Regular listenership ratings prove that CFRB has the lion's share of the Toronto audience. Further surveys show that CFRB delivers more Ontario listeners than any other Toronto station. And Ontario represents 40% of Canada's total buying power.

THE "ALL-CANADA" FAMILY OF RADIO STATIONS
Foreword

It is with not inconsiderable pride, and with some wonder, that we, the editors and staff of the Canadian Radio Year Book, present this, its first annual edition. Our pride lies not so much in our product, as in the industry about which, of which, and for which it is intended. The wonder stems from the full realization of that same industry's great breadth, its astonishing growth toward maturity, its strength and its influence upon the community which is Canada.

These factors, coupled with the unusual and unexpected arms, avenues and compartments of the broadcasting industry have made the task of preparing within a limited time such a directory as this considerably more exacting than a similar guide of a more prosaic business. Every possible attempt has been made to create a complete and accurate directory of radio broadcasting in Canada. No expense or effort has been spared to gather the data to be found within. It can be expected that there is even more to be covered, that we have not yet found. We will not apologize for omissions within the fields dealt with, as every opportunity was given to those departments to provide us with information. For information on any field or fields untouched the editors will have special welcome. The Year Book will cover the industry, but must have the industry's co-operation.

Throughout production the editors were in constant consultation with men and women from all branches of the industry. A special consultative board was set up early in this period. Without the guidance of its membership the Year Book would not have been possible in anything like its present size or scope. To such men as Jack Radford and Wells Ritchie of the CBC, Guy Herbert, Spence Caldwell and Percy Gayner of All-Canada Radio Facilities Ltd., Horace Stovin of the company of the same name, George Taggart, Harry Sedgwick of CFRB, Arthur Evans of the C.A.B., Athol McQuarrie of the A.C.A., Les Garside of Inland Broadcasting, Harry Rimmer of Canadian General Electric, Gerard Delage and Mac Shoub of Montreal, and others too numerous to mention here, we say thank you.

The Year Book, as its name implies, will be an annual publication, produced, as is our fervent hope, with less tribulation than that which beset the first edition. For any man who thinks he has had troubles buying new 5,000-watt transmitting equipment or in keeping a leaky 100-watter on the air for the past six years, we cordially invite him into adventuring into that vale of tears known as the printing business. Probably no industry has been so swept off its feet during the recent war and its unpleasant aftermath as this, the art of printing. How it has weathered the storm is a mystery. By next edition we hope it will have returned to something like normalcy.

It was not out of keeping with the times that at the birth of this book broadcasting in Canada was in a state of, to put it mildly, flux. Important issues were at stake in a controversy of policy and procedure. In a young and husky industry, however, such things are not unusual. In one as complex as radio, in a country as complicated as Canada, they need not be unexpected.

Meanwhile, ahead of us lie great things. Frequency modulation and television, as well as facsimile, are still to be explored and exploited. Even AM has not ceased developing in this country. The future is bright with promise. It is our intention to keep pace, in order that we may serve broadcasting in Canada faithfully and well.

PUBLIC RADIO IN CANADA

By A. DAVIDSON DUNTON

Chairman, CBC Board of Governors

THE CANADIAN RADIO YEAR BOOK

The year ahead will be full of challenges and opportunities for Canadian radio. With the war over, broadcasters in Canada have been readjusting their sights to what only a short time ago we called the "postwar era." That era is here now and responsibilities in it are great. Stewardship of this mighty instrument of mass communication must be carried out every day with great respect, careful planning and constant appreciation of the fact that it exists to serve the public interest.

There are certain basic facts of our country that affect radio, and certain things affected in turn by radio. The first fact is common with other countries. Air seems to be the freest thing in the world. But in the radio sense it is not free.

The whole question of radio was thoroughly studied at the end of the twenties, and during the thirties by the Aird Commission, by different Governments, and by Parliamentary committees. All agreed, and, incidentally, all political parties agreed, that a public body should be set up to develop this great national resource of the air waves in the interests of the whole Canadian public.

