DECLINE AND FALL

ALTHOUGH R.E.M.J. have now amended their earlier statement regarding popular hits on "singles," which are still to be available on 78s, it does appear that the time for complete cancellation of 78s throughout the industry is not far off.

The sales of 45 r.p.m. discs are shooting up at an incredible rate. Last year they more than doubled their 1957 sales with a total of more than 27 million. Proof, indeed, of their popularity.

Relative to this, 78 r.p.m.'s took a sharp dive, although the sales still remain large.

Now that the established trend is toward 45s, fostered by people also acquiring a taste for EPs and LPs, the transition must be governed by the availability of machines on which to play the 45 r.p.m. records.

While there is certainly no doubt that the complete change-over is inevitable, it is difficult to assess just how many machines capable of playing only 78s are still in general use.

Some homes have, for one reason or another, not yet installed the more modern equipment. For some the obstacle may be financial, for others the only reason is lack of mains electricity.

The problem is resolving itself, but the solution cannot be forced.

We are glad that the record companies are still aware of the need to cater for this section of the population, even though it may complicate their production methods and their distribution facilities.

For those considering new equipment, we know that the advantages of 45s, EPs and LPs will be abundantly clear. To those who still have to contend with the steel or fibre needle, we hope that it will not be long before they can share the pleasures of modern recordings.

It can be bought in Norway!

ERIK OLSEN of Trondheim, in Norway, wrote that he enjoyed the recordings of Jerry Lee Lewis, especially "High School Confidential" (DISC 14-3-59). But then he said that he was not able to buy the record in Norway.

That is not so. The very week that Erik Olsen's letter was published, "High School Confidential" entered the Norwegian Top Twenty at number 13.

An article whose records cannot be bought in Norway is Chuck Berry. They seem to be banned over here. Only one single disc has been issued—"Schooldays"—ERIK KINANDER, Carsten Ankersgade 25, Moss, Norway.

(You Norwegian guys must send this one between you.)

WRITE A LETTER—WIN AN LP

Life begins...

I HAVE got to the stage where I buy DISC for my son, but I read it first and select some pop and rock records which I buy, then "junior" is allowed to read it.

Elvis, The Platters, Lonnie Donegan, Connie Francis, and many others are household names in our home today, and yet, strange as it may seem, 12 months ago, I could not have cared less about rock and suffered in silence when my son played his records.

Is this a case of youth influencing age, or "pop" liking "rock"? My son is 17, I am over 40.—H. K. EDEN, Newmoor Road, Greasby, Wirral, Cheshire.

(We care for all ages.)

Out in the cold

I AM fed up with those fanatical old crones who condemn any revival of an old song such as "My Happiness," "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" or "Apple Blossom Time."

What would have happened to the tunes if they had not been revived? Although such melodies could never die, they would be left out in the cold, only to be used in some instrumental LP by Riddle or Mantovani. Now artists like Connie Francis, Paul Anka and Rosemary June have injected new life and vitality into them.

Every week an LP of his own choice is presented to the writer of the best letter, and once a month there is a bonus prize of a Ronson lighter and ashtray set.

With such sparkling arrangements as are used in recent recordings of "With The Wind And The Rain In Your Hair," and "My Heart Sings" I think these new styled versions deserve their current successes.—B. HOLLEY, Portway Road, Street, Somerset.

(The composers would agree with you, too?)

Take your pick

IN DISC (7-3-59), the LP reviews included The Jonah Jones Quartet playing "Swinging At The Cinema." This was awarded three stars.

The same week, this LP was reviewed by Owen Bryce in the traditional jazz column, and awarded only two stars. This makes the difference between good and ordinary.

Surely this shows that a record is a matter of taste and preference and that yours is over-simplified and unreliable.—RICKY DAVIS, Chippenfield Road, Birmingham, 34.

(Well, isn't a record a matter of personal taste? Our contributors air their own views—backed by their knowledge of the subject.)

200 Lonnies

CAN anyone beat this? I have collected, in the last three months, 150 large and 50 small pictures of my favourite pop star, Lonnie Donegan. I have used them to wallpaper my bedroom. HILARY GOSLING, Buxton Road, Hazel Grove, Cheshire.

(You see double a hundred times when you wake up!)

DISC dishes

MANY of my records have been played just a few times, and already the holes in them are worn a great deal larger. I wish the manufacturers would make the parts surrounding the hole much stronger.

However, I have found a use for my old records. I place them in very warm water. This makes them pliable; they can then be shaped into flowerpots, ashtrays or dishes.—CHARLES POLLACK, Alfred Street, Ballymena, Co. Antrim, N. Ireland.

(A bit difficult to play, aren't they?)

speaking public are naturally different and original, and I think it is this certain degree of originality that has put them in our charts.—ALAN PERKINS, Coronation Road, Clenchwarton, Norfolk.

(Italian songs have always had their following here.)

Browsing

HOW many DISC readers have a collection of really old records they can browse through? I suggest they start looking through them now, for in my search I found some of today's beauty oldies in their original state—"I'll Get By," "Whispering Grass" and "Trust In Me," which has recently been given a new lease of life by Patti Page.

I have an old Peggy Lee recording of "You Go To My Head," which will answer back the recent Tony Scott disc, "You Go To My Head Chi-Chi." NEIL McNAUGHT, Langdale Drive, Planckton, Yorks.

(We shudder to think what we would find in our lofts.)

Presley PCs

FURTHER to Miss Fleming's letter on EP covers (DISC 14-3-59), I should like to know why covers in Germany are different from those in Britain. I recently purchased the Everly Brothers' "Problems" in a hard cover like an LP, with a glossy coloured photo of the brothers looking the front.

Also on sale are postcard photographs of Presley and other stars which, in reality, are records.—J. R. SELBY, Auchmill Road, Buckburn, Aberdeen.

Well done!

MORE credit should have been given to Teddy Johnson and Pearl Carr for getting "Sing Little Birdie" into second place in the Eurovision Song Contest.

Surely this talented and popular couple at least deserved their photo on the cover of DISC, along with a few words of congratulation on their success?—(Miss) ELMA ALEXANDER, Anstruther, Fife, Scotland.

(Teddy Johnson's own story of the contest was published exclusively in DISC).

Try it first

SURELY if one wishes to purchase a record, it is not necessary to pay for it before deciding whether to buy it (DISC 28-1-59).

Whenever I have bought records, I have always been asked by the assistant if I would like first to hear my choice.

Even if the assistant does not ask, the record would always be played on request.

In my opinion, there is no need whatsoever for the use of juke boxes in record shops as suggested by your correspondent HENRY C. GIDDINGS, High Street, King's Lynn, Norfolk.

(Most record shops usually have "piped" music anyway.)

'Beep' ban

FOR those people who are a little confused over the supposed "banning" by the B.B.C. of "Beep Beep," may I help to clear this matter up?

The B.B.C. have not banned the recording by The Playmates.

Their disc was re-recorded for the British market, with the words "bubble car" and "limousine" substituted for "Nash Rambler" and "Cadillac."—W. R. SWALLOW, Queens Crescent, Kingsgate, Northants.

(We hope the bubble doesn't burst.)

Bad example

FILM actors and actresses set a bad example when they so frequently handle records carelessly in films.

Record collectors know that there is a right and wrong way to handle discs.—ROBERT WARD, Scarby Road, Manchester 18.

(Write to the film company about this.)

Another one!

WELL, now I have heard everything! Doug Geddes (DISC 28-3-59) is full of praise for some character called Lloyd Price, who has composed a song called "Stagger Lee."

Imagining my surprise upon hearing it to find it is merely a variation of an old ballad called "Stackalee," sung originally, I believe, by the great Woody Guthrie.

Still, I shall add it to my collection, which includes "Stackalee" (Dickie Bishop), "Stackolee" (Jesse Fuller) and "Bad Man Stack-o-lee" (Chris McDevitt).—STEWART NOBLE, Tay Street, Edinburgh 11.

(Do you like the ballad, by any chance?)

Marty's 'Donna'

I DID not think that Miss Leslie's letter (DISC 28-3-59) about Marty Wilde's "Donna" was in good taste, linking his name with that of the late Ritchie Valens.

Marty Wilde is still alive and has time to record more hits.—A. A. HARDING, Hampton Street, Minehead, Somerset.

(He will.)

Robin Luke fan

MY favourite disc star is Robin Luke, but I have never seen any pictures of him in DISC. Not even when he was in the hit parade with "Sue Darling."

To any reader sending me pictures of Robin I can send copies of the only Norwegian disc paper "Phillips Plateau," SWEN ARILD ELSTAD, Kleivg 18, Moss, Norway.

(Anyone read Norwegian?)

Instrumentals

I BELIEVE that a new trend in the musical world will shortly take place. I am sure that non-vocal recordings will play a large part in the rejection of rock.

Already three great numbers have worked their way into the hit parade—"Petite Fleur," "Side Saddle" and "Manhattan Serenade."

It was only recently that Joe Henderson was in the charts, too, with "Trude."

Carry on the British public, and buy these instrumental hits. It will encourage the recording companies to produce more.—(Miss) A. C. BENNETT, Gosbury Hill, Chessington, Surrey.

(Fingers crossed.)

Italian trend

IT seems there is no holding back the Italian influence over the public in the popular vocal field at the present time. The trend towards popular Italian music has been growing steadily ever since the winning song of the 1958 San Remo Festival, "Volare," really took hold of the public ear.

To continue this process came "Come Prima," and now "Ciao Ciao Bambina," the latter another prize-winning song.

These Italian songs to the English

LANGUAGE is no barrier to popularity in the world of music. And proving it on their latest visit to Britain are the Marino Marini Quartet.

In their 45-minute stage show the four talented Italians do not use a word of English, yet their reception everywhere has been tremendous, outclassing the enthusiasm which greeted their first appearance in Britain last November.

Then, it was their double-sided hit disc, "C'eme Prima" and "Volare" which swept into the charts.

Now comes their latest recording, "Ciao Ciao Bambina," written by another Italian "great," Domenico Modugno. This was the song that walked away with first prize at this year's San Remo Festival. The Quartet are hoping that it will put them right back into the top bracket of the hit parade.

During their British tour they will cut a new LP, for both stereo and monaural sound.

Live LP

It is also hoped that the Marino Marini Quartet will record another LP—a complete recording of their British stage show, taken, if possible, from a live performance.

This week the Quartet is in Liverpool, and next Monday, April 13, they open for a week at Newcastle, followed by a further six days in Manchester. They leave Britain in mid-May to travel to Naples, where they plan to enter a song in the Naples Festival.

Marino Marini was invited to sing the title song for the new film called "Honeymoon," which stars dancer Ludmilla Tcherina, Anthony Steele and Spanish dancer Antonio. This film was premiered in Madrid early last week, and has received such praise that it will be entered for the Cannes Festival next month. It will be screened in Britain soon after.

IT'S A RAGE
IN THE STATES

'Softly' will hit Britain with a bang!

DISC companies always keep eagle eyes and talons out for numbers which are likely to be really big hits. So much so, that when a possible number comes along it is overwhelmed and neither artists nor companies scoop the rewards they have dreamed about.

One such number is now on the horizon—"Come Softly To Me." It is having a large success in the States sung by The Fleetwoods.

Rival British versions, by Frankie Vaughan and The Kaye Sisters, and Craig Douglas, are already rumoured and I expect there will soon be more.

One version—but I am not saying which—will be getting an airing on "Cool" very soon.

Just imagine—me
a singer!

WHEN "Cool" first started, the idea was to produce discs on television. Now, in that curious roundabout fashion of show biz, we have gone the full circle by producing "Cool For Cats" TV—on disc.

Aim is to present the hits that you hear on "Cool" on EPs and a series will be made during the year. Our first record is out tomorrow and the six tracks on the Parlophone disc are: "Charlie Brown," "Hiawatha," "The Horner Show," "Cool Ghoul," "Alvin's Harmonica" and "Good Rockin' Tonight."

