A Watery Rave!

The Four Bucketeers are splashing to glory! This Friday (the 3rd), they're going to set the pop world on fire (and then put it out again) with the release of their very first LP, entitled, amazingly enough — The Four Bucketeers.

It threatens to set the style for music in the eighties, with inspired renditions of classical numbers like Song For Village Idiots, The 1980 Dying Fly, Wuwal Wetweats, Funky Spitting Punk Dog Song, The Bucketeers National Anthem, and, as mentioned below, Matthew Butler's Bright Eyes.

CBS are taking full responsibility for putting the album in the record shops.

FLAN YOUR FOLKS

We received this impassioned plea from Susan Butler of West Bromwich: I hope the Phantom Flan Flinger can make good use of this mug shot of my brother Mark — it's the only one I could pinch from his room!

Mark is the most infuriating person I know and is always giving me lectures on how to do things.

I have always been tempted to make up a flan myself out of his shaving cream, but have decided I'd like to live till I get older!

PLEASE, PLEASE, FLAN MY BROTHER — my mother would greatly enjoy this as well.

If you'd like one of your folks flanned, send a mug-shot to: Look-in, Flan Your Folks, 247, Tottenham Court Road, London, W1P 0AU.

MATTHEW'S ONE CARROT GOLD!

The Tiswas team got the surprise of their lives when a very tiny figure, dressed in a rabbit costume and holding an enormous carrot, walked onto the stage during an audition and proceeded to sing Bright Eyes. When the team had picked themselves up off the floor, they realised they'd got a "find". Five-year-old Matthew Butler (left) has since appeared several times on the programme singing in his own particular style. His version is also included in The Four Bucketeers L.P. released this week.

When he recorded it for the LP, he and his family had a dreadful journey from their home in Acton Trussle in Stafford, down to London. But as soon as they got to the studio he put on his costume (he insisted on wearing it although it was only a sound recording) and his nerves vanished as he sang Bright Eyes through four times . . . Art Garfunkel, eat your heart out!

Cousin Muswell's old boot wins him a booty!

THE BENNY HILL PAGE

WHEN COUSIN MUSWELL HILL WENT TO THE AUTUMN FAIR, THE GIRL FROM THE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE WAS ALSO THERE...

I'M GOING TO HAVE A GO AT WINNING THE WELLIE THROWING CONTEST!

SO WHAT? GET LOST!

THE COMPETITION IS A BIT TOO HOT FOR ME HERE, TOO - AND NOW IT'S RAINING TO ADD TO MY MISERY!

UGH! MY FEET WILL BE SOAKED!

STICK YOUR FEET IN MY OLD BOOT, MISS!

I'M DEFINITELY NOT HER NUMBER!

EEK! SOMETHING TICKLING MY FEET!

I EXPECT IT'S A SPIDER! IT WAS COVERED IN COBWEBS WHEN I GOT IT OUT OF THE SHED!

ARRGH! I CAN'T ABIDE SPIDERS - OR YOU EITHER!

WHO OWNS THIS OLD BOOT?

I DO!

IT MUST HAVE BEEN A MONEY SPIDER IN MY OLD BOOT!

More Hill humour next week.

SOCCER SURVEY

You may remember that several weeks ago I asked you to write and tell me if you think that British football is on the decline because of the lack of training facilities for the young, and, if so, why, and what can be done about it. I received some very interesting letters, extracts from the best of which you can read below, and the senders of these have each earned themselves a £3.00 postal order and Junior Reporter's Certificate.

I think this is a very serious problem, not having the facilities or opportunities to teach the individual skills needed. And the problem also applies to other sports as well as football. I think that teams and clubs should be set up and the football teams and football stars should sponsor these small teams and coach them. I say this because there is a small team in Newent not far from where I live and the small boys that play are very good. They win many medals but have the problem of money. Other teams should be set up like this and sponsored so that they can afford the facilities to train.

Charlotte James,
Ross on Wye, Hereford

I don't believe English football has gone downhill at all, in fact I believe it has improved. But other countries have developed good sides, too. Take Argentina and Holland, for instance, with players like Maradona, Ardiles, Krol and Rep.

I agree with the experts that there are not enough facilities at school. My brother only got the chance to practise soccer about ten times during the whole year at school. Most of the time he was doing gymnastics, basketball and rugby. Some boys have just not got the height or build for a footballer, but they might have the ability. Kevin Keegan, for instance, was told by his teacher at school that he would never make a footballer. Had it not been for his determination we would not have this talented midfielder in the England side today. Many boys all over Britain are being put off because they are told they don't have the height or build for a footballer, but in many other countries, such as Argentina and Holland as I have already mentioned, they have much better facilities at school so that they can spot the budding young players.

Una McKillop, Cushendall,
Co. Antrim, N. Ireland.

In my opinion British soccer has not declined over the years but has improved. I also feel that international standards have risen, too.

The reason that we have not kept up with other teams is, I think, that kids at school are simply not encouraged enough to play skilful, attacking football. This is why we have to import foreign players, because our own players lack the skill and flare which they can often provide. I am the captain of my school team and I always try to encourage them to have a go, and I find that our hardest opposition are teams that have individual skills coupled with team work.

Duncan Skinner, Dover, Kent.

BOOKSHELF

Asterix, that cunning little Gaulish warrior, is back in a new adventure: Asterix In Belgium, by Goscinny and Uderzo. When Chief Vitalstatix hears that Caesar has declared the Belgians the bravest in all of Gaul, he goes with Asterix, his inseparable friend Obelix, and, of course, Dogmatix, to Belgium to prove otherwise! Published by Knight Books it costs £2.25.

