Montreal pop stars return with Travelling Infinity Sky: Different voices, same hit sound

by Ron Rogers

Right off the top, let's make one thing clear – James, as everyone well knows by now, is no longer a part of Sky. The co-founder of the group parted ways with partner Antoine late last year to concentrate on his own songwriting and producing. He just wasn't interested in the spotlight, in the considerable touring and promotion that's imperative in building a career.

So he left, but that doesn't mean the end of the group. On the contrary, Antoine has reemerged just months later with a new sound, a new partner, and a new album that's filled with the kind of hit potential performing in club bands, she saw Sky as the opportunity to finally achieve some direction in her life.

"I'd been traveling quite a lot, searching for what, I don't know. But one day I woke up, I was in Australia, and I wanted to get back home, and make something out of my life, and not continue to wander. So I got into the club scene, started playing in the clubs with my band, and that's where we (Antoine) connected again. We have many friends in common, and I was playing at this club near Mount Royal, and that's where we met up again. I just wanted to find a way to combine the traveling and the music and make something out of my life."

Antoine adds that "...I've known Anastasia for almost 16 years, but we'd lost contact for a long time. And we started to see each other a little more, and I said 'well you should come in and see what I do, maybe try writing some lyrics to it'. So she came and worked on a couple of songs, and the chemistry was great. Her tone of vocals with the way I try to fuse colours, and the different instrumentation and influences in my songs, they worked great with her vocals."

The new duo worked together on the songs that Antoine had been tinkering with since James' departure, and the synergy between the two was immediately obvious.

While Antoine had already laid down the foundations of the new album, Anastasia's arrival infused the songs with a new feel, a new vibe. The duo instantly achieved a new songwriting that was so obvious on Pieces Of Paradise, the group's first effort.

The new partner is fellow Montreal native Anastasia, a 24 year-old singer/songwriter who had been making the rounds in the Montreal clubs with her own band, until old friend Antoine came calling. The attractive vocalist jumped at the chance to work with Antoine. After countless years of traveling and

EMI re-issues two classic John Lennon albums

October 9, 2000 would have been John Lennon's 60th birthday. In recognition of this fact, as well as the public's continued fascination with the artist, EMI has reissued two of Lennon's finest albums – 1970's John Lennon/Plastic Ono Band and 1980's Double Fantasy.

John Lennon/Plastic Ono Band contains a number of classic Lennon works, including Mother, Working Class Hero and God. The album, originally released by Apple on December 11, 1970, has been remixed and digitally remastered under Yoko Ono's supervision.

The reissue of John Lennon/Plastic Ono Band will also contain two bonus tracks. Power To The People was a single originally released after the album, while Do The Oz was the b-side of the God Save Oz (Us) single, which was covered by Bill Elliott & The Elastic Oz Band. Power To The People was originally released as a UK single in March of '71.

Packaging for the reissue will include the original cover art and photographs, as well as rare pictures from the era and Lennon's own hand-written lyrics.

Double Fantasy was originally released in the UK on November 17, 1980. Lennon's first release in over five years, the album was led by the lead single, (Just Like) Starting Over, which hit #1 on the RPM Hit Tracks chart on December 20, 1980, just 12 days after Lennon's death. The song eventually remained in the #1 slot for seven weeks.

The album's second single, Woman, also went to #1 on the charts (RPM - March 14/81), to be followed by two more top ten hits – Watching The Wheels and Nobody Told Me. The album itself hit #1 on the RPM Albums chart on January 21, 1981.

At the time of his death, Lennon and Ono were working on the song Walking On Thin Ice, a track that was actually completed on December 8, the day Lennon was murdered. That song has been included on the reissue of Double Fantasy, along with two other previously unreleased tracks – Help Me To Help Myself, and Central Park Stroll. The latter is actually a short piece of dialogue of Lennon and Ono walking in Central Park.

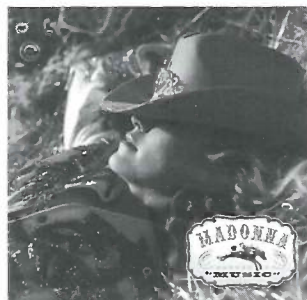

October 9th also saw the opening of the John Lennon Museum in Tokyo, and later this month, there will be a major John Lennon exhibition at the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland.

