STARGAZING WITH JOHN LEYTON

Sagittarians born this week have a contagious enthusiasm and charm that is their strongest attraction. They must beware of taking too much out of themselves.

CAPRICORN (Dec 21—Jan 19)
Result of past work should bring a pleasant result.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20—Feb 18)
Promising week in which you can enjoy the company of a friend.

PISCES (Feb 19—Mar 20)
Feelings are high over a recent decision so don't be impulsive.

ARIES (Mar 21—April 20)
Time will be wasted if you don't make use of a good opportunity.

TAURUS (April 21—May 20)
Pleasing news from afar and an invitation make a pleasant week.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20)
You find yourself much in demand but pay a duty visit first.

CANCER (June 21—July 20)
Not a good week to be extravagant so avoid gazing in shop windows!

LEO (July 21—August 21)
Argument will blow over if you don't state your case too harshly.

VIRGO (Aug 22—Sept 22)
It's difficult to make up your mind over someone so let things ride.

LIBRA (Sept 23—Oct 22)
A loved one is in great need of your loyalty and affection.

SCORPIO (Oct 23—Nov 22)
Inconvenience is caused by some delay at work but keep your temper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23—Dec 20)
Your love-life is serene and the week flows happily.

HEY THERE!

Party time again. Best time of the year, I reckon and here at FAB we're planning parties like mad. New Year's not far off. Neither is our first birthday. And I'm happy to report that we're a very lusty one year old, thanks to all you loyal readers.

We're trying to work out some way so that you all can share in our New Year celebrations. In fact, we've some wonderful ideas up our sleeves to give masses of you an opportunity to meet some of your favourite stars and some of us--on your home ground.

Not going to tell you about it yet. It's a surprise! But don't go away--I'll be letting you have all the details in the next few weeks.

In the meantime--enjoy your own parties.

Love,
The Ed.

Hi-fab!

OVER TO SHEENA FOR THIS WEEK'S GOSSIP

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Who doesn't love parties? I do, 'specially at Christmas time. We usually have a party with all the stars here at Fleetway House and June'll be telling you all about it further on in the mag. I thought you'd like to know about some of the stars' parties. Most popsters don't get to spend Christmas at home but that's because they're all entertaining you in Christmas shows.

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Mark Wynter likes best to spend a quiet Christmas at home with his folks. He gets invited to masses of parties all year through and a quiet Christmas makes a change. Last year Mark was in pantomime at Coventry and to get home for his quiet Christmas he drove all through Christmas Eve to get to his home in Surrey. He was so whacked he slept practically all through Christmas Day and then drove back to Coventry on Boxing Day morning!

Mark is in pantomime—Mother Goose—again this year. He plays the part of Collin, Mother Goose's son, who brings home the golden eggs.

If you want to see this panto they're playing for two weeks at Southampton, two at Taunton and two at Cheltenham.

Mark Wynter

The Four Pennies set out to look for a Christmas party in two vans last year—Fritz Fryer and Lionel Morton in one and Alan Buck and Mike Wish in the other. When Fritz and Li got to the address they found there wasn't a party there at all.

Thinking that Alan and Mike had the right address they drove round Blackburn for hours looking for the other van.

When they finally met up with each other the next day, it turned out that Alan and Mike had been driving round trying to find Fritz and Li because they didn't have any address at all!

Let's hope they find a party this year. They're playing in Yorkshire—fans please note. And all other fans lend an ear to the Pennies' latest LP called Two Sides Of The Four Pennies on the Philips' label—it's a knockout!

Brian Poole and The Tremeloes

Brian Poole and The Tremeloes must be unique in the pop world as they've only missed having one Christmas at home. They love spending that one day round the fire with their relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Poole have a butcher's shop in Berkhamstead, Essex, and Brian can always be sure of a lovely noah up. The turkey's wishbone is always saved for him to pull.