Frankenstein's Aunt, by Allan Rune Pettersson, is a chilling and very amusing little tale about Hanna Frankenstein who goes to her nephew's castle determined to restore it to order and clear the family's blackened name. She, of course, needs help and she finds it in the shape of... well, that would be telling, wouldn't it?! The book, which has a hard cover, costs £3.95 and is published by Hodder & Stoughton, and the story is also available on cassette, read by Valentine Dyal.

Macdonald Educational have recently published four new titles in the Whizz Kids series of hobby/activity books. They are: Painting And Drawing, Disguises And Make-up, Model

STAR SNAP

I am sending you a Star Snap: it is of me with you, Ed. It was taken at Wellington Country Park when you did a walk for Action Research For The Crippled Child. You were dressed up as the old woman who lived in a shoe and I took your dog Sasha round the course.

Carey Munn (age 10), Reading, Berks.

PICARTOON

This Picartoon was sent in by nine-year-old Caroline Sammout of Meersbrook, Sheffield. It shows Caroline with her friend Sharon Francis (age 11) and they'll soon be able to get their teeth into the £3.00 postal order and Junior Reporter's Certificate that are on their way to them. Fangs for sending me the photo!

ALL MY OWN WORK

I would like to tell you about the model I have made of Dr. Who's Tardis. It is made of plywood and measures 23cm x 13cm x 13cm. I painted it with enamels.

David Tait (age 12), Mansfield, Notts.

Well done, David. There's a £3.00 postal order and Junior Reporter's Certificate on their way to you. If there are any other young model makers out there who would like to see their work on my Newsdesk, just send me a clear photograph and description of the model and I'll do my best to print it. The address? All My Own Work, Stewpot's Newsdesk, Look-in, 247 Tottenham Court Road, London W1P 0AU. A £3.00 postal order and Junior Reporter's Certificate to the sender of each one published.

Railways and How To Be An Astronomer. They each cost 95p. And finally, a paperback book for all football fans who like to test their knowledge on the subject. Football Quiz 1980/81, by Gordon Jeffery, is packed with football facts, figures and fun. An Armada book, it costs 80p.

THE THONS ARE COMING...

This Thursday and Friday (2nd and 3rd October) in the London area only, Thames Television are staging a marathon charity-raising event. From 6.30 p.m. on Thursday evening until way past your bedtimes (3.00 a.m. Friday morning, to be exact!) and from mid-day on Friday until 7.00 p.m., there will be innumerable 'Thons' (symbolised by this little character above): Give Us A Clue Telethon Special, Dartathon (in which all-comers get a chance to throw darts in competition with top professional players), Make Me Laugh (a test to see how long contestants can stay straight-faced whilst being bombarded with jokes from three top comedians) and Golden Moments (a chance to phone-in and pledge money to see favourite film or TV clips), to name but a few. The idea is to raise as much money as possible for children's charities — and Thames TV is hoping to reach the £1,000,000 mark.

Here it is, Smurf-Spotters! Now you can enter our... SUPER SMURF ISLAND COMPETITION

Pictures not to scale.

10 FANTASTIC Panasonic TV/RADIO/CASSETTE PORTABLES TO BE WON! Plus 500 sets of Smurf Figurines for runners-up!

We're proud to announce one of the most exciting competitions we've ever featured in Look-in!

If you've collected the three parts of our Smurf Island Poster over the past weeks, (that's the last part on the opposite page) then you're all set to enter. But first, let's tell you about the fantastic first prize we have to offer.

The Panasonic TR-5001G 5" is an all-in-one TV/radio/cassette portable. In a magnificent moulded dark brown cabinet, it features a 5" solid-state black and white TV plus a built-in 4-band radio and cassette recorder. The radio includes FM, long wave, medium wave and short wave bands, with sound monitor. It operates on mains, car/boat battery or nine "D" UM-1 size dry batteries, with electronic tuning for both VHF and UHF reception. The Panasonic TV/Radio/Cassette Portable has separate bass and treble tone controls, and comes complete with microphone (plus stand), personal earphone and car battery adaptor.

We are offering 10 of these superb Panasonic entertainment centres as prizes to lucky winners.

But that's not all. For runners-up we're offering 500 — yes 500 — sets of four brand new Smurf figurines: that's them, pictured above. There's Telephone Smurf, tailor Smurf, Rugby Smurf, and Card Player Smurf.

TO ENTER, you'll need to study closely your completed Smurf Island Poster. As you can see, it contains lots of Smurf hats, Smurf feet and Smurf tails. But exactly how many? What you have to do is count the number of hats, feet and tails you can spot on the Smurfs in the poster and then complete your amounts in the spaces provided on the coupon.

When you have done this, complete the coupon, not forgetting to include your name, address and age, and send it to: Look-in, Smurf Island Competition, P.O. Box 141, London, SE6 3HR. The senders of the first 10 correct entries pulled from the postbag after the closing date, Monday, October 20th, 1980, will each receive a Panasonic TR-5001G 5" TV/Radio/Cassette Portable, while the senders of the next 500 correct entries pulled from the postbag after the date will each receive a set of four Smurf figurines as described.

RULES: Entry is free and open to all Look-in readers aged 16 and under and living in the United Kingdom, with the exception of families of employees of ITV Publications Ltd., Panasonic and associated companies, National Benzole Co. Ltd., and their agents. The editor's decision will be final and no correspondence can be entered into. Closing date for the receipt of entries will be first post on Monday, October 20th, 1980.

Send to Look-in, Smurf Island Comp.,
P.O. Box 141, London SE6 3HR.

Number of Smurf feet <input style="width: 50px;" type="text"/>	Name .....
Number of Smurf tails <input style="width: 50px;" type="text"/>	Address .....