A Round & Square Dance is a fundraising event for the Hepatitis C Society, and takes place October 20 at The Church on Berkley in Toronto (315 Queen St. E.). The licensed event begins at 8 pm, with tickets going for $9. The featured performer on the night is Cape Breton bad boy Ashley MacIsaac, along with blues outfit the Michael Hasek Band and jazz piano great Brian Browne. The Round & Square Dance is a popular party form in Cape Breton, combining four distinct traditions – the Celtic country fiddle, midwestern square dance, and delta and urban blues. The performance marks the start of a seven-date mini-tour for MacIsaac, performing as a featured sideman with The Chieftains on their western Canadian tour. Tour stops include the Pantages Playhouse in Winnipeg (October 22), the Regina Centre Of The Arts (23), the Windspear Theatre in Edmonton (25), Calgary's Jack Singer Concert Hall (26), Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre (27), and The Royal in Victoria (28). MacIsaac will return to western Canada for a series of headlining dates in November.

VIP have signed a management agreement with Michael Greggs of Been There Done That Entertainment. The group is currently working on songs for their second album, a follow-up to their 1998 release, Do You Think You're Ready? The group will also tour Canada in November as part of Huron Carole 2000.

Blur: The Best Of, hits stores this Hallow'een, and in anticipation of the event, EMI Music Canada launched a new Blue web site on October 6. The site includes photos, a full stream of the band's new track, Music Is My Radar, and links to full-stream videos and a customized Blur radio station. Each week, Blur fans will be able to check out five different rotating videos. As well, the first 100 people to pre-order the Best Of album from hmv.com will receive a four-track UK single. Blur: The Best Of, comes on the 10th anniversary of the band's debut single, She's So High. The new compilation features the new single, Music Is My Radar. For the album's Canadian release, 10,000 limited edition copies of the album will contain a bonus live CD, recorded at London's Wembley Arena in December of '99.

Victoria's CFX has initiated a new service allowing community groups to post their own public service announcements on the station's website.

According to CFX vice-president Terry Spence, the groups can set up their own password-protected account at no cost, and generate online publicity about their meetings, special events and fundraising activities. "They will create their own announcements in as much detail as they wish. The information will remain online until the event has been held. The online exposure is in addition to our regular on-air publicity for community groups and charities." The new service was developed by Myon Systems of Victoria. To check out the new announcement board, visit the CFX website at cfx1070.com, and click on Community Currents.

Green Day, called everything from the poster children of pop-core to the kings of punk-pop, are firming for November 3 at The Warehouse, promoting their latest release, Warning. The lead single from the album, Minority, has jumped to #2 on the RPM Top 30 Rock Report.

The Toronto Blues Society is presenting the 14th annual Women's Blues Revue on December 2 at Toronto's Music Hall (147 Danforth Ave.). The event will feature Rita Chiarelli, Kristi Johnson, Sharron McLeod, Carole Pope, Oh Susanna and Tuku. Each vocalist will perform with the Women's Blues Revue Band, including pianist Lily Sazz, guitarist Marg Stowe, bassist Suzie Vinnick, drummer Michelle Josef, saxophonist Colleen Allen, trumpeter Sarah McElcheran and saxophonist Carrie Chesnutt. The event will be hosted by CBC Radio One's Avril Benoit, and recorded for rebroadcast by CBC Radio.

Beggar's Banquet artist Badly Drawn Boy (aka Damon Gough) is at Lee's Palace on November 8th, performing tracks from his debut album, Hour Of Bewilderbeast. The album recently won the Mercury

Rod Stewart's Atlantic debut held over to Feb.

Atlantic Records has announced that Rod Stewart's eagerly anticipated Atlantic Records debut, which was originally slated for a November release, has been pushed back to February 14th 2001. The new album, titled Human, will be Stewart's first release with the Atlantic label, after spending most of his career with Elektra.

The reason for the delay is the artist's health. This past May, Stewart underwent successful thyroid surgery at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. Although the procedure did not affect his vocal chords, the lengthy recovery period from the surgery has delayed the recording of the album's final two tracks.