In the past, I have made a lot of remarks about people who sing and make noises on discs. Well, now I have it coming to me—I was called in to make the sounds on the "Alvin's Harmonica" number.

On it, I talk, and shout, and yell—and try to sing.

This was my first disc appearance and I was pretty nervous about it. But the efficient bandleader, Ken Jones, helped me with the timing while he kept the band going. With Ken and everyone else in the studio giving me confidence we made the grade—the first time.

Ken has organised a grand bunch of musicians for the disc, and under the title of "The Coolmen" they give great performances. And a very popular group of singers, The Mike Sammes Singers, provide fine vocal backing.

Guy with a beef

LETTER from a gent called Gene Harmon, who writes with an Asilene, Texas, date-line, tells me that, having spent some time in Britain, he now misses his weekly dose of "Cool."

"If 'Cool For Cats' came over on film it would be a big success as we have nothing to compare with it," he writes.

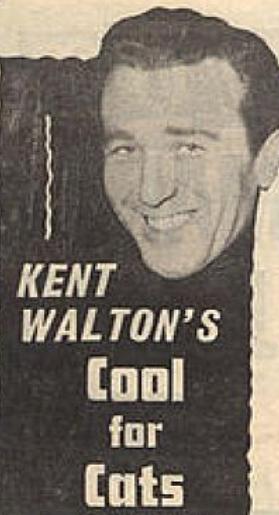

"I am sorry to say people over here have never heard of Alma Cogan, Frankie Vaughan or any of your wonderful singers," he beefed.

Gene added a list of the Top Ten at the time he wrote. It was pretty much the same as our own, but in ninth place I found Chris Barber's great instrumental "Petite Fleur." I wonder whether Gene is aware that this is a British disc; and I wondered how many Americans think that Chris is a U.S. star?

Although many of our artists have made successful tours in the States, there is some truth in Gene's letter.

British singers just do not make the impact in America that the Americans make over here.

Perhaps we have too few artists

KENT WALTON'S
Cool

with sufficient originality of style to compete against the avalanche of pressings that pour out weekly from U.S. disc factories.

That is our problem, but I think we are slowly getting over it. A couple of years ago back it was just as hard to find a British name in the British charts. That position certainly has changed.

HOME-MADE GUITAR

WHEN the first recordings of Johnny Gentle's disc "Wendy" and "Boys and Girls" arrived at his home he proudly presented a copy to his 12-year-old sister Ann. She took one look at the Philips label, and was duly impressed. But not, as it turned out, because this was her brother's debut on record.

"Gee," she murmured gravely, "now you'll be able to introduce me to Marty Wilde."

The other week, Johnny came along to the "Cool" studio to put across the "Wendy" side. Both this and the flip were members which this 19-year-old Liverpool boy had written.

Becoming a professional singer is an ambition that Johnny had dreamt of while working as a merchant seaman, and singing to entertain passengers.

As much as singing, he wanted to play the guitar. But he could not afford one. Then one day, while thumbing through a magazine, he came upon a do-it-yourself design.

He set to work, and in three weeks produced the instrument that he now plays.

TALENT IN YOUR TOWN

ABERDEEN

In the steps of a famous great-grandmother . . .

HERE are many roads to success in show business, and 19-year-old Chris Daniel has found that along his particular road he has had to take in jobs as a waiter and a kitchen hand. Chris was a bank clerk, but felt that he could make the grade as a singer when he had some success as a part-time entertainer in Scotland. He packed his bags and arrived in London, but he found it difficult to break into the closely-packed field of entertainment, and had to take the waitressing and washing-up jobs. Now, however, he has managed to get his London debut at the Teenage Show, Gaumont, Shepherds Bush, and he is hoping he can make a name for himself as successfully as did his great-grandmother many years ago in the music-hall. Her name was Vesta Tilley.

RYDE, I.O.W.

Harmony in voice and dress

THREE young ladies of 17 are grabbing quite a lot of attention on the Isle of Wight—and to some extent, off it. They go under the name of The Semelones now, though they began their professional life as The Elizabeth Bailey Trio.

It was under this last name that they entered a local talent show, came first in the heat and second in the final.

They are a harmony group, with a very pleasing style and tone, and they also have another advantage in being very attractive—an advantage they press home by all wearing identical dresses.

During the day they work in offices, and at night they either carry out their singing dates or practise with the help of a tape recorder. The girls' names are Elizabeth Bailey, Diane Elston and Patricia Turner.

CHELTENHAM

Teenage Top-Towners

YOU may have seen the very youthful group called the Cousins. If you were tuned in to the Top Town competition on B.B.C. television last Thursday, there were three girls, who, incidentally, really are cousins, and their ages are 14, 15 and 16.

They have put in a lot of practice under their musical director/arranger, Leslie R. Elston, and since the girls have quite a lot of time ahead of them yet even as teenage entertainers, it is likely much more will be heard of them in the future.

PENRITH

Rock 'n' roll winners

THE Black Jacks Rhythm Group of Penzance have been known for more than a year, some of the time under a different name and in a slightly different form.

They were first formed in February, 1958, as the Blue Diamonds. The group began by appearing at local shows, and then moved farther

They entered for the Cumberland rock 'n' roll and skiffle group championships, and triumphed over four Carlisle groups in the eliminating rounds. By the time of the finals

ASHFORD, KENT

TWO SINGING SEAMEN

IT is certainly a case of "songs my daddy taught me" for Garry Blackmore, a 20-year-old merchant seaman better known as Ashford—he hails from miles away at Wye—as a guitarist and country and western singer.

Garry's musical career began in Buenos Aires, where a Spanish guitarist gave him his first guitar lessons.

In Capetown, South Africa, he bought his first guitar for £2 and, deciding that Spanish music was not quite his style, Garry turned to the country and western ballads his father used to sing to him.

To these he sticks, preferring songs about people and songs with a story to pure rock.

Garry first saw a "live" audience when he won a talent contest in New Plymouth, New Zealand, and later when he played to passengers at sea. Garry and his group received a call from New Zealand radio. There followed a series of 12 broadcasts of an "On the Spot" programme and a number of highly successful stage appearances before Garry sailed for home.

It was somewhere in mid-ocean on a return trip to New Zealand that Garry met electric guitarist Mick Carroll, a 19-year-old fellow merchant seaman. Chelsea-born Mick admits that he learned to play for want of anything better to do during long voyages, and now he provides instrumental accompaniment for Garry's numbers and the two have made several discs together privately.

Mick still plays the guitar he bought in Southampton three years ago, unlike Garry, who has got through eight since he was 17.

The pair do not stop at playing, they compose their own numbers, too.

Mick wrote the signature tune for a local group with which they are featured, and together they have produced several beat numbers. Titles? They are not telling—until they see them in the hit parade!

The group consists of leader Roger Campbell (drums), Gordon Lightfoot (solo guitar), Colin Rousledge (piano), Trevor Brodgen (bass guitar), Malcolm Bardgett (vocals), David Fowler (bass) and Arthur Tallentire (solo and rhythm guitars). They have been auditioned for Radio Luxembourg's "Opportunity Knocks" and for an ITVate,

TWICKENHAM

An open invitation

THERE is an open invitation to DISC readers to call at "The Fountain" if they are in the Twickenham area on Monday nights. They can hear a talented group called The Greyhounds.

The group, which was formed three years ago, has played at jazz clubs and charity shows all over the country and is led by singer-guitarist Colin Maxwell, one-time dance-band singer and solo local entertainer.

He has an excellent electric solo guitar backing provided by Pete Raventhill, Dennis Martin and Tony Painter and the electric rhythm guitar, and the beat is supplied by Ron Martin on drums.

The group's ambition is to add a sax and bass guitar to their line-up and to turn professional. It seems as though the breaks cannot be long coming to The Greyhounds.

NEWPORT, MON.

Folk songs in modern idiom

SELECTED by the B.B.C. to take part in a programme, "Mainly For Women," university graduate Crinllys Davies, of Newport, was an immediate success with her singing of folk songs in modern trend accompanied by her own zither playing.

Mrs. Davies, who studied English, French and music at the University College of Wales, Aberystwyth, has made many sound broadcasts from Canada on folk music and she has lectured on the subject.

She specialises in English, American, Welsh and French folk music and her modern treatment is popular with youthful audiences.

NAT ADDERLEY IS NOT HAPPY WITH HIS RECORD DATES

'I WISH MY DISCS WERE ISSUED THE DAY I MAKE THEM'

MY biggest kicks these last few days have come from conversations with outstandingly-talented 27-year-old American cornettist, composer, Nat Adderley, who has come here for the Woody Herman tour. The New York jazz scene—and Riverside records, for that matter, for whom he records exclusively—could not wish for a better ambassador.

He told me: "There's so much music happening in New York. So many fine young musicians. Take the tenor scene, for instance. Three or four years ago, if any young cat came to town, he'd be bound to sound like, say Stan Getz, 'cos that was how everybody sounded them. But now you've got so many scenes going on."

Rollins is branching out one way and Coltrane another. And then there's Johnny Griffin in the middle going another way. And Benny Golson might come up with something else, too, though he's influenced by Coltrane a lot at the moment."

Nat told me that jazz musicians are selling records in large quantities in the States.

"Take Monk, he really sells records. That's what inspired Riverside to do so much recording, I think. I'm with them. So is (brother) Cannonball. You know, he sold 20,000 copies of a strings album he did for EmArcy. I did about 10,000 on one of mine, too, but it's been out a long time."

"I would say that Sonny Rollins can average about 10,000 per album. The lesser known guys might sell around 3,000. The money's getting better for record dates, too. Some of the top names can get about 3,000 dollars per album."

Where's Dizzy?

Nat's favourite trumpeters are, as I guessed, Dizzy, Miles, Kenny Dorham and Clark Terry. Of the younger musicians his favourite is Louis Smith from Atlanta, who recorded for Blue Note with Cannonball (listed as "Backshot La Funke").

When he arrived here last Wednesday, the first thing he asked me was: "Where can I find Dizzy Reece?" This question is as common now amongst visiting American musicians as "Where is Buckingham Palace or the Tower of London?" is to the average tourist.

Nat brought messages to Dizzy from Miles, Donald Byrd and Art Taylor. "You know, Miles loves Dizzy's playing. He called me up one night and played me a tinge of Dizzy's called 'Wilbert's Tune' over the phone. Miles has been playing quotes from that tune in his solos for some time now."

"I bought an album on Savoy in the States. It had Dizzy on one side and Tubby Hayes on the other. He's good, too."

BY TONY HALL

I asked Nat about his own record dates. "Well, to tell you the truth, I'm not satisfied with any of them. You know, you do a date and you hear it back and it sounds OK. But it doesn't get issued till four months later."

"Then, when you hear it, you think of all the things you could have done instead. And you find that your style has changed a lot in those four months. I wish they'd put it out the day you made it!"

"The only ones I like of mine are a concert date with Jay Jay (Johnson) for Columbia called "Jay Jay in Person." The critics put it down. But I liked it. It was more natural than most of the studio dates."

"You heard that album by Philly Joe Jones, 'Blues For Dracula'?" Man, Philly was fooling around and making so many jokes on that date during the solos and everything. I couldn't play for laughing. But there were some good things on that record. He's due to cut another this week. They're bringing in a new tenor player from Philadelphia named Jimmy Oliver for the date."

Sound good

"I did a second album for Riverside last week. The original idea was to use cornet and two trombones, Jimmy Cleveland and Curtis Fuller. Then I heard that there was a guy in town who'd been in the Air Force with Cannonball."

"He used to play bass horn. Well, I got him a tuba and he sounded so good, I used him on the date. He doesn't take solos on anything too up-tempo, but he plays that tuba like a trumpet. Slide Hampton did it on trombone."

