Dutch government must reveal radio frequency auction details

by Menno Visser

Music

HILVERSUM - The Dutch government will be forced to reveal its plans for a commercial radio frequency auction by the end of this month, following a court ruling.

The December judgement came after the Dutch government had not responded in time to a request from cable and AM station Arrow Classic Rock for it to clarify its current position on the proposed frequency auction, a long-running political saga which rumbled on throughout last year. Arrow has long been petitioning the government to hand out remaining unused frequencies to interested parties.

Although the court in Rotterdam denied Arrow's request for an interim frequency allocation, the judge did rule that the government, which had wanted to delay the controversial auction until after the general elections in May, must now make clear its plans.

"We will wait and see what's going to happen this month," says Arrow Classic Rock's managing director Ad Ossendrijver. "But we will take further' legal action if nothing happens.'

The ongoing delay in the auction, originally due to take place early last year, has already forced some small stations to cease broadcasting. Wegener decided to stop broadcasting its cableonly Soft AC station Love Radio from January 1, while Urban station Q The Beat has ceased its terrestrial broadcasts on AM, and is continuing as an Internet-only station.

Secrecy surrounds the Veronica Foundation's plans to expand its radio assets-which currently centre around alternative rock cable station Kink FM—via the auction. The former public broadcaster's TV divsion is currently finalising a deal to take over the Dutch version of music channel The Box in order to achieve more brand exposure.

Radio 2 gives Haskell a £200 hit

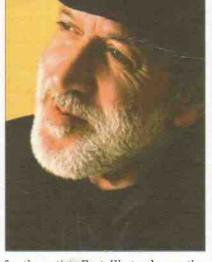

CLASSIC ROCK RADIO

by Paul Sexton

LONDON - It's not uncommon for a little-known artist to achieve success from left field, but Gordon Haskell's route to the top came from outside the ballpark, and radio takes almost all the credit.

UK public AC network BBC Radio 2, to be precise, which championed the 55year-old singer-songwriter's ballad How Wonderful You Are, a song recorded for a mere £200, and started the momentum that took it to number two in the British chart in Christmas week. In the first two weeks after its December 17 UK release, the single sold 130,000 copies.

Flying Sparks, the small indie label to which Haskell (pictured) was signed, licensed the track to East West, who also snapped up Haskell's future recordings in a lucrative worldwide multi-album deal, while Warner Chappell signed him for publishing. Meanwhile, as it develops international plans for the artist, East West releases the album Harry's Bar (named after the romantic location of Haskell's surprise hit) in the UK on January 7.

R3 unveils world music winners

by Nigel Williamson

LONDON - France's Manu Chao and British-Asian fusion artists Nitin Sawhney and Susheela Raman are among the winners of the first ever awards for world music, organised by BBC Radio 3.

The public UK classical broadcaster has announced most of the Awards For World Music winners ahead of the ceremony, which will take place in London on January 28.

"World music has never had its own awards before," notes event co-ordinator Anna Umbima. "Pop and rock have interminable awards, but genres such as jazz and folk have also found it's a really good way to focus attention and bring new artists through. The support of Radio 3 has been tremendous."

Despite their UK origin, the awards have an international aspect, with seven of the winners in the nine categories being voted for by the 1,800 delegates to Womex, the annual world music fair.

Over the last 18 months BBC

Radio 3 has been gradually shedding its conservative classical music image, and now programmes several hours of jazz and world music each week

"We've got the [classical] Proms and we've now got annual jazz awards," says Roger Wright, the station's controller. "The world music awards are a natural fit for us and part of our commitment to different kinds of music. It's a good way of raising the music's profile, and the winners' concert should be a remarkable event."

The winners of the BBC Radio 3 Listeners Award and the Album Of The Year Award will be revealed at the January 28 ceremony.

The show will be broadcast on Radio 3 the following day and screened on digital TV channel BBC Knowledge on February 3.

by Howell Llewellyn

MADRID — AC network Cadena 100 has regained its position as the Spain's third most popular music station, coming in just ahead of SER's AC/Gold M-80, according to latest EGM ratings figures.

By doing so Cadena 100-part of the Catholic Church-owned COPE group and the only non-SER network to gate-crash the country's top fiveregains the place it lost to M-80 some 18 months ago.

The third full survey of the year, covering September 12-November 20, shows that, despite music radio rallying somewhat since the September 11 attacks, the news/talk sector was firmly on top.