According to Stewart, "I'm nearly all healed up, but one cannot rush Mother Nature. The spirit is willing and the voice is just about there. I'm enormously pleased to be with Atlantic Records, and I think the new release date is perfect – especially since I've always been particularly fond of St. Valentine's Day myself."

Atlantic Group co-chairman/co-CEO Val Azzoli noted, "I'm thrilled to welcome Rod Stewart into the Atlantic family. Great things are always worth waiting for, and I am happy to say that Rod is beginning his relationship with us with what we all believe is his best work in years."

Future Radio's Urban Rhythm promises 42% Cancon

An aggressive promotion is shaping what could be a "consideration nod" by the CRTC to the application of Future Radio for a new "unique" FM radio license for BC's lower mainland.

There has reportedly been two years of research by the applicants "long before a call for FM licenses for the lower mainland" went into creating a station "that will finally reflect the population of Vancouver in 2000."

The applicants point out that they live in Vancouver "and recognize the extremely diverse population in the lower mainland, and have spent years creating a format that will arise from the community and reach the most significant demographic in the new, multicultural Vancouver." That demographic is the young listeners the new format, described as "Urban Rhythm," would attract.

Of particular interest is the proposed augmentation of the required Canadian content level of 35% with an additional new Canadian track each hour, which would bring up their Canadian content level to 42%. Interesting too is the published information that Future Radio "is independently-owned, with no external corporate direction or policy."

Adding credibility to Future Radio's application is the company's principle, Jim McLaughlin, a veteran of the private broadcast sector.

The applicant has also targeted $2.1 million in direct expenditure to support Canadian and particularly, local artists.

The station's Canadian Talent Development

V2 presents Moby with double platinum award

V2 Records is enjoying the fruits of Moby's success. The artist's album Play has recently surpassed the double platinum plateau in Canada, with sales of more than 200,000 units. The album currently resides at #3 on the RPM Top 100 CDs chart, after more than 30 weeks on the charts.

According to Alison Mercer, director of marketing and label operations for V2 Records Canada, the success was based on the label's unique marketing approach to the album.

"It's exhilarating to see that a brilliant but non-traditional record can succeed based on unique marketing, retail commitment and strategic distribution. Moby's success embodies V2 Records' philosophy of having patience and allowing our records to develop on their own terms."

V2 has shipped more than a quarter million units of Play, with sales of the album aided by numerous TV appearances, including a performance at the recent MuchMusic Video Awards. The artist has also benefited from a trio of Canadian tour dates, and major media coverage.

"There have been so many champions for Play at every level: at retail, media, radio, video and internally at V2 and BMG," added Mercer. "It has been an amazing joint effort and Play's success is a victory for all of us."

Play has been a success thanks to its unique incorporation of elements of blues, gospel, spiritual and electronica music. Due to the hesitancy of traditional radio formats to pick up on Moby's sound, much of the album's initial exposure was generated via ad campaigns with companies such as Nissan, Labatt's, Bailey's Irish Cream, Calvin Klein, as well as extensive TV and film usage.

The latest single from Play is a new version of South Side, featuring guest vocals by No Doubt's Gwen Stefani. A video, featuring Stefani, was shot by Joseph Kahn (Sisqo, *N Sync, Destiny's Child), and is expected to hit video channels mid-October.

Committee, which is chaired by Ellie O'Day will monitor progress, maintaining access with emphasis on local artists.

A local initiative code named Interplay, is designed to reflect the station's audience, "the talent in our community and our vision as a broadcaster."

The infusion of $2.1 million is factored as Interplay $448,000 - $64,000 per year, four inter-cultural, inter-genre, inter-generational collaborations each quarter, including cost of production, producer fee, mix and mastering;

Future Infusion Concert Series with an allocation of $420,00 "for our flagging live performance scene," - 12 annual shows at $5,000 each for artist fees, production, and print ads;

Music Video will be bolstered by $420,000 with two grants of $30,000 each;

$420,000 has been set aside for the development of a website partnership with new media companies - four annual grants of $150,000 towards website design, graphic and sound and interactive;

A $42,000 Fraser MacPherson Music Scholarship Fund will also be set up with an annual payout of $6,000;

$168,000 will go to PMIA with an annual disbursement of $24,000; as well as $128,000 set aside for FACTOR of which $26,000 will be paid annually.