Nat, incidentally, was full of richly deserved praise for his brother, Julian "Cannonball" Adderley. He told me that Cannonball had just come out of hospital after undergoing operation for a suspected brain tumor. "But he's all right, thank God, and he's back with Miles' band."

"Miles, Cannonball and Coltrane were meant to be coming to Europe this month. But the trip's off because the band's filming like mad for a possible television series and that could mean big money for them."

Nat opened with the Anglo-American Herman Herd at the Festival Hall last Saturday. He spent the previous evening touring the clubs, listening to British jazzmen. I hope to report on his findings in next week's DISC.

Vic's coming

SAN FRANCISCAN, Vince Guaraldi, pianist on the Woody Herman tour, has brought with him best wishes from British emigrant multi-instrumentalist, Victor Feldman.

Said Vince: "I did an album last week with Victor for Lester Koenig of Contemporary. It's a Latin jazz thing. Sounded pretty wild. Conte Candoli, Frank Rosolino and a great tenor-player named Walter Benton were the horns. Scotty LaFaro was on bass and there were five really great Latin drummers."

"Vic says he hopes to get over here in May."

Vince has been a mainstay of vibeman Cal Tjader's Quintet for the last two years.

Mature worldliness

"IJUST love lyrics," said Carmen McRae half-way through her first set on the opening night of her two-week stint at the Flamingo Club in London.

This love is very obvious in her performances. In fact, I feel that she interprets lyrics with greater feeling and more mature worldliness than any American jazz singer who has yet visited this country. Certainly more intelligently than Ella and less coyly than Sarah.

CARMEN MCRAE: Her stage manner is beautifully relaxed and friendly. (DISC Pic)

Although she performs ballads with great sensitivity, I preferred her at medium tempo. She swings ceaselessly, her pitching is just about perfect and she sings with sincerity, warmth and good humour. Her stage manner is poised and polished yet beautifully relaxed and friendly.

Her repertoire includes vocal versions of jazz instrumentalists like "Yardbird Suite" and the tender Jon Hendricks' lyricalisation of Benny Golson's beautiful "I Remember Clifford." Her standards, too, are carefully chosen.

On opening night, she sang the haunting "Supper Time" accompanying herself on the piano. (She plays very well, too, I might add!)

Bucking her is the ultra-tasteful Don Absey on piano (his delicate, but authoritative touch reminds me a lot of Hank Jones) with bassist Jack Fallon and drummer Tony Crombie.

JACK GOOD ASKS

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN THE BATTLE FOR THE BEAT?

TAKE A LOOK AT THE TOP TEN.

Done it? Notice anything odd? No? Ah-haa! Neither does anyone else. And that is the whole trouble.

There is scarcely the smell of a rock number there, and it has been like that for weeks. Now, I would not mind that so much, but what gives me the willies is that nobody cares. The only rock these pages ever contain nowadays is the eel variety together with six of chips.

Apathy is starting in, folks. A few months ago, a startling absence of the old rock 'n' roll would have been greeted by an uproar of yells and jeers from the grey-haired, wrinkled, embittered old rectangles in their gloomy Fleet Street offices. But to-day—never a word.

Maybe they have cried "Wolf" so often that they dare not risk declaring yet again that rock is dead.

But I fear that worse conclusions are to be drawn.

Can it be that rock is now actually ACCEPTED?

The thought sends a burning dart quivering through my heart. The moment there is no longer a fight about the big beat, then we can expect a steady decline in its power. If rock is now accepted, then it has lost its value, and very soon it will lose its interest and excitement.

Why, things have come to such a pretty pass these days, that my Mum knows more about the top ten than I do. What with "Side Saddle," "Petite Fleur," "Little Drummer Boy," and that pre-war Boy Scout ditty about chewing gum, it is clear that the record industry must be severely reprimanded for catering exclusively to one age group.

It is all very well cashing in on the amateur fads and fancies of the middle-aged, but doesn't the industry realise that there is a large potential buyers market among the teenagers?

Come on, kids, keep the battle for the beat going strongly. Do not be content just to leave it up to Teddy Johnson and Pearl Carr to keep the flag flying!

The week before last, we managed to keep the screaming on "Oh Boy!" down to an absolute minimum. I am not sure whether it was better that way, or whether the screams—however irritating in themselves—create the atmosphere. What do you think?

Cliff has a new one

DO you remember that when Cliff's last record, "Livin' Lovin' Doll" was released, I thought it was a pity that the best side that he had made since "Move It," had been shelved—a number by Ian Samwell called "Mean streak."

Well, it is to be released in a couple of weeks time, together with a brand new rocker called "Chopping And Changing."

I have not yet heard the recording of this last one, but I have heard Cliff and The Delights perform the number live and believe me, it really goes.

Top value

from Presley

I HAVE just heard the other side of the new Presley, to be released around mid-April, "I Need Your Love Tonight" is the up-tempo side—taken at "I Got Stung" speed, but with a better tune,

It has the same bass voice gimmick as "I Got Stung" and, in general, the same sound. In fact, I should not be at all surprised to hear that this record and "One Night I Got Stung" were made at the same session.

Presley is really fantastically consistent with his records. They are always top value, and this one is no exception.

Both sides are beautifully performed and both sides have a melody worthy of the performance.

I expect the sales will follow the same pattern as the last one. The faster side will make the more immediate impact, but the slower number will pull up alongside slowly but surely, and eventually overtake.

'Men don't make passes... -oh yeah!

DO you think of the majority of "Oh Boy!" viewers as teenage girls? Most people seem to. Well, if you do, you are sadly mistaken. A recent survey reported that the show's viewers were predominantly male—and well over the teenage.

This could explain why the girl with the glasses, Margaret Stredder, gets more fan mail than anyone else in the team. Many of the letters are addressed: "The Blonde with Glasses."

I'll tell you now that Margaret's hair is blue-grey. Barbara, who stands on the left of the trio is blonde, and Jean on the right is auburn.

The Vervons Girls are the hardest worked of all the "Oh Boy!" team. You see, they have two TV series to rehearse and perform—"Oh Boy!" and Brian Teitel's "New Look." Both programmes involve memorising dance routines and harmonies—although the styles of each show are totally unlike. This seems to present no problem to the girls, who move from one to the other with complete ease.

Large credit for this must be attributed to the brilliant work of Leslie Cooper, the dance director, who took over the group when they were completely untrained and effected a transformation comparable with turning a pumpkin into a golden coach.

On the vocal side, it was Peter Knight who made a choir out of a group of girls who, for the most part, had no training as singers.

And now his work is being ably continued by Bill Shepherd, since Peter's sizeable contract for Granada has not left him time for both jobs.

Blowing his way round Britain on a 15-town tour is great American bandleader/clarinetist, WOODY HERMAN (right). His eight-piece 'Herd' is brought up to strength by nine of Britain's top jazzmen.

WOODY IS HAPPY TO CHANGE HIS PLAN

AFTER only two days in rehearsal, Woody Herman's Anglo-American band could have been forgiven for just about anything when they took the stage at the Festival Hall on Saturday.

But after the latest Herman Herd had blasted out a rough, but righteous "The Preacher" and moved into a slinking, crav-tango blues, it was obvious that no compassion was needed.

The spotlight switched from soloist to soloist—picking out the features of nine of Britain's finest jazzmen and the eight American visitors. And all were swinging.

Incredibly, Woody Herman had made them into a band overnight.

As they strode through one Herman classic after another—"Four Brothers," "Early Autumn," "Apple Honey," "California"—it became apparent that by the end of his 15-town tour Woody would have a really fine unit.

Much of the credit must go to the all-American rhythm section, sparked by the unsual propulsion of lean, tall Jimmy Campbell's drums. Bassist Keeter Betts, too, helped to mould a fine foundation for the soloists to build on.

THE BIG BAND WILL BE DOING MOST OF THE BLOWING

And what soloists they were: the flutter-fingered trumpeter Nat Adderley; the agitated, nervously-blasting veteran trombonist Bill Harris; the super-sensitive guitarist Charlie Byrd.

It was Byrd who almost stole the show with his feature spot.

Changing to finger style, he hushed the capacity audience with a classical piece in the manner of his former tutor Segovia, an elegant arrangement of "Greendlees," a rocking blues, and a Django Reinhardt number.

Herman's somewhat dated clarinet style contrasted with the solos of the other musicians, but he, too, is a swinging musician.

At times, riding over the ensembles, he added considerably to the tension. But it is as a bandleader and not as an instrumentalist, that Herman makes his mark in 1959.

Woody gave his British musicians plenty of room.

Den Rendell, leading the saxes, had the heaviest solo chore. But it was Bert Courtney—sitting beside the great lead trumpet, Renaud Jones—who made it apparent that this Anglo-American investment of the National Jazz Federation will pay impressive dividends.

Highspot of the British solo contributions was flautist Johnny Scott's almost exotic work in his own composition, "Call of the Flute."

Herman's obvious satisfaction with his two-day-old band was reflected in his change of plans. Originally it was intended to have the American group, working as a septet, play most of the bill. On the night it was the big band that had most of the blowing, and wild blowing it was.

The Espresso Bar was an immediate hit. A juke box was installed and Mr. Hogan applied to the courts for a music and dancing licence.

But a council spokesman complained of "juke box frenzy" and "hooliganism."

The magistrates refused the licence.

"Immediately," said Bert Gay, now chairman of the club committee, "the '81 Club" was formed in premises behind the Espresso Bar. And the juke box has continued to be played by members."

"What's wrong with music?" she asked. "I'm not against youngsters coming here to enjoy themselves. I can't see any harm in listening to a juke box."

In the club, 19-year-old Johnny Merrick slid a coin into the juke slot.

"You won't hear Elvis on a street corner," he said. "There's nothing in Gillingham for boys unless we have our kind of music in our kind of club."

WHAT'S in a name? I often wonder how songwriters get their titles. Now, in the case of The Kingston Trio I know. Their latest disc is "Tijuana Jail"—so I wrote to ask them why this particular title.

Dave Guard answers that it is a jail in Mexico. To prove it he has enclosed some cuttings from the "Los Angeles Times" which tell a delightful tale of a police raid on a gambling soiree at a private club.

One member had 13,000 dollars in his pocket when the Mexican police swooped. They confiscated the lot. The police grilled 83 people for 24 hours and $40,000 was seized altogether. So now we know.

The Trio say that they want to come here for television. They should prove to be very welcome guests—especially after listening to their new LP, "From The Hungry i," on Capitol.

This is a collection of songs from live shows at the Hungry i Restaurant.

More news on "Sing Little Birdie." There are now more than 20 recordings of the song issued on the continent. Jack Heath tells me that everything is going fine with the sheet music sales. Pearl and I are grateful, too, to the thousands who have bought our disc.

Don't be put off

THERE is a new record on the market—"Skin And Bones," by Carl Stevens and his orchestra. Carl is a new name to me. But the Skin refers to a quartet of drummers. And the bones? An awesome foursome of trombones. Line-up includes accordion, five voices, trumpet leader Stevens, two pianos, bass guitar and harp.

What happened to the kitchen sink, Carl?

But do not let this put you off. It is an interesting excursion on Mercury.

CRACK OF THE WEEK. The reedocent-jazzman Woody Herman watched a lighting expert altering the lamps for his appearance on TV. Looking up, he asked dryly, "You haven't one of those that puts hair on the head?"

Chart trend

THE latest trend in America is a signpost to the future. They now have two sets of best selling charts—those for monaural and others for stereophonic discs.

It may mean that one day we will get an announcement from EMLL, "In future we shall only record in stereo!"

Village stuff

ANDY GRIFFITHS is a straight actor. He has starred in the play "No Time For Sergeants"—both the original Broadway stage version and the film.

A couple of weeks ago he was in the film "Onion Head" at our local cinema.

The first time he registered with us was in the screen version of "A Face In The Crowd." Now this method actor has registered with Pearl and me on disc.

