

Reflection of the Future

The formal opening of the new WTTG Television Center in Washington marks the realization of one of Metro-media's plans for greater service to the Capital and the Nation. The new antenna, the tallest in the region, increases range and picture quality. The new studios and expanded facilities will contribute to the further development of the responsible programming that has become the hallmark of Metropolitan Broadcasting Television.

Each of Metro-media's seven television stations across the Nation is deeply dedicated to community efforts. For over fifteen years WTTG has been a leader in bringing to the Washington area the distinctively specific local programming characteristic of an independent television station. WTTG's freedom to innovate makes it possible to better inform and entertain the community while reflecting local needs and views. WTTG's inherent flexibility of operation makes it possible to reflect the multi-faceted image of this premiere city of the Free World.

This has been true in the past, this is Metro-media's promise for the future.