Another plus factor is the allocation of $105,000 to be awarded annually to BCIT Broadcast Program to produce a one-hour weekly spoken word - newsmagazine, documentary, and a two-hour weekly music show of music "not heard anywhere else in Vancouver."

The CRTC is accepting interventions (comments) from the public until Oct. 26. Hearings will commence in Burnaby, BC on Nov. 20.

WALT SAYS . . . !

with Elvira Caprese

Think it ... don't print it!!! Oh! Oh! The people down at the barn or hangar as some call it, where SS is the temporary landlord, don't like my reference to the barn as such. And, about the sound system ... they say it's the best available for this type of barn ... oops, concert hall. (EC: Hardly a concert hall!!!) They don't want to know!!!

Country biggie unties knot??? It was mentioned here the latter part of last year that big news about the uncoupling of a major country superstar and his wife was about to hit the fan. Well, they kept it secret for as long as they could, which shows the respect this guy has in the media. But, it's about to become circus news by some of the US tradesters. Too bad. He's a great guy ... too bad ... I mean about the news getting out ... not that it will hurt his reputation. It only gives his redneck competitors the opportunity to belittle him. (EC: Like that one guy tried to do with Shania Twain ... and what happened to his career???)

Remember J.D.Roberts??? He was the sweetheart of the media ... well ... MUCH ... anyway, and he appeared on the front cover of RPM, dated September 6, 1986, as we recognized MuchMusic's 2nd anniversary. Roberts was one of the first VJs in North America. He was also the most popular on-air personality at CHUM before going to Much. That was then. Now, he's rumoured to be taking over Dan Rather's job as anchor for CBS News, with the much more respected moniker of John Roberts. I remember his first foray into the US broadcast jungle, and after he and his wife and kids were mugged as they got out of their car in front of their Miami home in a supposedly safe area, he returned to Canada, vowing never to return to the US. A few months later, another job offer he couldn't refuse and he was back to the US, but to the safe confines of New York City. It just goes to prove what an authoritative voice and brains can do! (EC: And who you know!!!) Good looks can help too!

A star is born!!! Watch for Stan Klees, the guy who invented the Juno awards, who will appear in an upcoming television production called Spenser & Boston. Stan plays the part of Harry Cotton and gets murdered on camera. (EC: Wishful thinking???) The show will be aired very early in the new year! People who have seen his performance are raving! (EC: I smell an Academy Award!!!) I'll keep you posted as the air date approaches!

They may do it yet!!! The mouse people could be back in the running to buy a major. Now that the Europeans have said NO! to that big merge, the price could now be right ... and because music is just a small part of their operation, there wouldn't be any objections. (EC: JE thinks it's a large part!!!)

No business like know business!!! Now that the music industry is getting all kinds of press, it's surprising how little the business community knows about the business. You watch three "experts" I've never heard of talking about the business and you wonder how we ever got the image we have with them and the consumers. It's time to start honing as "a torch singer", will be doing the entertainment honours for the first-niters night on Oct. 16. All of this information comes from Joanne Smale, whom we will have news of much importance in a couple of weeks. (EC: That's old news!!!)

Hello! Hello! Who's there??? They say the economy is booming! I wonder how much better it would be if someone answered when you call rather than that loop you can get into with voice mail. I know we must progress, but a lot of the time you don't get through and hang up...just as I did when I phoned to order a Testarossa (EC: Your spelling of course!!!) recently. Credit card in hand ... ready to specify colour I phoned and got into a loop and hung up. Now I'm stuck with the old Jeep and that dealership is out $600,000.00! (EC: He's kidding, of course! If he had that kind of money he'd have ... VOICE MAIL!!!) We appreciate your business, but we're all on an extended coffee break! (EC: What's a Testarossa???)

Oh! Those experts!!! The latest expert to surface at the Globe and Mail goes by the name of Brian Milner who contributes Taking Stock in the Money & Markets section. He has a few interesting things to say in the Oct. 11 issue which he headlined "Record labels not in sync with new realities of music." He did the old yawn thing about Napster and MP3 and even targeted Edgar Bronfman Jr. for winning a landmark judgement against MP3 for what could be $250,000 as opposed to the paltry $20 million each awarded to Time Warner, Sony, BMG and EMI. He lost me when he suggested that "The big record labels are reluctant to send new releases to critics ... out of fear that Internet piracy will shred their debut sales." He further suggested that reviewers are being told to "come to record company offices if they want to hear the music." I wonder what kind of critics he's talking about? I know so-called critics who are collectors and who have stocked up a pretty massive and valuable collection over the years, and who should be asked to come down to the record company and listen to the product. We've never had any problems. In fact the record companies have been very generous with their product. (EC: You're obviously not a record collector!!!)