He has made an amusing disc of "Hamlet." This 45 r.p.m. tells the story of the Shakespearean classic as seen through the eyes of a country bumpkin.

Amusing stuff which may put Andy in the Stan Freberg class.

A D.J. by any other name

NEAL Aspin celebrated his return to radio with his ever-popular B.B.C. programme "Quiet Rhythms" last week. He tells me that this is his 14th year presenting the show. Neal said that he objects violently to being called a disc jockey.

"I am a record presenter. I hate the term DJ," he asserted. Whatever the rose be called, his programme has a nice smell for good music.

SILENT

WOODY

THE Musicians' Union stopped Woody Herman from playing his clarinet on the Cyril Stapleton ITV show last Friday. And Woody did not even know that he was the object of such attention.

He had accepted an invitation from Cyril to be interviewed on the show—and then the maestro, who was paying a salute to this fine jazzman with his version of "Woodchoppers Ball," asked if Woody might be allowed to play the clarinet solo. He received a definite "No."

I think that the Musicians' Union could have relaxed just a little, especially in view of the fact that the American Federation of Musicians lifted their ban and permitted the Chris Barber band to television on the coast-to-coast Ed Sullivan Show.

As Chris and Woody are on a reciprocal exchange it would have been a charming gesture from our side.

New to you,

A MAN walked into a musical instrument shop and asked for a guitar string in the key of C. The shopkeeper said he was sorry—he was temporarily out of stock. All he had left were G strings.

The customer stated he'd take that. Thinking that the man was mistaken in his knowledge of music, the dealer explained there was a vast difference between C and G strings.

"Oh, that doesn't matter," said the customer. "You see I own the grocer's down the road and use 'em for cutting cheese!"

BOOKED TO DO FOUR CONCERTS, HE STAYED FOR 56!

Tony Brent stopped India's traffic

THERE was almost a return-of-the-prodigal-son atmosphere about the reception given singing star Tony Brent on his recent India tour. And trail-blazer Tony, booked to do four concerts, completed 56!

This week Tony told me enthusiastically about his visit to India, land of his birth, and also to Ceylon.

"That part of the world offers a vast

By

open stage for entertainers," he told me. "The people are starved of visiting stars and are bursting to welcome artists who have something additional to a string of disc hits to offer."

So impressed was Tony that he is not likely to delay accepting an invitation to make a return tour not confined to India but taking in other parts of the Far East. If his answer is "Yes," it will mean that he starts an extensive tour next December.

If Tony had any worries about his reception in India they were quickly dispelled by the reaction of the audience when he opened at Bombay's lush Taj Hotel, before a strictly upper-crust clientele.

There followed other concerts in Bombay, to capacity houses, and then Tony moved on to Calcutta. He played the Grand Hotel there in the Princes Room and, Tony told me, "There was so big an overflow that I had to do a further concert immediately after in the open-air restaurant before 1,500 patrons."

"I did nearly 45 minutes in the Princes Room, then had to start all over again with another 65 minutes act."

Recollection of that marathon caused Tony to wipe his brow! Tony was also booked to play the New Empire, in Calcutta, and within four hours of the box office opening the theatre was completely sold out.

Much of Tony's popularity has come through the constant success of his records out there. He made a big hit with "Cindy" and

An invitation already for TONY BRENT to return to India, land of

"Chanson D'Amour" and, more recently, he has had three in the top twenty with "Little Serenade," "The Clouds Will Soon Roll By" and "Call Me."

He did a personal appearance in a record store in Calcutta, where the traffic was brought to a standstill outside.

Says Tony: "I've never made a personal appearance with such success anywhere."

"The E.M.I. organisation did a wonderful job for me and my wife, Norseen. We were treated royally at every stop."

On the subject of music trends, Tony said that all the youngsters are rock 'n' roll mad, but added that adults do not take it too seriously.

There are dozens of world-be-be Presleys, but where records are concerned only Presley is good enough for the disc enthusiast. However, there is difficulty in obtaining his records in that part of the world.

The majority like good ballads, and this is borne out by Tony's own record success. The public go for Pat Boone in a big way and The Everly Brothers also enjoy a big following.

When Tony arrived in Colombo he found a crowd of some 1,800 people waiting to greet him.

Said Tony: "I really got the biggest surprise of my life. I knew that my records were achieving a good degree of popularity but I didn't expect a welcome like this one. It was fantastic and more than a little awe-inspiring."

"In all I did 20 concerts in Ceylon, and I loved every moment I spent there. The Singalese hospitality is wonderful."

JAZZ HAS ITS ROOTS IN THIS STREET MUSIC

ALL traditional jazz lovers will applaud the action of Topic Records who are to issue records devoted to the roots of jazz. An action which looks like succeeding, especially as they have acquired the rights to the American Folkways catalogue.

Topic have been right in the forefront with folk fans with their outstanding issues, issues which were only topped when they commenced drawing from Folkways.

And now they intend to issue three LPs from Samuel B. Charters' famous collection entitled "The Music Of New Orleans"—"The Music Of The Streets And The Music Of Mardi Gras," "The Music Of The Eureka Brass Band," and "The Music Of The Dance Halls."

The first consists of recordings by anonymous street singers actually recorded on the streets and consisting of down-to-earth music, the same music which gave jazz its birth.

Going strong

Outstanding, historically speaking, is the Eureka Brass Band. This marching band, still going strong, dates way back to before the 1914 war, and during its time practically every New Orleans musician has played with the band. On this disc we shall hear Percy Humphrey on trumpet, Albert Warner, often photographed but rarely recorded, on alto, and Ruben Roddy on alto saxophone.

Perhaps the most interesting from my point of view will be "The Music

Of The Dance Hall." For I maintain that jazz is primarily a music for dancing, and that way back the Crescent City bands were in existence mainly for providing dance music. That they also happened to play marvellous jazz was just by the way. That they also played waltzes and whatever they did then instead of the cha-cha was also by the way.

On this third volume will be blues singer Billie Pierce, trumpeter Dee Dee Pierce, clarinettist Emile Barnes and others. I cannot help wondering whether some of us are going to get a shock when we hear present day New Orleans music, for these were all recorded in the last seven years.

Topic also enter the jazz field with a new recording from Big Bill Broonzy. Big Bill not only sings this, he talks about his songs and how he came to write them,

Lastly, while on the subject of Topic, their recording director sees that British jazz will also find a place in their programme. Provided it is experimental. I wonder where they will find it. There is only one formula for success in the British jazz field. Get hold of some American disc, obscure if possible, copy it, and then record it.

ANTHONY THORPE (14) - Lea Bridge Road, London, E.18.

I shall definitely watch the programme again. I don't think that the orchestral backing is as good as "Oh Boy!" The items in "Drumbeat" are too down-beat and the cameras stayed on one person too long.

The John Barry Seven were good, and so were The Kingpins and The Three Barry Sisters. I think Vince Eager came over particularly well, and I hope that he is included often.

MISS BRENDA BRANDON (16), Cumberland, London.

"Drumbeat" is really what it wanted. I was in the studio and I must say I loved every moment of it. I have also been to "Oh Boy!" several times and that is the nearest show to it and seems to be the right answer.

RICHARD BIRD, Seven Kings, Essex.

A very good programme. Not quite as lively as "Oh Boy!" but much better than "Dig This!" and "Six-Five". I liked Russ Conway, but I thought the production wasn't as good as it might have been—there was too much copying of "Oh Boy!"

RAYMOND GROSS (14), Leicester Road, Saltford, 7, Gloucester.

I never thought that "Oh Boy!" could possibly take a beating, especially when "Dig This!" failed so miserably. But now I can see that I was wrong.

"Drumbeat" certainly lives up to its name. It's a really terrific programme and it is lucky for Jack Good that its swing doesn't clash with "Oh Boy!"

Congratulations to the producer for really giving us teenagers the best in the big beat.

PAMELA NORRIS (16), St. Charles Square, London, W.10.

Yes, I like "Drumbeat" very much. I shall certainly continue to watch it, and "Oh Boy!" The new B.B.C. show is a big improvement on "Dig This!"

I really liked Vince Eager, and I hope that he's on this programme again. The John Barry Seven were very good, too, and I'm glad that they are a regular part of "Drumbeat."

It's quite a fast show, and I liked it generally.

I don't think that there could be any improvement.

MISS JACKIE DAVIES (20), Bletchley, Northamptonshire.

I think "Drumbeat" will be a big success.

It is a little too much like "Oh Boy!" but it could do worse. If only there were something different about it.

one would not keep comparing it with other shows. Even the lighting is similar, and so is the placing of the artists.

The music sound is not as good as it should be, and I thought that Guy Goodman could have been used with better effect.

Vince Eager came over well, particularly his dancing, and I hope he is a regular feature. I like The Three Barry Sisters, and they make a change in the nearly all-male shows.

BRIAN MYERS (13), Eversley Crescent, Winchmore Hill, London, N.21.

I thought I was watching the continuation of "Oh Boy!" on another channel. The sound is the best I've heard on the B.B.C., especially that of the John Barry Seven. After watching "Dig This!" I didn't think that the B.B.C. could ever again compete with ITV, but now we can have the best of both channels.

Shades of 'Oh Boy!'

says DOUG GEDDES of DISC

THE NEW TEENAGE SHOW "DRUMBEAT" HIT THE B.B.C. SCREENS LAST SATURDAY WITH LIGHTS, AND SHADES, OF "OH BOY! THAT IT SHOULD BE LIKE THIS IS NOT A BAD THING, FOR "OH BOY!" HAS SHOWN THAT ITS FORMULA IS AS NEAR PERFECT AS ONE COULD WISH FOR THIS TYPE OF SHOW.

Even with the similarity, there is room for improvement in "Drumbeat". On its first showing, however, I think that "Drumbeat" got away to a good start.

Vince Eager came over particularly well and, unlike most rock singers, seemed to sing in English, for I heard every word.

The John Barry Seven are a good choice for this show, though they, too, suffered badly by poor sound balance.

The use of guest stars is a good one for widening the appeal of the programme, but care will have to be shown in the choice of artists and their material. I found both Dennis Lotis and Russ Conway perfect in their own sport, but their particular contributions allowed the tempo of the show to sag.

Though the "Oh Boy!" audience drives me "up the wall", I found the restrained B.B.C. audience left something wanting.

Stewart did a great job

says JACK GOOD, producer of 'Oh Boy!'

STEWART MORRIS has done a great job with the team of artists he brought together on "Drumbeat"; never have they been shown to better advantage.

They were happy and relaxed, and for this reason gave that extra something that we have not seen before in them.

First there was a new lively Vince Eager, with more personality than I imagined he possessed. Roy Young, too, had a new spark.

Of all the "Drumbeat" cast, he was the one whom the young star of our show, Brenda Lee, picked out as a winner. Roy not only put over "I Go Ape" with polish, he played a fine rock 'n' roll piano. I liked "Tall Paul" by The Three Barry Sisters, who were lucky to have the same backing as they had on their excellent Decca recording—that of the John Barry Seven.

This combo gave us their disc version of "Long John"—a great Barry original.

One thing that particularly delighted me was the fine improvement Adam Faith has made. You see, I had originally persuaded Adam—Terry Nelsom at the time—was to risk leaving his amateur status with the Worried Men skiffle group to become a solo performer. This showing at last began to warrant my persuasion. Terry has never been so good.

The choice of numbers was one I could hardly argue with (with the exception perhaps of "Side Saddle" played by Russ Conway) though, probably, the good looks of Russ, plus his double-first in the current charts were sufficient to justify his spot.

As for Dennis Lotis' "Moonlight Serenade," what can I say? Dennis is a great TV artist, and never does a bad telecast.

DENNIS LOTIS, ADRIENNE CORRI and producer and author JOHN OSBORNE take a break during rehearsals.

Angry Young Man play gives him a chance of a new career

But I'm not quitting discs, says Dennis Lotis

"good" according to Jack Good, but did not win so much approval.