Brian gets loads of gifts from fans and sends most of them to children in hospitals or in homes, but one gift he treasures is a three foot teddy bear which he keeps in his bedroom.

Parties are enjoyed by Brian and The Tremeloes but at home he's usually surrounded by about two dozen relatives.

A New Year gift which Brian is really looking forward to is a week in Sweden. Though for the last couple of weeks he's been wandering round with a shillelagh under his arm!

Last month I went to the sixteenth birthday party of my old mate Lulu. It was fab.

There were lots of pop people there plus Lulu's group The Luvvers. Not surprising 'cos the party was held in their flat in West London. Peter Asher, Alan Freeman, the deejay, Fritz Fryer, Allen Buck and Mike Wish of The Four Pennies with their road manager Judd, Millie and The Animals all arrived so it was quite a gathering.

The party was slow starting off as the record player wouldn't work but Mike Wish and one of The Luvvers fixed it by wiring it up to an amplifier.

Lulu and Peter Asher were easily the best dancers on the floor. We all had a ball.

Lulu

Sounds Inc. having a bash

A great "instant" party took place when Sounds Incorporated, celebrating the forthcoming marriage of their drummer, Tony Newman, brought their stage party to the London Palladium.

Tony, Al Barrie, Gilla, Johnny and Wes were soon joined by Cilla Black, Bobby Willis her road manager, Helen Shapiro who'd come to see Cilla, Bob Bain the comedian/comedian, The Fourmost—Mike, Dave, Billy and Brian, and Mary Wells' musical director.

Everybody was having a great time but poor Major, that's the nickname of Griff West, Sounds' senior sax man, got crowned. Quite literally! Someone dropped the lid of an ice box and it landed on his head. Unfortunately it had a large screw projecting through the bottom and Major collected a large bump. The lid was injured too—it developed a large crack.

Well that's all from me for this Christmas Party issue. It's FAB'S first and I hope we'll still be around to share next Christmas with you, too. Have fun!

A FOURPENNY PARTY

Lionel Morton, leader of The Four Pennies, entertains.

Those fab Four Pennies took a day off to go down to the International Children's Village near Battle in Sussex. This is one of the Festival's orphan villages that have children from all over the world as you can see in our pic. It was difficult to know who had a better time, The Fourpence or the children.

The Pennies even put on a show for their new found friends. They had intended to do nursery rhymes but they found their normal hit parade items went down much better. Lionel, Mike, Fritz and Alan all agreed they'd had a great time, even if they did have an overnight drive to Manchester where they were opening a new club the following morning!

The Fourpence were so impressed with the Village that they've made it their favourite charity and are giving it all their support. A good penny worth was had by all!

TEDDY BEARS' PICNIC

"MY MA'S A BIG FAN OF YOURS."

"WANNA INDIAN WRESTLE WITH ME?"

"PARTY'S OVER—FEEDING TIME."

Once upon a time there were three Bachelors: Dac Bachelor, Con Bachelor and John Bachelor and they all received invitations to a party-picnic from their friend Ringo. When Ringo turned out to be two feet, ten pounds of houncing baby bear from Regent's Park Zoo, The Bachelors were naturally taken aback (it was a bear-faced fraud) having expected a Beatle.

Ringo growled. He was surprised as well. Especially after having invited The Animals and The Monkeys.

Ringo started the party rolling by nipping a place out of John's ankle and The Bachelors tried to calm him by singing numbers like "Troubles A'Bruin," "Paw People of Paris," and "Furries Are Jolly Good Fellows." Ringo decided he couldn't take any more and headed back to his cage for a feed.

There's just so much one can hear!

JINGLE BELLS IT'S FAB'S CHRISTMAS PARTY

Well, for a start, everyone was there. At our Christmas party that we held in November, I mean. We gaily invited everyone we could think of and they all came.

So that was how about 200 people jammed themselves to a complete standstill in a converted studio meant to hold 20.