John Brunton's after a Green Card!!! Ran into John Brunton at the Passport Office the other day where he was applying for his Green Card to work in the US but he's going to remain a resident of Canada. He's got his plate pretty full with a lot of US TV productions ... even a couple for Disney. And he just finished a TV special on Jann Arden, here in Canada. Brunton got his start and developed his fame through producing the Juno Awards for a few years. Here's another Canadian success story. To get a Green Card, you have to prove your talent is unique. Nice to see he's applying for a Green Card, not US citizenship. This is still God's country. (EC: I'll second that!!!)

Taken from RPM cover Sept. 6/86

J.D. Roberts, one of 4 VJ's currently "in rotation" at MuchMusic, was one of the first VJ's in North America. He was once a rock star, a star of the grid-iron and a radio personality. - Page 9 the image of this business as not a bunch of "cut throats" "profiteers" stealing from the artists and overcharging for "songs". Do we deserve this image? (EC: There's a lot of work to be done!!!) Maybe it's just rock n roll!

More on The Torch!!! We mentioned last week that Bobby Sniderman has a new gig, a French bistro which will take the space now occupied by The Senator Steak House. What we didn't mention is that Molly Johnson, now appropriately referred to methodology, with Anastasia contributing much of the lyrical content to Antoine's music.

"It's pretty much the same kind of way I was working with James," says Antoine. "Now, I do all the music, and produce the songs, and put some melody ideas in there, and then I give it to Anastasia. And if it gets her juices flowing, then we'll get some lyrics on it. I give her all the songs I write, and some of them she comes back right away with lyrics, and some of them just stay in the closet."

Judging from the rough mixes of the first few songs on the album (the full album will be released November 14th), the new duo have opted for a slightly dancier, beat-oriented sound, as opposed to the pure pop style of Pieces Of Paradise.

Antoine notes that the infusion of more rhythm into the music was purely a happy accident – a result of his exploring different emotions, and different moods over the past year.

"All of our music has always had kind of a groove to it, but Superhero really had that kind of house flavour to it. There are still some songs on the record that have the kind of pop vibe from the first album. But I wanted to explore some different kinds of emotions, and that came in different kinds of songs."

Of course, it would only make sense that the duo have created a groovier, dance-oriented album, considering that the majority of music coming out of the Montreal scene is of that ilk.

Antoine notes that the club scene is quite strong in the city, but it's primarily populated by dance artists and DJs. Bands trying to make the cut playing traditional rock and roll are few and far between.

"The club scene is still very strong, we've got some of the best clubs in the country. And electronic music is very strong. But for any music that's organic, there's not a lot of clubs that are playing original music. There's a couple of places where you can play with a band, but people aren't really into seeing those kind of bands."

Anastasia adds that the few clubs that do welcome more traditional bands tend to book the same bands again and again.

"And they have to play covers," she notes, "so you hear the same covers over and over as well. But I think the Quebecois are very much supportive of the underground scene there."

When Sky first emerged on the scene, in the fall of '98, their first single, Some Kind Of Wonderful, took off like a rocket, earning substantial airplay at both AC and CHR stations across the country, with the video thrown into heavy rotation at both Much and MusiquePlus.

Their next single, Love Song, did even better. The song hit #1 on the adult contemporary charts in March of '99, followed soon thereafter by the number one slot on RPM's Hit Tracks chart on April 12. Thanks largely to the success of Love Song, the group received an impressive seven nominations at the '99 MuchMusic Video Awards.

The group began to cultivate a live persona as well at that time, garnering the coveted opening slot on Britney Spears' Canadian tour dates.

But the success of the band became a difficult thing to handle for James, in particular. He preferred to stay out of the spotlight, but when you have a number one hit, and your video's are played constantly, and your face is splashed all over newspapers and magazines – staying out of the spotlight becomes a ludicrous suggestion.

