More Time for Peggy

• Our family very much favor the Peggy Neville Show (Wednesdays, CBC-TV). We wish you would extend her time to 30 minutes.

—C.M.K., Ottawa

Music Lover Writes

• Here is one music lover who doesn't agree with V.B., Saskatoon (MAILBAG, February 12th-18th) with respect to Concerts from Two Worlds (CBC radio) and the programming of new and lesser-known works on this program. I enjoyed last Sunday's program (February 6th) very much—Papineau, Couture, Beckwith and Brott—and look forward to hearing tonight's program—especially Brott's Centennial Colloquy.

—S.T., Edmonton

FM Programming

• Permit me to say how much my wife and I appreciate and enjoy The World of Music (daily on CBW-FM). In our view it is everything that such a program should be. This includes the announcer, Gren Marsh, whose comments are so informative and helpful to the listener.

—H.R.T., Winnipeg

A Suggestion

• I appreciate the Festival series (CBC-TV, Wednesdays) very much indeed and only wish more people could derive as much satisfaction from any one TV program. The latter is what prompted this letter and the suggestion which follows.

Could not the producer, his assistant, or one of the CBC actors give a short introduction to each play? Not everyone is interested to subscribe to CBC TIMES, and while I think that that is a great pity, I can understand that with today's TV- and radio-oriented audience, the spoken word or the personality has a much greater appeal and impact than anything in print.

Tonight's performance of Albert Camus' The Just (January 26th) was a good illustration of the point I am trying to make. The author's background in Algeria, as an ex-Communist, and as a member of the French underground during the Second World War gave the play so much more significance and sincerity and this I felt would be lost to so many people who cannot know who Albert Camus was.

I hope you will consider this as a constructive suggestion. It is one that I feel could be rewarding to all concerned. . . .

—J.B.G., Okotoks, Alta.

Country Rinks Forgotten

• Having tuned in to CBW for curling results of the Manitoba Bonspiel in hope I might pick up some news of interest to us poor dolts who live outside Winnipeg, I ended up with nothing but disgust for your coverage, if you dare call it coverage.

Monday, with all curlers busy, only the few name rinks, those who have made news at some time in the past, are worthy to be mentioned.

Tuesday, today, more of the same. It must take a bit of sorting and sifting of results to come up with, with few exceptions, all city or metro rinks. Country rinks are also in there, helping in their poor anonymous way to make your bonspiel. And you wonder why there are not more rural curlers in your spiel this year. . . .

—J.H.M., Hartney, Man.

• Your program at 7-7:30 p.m. (The View from Here, CBWT) weekdays is almost the best on television. It is interesting, lively and very informative. We just love being informed this way and while I am at it Bill Guest and your Reach for the Top (CBC-TV, Mondays) is excellent too. Keep up the good work and keep the View from Here coming, we love it.

—Mrs. J.P.R., Steinbach, Man.

Meets a Great Need

• I wish to tell you how much we appreciate your Sunday School of the Air each Sunday morning on CBC radio. It is a wonderful program and I feel that it meets a great need in Canada today, especially in rural areas where winter time travel is difficult and also where there are no Sunday schools located.

To me it has a much different advantage in that I listen and use the program as a basis for my own lesson to teach to a class of boys and girls here in Moose Jaw. . . .

—E.B.W., Moose Jaw, Sask.

CBC TIMES

AROUND CBC . . .

A CBC-TV production seen last December has been named the world's outstanding television documentary of 1965. Long Island University selected The Mills of the Gods, about the war in Viet Nam, for the George Polk Memorial Award.

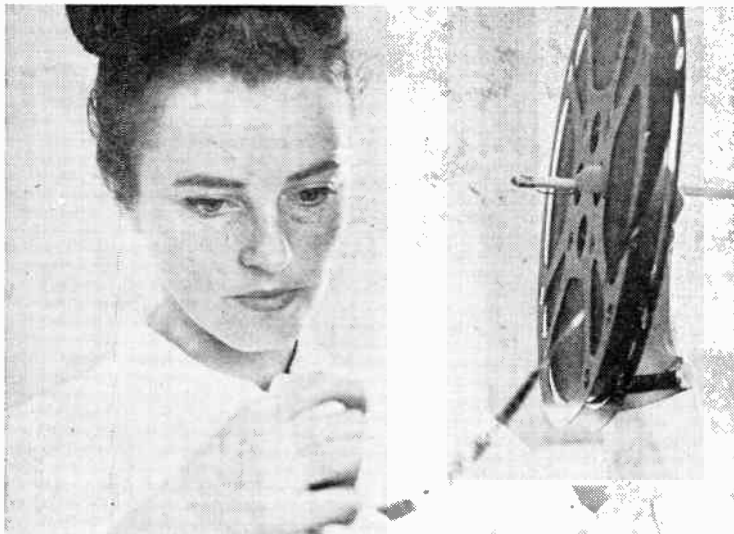

The program, produced and directed by Beryl Fox, was praised by the judges as being "a sensitively expressed, grim record of a people struggling to exist in a context of total war." It was in competition with television documentaries from throughout the world and all networks in the U.S.A. This is the first time in its 18 years that the award has been won by a Canadian producer.

Miss Fox went to Viet Nam last September to put together a short report on the war for CBC-TV's This Hour Has Seven Days. Instead of staying a few days as she originally intended, she stayed a month—trudging the jungle patrols with U.S. marines, riding gun boats as they traded fire with shoreline snipers, and flying with bomber crews over guerrilla strongholds.

The resulting hour-long documentary was seen on CBC-TV's Document series, and last month was telecast in Britain by the BBC. It is also being considered for telecast by U.S., Australian and West German networks.

Last year Miss Fox won five international awards for her half-hour documentary, Summer in Mississippi, about the disappearance and murder of three young civil rights workers.

The George Polk award will be presented to Miss Fox at a luncheon in New York on March 29th.

BERYL FOX — "a sensitively expressed, grim record . . ."