DENNIS LOTIS has always had an eye for the main chance. "Better to take a chance on a dream that might not pay off than live with it gnawing at the imagination," he once wrote. And so it is not surprising to find the lean-faced and likeable South African pop singer shelving one ambition to fulfil another.

Nine months ago Dennis would day-dream of a permanent film role in Westerns. This week I found him in the echoing gloom of a deserted London theatre rehearsing for the new John Osborne musical play, "The World of Paul Slickey."

The work of this so-called "angry young man" has come into prominence in recent times, but, says Dennis, "I find John far from being an angry young man."

"How I came to be chosen for the role I am not quite sure, though it may have been through my screen appearances in 'Extra Day' and 'It's a Wonderful World.'

However, those were quite a time ago, and it would seem that producers only saw me as a singer. This time in the play I really get a wonderful part."

"True, I sing in 'Paul Slickey'. In fact there are about six songs in which I am involved, but there is also a meaty acting part for me to revel in."

"There are two big songs for me, a bluesy number called 'Tell Me

Later,' and 'Can't Afford A Guy Like Me,' both of which are really great."

"The lyrics are, of course, written completely by John Osborne, with a wonderful musical score by Christopher Whelan, who brought the book up to Birmingham for me to read."

"I play the part of a Fleet Street gossip columnist, Jack Oakham, who writes under the name of Paul Slickey. In the course of my work I have a great time, with a number of affairs en route, all of which makes the part a particularly gay one."

"I decry the modern pop singer which, for me, seems a little unusual."

When I asked Dennis if we should lose him completely from the record field, he reassured me,

"I shall continue to make records, a medium that I love working in, and I shall make whatever TV appearances I can between working in my new role."

"The World of Paul Slickey" is well under rehearsal and opens on April 14 at Birmingham.

Two more provincial dates follow; at Brighton and Leeds, before it opens at London's Palace Theatre on May 7.

The opening will bring about the achievement of an ambition for Dennis Lotis for, with the exception of a very short run in a musical called "Harmony Close," this is his first big starring role in a play of this type.

Though new to this particular field, however, Dennis Lotis has a host of performing experience behind him.

The days with Ted Heath gave him plenty of experience, and he has since followed this with variety, television, and his film parts.

Dennis played in pantomime last season for the first time and this will have given experience which is now about to prove particularly useful in his new show.

Mostly he has worked with the aid of a microphone but now, as in the panto, he has to project his songs and his lines unaided.

Dennis told me, "I really hope to prove myself in every way, and I am delighted at getting this big chance in which to try to do so. DISC readers will wish him well in this new venture, even if it means that we may see a little less of him in scene directions."

OLDIE GIRL IS BACK AGAIN

THE "Tom Dooley" threesome — The Kingston Trio — turn up once more, and this time they've got another "possible." A jilt song which may sentence them to another spell in the hit parade, with any luck.

But topping the tree this week is that oldie girl, Connie Francis, back with another winner.

The trend to ballad and corn-belt numbers continues — it's very evident that "Sing Little Birdie" is a sign of the times. "Be Mine" . . . "Laurel" . . . "Sweet Kentucky Belle" . . . "I'm Never Gonna Tell" all show sweetly.

There's also a tremendous adaptation of "Angelina" by Steve Lawrence. The new U.S. Army vocalist sends out a lyricalised treatment of the ballad under the title "Only Love Me." I think thousands will.

STEVE LAWRENCE
Only Love Me; Loving Is A Way Of Living
(H.M.V. POP604)**

ONLY Love Me is the Italian melody "Angelina," kitted out with an excellent English lyric — and in this form it really ought to find itself in the Top Twenty.

A first-class vocal from Steve Lawrence is complemented by the arrangement and orchestral direction by Don Costa. Tune skips along prettily with Lawrence in superb shape. Chorus, hand-clapping and a touch of solo trumpet all help the sound to be very commercial.

Loving Is A Way Of Living is another good ballad with attractive rhythm. Altogether one of his most potent couplings.

JACKIE DAVIS
Frenesi/Gonna Get A Girl
(Capitol CL15005)

JACKIE DAVIS, who is gradually gaining ground in this country as a result of his jazz organ long players, now gets a single release.

And his keyboard style really suits the revival of Frenesi. Davis tips through it to cha-cha-cha tempo and he's backed up deliciously by a slick rhythm section.

FORMULA AS BEFORE

CONNIE FRANCIS

If I Didn't Care; Towards The End Of The Day
(M.G.M. 1012)

CAN Connie Francis do it yet again? Well, I think so! This remarkable young vocalist sticks to the formula which has brought her to the top. Her revival of "I Didn't Care" strikes me as a better disc than "My Happiness." Ray Ellis orchestra lays down the beat and there is a big chorus flying behind as Connie goes her sweet selling way. This one has the same feel about it as "Who's Sorry Now," and older fans will get the humour of introducing an Ink Spots deep male voice for interjections.

You're Young
(Columbia DB4281)

HOFFMAN and Manning had the major hands in the writing of I'm Never Gonna Tell, so you might guess that it's a bright, bouncing ballad — and you wouldn't be wrong.

Weaving around a cute lyric, the tune's a kind of country romancer and Jimmy Rodgers finds no trouble at all in making it into one of his more likeable halves.

That's the sign that indicates a Don Nicholl Tip—a disc that looks like spinning right to the top.

Slower, more sentimental ballad is Because You're Young and it has just as much chance of happening as does the other deck.

FARON YOUNG
That's The Way It's Gotta Be; We're Talking It Over
(Capitol CL15003)

THE country and western star has a bright number from Roy Drusky to chart in That's The Way It's Gotta Be. Typical cowboy accompiment is made up of guitars with some violins thrown in for the sob sound. Lyric tells of a man laying down the law for his girl friend.

Faron composed the other side in collaboration with Merle Kilgore. Fiddle sound for the barking again as the cowboy turns on some tears about his romance.

ANDY GRIFFITH

ANDY GRIFFITH first made his mark on disc as a yokel-type humourist picking pop songs to pieces.

Flattery; Love Eyes
(M.G.M. 1010)

SEEMS a long while since these husband-and-wife stars Clooney and Ferrer first tried teaming up on record. They did pretty well that time and they could have another novelty sale with Flattery.

They work well on a humorous lyric based on the idea that flattery will get you nowhere. Or should it be flattery will get you everywhere?

Song is taken at a slow shuffle with appropriate interjections from both Jose and Rosemary.

For the flip Clooney is on her own with a belting ballad, Love Eyes, which she sends out like a rocket. Great stuff packed with excitement and bolstered by a powerful big band backing directed by Sy Oliver.

Dooley trio find a hit 'in jail'

THE KINGSTON TRIO
The Tijuana Jail; Oh Cindy
(Capitol CL15002)

THE boys who made "Tom Dooley" a smash hit may find themselves among the big ones again as a result of Tijuana Jail. The humour in this story about an ill-fated visit to a gambling town south of the border is put over neatly by the trio. Their relaxed performance will please all those who have been looking for another good one from this direction.

Oh Cindy is taken from the new film "Rio Bravo" and it has a real corn-belt flavour. The Kingston Trio whip it across to a stout square dance thump. Dave Guard has arranged this old, oldie and it is he who takes the lead vocal.

Ernestine weaves a very tight spell

ERNESTINE ANDERSON

Be Mine; I Don't See Me In Your Eyes Anymore
(Mercury AMT1037)

THE strong rich voice of Ernestine Anderson is led by a femme chorus into the flowing melody of "Be Mine." And the girl packs the ballad with a lush romance that ought to capture sweetheart sales wherever it's heard. Gleaming performance which surges slowly and surely towards high figures. Miss Anderson weaves a very tight spell.

"I Don't See Me In Your Eyes Anymore" is one you'll have heard before, but, believe me, it's worth hearing again via Miss Anderson's lips. Male group working with her this time round. The ballad has the velvet touch.

Coates. No One Ever Tells You is one we all know. A great bluesy ballad that has such a lonely atmosphere, you start looking around for friends.

THE POLKA DOTS
Hey Liley, Liley Lo; Go Chase a Moonbeam
(Nite N15194)

FUNNY how they keep coming back, isn't it? Hey Liley, Liley Lo (with various spellings) appears to be the vogue once more.

At first glance it seems an odd choice for the sophisticated style of the Polka Dots. But, having heard it, I think it could enable them to reach a wider market than they've been finding. Good arrangement slickly sung and taken along at a smart speed.

Mandolin opening for Go Chase A Moonbeam, which emerges as a light Latin ballad. Very attractive lyric and a performance to match.

EVE BOSWELL
Wimoweh Cha Cha Boogeborg Se Dan
(Parlophone R.4544)

THE traditional Zulu chant, "Wimoweh," is suddenly finding favour once more, and Eve Boswell sets it to a modern cha-cha tempo.

Still a very good tune, it receives excellent treatment from Eve, chorus and the Tony Osborne orchestra. And how well it tends itself to the Latin. "Wimoweh" was insidious enough to be a success before . . . it could repeat the trick.

Another traditional item comes up on the other side. Eve sings a translation in English, for which I'm grateful.

And his "What It Was Was Football" caused a minor sensation in grove quarters.

Now, after a spell of serious acting and pop singing, he returns to this field of endeavour.

Hamlet is broken down here and described as if by a country character who's seen the show for the first time. Griffith wrote the material himself and delivers it neatly. Disc was taped at a live show and the audience laughter may help to spur chuckles from record listeners, too.

Personally, I don't rate it so high as Andy's previous efforts.

QUINCY JONES

Tuxedo Junction; The Syncopated Clock
(Mercury AMT1037)

QUINCY JONES and his orchestra bring two old favourites back to the fold with this fine coupling.

It's a big band which Quincy batons and the noise it produces for Tuxedo Junction is little short of great. Swings easily all the way and there's some squawking saxophone breaking through every so often.

The Leroy Anderson standard on the turnover never seems to lose its novelty. Jones directs it in steady time and the sticks give the tick-ticks a crisp sound. Some polished work from saxes and brass men help to lift it out of the normal.

RAY ELLIS

Lauralee Sweet Kentucky Belle
(M.G.M. 1011)

CONDUCTOR-ARRANGER Ray Ellis seems to be chipping off a corner of Mitch Miller's cake for himself with this disc. He batons his orchestra and chorus through a ballad, Lauralee, in a way which designs it for all those who enjoy a sing-along.

Banjo-plunking noise behind the singers as they go off on a gay marching number without frills.

Sweet Kentucky Belle gets the kettle drum and chorus whistling introduction before the men chant their love for the title girl. A southern marcher which makes me wonder if the "Yellow Rose Of Texas" days are coming back to haunt us.

FRANK SINATRA

To Love and Be Loved; No One Ever Tells You
(Capitol CL1500)**

WRITTEN by those Oscar-winning writers Jimmy Van Heusen and Sammy Cahn, To Love And Be Loved was designed to serve as an introduction for Frank's new film, "Some Came Running."

And it is a top flight ballad well up to the standards of the composers. Slow, surging song with a lilt that plants itself firmly in your head right from the title phrase. Sinatra adds a haunting quality of his own. No doubt about it, this could be one of his biggest singles.

Before 'Stagger Lee's' popularity cools

LLOYD PRICE THROWS IN TWO MORE HOT HALVES

LLOYD PRICE

Where Were You; Is It Really Love?
(H.M.V. POP59)*

CURRENT high-rider Lloyd Price sweeps out another frantic beat number, Where Were You (on our wedding day).

Same swift, thumping stride as that effected by "Stagger Lee" marks this one and Lloyd hunks it enthusiastically with good chorus support. Don Costa's arrangement has both eyes on the hit parade and there's little doubt that it will be a big seller.

Is It Really Love? has a more deliberate beat so it and Lloyd chants his question powerfully while the chorus and rhythm section underline him thickly. Lloyd and his manager wrote both numbers here—so they should be doubly in the money.

