IS TIN PAN ALLEY DOOMED?

THE VETERAN KID

Building scheme

IS Tin Pan Alley doomed? Will the rattle and roar of pile-drivers and pneumatic drills drown the pianos and record players in the tightly packed offices of Britain's music publishers?

'SUPERMARKET'
In two years' time, the world-famous Denmark Street could be just a heap of rubble. The present ramshackle collection of buildings that provide a major share of the nation's pop-song output may give way to glossy offices of skyscraper dimensions.
Or music publishers could find themselves packed into a musical "supermarket" like the mammoth Brill Building—New York's Tin Pan Alley HQ—at 1619

IT HAPPENED IN MONTEREY

A familiar sight to British jazz fans is Orlan Patterson singing the blues. But this picture comes from the Monterey Jazz Festival, California, where Orlan was appearing with the Chris Barber Band.

JUDGE FINDS MILES NOT GUILTY

NEW YORK, Wednesday.—Miles Davis has been cleared of charges of disorderly conduct.

After a two-day hearing in West 151st Street Magistrate's Court the trumpeter was found not guilty by Judge Phipps.

The judge noted that it was not unusual for musicians to congregate outside their places of employment, such as Birdland.
He declared: "They should be allowed to congregate on the sidewalks without fear of being molested by the police."

No obstruction
The judge said the prosecution witnesses had not shown that Davis had been loud or boisterous or had necessarily obstructed the sidewalk outside Birdland.

PLATTERS TOUR IN JANUARY

The Platters will definitely make a tour of Britain in January.
Arriving on January 15 or 16, the famous rock vocal group will give a series of concerts throughout the country lasting nine or ten days.
At least two television appearances for the group are also being negotiated by the Harold Division office.

STOP PRESS

Police are investigating incident in which on Wednesday evening in which trombonist Harry Ingleton was assaulted. Ingleton was on his way to work at Astoria, Charing Cross Road.

simple assault which will be heard on November 19.
His personal attorney, Harold Lovett, said he would file a million-dollar damage suit against the City of New York within the next two weeks.
Davis, on the other hand, apparently does not want to go through with it.
His agent, Jack Whitmore, told the MM: "Miles feels that if he pushes the City too far, even though he might win his damage suit, he would then become a target for the police who would be looking to nail him on any little charge they could think of."

"He feels he has proved his point if he is found innocent on all charges."

Crosby Bros. deal almost settled

THE long-standing British visit of the four Crosby boys—the singing sons of Bing—is about to be finalized.
Sydney Crosby, of the Law and Lovell Grade Agency, told the MM on Wednesday that negotiations are now being concluded for the Crosbys to make TV appearances and play possible 60-night dates or concerts here later this year or early next.

TOMMY STEELE is host to THE RAINDROPS

Tommy Steele welcomed the Raindrops vocal group to his "Saturday Spectacular" show on ATV last week-end. The group members are (left) Vince Hill, Len Boodle, Jackie Lee and Johnny Worth. The Johnny Boodworth Orchestra was also featured.

'WELCOME HOME' BARBER TOUR

THE Chris Barber Band, with blues singer Orlan Patterson, is due home in London on November 4 at the end of its second American tour.

The first date back in Britain will be at the Coronation Hall, Kingston-on-Thames, on November 6 and it then starts a short tour with American blues singer Champion Jack Dupree.

'Jazz Club' TV

The Barber-Dupree parties in booked for Bournemouth (November 7), Acton (12th), Southampton (13th), Lewisham (14th), Brighton (15th), Brighton (16th) and Watford (16th).
Further dates are yet to be fixed.
The band also has bookings at the Odéon Barking (18th), the Marquee Club, W. (11th), and Dursley (14th).
The first television appearance will be on "New's Jazz Club" from Cardiff on November 17.
The band is in line for a tour of Germany early next year—probably in February.

Solly Black dies

Solly Black, an executive of the Law and Lovell Grade Agency, died on Sunday night from a heart attack. He was 51.
Mr. Black brought the Marino Marini Trio to Britain and also handled specialty acts for the group. He had been with the firm for nearly 10 years.

THE FIVE PENNIES

AN exhausted Danny Kaye arrived in London last week-end to launch "The Five Pennies." The usually exuberant Mr. Kaye was travel-weary—he had just finished a tour of Rome, Paris and Berlin to star his five film numbers into French, German and Italian.