A WORK described as the first opera in musical history will be performed Thursday at 3:30 p.m. on radio's Prairie Concert. Le jeu de Robin et de Marion was composed by Adam de La Halle (c. 1240-1286) a French trouvère, for the French court at Naples, and first performed about 1275. Although ten personages appear in the work, this performance, by the University of Manitoba Consort of Ancient Instruments, uses only two singers—soprano Phyllis Thomson and tenor Victor Martens—and a narrator — Christine Mathier. Miss Mather also plays the recorder, lute and crumhorn. Other instrumentalists are: Peggie Sampson, treble viol; Harold Vogt, rebec and viol; Paul Palmer, recorders and crumhorn, and Joyce Redekop Penner, portative organ. Tom Taylor is the producer.

SOLO VIOLINIST with the Alexandria (Egypt) Symphony Orchestra when seven years old; highest distinction in the Vienna International Competition; highest marks in the entrance examinations to the Paris Conservatoire when just 13 years of age; violin prize and chamber music medal of the Paris Conservatoire; first performances of works by Jacques Ibert, Francis Poulenc and Vittorio Rietti; recital tours in the Middle East and Brazil: these are just some of the remarkable accomplishments of André Guetta, recitalist on Prairie Concert, Tuesday, March 22nd at 3:30 p.m. on radio.

Mr. Guetta, now first violinist in the National Radio Orchestra, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, was one of the principal founders of the Alexandria Conservatory of Music during the post-war years. He was also leader of the symphony orchestra of that conservatory, and played in many musical ensembles. He left Egypt in 1956 because of political upheavals, and joined the Colonne Orchestra in Paris. He also became leader of the Schola Cantorum orchestra and a member of the examining board.

While on a recital tour in Brazil, he became attracted to the country and later moved there, taking out his citizenship last year. His performance for CBC radio was recorded by producer Wm. Liska while Mr. Guetta was in Saskatoon for an appearance as guest artist with the Saskatoon Symphony Orchestra.

Duke of Edinburgh Visits in Ontario

An address by Prince Philip to the Variety Clubs International is carried Monday night, March 21st, by CBC radio and television.

FOLLOWING THE recent Royal Tour of Commonwealth territories in the Caribbean, the Duke of Edinburgh embarked on yet another tour—this time to North America. His Royal Highness is currently visiting this continent at the invitation of Variety Clubs International, of which he is an honorary life member.

Sunday, March 20th, Prince Philip arrives at RCAF Trenton and will spend the day privately with former Governor-General Massey. On Monday he will visit Toronto to meet civic dignitaries and tour the city hall, after which he drives to Scarborough to meet staff members and students at Variety Village, a vocational school for handicapped boys.

In the evening of March 21st His Royal Highness will be guest of honor at a dinner sponsored by the Toronto chapter of Variety Clubs International, to be held at the Royal York Hotel. His address at this dinner will be carried on CBC radio at 10:30 p.m. and on television at 11:35 p.m.

Prince Philip flies to Ottawa the next day to meet Governor-General Vanier and members of the council of the Duke of Edinburgh's Award in Canada. His Royal Highness will present gold medals—the first to be given by the three-year-old Canadian branch of the Award—to 18 young Canadians.

Portrait of a Clergyman:

HERITAGE looks at the busy life of a senior member of the Lutheran clergy, Sunday, March 20th at 3:30 p.m. on CBC-TV

Rev. G. A. Heimann of Winnipeg

On CBC-TV's Heritage this week viewers will meet a man who, at the age of 72, continues to lead a very active life in the service of the Lutheran Church in Winnipeg. Although officially retired, the Rev. G. A. Heimann often substitutes in the pulpit at various congregations and serves as chaplain for a number of Winnipeg hospitals. Recently, in one year alone, he made 2,294 visits in the course of 360 trips to various institutions.

Mr. Heimann came to Canada from Warsaw over half a century ago and was ordained in Edmonton. In the '20s he took charge of four congregations in the Emerson, Man., area and was also Secretary of the Synod. At the same time, working closely with the railway companies as a representative of the Lutheran Immigration Board, he assisted hundreds of Lutheran immigrants from Europe to find jobs and homes. He later became manager of the Canadian Lutheran Immigration Aid Society and in 1946 was co-founder of the Canadian Lutheran World Relief organization. All told, about 15,000 immigrants have been helped by Mr. Heimann to settle in this country.

When a cyclone completely destroyed the place of worship of one of his congregations, the Church of Friedenstahl in Emerson, he helped build a new church with his own hands.

He moved to Winnipeg after the war and carried on the social ministry as City Missionary. Mr. Heimann was Pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Winnipeg for 14 years.

This edition of Heritage, one in the series called Portrait of a Clergyman, is produced in Winnipeg by Rudy Gijzen.

FESTIVAL:

THE MAGIC FLUTE

An international cast appear in Mozart's
last opera, Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on

From left, John Reardon as Papageno; George Shirley as Tamino and Gaeilyne Gabora as First Lady.

Garnet Brooks as Monostatos, and Mary Ellen Pracht as Pamina.

NOTHING DEMONSTRATES the tremendous scope of Mozart's genius more dramatically than his opera, The Magic Flute, written shortly before his death. It moves lavishly from the sublime to the ridiculous, from amorous moments to despicable villainy, from burlesque to gentle playfulness. And each musical moment is flawlessly, uncannily right in its place. One of the most interesting things about the opera is that Mozart set out to write a comic play with songs for performance in a Viennese theatre catering to audiences who liked lots of gaudy scenic effects, plenty of gags, amusing stage animals, and low-brow dialogue that wouldn't interfere with middle-class digestion but would be a pleasant antidote to post-prandial drowsiness. With remarkable artistry the composer used that framework to write a morality play with the deepest ethical significance. So successful was he in making something inspirational out of a slapstick plot, that George Bernard Shaw was moved to say that some of the songs in The Magic Flute are the only ones he could decently conceive of coming out of the mouth of God.

Special effects challenge the technical skill of the production crew.

Presenting The Magic Flute is a tremendous undertaking, not only artistically — it's one of the most demanding operas to sing and to stage—but also from the point of view of sheer organization, and because of this it sometimes falls flat on its face on the stage. But television offers it greater scope, in fact, it might have been written expressly for the medium, which allows for greater realism and make-believe than are possible in the theatre. It gives the costume and special effects departments a splendid chance to let their imagination run riot.