Of course, Sky emerged at the height of the teen/boy band craze, alongside Backstreet Boys, *N Sync, Britney Spears, Christina Aguilera and others. It would be easy to see the duo as simply another incarnation of that trend, but Antoine bristles at the comparison.

"I've never really felt that (they were a boy band), except maybe for a couple of songs on the first record which were what I would call industry compromises. There were a couple of ballads on the first record, which never came out as singles, because we didn't want them to. But I always felt we were more of a Jamiroquai kind of thing, rather than a boy band kind of thing. Some of the stuff we were talking about on that first record – heroin, cocaine, group sex, that type of stuff... Plus there's the fact that we write, we play all our instruments, I co-produced the first record – that whole dynamic never made me feel comparable to what I call a 'talent act'."

Antoine produced Travelling Infinity alongside his longtime guitarist and cohort Alexis Dufresne, with mixing and production assistance from musical heavyweight Phil Tan (Mariah Carey, Toni Braxton, TLC) and Peter Mokran (Christina Aguilera, Prince).

When James parted ways with Antoine, it would have been easy for EMI Music Canada to discard the group, but the company deserves credit for sticking with Antoine and his own musical vision.

Antoine recognized the fact that EMI was likely going to be somewhat dubious of any Sky project sans James. But he worked hard at proving that he was capable of keeping the vision alive.

"I came to them with the demos of the first five songs, I'd organized a photo shoot in Montreal, I'd prepared this whole new package on the band – and they were completely ecstatic about it. Once we played them those first five songs, there was no doubt in anybody's mind that this was gonna be the new Sky.

"And it was important for me to do this while there was still momentum, and to show everybody that, yes, James may have been the lead singer of the band, but I was the core of this group. And once that was established with the label, I think everybody was ready to make this work."

The Antoine that first emerged with Sky and the Antoine who participated in this interview are clearly two entirely different beings. The former was, well, difficult, seemingly more interested in having a good time and enjoying the fruits of Sky's success than toeing the company line.

But the Antoine of today is clearly a different person. He admits that he's cleaned up his act, kicked the booze and drugs, and become a far more responsible artist.

"I've learned a lot more, and I guess I've learned to relax a little more, whereas before I was always going crazy. I guess it's maturity, as you get a little older you get a little wiser. But my head is still occupied with music all the time.

"And the eight months that I was writing this album, it put my brain into a whole different zone, it's like you're making music without even really thinking about anything else. Whereas before I'd just go into the studio for a certain period of time and work on it, now it's like I'm always in that zone a little bit, regardless of what's going on around me."

THE WALLFLOWERS - Pop/Rock
Breach
 Interscope-0694907452-J

The enormous success of Bringing Down The Horse made Jakob Dylan a star, but he appears to enjoy the stardom label about as much as his famous father. Watching a Wallflowers video can be a dour experience - Dylan looks about as comfortable as Cher on a ski hill, and one can't help but wonder if Dylan would prefer to be back in his apartment, picking out a new song on his guitar, thinking of new ways to look depressed and unkempt. And that moribund mood is abundantly evident in Dylan's music, which can contain some delightful hooks, but seems to emanate from a very sad voice. Breach is bound to be a tough road to hoe for the Wallflowers, given the tremendous success of that previous album, but there should be enough decent material here to at least keep the band on the charts for a little while. Lead single Sleepwalker is a fairly choice cut, although it somewhat pales in comparison to previous hits like Three Marlenas or The Difference. In fact, judging by the overall mundane sound of the album, it might be difficult for Universal to generate anything close to the sales this band enjoyed last time out. Hand Me Down is a nice countryified track, with a strong hook, and could grab some AC, CHR and maybe even country airplay. I've Been Delivered is pure Wallflowers, with Dylan's muted vocals and passive melody, while Witness is almost Band-like, with its somber horn arrangements. Some Flowers Bloom Dead is ironically upbeat, while Mourning Train is a typically morose slice of Dylanology. Up From Under has his famous father's genes all over it, while Murder 101 is surprisingly positive, despite its darker subtext. And Birdcage is a lovely acoustic tune to bring closure to the whole. Geez Jakob - you've sold millions of records, your Dad is a rock and roll legend - try smiling sometime. - RR