"Of course we're happy about

regaining our third position, but we know that all the survey figures this autumn are a bit distorted because of world events," says

Cadena 100 deputy coordinator Javier Llano. "But the figures also show the success of several important changes we introduced in September to the 2001-2002 programme schedule."

M-80 co-ordinator Rosa Navalón says: "Losing fewer listeners than the other main music networks this autumn is, for us, a success. We have been hit hard by the international crisis, as our main audience base is our humour-based morning show, Gomaespuma." She adds: "As soon as the [international] tension is over and Christmas is out of the way, you'll see that we shall be back in third position."

There was otherwise no change in the pecking order, with SER's CHR market-leader Los 40 Principales maintaining its lead over sister Spanish/Latino music station Cadena DIAL.

The best the 'Net can get

The MidemNet Awards, designed to recognise the world's top music-oriented web sites, take place once again at Midem in Cannes this month. M&M's resident online experts Juliana Koranteng and Chris Marlowe take a look at the nominees. oting is underway for the third MidemNet Awards, the honours which recognise the very best online music-related sites, which are awarded during the Midem trade fair in Cannes

Voting has been taking place on Midem's web site (www.midem.com) for the past two months, is open to all visitors to the site, and closes on January 14.

The winners will be announced at the third edition of MidemNet, which takes place on Saturday, January 19. The event—which features a full day of conferences, networking and discussions related to the internet and music—is the pre-opening of Midem's 36th edition at the Palais des Festivals in Cannes. The conference also sees Midem renewing its collaboration with MidemNet chairman, Ted Cohen (VP new media, EMI Recorded Music USA), as well as Music & Media, and for the first time, music and lifestyle portal Ammo City.

The sites nominated for the MidemNet Awards cover seven categories: label/record company, artist,

tion, event/festival, and services. The awards are designed to recognise the most creative sites in the online music world.

The winners of the MidemNet Awards will be announced in Cannes during Midem. Like last year, there will be no ceremony, though Midem has pledged to promote the winning URLs and will be delivering "virtual awards" which the winners will be able to show off on their sites.

KITTY-Y

www.kitty-yo.de Date of launch: June 1999 Traffic: 5,000 unique visitors per week Head of site: Antye Greie-Fuchs

This small company has big ideas about music. Founded and operated by a team of only six people, all of whom are artists themselves, Kitty-Yo uses its indie sensibility to present its products as expressions of a cultural identity that it shares with its audience. For instance, the list of links includes not only the label's. distributors and business partners, but also takes visitors to unrelated art and lifestyle sites. The site also includes lots of release and other information, all expressed in a charmingly imperfect English that helps create a warmly personal tone. A free newsletter and an unusual paid product subscription scheme, as well as a free MP3 download for every album sold, show how Kitty-Yo caters to what its customers want.

Parlophone

www.parlophone.co.uk Date of launch: Unknown Traffic: Unknown Head of site: Unknown

Parlophone has created an atmosphere of a private club that all interested parties can join. Knowing that people generally visit label sites seeking definitive information, a great deal of the content is freely available and clearly laid out for easy retrieval. Full release details are augmented with links to official artist websites, simplifying exploration. Should visitors choose to interact further, they can register to receive a free newsletter in an easy process that also allows them to download everything from ringtones and logos to exclusive video clips as well as enter competitions and participate in chat areas. Purchasing any title from a selected range earns the customer a free and exclusive CD sampler, an excellent example of precisely targeted marketing since it puts new product in the hands of people who have already declared an affinity.

There are many volumes of wellorganised information at Shock Records' website, ensuring that it serves the needs of both consumer and business customers. But the simple presentation and slightly retro graphics help prevent visitors from feeling overwhelmed. Consumers can click on their favourite genre or search using several different filters. Featured artists, competitions, newsletters, editorial and other content appropriate to their navigation choices are displayed. Audio, video and other downloads are available, while links to e-tailers handle sales. Companies have an additional secure network, virtually invisible to individuals, through which they can conduct business with Australia's largest independent music company at their convenience.

Even just navigating this site is intriguing. It's also surprisingly fast, considering the complexity of its design. Moving the cursor causes flat shapes to morph into a cross between a topographic map and a futuristic mixing desk, complete with looped sound effects, creating an online metaphor for this innovative electronic music company. Numerous micro-sites help prevent the user from feeling lost in the wealth of content. Overall, the site strikes an excellent balance between design, artistry and the practical considerations of providing information and selling product. Filters and other search tools make it easy to find news, interviews, downloads, photos and additional offerings, plus the commerce functions are particularly well executed.