Margery and Laurel Meyers with Patti's Mom

I started at 3:30 p.m. and by four we were serving roasted pop stars along with the drinks. The Ed kept hitting "Circulate!" I think she was joking. We couldn't even turn a full circle standing on one foot.

There were a lot of that going on, non-standing or hot. Other people's feet. It was a good job. Linda Silver couldn't miss it.

One girl who did slip in was Cherie Springfield. She brought Brother Tom and her Mom and Dad. They were such nice people that we all repaired everything she hit a while.

Adrienne Foster arrived minus her parents plus her manager. When he asked for a volunteer to take care of her I didn't notice any of the boys looking back. A great army of girl singers invaded the party. Julie Grant with her great new long look hair style. Lesley Duncan, bouncing around like a puppet and making everyone fall about Puffy Perkins mid-headed and rosy. The exotic Patsy Ann Noble dispensing autographs and smiles to a new group called Shelley. And girl disc jockey Rona Lee Jay, wearing what she called a knee-length vest.

We wondered why Keith had volunteered to send out the invites.

Bobby Lynch informed me a few days later that he was at the party. I also missed some Richard D. Sullivan, Brian Puelle and The Tempests and Simon Scott in the cloth! I think if our own members had been there we'd have missed them. You never hear so many people!

Eventually, the dance ball made its exit as captured by the camera and became signed ending with the parents. This provided instant passes by with the theme of selling anyone who's been there their own ball ticket over a month. Thing in Livingston Street.

When they weren't sitting on the floor—The Pretty Things told me they'd just found out that the flat they used to occupy in Chelsea Street was in a right old neighborhood for small companies. I think they were doing a bit of rooming in meantime.

Utility the Ed, fell upon The Flocking Berries afterwards of glee. They'd been a bit unimpressed with her for not appearing at two specially arranged photo sessions. The Rocking Berries were whisked into our colour studio before they knew what had hit them. And the Ed recovered the party stars by an association with one of The Juliars.

"Where are the rest of you?" she asked.
"Oh, they couldn't get the time off from school," said Junior brightly.

Betty cunningly wrangled an invitation from Mike Leroy to dine at his restaurant. He's a lot of his singer pals. We wondered why she was taking to him for such a long time.

Everyone's giant Terry Jackson who he and The Strangers didn't get to Number 7 and they had spent his money with some help.

The Moody Blues seemed to be everywhere which was all right in the eyes. Moody also had his own attractive you couldn't possibly give to these fancy alive, common, ordinary people.

Apart from the spills, where there will drink and food and all, we had another helper serving tea in the hall. The FAB gang drank the lot. We needed it with so many people rushing in and the Cliff Benjamin and The Rebel Rousers spent the entire afternoon on the run. They were still running when we saw them disappear into their all-mod-cons van with its DOZ ejector seats.

Eventually, the atmosphere cleared a bit as people went off to theatres and clubs. But just when the party should have been dying on its feet, Dusty began to swing. And when Dusty swings, there's no going home.

Peppi, who had been quietly minding his coin business, was seeing into action and set everyone else dancing. Michael Aldred feverently clutched an outsize silver star and waltzed it round Lesley Duncan and Polly Perkins.

We had a little stage with a drum kit and an electric organ. Stunned by the sight of this, Viv Prince showed that he's not just a Pretty Thing by bashing out drum solos. Mike Felix of The Migi Five sat down at the organ and a sound came out that was very danceable. An escapee from The Jet Set played the guitar and Sandy of Rick and ... played another.

The Ronettes walked in, unnoticed. They were unnoticed for approximately ten seconds. Phil May staked his claim early, so he was well away. The Ronettes are very lovely. Ronnie is cute, Estelle is beautiful, and Nedra is super-attractive. (Ask The Rolling Stones! No ... they weren't there. Like The Beatles, they were out of town entertaining you ... and you ... and you.)