Franz Kraemer's production (in English) for Festival on Wednesday night, March 23rd, is a tour de force that does credit to the mastermind of the brilliant little Austrian who wrote the opera to pay off some pressing bills near the end of an extraordinary life. The Festival presentation will run for two hours and 35 minutes; Walter Susskind conducts the 60-piece orchestra, and the cast of 123 (both on and off camera) is headed by a number of internationally known performers.

They include George Shirley, a young Negro tenor from the Metropolitan Opera, as Prince Tamino; soprano Beverly Sills of the New York City Opera in the extremely difficult role of the Queen of the Night, for which she is famous; Mary Ellen Pracht, a young soprano with the Metropolitan Opera, as Princess Pamina; David Ward, a Scottish bass-baritone who sings at Covent Garden, the Bayreuth Festival and the Metropolitan Opera, as the High Priest, Sarastro; baritone John Reardon of the New York City Opera and the Metropolitan Opera, as Papageno, the bird-catcher; Eleanor Calbes, a young soprano from the Philippines who has sung with the Canadian Opera Company, as Papagena; and Garnet Brooks, a young tenor who has sung with the same company, as Monostatos, the lecherous Moor. The off-camera choruses are sung by the Festival Singers of Toronto, directed by Elmer Iseler.

Supporting roles are sung by Gaelyne Gabora, Joan Patenaude and Patricia Rideout as Three Ladies who attend the Queen of the Night; Geoffrey Clarfield, Michael Hamilton and Douglas Gahm as Three Spirits; Howell Glynn as First Priest; Andrew MacMillan and Mel Scott as Second and Third Priests; John Arab and Maurice Brown as Two Men in Armor; Phil Stark, Arthur Apy and Walter Williamson as Three Slaves; and Gillie Fenwick as the Speaker. The voices of the Three Spirits are those of Mary Lou Fallis, Joanne Morrow and Lynda Sinclair, coached by Lloyd Bradshaw.

The production is based on

the original text by Emmanuel Schikaneder and Carl Ludwig Giesecke, and English versions by Ruth and Thomas Martin and Edward J. Dent.

The Magic Flute is the largest production Franz Kraemer has undertaken to date, and probably the most challenging. He describes it as "an opera glorifying 18th-century enlightenment, a fairytale for grownups or a true story for children, a great apotheosis of man and wife."

Its message has a curiously modern flavor. First, it tells us, you must know yourself, know where the balance is between your nobler and your simpler selves, and then you can overcome anything.

By studying Papageno, we can learn about ourselves. He's not just a silly fellow prancing around in a bird-suit, as he seems at first glance. There's much more to him, but he must grow to maturity before this is evident, and as the lighthearted boy begins to understand what is important and serious in the large scheme of things, and what is not, our own strengths and frailties become more obvious to us.

Like the modern Western, the story of The Magic Flute is built around the triumph of good over evil and a test of strength against the elements. While Prince Tamino is being pursued by a ferocious dragon of enormous size, three ladies (attendants on the Queen of the Night) appear and kill the beast. They show him a picture of Pamina, the Queen's lovely daughter, who is being held prisoner by the sorcerer, Sarastro. Tamino falls instantly in love with Pamina's portrait, and when the Queen appears in a clap of thunder and beseeches him to rescue the girl, he agrees. The Ladies give him a magic flute to protect him, and to Papageno, a lovesick, clowning bird-catcher who decides to accompany him, they present some magic bells. Three Spirits guide them on their journey.

Papageno, whose real purpose in joining Tamino is to search for an ideal wife to assuage his loneliness, finds Pamina in the lecherous clutches of her jailor, Monostatos, a servant of Sarastro. Meanwhile, a priest of Sarastro's order tells Tamino that he may win Pamina when he swears allegiance to the Holy Brotherhood and learns the truth about life.

As Papageno and Pamina escape from Monostatos, they meet Tamino at the gates of the temple, where Sarastro urges them to experience the secret and sacred rites of the Brotherhood. In the second act Tamino and Papageno go through the initiation trials of darkness and silence, and Tamino is shown to be the more worthy, thus warranting the final tests of fire and water. The lovers are still being kept apart, as a further test, but the wicked Monostatos is banished, and joins the Queen of the Night, who is revealed to be the true force of evil.

Although Papageno failed his initiation, he is rewarded for his bravery with a female counterpart, Papagena, with whom he falls headlong in love. Tamino and Pamina manage to pass unscathed through the fire and water trials, joyfully join the Brotherhood of enlightenment with Sarastro's blessing, and greet the triumph of light in the temple of the sun.

Kraemer emphasizes Mozart's theme of brotherhood in the international flavor of his cast, in the animation of the titles, and in visual effects in the finale, in which all the races of the world are represented.

For The Magic Flute the CBC special effects department was called on to devise its largest prop to date: a snarling, fire-breathing, 75-foot dragon complete with darting tongue and evil, electric eyes. The result, fierce enough to satisfy even Grimm, is entirely mobile, covered with overlapping polyfoam scales, and required 12 men inside to operate it.

Program Notes

MARCH 20th

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

CBWT—Extension

Ideals of Democracy and Social Reality. A series which compares the ideals of democracy to the social reality of our age and in our country. Today, Political Action in Canada. Prof. Gad Horowitz discusses this subject with his guest, Prof. Charles Taylor of McGill University.

French for Love

A learn-to-speak-French series. Host Gérard and Sheila Arthur introduce a sketch in which Michel Maillot plays a husband whose nightmare not only disturbs him but also results in a loss of sleep for his wife, portrayed by Jane Leduc.

Country Calendar

A profile of the Hon. J. J. Greene, the new minister of agriculture and member of Parliament for Renfrew South. He is seen informally chatting with Jack McPherson, liaison officer, CBC farms and fisheries department in Ottawa. He talks about his proposal to meet the farm labor situation, crop insurance and the cost-price squeeze in agriculture. Host is Bob Carber.

Also, a report on the annual Calgary Bull Sale by John MacLeod. Produced by Gren Bates.