Nevertheless, for 90 minutes on Monday, he talked, and answered my questions conscientiously and directly. Here is an excerpt:

● Are you getting more serious in your films?
No. Every film I have ever made has had at least one serious scene in it. I don't think I am any more serious these days.

● Are you cutting down your film-making?
I never overlap my films. I think it has happened once, and that was through a delay. I make one film a year and that takes three or four months.

For the rest of the time, I do stage work somewhere or other. And then there is my work for the United Nations Children's Fund. I don't see any sense in making more than one film a year.

The 'Five Pennies' star talks about himself to BILL HALDEN

● Do you want to play Shakespeare?
Never! There are hundreds of people far better equipped than I to do that.

● What do you like in entertainment?
I like classical music, jazz, rock-'n'-roll, theatre, off-Broadway productions and opera.

● What don't you like?
I don't like all classical music, jazz, rock-'n'-roll, contemporary theatre—or all anything.

● What particular singers do you like?
Sinatra and Ella. And a new album I heard just before leaving the States. It's "I Want to Love," by Keely Smith.

● What are your plans for the future?
I just want to get back home, put my feet up and have a nice long rest.

For him, Sinatra, Ella and Keely Smith

THE STORY OF THE FILM

records and made him take up his playing again, and now he has made a comeback.

He reformed the Five Pennies and opened in a very small way in California. He clicked. In New York he was given a seven-minute standing ovation from people he thought had forgotten him.

He now hopes, and we hope, that the picture will confirm his position.

The one big handicap is that he is playing the same Dixieland music, and he won't change.

That was his original trouble. Benny Goodman went on to Swing, so did Glenn Miller. Red hated put.

With Glenn Miller and the Dorsey brothers dead, we couldn't hope to reconstitute the original combination. But we have the best of Hollywood's musicians in the band—some seen and others not.

In the first bracket are Bob Crosby, Bobby Troup and Abbie Mann.

Four of the songs incidentally, were written by Danny Kaye's wife, Sylvia Fine.

The man who started it all—Red Nichols in action.

The film-makers chose the commercial appeal

MAKING handleader blogs initially confronted the movie men with a problem: Just how to leaven the musical—usually jazz—content with the right amount of commercial appeal. That they came down heavily on the side of "box-office" was shown in such film blogs as the Benny Goodman and Glenn Miller stories.

LP offers polite jazz

The musical pattern of the "Five Pennies" LP was established while the story outline for the film was being written. The character of the band leader was to be a composite of Red Nichols, and Danny Kaye, the author of the band story was to be wrong for his own office appeal.

Inevitably, then, the jazz content of the LP was limited from the start. As a reflection of the film, the appeal of the record is heavily commercial.

There is a high proportion of new songs and production men's riffs, for example, of the title theme, which delivers a first dose of Sunset Boulevard whimsy.

The two prominent vocal contributions from Kaye himself, from the aggressive, sentimental to downright sinister—do. As it must be said that his part of jazz content starkly reduces the famous comedian to uncompromising square dimensions.

And among countless other happy shenanigans, but his inclusion in having lead in the reformation of Red Nichols, leaving, as it does, direct counter-charge. Against the scathing command of Louis, many a better instrumentalist, and a sound a sound-grade performer.

But there are good things on the disc. The comedy-vocal featuring Kaye and the Louis, can raise a few shenanigans. And the rhythm section behind it swings along dancelike.

Most of the jazz, if we except Armstrong, is of the light and polite variety.

It may well be that once the film has been released, the quality of the "Five Pennies" LP could be enhanced. But in any case, much will depend on whether you can take the Kaye brand of whacky humor, and the humor-in-theatrical nature, that makes this L.P.—TONY BROWN.

The 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, Pennies

FINNEY LOING (RED NICHOLS) is certainly not one of the great men of jazz, was an extremely influential one, but as a band leader in the late Twenties.

He was a technically proficient player and a disciple of Biz Stogard's. As a musician he was outdone by Big, but in the organization of recording groups he probably had no superior.

His first group at the Healy, "Charlie's Chasers," which had Dave Orchestra, Louisa King, Alvin Karpis, Trainers, Red and Migs' Sontora and many famous of all—the "Five Pennies," Nichols received a multiplicity for a variety of labels.

It was the Pennies, who made their first side in December 1926, consisted of Nichols, Jimmy Dorsey, Alvin Karpis, Eddie Lang and Vic Berion.