OIL AND SEABIRDS

The sad state of an oil-covered guillemot, waiting for death, unable to dive for fish.

Have you ever thought that the oil we use as fuel for our cars and house heating is a great enemy to seabirds? Unfortunately, the seas of the world are now used as the 'dustbins' for lots of rubbish from our everyday lives. Some of that rubbish includes oil which is discharged from tankers or from other ships crossing the oceans.

Sometimes very large oil slicks can be caused by accidents at sea. Weeks and even months later, we can see the dreadful results on beaches and along our coasts — lines or patches of oil and tar on the sand and rocks, and sadly many hundreds of oiled seabirds.

Great numbers of these birds die each year because of oil, but some are rescued by the RSPCA and other organisations.

Although some species of seabird are increasing in numbers — gulls, gannets and fulmars — others such as razorbills, puffins and guillemots are decreasing. This is why the RSPCA does everything it can to rescue, clean and release as many oiled sea birds as possible — and especially those which are decreasing in numbers.

Birds which have been covered in oil are cleaned by the Society at its purpose-built oiled seabird units. The main centre is situated at the RSPCA Little Creech Wildlife Field Unit, West Hatch, near Taunton, in Somerset. This Friday (3 October) a new and unique mobile 'Bird Reception Unit' is being given to the RSPCA by the big oil company, Shell U.K. Limited, who also want to help protect and save seabirds. This mobile reception unit will be able to go anywhere in the country to receive oiled seabirds from the beaches and give first aid treatment before taking them to the cleaning units.

CLEANING OILED CASUALTIES

The cleaning method takes between 1½ and 2 hours for a guillemot and up to 6 hours for a gannet. So you can see that it is a very hard and long job for the people who do it because they have to make sure that all the feathers of the birds are completely water repellent — allowing the birds to float again. Great care is taken not to damage any of the feathers during the cleaning because it is their delicate structure which provides insulation (warmth) and water repellency. It is relatively easy to make a bird look clean but that does not mean that it can float again. Apart from their appearance, the birds are also affected internally by the oil. They could have swallowed it and this can give them stomach disorders, arthritis and lots of other illnesses. Every year the RSPCA treats and cleans many hundreds of oiled seabirds. If you do find one, do not attempt to clean it yourself, but telephone your nearest RSPCA Inspector for help.

Once the birds are cleaned and are fully recovered from the effects of oil, they are released back to the sea. They have rings put on their legs so that if they are found again, they can be identified. Many of those birds released have lived up to two years or more in the wild after their dreadful ordeal.

Animal Allsorts is prepared with the help of the RSPCA. If you are interested in becoming a Junior RSPCA Member, you can write for further details to the RSPCA, Causeway, Horsham, Sussex, RH12 1HG.

STEWART'S STARCHART

YOU could get yourself a prize in this week's Starchart if you are familiar with items associated with green, because all the answers to the clues I give are just that. If you can spot them all, eliminate them from the chart and work out the one word left over, then you could win our £3 postal order prize.

Once you have solved the clues I give, find the words in the chart by linking together letters in any direction except diagonally. That means — starting and stopping as directed — you can link up by going forward, backward, up or down in every answer. You must use every letter just once, including the prize answer.

Now for your clues — and remember all the answers have some connection with green. All are one-word answers, except where indicated.

Start with a green salad vegetable connected with mustard. Now look for a vegetable you might say is a big courgette. Still with vegetables, these known as Runners; this makes Popeye strong; these are sprouts; this is the most common green in a salad; this is used in making 'bubble and squeak'; this can be eaten raw or pickled; this comes from a tree, has a hard stone, and can be either green or black; this fruit grows on a prickly bush and looks like it has hairs.

Now what about the growths on branches of trees — what are they? Can you think of a plant considered lucky when it has four leaves? Think of a fruit, usually sweeter than a plum, with green in its name. And what about the fruit from the Garden of Eden? What building, mostly glass, might you find in the garden? Now what about the expanse of grass in the garden? And what game, played on grass, has 18 holes?

These are usually green in a domestic animal (but not when you see them marking the centre of the road) (2 words); these have one green light (2 words); this reptile has a long tongue and looks like a tiny dinosaur; this one hops; this TV character usually appears this colour — as his muscles bulge and his shirt rips (3 words); and these youngsters are the Boy Scouts of the future.

Now if you have found all that lot you should have one word left over — which it would be dangerous to ignore. Send me that one word, not the completed square, and you could be a winner. The address? Starchart, Look-in, 247 Tottenham Court Road, London, W1P 0AU. The sender of the first correct entry pulled from the postbag will receive the prize.

Here are last week's answers

Dutch Elm; Cherry; Apple; Ash; Sycamore; Pear; Beech; Horse Chestnut; Orange; Pine; Bark; Branches; Leaves; Cork; Roots; Twig; Cabinets; Paper; Table; Chair; Furniture; Chessmen; Fence; Desk; Guitar; Prize answer: Steel.

THE POLICE ON TRIAL

The three man Police force may have been charging around the world playing live concerts at some most unlikely venues, but it is almost a year since they released any new recordings.

Their last single So Lonely, which reached the top ten as far back as March, came not from their second album Reggatta de Blanc but from their first LP, Outlandos d'Amour, which was released way back in 1978.

After that, they released the special six pack of singles in June, which featured one song previously unreleased as a single — The Bed's Too Big Without You — also from the Reggatta album.

So a third LP has been eagerly anticipated, and there has been an astonishing amount of publicity about the "birth" of a new long player, which is finally released tomorrow (Friday the 3rd). The album has another foreign sounding title, Zenyatta Mondatta — a name thought up by the band but left mysteriously untranslated — and follows hard on the heels of the latest hit single Don't Stand So Close To Me. Once again the album producer is Nigel Gray, who worked on the two earlier releases, and work was continued in earnest up to the last minute to get everything absolutely right on each track.