STEPHEN FEARING - Folk
So Many Miles
 True North-215-J

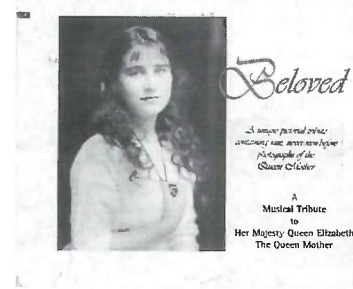

"In a world of disposable music" (David Hayes - liner notes), it's refreshing, not to mention stimulating, to hear an artist whose intensity of lyric and vocal respects every fibre of his work. There aren't too many folk singers around today, or those who will admit to being close to the land, the roots, the culture, but Fearing has that unique and perhaps magical method of dispensing with the fluff and getting right to the heart of the matter. Fearing displays a gentle mix of his Canadian and Irish roots and there lies the key to his free-flowing and witty message that impacts with the right touch of emotion on each of these 15 tracks. Want a bit of nationalistic blood stirring? Patch into The Longest Road ... it brings a tear to the eye. Actually, the whole album is pretty emotionally-charged, which is what folk music is all about ... connecting with the masses while still retaining that entertainment value. Fearing gives his listeners food for thought and he's a genius at doing just that: So Many Miles Away, Glory Train, Neil Young's penning of Thrasher, and his exciting guitar work on the Lark/Roberts' Waterloo, an instrumental. Remember, this is a live album, a difficult chore with the best of settings. The acoustics at Toronto's Tranzac Club must be near perfect. Producer Colin Linden layers Fearing's vocals on a pristine instrumental bed that enhances both the voice and the instruments. Pretty ingenious of Linden. By the way, Fearing is playing a Manzer "Cowpoke" guitar, built by Linda Manzer in Toronto. -WG

FANFARE: THE STRATFORD - Classical MUSIC OF LOUIS APPLEBAUM
 Marquis-7747-181269-F

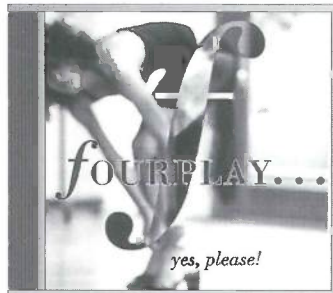

One tends to forget that the plays of Shakespeare employed music with songs integral to their plots or incidental to the action. None of the music has survived and there is even doubt that it was written by the Bard. That same doubt applies to the authorship of the writings ascribed to him. Anyway, music and Shakespeare are, or should be, inseparable. To that end during his long and, we believe, illustrious career the late Louis Applebaum composed and conducted music for the Stratford, Ontario Festival with the emphasis decidedly on the works of Shakespeare. He was Mozartianly prolific in output and some of the best of it is presented here by an orchestra conducted by Glenn Morley with the Elmer Iseler Singers. Individual singing and speaking artists include Christopher Plummer, Juan Chioran, Colm Feore and Richard Monette. The enterprise is decidedly a triumph. Shakespeare is well served by the music but, and this is the mark of Mr. Applebaum's genius, said music could thrive purely as programme presentations. Each track is a delight, but our favourite is that featuring dances from Much Ado About Nothing and The Winter's Tale. Simply delightful. -BW

BELOVED: A MUSICAL - Light Classical
TRIBUTE TO HER MAJESTY
QUEEN ELIZABETH THE QUEEN MOTHER
 Various Artists
 Majesty-019148-625599-J

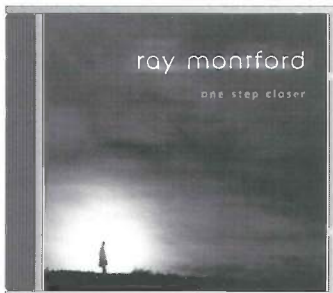

As per its title this is a musical tribute to the Queen Mother and includes selections of music that one can easily associate with her. There's Elgar, Mozart, Boccherini, Gounod, Schubert, Verdi, Noël Coward (singing Mad Dogs and Englishmen), Gershwin and even selections by Michael Hoppé, the man behind the project. He is well known as a musician/composer and, for many years, a leading executive in the music industry. What is perhaps not so well known is that his grandfather was a portrait photographer and was to his time as Cecil Beaton was to his. Accordingly, there are wonderful and rarely seen photographs of the Queen Mother included in the CD package making it a fine gift quite apart from its musical content. -BW