For the second session, from-house, Migs' Males, Gene and Then reunited Joe Young, Bud Freeman, and many more. They naturally added distinction to his disc and, and he began to build a reputation.

The success of the "Five Pennies" film gives him a new lease of musical life, and we can only hope to increase the role of Red Nichols records in future.—Stax Jones.

THE PAT BRAND

It's been a wryly accepted fact in the business for some time that talent can be more than somewhat of a handicap towards success. New names, new gimmicks, new promotional stunts... these have taken precedence. Particularly where vocalists and solo instrumentalists are concerned.

And who's to blame? The disc-jockey, of course. Who is for ever looking (and who can altogether blame him?) for novelty in his programmes.

Dimly, across the Atlantic, flickers a light of hope. Dimly, the light of talent is starting to burn again. How long before it catches fire here?

Too long, thinks Jimmy Lloyd. And this fine singer, contemplating following the decision of Althea, Friedman, Annie Ross and Dizzy Reece and moving to the States.

Both Johnny Ray and Connie Francis have influenced me to try my hand over there. There, think they take you on merit, not on whether you have a hit record," says Jimmy.

Full circle
But what makes a hit record? The disc-jockey. Who is for ever looking for... But this is where we came in.

And where, I fear, Jimmy may never be.

Held it!
Over the picture of a very attractive girl in this week's TV Times appears the heading:

"Free! A brand new Singer for you."
But don't let rush. It refers to a sewing machine.

Jazzmakers, Jazz Couriers and Jazz Committee over here, not to mention various Jazzmen, play the poor recorder.

Whose feats of memory are not made any easier when musicians switch from one group to another... It was the Jazz Couriers, not the Jazz Committee, with whom Ronnie Scott was associated with Tubby Hayes (and had Jack's nose story). It was the Jazz Couriers, not the Jazz Committee, which disbanded.

Walk-out
THE Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Pianists was given another boost when Ted Taylor withdrew his Trio from the NCO Club, High Wycombe.

Eight notes were missing on his instrument, which was also out of tune. The Secretary refused to replace it with one of the club's three other pianos. The group which had sat played there hadn't complained, and if Ted didn't like it, he could do the other thing.

Ted did.
The uncomplaining previous group.
A Western outfit that didn't use piano!

Like...
LIKE I like Frank Sinatra's description, quoted in "Redbook Magazine," on how it feels to receive an Oscar.
"You walk up on the stage like you are in a dream and they hand you that little man before 30 or 30 million people and you have to light to keep the tears back."

"It's a moment. Like your first girl or your first kiss."
"Like the first time you hit a guy and he scotches..."

Research
SLEEVE notes and design for Stan Tracey's new Vogue album. "The Little Klunk," art by Franky Graham. I repeat it here as a part of the cover alongside.

"It was lateish when I met Kenny in the D. W. Lane Club and asked him in the interests of readers:

"What's exactly a 'Klunk'?"
"A 'Klunk,'" he explained, "is a 'Glooper.'"

"In other words," he amplified it, "it is a filament of my imagination. I just thought you'd like to know..."

Sh!
KENNY is composer of "Happy Little Caterpillar" and "The Little Klunk" (with "Skippy" on Sam Tracy's new Decca release.

Is he a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Pianists?
It's (keep it tacit) Stan Tracey.

Tie-up
NOVEL tie-up with the Little Klunk film in Francis, Day and Hunter's decision to issue an album of six of the titles—"Six Jazz Originals, by Stan Tracey."

The title line plus first jazz chorus transcribed for piano, bass and drums as played by Stan Johnny Napper and Phil Seaman.

Biggest ever
MYSTERY surrounds the purpose for which Decca and Sydney Brown invite me to meet Malcolm Evans at the Horeseshoe Hotel on Monday.
I tackled Titch this week in the Lion Year, you're right, I do sometimes visit poets, but the composer clammed up.
"I'll tell you this much," he said. "It's the biggest idea I've ever had. And I still wonder why nobody ever thought of it before."
"It came to me while I was delirious during my recent illness."
One of the few full-time songwriters left, if he has this amount of faith in it, the idea should be pretty big.

Please!
I HOPE Johnny Dankworth has second thoughts. Because I like Cleo.
And Johnny is helping to write a new musical play which will star her.
Called "Old Leich," Please, Johnny, don't! Unless the title is changed to something worthier of our No. 1 jazz singer.