The Police admit that they have been extremely anxious over this album, because they have been feeling the pressure of living up to what is expected of them. And that kind of pressure is a new experience for them. The first album was around for a long time before it gained any recognition, and when it suddenly surged up into the best sellers, the band who had been working for two years without much to show for their efforts were immediately promoted to the lofty heights of superstars.

That didn't particularly worry them, because they have all been in the music business for a long time (drummer Stewart Copeland having enjoyed success with Curved Air, guitarist Andy Summers earning a handsome living as a much-in-demand session player and Sting serving an apprenticeship with jazz groups in his native Newcastle) and were aware of the dangers facing them. "We knew that we had to act responsibly, and not get carried away by our own publicity — or by our success," said Andy. "We had to keep control of the publicity, so that while we were in the public eye, we did not overdo things so that people became fed up with us. It is a very delicate balance to maintain."

Sting explained how the need to release a second album in no way brought any great pressure on the band: "When we became successful, we found that we were in a strong position, because we had already written a stack of material for the second album.

"I'm not the sort of person who can sit down and produce an albumful of songs to order, I can't work like that. So we had no need to rush into releasing anything we were not happy with, and we had more material than we needed to choose from! Most of it was already recorded, too, long before the album was eventually released."

As they didn't have to worry about recording, they set out on a magical mystery tour of live concerts in all corners of the globe, undertook solo projects — Sting in films and Stewart as singer Klark Kent (who released a ten inch album earlier this year) — and were able to enjoy their hard-won success. Yet when Reggatta de Blanc did come out, it met with a mixed reception, and was described by some critics as patchy and only occasionally inspired. So, for the first time in their career, the boys with the distinctive blond hair have found that they have something to prove on record. They must show that they can develop and expand their formula — and they have been required to do this in the knowledge that this time the critics will be looking for failings.

live!

»»» from p.15 This time the boys have, understandably, taken their time to make sure that they can get things as they want them. They shut themselves away in Holland to record some of the songs, and the rest were recorded in London. Then they spent a lot of time going over each song, passing over quite a few before settling on the final contents of the album. Four weeks before its release, they were still working on it, mixing the backing tracks, and even at that stage they had not finalised the track listings!

Even the single Don't Stand So Close To Me and the B-side Friends were not finally decided upon until two weeks before release. Yet while it is true that the group did take a long time considering the album, there are other reasons for the long delay in the arrival of any new recorded offering.

They have been working non-stop since last December, when they undertook a British tour, and then the fantastic world tour they set out on, with the aim of playing in places where audiences were not accustomed to seeing rock groups. They were the first band ever to play in India, their concerts in Greece were the first rock shows since the Rolling Stones played there four years ago, and they also took in the more traditional venues — Japan and New Zealand.

They were playing in the Riviera holiday resorts in France until the middle of September, and before that they marked the opening of the magnificent Milton Keynes Open Air Bowl in what turned out to be a somewhat muddy music festival. Now they are apparently considering going on the road in England again, probably before Christmas, to give the songs on the new album a live airing. For at Milton Keynes, and at the charity show in Sting's home town of Newcastle, they did not preview new material.

As yet, though, nothing is confirmed, but it doesn't take them long to set up a tour when they have decided on it because their back-up crew is small in comparison with those of other bands. It was the compact nature of the touring crew, and of equipment for just three musicians, which enabled The Police to go on such an eccentric tour of the world with their road show.

POLICE FILM?

Stewart has a mania for filing everything and everybody he meets on his travels, and he returned from the world tour with masses of material. The other two are also keen on photography and filming, and so is their manager Miles Copeland, so there has also been a suggestion that they might find time to put together a film of their around-the-world adventures. The videos from the record company, A & M, which have promoted their previous singles, show how well the band use television to project themselves, so a further expansion of their involvement with video cassettes or films seems logical.

Sting has, of course, already proved that he has an ace face for films, with his appearances in the X-rated Quadrophenia and Radio On, and now he is considering another film role — although not in a pop music movie . . . but as a villain in the new James Bond film. It is not the only part that he has been offered, but he remains adamant that The Police come first. "I would like to do more films, but not if it would harm The Police. The band is the most important thing," he said.

Stewart's view is the same, too, and at the moment K lark Kent is in hibernation, as Stewart concentrates on the main task of helping The Police to develop.

But Sting managed to take some time off from Police business recently . . . to see his wife Frances Tomelty play Lady Macbeth opposite Peter O'Toole in a controversial new production of the Shakespearian tragedy Macbeth at the Old Vic in London!

GREAT RECORD COMPETITION

25 COPIES OF
'ZENYATTA MONDATTA'
MUST BE WON!

In keeping with their first two LPs — Outlandos d'Amour and Regatta de Blanc — The Police have gone for a zappy title on album number three. And, just as before, the brand new Zenyatta Mondatta is a certain smash hit.

It contains eleven exciting new tracks, including the latest single, Don't Stand So Close To Me, and we're offering 25 copies to winners of this week's record competition.

As usual, we've made it easy for you to enter — take a look at the five questions printed below and write your answers to them in the spaces provided on the coupon. Then send it, on a postcard please, with your name, address and age, to: Look-in, Police Competition, P.O. Box 141, London, SE6 3HR. The senders of the first 25 all-correct entries drawn from the postbag after the closing date, Monday, October 20th, 1980, will each receive a copy of Zenyatta Mondatta.

QUESTIONS

1. What was the last Police single released before Don't Stand So Close To Me?
2. The Police six-single pack was released in which month?
3. Drummer Stewart Copeland was previously with which band?
4. What is the title of the B-side of The Police's latest single?
5. What is the name of Sting's home town?