The band famous for being virtual has created a virtual office inhabited by a virtual record company and the virtual musicians themselves. In other words, visitors to the Gorillaz official website use their mouse to navigate around an animated two-storey building. Clicking on various items reveals games, videos, jokes, information, links, downloads, shopping and the band's fictional biography. A map and a menu bar of icons provide clues and shortcuts without giving away too much of the mystery. There is also an option that takes people directly to a more traditional site packed with all of the same plus more, which is very useful for visitors who have already explored the parallel cartoon world.

Rolling Stones

www.therollingstones.com Date of launch: Unknown Traffic: Unknown Head of site: Unknown

Behind a deceptively minimal front page, the official website for the Rolling Stones has a lot of exclusive material. There are news and merchandising sections, of course, plus a newsletter and a few games thrown in for fun. There's also a list of albums that shows cover art, track listings and release information when the title is clicked. The band's history is so extensive that it is broken down by year, giving it room to include some contextual information and a few colourful anecdotes. But the audio and visual content is what really sets the site apart: there are candid and live photos, interview and concert videos, live music downloads, and remixes in Real Audio automatically adjust to the visitor's connection speed.

www. kylie.com Date of launch: Unknown Traffic: Unknown Head of site: Site designed and developed by Outside Line

Fans and non-fans alike can appreciate the beautiful photography and uncluttered design that give Kylie Minogue's official home page the feel of a fashion magazine. Clever screen wipes maintain this and help to maintain an attractive visual continuity. The content focuses on her new album Fever, including lyrics, video, wallpaper and screensavers. Several of the best fan sites are spotlighted on a links page, too. Not only is this useful for anyone interested in learning more, but by acknowledging them it also shows a good grasp of how most people interact with the Internet. The free registration gives access to a section of documentary footage from the album cover shoot plus other behind-thescenes insights, presented episodi-cally and narrated by Kylie herself.

This flagship site was completely revamped in August 2001 to portray a convergent media approach that MTV Networks calls MTV360. Basically, this means that the network's various activities are integrated throughout its Web presence in a way that reflects the core audience's lifestyle. Programming schedules, frequently updated news, videos, downloads, concert webcasts, branded radio streams, e-commerce, charts, tour dates, newsletters, chatrooms and reviews are just part of what's on offer, along with an extensive popular music encyclopedia. MTV.com also uses its considerable clout to good advantage in initiatives like "Unwrapped", where fans can buy new music by major name artists online several weeks in

www.cdnow.com Launch date: August 1994 Traffic: Unknown Head of site: Michael S. Krupit, president/CEO

CDnow is on its record-breaking third MidemNet Awards nomination in a row. The pioneering online CD retailer has retained its edge with a more aggressive use of artist-related photos on the site, compared with the previous text-heavy home page. In addition to selecting CD titles from a list of 23 genres, fans can buy movie and music videos and DVDs. There are the pre-requisite news, reviews and artist interviews. The current CDnow site appears to be targeting a more Internet-savvy audience and hi-tech enthusiasts. Addedvalue services include sales of electronic goods and accessories, imported releases, box sets, compilations and music downloads. Following its acquisition by German media group Bertelsmann, there's also been a major shift from the site's international multi-lingual ambitions into a US-focused service.

Launch date: November 1999 Traffic: More than two million unique visitors in Nov. 2001 Head of site: Jean-Christophe Hermann

France's pioneering music-to-entertainment retailer is making a similar impact online with its two-year-old Web site. The home page introduces the user to a French-language treasure trove of CDs, books, DVDs, videos, video games, electronic goods, and even travel services. For music fans, there are gift ideas linked to classical music, movie soundtracks, French variétés plus standard chartbased releases. And in preparation for the new euro currency, CD prices are in both French Francs and euros. Delve deeper into the site and you discover that Fnac.com is more than just a Franco-phone service but also an international one. Check out links to its services in Belgium, Brazil, Spain, Italy, Portugal, Switzerland and Taiwan. In France alone, the service has been regionalised by recognising that Paris' needs are different to those in other parts of the country.

at budding DJs, clubbers and electronic dance music fanatics worldwide, the site is one of a few to sell vinyl recordings as well as CDs. Redesigned in March, Groovetech has a growing catalogue of electronic and dance genres (hip hop, house, techno, trance, drum 'n' bass, among others) in its retail section. Additionally, the site aims to re-enact the live surroundings dance fans crave for. Its weekly Webcast service broadcasts DJs' live and pre-recorded performances from clubs in London, and San Francisco. Seattle Groovetech also includes a "Community Home" and search engine for users to exchange news. For the out of the ordinary stuff, users can gain access to rare items such as information about designers and "anarchists" in clubland.