Oh?
DEAR SIR—I am a trombonist and have to practice at least an hour a day. But the moment I start, my next door neighbours dog joins in, and his barking makes it very difficult to concentrate. I've begged them to keep it quiet, but they're blaming me. What can I do—Worried.
Dear Worried: Why not play something the dog doesn't know?

Red Allen

The Ory Band...
WHEN I attended the Red Ory concert I was expecting some poor traditional jazz-band but came right up to excitement. The spirit and excitement of having seen and heard the great pianist me. Red Allen was terrific! Very light-footed, he has a jazz name, but you hear very little of him from the BBC. On Saturday, Frank Pines played part of a record by him, making me wish he had played more. "Just Jazz" devoted solely to him. A. D. Spencer, Southampton.

...and Lightfoot
CAN anyone tell me why Terry Lightfoot persists in featuring a drum solo in his songs? "Powerhouses" The drummer would be far more appreciated if he stuck to natural breaths.

Hubert W. David writes about LIONEL BART and "Butterfly"—all of which made the Top Ten.

Bart, met Tommy at a party while the boy was on leave from the Royal Air Force. At the party were Michael Praet and his brother, who was to become leader of the Vipers.

The Carmen group was formed at the party, and the signature tune, "Rock With The Carmen," was written at the same time in 30 minutes.

When Tommy again came on leave he found a text recording he had made of "Rock With The Carmen" had "bucketed into the Top Ten" too, with Tommy Steele's name established, but Bart says that he had written some more something.

For his first story, "The Tommy Steele Concert," the Top Ten hit songs, and the story won the first Ivor Novello Award. They had a similar success with "The Duke Says Yes" but at this stage Lionel Bart decided that he would "situation" written as well as a Top Ten man.

Some regard Bart as a dramatic writer, but he is also a practical man—he knows which of his dramas are likely to come true.

The songwriting business need not be a lonely one, and to me, Lionel Bart is one of the few bright spots on the scene. (Next week: The dreams come true.)

Busy man
This article fits was much to the fact that earlier days when he ran a commercial art studio and had a number of models in his studio.

Bart attended to the artistic work, and his partner to the printing. This still is a flourishing concern, though Bart tells me his visits to Hornetton get rarer and rarer.

Today he is a very busy man. He wants to touch with him at his new flat in Kensington, and he says to quit the idea of seeing what he has done with "the old happy" in modern decor and a lot of thought have turned a derelict new garage into a place where he can work.

"This is his factory," he said as he showed me the place, and quite a large part of his day—and night—to solid hard work.

An open letter to Harold Davison

Dear Harold:

YOU may be aware of this already. Nevertheless let me say it plainly. As entertainers in the modern jazz idiom, the Four Freshmen beat anything I have seen.

Entertainers—in some jazz circles the very word is suspect. Like you, I cannot think why.

To entertain the public is a honest profession, whether one's name happens to be Homer, Shakespeare, G. H. Eliot or Billy Cotton.

The knack of sensing what the public wants, while never quite forgetting what it ought to be the property of every fine artist in each generation.

Acceptance

On the legitimate stage, many of the greatest actors and comedians have possessed that knack and have managed to contribute to their art all the more because they have warmed to their technique and personality.

Each member of the Four Freshmen is a vocal soloist in his own right, and an instrumentalist worthy to play his own in a top jazz group.

Through their vocal blend is so astounding, that the different singing personalities—and different visual personalities too, from the drummer, who fronts the group, with his classic Old Man-type chair, to the bary Bob Flanagan who, oddly enough, is a tenor sax player, make up four distinct personalities.

Precision

Their microphone technique is mastery. Making no obvious moves in the interests of mike balance, they position themselves in such a way, that both their vocal lines, and the instrumental lines, are perfectly balanced as on a recording.

As you know, this necessitates a very exacting microphone technique required by, say, the top voice is not the ideal one for the double bass on which he doubles.

The drummer (centre, downstage) sings solo parts, regarding the volume of his voice with an almost uncanny precision.

Conviction

To me it is the instrumental ability of the group which is as striking.

To sing for 20 minutes, then pick up a stone-cold melophone or trumpet, and play it with tremendous range and conviction, is so difficult as to be almost impossible... yet they do it.

As the bass is poised from hand to hand, releasing one member of the group or another for instrument doubling it becomes impossible to tell which of them is supposed to be the bass player.

Most remarkable of all, however, is the group's efficiency as a stage presentation within the range of modern jazz.