Send, on a postcard only, to:
Look-in Police Competition,

THE EARLY DAYS!

In the week of the Horse Of The Year Show at Wembley we take a look back into the history of Showjumping.

There were some early riders who would jump just about anything, given the opportunity!

In 1904, Georges Crousse, high jumping specialist, saluted the King of Spain in mid-air, whilst clearing a tournament-winning jump of over 2.20 metres!

MAN has relied upon the horse for many uses, in peace and war, for well over one thousand years, so it comes as a great surprise that organised competition (jumping over specially-constructed fences), is only around eighty years old! Showjumping seems to have originated as a 'filler' between horse races when riders could compete for an extra prize, usually jumping over a modest circuit laid out in the centre of the racecourse.

SHOWJUMPING first gained real popularity in France, with Paris holding the first major tournament around the turn of the century. Other European countries slowly took up the sport. Understandably it was the titled classes, who had the wealth and the time to take an interest in horsemanship, and the armies, who dominated showjumping. As the sport grew in popularity, a number of schools sprang up around Europe where a pupil could go to be educated in the finer points of riding. The most famous was the Italian School, headed by Captain Fred Caprilli. Many riders still felt that they should dominate their mount. Caprilli felt otherwise. He argued that horses loved to jump and that riders should recognise that and set out to develop a harmonious relationship with their partners. Caprilli also promoted the forward riding seat. A lot of riders still clung to the traditional hunting seat, on the back of the saddle, that had the rider leaning back as the horse jumped the fences. The forward riding seat allowed the rider to lean forward with the horse, as if one unit, when the horse jumped. A classic style of showjumping developed out of Caprilli's thinking, a style that has changed very little to the present day. International showjumping really arrived in Britain in 1948 when Olympic showjumping was held at Wembley Football Stadium. As team after team of international riders displayed a standard of horsemanship never dreamed of in this country the spectators were suddenly hooked on what was for them a splendid new sport. From that day showjumping really took off in Great Britain!

Jean Germany

Jean Germany, born on 25th February 1960 has been riding since the age of eight, and competing in pony classes from the age of ten.

Jean is one of Britain's great hopes for the future with a string of junior titles behind her. She has represented the Junior British Team many times and now, as a senior, is showing the older and more experienced riders that she is more than capable of setting the pace.