Through the Eyes of Tomorrow

John McMurty, a former professional football player, tells young people what to expect in the way of rewards and pitfalls, if they decide to embark on a career in sports. He warns that a professional player is developed and purchased in the same way as any chattel that is bought or sold. With film of practice sessions and training camps he shows the tough regimentation the athlete must endure. He also speaks of the poetry of sport, the singing of the blood that makes it all worth while for the chosen few.

Some of Those Days

This week a salute to the 1920s, the era of the jazz band and the famous blues singers such as Lucille Hegamin, Ma Rainey, Bessie Smith, W. C. Handy, Louis Armstrong, Ethel Waters, Jimmy Rushing, Jelly Roll Morton and Kid Ory.

Regulars include Roma Hearn, Pat Morgan, and Lance Harrison and his band. Selections include:

Heritage

Portrait of a Clergyman. Viewers meet a man who at the age of 72 continues to lead a very active life in the service of the Lutheran Church in Winnipeg. Although officially retired, the Rev. G. A. Heimann often substitutes in the pulpit at various congregations and serves as chaplain for a number of Winnipeg hospitals. Rudy Gijzen, producer.

Wonderful World of Golf

Chen Ching-Po and Tommy Jacobs play at the Ibaraki country club in Osaka, Japan.

A Place for Everything

The forest is a super-organism, a living, breathing thing, consisting of many individual components. Today we look at Canada's four distinct forest regions and at their trees and their wildlife. Film includes rare footage of two animals who play a vital part in the natural balance of the forest, the beaver and the wolf.

Hymn Sing

Host Don Brown and the Eric Wild Hymn Sing Chorus present hymns and favorite religious music. Produced and directed by Don S. Williams. Selections include:

O Boundless Salvation
When We All Get to Heaven
Lord, Accept into Thy Kingdom
God, the Omnipotent
The Truth of the Gospel
Sabbath Prayer
Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus

The concept of the forest as a super-organism is presented Sunday at 5:00 p.m. on the nature series, A Place for Everything. Canada's four major forest regions are shown, with their varied trees and their wildlife.

March 19th - 25th

Alberta School Telecasts

See for Yourself (Grades 4-6). A science series. Today, Our Invaluable Legacy.

CBXT-Dennis the Menace

Jerry Simmons and Helen Franklin, a teenage couple and friends of Dennis, quarrel about Jerry's intentions to go with another girl.

CBXT-Girl Talk

Singer Lisa Kirk, author Doris Lilly and model Zsuzsanna Bartha of Hungary discuss European and American husbands. Moderator is Virginia Graham.

Password

This week's celebrity guests are actress Betty White and sports reporter Frank Gifford.

Take Thirty

Guest is singer Joyce Sullivan.

Worlds in Contrast

Eric Ashby, famous for his studies of wildlife, has recorded the many facets of wild pony behavior in the national park in the New Forest of Southern England. He shows on film how stallions supervise their mares and what happens when rival stallions meet.

Passport to Adventure

Host Elwy Yost introduces this week's adventure film, Saboteur, starring Robert Cummings, Priscilla Lane and Otto Kruger. An Alfred Hitchcock suspense thriller set in the time of the Second World War, it follows the adventures of an American aircraft worker who has been falsely accused of sabotage. His efforts to clear his name involve him in a lonely battle with a spy ring.

CBXT-Mr. Ed

Ed goes into the juice stand business and his drinks are such an instant success that a local businessman wants to finance a company to market them.

CBWT-Reach for the Top

The two high schools competing in this week's battle of knowledge and quick response are St. John's and Gordon Bell. Moderator is Bill Guest. Produced by Jean Mackay.

CBXT-Mr. Roberts

Queen Konah (guest star Keely

Smith) offers Captain Morton (Richard X. Slattery) $2,000,000 if he will marry her and desert the Navy.

Don Messer's Jubilee

Guest on tonight's show is singer Patricia Anne McKinnon with regulars Marg Osburne, Charlie Chamberlain, the Buchta Dancers and Don Messer and the Islanders.

The Fugitive

Richard Kimble stumbles into the intrigues of a politically ambitious man when he rescues a leading citizen and his woman companion from a plane crash.

Show of the Week

The Wayne and Shuster Hour. Starring Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster. Guests are Claude St. Denis, Montreal mime, and singer Betty Robertson. Featured dancers are Don Gilles and Pauline Ross. Musical direction by Samuel Hershoren. Numbers:

Did You Ever Have One of Those Days? The Boys
 Pass Me By Betty Robertson
 Feelin' Good (from Roar of the Greasepaint) Betty Robertson
 Cultural Hockey Game The Boys
 Dance Number
 Don Gillies and Pauline Ross
 Prof. Waynegartner, the world's greatest expert on military affairs The Boys
 Murder, Italian Style The Boys

CBWT-Showcase

Another look at the guitar wizardry of musician Lenny Breau. Produced by Ray McConnell.

CBXT-To Have and to Hold

Purpose of the program is to provide a short course in marriage and its problems for engaged couples, and also a refresher course for married couples.

Prince Philip's Address to Variety Clubs International

An address by Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, to the Toronto chapter of Variety Clubs International. The address is given at a $100-a-plate dinner at the Royal York Hotel. The club hopes to raise some $100,000 to expand Variety Village, a vocational school for handicapped boys it supports in Scarborough, Ont.

CBXT-Alfred Hitchcock

An Unlocked Window. Three nurses caring for a bedridden patient in a creaky old mansion are alarmed by the fact that several nurses have been murdered in the area.

Telescope

50 Years Behind a Camera

WHO IS ROY TASH? asks Telescope this week. He is the man King George VI winked at, the man who had hot ashes from Sir Winston Churchill's cigar flicked into his palm, the man whose personal scrap-book is as impressive as any international Who's Who.

Roy Tash is a newsreel photographer who has spent over 50 years of his life behind the camera. He's filmed kings, presidents, premiers, film stars, and anything and anybody under the heading of "news." When he recently celebrated his 50th anniversary in the business, the people who wrote to congratulate him included HM Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother; President Johnson; Joan Crawford; Lorne Greene; Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson; Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker; Yousuf Karsh; and scores of other dignitaries and famous people.