Vitaminic

www.vitaminic.com Launch date: April 1999 Traffic: More than 20 million page views in Oct. 2001 Head of site: Gianluca Dettori, CEO Promising "the Music Evolution", Italy's Vitaminic has evolved into an international music service provider with sites targeted at nine local-language European markets and the US. No longer assuming that visitors are novices, Vitaminic.com's home page offers an increasingly sophisticated service that immediately informs visitors they can buy CDs, downloads or merchandise. Although relying on releases by independent labels, the combined deep catalogue makes up for a healthy alternative to the chartbased Web sites operated by traditional music stores. In the "What's New" section, you see even rarer titles in Irish and, Scottish music, hypnotic trance and Vitaminic's own compilation albums. Users can join the Vitaminic Music Club for unlimited access to the works of high-profile acts, including Al Jarreau and Santana. But it's not just for con-"Backstage" sumers. invites unsigned artists to create and add their own works to the Vitaminic platform.

Head of site: James Seller, general manager

The Music Managers Forum (MMF) Web site is divided into two functions. The first is targeted at music industry manwhile agers. the second aims to guide burgeoning artists on how to find a manager and not get ripped off by unscrupulous ones. The service targeted at manager members is encrypted and password-protected.

www.musicindie.com Launch date: June 2000 Traffic: unknown Head of site: unknown

Targeted at experts and the general consumer, the AIM/ Musicindie Web site is both informative and educational about the do's and don'ts within the music industry. With a mission to give the independent sector as strong a voice as the majors, the site also features a password-protected section containing a host of data, such as the list of members, links to other significant industry-related sites, confidential documents plus news on the latest developments. A significant recent addition, however, is Dr. John's Surgery. Launched in May, the feature is effectively a clinic offering free legal and business advice to anyone entering the cut-throat world of the recording business. Courtesy of John Benedict, an industry lawyer with 20 years' experience and a consultant at international law firm Denton Wilde Sapte, Dr. John is more than qualified to counsel newcomers and experienced veterans on the inevitable complications that can crop up.

www.gema.de Launch date: unknown Traffic: unknown Head of site: Dr. Hans-Herwig Geyer

The Web site for Germany's royalties collection society has rarely changed from last year, when it was also nominated for the MidemNet awards. The site still welcomes visitors with the mantra "Musik hat ihren Wert" (Music has value). From that point on, the Gema site relies of utter simplicity to get its message across. You can learn about the organisation plus its membership scheme and its members. There's a section for any information you need to know, plus up-to-date analyses of German and international copyright laws and their impact on musicians. Here's a site with no impressive whistles nor bells. And there are no diversions or deviations from its original mission: to inform copyright owners about their rights to be paid for their works.

BEST EVENT/FESTIVAL

www.popkomm.de Launch date: unknown Traffic: unknown Head of site: Uli Grossmaas, managing director

The Web site representing Popkomm, one of Europe's most popular annual music industry markets, doesn't focus simply on promoting the event. A substantial portion of the site is an online music service devoted to music news, MP3 downloads, CD reviews, Webcasts, Web radio, plus a books and music shop. But lest we forget the Popkomm brand's original purpose, a hyperlink to Popkomm 2002 unveils a Web brochure of the next event with an explanation on how to register and the planned programme, showcase and exhibitors. Then, there's an opportunity to order the Popkomm 2001 catalogue. The Popkomm site is also promoting the Online Music Awards (another MidemNet Awards nominee) since the Music Komm company is an organiser of both events.