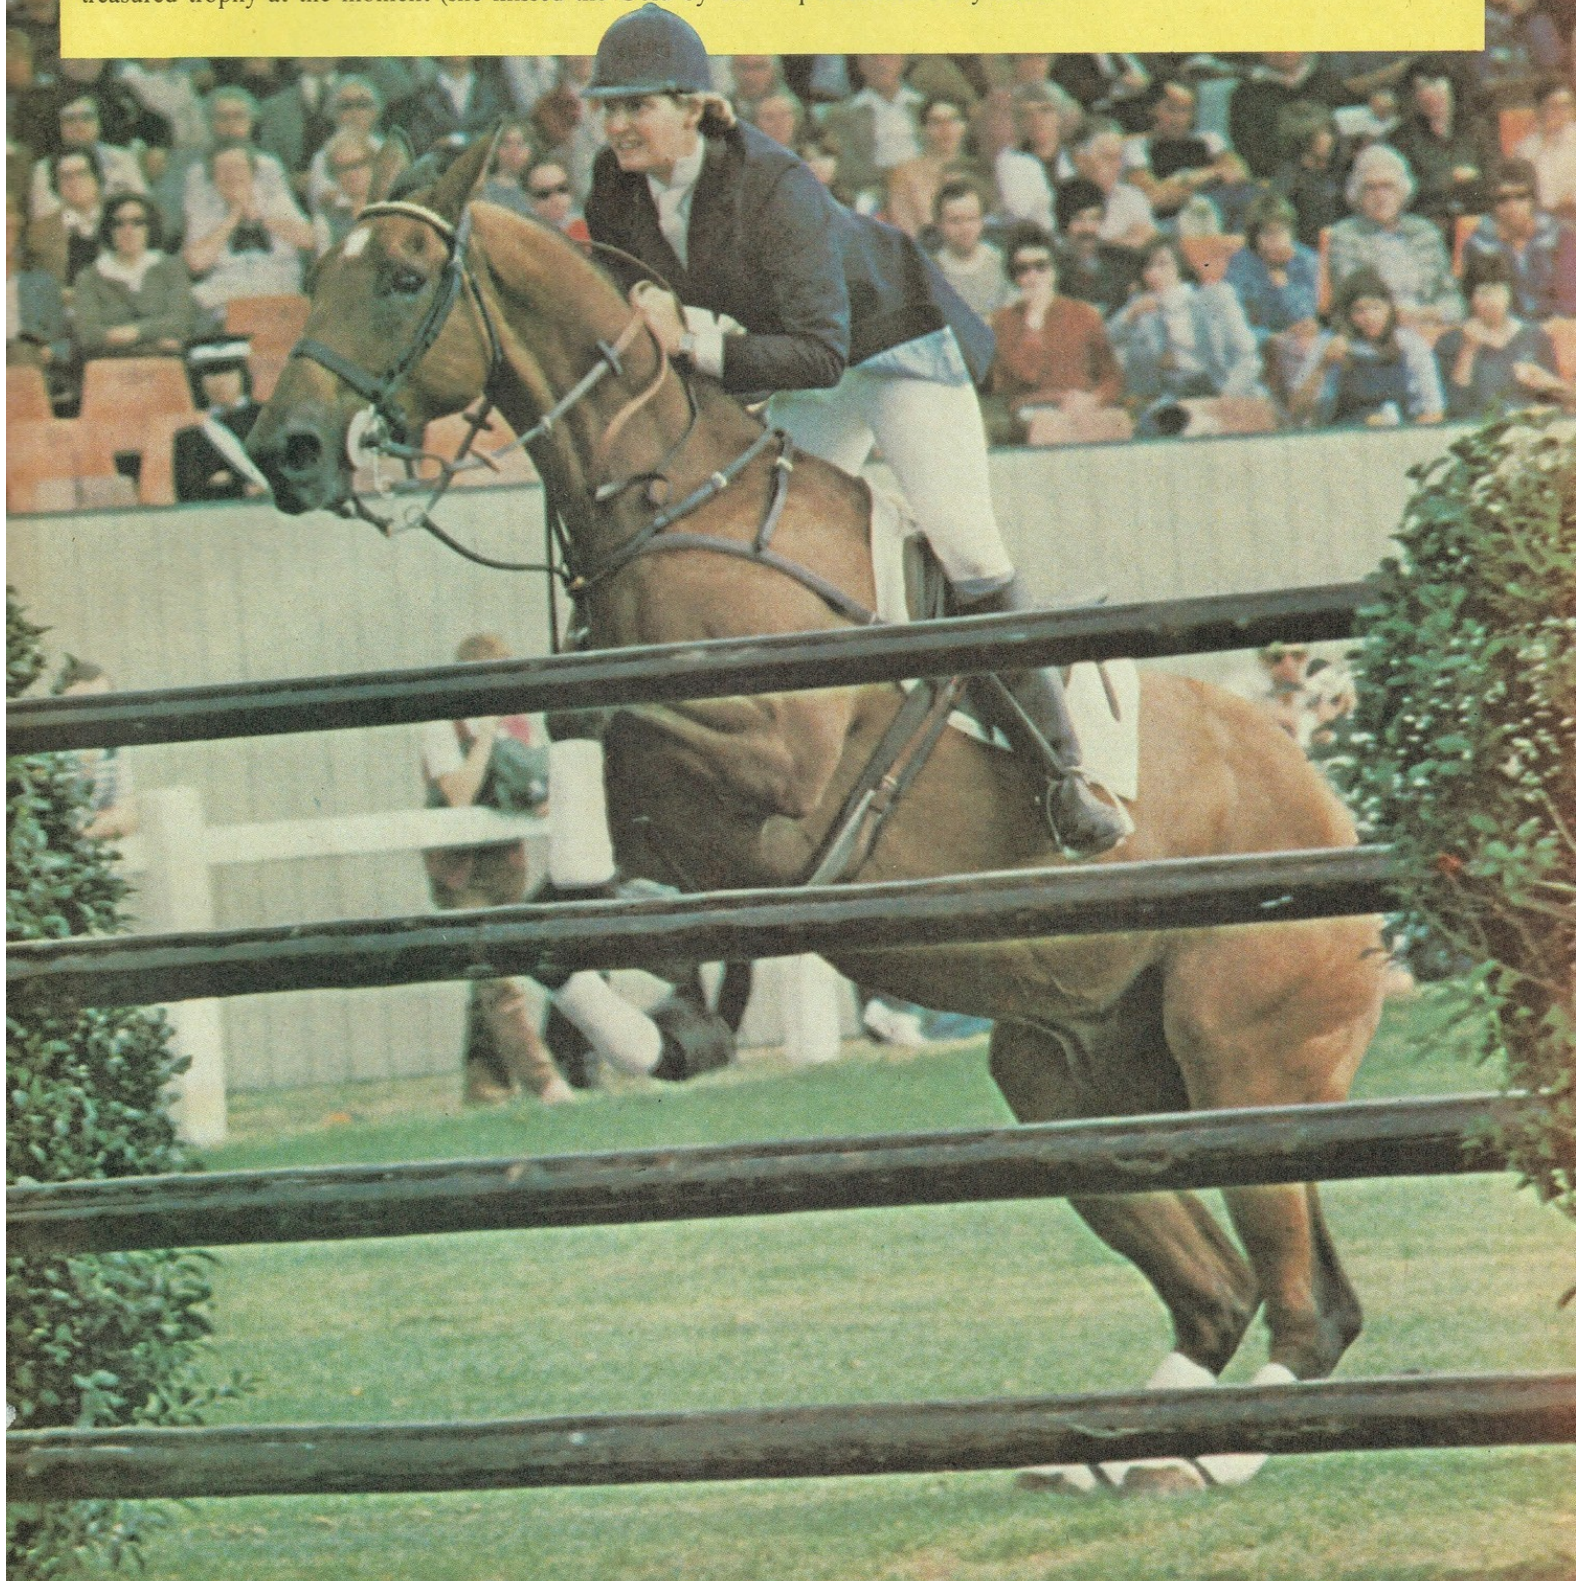

The Junior European Individual Silver medal is Jean's most treasured trophy at the moment (she missed the Gold by 1.6 seconds), and you can be sure that we'll be seeing her challenging for the top honours at future World and European Senior Show Jumping Championships.

Her greatest ambition at the moment is to win the most popular cup for Ladies — The Queen Elizabeth Cup at the Royal International Horse Show.

Jean's (seen here on Janus) biggest win this year, however, was the Daily Mail Cup at the Royal International Horse Show at Wembley last July, while she was also the winner of the Radio Rentals Champion Horseman competition beating off the challenge of world class riders like Harvey Smith, David Bowen and top American Terry Rudd.