Tash has filmed a multitude of such notables ever since he came to Canada from the United States just after the First World War. (Please turn to page 27)

Host Elwy Yost introduces the final episode of this week's adventure film, Saboteur, starring Robert Cummings, Priscilla Lane and Otto Kruger.

Hogan's Heroes

Fearful of being falsely linked to an assassination plot against a high German official, Kommandant Klink co-operates with Hogan's scheme to steal the evidence.

I Dream of Jeannie

Jeannie tries to help Tony on a scientific project by bringing her wily great-grandfather out of the past to divulge his secret method of separating salt from sea water.

A World of Fairs

A light-hearted look at the history of world fairs and exhibitions beginning with the Crystal Palace Exhibition in London, 1851, and ending with Canada's fabulous upcoming Expo '67. It includes such fairs as the Paris Exhibition of 1889 for which the Eiffel Tower was constructed; the Chicago Fair of 1893 which was infamous for the belly dance of Little Egypt, the 1939 New York's World Fair on the eve of the Second World War; the Brussels Fair of 1958 at which a Canadian couple were publicly married, and the New York Fair of 1964-65 which was fraught with difficulties. Produced from historic still photos and film by Michael Rothery and written by Lester Machan. Original musical score by Ricky Hyslop.

World Fairs Past and Present

EVER SINCE the Crystal Palace Exhibition of 1851, the call of the great fair has sent millions to gape with footweary determination at the latest wonders of the world—Bell's telephone, Edison's phonograph, the wireless, the sewing machine, the saxophone, computers, the astonishing shapes and textures of the latest experiments in shelter. Almost anything could happen at the fair. President McKinley was shot at one in Buffalo; the son of a gardener was presented to Queen Victoria at one in London; a couple were married in parachutes over one in New York. And excitement and curiosity blended to make them memorable occasions, particularly for photographers, who have preserved some striking glimpses of the variety of moods and features at these colossal gatherings.

Some of them will be recalled in A World of Fairs, a lighthearted hour-long "special" to be seen Thursday night, March 24th. It was produced by Michael Rothery from historic still photos and early films, augmented by the latest shots of preparations for Expo. The script is by Lester Machan, editing by David Knight, and the original musical score by Ricky Hyslop.

Friday Night Movie

Goodbye Again, starring Ingrid

Bergman, Anthony Perkins, Yves Montand and Jessie Royce Landis. Directed by Anatole Litvak.

Paula Tessier, a fashionable interior decorator, is infatuated with Philip, a much younger man than her lover, Roger, who has angered her with his dalliance with much younger women. Roger is fiercely jealous when the affair with Philip deepens and rushing back to Paula persuades her to marry him. Philip is turned away, broken-hearted. Old habits die hard however and Roger has still more business appointments and Paula is alone again. Adapted from the novel, Aimez-vous Brahms by Françoise Sagan.

WORLD FAIRS

Jeremy Geidt, of The Establishment fame appears in some amusing miming as a little man who has been to all the fairs, and who is also a projection of some of the people he has seen at fairs—workmen, board chairmen, gondoliers, draftsmen, etc.

The program begins with a look at the Crystal Palace Exhibition in 1851, where the Duke of Wellington enjoyed his last great victory. Sir Joseph Paxton, who designed the Palace, decided to leave some of the large Hyde Park trees on the ground it enclosed, but before all the glass was in place, sparrows had moved into the trees and refused to leave when the building was complete. After innumerable upturned faces and fancy hats had been unpleasantly splashed, the Duke came to the rescue of frantic officials by having some sparrow hawks brought into the place.

The film shows scenes at the Chicago Fair of 1893, when Little Egypt, the belly dancer, was the pièce de resistance. ("Even the uncensored films of this attraction would hardly interest a sixth-grader today," Rothery tells us.) Viewers will see films of the Paris Exhibition of 1889, for which Eiffel designed his 984-foot tower; the 1939 New York World's Fair on the eve of war; the Brussels Fair of 1958; the problem-ridden New York Fair of 1964; and many others.

Ingrid Bergman stars with Anthony Perkins and Yves Montand in the Friday Night Movie at 9:00 p.m. on CBC-owned stations.

II Barbiere Di Siviglia. (The Barber of Seville.) Comic opera in two acts by Rossini.

Characters: Count Almaviva — tenor; Bartolo, physician — bass; Rosina, his ward—soprano, Basilio, music master—bass; Marcelline—soprano; Figaro—baritone; Fiorillo, servant to the count — tenor. Place, Seville. Time, the 17th Century.

Cast: Figaro—Nicholae Herlea; Rosina—Reri Grist; Count Almaviva—George Shirley; Don Basilio—Cesare Siepi; Dr. Bartolo—Fernando Corena. Conductor, Silvio Varviso.

Act I. Seville. Square before the house of Bartolo. Almaviva serenades Rosina whom Bartolo desires to marry for her fortune. Figaro approaches, singing. The count, who knows the merry barber, asks him for assistance in meeting Rosina. Figaro advises the count to disguise himself as a soldier and by feigning intoxication gain entrance to the house.

Change of Scene: Chamber of Dr. Bartolo. Rosina writes to the count and is leaving the room when Bartolo enters, full of suspicion. When he has gone, Figaro enters and asks Rosina for a few words for the count. When the stage is empty, Marcelline tries to pass through the exit but is met by the count, disguised as a drunken soldier. She rushes to Bartolo for protection. Bartolo endeavors to remove the supposed soldier but does not succeed. The count manages to see Rosina, and whispering who he is, gives her a letter. She hands the watching Bartolo a laundry list. The commotion attracts the watch. Bartolo believes that the count has been arrested, but Almaviva mentions his name to the officer and is released. Bartolo and Basilio are astounded, and Figaro makes fun of them.

Act II. Almaviva again appears at the house of the doctor, this time disguised as a tutor, acting as substitute for the supposedly ailing Basilio, who gives lessons to Rosina. In order that he may not be alone with Rosina, the doctor has himself shaved by Figaro. When Basilio suddenly appears he is bribed by Figaro to play the part of an invalid. Finally Bartolo detects the trick, drives everybody out of the room, and rushes to a Toronto Daily Star correspondent and expert on Russian affairs Mark Gayn interviewed Alexander Kerensky at his home on the campus of Stanford University, California, last December. Kerensky was one of the leaders of the February revolt in Russia during 1917 and later that year served three months as prime minister of the nation. Now in his 80s, Kerensky talks about the reasons for the decline and overthrow of the Tsars, the 1917 revolt, and developments in Russia since that time.

