail a new classless society, streamlined shops and office buildings and the sharp break with the past.

A bewildering new world is seen through the eyes of Dennis and Angie French, an average young British couple who recently moved from the Isle of Dogs to Stevenage. It is a world of material goods heretofore unavailable to the working man, tree-lined streets and people of mixed backgrounds. Only the teenage coffee bars and dance parties bear a resemblance to the Isle of Dogs.

Postscript to Empire also examines the "eleven-plus," England's national school examination which many feel is depressing the educational standards of the nation and encouraging continued class stratification. Against a background of pageantry, slums and agriculture, dozens of British subjects talk candidly about the evolution in progress, including Mrs. Woodward Fisher, who, with her husband, has lived all her life in the Isle of Dogs.

Joseph Julian is the narrator, with introductory and concluding commentary by Rod MacLeish, chief of WBC's European news bureau. Michael Alexander directed. Michael Sklar produced and wrote the program.

FRENCH TV HIGHLIGHTS

titled "Une nuit" and presented in the series Théâtre du dimanche.

The main characters of the play are a lawyer, his wife, and a young widow, the husband's former girl friend who is coming back to her home town.

Quite naturally, the wife resents the return of the widow, to whom her husband seems to pay too much attention. But the wife's jealousy finally takes the lead, and when she openly accuses her husband of infidelity, the drama explodes in all its fury. It is during a lonely, terribly long night that the climax is reached, with the couple forced to take refuge in an abandoned house.

"Une nuit" (A Certain Night) is produced for the CBC by Louis Bédard.

Thursday December 7 at 9:00 p.m., another top dramatic production by Jean Anhouil: "Colombe," will be shown. Although it also involves a certain amount of cynicism and is no doubt a love drama, it is nevertheless quite different from the first, in both style and setting. In fact, the atmosphere is quite jolly throughout.

"Colombe" is the name of a woman, wife of Julien and mother of his son. When Julien suddenly announces that he has to leave for his military service, Colombe and the child take up residence with her aunt, Madame Alexandra. We are in an epoch of theatrical celebrities: Sarah Bernhardt, Réjane, la Duse. Madame Alexandra is herself a great lady of the theatre, the one to whom everyone bows and for whom throngs of fans have unlimited admiration.

Thrown head-first into this world of the artificial, the demure Colombe soon finds a certain cheap thrill in the adulation of the crowds. She becomes a vain, pretentious, egotistic liar and loses all self-respect, including a certain "puppy" love she had for her husband.

Hubert Loiselle plays the loyal, steadfast Julien; Colombe is portrayed by Nathalie Naubert and Madame Alexandra by Janine Sutto.

Quite original in itself is the staging design, by Aras, of white on black background. Costumes are by Solange Legendre, production is by Paul Blouin.

He Got There First

• Referring to French TV highlights in the Nov. 5-11 issue of the CBC Times, you state Montreal was founded in 1642 by Cartier. (This is) false. Maisonneuve is the founder of Montreal.—Mrs. B.A., St. Boniface, Man.

Encyclopedia Canadiana states: "The first European to visit the site of the city was Cartier, on his second voyage, in 1535-36. He found the village of Hochelaga, where he was welcomed by more than 1,000 Indians. . . . The mountain, on the slope of which the village was located, he named Mount Royal, from which the name of the city is derived. . . . On May 18, 1642, Paul de Chomey, Sieur de Maisonneuve, arrived to lay the foundations of a permanent settlement by building dwellings, chapel, hospital, etc. . . . The settlement was named Ville Marie de Montréal.

On Keeping the Sabbath

• The viewer who is complaining about the monopolizing of TV for football (Mailbag, Nov. 12-18) is so right. I doubt very much if we can do anything but complain for they do not show any inclination to keep our Sabbath with observance. Radio is the same. . . . We are flat tires when we don't get along with the Flintstones or football.—Mrs. S.A., Medicine Hat.

CBC Television marks the Sabbath with the inspirational dramatic series Good Life Theatre, and this viewer's local station also carries Faith for Today and This is the Life, for a total of 90 minutes of religious programming each Sunday.

Religious programming Sundays on CBC Radio includes Sunday School of the Air, World Church News, the morning Church Service (on CBW and CBK), Religious Period and Sunday Chorale—up to 164 minutes of such programs.