SAPPHIRE & STEEL

AN EVIL FORCE OF TIME THRIVES ON VIOLENCE. IT BREAKS INTO THE PRESENT DAY DURING A SCUFFLE BETWEEN PRESERVATIONISTS AND DEMOLITION MEN AT A VICTORIAN MILL IN SCANFORTH... AND IT TAKES, AS A LINK WITH TODAY, A YOUNG BOY, TOMMY. IT FALLS TO SAPPHIRE AND STEEL TO CONVINCE TOMMY'S MOTHER OF THE WEIRD FATE THAT HAS OVERTAKEN HER SON...

I - I'M INTO ASTROLOGY, AND I BELIEVE IN GHOSTS AND THAT SORT OF THING... BUT - BUT THIS...

I CAN ONLY ASK YOU TO TRUST US, MRS DAY. WE CAN BRING HIM BACK TO YOU.

NOW THAT THE FORCE - THE TIME-CHILD - HAS TOMMY WITH IT, IT WILL USE HIM TO SURFACE MORE OR LESS ANYWHERE...

WE NEED TO KNOW WHERE TOMMY GOES. HIS SCHOOL. WHERE HE PLAYS.

SOMETIMES, CHILDREN ACCEPT THE INCREDIBLE MORE READILY THAN AN ADULT, MRS DAY...

BUT THE BEST THING YOU CAN DO, SALLY, IS TO STAY WITH YOUR MOTHER. SHE NEEDS YOU, YOU KNOW.

SUDDENLY...

SALLY! I TOLD YOU TO GO TO BED!

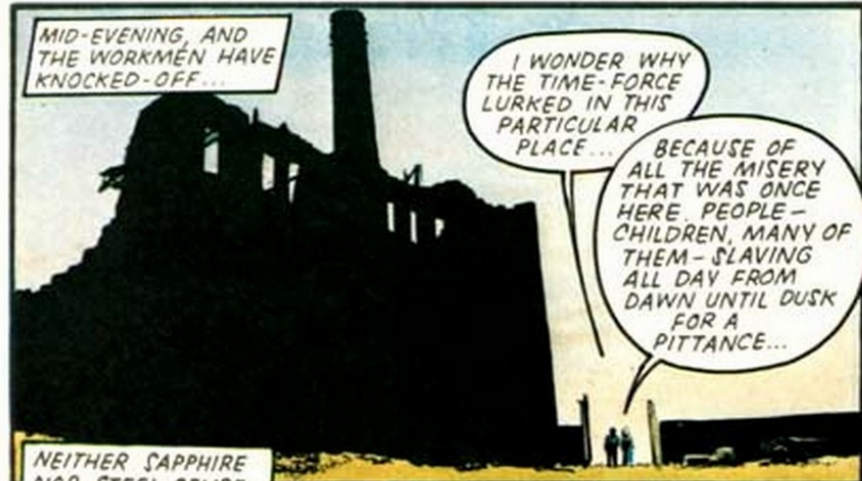

BUT I'VE BEEN LISTENING, MAM. AND I WANT TO HELP.

THE UNHAPPY WOMAN GIVES SAPPHIRE AND STEEL WHAT INFORMATION SHE CAN, AND...

THE TIME-CHILD WILL WANT TO BREED AS MUCH VIOLENCE AS IT CAN, SAPPHIRE PERSONALLY. I SEE THE SCHOOL AS THE LIKELY PLACE.

IF YOU'RE RIGHT, THAT GIVES US UNTIL TOMORROW MORNING. HOW ABOUT ANOTHER LOOK AT THE MILL IN THE MEANTIME?

NEITHER SAPPHIRE NOR STEEL SENSE THE MALEVOLENT PRESENCE THAT HAS MATERIALISED BEHIND THEM!

Metal Mickey

London Weekend's comedy series starring that lovable robot Metal Mickey in the title role was written by Colin Bostock-Smith and shows the hilarious impact on a typical London family of this miracle of electronic and human wizardry. Well, with just half of the scripted shows completed it looks as though Mickey has made a big impact on the viewers as well!

Co-starring with Mickey is, of course, that fine comedy actress Irene Handl who plays Granny. Says Irene, "The machine gets all the laughs but I don't mind because I get all the sympathy."

Mickey, who says his age is somewhere between Donny Osmond's and Jimmy Young's, has been treading the boards for 2½ years — before that he was a dustbin! No stranger to TV, he's appeared on such shows as Jim'll Fix It, two series of The Saturday Banana, Nationwide and Afternoon Plus. He's also kept very busy opening department stores, but now as the star of his own show the sky's the limit for our mechanical friend!