A national radio body was set up for this purpose. It had several main functions—to produce programs in Canada, and to bring in suitable programs from outside Canada: to build and operate facilities to broadcast all these programs; to maintain networks to carry the programs by wire lines all across the country; to watch over all broadcasting in the country.

The radio authority had to meet the large and complicated tasks set by Parliament and the challenges set by Canadian conditions. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation does not operate for profit. It does not belong to any individual or group. It does belong to the radio listeners of Canada. The Board of Governors acts as trustee for them. The Governors are members of the public drawn from all across Canada. On the listeners' behalf the Board guides the work of the Corporation and exercises certain checks and supervision over all broadcasting in Canada. It acts as its members sincerely feel is best in the interests of Canadian listeners. In matters that arise in connection with broadcast operations, whether they be public or private, the Board simply tries to carry out its trust.

The Corporation is a public body. But by its constitution it is not part of the Government. It must, of course, answer to the public through Parliament—but on its own, not through the Government. Every year or so a Parliamentary committee, including representatives of all parties, conducts a thorough study of the affairs of the Corporation.

All the revenues of the Corporation go into providing radio service to its owners, the listeners of Canada. The greater part of its revenues come from listeners in the form of radio license fees. By law these go to the Corporation to provide service. The remainder of the revenues, just under one-third, come from commercial operations.

In 1945 the CBC carried 55,000 network programs. Of these 9,500 were commercial, sponsored by advertisers; 45,000 were non-commercial, without advertising. Of these non-commercials 3,000 came from the United States, 3,000 from Britain; 39,000 were our own, produced in Canada.

Advertising programs are usually designed, quite naturally, for very wide popularity, to draw the greatest number of listeners to loudspeakers. In trying to keep a balance in the whole picture, therefore, the CBC has to take into account the fact that on its networks there are a number of top commercial shows providing popular entertainment. To present a planned pattern it concentrates relatively more of its effort on programs having perhaps a more lasting value, although appealing to a smaller number, and probably slightly different group of people.

The CBC is constantly striving to improve the program output and suit it to listeners' needs. But there are, of course, limitations of money and time and facilities that must be reckoned with.

Canada is an extremely expensive country in which to run national radio networks. In Canada we have an unusual condition of great distances and small populations. That means a comparatively small number of stations and thousands of miles of expensive wire lines. Actually the CBC has to pay about a million dollars a year for wire lines alone.

The period before radio will be one of change, of readjustment, of tackling new ideas and developments in the program, technical and public service spheres. The problems and possibilities of new developments, including frequency modulation and television, present a call for co-ordinated planning and action now and in the time to come.

The future of this art is a part of Canada's future and every effort put forth to improve radio will benefit our country. Thus the problems which face Canada and the world—economic stabilization, full employment, reconversion and reconstruction, international security—are radio's problems too, and we must set our hand firmly to solve them if we are to fulfill our responsibilities.

Members of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters subscribe to the following Code of Ethics:

As a member broadcasting station of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, we pledge ourselves to the best of our ability to—

(1) program each broadcast day to meet the varied interests of all groups of listeners;
(2) serve the best interests of our community;
(3) provide suitable religious broadcasts without permitting this station to be used to convey attacks upon any race or religion;
(4) provide suitable broadcasts for the entertainment and information of children;
(5) provide programs which educate entertainingly;
(6) broadcast the news of the day in a factual and unbiased manner;
(7) provide opportunity for the broadcast of all sides of controversial public issues to the degree of public interest in such issues;
(8) encourage advertisers and their advertising agencies to present information of goods and services available for the comfort and convenience of listeners to this station and to present such information in a simple, truthful and believable manner;
(9) deal fairly with advertisers and all others desiring to use the facilities of this station.
"VARIETY" SAYS:

"Small local stations throughout the country never used to be considered much of a buy for national advertisers, but they are now. The long, hard haul for the little guys is finally paying off . . .

"Ten years ago a national advertiser wouldn't consider a 250-watter, being of the opinion, and rightly, that nobody listened to them because people got better programs on the webs. Today, however, the small-timer has come into his own as a sales weapon.