Interview with Alexander Kerensky

IN MARCH, 1917, Russia had its first successful revolution against the Tsarist regime. It began in Petrograd (formerly St. Petersburg and now Leningrad), where Alexander Fyodorovich Kerensky, a lawyer and politician, was the head of the Social Revolutionary party. When the first provisional government of the revolution was formed (out of Octobrists, Cadets, and Social Revolutionaries), Kerensky represented his party as minister of justice. Two months after the revolution the government was reorganized and Kerensky became head of the ministries of war and marine.

In July, 1917, the government was again reorganized, this time with a socialist majority, with Kerensky appointed prime minister. At this time the Bolsheviks, under the leadership of founder Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, were attempting to seize power in Petrograd by gaining control of the local soviet, the council of workers' and soldiers' deputies, of which Kerensky had been vice-president at the beginning of the revolution. The provisional government recalled a cavalry division from war service and put down the Bolshevik revolt, but Lenin escaped to Finland and continued to build up Bolshevik strength for a later attempt against the provisional government.

By September the Bolsheviks had command of the soviet, while the army, under General Kornilov, was trying to impose a military dictatorship. Faced with the threats of these extreme elements, Kerensky sought to weld the more moderate groups in the country into a unified front. Both Kornilov and Kerensky failed in their aims, while the Bolsheviks gained ascendancy. October saw the Bolshevik leader, Trotsky, elected president of the Petrograd soviet with full control of the military committee of the soviet. Kerensky, without sufficient numbers of reliable troops, was unable to suppress the Bolshevik rising of November 7th, 1917, and was forced to leave Petrograd. He returned soon after with a force of Cossacks which broke up against the Red Guards, and he was again compelled to leave.

Kerensky settled first in Paris, where he was the leader of the emigré Social Revolutionaries and editor of their publication, Dni. He went to Australia in 1940 and after the Second World War took up residence in the United States.

Now 85 years of ages, he lives in California, still writing—his most recent work is Russia and History's Turning Point (1965)—and is still active in teaching. At Stanford University, where he conducts a symposium on the political history of modern Russia, he was visited recently by Mark Gayn of the Toronto Star and Dita Vadron of CBC radio's Project '66 series. The interview is heard Sunday, March 20th at 10:30 p.m.

Among his first assignments was Sir Wilfrid Laurier's funeral in Ottawa, and in 1934 he was the first movie cameraman to arrive at the Dionne farmhouse at Corbeil, Ont., when news of the birth of the quintuplets broke. To shoot that story he had to round up every car battery he could find in North Bay to supply the current for his lights.

The incident with King George VI happened during the 1939 Royal Tour when Tash found himself being filmed by the King, who was a knowledgeable home-movie buff. Having turned the tables on the cameraman, the King winked at him, which so amazed Tash that he neglected to capture it for posterity. He has a lot of memories like that, one of his favorites being the time he covered Churchill's 1941 Ottawa visit. After the filming session was over Churchill caught Tash emptying an ash-tray into his hand and demanded to know what he was doing. Tash told him he planned to put them in an envelope and save "the ashes of a great man." The old warrior walked over to him, grinned mischievously and said, "Have some more," flicking fresh and very hot ashes into his palm.

Although he has the reputation of being one of the greats of the Canadian motion picture business, Tash admits there have been occasions when he didn't always get what he went after. One embarrassing incident concerned the collapse in 1938 of the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls. Assured by engineers that the bridge would fall under the pressure of a heavy ice-jam, Tash and several other cameramen from across the country set up their equipment and waited for the bridge to break up. They waited patiently for nearly a week, but nothing happened. Finally they all decided the bridge was going to hold on long enough for them to have a coffee break at a nearby hotel so they took off, leaving a boy to watch over a score of cameras for a couple of dollars. The roar of the collapsing bridge could be heard very clearly in the hotel but nobody got back fast enough to see it happen. The newsmen discovered later that an amateur with a 16-mm camera scooped them all.

When Tash got word one day in the '20s that the camera-shy celebrity Irving Berlin was expected to slip into Montreal without fanfare, he grabbed his camera and headed for the station. On the way over he picked up Berlin's latest hit song-sheet, with a photograph of the composer on the cover, to be sure he'd be able to pick him out of the crowd. He found his man, asked him to pose and got a "Don't-bother-mister-I-am-not-Irving-Berlin" brush-off. A momentary doubt was dispelled by another glance at the picture on the song-sheet. It was Irving Berlin all right. Tash followed him through the crowd and got a couple of hundred feet of film before calling it quits. Pleased with himself, he reported to his chief: "He was as tough as they say he is, boss, but there he is — Irving Berlin in the can." Later in the projection room his chief studied the face on the screen and said wearily, "That guy was telling the truth — he isn't Berlin."

That is one of the moments Roy Tash recalls on the Telescope program, which includes some of the thousands of feet of film he has shot over half a century. Who is Roy Tash? was prepared for Telescope by Spaulding Taylor Hall Ltd. It was directed and edited by Rene Bonniere, filmed by Roy Tash and Herb Taylor, with commentary written by Tod Greenaway. Fletcher Markle introduces and narrates the program, which is produced by Peter Kelly. Thom Benson is the executive producer.

Matinee Visits New York

THIS WEEK radio's Trans-Canada Matinée leaves Canada for the first time, to originate from New York City from March 21st to 25th (2:03 p.m. CST, 2:33 p.m. in Alberta), with Jeannine Locke, wife of CBC News correspondent Peter Reilly, as hostess, while regular hostess Pat Patterson is on holiday. Listeners will be able to sample the city's national and international flavors, its landmarks, city hall, art and entertainment, shopping, politics and economics, through the observations of some of its inhabitants, including such regular Matinée contributors as Moira Johnston, Harlow Unger, Bridget Paulucci and Bill Cameron.