At about eight the party was still going strong. Dusty was sitting quietly in a corner 'soul' singing with Ronnie Bennett, and Viv was a lone figure on the stage creating a little storm around himself. The Four Pennies stood quietly drinking in the scene and the Cokes. The Christmas decorations, which had been created at short notice by our Studio Manager and our versatile Art Lot, were looking just that bit jaded.

At nine it was all over. I'm told that I missed Peter and Gordon, Derek Anon, Cathy McGowan, The Paramounts, Alexis Korner, Mike Sarne, Don Wardell, The Lounge Gibbon Trio and The Fenmen. I probably did. I only know that it was quite a party.

In fact it was the party that went on and on and on. It moved ... what was left of it ... to The Ad-Lib Club, and I remember ending up with Michael Aldred, Lesley Duncan and The Fourmost playing with Billy Hanton's model car-racing track at his place? (I was a dead loss, but never mind!)

That's what I call a party.

forty readers get starry eyed

AND SYLVIA STEPHEN TELLS YOU WHY...

Brian O'Hara of The Fourmost enters into the spirit of things

FOURMOST Billy Matton wandered around with a be-streamered stick; Kenny Lynch closely studied our golden Christmas tree; The Roulettes and Julie Grant signed autographs; the other three Most made of the coke supply; The XL's and The Messengers tucked into cream cakes; and forty FAB readers waved autograph books and looked blissfully happy.

Our visitors were from the waiting list of readers who have asked to visit FAB. We had decided to throw a small Christmas party.

Our list is shorter by forty—but we warn you—still as long as ever! If you write asking to come and see us it'll take ages.

However our lucky dip forty had come from all over to see us. But the prize for long distance had to go to Stones fan Wendy Townsend. She and her friend had travelled from Leicester. Very flattering. It was Wendy and her friends together with several others who stuck it out to the bitter end (our readers have strong constitutions) who heard The Fourmost singing Christmas carols in the Editor's office.

We were planning to arrange a concert of carols for charity, you see, and we asked The Fourmost if they'd like to be included.

Autographs please from The Messengers and Neil Levene of the XL's

"You bet," they replied.

"But can you sing Christmas carols?" we asked.

"Of course!" they exclaimed indignantly.

"Prove it," we insisted.

And prove it they did, with a remarkable version of Silent Night.

Earlier, Brian O'Hara, who's usually a fairly quiet Fourmost, and Billy Matton, who's not quite such a quiet Fourmost, had had the readers laughing even more with their commentary on the film show. The film show is always a very popular way of entertaining visiting readers. We slide colour shots of pop stars through a projector so that they're thrown on to a screen, and everyone gets a preview of what's coming in FAB.

First shot up was The Beatles. Screams from readers. Second shot up was The Beatles. More screams from readers. Third shot up was The Beatles. But before the readers could register any reaction this time, Brian O'Hara yelled "I've seen this film." Giggles from readers.

"Moorey," Brian cheered.

By the time The Beatles came up again, Billy had caught on and he joined in.

Our old mates Kenny Lynch and Julie Grant were able to pop in and see us

Brian's cheer. Before long, the readers had caught on too, and every picture of The Beatles was greeted with cheers, Brian leading.

Really, I suppose that reader Lydia Palmas from Sunbury, Middlesex, shouldn't have been looking quite so happy at meeting The Fourmost. The Roulettes, etc. fan club. However, she admitted to liking other stars too, particularly The Stones.

Seventeen year old student Diana Willoughby, another distance traveller (she'd come from Dorset) said that her favourite pop star is P. J. Proby, while schoolgirl Dianne Lesley Collins, fifteen, from Henley on Thames, said that she likes Karl King. Our faithful tape recorder, tucked under the table on which stood the Christmas tree, provided background music to the conversation, quite a bit of which consisted of "May I have your autograph, please?" Glasses of Coke were left untouched while posters signed and readers smiled. But at last, most of the guests reluctantly decided that it was time they were on their way. Those who did not need to hurry that, didn't!

