THE EXODUS

It's a little too late in the season to be talking about it. Right now, the main focus is on the hunt for a championship. But the preparations for the 1988 Olympic Games are already under way. The U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC) has announced that it will select 11 athletes to represent the country in the basketball tournament.

The team is expected to include some of the best players in the country, including LeBron James, Kevin Durant, and Stephen Curry. The team will be coached by veteran coach Pat Riley, who led the U.S. Olympic team to a gold medal in 2012.

The selection process will be held in early 2018, and the team will be announced in March. The tournament will take place in August, and the U.S. Olympic Committee is confident that the team will be able to compete at the highest level.

The basketball tournament will be held in the Olympic Park in London. The U.S. Olympic Committee has already started planning for the event, and the team will be training in the weeks leading up to the tournament.