Program Notes

March 22nd

1:45 p.m.—John Drainie Tells a Story

Actor John Drainie reads Canadian short stories. Today, Man on the Run, by David Eames.

3:00 p.m.—School Broadcasts
(2:00 p.m. on CBX and CBR)

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta Canada—World (Grades 7-9). Deals with Canadian and world affairs.

Our Five Senses (Grades 3-4). Today, Touching and Hearing.

6:00 p.m.—Guesting with Mitch

The Mitch Parks Quartet and singer Lorraine West. Produced by Jack Bingham.

7:30 p.m.—Christian Frontiers

Bill McNeill reports on a pace-setting ecumenical venture at the University of Windsor where the originally Roman Catholic Assumption College has evolved into the University of Windsor and now has Anglican and United Church colleges as affiliates. This inter-denominational sharing of facilities and faculty is being hailed as an example of cooperative Christian living that could set a pattern for other communities to follow.

8:05 p.m.—Brendan Behan

A profile of the late Irish playwright. (See feature, page 29).

Violinist Marta Hidy, accompanied by pianist Ada Bronstein, is heard in a 60-minute recital Tuesday at 9:00 p.m. The performance was recorded last summer at the University of Manitoba.

Inquest on a 'Quare Fellow'

TWO PLAYS, an autobiographical novel, and three books of collected short stories and essays are all that Brendan Behan left behind when he died two years ago. His creative period spanned less than 10 years of his life and towards the end he began to think of himself as written out, although Sean O'Casey said that if Behan had lived another 10 years he would have written more and perhaps better.

To most of his friends and colleagues in the theatre he seemed to be squandering his talent in drink and foolishness. The success of his first produced work, The Quare Fellow, catapulted him to international fame in 1956 at the age of 33. Borstal Boy, his autobiography, followed two years later, and his second play, The Hostage, in 1959. With these three works his reputation as a creative artist was solidly established, but he was never again to produce anything of substance to match them. Brendan Behan's Island, autobiographical short stories about life in his native Dublin, Brendan Behan's New York, impressions of that city, and Hold Your Hour and Have Another, a series of essays written for the Irish Press, were minor exercises.

The popular image of Brendan Behan is that of the drunken clown, the garrulous Paddy, the roaring bhoy-o. Certainly he fostered this idea, especially on his visits to Montreal and Toronto, where he was arrested for causing a disturbance, assault causing bodily harm, and assaulting police. But Joan Littlewood, director of the Theatre Workshop which first staged The Quare Fellow in London, remembers him as a much more worthwhile person: "Brendan was caught between love for, and mockery of, obsolete myths. His personal suffering and loneliness gave the world some of the finest laughter medicine of the century. Already in his last notices the greatness of the man was undervalued.

"He was a fine scholar as well as a glorious clown, a man who translated Marlowe's verse into Irish and improvised his finest ballads for the street-sweepers and lonely vagrants of every city in the world. He squandered his life and his genius, but he took the world out on a spree with him."

At the time of his death, Behan was working fitfully on a new play for Miss Littlewood, Richard's Cork Leg, and collaborating with Mrs. Rae Jeffs, head of his publisher's publicity department, on a sequel to Borstal Boy tentatively called Confessions of an Irish Rebel. Since Brendan, like most Dubliners, was said to have been a better talker than writer, this book was to have been virtually a direct transcript of tape-recordings Mrs. Jeffs made of conversations with Behan. Mrs. Jeffs recalls those conversations and the Brendan Behan she knew on a program on this week's CBC Tuesday Night at 8:05 p.m. entitled Inquest on a Quare Fellow. Written, narrated, and produced by Dubliner Val Clery, it is the personal recollections of some of the people who knew Behan well, among them Tony Aspler, Ernie Anderson, Terry Chapman, Michael O'Haodha, Roger McHugh, John Beckett, Robbird MacGabhraín, Seamus Kelly, Desmond and Skillia MacNamara, Seamus Parcair, Peter and Beverley Walsh, and Garry Raffles.

Music on Radio

3:30 p.m.—Prairie Concert

THIS WEEK'S RADIO DRAMA

RADIO DRAMA this week represents the three types of playwrights who are helping to make today's Canadian plays so refreshing and thought-provoking. On Sunday, March 20th, at 1:00 p.m., CBC Stage presents a double bill about the folly of man. The Land of Ephranor is by Joseph Schull, one of a handful of outstanding writers who have been contributing to Canadian radio and TV for more than 20 years and whose finesse is much envied by newcomers to the field. This play represents the young Schull. It was first presented in 1945 in the then-new Stage series. The original producer's note about the cast (in Andrew Allan's handwriting) is still attached to the yellowing script, and we see that the première starred Barbara Kelly, who later went on to distinguish herself in Britain, Fletcher Markle, who had a successful career in the U.S., then returned to become host of CBC-TV's Telescope, and John Drainie, who is still a well-known name in Canadian broadcasting.

The Land of Ephranor is a tale told by Halgor the Hermit, whom men call wise because he has pointed out that they are fools. It concerns a wise young man, Othran, "to whom learning was better than laughter and a syllogism more shapely than a fair maid." He thought he was smart enough to remedy the ills of man through reason, and one day he consulted the Hermit to see how he should set about it. The wise old man told him he was a fool, but sent him on a mission to the Land of Ephranor, where there was as fine a crop of ills as any in the world. On his journey Othran learned a great many things about his fellow man which did not answer to reason, and returned disillusioned but considerably wiser.

The other half of the double bill presents the first appearance in a major CBC drama series of a promising new Canadian author, Marjorie Morris, who lives near Montreal. The Swap Shop is the title of her charming, two-character play, an amusing series of ripostes which she has imbued with a subtle message about the values we are so ready to exchange for shoddy replacements. Miss Morris handles dialogue extremely well for a newcomer and can moralize occasionally in a delightfully palatable manner. She has written successfully for the Little Theatre, and last December two Quebec schools presented an original play she wrote for the Montreal Protestant School Board.