They show more than promise—but THE MONOGRAMS fall short of their standard in "Teach Me." (DISC Pic.)

LLOYD PRICE isn't letting the "Stagger Lee" success grow cold before pushing out another contender. He's spinning this week with two very hot halves—"Where Were You" and "Is It Really Love?" Be interesting to see if this one can do the business, too. It certainly has the right noise and beat.

Sad note—though not in the music—is struck by George Jones, who brings out a rocker written by the late Big Bopper.

VINCE TAYLOR
Pledging My Love; Brand New Cadillac
(Parlophone R4539)

"Oh Boy!" fans ought to be queuing up for the dragging, heavy beat of Pledging My Love, which Vince Taylor sings darkly on the upper deck here.

The boy reveals a more mature

THE BIG BEAT

style as he sends this one out to a good backing from The Playboys. The guitars and piano lay it on in hammering fashion.

His own song, Brand New Cadillac, rules itself out of B.B.C. broadcasts by the very nature of its title, but its quick, rocking rhythm will still get the message through to Vince's followers.

Fast 'n' furious rocker this, with Taylor chanting madly to another wild accompaniment.

DICKIE PRIDE
Slippin' 'n' Slidin'; Don't Make Me Love You
(Columbia DB4283)

NEW British beat singer Dickie Pride belts a strong rocker in Slippin' 'n' Slidin'. Side is notable for its driving noise from the accompaniment directed by Ken Jones. Ken really moves it along with guitars and piano capturing the ear.

Good for "Oh Boy!" fans—but not so popular with the B.B.C. is VINCE TAYLOR'S new title about a lush automobile.

narrative fashion, then the song builds with a Nat Cole-ish treatment. Female chorus is used to add weight in the background, while the band keeps up a steady rhythm, using piano and sax smoothly.

Same team for the turnover ... an Oss song, a Williams vocal and a girl chorus doo-dooing behind.

Easy-going ballad this, with drums and piano carrying most of the accompaniment. Not such a potent number as the one upstairs.

GEORGE JONES
White Lightning; Long Time To Forget
(Mercury AM11036)

THE late J. P. Richardson—who made his disc name as Big Bopper—was responsible for writing White Lightning, which George Jones rocks slickly for this release.

A polished, amusing beater, it is handled well by the vocal and there's also some rough-house piano in the backing. Wonder how it would have done if there'd been a Bopper performance!

For the second side George sings one of his own compositions—a country and western ballad, Long Time To Forget. Cowboy fiddles get the straw flavour going as George duets with himself.

JOHNNY OTIS SHOW
My Dear; You
(Capitol CL15008)

MEI WILLIAMS takes the vocal on one of Johnny Otis's own compositions—My Dear—for the top

THE MONOGRAMS

Teach Me; Crystal
(Parlophone R4545)

AN oldie by Michael Care is brought out for The Monograms' second release by Parlophone. I still rate these boys as a more than promising vocal trio, but I must also add that the follow-up disc does not reach the same heights as their tremendous performance on "The Greatest Mistake Of My Life."

However, here we get a good beauty ballad that moves well and always sounds pleasant. Song could happen if it were pushed hard enough. Ken Jones is again in charge of the orchestra's accompaniment.

Crystal on the flip is an American tune, and a pretty one. But a brute for a vocal group to sing I should imagine. The Monograms do their best with it, to an everything-but-the-kitchen-sink backing.

RICHARD BARRETT
Come Softly To Me Walking Through Dreamland
(H.M.V. POP609)

RICHARD BARRETT is so relaxed on Come Softly To Me that I have the feeling he must have been singing from a sofa! He drifts effortlessly through the easygoing ballad, while a female group called The Chantels do a lot of the walk.

Side relies on the overall sound—and this is certainly pleasing. Whether it's strong enough to make a quick impression is another matter.

But I had to stop the other side to look at the label again—to make sure it was still Richard Barrett singing! It could easily have been Fats Domino, or at least a very close relative. A slow pounder, Walking Through Dreamland borrows the muzzy noise—even some piano—from Domino's territory.

FORMER arranger for the Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller bands, Jerry Gray has long been a leader in his own right. He is also one of the few surviving American dance band leaders who have managed to stave off the rock age.

When you listen to this easy swinging dance album you will understand why Jerry Gray has always had the ability to move with the times and keep his arrangements fresh and up to date. He has also kept coming up with originals which find their way into the libraries of other bands and become swing standards.

This is a good album for those who love the swing era and those who enjoy a good dance band. I liked it.

WITH St. Patrick's Day of recent memory, what better than to spin some Irish airs from Erin itself or from Tim Pan Alley's interpretations of Irish life?

So, it is on to the turntable with that wizard conductor, arranger and composer Robert Farnon, who has compiled a set of such melodies and treated them in regal style.

The theme is Ireland, a country of contrasts. The music is of like nature; sometimes gay, sometimes soft, but always with that magical lift for which the Emerald Isle is famed.

To be sure, and o'm certain now, that Paddy Farnon must have been born wif' a shillelagh under his arm for he has turned out an album worthy of a native of Dublin.

All of which means that this is good music.

Moross is anything to go by then all the reports I have heard are true.

There are, indeed, some fine compositions here and I always feel that it is a pity that so much of this music will go by without being noticed by those who see the film. Writing sound-track music is one of the arts. It has to appeal to the moviegoer's subconscious and bring out the vital points in the plot.

HERE is a good old-fashioned frolic which should bring real pleasure to all you adult readers. All the old favourites of the American showboat era are on hand to bring happy memories flooding back to those who remember the early part of the century.

I liked the album all the more for the excellent contrasts in the material. And in particular the typical tongue-in-cheek lyrics of many of these old songs.

This album should bring plenty of enjoyment to a family party.

MISS GALLAGHER has shot to international fame through her successful recordings of Irish songs, and her quiet life as a colleen has been somewhat disturbed by this fact. But she has proved a real trouper and conquered audiences wherever she has appeared.

I must confess that some of her vocal habits do not agree with me but the general effect is enjoyable.

The songs are well chosen and not at imposing as they seem at first glance. They all have a nice pop flavour about them and will be liked by most.

(Festive PDL53057)

THIS album has its moments, largely when Onesime Grosbois lets his talents fly. I rate him as one of the finest exponents of honky-tonk piano style on the scene today.

For the rest, however, I found the album inclined towards the monotonous and I was quite relieved when it spun to an end.

FEW people have contributed so much to the entertainment scene as Noel Coward. His rapacious wit and tuneful melodies have won acclaim from millions.

"Bitter Sweet" is one of his best known shows and today the melodies are just as popular as when they were first performed.

Starting honours go to Vanessa Lee, Roberto Cardinalli and Julie Dawn, with John Haussell, supported by the Rita Williams Singers, and Michael Collins and his Orchestra.

The title is Charleston and I naturally expected a gay and light-hearted session of music in that style. So you can imagine my surprise when up came a fox trot and a tango.

Some of you may like this, but it's not for me.

JIM LOWE

Wicked Women

The Lady Is A Tramp; Miss Ollie's Regret; Head Hearted Hannah; The Love Of Barry Allen; Put The Blame On Me; Rene La Rue; Witch On The Mountain; The Naughty Lady Of Shady Lane; Lizzie Borden; Jezebel; To Keep My Love Alive; Pilot Packin' Mamma.

(London HA-D2146)

JIM LOWE shot to fame with his hit waxing of "Green Door" and has established himself with like songs in America. Now he switches to the more sophisticated type of song but I do not think that the switch will be to his benefit.

His voice is pleasant, but to me it was simply putting words to music without understanding much about what the lyrics had in mind.

The set is easy on the ear, however, and Jim Lowe shows promise of development in years to come.

ALFRED NEWMAN ORCHESTRA (with the Ken Darby Singers)

The Magic Islands

Hana Maui; Hawaiian War Chant; Lovely Hula Hands; Ke Kali Nei Au; The Legend Of The Rain; The Magic Islands; Trade Winds; Sweet Liloan; Love Song Of Kalua; Aloha To The Magic Islands.

(Brunswick LAT8277)

HAWAII seems to be cropping up a lot in recent weeks among the discs I have received for review. This, however, is one with a difference. There are several original compositions included, paying tribute to the beauty of this romantic Pacific island setting.

Gone, too, are the usual Hawaiian guitars. They are replaced by a lush orchestra and choir.

These are welcome innovations for me, anyway. The music still captures all the magic of these islands which have just received their American statehood.

The greatest jazz album of the decade

MILES DAVIS SEXTET
Milestones

Dr. Jekyll : Sid's Ahead : Two Bass Hit; Milestones; Billy Boy; Straight, No Chaser.
(12in. Fontana TFL5035)**

PERSONNEL: Miles Davis (trumpet); Julian "Cannonball" Adderley (alto); John Coltrane (tenor); Red Garland (piano); Paul Chambers (bass); Philly Joe Jones (drums).

THE most important—and meatiest—small group album in ages, by the most important—and meatiest—regular small group in contemporary jazz. Six outspoken, stark-sounding individualists who make a tremendously exciting team.

Miles, the mastermind, is far from being the "cool" player he has been tagged. He plays with much lyricism, agreed. But that lyricism has intense heat and strength and controlled power.

Miles is well aware of the value of space and simplicity. And he can give to a few notes more meaning than half a dozen other trumpeters can to a frenzied flurry. His solo on "Sid's Ahead" (a not-too-distant relative to "Walkin") and originally recorded on a Blue Note 10-inch LP as "Weirdo") recalls the mood and material on the superb "Miles Ahead" album with Gil Evans.

In contrast, Cannonball and Coltrane (backed and encouraged explosively by Philly Joe) are all fire and fury like splitting machine guns. But their conceptions have much more affinity to that of Miles than is at first apparent.

I have raved about this rhythmic section many times in the past, but it has never sounded better on record than here. Philly Joe is just fantastic.

I cannot stress sufficiently the importance of this record. For one thing, it has the best Trane and Cannonball yet issued here. It proves that Miles is indeed a fearless master of his art. And it contains all the evidence you could possibly wish for that there are such really great musicians around today, playing better jazz than we have heard in a decade.

BUDDY COLLETTE-BUD SHANK, etc.

The Swinging Shepherds

Fairy Diet: Short Story; Machismo; Improvisation (with Conrad); Party Tale; The Funky Friends; Tasty Dish; Improvisation (Unaccompanied); The Four Winds Blow.
(12in. Mercury MMB12001)

PERSONNEL: Buddy Collette, Bud Shank, Paul Horn, Harry Klee (flutes, piccolo); Bill Miller (piano); Joe Comfort (bass); Bill Richardson (drums).

THROUGH very clever scoring and permutation of C, alto and bass

*The latest in MODERN

flutes and piccolos, the four musicians achieve a surprisingly mellow warmth and a beautifully integrated section sound on this Pete Rugolo-supervised session.

The standard of musicianship involved could hardly be improved upon and apart from the two one-take Improvisations, it is easy to listen to. But the excess of "polish" and the lack of virility and any sizeable spark in the solos and the rhythm section make its appeal to true jazz fans very limited. And my rating is for jazz content.

STAN KENTON ORCHESTRA

"The Ballad Style of Stan Kenton"
Then I'll Be Tired Of Your More Than You Know; When Stars Looked Down; The End Of A Love Affair; A Sunday King Of Love; Moon Song; Early Autumn; How Am I To Know?; The Things We Did Last Summer; We'll Be Together Again; How Deep Is The Ocean; The Night We Called It A Day.
(12in. Capitol T.1068)

Personnel unknown.

THE only Kenton LPs in my collection that give me any real listening pleasure are "Sketches on Standards" and "Portraits on Standards." In other words, I like him at his least pretentious. Or, if you like, at his most commercial.

This new album does not set out to prove anything at all as far as jazz is concerned, so it makes for very pleasant listening, especially late at night.