FOURPLAY - Jazz
Yes, Please!
 Warner Bros-9362-47694-P

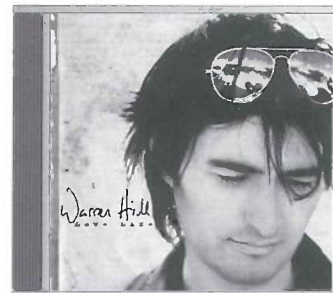

Settle down now! Title and group name notwithstanding, this isn't musical accompaniment to multi and kinky sex. Fourplay are Bob Jones (piano), Nathan East (bass and vocals), Larry Carlton (guitar) and Harvey Mason (drums). The programme they present here is one of laid back and even, easy jazz. The compositions are their own and clearly they have an affinity for them but one suspects they'd be just as effective playing the music of others. The instrument assemblage is more or less standard but the sound is decidedly distinctive. Oh, there could be a touch of Shearing here but not enough to challenge the quartet's uniqueness. Fore play, oops ... fourplay is most welcome. -BW

RAY MONTFORD - Jazz
One Step Closer
 Softail-74794 (Independent)

It's not right but to be commercially viable in the recording industry an artist must be associated with a particular "product". We deplore the word but there it is. Even Les Paul, arguably the best of all popular guitarists, didn't make it big until he started producing his multi-track extravaganzas. Significantly, his live appearances were hardly unqualified successes. All of which brings us to Ray Montford. We've reviewed his work before and enjoyed it but suggested that a finer market focus might be considered. Now with his latest album we're inclined to feel the same way. Once again, his skill with the instrument is almost palpable and, in the main, enjoyable. Certainly, fellow musicians will enjoy it -- what's not to enjoy? But as for the general public, we have misgivings over its acceptance of these eleven excellent tracks. The journey of musical portraiture is, we believe, too convoluted. Still, one must be man enough to say we hope we're wrong. Go get 'em gentle tiger. -BW

WARREN HILL - Jazz
Love Life
 Narada Jazz-24384-96602

This was assigned to us as jazz and we listened accordingly but suggest that colleague Tony Sutherland might have done it more justice. To our ear it's more urban than jazz as we know it but taken as such it's pretty good. Saxophonist Hill, sounding not unlike Kenny G., hops, skips and jumps through eleven tracks that arrest but don't always engage. Look, we're becoming too convoluted. Just give the album a respectful listen and enjoy a talented musician performing well ... what ever it is he's performing. D'accord? -BW

COLLECTIVE SOUL - Pop/Rock

Blender
 Atlantic-83400-P

If Collective Soul aren't careful, they're gonna get too popular, and we know what happens then - the high-brow critics will start to bash them, the kids won't think they're cool anymore, and next thing you know, they're playing the Vegas lounge circuit. Atlantic/Warner proudly proclaims that Collective Soul have had more #1 rock hits than any other band in the '90s, but being 'too popular' can be a dangerous thing for a true rock band. Alas, this new release contains enough hook-laden material to produce a few more rock radio hits, give the band even wider mainstream appeal, and really give the pop bashers plenty of ammunition. Why Pt. 2 has been taken as the lead single, and with its plain-jane guitar riff and reasonably effective hook, it should be a natural for rock radio programmers. And the kids will really recoil at the presence of Sir Elton John, who provides piano and vocals on Perfect Day, a tune that sounds just way too much like, well, an Elton John song. But it too has radio hit written all over it. Thankfully, the band didn't forget that rootsy, southern blues/rock style that made them a success in the first place, as evidenced on tracks like 10 Yrs Later, Boast, You Speak My Language or the quietly effective After All. A couple of the tracks, such as Vent or Turn Around, sound a bit too much like Collective Soul songs of old - there's an obvious danger here of the band starting to repeat themselves. But it's nice to here a song like Happiness, where the band lets it hang out and tries on some real tasty rock and roll. Given the current affection rock radio has for poppier type outfits, this one should score ample airplay. - RR