"Reason obviously is that the little guys have made themselves a power in their communities. The big guys can't do it because their setups don't lend themselves to such promotion."

(Taken from "Variety" Feb. 20th)

We're quite proud of the list of stations we represent — some of them "little guys," some of them bigger — but all local stations that are "a power in their communities."

THE CANADIAN ASSOCIATION OF BROADCASTERS

By T. ARTHUR EVANS

Secretary, C. A. B.

The Association has a voluntary membership of independent owners of broadcasting stations duly licensed by the Dominion Government.

The Association serves three main purposes:

1. By the exchange of ideas and plans to improve the standard of broadcasting and the service rendered by the member stations to their listeners—the people of Canada.

2. Since each member station is dependent for its operation upon the revenues received from the sale of time to advertisers, an important function of the Association is that of establishing advertising practices and standards which make it easier for advertisers to use the medium and at the same time serve the public by bringing to them the story of products and services available for their use and comfort in the communities served by member stations.

3. Since every broadcasting station is licensed by the Dominion Government and subject to the regulations of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Association represents member stations in discussions and meetings with the Government and the Corporation.

All holders of a broadcasting license who have a broadcasting station in operation, with the exception of stations owned by or operated for the Dominion Government, are eligible for membership.

The licensee in applying for membership is entitled to designate the individual who is to represent the station at any or all meetings of the Association and who is authorized to vote for the licensee.

There is an Associate Membership which, by resolution of the membership at the 1943 annual meeting, was made available to companies or individuals affiliated with the industry. Associate members have no vote.

Organization

The pattern of operation of the Association is set at the annual meeting. At each annual meeting the members elect a Board of Directors as the executive committee. There are eleven directors who, in turn, elect a chairman and vice-chairman for the annual term of office.

The directors appoint the president and general manager, the secretary-treasurer and the chief engineer, to form the management for the Association. The management is responsible to the Association through the Board of Directors.

The annual meeting sets forth broad policies which are initiated by the Board of Directors and administered by the president and general manager and headquarters staff.

Engineering

The Association maintains an Engineering Department under the direction of a graduate engineer. This department studies international treaties and their general allocation structure with reference to their effect upon the status of the CAB membership. Confidential assistance on technical problems is given to the members from this department.

Committees

Much of the work of the Association is undertaken by the committees appointed either at the annual meeting, or by the directors. In 1946 the following committees were in operation:

1. Policy Committee

Appointed from the Board of Directors, it acts in an advisory capacity. It takes action in only such matters as may be referred to it from time to time by the Board of Directors.

2. Committee of Standard Rate Structure

It consists of radio station representatives who are associate members, and is responsible for the development of standard practices and the format of radio station rate sheets. The brochure of Canadian radio station rates is the work of this committee.

3. Commercial Radio Research Committee

This committee was established in 1944 and is made up of representatives of:
- Association of Canadian Advertisers
- Canadian Association of Advertising Agencies
- Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
- Canadian Association of Broadcasters
- Radio Station Representatives

under the chairmanship of Mr. Robert Jones, Advertising Manager of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company Limited. During the past two years a number of surveys have been made and tested, and interim reports issued from time to time. This committee is of necessity, a continuing one, due to the changes in radio art and radio technique.

4. Code Committee

Responsible for the interpretation of the Code of Ethics, it continues to study the code, and to make such further recommendations as may be deemed necessary, from time to time.

5. Public Relations Committee

The Public Relations Committee was established following the 1947 Annual Meeting. It is responsible for originating and co-ordinating recommendations to member stations. It presents plans, policies, and programs for the purpose of developing a better understanding on the part of the public as to the place and responsibilities of the member stations in broadcasting in Canada.

Meetings

The Association meets annually and under special circumstances may be called together by the Chairman of the Board, the Vice-Chairman, or at the written request of one-third of the members.

The Board of Directors meets four times a year, at the call of the Chairman of the Board or, in his absence, at the call of the Vice-Chairman.