This is modern-style dance music at its best (thenence no jazz rating). Intelligent, but never over-busy, arrangements by Stan himself of pretty standards, expertly and warmly interpreted by a big band of first-class musicians.

Kenton is the only soloist and though certainly no world-beater, he plays melody lines with sensitive simplicity, backed by a very rich-sounding ensemble.

I think you will go for this if you do not like Kenton. And vice versa. If you know what I mean!

originals this was to be expected. However, this did not detract from my enjoyment in the slightest.

I suggest that you light orchestral lovers give this a spin—I'm sure you'll enjoy the music and the arrangements.

THE BIG BOPPER

Chantilly Lace: Purple People Eater Meets The Witchdoctor; Big Bopper's Wedding; Little Red Riding Hood.
(Mercury ZEP10004)**

THE BIG BOPPER, real name Jape Richardson, showed promise of becoming one of the biggest stars of 1959. However, this wasn't to be, as he was one of the unfortunate victims of that tragic plane crash which also cost us Buddy Holly and Ritchie Valens.

This album is a fitting tribute to the artiste, as it spotlights his talents perfectly.

An excellent album which will be spinning on my turntable for a long time to come.

Norrie pays tribute to Judy and Al

NORRIE PARAMOR

Al and Judy

California Here I Come; Pretty Baby; Anniversary Song; April Showers; Toot, Toot, Tootsie; For Me And My Gal; Over The Rainbow; We're Off To See The Wizard; It's A Great Day For The Irish.
(Columbia SEL7875)**

TWO of the greatest performers ever to be seen and heard in show business go under the names of Judy Garland and Al Jolson. Here Norrie Paramor leads his concert orchestra into a fine tribute to the talents of these artists.

Personally, I can think of no finer arranger and conductor for the job, nor Norrie Paramor can also claim to rate among the greats in his particular field. There is a magic quality about his interpretation of melodies. And Norrie has also contributed countless musical gems from his own pen to our music scene which will no doubt be featured in similar albums by the next generation of artists.

A most enjoyable album.

STANLEY BLACK

Sophisticat In Cuba—No. 1 All Of You; And This Is My Beloved; It's All Right With Me; Melancholy Baby.
(Decca DFE6480)**

A TRIP to exotic regions conducted by maestro Stanley Black in which he has conjured up some fanciful rhythm backings to four standards.

Most enjoyable set with the Black piano well to the fore. My favourite track is All Of You, which gaily steps out from the word go.

On the whole I have no complaints except that I was not too impressed with Beloved.

I don't think many will complain about this album.

PAUL ROBESON

Robeson—Vol. 1
Danny Boy; Loch Lomond; The House I Live In; Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes; All Through The Night; Jerusalem.
(Vanguard EPP14004)**

Song Of Freedom
(H.M.V. 7EG8431)**

I HAVE received two Paul Robeson EPs this month. The first is a collection of recent recordings under the artiste's new Vanguard contract, and the second features songs from the film "Song Of Freedom" and which shows the singer during the period in which he had climbed to the top and was constantly before the public eye. On this he is joined by

TED HEATH

Ted Heath Plays Al Jolson Classics Toot, Toot, Tootsie; Rock-a-bye Your Baby; April Showers; There's A Rainbow Round My Shoulder.
(Decca DFE6510)**

TED HEATH seems to turn out a never-ending stream of records these days and I often wonder how the public can absorb so many, but it says a lot for his ability to please that they do—and keep asking for more.

This is one of his dance tempo albums and a very successful formula this is proving, too, as Ted is equally at home in the dance hall and on the concert platform.

An extremely pleasant sound either for dancing or for listening.

JERRY LEE LEWIS

Don't Be Cruel; Put Me Down; It All Depends; Crazy Arms.
(London RE-S1186)**

HERE'S another offering from the lad who has fought back against bad publicity and come out on top with another hit disc.

There will be no stopping this set, as it is just what the fans are looking for. Jerry's rocking piano accompaniment to his vocals is present in all its glory and the vocals need no description to the initiates.

Destined to be a big seller.

ALMA COGAN

She Loves To Sing

Life Is Just A Bowl Of Cherries; Taking A Chance On Love; Ain't We Got Fun; Blue Skies.
(H.M.V. TEG8437)**

FROM Alma's very successful LP called "I Love To Sing" comes this attractive four-title set. The LP was one of the finest ever to be produced by a British artiste, and Alma herself will be the first to pass on some of the praise to maestro Frank Coddell for his superb arrangements.

The songs are good. The singing is good. The orchestra is good. And the whole adds up to an excellent piece of work which deserves lots of spurs.

THE DIAMONDS

Dig The Diamonds Walking Along; Eternal Lover; Little Darlin'; Faithful And True.
(Mercury ZEP10003)**

THE Diamonds have had a lot of success in the rock-chanting field and it is understandable on spinning this set. They are very easy to listen to and have balanced this four-title nicely, hence the five stars.

A second claim to fame has recently brought attention to this group and that is the fact that top songstress Connie Francis may well be rocking down the aisle with one of them within the next year.

If the wedding bells start to ring, I hope the happy pair will accept my congratulations and best wishes from our readers.

I also hand out congratulations for this EP.

Buy it, enjoy it and absorb it, for

THIS IS THE MUSIC THAT JAZZ IS MADE OF

WILBUR DE PARIS PLAYS and JIMMY WITHERSPOON SINGS

New Orleans Blues

Lotus Blossom; Trouble In Mind; Big Fine Girl; How Long Blues; Good Rollin' Blues; Careless Love; Taint Nobody's Business If I Do; St. Louis Blues; When The Sun Goes Down; See See Rider.

(London LTZ K 1515)**

THIS is the greatest stuff. The band is, of course, the one that provided the original for the Barber version of "Martinique" and the many other versions of "Tres Moutarde." Its first records were on the Fledgling label, which being virtually unknown to jazz fans, made them fair game for the copyists.

This is New Orleans music as it is played today by its foremost exponents and it is New Orleans music as it should be played. The men are mature musicians still with plenty to say and the necessary "know-how" to say it forcefully and definitely.

Wilbur de Paris is a trombonist who worked at one time or the other with many of the great coloured bands. So did his trumpet-playing brother, Sidney de Paris. Omer Simeon was heard, and very finely too, on the classic Jelly Roll Morton H.M.V.s. Later he joined the band of Jimmie Lunceford.

Creole style

He is one of the really big New Orleans clarinet players, favouring the Creole style as adopted by Bigard, Nicholas, Noone, Bechet, and as opposed to the piccolo approach of Lewis, Picou and Lorenzo Tio.

Main interest of the record will, however, centre on the excellent singing of Jimmy Winterspoon. Born in Gordon, Arkansas, in 1923, his first big job was with the Kansas City band led by Jay McShann, a fine band in the K.C. tradition and a band which also included Charlie Parker on alto.

His biggest influence is Joe Turner, another K.C. vocalist. He uses the same direct, almost vibrato-less shout style.

You'll enjoy this when you've bought it . . . and buy it you must.

TRADITIONAL JAZZ

by
Owen Bryce

And then absorb it; let it soak right into your system. This is the music that jazz is made of.

BIX AND HIS GANG The Legendary Bix

The Jazz Me Blues; Those Swell; Royal Garden Blues; We Da Da.

(Fontana TFE17059)**

BIX TRAM

Clarinet Marmalade; Mississippi Mud; A Good Man Is Hard To Find; There'll Come A Time.

(Fontana TFE17060)**

THESE two come from a four-part set devoted to the music of Bix Beiderbecke, the legendary cornet player from Davenport, who thrilled the whole jazz world with his clear, precise tone and impeccable timing, during the twenties.

The truth begins to register that Bix was not quite as fabulous as he was said to be; that in his own mind he had a great regard for the corn music of Whiteman's near-symphony jazz, and that he never was the wild, carefree, easy-drinking and loose-living guy that legend would have us believe.

The evidence of his numerous records shows him to be possessed of the most beautiful tone yet obtained by either cornet or trumpet. It also shows his absolute mastery of timing, phrasing and sense of "the jazz hot."

Unfortunately, it also proves that recording contracts saddled him to the men of the Whiteman and Goldkette bands resulted in his being surrounded by musicians practically incapable of playing jazz.

Historically these are a must; musically the Bix and his Gang come over better than do the Tram sides, although Mississippi Mud still stands up as a classic of jazz.

ELLA FITZGERALD with LOUIS ARMSTRONG and the OSCAR PETERSON TRIO

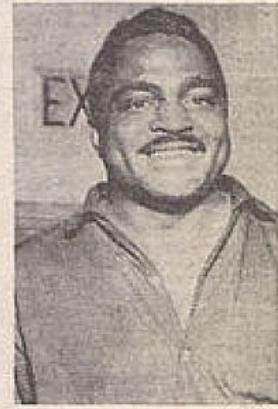

Ella and Louis Again

I've Got My Love To Keep Me Warm; I'm Putting All My Eggs In One Basket; A Fine Romance; Love Is Here To Stay.

(H.M.V. TEG8436)

ELLA and Louis are the perfect vocal team, each one so delightfully complementary to the other. With such a staff, you may wonder why I three-star what, at first sight, appears to warrant five. Listening to this I vacillate between two and four . . . that's why I chose three.

Excellent as are the Armstrong vocals (and those of Ella, too), one so much misses Louis' trumpet, and also the All-Stars, that one feels cheated by the affair. And I have a strong aversion to "breakdowns," for that is what this EP is. I have had the 12in. LP for well over a year, or so it seems, and it is annoying to find two of one's favourites backed with two that one does not like as much.

PETE HANDY Honky Tonk Piano

Stumble; Oh By Hugo; Dar-darella; Stardust; Harmonique; China Boy; Beer Barrel Polka; Snow Deer Rag; Pass Me The Mustard; Red Wing; Bartender's Rag; Charles My Boy.

(Mercury MMC14003)*

THIS is utter oom, but just creeps into a jazz column by virtue of Pete Handy using a number of tunes known to jazz fans and respected by them. Whatever Handy (and with that name, too!) does to them, he certainly doesn't make them swing. They jerk unhappily along, much like Wimmed Attwell playing her weak attempts at ragtime.

Pete Handy, except for the rare occasion, pounds his way through his repertoire, backed up in Dixie fashion by drums and on Stardust by just about the worst alto you ever heard.

KID ORY

Song Of The Wanderer; Song Of The Wanderer; Tallgate Rumble; Mahogany Hall Stomp; Baby Won't You Please Come Home; St. Louis Blues; Toot Toot Tootsie; Sheik Of Araby; Tiger Rag.

(Columbia 33CX10123)**

A PART from Kid Ory's obvious love of highly exhibitionist versions of Tiger Rag, it would seem to be impossible for him to make a bad record. That he almost succeeds in one or two places—only the master's perfect control of his instrument saves parts of the first track from degenerating into bad, tasteless jazz—is neither here nor there.

Ory turns these numbers into first-class jazz performances—performances that you probably won't like, on first hearing, but performances that would have merited a five-star rating but for the "with no pants on" vocals on Sheik and the fast and furious Tiger.

KEN COLYER'S JAZZMEN Colyer Plays Standards

Swanee River; Over The Rainbow; All Of Me; Pretty Baby; Oh You Beautiful Doll; Under The Bamboo Tree; The Curse Of An Aching Heart; Blue Bells Goodbye; Dings.

(Decca LK 4294)

FIVE years ago a fan asked my outfit to play "Corinne Corinne." My own trombone player looked dazedly at me and said: "That's not traditional." "Colyer plays it," the fan replied. The astounding rejoinder from my musician was "Oh, that's all right then."

FOR THE FOLK FANS

Dominic wades into the street songs

DOMINIC BEHAN

Finnegan's Wake (James Joyce); Bonny Boy; Master McGrath; Mrs. McGrath; Finnegan's Wake.

(Collector JELL)**

THE connection these songs have with James Joyce is limited to the fact that they are often quoted in his works, the last of which was "Finnegan's Wake."