Over the years, jazz has become more and more an exercise for the ear—some has to see Louis Armstrong in action to realize how far the jazzman has strayed from his one-time responsibility to "put on a show."

Ingenuity

The Four Freshmen are fine snare, brilliant instrumentalists, and superb showmen, appearing equally to the heart, the ear and the eye.

Watching them and listening to their ingenious arrangements, it seems almost unfair that our young musicians should corner so much talent.

In the interests of British music enthusiasts, Harold, I wonder if you would consider starting negotiations to bring this brilliant foursome over here for a British tour?

If other talent can still fill a theatre, you would have on your hands an artistic and a commercial triumph.

Give Ted Heath a ring—he'll tell you.

Steve Race

Stop moaning! You've never had it so good

AS the last complaints from critics and fans die away after "Jazz from Newport," and there is a short lull before the letters pour in about the next American concert tour, my mind goes back a few years to the days when all these irate people were bombarding the Press with complaints because American musicians were not allowed here. Remember the pilgrimages to Ireland?

Dizzy Reece

ONCE again we have lost one of our top jazzmen to America. This time it's Dizzy Reece, the most original trumpet player this country has ever produced.

How many more jazzmen do we have to lose before our jazz fans wake up to local talent? As in the case of Gus D'Amico and Fineman, we leave it to the Americans to discover our griefs for us.

We may see Dizzy again, but it will probably be in a visiting American band or package, says Fletcher, Hull.

Folk festival

DUE no doubt, to the visits of American singers and groups, folk music has gained many new adherents in the past few years.

So why not a festival of folk music, where they could see and hear a number of artists in the same place, instead of having to search around the scattered clubs so they do at the moment?

Continental and American

Let's have Baker back!

NEARLY 12 months ago, the MM asked: "Why kill the Baker's dozen?"

The BBC, they denied rumours that the programme, as such, was finished, adding that it would be brought back "at the appropriate time."

Kenny's return is now overdue. And this is a view which I am sure many other listeners who remember that excellent series, will share.

May we hope that the BBC and the appropriate time for another "Dozen" series in the near future?—W. Baron, Blackburn.

folk singers could be invited, and they, together with our own British singers, could make such a festival a great success.—D. English, Ipswich.

IT is interesting to see that it more and more American films are using jazz arrangements as background music.

Maybe the British film-makers could take a lesson

These polls—what do they prove?

asks Humphrey Lyttelton

ONE of the most intriguing features of the "Just Jazz" series—volume three of which was reviewed in the "AM" last week—is the summary of poll results.

The first three places in each category are listed from polls run by the

MELODY MAKER. "Down Beat," "Playboy" and "Gondel."

It would take an electronic computer to draw all the conclusions inherent in these charts, but some facts jump out at you.

It has been said that these popularity polls are barometers of fashion rather than of taste. Do the results bear this out? Yes and no.

I doubt whether jazz history will endorse the high places given to Peterson, Brubeck, Barney Kessel, and Shirley Maize, for instance, to the exclusion of Bud Powell, Buddy Rich and others whose presence has not been so consistently felt.

On the other hand, there is surprising consistency in the results. The trumpet section, for example, offers only six names out of a possible 18 choices.

Same list

They are Armstrong, Gillespie, Davis, Clayton, Ferguson and Baker. The 1957 results show the same list with Ferguson out. And most of the other categories show a similar narrowness of range.

The readers of "Playboy" for instance, have shown a special obstinacy in voting Eddie Condon number two guitarist two years running!

I have also been looking up a critics' poll held by "Esquire" in 1944. In the first two places in each category are the names of Armstrong, Torgarden, Goodman, Hawkins, Pettiford, Norvo, Hampton, Hodges, Hines and Hinton.

All of these figure prominently in the 1953 polls—and no doubt, Tatum and Callet would have been added had they been alive.

The giants of the 'thirties are still holding their own, gaining no doubt from the fact that the multiplicity of much-boosted names in the past decade, coupled with a dwindling degree of individuality, has tended to split the vote for the newer men.

● Coleman Hawkins—a consistent poll-topper

Of all the names listed in the 1953 polls, only a small handful are still in their twenties.

There is one quite astonishing omission, and that is Roy Eldridge.

Long service

Allowing for the fact that men like Hawkins, Benny Carter and Armstrong have got in on the Long Service and Good Conduct vote, it seems unjust that the man who exerted a major influence during the thirties, and who is still, on occasion, rising to great heights, should not get a mention.