The ultimate virtual music awards show, the Online Music Awards site does online what other more established music awards event have done traditionally offline. Although hosted in German, the event celebrates the achievements of both local and international acts. Last year's event, held in cyberspace on December 6, was transmitted on the Net and on Viva.TV, the interactive TV offshoot of German-language music TV channel Viva. To vote for the various categories-including Best Artist Page, Best Label Page and Best Designed Music Page-fans could click on the site's list of categories and, on the same page, see the Web illustrations of the shortlisted nominees. And just to ensure that the final date didn't end in an anti-climax, there was a Virtual Post-Award party featuring a Webcast live concert and a Chilling Lounge where nominees, winners and other VIP guests could hang out and chat to their fans-virtually.

www.montreuxjazz.com Launch date: April 2001 Traffic: 7.7 million page views in July 2001 Head of site: unknown

A vibrant animated home page welcomed you to the world of jazz, blues, funk, soul, Latin, rock and techno at the Web site of this year's highly acclaimed Montreux Jazz Festival in July. A multi-lingual fare in English, French and German, the site welcomes visitors with a page of cute tiny animated musicians drawn in a Cubist style format. The site's content doesn't pretend to re-enact the buzz of a live festival, but it provides the who, what, where, when and how details for anyone wanting to attend. In addition to the standard merchandise sales at the site's Jazz Shop, there are news items, details of the concert programme and an e-brochure for those vacationing in Montreux. For those who attended but are still feeling nostalgic, and for those who couldn't be there, the site offers a Webcast archive of performances from the previous year's festival.

The redesigned site is more efficient and straight to the point. The user is immediately shown a three-step purchase route: (i) to choose from five different ways to search for music (for example, by genre, arrangement or region); (ii) to preview the tracks via downloading or streaming; (iii) to complete and purchase the required licence online. ATOMIC KITTEN

(Innocent/Virgin) Release Date: November 26, 2001

In 2001, Atomic Kitten proved to be one of Europe's most successful girl bands. The British pop trio were nominated for the Best Pop Act award at the MTV Europe Awards, they won Best Single at the UK's T4 Smash Hits Poll Winners Party and came fifth in the UK's Record of the Year awards. They even donated the royalties of Whole Again to the Keep Britain Tidy campaign aimed at dissuading teenagers from dropping litter. Atomic Kitten's new single, You Are, is a down-tempo love song taken from the platinum-selling album Right Now. "We spin this on quite high rotation [as] it fits brilliantly with the rest of our playlist," says Connie Eisert, head of music at CHR station Radio SAW in Magdeburg, Germany. "We went with this track because of the success of the previous Atomic Kitten songs, which were huge hits on this station. We've already had very good feedback from our audience BE

Currently Playing at: Ö3/Austria, VRT Radio Donna/Belgium, 104.6 RTL/Germany, Hundert 6/Germany, Orb Fritz/Germany, Radio RPR 1/Germany, Radio ABC/Denmark, Downtown Radio/UK, EMAP Big City Network/UK, RTE 2FM/Ireland, 103FM/Ireland, 96FM/Ireland, Noordzee FM/Holland, Radio 538/Holland, Radio Lublin/Poland, SR P3/Sweden

DREAMCATCHER I DON'T WANNA LOSE MY WAY

(Positiva) Release date: December 31, 2001 Already a smash hit in Ibiza last summer, I Don't Wanna Lose My Way by British three-piece Dreamcatcher is now making its way across the colder regions of Europe. The act consists of 23-year-old vocalist Emma Finch-Turner, Simon Langford and producer Paul Castle (Phreaq), who has previously worked with the likes of Youth, Coldcut and Sabres of Paradise. Finch-Turner's high-pitched, clear vocals are reminiscent of Sinead O'Connor and lend the track a catchy edge. I Don't Wanna Lose My Way is currently being spun by high-profile DJs such as Judge Jules in the UK and DJ Tiësto in Holland. Adam Uytman, programmer at alternative rock and dance station Beat 106 in Glasgow, Scotland says: "We've been playing the track for quite a while. It's been a huge dance record on Beat 106. It made this big crossover to daytime play and I think there is a lot of support from other stations in this country. Judging by the level of support from radio and clubs it is already crossing over into the mainstream. It manages to appeal to the masses in clubland, but is still friendly enough to sound good on the radio. It is an uplifting track with friendly vocals without being cheesy." MH

Currently playing at: BBC Radio1/UK, Beat 106/UK, Juice 107.6/UK

DANCE

The weekly dance chart comment by Harald Rot

iiO's Rapture (Tastes So Sweet) (Made/Ministry Of Sound) stays at number one on the chart for the fifth week in a row, still enjoying a comfortable 29% lead over its nearest competitor, Kylie Minogue's ex-Dance Traxx number one Can't Get You Out Of My Head (Parlophone).

Faithless' Tarantula (Cheeky), the third single from their album Outrospective (Cheeky), has been on the move over the Christmas period and stands just behind Kylie at number three this week. The UK act have topped the Dance Traxx chart twice before.