Dominic Behan is the ideal person to sing these Irish street songs, since he has really lived with them and they spring naturally to his lips. The songs themselves are rather unschooled and they sound poor in the unfortunate atmosphere of the recording studio.

The two songs, Master McGrath and Mrs. McGrath are unrelated at the informative sleeve notes point out. The former is a sporting ballad about greyhounds, while the latter is a tale of the 18th century wars.

Bonny Boy is an early ballad dealing with child marriage, while Finnegan's Wake is a rowdy, slapstick into which Behan wades in fine style.

ROBIN HALL

Robin Hall Sings Glasgow Songs

The Dundee Weaver; Caulfield's Candy; Loudon Wainwright's Big Apple; Yer Ma Wee Gaffas Blode Naemur; The Bleacher Lassie O' Kelvinhaugh.

(Collector JES2)**

THIS is better than the recent Robert Burns record. Robin Hall is more at home with this material, which stems from his place of birth. The performance is less self-conscious than the earlier one, but once again the guitar blends unobtrusively with his voice to give a most pleasing effect.

Although the songs are only a Scottish equivalent of the type of material presented on the Dominic Behan record, they seem far more able to stand up to the light of a recording session.

The songs themselves vary from the bawdy humour of Dundee Weaver and Apple to the gentleness of the plaintive Bleacher Lassie.

Chopin didn't deserve this!

CHOPIN BY STARLIGHT
The Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Carter Dragon

Side 1

Polonaise in A Flat Major (Military); Nocturne in E Flat Major; Fantasy-Impromptu; Prelude in A Major; Waltz in C Sharp Minor.

Side 2

Polonaise in A Major (Military); Prelude in E Major; Waltz in D Flat Major (Minute Waltz); Etude in E Major; Waltz in E Flat Major (Grande Valse Brillante).

(Capitol P8371)*

AS one who regards Chopin as among the greatest composers who ever lived, I did not take too kindly to this record.

Chopin wrote for one instrument, the piano, and I do not believe that his music can be successfully transcribed for an orchestra. Admittedly, we have the highly successful Les Sylphides ballet music, but this is purely a background for the dancing and is not to be regarded as orchestral writing.

On the first side there is a garbled version of the Polonaise in A Flat; a piano in the Nocturne which sounds out of tune; a version of the Fantasy-Impromptu which should never have been attempted; and only passable orchestrations of the A Flat Major Prelude, and the C Sharp Minor Waltz.

The other side is no better. The Polonaise lacked spirit and had a brass band effect; the Prelude in E Major, was dominated by some sketchy playing on the strings; the Etude, again, introduced the piano, and the orchestra were feeling their way all the time and quite unsure of themselves. The Waltz in E Flat was all bits and pieces and badly orchestrated.

The only shining light in the whole record was the Minute Waltz which had polish and some fine playing by the fiddles.

I suggest that Chopin should be left to the masters of the keyboard.

KATHLEEN FERRIER
With Phyllis Spur—Piano
"Like as the love-born Turtle," from Atlanta by Handel; Auf Ein Altes Bild (On gazing at an old picture) by Wolf; and The Altar by Jensen.

(Decca CEP387)**
THIS disc was recorded from a Norwegian broadcast, and is one purely for the connoisseur. The reproduction is not perfect and sounds a little dull, but the soloist's voice comes across extremely well.

CLASSICAL CORNER

The pieces that Miss Ferrier sings on this disc are not well known and probably will not be appreciated by a majority of people. But Kathleen Ferrier was blessed with a wonderful voice and no matter what she sings I will always be spellbound by her.

MENDELSSOHN
Midsummer Night's Dream
TCHAIKOVSKY
The Nutcracker Suite
The Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Felix Slatkin
(Capitol PS404)

THE Midsummer Night's Dream Suite consists of the Overture, Scherzo, Dance of the Clowns and Wedding March. These were quite well played but I feel that Mr. Slatkin lost quite a lot of expression by forcing the pace throughout.

The Overture was the pick of the side together with the Miniature Overture in the "Nutcracker Suite"; here we have eight of the most famous tunes connected with the "Casse Noisette"—the Miniature Overture, March, Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy, Trepak, The Arabian Dance, The Chinese Dance, Dance of the Flutes and Waltz of the Flowers.

Alan Elliott

We played it. Bearing this in mind, I say to Ken Colyer: "Thank you for showing . . . although it's been proved many times already, that jazz can be played using many different themes."

Mind you, I don't particularly like the way he plays them; and I'm sure he would agree with me that excellent as is the idea, they're not all his own work.

Blue Bells Goodbye was done a decade or so ago by Bunk Louis; always did a good job of All Of Me, and I see Colyer uses his little bridge passage phrase.

Dinah has come in for a lot of jazz attention in her 35 years of life. Barber does Pretty Baby and Ory Bamboo Tree. Beautiful Doll and Rainbow are two that I've done myself but now that Dinah has done them, at least, I can play them without feeling embarrassed as I look at the bewildered faces of the fans as they murmur to themselves: "That ain't jazz."

New record label out this month

A NEW record label is due out in Britain at the end of this month. This will be a new venture by the Audio Fidelity label, who have already captured a big market in America, particularly in the stereophonic field.

A demonstration was given in London last week of the label's first releases, all 12in. LPs, which included Johnny Puleo and his Harmonica Gang, Al Hirt's "Swingin' Dixie," The Dukes of Dixieland, and a number of other recordings made in South America.

All the issues will be monaural, and, in addition, some will also be available in stereophonic.

Man behind this new venture is Sidney Frey, who originally made tremendous strides in America in hi-fidelity recordings, then later turned to the development of stereophonic sound.

Though the major companies had worked on this field for many years, it was Frey who made the first stereophonic releases in America, while the other companies were still in the experimental stage.

His decision to make stereophonic releases in America altered the complete trend of record manufacture in that country and through his initiative, he virtually forced the record industry to concentrate on meeting the public demand for stereo records.

The Audio Fidelity label will concentrate only on 12in. LPs, and they will make frequent releases after the initial 10.

The new Audio LPs will be on sale at most recognised dealers. Price has yet to be decided.

FREEDOM OF THE 'MET'

for Bridie Gallagher

IRISH recording star, Bridie Gallagher, had the distinction last week of breaking box office records at London's Metropolitan Theatre. "House Full" signs were frequent at the theatre.

Granada Theatres, acknowledging Bridie's achievement, presented her with a gold cigarette case.

Additionally, they made the unusual presentation of giving her the "Freedom of the Metropolitan Theatre."

Said a Granada spokesman: "We are presenting Bridie Gallagher with the front door key of the theatre so that she may come and go as she pleases."

Bridie has been booked for a long season during the summer in the Isle of Man.

ATV sign up the Mills Brothers

ATV have signed The Mills Brothers for their "Sunday Night at the London Palladium" show on May 17.

Next Sunday, April 12, the show will be headlined by American comedian Alan King, with singing star Billy Daniels, and Clara Ward and the Ward Singers.

Next Saturday's "Spectacular" starring Hughie Green, also features Alma Cogan and Chris Barber who, as previously reported, will be seen receiving his Golden Disc. The following week's programme stars Bernard Bresslaw and the guest singing star will be Oreste.

On April 25 Harry Secombe will headline the "Spectacular."

Next Sunday's "Music Shop" features Ruby Murray, Toni Dalli and Sandra Alfred. Another guest will be Ray Merrill, who made quite a reputation for himself with the Eric Winstone Orchestra. Next week's "Jack Jackson Show" features Dickie Valentine, Anthony Newley, Mike and Berrie Winters, Mr. Acker Bilk and Janice Peters.

Chas marries—after the game!

SUNDAY morning skiffler Chas McDevitt turned out for the Show Biz XI at Leatherhead, Surrey. A few hours later DISC had a car ready to rush him from the match—he married the group's singer, Shirley Douglas.

The wedding took place at the Church of St. Patrick in Soho—and, naturally, the Show Biz XI turned up to wish him well.

ROCKINGHAM'S DATES

DATES for personal appearances by Lord Rockingham's XI, in addition to Hull on April 12, and Liverpool on April 19 announced last week, include the De Montfort Hall, Leicester (May 3), Free Trades Hall, Manchester (May 17) and the Civic Hall, Wolverhampton, on May 24.

Top Rank sign Craig

TOP Rank have signed 17-year-old Craig Douglas, who has already had two releases for Decca. His first on this label, out tomorrow, is "Come Softly To Me" and "Golden Girl."

FRANKIE'S PREMIERE

FRANKIE VAUGHAN'S new film, "Heart of a Man," will have a charity premiere on June 25 at the Odeon Cinema, Marble Arch, London, when guests of honour will be the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

The proceeds from the premiere go to the National Association of Boys' Clubs, and to the Heart Fund of the Variety Club of Great Britain. The Duke of Gloucester is President of the N.A.B.C., and the Variety Club of Great Britain has done much to establish new boys' clubs in this country.

Ink Spots star coming

THOUGH actual venues were not available at the time of going to press, it has been confirmed that Bill Kenny—the lead voice in the original Ink Spots team—is to undertake an 11-week variety tour of Britain, commencing Monday, May 4.

ALL-STAR SHOW FOR CHARITY

A PARTICULARLY big, all-star charity concert, organised by the Hospital Broadcasting Committee, is to take place on April 19, at the Odeon Theatre, Barking.

The proceeds will help towards the cost of a closed circuit broadcasting link with Charlton Athletic Football Ground.

By the time the 1959-60 season starts it is hoped that most hospitals in the South East of London will be connected with this broadcasting system, making it the biggest of its type ever attempted in the world.

Stars who hope to add their effort to this worthy cause include: Billie Anthony, Eddie Calvert, Raye Conwy, Alma Cogan, Peter Elliott, Brian Gray, Lorne Lesley, Ido Martin and his Latin American group, Lisa Noble, Tony Osborne, Group One, Brendan O'Dowd, Jean Regan, Rosemary Squires and Mike and Berrie Winters. Comedian George Martin will compere the show while Ivan Dorsin will lead the orchestra.

Songwriters' concert

OUR Friends the Stars' concert, organised by the Songwriters Guild, takes place next Sunday, April 12, at the Victoria Palace, London.

A host of stars have promised to appear, and record artists include Max Bygraves, Joe Henderson, The Polka Dot, Al SAXON, Rosemary Squires, The Vipers, Eddie Calvert, Alma Cogan, Gary Miller, Marion Ryan, Anne Shelton, Bruce Trent and Cherry Wainer.

• Next week's R.B.C. TV production, "Jazz Session," which goes out on Wednesday, April 15, will be introduced by Johnny Dankworth and will feature his orchestra and Bobby Breen.

OFF TO SPAIN

Bandleader Ted Heath and singer Rita Rosa left London last week for a series of five concerts in Barcelona.

*'Good luck'
from Presley'*

ELVIS PRESLEY was among the hundreds who sent greetings to mark the first anniversary concert of the Saturday morning teenage show at the Gaumont cinema, Shepherd's Bush, last week.

The "King" of rock 'n' roll sent a letter of congratulations.

Topping the bill last week was Marty Wilde.

Another guest was American rock 'n' roll singer Vince Taylor.

Young Johnny Payne, who was recently covered in our "Talent In Your Town" feature, also had a fairly long spot in the show, along with his own group.

Drive to launch 'Porgy' LP

COLUMBIA Records in America are preparing a big drive to launch their LP of the sound-track of the Sam Goldwyn production, "Porgy and Bess."

They outbid all other companies to obtain the exclusive rights, and they have been busy recording in recent weeks with a view to an American release early next month. This will precede the scheduled film premiere in New York by about four weeks.

Columbia say that the LP, which will be recorded in stereophonic sound, will have an initial pressing release of 750,000 copies.

Jerry Angelo, one-time lead singer with The Dallas Boys, has his first release—"Crush Me"—for Parlo-