With the new Eldridge still record as evidence of Roy's undimmed power and mastery, I trust that this will be remedied in the 1956 polls.

I leave you to draw your own conclusions from these facts.

But it does seem that the charge levelled against popularity polls—that they are will of the wisp, ephemeral affairs, recording no more than the swing of fashion—is not one that can be upheld.

I doubt it, in 15 years' time, the fans and critics who have helped to produce these results will have much cause to hang their heads in shame.

Coventry star bill

ANOTHER star-studded Birthday show opened at the Coventry Theatre on Monday.

The bill read: Arthur Haynes, Edmund Hockridge, Charlie Carroll and Paul, Joe Henderson, the King Brothers, Freddie Prinon, Doreen Hume and the Dior dancers, and as one can imagine, the show leaves little to be desired.

Joe Henderson gives a pleasant and relaxed performance.

The King Brothers shine in a slick, well-groomed act. Freddie Prinon is devastatingly funny in his "Dinner For One" sketch, and Edmund Hockridge, who is seen several times, is a tremendous hit in his own spot.—George Bartram.

SHIRLEY BASSEY

We haven't prepared any more numbers!

Then she proceeded to sing "My Funny Valentine" entirely unaccompanied with the vast hall completely hushed.

At the end of this spectacular performance Shirley was given a terrific ovation.

To sing this number unaccompanied was a chance few singers would have cared to take up in this huge hall. Shirley did it without hitting a false note.—Jerry Dawson.

The film stars Anthony Newley, Anne Aubrey, Bernie Winters and Ted Heath and his Music. It includes sequences shot during the Jazzshows annual "Floating Festival of Jazz" last June. This featured 12 bands, including those of Chris Barber, Ken Colyer and Acker Bilk.

Among the hundreds of show business personalities who have accepted invitations for the premiere are: Eya Boswell, Petula Clark, Russ Conway, Johnnie Dancow, Craig Douglas, Joe Henderson (who wrote the music for the film), Dave King, Dennis Lotie, the Mudlarks, Lita Roza, Dickie Valentine and Marty Wilde.

Inside the cinema a special jazz group lined up by guitarist Doc Dibley will play for the film. He will be leading Bob Harley (trp), Bert Murray (trmb), Wally Fowler (cl), Jim Brax (bass) and Lennie Hastings (dr).

TICKET STAMPEDE FOR 'WAGON' STAR

"WAGON TRAIN" star Robert Horton visits Britain in December for two ATV dates and his previous appearances. And the advance news of his trip has sparked off a tremendous stampede for tickets.

Already ATV has received over 5,000 applications from fans wanting to attend the TV transmissions.

Polladium TV

"Although the dates of his TV shows are not definitely set, we have been assured with direct applications," an ATV spokesman told the "M" on Wednesday. "This must be our biggest-ever rush for tickets."

Horton, seen weekly on British TV screens as "Flint McCullough" in the "Wagon Train" serial, is scheduled to headline "Sunday Night At The London Palladium" on December 27 and Saturday spectacular "early in the New Year."

Cyril Stapleton enters hospital

Norrie Paramor will lead Cyril's show band for its date at Brighton Palladium this Sunday.

On November 3, Cyril starts another "Melody Dances" series for ATV.

NEW 'ALLEY'

Broadway. Already the LCC planning authorities have given permission for a 300-ft. block of offices and restaurants to be erected at the end of St. Giles High Street, which fringes the Haymarket area of Denham Street.

Last week, notices were served on residents in the immediate vicinity of the site for the demolition of the building, which is nearly as high as St. Paul's Cathedral, and which is expected to be completed by 1961.

Barry Jimmy Phillips, managing director of Peter Maurice and Keith Procter, "We have had one of these notices. But we have just bought several thousands of pounds on modern flats on Maurice Street, and we have no intention of getting out."

In any case there is no problem at this early stage. But if a different company does make a bid for the property in Denham Street, we could always move into one of the new buildings.

The LCC has also approved another scheme for the development of land from Cambridge Circus to the Phoenix Theatre, which again would be completed by 1961.

Tip Pan Alley, a spokesman for the LCC on Wednesday, "Councils usually give a sympathetic consideration to improvement schemes."

It would not be surprising if a scheme involving Denham Street was submitted by a private developer.

"And owners may be tempted to sell their property for the whole character of the area could certainly change in the space of a few years."
