On the "home" front, Ralph Sharon has just signed a two-year contract with the Melodisc company, under which he will record solo, with a trio, with his Sexiet, and with a large band featuring himself on piano.

"MM" Paris Correspondent Henry Kahn took Ray to the Italian Embassy, but officials there could not help, and the pair were eventually advised to return to Loudon to await the necessary documents. Ray was refused permission to fetch the Quartet's instruments and luggage from Mihn, and was told that these would be returned in due course. At the time of going to press the two boys who went by road are due back at any moment. The necessary permits, to enable the party to start out all over again, are expected hourly. A doctor in the club gave further assistance, and Denny was taken to Charing Cross Hospital. With bandaged fargers, he returned to the Cavez band on Tuesday.

ON Wednesday of last week the Ray Ellington Quartet arrived in Paris en route to a four weeks engagement at the Rodrigo Club, Milan. Within 24 hours Ray Ellington and planist Dick Katz were back in London and Coleridge Goode (bass) and Laurie Deniz (guitar), who were travelling by road, had been recalled to England.

This dramatic sel-back was caused by last-minute inability to procure a working permit and visa for Dick Katz.

Although ordered by her doctor not to play over the week-end, Kathleen Stobart insisted on leading her band at the Coronation Ballroom, Ramsgate, on Monday, for its final engagement.

Previously she had conducted her group at Ramsgate on Saturday, and fulfilled similar duties at the Feldman Club the following night, while Aubrey Frank depped instrumentally, but she felt too ill on these occasions to play.

Our columnist discusses the relationship between genuine jazz and the Palais-and its effect on the men who play it

Night

THE NFJO's Jazz Band Ball at the Hammersmith Palais

THE NFJO's Jazz Band Ball at the Hammersmith Palais was a great success—most of the bands played well, the organisation worked like an electric clock, and everybody seemed to be having a good time.

All of which is good for the NFJO and the Hammersmith Palais and everyone else who was having a profitable evening in one sense or another. But there's something else to be learned from an evening of that sort.

First of all, there's the obvious lesson that jazz can be made to pay. The Palais was sold out for the night, and every office that sold tickets for the Ball was swamped for days ahead with phone calls enquiring where more tickets could be had.

There was a long queue at the Palais itself, and it was more than two hours before the waiting line finally collapsed and the disappointed went home.

The question one therefore asks oneself is: why do more dance halls not employ jazz bands instead of the regulation dance bands they hire now? The Wilcox Organisation's stunt of hiring a team of hallmom dancers at the first reception for Graeme Bell was an ingenious attempt to prove that jazz after all, it as good to dance to say of the less inspired and more routine forms of dance missic.

And yet there are good semipoto bands that play good jazz and can't find a booker to get them a proper date.

There are a reat many services of the organizations like the NFMO can render— but the greatest. I feel, is the practical one of promoting dances, concerts and other functions which will demonstrate simply and investigation of the promoters and agents galore who feel that they must be made out of good jazz.

Commercial dance music is like pulp fiction: the only people who can make a success of serious writers who write down to a mass audience in order to make money invariably mess up their standing with both audiences—the serious as well as the popular one. And jazzmen who play down to a commercial audience down to a commercial audience down to a commercial audience in the commercial audience in the commercial audience in the commercial audience down to a commercial audience down to a commercial audience down to a commercial audience fine their jazz audience and their musicianship.

Indeed, this haf-on-hat-off routine, purchated by an occasional sip of water and much reference to his notes, conjured up the impression of a man who has strolled into the local, noticed a piano, and sat down to plan, make the second-house audience waiting in the rain outside for 20 minutes. Academic, but uncreative, THIS week I am reviewing a batch of records by Swedish groups. In all, there are 12 sides, each made within the last few years, and now released on the Esquire label. is this jazz and now released on the Esquite aloca. The reputations which Scandinavian musicians acquired as a result of the glowing reports of their performances at the 1949 Paris International Jazz Festival have lately grown in critain circles into something not far short of downright worship. Is this adulation really justified, or is it mainly the exaggeration which so often results when hearsay is too loosely passed from mouth to mouth with insufficient concrete evidence to support 12?