Committees meet at the call of the Chairman and are required to render a report of their activities at each annual meeting.

This outline of the purpose and operation of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters gives an indication of the services rendered by the Association to its members. Naturally, there is much to be accomplished in the future if broadcasting stations are to be successful, and are to fulfill their proper function in relation to the public in their several communities.

The members of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters are mindful of their obligations to their communities, and to the people of Canada. The Association can and does assist its members in bringing to its listeners programs of the highest calibre in all branches of radio broadcasting.

General Electric leadership in the manufacture of Broadcast Equipment is advanced by the introduction of the new F.M Broadcast Transmitter and the Two-Studio Consolette.

Made in Canada the G-E Transmitter will use the new Phasatron tube which provides complete crystal control of frequency with less distortion, and fewer tubes.

With the Two-Studio Consolette, completely flexible program control is assured. The equipment handles up to eight microphones, eight remote program lines, and two transcription turntables. These can be connected in many alternative combinations to four preamplifiers and two program amplifiers.

For further information, write the Electronic Division, Supply Department, Canadian General Electric Co., Toronto.

G.E 250 WATT F. M. BROADCAST TRANSMITTER provides close frequency control with fewer tubes.

G.E TWO-STUDIO CONSOLE gives exceptional flexibility and a new freedom from operating errors.

Instituted in February, 1945, by the radio trade paper Canadian Broadcaster, and presented for "distinguished service to Canadian radio," the Beaver Awards are given each year to the artists, announcers, engineers, sponsors, advertising agencies and others who, in the Broadcaster's opinion, have rendered service to the industry "beyond the performing fee or salary." For the two years of their existence the presentations have been made by Richard G. Lewis, publisher of the Broadcaster, at a dinner of the Radio Executives Club of Toronto. The presentation ceremonies in both years have been broadcast over the CBC network on Borden's "Canadian Cavalcade." Object of the awards is "to focus attention on Canadian Radio talent, to encourage such talent to stay in Canada, and to bring the various sections of the industry together." Each year seventeen awards have been given.

CANADIAN NETWORK AND PROVINCIAL MAPS
The movements of the Canadian people which were so definite and obvious during the war have not ceased, nor are they expected to do so in the first few postwar years. While the volume of migration was considerable, and therefore important, its greatest significance lies in the trends which it so emphatically outlined. Contrary to popular belief, they were not new trends, but were exaggerations of what had been happening ever since the first Great War, and what will continue to happen until some major, and at present unforeseen, sociological phenomenon interferes.

The move by large numbers of persons from the farm and rural areas to the cities assumed large proportions in the thirties. During this period metropolitan districts gained about 135,000 people, while the rural areas lost over 280,000. This flow has continued. Since 1941 farm and rural areas have lost almost 300,000 inhabitants and the metropolitan areas have jumped 345,000.

Four-fifths of this migration has been from the Prairies, one-half of that number from Saskatchewan alone. Two Provinces, Ontario and British Columbia, have gained most specifically. Ontario 58,000 and B.C. 90,000. The far-reaching influence of this last figure can be easily recognized when it is compared with the population of Victoria, the Province's second city, which is in the neighborhood of 80,000.

Saskatchewan gave up 85,000 persons, Manitoba 25,000 and Alberta 15,000. In the east, Quebec yielded 11,000 and New Brunswick 18,000. In Manitoba natural increase covered the loss, but the other two Prairie Provinces came nowhere near matching the out-migration. Quebec, with a birth total of 171,000 during the war, and New Brunswick with 21,000, held, or more than held, their own.

Predominating these movements was the shift of population from rural to urban areas. The eight cities of Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Windsor, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Vancouver, and Ottawa together bulged to an aggregate extent of 237,000 citizens, Winnipeg, it will be noted, being the only Western city except Vancouver to gain.

Farms alone, rural non-farm districts excluded, saw 285,000 head for town. And while this was happening, the natural increase on the farm, the highest in the nation, was only 160,000.
For the first time a net loss has been recorded. The long existing move away from the so-called simple life has heretofore been masked by a high birth rate. Only in British Columbia was the attraction of the farm strong enough to break this nationwide trend; in that Province in-migration, coupled with natural increase, boosted farm population figures by 25,000.