Russian-originating PPK continue their chart ride with the UK-signed ResuRection (Perfecto). The track moves up from 10 to four, fuelled by a DJ-chart entry in Germany and vinyl sales in Belgium.

Previously peaking at number 10, Italian act Par-T-One's I'm So Crazy (Dirty House) is enjoying a second lease of life on the chart thanks to support in the UK, Germany, France, Poland, Hungary and Belgium, although bizarrely—not at home. The track, which samples INXS, peaks at seven this week, having inched its way up the chart over the past couple of weeks from 27 to14.

Belgian female trio Ian van Dahl's Will I? (A&S Records) is also enjoying a big resurgence. Based on first week dance store sales in the UK and Ireland and club chart debuts in parts of Scandinavia, the track flies up to 19 and a new peak—from last week's 76.

German-signed Cosmic Gate's Back To Earth/Hardcore (EMI) is currently enjoying success on domestic charts, but looks likely to cross over into other countries soon, since the track is the highest new entry this week at 36. Meanwhile, fellow Germans 4Clubbers are right behind at 38 with Children (Dropout!), which is the biggest overall gainer this week.

And there are more Germans to come in the Dance Traxx Top 40 in 2002—a potential smash is trancemeisters Blank & Jones' Desire (Gang Go/Edel). Already promoed to DJs in Germany for Christmas and New Years Eve sets, first DJ reactions indicate a huge potential.

Just when you think he has peaked, Robbie Williams scales new heights.

Not only has he released a multimillion-selling album solely filled with the unlikely genre of swing, but he also secured the definitive hit of Christ-

2001. Somethin' mas Stupid (Chrysalis), the duet with Nicole Kidman, goes right to the top of the European Radio Top 50 this week, knocking Cher's The Music's No Good Without You (WEA) down to three, and elegantly leap-frogging Anastacia's Paid My Dues (Epic), which stavs at two for another week.

Head of music at public CHR station Eins Live in Cologne, Germany, Stephan Laack says that the track was undoubtedly this year's big Yuletide tune in Germany. "It's great for Christmas, and the album was one of the most successful in Germany last year, selling about a million." Adds Laack: "Like every year, there was a lot of Wham's Last Christmas as well, but to me Robbie and Nicole was the ultimate Christmas record."

Meanwhile, Titanic star Kate Winslet has also secured a Christmas hit with What If (Liberty/EMI), which climbs the airplay chart from 29 to 19 this week.

Only one new track manages to sneak into the Top 50 in the first week of 2002. Following her appearance on rap star Eve's Let Me Blow Ya Mind (Ruff Ryders), No Doubt's Gwen Stefani is back with a new-look band, who accentuate their new-found urban sensibilities by teaming up with Jamaican reggea artist Bounty Killer on Hey Baby, the fist single off new album Rocksteady (Interscope). The track enters at 39 this week.

"We just like it!" says Laack. "I think it's quite different. I also like the album-they've used some interesting producers including William Orbit and Nellee Hooper, which I think is the right thing for the band." Laack has played No Doubt records in the past, but is pleasantly surprised by their latest offering. "My personal view is that this is an improvement on their previous material, but I don't know if the fans will like it because it is that different," he says.

Kylie Minogue, the undisputed pop queen of 2001, aims to make 2002 just as successful. New single In Your Eyes is already being picked up across Europe, while Can't Get You Out Of My Head (Parlophone) stands at 11 after an amazing 20 weeks in the chart. Dandy Warhols' Bohemian Like You (Capitol) (picured), first released a year ago, and then revived by mobile phone ads, keeps bobbing in and out of the chart, coming back in at 48 this week.

Haskell

Asked how much credit is down to national Radio 2 for introducing How Wonderful You Are to a pop audience, Haskell says: "Total. [Drivetime presenter] Johnnie Walker played it first and [executive producer, music] Colin Martin was driving home and heard it. The next day he went into the office, went bananas about it and got all the other [Radio 2] programmes on board."

Colin Martin takes up the story. "I put it on the A-list straight away, and I can't tell you the response. The PAs [secretaries] here immediately said they hated it, because it created so much paperwork from listeners calling in!" Following Radio 2's key role in breaking Eva Cassidy to a wider audience, the performance of How Wonderful You Are also demonstrates the station's ever-increasing influence at retail. "I don't think there's any doubt now that Radio 2 has a big influence on what people go out and buy," says Martin. Although by no means an across-the-board airplay hit, the single was subsequently added by some UK commercial stations, including Emap's Soft AC Magic network.