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Fab

TEENS TOG UP

Here's Arthur looking very Sharp indeed in his Don Juan outfit. You should have heard the laughs when he put on his knee breeches

Have you ever carried a complete set of chain mail down four flights of stairs? It's heavy, believe me. But then John Allen wanted to be a Crusader. He loves films with lots of blood and fighting. The way he was brandishing his sword around, we almost had it on the stage at Kilburn where we took the photos.

He's dressed as a cowboy but I drew the line at that which is why he can remember going to a fancy dress party in his childhood and then he went as... a cowboy! The costume we brought had no guns, which prompted Ray to mention that there was a toy shop a mile down the road if I'd like to go and get him some six-shooters. My reply was nearly unprintable! Don Juan was Art Sharp's choice of costume. He really looked magnificent in multi-coloured silk jacket, fulls round his neck

Pete couldn't shake up his mind whether to wear his hat as Robin Hood or the Lone Ranger. Wore back to front it looked terrific, with a dagger in his hand.

ONCE they had started to dress up, we just couldn't stop them! The Nashville Teens that is. We asked them to choose the costumes they would wear if they were going to a fancy dress party and they did just that.

John Allen had some trouble with his chain mail. He forgot to put his novelty combinations on underneath. It was a good job he was strong because the armour weighed a ton.

Ray was last to arrive, and seeing the others half tugged up he couldn't stop giggling, especially at Barry who made a loud zinging noise every time he moved, with all the bells on his costume.

Caesar had hysterics when he saw his gold lined strap-up boots, but his pretty, John just couldn't locate which way to wear it. The final effect was absolutely stunning.

and cuffs. Artt would really like to live in this period but for the fact that they didn't have proper dentists and doctors and he says he's a coward when it comes to pain.

Pete Shannon chose Robin Hood 'cause he, like Robin, lived in Nottingham. Also he'd just bought some suede boots which exactly matched the costume. Three years ago Pete even did archery at school, but as we didn't have a bow and arrow with us, fortunately he couldn't demonstrate his skill.

Barry Jenkins was really the funniest of the lot. He chose a jester's costume because he's the comic of the group. He'd like to go to a fancy dress party if someone would only ask him.

John Hawken must have the last word. When I asked him why he'd chosen Julius Caesar he merely said, "Delusions of grandeur!"

dance
by
MAUREEN HART

FAB thought it was about time a new dance was born. So I went along to see the rehearsals of the Kathy Kirby Show, to meet a young choreographer, called Peter Gorden. And he turned out to be really something. Peter's personality and dancing are fantastic. We'll be hearing more about him, because apart from arranging all the dances for Kathy's Show—he can sing, too. As a matter of fact, Peter at 22, is tipped as Britain's best dancer/choreographer. He's tremendous. I asked him if he would devise a new dance just for FAB readers, and he was only too happy to oblige. Peter is demonstrating the dance for us with attractive Julie Grant, the singer who, in fact, used to dance in the chorus. The dance is called The FAB.

But natch!

Straighten up, feet together, swing forward for a couple of steps and then back to the beginning again for a FAB dance.

NEVER BEFORE ON ONE TAPE!

Does your mouth say Honeypot?

Throw away the book of rules, this mouth breaks the lot! A mouth so perfectly expressive that talking only breaks the spell. The mouth of Lolita, the lipline of Helen of Troy, if you see this cupid's bow in the mirror, you can smile back confidently, for you're the cream in any man's coffee. You're the cosmetic type — you know that to win you need wardrobe. So be sure to use Gordon-Moore's Cosmetic Toothpaste to polish your teeth bright as a diamond, tint your gums a pink as warm as the men's looks.

Quickies PINK PACK PROTECT

Cold winds will never dry your skin when you use Quickies new cream pads before making up. The fragrant moisture base keeps the soft bloom in your complexion and gives the extra anti-wrinkle protection of Vitamin F. too.