On Wednesday night, March 23rd, Midweek Theatre presents Men of the Mountain by George Ryga, a British Columbia writer who is not as new to broadcasting as Miss Morris nor as old a hand at writing as Schull, but who has established himself as a most original, outstandingly talented author. (Next week Festival presents Ryga's latest TV drama, Man Alive, which producer George Bloomfield describes as the most exciting Canadian script he has ever come across, the story of "a man who refuses to compromise. . . . He is, consequently, a tremendously lonely person." An article about this production will appear in next week's edition of CBC TIMES.) Men of the Mountain is about a young man who must choose between a teaching career in Vancouver and fulfilling his grandfather's hope that he will take over a farm. His decision is complicated by memories of an Indian boy he found dead, and whom he buried in an orchard without telling anyone.

Production will be by Rupert Caplan in the Montreal studios. The cast includes Henry Ramer as the Grandfather; Howard Ryshpan as Simon; Eleanor Stuart as the Grandmother; Alan Mills as John; Phyllis Carter as the Mother; Eileen Clifford as Katy Cannoly; and Percy Rodriguez as Jonathan.

The Buffalo: Victim of Civilization

THERE WERE vast herds of them and they made North America their own. The common guess is that there were 60,000,000 buffalo roaming the continent when the herds were at their peak. Some zoologists argue that's an exaggeration—the figure should be 12,000,000 or 15,000,000. Whatever the number, men could ride through the herds for days on end and in every direction, to the horizons, there would be buffalo.

The vanished herds of yesterday and the herds of today that exist in remote areas under the protection of man are the subject of two Soundings programs on CBC radio (Thursdays, March 17th and 24th, 7:30 p.m.).

Indians could detect the presence of the huge herds 30 miles away by listening at gopher holes. To the Indian, the buffalo meant a complete subsistence—food, clothing, hides for shelter, implements and even religious symbols. When the buffalo went, the Indian was no longer an independent being.

Buffalo did indeed range the continent. Buffalo bones have been found in the Don Valley near Toronto and in the Kootenay Valley of British Columbia — an animal that probably came north from what is now American territory. They roamed as far north as Great Slave Lake and south to Texas.

Frank Gilbert Roe of Victoria, featured on the two programs, spent years studying books and references about the buffalo. Finally he wrote a monumental volume, The North American Buffalo. In it, he says that most of the folk beliefs about the buffalo just aren't so. The buffalo obeyed no laws whatsoever. It was the most irregular and unpredictable of all creatures. Its migrations weren't regular and it didn't follow the same trails. It might go east or west as well as north and south. What are thought to be buffalo wallows, often aren't.

The Metis hunted the buffalo in organized campaigns. As the herds decreased, the hunts went further and further west until they reached the Cypress Hills in southern Saskatchewan. The white man mounted a furious attack on the buffalo—for sport and adventure, for food (and often only the choice parts, such as the tongue, were taken) and particularly for hides. The stench of rotting buffalo permeated the plains. The herds simply disappeared. In 1884, near the Red Deer River in Alberta, the geologist J. B. Tyrrell saw a small herd of some 20 buffalo. It was probably the last sighting of wild plains buffalo in Canada.

The buffalo all but vanished. An American Indian captured a few animals, raised them and sold them to two American ranchers. They eventually had a fair-sized herd, which was sold to the Canadian government. These animals ended up in Wood Buffalo Park, north of Alberta. There they mixed with the wood bison, a slightly different animal. Many zoologists were outraged because the plains buffalo had various diseases and these they transmitted to the wood bison. The hybrid animals multiplied, however, and now there are about 10,000 of them. Canada is faced with various problems of buffalo management—should the herds be split up for safety's sake, should they be fenced in, what maximum number should be retained?

A most encouraging discovery was made a few years ago in the far northwest corner of Wood Buffalo Park. There, a purebred herd of wood bison was found, healthy and untouched. Urgent efforts are being made now to protect them from contact with the hybrid animals elsewhere in the park.

The two programs about the buffalo were prepared and are narrated by Allan Anderson, and produced by Allan Campbell.

THIS WEEK'S PERSONALITY: Paul Soles

TV Host by Day, Actor by Night

TAKE 30 host Paul Soles continues a busy acting career as well as his regular TV work.

"THE FIRST play I ever acted in was at Sunday school when I was four years old. My one and only line was: Snakes! Save us!"

Since that day, 31 years ago, Paul Soles, co-host of CBC-TV's popular daytime public affairs show, Take 30, has packed a lot of theatre and television time into his career. A lot of travelling too.

Since high school, Paul has acted in or directed about 35 plays and a half dozen revues. While attending university in London, Ont., he worked at radio station CFPL as a disc jockey, and still found time to work with the London Little Theatre group and direct the university's annual revue.

In 1960, Paul won the best actor award in the Dominion Drama Festival. "It was in Hamilton, and after we finished the play, I rushed back to my job in London. A couple of days later, I had the evening off and decided to drive back to Hamilton to see the presentation of awards.

"Imagine my surprise when I was grabbed just as I walked in the back door, and marched onto the stage to receive the best actor award. I was still outside when they called my name and actually didn't know I had won until the award was in my hand."

Paul has been with Take 30 for three seasons. He started as co-host with Anna Cameron, who left the show last summer to take up fulltime professional acting.

His new partner is Adrienne Clarkson, a scholarly charmer who taught modern poetry at the University of Toronto before coming to Take 30.

Last year, Paul played the part of Joseph K in Kafka's The Trial, at the Colonnade Theatre in Toronto. While rehearsing for The Trial, he did a show for Take 30 on Canada's famous communications thinker, Marshall McLuhan. He offered English literature professor McLuhan tickets to the play and McLuhan accepted. "He saw it and later said it was the best portrayal of Joseph K he had ever seen," Paul says with a pleased grin.

Paul's wife, Jean, comes from a farm near Paris, Ont. She studied interior design and likes to sing. They have a son, Jonathan David, and Paul will talk about him if asked.

At this time, Paul is playing in a revue at the Theatre in the Dell in Toronto. It is called Ligging About and also features Diane Stapley, Brian Crabb and Judy Armstrong. It was written by Paul McDowell, who once wrote for BBC-TV's That Was the Week That Was.

But that's at night. During weekday afternoons, Paul continues on Take 30.

Paul Soles puts his comic talents to use atop the 55-storey Toronto-Dominion centre.