Haskell's last tilt at the mainstream was some 30 years ago, during a brief sojourn with UK progressive rockers King Crimson and a solo deal thereafter with Atlantic, which produced the 1972 album It Is And It Isn't. He has been savouring his new bankability with a kind of weathered wonder. "Bemused" is a good word for it," he says. "It's amusing to play some kind of circus game. I played to people on a groundroots level for 17 years, as an unknown, and I never used my past to try to sell tickets. I had 15 years in the wilderness, but I played masses of gigs, and you become like a well-oiled machine.

Haskell spent the lead-up to the festive season in a promotional whirlwind. "My work was done when I finished the record," he says. "But it would be horrible to stitch up the people who've worked hard on it. East West can push buttons for the world, but the Flying Sparks team are such good guys, I didn't want to lose them."

Flying Sparks MD Ian Brown, who describes his label as a "garden-shed operation," had known Haskell for some three years. "Even my wife was wondering why we still had him, and I said, 'Because there's a million quid on his hat,' which I believed, but I didn't think it would come off like this."

Haskell doffs his ever-present hat to the musical inspiration and support of two other widely-travelled musicians: Hamish Stuart (of Average White Band fame) and Robbie McIntosh (ex-Pretenders), fellow former members of Paul McCartney's band. Haskell's work with Stuart and McIntosh continues, with a UK tour featuring the trio set for February. Meanwhile, Haskell believes that, to use the vernacular, the single has "legs". "It's going to be around a while. Valentine's Day is coming, and it's a universal love song-it could be about a girlfriend, mother, the kids, or a cleaner or fireman."

Theofanellis takes over as Warner Music Greece MD

by Maria Paravantes

ATHENS — Panos Theofanellis has been named managing director Warner Music Greece, effective January 1. Theofanellis succeeds Ion Stamboulis, who is currently president of IFPI Greece, and will report directly to Gero Caccia, executive vice president Warner Music Europe and president Warner Music Greece.

In his new post, Theofanellis, who has served as managing director of BMG Greece since 1999, aims to promote what he calls a "boutique repertoire," or artists who can "stand the test of time and offer the best value for money."

"I am honoured to take the reigns of a company I grew up in," Theofanellis says of Warner, where he spent 12 years as director of marketing, domestic and international A&R, marketing manager and product manager.

Theofanellis, who is known for his expertise both on an international and local level, plans to focus his efforts on promoting artists "who have something fresh to offer, despite the risks involved" as well as distributing Greek music in Europe and strengthening the local presence of international repertoire.

An affiliate of Warner Music Europe, Warner Music Greece was formed in 1979, and has signed up breakthrough acts like hip-hoppers Active Member and electronica outfit Mikro.

Mega completes national coverage

by Michael Lawton

BERLIN — Bavaria's licensing authority the BLM has, as expected, awarded five medium wave frequencies in the state to CHR station Mega Radio, thereby completing the broadcaster's national coverage.

The decision, favouring Mega Radio over its main competitor for the frequencies Viva Radio, had been anticipated, as the station had entered into an agreement with Antenne Bayern, Bavaria's largest commercial station, to provide studio facilities at its headquarters in Ismaning near Munich.

Justus Fischer, Mega Radio's new station head, who is currently based at Antenne Bayern, says that the agreement is purely on technical matters and does not imply any programme collaboration.

"At the most, we'll be able to interview stars when they come to the Antenne Bayern studios," he says. However, Mega Radio will be buying its news in from Antenne Bayern.

Fischer expects Mega to begin test transmissions around mid-January and to be fully operational by spring this year, although Bavarian listeners will have to wait until summer to hear the station.

While Mega Radio has been licensed to broadcast a CHR format, CEO Horst Bork says the station is cooperating with the German Rock Music Foundation in a bid to promote new bands, especially in two specialist shows on Friday evening and Sunday. • Sky Radio Hessen went on air on Christmas Eve, creeping under the wire to avoid a threat from the regional licensing authority to take away its licence if it didn't start broadcasting by the end of 2001.