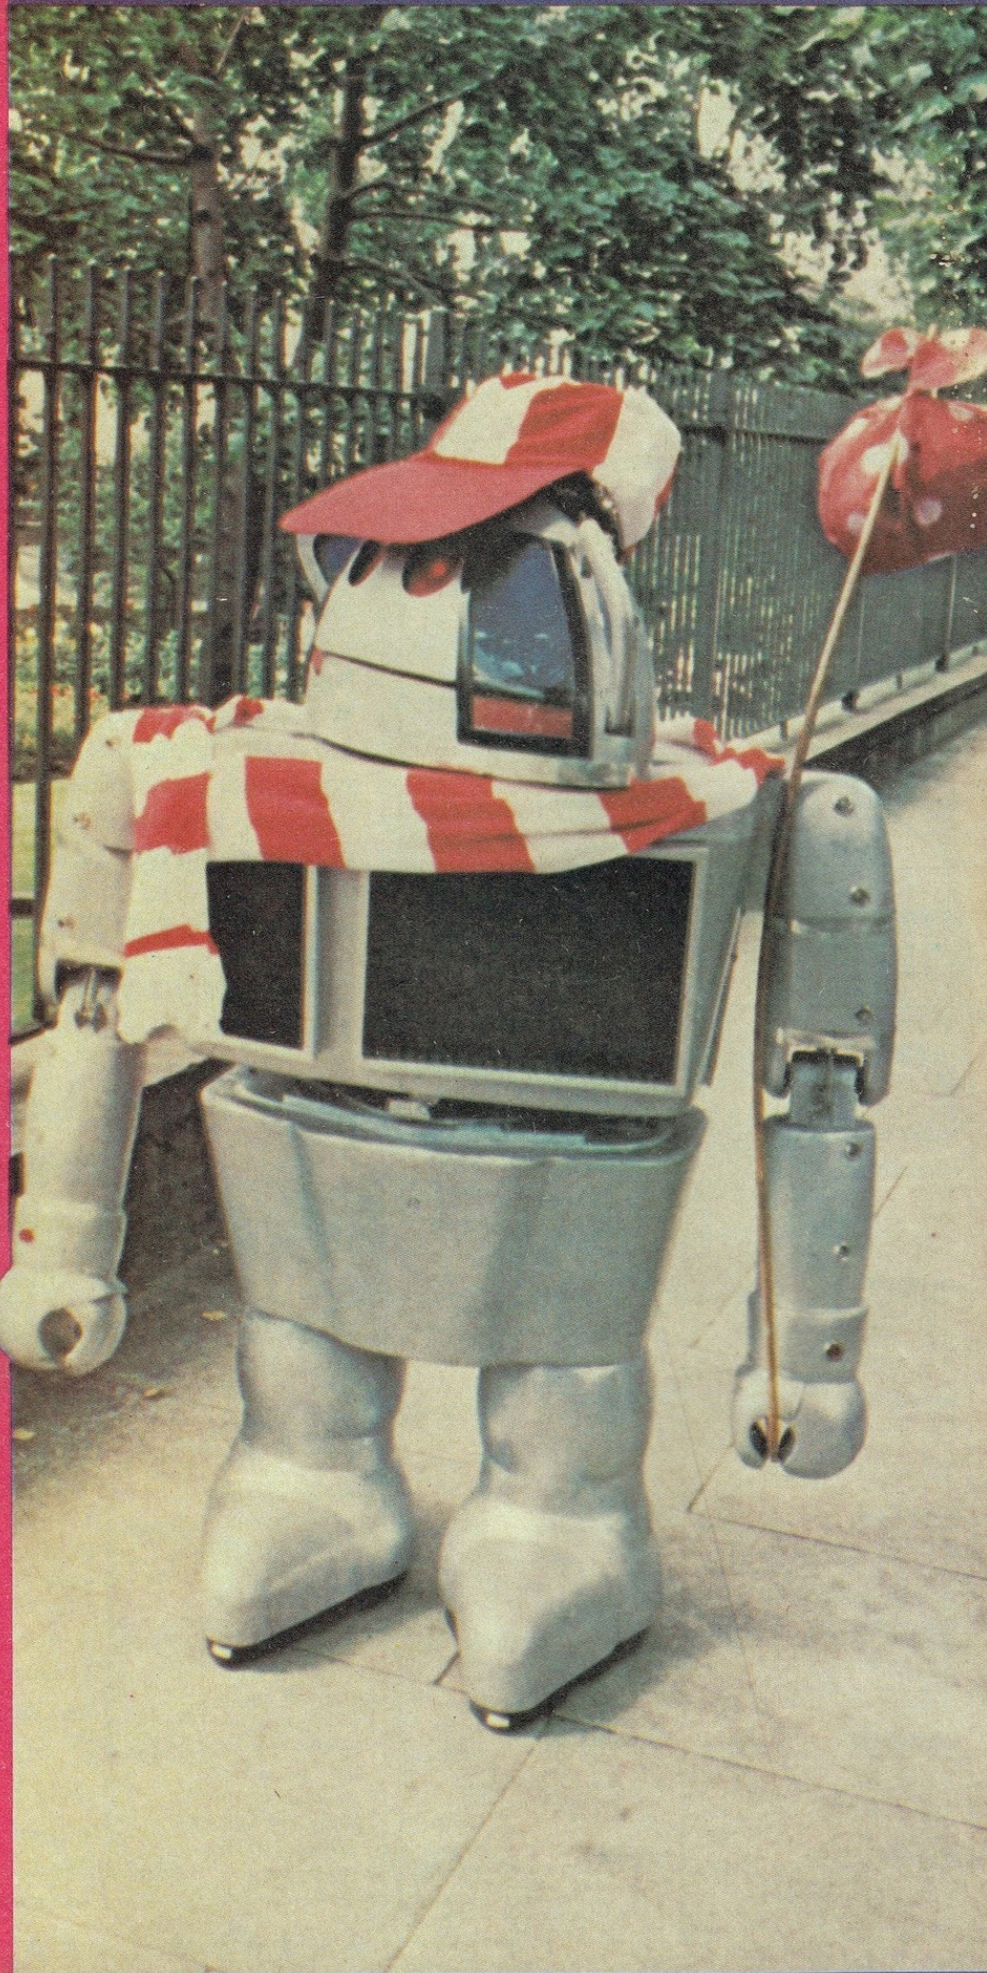

The producer/director of the series is 35-year-old Michael Dolenz, possibly better known as Mickey Dolenz of The Monkees.

Starting his acting career at the age of 6, Michael became interested in special effects and the technical side of film-making when he was 12, and television direction is a natural progression for him. He has already directed many commercials in England. He says, "Metal Mickey is very talented and makes no more mistakes than the average actor. But he certainly has his own special magic."

Humphrey Barclay, London Weekend's Head Of Comedy, backs Dolenz fully, saying: "I knew Mickey had star potential when I first met him. He has a fantastic personality and I'm sure he is going to be a big hit with viewers of all ages."
