Scab records being made in London by British musicians

Sensational Exposure
(MUSICAL EXPRESS STAFF REPORTER)

The great "Nature Boy" Mystery headlining our front page last week has now unearthed wholesale activities in Scab Recordings for use in America. At first we rightly assumed that America was passing the buck to us, but further investigations on our part have brought to light the personnel of orchestrations engaged in this type of work together with the leaders in charge and the studios at which these records are being made. Interrogating certain well-known recording musicians, "MUSICAL EXPRESS" was told that the musicians themselves had been given to understand that the musicians union never knew anything about this type of activity. Some musicians were even under the impression that the recordings were being pressed over here for sale in America. Whereas, in fact, the Matrix is sent to America for dummy purposes.

"Nature Boy" the name of our enquiry, is not the only record that has been made here. It is with profound regret that we announce that what appears to be a wholesale practice in recorded music made expressly for the American market, taking advantage of the fact that American restrictions to record the music themselves.

The great mystery of the week is the name of the recording studio, "Scab Records," which is casting such a shadow over the industry. The mystery studio has been found to be engaged in the making of records expressly for the American market.