The launch of the Soft AC station, owned by Holland's Sky Radio, was planned for last summer but was delayed while its parent company was absorbed by the Dutch frequency auction. Sky Radio managing director Martin Banga will also head up the German affiliate. Sky has applied for further frequencies in Baden-Württemberg and Berlin/Brandenburg.

impressive growth of our interactive marketing services, but we can also capitalise on our music heritage by launching an exciting new range of world-class mobile products."

ing primarily the 16-35 age group through SMS text messaging and e-mails and describing itself as a "youth marketing company," Worldpop was set up in 1999 by Peter Powell, a one-time presenter at public CHR station BBC Radio 1, and three co-founders. In 2000, it struck a controversial deal to sponsor the UK's official CIN charts, which involved receiving credits on chart rundowns aired by the BBC (whose charter forbids it to run advertising on the air).

In the short term, Worldpop is hiring both more in-house and freelance staff and is re-launching its four genre-led sites, which cover alternative, urban, pop and dance music. It is also planning to launch its own music download service.

"Because of our position with consumers and labels, we want to expand the range of services in the music area," Smith tells M&M. "There may be scope for legal music downloads, acting as a portal for some music services labels offer."

Smith says that the company had previously steered clear of the download market because of Napster. "We want to be on the side of record labels not against them," he says.

Smith adds: "We hope to develop both sides of our business—the interactive marketing side alongside the increase in the amount of music content on the consumer side."

Following its take-over, Worldpop plans a major consumer and commercial re-launch in the second quarter of this year.

Continues Šmith: "What iTouch brings is huge resources so we can deliver business faster than before. The technology is hugely important. To have that to hand is a huge asset."

As part of its iTouch's international expansion, Worldpop domain names have been registered in various countries.

There have also been discussions with affiliates to introduce the Worldpop brand into new territories including continental Europe, Asia and Australia.

Worldpop has confirmed that its sponsorship of the official UK charts, which is about to expire, will not be renewed. "Worldpop sponsored the chart and that helped build our brand," says Smith. UK labels' body the BPI is currently reviewing tenders for sponsorship of its singles and albums sales charts.

HOTLINE Edited by Jon Heasman & Siri Stavenes Dove

Mondadori, the publishing group owned by Italian prime minister Silvio Berlusconi, has dramatically withdrawn its offer to buy CHR/Dance network Radio Italia Network. Under the deal (M&M, December 15), Mondadori was all set to acquire Italia Network and local radio syndicator CNR.

Following the creation in the last two months of localised sites in the UK, France, Germany and Spain, Vivendi Universal's online music platform MP3.com is expected to open two new localised services in the Netherlands and Italy. VU has also made official the appointment of a CEO for MP3.com in Europe, Yoel Kenan, who has been working at the company since August.

V2 Music Scandinavia has laid off five staffers in Sweden, including those who comprised the local A&R department, according to sources. Hotline understands that Swedish signings Eskobar, Ida Kristin, Caroline Af Ugglas, Solomon, and Kristoffer Åström will be retained by V2, but no additional acts are expected to be signed.

Former New-York-based Arista senior VP of marketing George Levendis, who recently relocated to Greece, has joined Greek media group Antenna as managing director of new imprint Heaven.

Josep Maria Martí has been appointed director of Cadena SER in Catalonia, after being director since 1989 of SER's Radio Barcelona. Josep Maria Girona moves from deputy director to director of Radio Barcelona. The moves are part of an ongoing shake-up at SER and its parent company Grupo Prisa.

Bee Gees members Barry, Robin, and Maurice Gibb were among those honoured in the UK's New Year Honours list. The Gibb brothers each receive a CBE, as does opera star Lesley Garrett. BBC Radio 2 mid-morning presenter Jimmy Young has been awarded a knighthood, while Capital Radio/London's head of community services Pete Turner has been awarded an MBE for his work with Capital's charities.

Marie Möller has been named new programme and sales director of NRJ Copenhagen. She will replace Claus Picher, who resigned just before the new year. Möller is already responsible for NRJ operations in southern Sweden, and is based in Malmö.

Former vice president marketing Island/Def Jam and Universal Motown at Universal Music International Lars Grewe, who left in September, has been replaced by Eric Leddel. Leddel was previously VP international marketing for Universal Music Asia Pacific.

In the UK, commercial radio trade body CRCA and copyright body PPL have agreed on a new copyright licence, replacing the previous one which was signed in 1993. It's the first time that the two orgnisations have negotiated new terms without recourse to litigation.

And finally, Mariah Carey's relationship with Virgin Records has come to an end after the label reportedly offered a £35 million (euro 55.9 million) incentive for Carey (pictured) to break her contract, following disappointing sales of current album Glitter. The break comes only nine months after Carey signed a record-breaking deal with Virgin, rumoured to have been worth £70 million, for five albums.
