Columbia Wins Ban On Dylan ‘Wonder’

By BRUCE WEBER

LOS ANGELES—Bob Dylan and Columbia Records have taken the first legal step in blocking "Wonder," a new album from manufacturing and selling "The Great White Wonder," a double LP, and infringed on at least eight copyrights by converting reel-to-reel tapes for commercial distribution.

Dylan's contract with Columbia Records expires June 30, 1972.

In an affidavit, Dylan said the "bootlegged" double-LP contains songs which were recorded on tape by the group at various friend’s houses, 16 cuts taken from a tape recorded by me.

The original Dylan recording was done in Newington, Minnoplois, and "Living the Blues" was appropriated direct from a TV performance this year.

A similar action, initiated in California, will be filed in the Federal Copyright Act.

CBS has sought the order for copyright infringement and claims the defendants illegally manufactured and sold the "Great White Wonder," a double LP, and infringed on at least eight copyrights by converting reel-to-reel tapes for commercial distribution.

Motown--The act of manufacturing and selling "The Great White Wonder," a double LP, and infringed on at least eight copyrights by converting reel-to-reel tapes for commercial distribution.

Dylan's contract with Columbia Records expires June 30, 1972.

In an affidavit, Dylan said the "bootlegged" double-LP contains songs which were recorded on tape by the group at various friend’s houses, 16 cuts taken from a tape recorded by me.

The original Dylan recording was done in Newington, Minnoplois, and "Living the Blues" was appropriated direct from a TV performance this year.

A similar action, initiated in California, will be filed in the Federal Copyright Act.

CBS has sought the order for copyright infringement and claims the defendants illegally manufactured and sold the "Great White Wonder," a double LP, and infringed on at least eight copyrights by converting reel-to-reel tapes for commercial distribution.

Motown--The act of manufacturing and selling "The Great White Wonder," a double LP, and infringed on at least eight copyrights by converting reel-to-reel tapes for commercial distribution.

Dylan's contract with Columbia Records expires June 30, 1972.

In an affidavit, Dylan said the "bootlegged" double-LP contains songs which were recorded on tape by the group at various friend’s houses, 16 cuts taken from a tape recorded by me.

The original Dylan recording was done in Newington, Minnoplois, and "Living the Blues" was appropriated direct from a TV performance this year.

A similar action, initiated in California, will be filed in the Federal Copyright Act.

CBS has sought the order for copyright infringement and claims the defendants illegally manufactured and sold the "Great White Wonder," a double LP, and infringed on at least eight copyrights by converting reel-to-reel tapes for commercial distribution.