

ng... acting... he does them all beautifully.

The versatile Mr. Leonard is one of four front-rank producers whose exclusive services on new projects have recently been committed to the NBC Television Network. The other three: "Bonanza's" David Dartort; "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.'s" Norman Felton; and "The Andy Williams Show's" Bob Finkel.

Together, these highly creative producers are a key element in our continuing attention to future programming. We're confident that, beginning with the 1967-68 season, all four will be represented by important additions to NBC's television schedule.

As for Mr. Leonard's golf—for which he's had very little time anyway over the past dozen years—we suspect it will become shabbier than ever, now that he's so deeply involved with ideas for new NBC series.

But cheer up, Sheldon. You won't be losing a birdie; you'll be gaining a Peacock.