Another factor in these moves is the change from agricultural pursuits to wage and salary jobs. During the war the latter class grew from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000—munitions workers not included. Ontario, with 33 percent of the population, pays 40 percent of the wages. Yet Quebec, with 29 percent of our people, pays little more than its per capita share, with a 30 percent slice of the national wage bill. British Columbia is the only other Province where the wages paid exceed the population percentage. There seven percent of the Dominion's people pay nine percent of the wages.

Statistics in regard to war industries are scant, and unreliable; and the industries themselves are impermanent. However, it is known that three-quarters of the war workers were in five cities: Montreal (148,000), Toronto (125,000), Vancouver (50,000), Hamilton (34,000), and Windsor (33,000). It is not known whether all these workers plan to stay in their new localities. It is thought (by the Federal Department of Labor) that most of the men will remain in the urban areas if at all possible. Employment opportunity will be the deciding factor, and course, but few have indicated that they will desert the cities.
Of the 175,000 women war workers a large number are expected to return to housekeeping.

Generally, it is predicted (again by Ottawa) that the immediate peacetime years will see a larger number of people working, and looking for work, in the bigger cities. Meanwhile, the steady drift from the country will continue. About 90 percent of the veterans plan to return to their home Province—but many, it is expected, will head for a district more populated than the one they left. Almost all of the ten percent who are thinking of settling in another Province are looking towards British Columbia. Vancouver, Toronto, Calgary, and Edmonton are likely to end up with more veterans than they contributed recruits. The reverse will be found in Montreal and Halifax.

Predictions hold out little hope of a back-to-the-land trend, although most servicemen who left farms intend to return. But of civilians few migrants, only about 70,000, plan to retrace their steps.

Housing and employment difficulties may show, or even reverse, these currents; but 1946 finds nothing to indicate such an eventuality. Increasing mechanization of the farm means that employment opportunity is less likely to develop in rural areas, while postwar reconversion holds out hope and security for the city dweller. Wartime travel has educated thousands in the attractions offered by various parts of the nation: the areas which offer the most will find themselves inundated with new residents. Canada's new role, as an industrial nation, is becoming increasingly obvious, if only from the way the population trend would indicate.
Since the end of the war there has been a great deal of activity on the technical side of Radio Broadcasting. Television and Frequency Modulation have moved ahead, and the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has agreed to relax its previous power limitations on private broadcasting stations, although this occurred at a time when very few operators could immediately take advantage of the change.

Very little equipment has become available due to the time necessary for reconversion, made longer in most cases by strikes and difficulties associated with the price controls. Delivery of equipment to many of the fifty-two private stations increasing power did not begin until the spring of 1946. Thirty-five of the stations are raising power to five kilowatts, eleven to one kilowatt and six to 250 watts. In each case these powers are considerably greater than were provided by their previous equipments. Many of the stations not included in those raising power have been purchasing new equipment to replace their pre-war transmitters.

There are twenty new broadcasting stations going into operation this year, one with five kilowatt power, eight with one kilowatt and eleven at 250 watts. This is the greatest increase in licenses ever to have occurred in a single year in Canadian broadcasting.

Almost all the stations increasing power and most of the new stations of one kilowatt or more being established, have to utilize directional aerials in order to provide the protection called for by the terms of the Havana Treaty, to other stations on the same or nearby channels.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters has a membership of seventy-six private stations, out of the 104 stations licensed in Canada. During 1945 the Association established an Engineering Department to provide it with technical information on general problems and also provide the member stations with engineering assistance on their individual problems. Many people in the Broadcasting industry have expressed surprise at the large number of new stations being added in the broadcasting band, particularly in view of the general understanding that the channels which could be used in Canada were very overcrowded and that in many sections of the country, virtually no new stations could be fitted in. They find it confusing to reconcile themselves to the fact that these new assignments are now possible where they had previously understood that no channel was available for a given locality. The answer is that the standards of interference and range (especially at night) are gradually being lowered. When an engineer says that no channel was available for a given locality, it is regrettable that Canadian participation has been blocked in the early development of television, since no one can say when the development of any electronic field has reached a settled condition. The history of broadcasting undoubtedly bears this out. It is to be hoped that this promising field will be opened to those willing to take the initial risk and thus keep Canada technically in the foreground along with the other countries.

The Ottawa Valley Market is over 40% French

An English-speaking salesman couldn't get close enough to the Ottawa-Hull market to be "turned down". Let alone "sell". The reason: English isn't the prospects' language. That's why you see National advertisers in Le Droit. They know that the French language holds the key to sales in this rich territory. If you want to reach this productive market, speak French to the French with Le Droit, the Ottawa-Hull Valley's favourite daily for over quarter of a century.

THE SPOKEN WORD

By R. W. KEYSERLINGK,
Managing Director, British United Press.

The story of radio news is one of the most fascinating episodes in man’s long journey along the road of scientific discovery. While the first use Marconi could find for his epoch-making invention of wireless transmission was to send out information, news on the air is a comparatively newcomer to the wave-lengths. Today it has established itself, according to all surveys, research statistics and analyses, as the greatest, steadiest and most consistent listening program in peace as in war.

While every other form of programming has a natural limit to its ability to sustain interest, news appeals to man’s oldest and deepest instinct—curiosity in his surroundings, in himself and in his world. There are more listeners to radio news—day in and day out, year in and year out—than any type of radio program.

Since, in the economic society in which we live, every latecomer to a new field not only has to overcome certain physical obstacles, but also economic rivalries of the “earlier birds,” radio news can look back to a stormy infancy. While freedom of the press took a long time to establish itself, so radio news was at first also made into the coveted object of regulatory interference. It was only after bitter struggles and because of persistent and often courageous championing by the far-sighted that radio news in Canada, the United States and very few other countries has become economically feasible and hence free and independent in its own right.

Unless the public through economic support expresses its approval of a service or of a commodity, it either disappears or has to become the willing handmaiden of a governmental authority or special pleader. Just as with a newspaper, which builds its popularity with a public through circulation and then rightly obtains economic support through advertising, so also radio news supports its freedom and independence through commercial sponsorship. It is noteworthy that neither free newspapers nor free newscasts exist where the public is not permitted through its “economic approval” to support its own sources of information, but rather is subjected to the tutelage of the almighty state, reaching out for the mind through control of all news dissemination.

Thus radio news is merely a part and a most important part, of that invaluable privilege commonly known as freedom of the press—more accurately described as freedom of news.

It still has an interesting road of further development to follow. Interests shift and interests vary. They shift geographically from battlefield to home, from continent to continent; they shift by subjects from war to peace, from work to play or from sorrows to joy. How to catch the public interest and not misjudge it is radio’s constant problem.

Today, as always, radio news is making adjustments. News of wars has been replaced by the reports of violent diplomatic combats and economic and social problems. Beyond this, local news is becoming more and more a matter of individual reporting by the station’s own news staffs. Great developments have occurred in building up news staffs by stations, and it is being realized that just as a newspaper has to safeguard its own individuality by its own reporters, so do stations rely for their world and national news on agencies—developing an increasing amount of local coverage themselves.

But it is important for stations to realize that radio news in the final analysis is “front-page news.” While a newspaper has not only its front page to hold its readers, it has its comics, features, editorials and a large variety of other material. The ideal newscast requires that every item interests every listener. Otherwise, he might turn his dial and never come back. But not every column in a newspaper need interest every reader. He chooses his columns; in radio he chooses his station.

That is why radio will never be able to sink itself into a provincialism or even too much local news. It need not compete with its nearest weekly or even parish publication. It is still “front page” news which will maintain the greatest audience, and radio news has shown—much to the surprise of many post-war Cassandras—an astounding and growing popularity for live, fresh and important items clearly presented, because news is the ancient art of telling the story of men to men who are always curious about themselves and the other fellow.
